Marriages are arranged between Captain Lord Charles R. Pratt, 52nd Light Infantry, and Miss Florence Stevenson, daughter of Major Stevenson, formerly of the 7th Dragoon Guards and West Kent Militia, and sister of Mrs. Henry Brassey; between the Hon. Charles Lawrence, son of the late Lord Lawrence, and Miss Sumner, stepdaughter of the late Sir George Buckley Mathew; and between the Dean of Durham and Miss Katherine Gladstone, eldest daughter of the late Captain I. N. Gladstone, R.N., M.P., of Bowden Park, Chippenham.

THE VOLUNTEERS.

The annual spring muster and march out of the City of London Volunteer regiments took place last Saturday afternoon. All the five corps—viz., the 1st London Artillery (Lieutenant-Colonel Wegg-Prosser), 1st London Engineers (Lieutenant-Colonel Drew), London Rifle Brigade (Lieutenant-Colonel Haywood), 2nd London Rifles (Major Nevinson), and 3rd London Rifles (Lieutenant-Colonel Laurie), assembled at Finsbury-circus, whence the column marched off at about half-past five, under the command of the last-named officer. Proceeding by Moorgate-street, Queen Victoria-street, the Thames Embankment, Northumberland-avenue, Pall-mall, St. James's-street, and Piccadilly, they marched to Hyde Park, where they were formed up in line to receive their Brigadier, Colonel Clive, of the Grenadier Guards. The crowd was too great to allow of anything beyond a few simple changes of front being effected, and the regiments were subsequently marched back to the Duke of York's Column and dismissed.

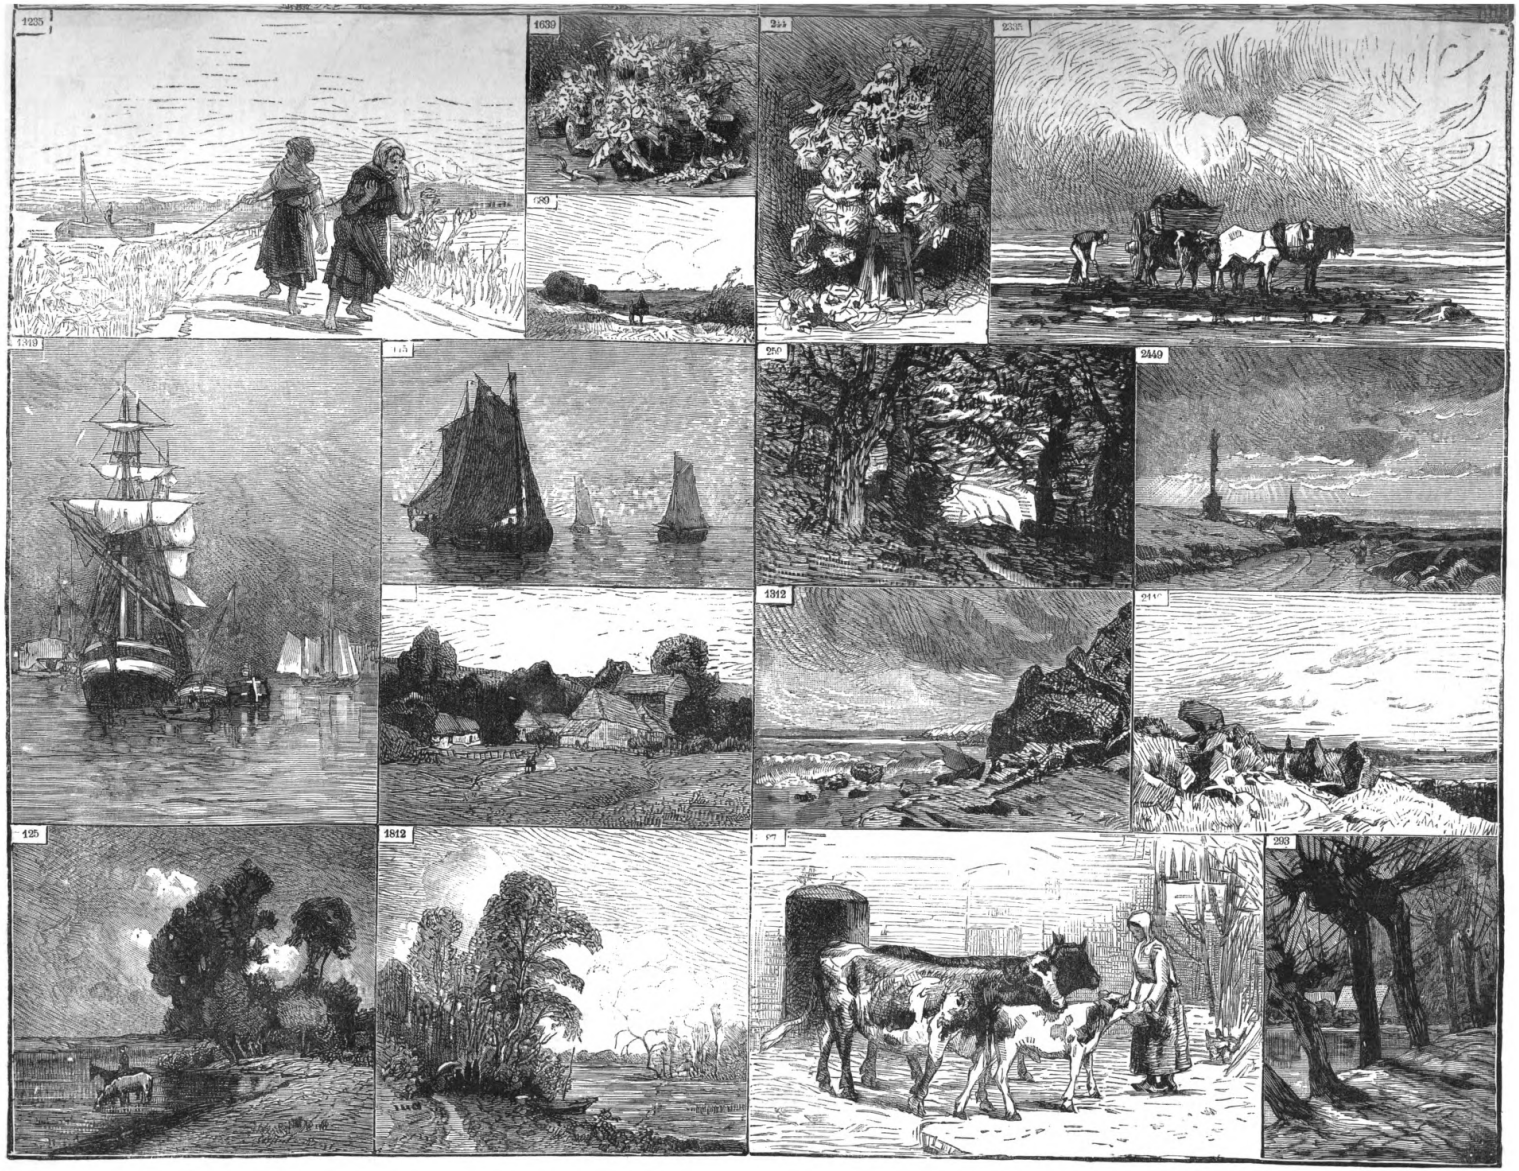
The first of the metropolitan brigade drills of the present season was held last Saturday evening on Wimbledon-common. Colonel Moncrieff, of the Scots Guards, took command of the six regiments, comprising the well-known "Grey Brigade." The line was formed at about half-past six on the plateau near the Windmill, when the force, as it stood in mass of columns, consisted of the South Middlesex Rifles, under Lord Ranelagh; the 10th Middlesex, under Major Clark; the Inns of Court, under Colonel Bulwer; the Artists', under Major Ellis; the Queen's Westminster, under Colonel Bushby; and the London Scottish, under Colonel Lumsden.

Colonel Waller, R.A., commanding the auxiliary artillery of the Home and Woolwich sub-districts, made his official inspection of the 2nd Middlesex (H.M. Customs) Artillery in gun and repository drill at the Tower. At the close Colonel Waller expressed his satisfaction with what he had seen, some of the work having been extremely well done, whilst he was much gratified with the large attendance of officers.

The Volunteer Service Gazette, in making up the account of loss and gain of volunteer officers, states that within the first half of the last volunteer year there have been 363 retirements—those of eight lieutenant-colonels, eleven majors, 119 captains, and 225 subalterns. Against these there are 330 new appointments, so that the net loss is 33 for the six months. In the corresponding period of 1879-80 the net loss was 56.

The Royal Archæological Institute has accepted an invitation to hold its annual meeting in Bedford in July.

261
118
31
1210
2030
891
888
749
2306



SKETCHES OF PICTURES IN THE PARIS SALON.

SEE PAGE 482.

OBITUARY.

SIR EDWARD BLOUNT, BART.

Sir Edward Blount, eighth Baronet, of Sodington, in the county of Worcester, died on the 28th ult., at his seat, Mawley Hall, Bewdley, aged eighty-six. He was born March 3, 1795, the son of Sir Walter Blount, seventh Baronet, by Anne, his wife, youngest daughter of Mr. Thomas Riddell, of Felton Park and Swinburne Castle, both in Northumberland, and when only eight years of age succeeded, at his father's death, Oct. 31, 1803, to the baronetcy, which was conferred, in 1642, on Sir Walter Blount, of Sodington, a gallant Cavalier. Sir Edward was educated at St. Edmund's College, Ware. He was a J.P. and D.L. for Worcestershire, and served as High Sheriff in 1835. He married, Sept. 14, 1830, his cousin, Mary Frances, eldest daughter of Mr. Edward Blount, M.P. for Steyning, and had five sons and three daughters. His eldest son and successor, now Sir Walter de Sodington Blount, ninth Baronet, J.P. and D.L., was born Dec. 19, 1833. The grand old family of Blount, which has given birth to the Barons of Ixworth, in Suffolk, as well as to the Barons Mountjoy, of Thurveston, in the county of Derby, is stated by Dugdale to have possessed at the time of the General Survey thirteen lordships in Suffolk.

THE HON. AND REV. E. H. GRIMSTON.

The Hon and Rev. Edward Harbottle Grimston died on the 4th inst., at the Rectory, Pebmarsh, Essex. He was the second son of James Walter, first Earl of Verulam, by his wife, the Lady Charlotte Jenkinson, only daughter of Charles, first Earl of Liverpool, and was born April 2, 1812. He married, June 15, 1842, Frances Horatio, eldest daughter of the late Mr. John Philip Morier. The deceased was educated at Christ Church and All Souls' College, Oxford, of which college he became a Fellow, and was M.P. for St. Albans from 1835 to February, 1841, when he retired. He then entered the Church, and was ordained priest by the then Bishop of Oxford in 1842. He was appointed to the family living of Pebmarsh, and in 1845 was appointed Rector of Great Henny, Essex. He was brother of the present Earl of Verulam, the Dowager Countess of Craven, and the Countess of Caledon.

SIR R. B. CLARKE.

Sir Robert Bowcher Clarke, Knt., C.B., late Chief Justice of Barbadoes, died on the 9th inst., at Eldridge, Chiselhurst, aged seventy-eight. This learned lawyer, who was educated at Trinity College, Cambridge, and was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple in 1827, became Solicitor-General of Barbadoes in 1837, and Chief Justice of St. Lucia in 1849. Eventually, as Chief Justice of Barbadoes, he retired from the judicial Bench in 1874. The honour of Knighthood was conferred on him in 1840.

MR. HERMON, M.P.

Mr. Edward Hermon, M.P. for Preston, of Wyfold Court, Oxfordshire, D.L., died suddenly at his residence in London on the 6th inst. He was up to recently the head of the well-known firm of Horrocks, Miller, and Co., cotton-spinners and manufacturers. He was first elected for Preston in November, 1868, and represented that constituency, as a Conservative, ever since. He married, in 1848, Emily, youngest daughter of Mr. George Udny, formerly member of the Supreme Council at Calcutta, a descendant of the very ancient family of Udny of that Ilk, and leaves George Edward and other issue.

We have also to record the deaths of—

Sir John Digby Murray, Bart., on the 8th inst. His memoir will be given next week.

The Hon. Catharine Leicester Warren, eldest daughter of Lord De Tabley, on the 9th inst.

Mr. George Anthony Aufrere, of Foul-ham, Norfolk, on the 6th inst., at Burnside, Westmorland, aged eighty-six.

The Rev. Robert Williams, M.A., Hon. Canon of St. Asaph and Rector of Culmington, near Ludlow, J.P., formerly of Rhydycroesan, near Oswestry, on the 26th ult.

Mr. John William Brooke, M.A., of Sibton Park, Suffolk, J.P. and D.L., High Sheriff in 1863, on the 5th inst., aged fifty-six. He was only son of the late Mr. John Brooke, of Armitage Bridge, near Huddersfield, J.P. and D.L.; was educated at Eton and Oxford, and called to the Bar in 1848.

The Marquis de la Valette, Minister of Foreign Affairs in France in 1866 and French Ambassador at the Court of St. James's in 1870. He was married to Georgiana Gabrielle Elphinstone de Flahault, daughter of the late Count de Flahault and sister of the Dowager Marchioness of Lansdowne.

Lady Westphall (Mary Anne), widow of Admiral Sir George Augustus Westphall, on the 3rd inst., at Brighton, aged sixty-eight years. She was daughter of Mr. John Racey, of Quebec, and was married, first, to Mr. George Addenbrooke Gore, of Barrowmount; and, secondly, to Admiral Westphall.

The Rev. R. B. Hone, M.A., Rector of Halesowen and Archdeacon of Worcester, on the 5th inst., at Halesowen Rectory, Worcestershire, at the age of seventy-seven. He had held the living of Halesowen for forty-five or forty-six years, and the archdeaconry had been under his charge since 1849.

Mr. James Barry, D.L., of Ballyclough, in the county of Cork, and Mocollop Castle, in the county of Waterford, formerly Lieutenant in the 71st and Captain in the 15th Regiments, on the 30th ult., aged seventy-five. He was known as "the McAdam Barry," representing an influential line of the great house of Barry, in the county of Cork.

Mr. John Wingfield Stratford, of Addington Park, Kent, J.P. and D.L., High Sheriff 1873, on the 8th inst., in his seventy-first year. He was the descendant of a branch of the noble family of Wingfield, Viscounts Powerscourt. The surname of Stratford was adopted in consequence of the succession to the Addington estate. He married, Dec. 10, 1841, Jane Elizabeth, daughter of Sir J. Guise, Bart., and leaves issue.

Mr. Henry Calley, of Burdrop Park, Wilts, J.P. and D.L., High Sheriff 1867, formerly Major 13th Foot, on the 3rd inst., aged sixty-three. He married, first, 1855, Frances Elizabeth, only child of Mr. C. Bowyer, of Farleigh House, Hants; and secondly, 1859, Emily Augusta, only daughter of Mr. Serjeant Wrangham. His only son by his first wife is Thomas Charles Pleydell Calley, of the 1st Life Guards.

Mr. Henry Christopher Metcalfe, of Hawstead House, near Bury St. Edmund's, Suffolk, late 91st Regiment, on the 16th ult., aged fifty-eight. In 1847 Mr. Metcalfe was Commandant and Superintendent of Kat River Settlement, Cape of Good Hope. His great-grandfather, Christopher Metcalfe, a friend of Dryden, was elder brother of P. Metcalfe, F.R.S., F.S.A., M.P., the companion and executor of Sir Joshua Reynolds.

Major Loftus Corbet-Singleton, 92nd (Gordon) Highlanders, on May 1, at Prospect Hill, Natal, of wounds received in the battle of Majuba Hill. He was fourth son of the late Mr. Henry Corbet Singleton, D.L., of Aclare House, in the county of Meath, by Jane Percival Compton, his wife, daughter of General Lord [illegible]. He was born in 1852, [illegible] married, in 1872, Emma Jane, daughter of Mr. Thomas [illegible], Q.C.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications relating to this department of the Paper should be addressed to the Editor, and have the word "Chess" written on the envelope.

W F W.—Your problem is very fairly constructed for a first attempt; but the solution too closely resembles that of No. 1941, published a few weeks ago.

J D (Lowestoft).—We have requested the editor of the magazine to forward you the copies you require. 2. The book of the Leipsic Chess Congress (1877), published by Veit and Co., Leipsic.

W J E (Dewsbury).—Thanks for the information. It was stated according to the report furnished to us; but, in any case, the number is not of any importance in such affairs.

Pitonic (Pitsford).—The publisher will attend to your request. Your solution of No. 1937 is correct, and we shall be glad to hear from you frequently.

G A (Bonchurch).—The last batch shall be examined. I hope to use diagrams.

B G L (Islington).—We shall be glad to comply with your request but there is some misunderstanding about your four-move problem which should be cleared up.

E C (Paris).—We do not see La Stratégie regularly; but if you will send the monthly part referred to, you shall have an answer.

L L G (Wells).—In the first edition of Staunton's book of the 1851 tournament many of the diagrams were defective. These were corrected in the second edition, and the latter is, consequently, more valuable than the other. Both were published by Bohn, Covent-garden, London.

R K (Brompton).—Much too simple a position, even for a first attempt at problem composition. We do not like to advise you either to abandon such work or to persevere in view of such a sample of your powers; but if you do try again, we shall be glad to examine your productions.

The Dover Chess Club desires to play a game by correspondence with some similar association. Address Mr. Walter T. Heard, 7, Snargate-street, Dover.

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1934 received from W Pocock, of Cape Town; of Nos. 1935, 1936, and 1937 from Va, U.S.

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1939 received from John Balfour, Hereward, W J Eggleston, R H Brooks, and W Biddle.

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1940 received from Dr F St, Cholwell, A Chapman, E Ridgway, Emile Frau, Pops, and H Stebbing.

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1941 received from H B, Dr F St, Cholwell, James Dobson, J A Schmucke, Hereward, W Hillier, Jupiter Junior, An Old Hand, M O Hall-tam, A Harper, W J Rudman, F Terris, C W Milsom, R Gray, East Marden, A M Cullimore, S S Harris, R T Reddell, D W Gurney, R Draper, G A Handscombe, S Parrant, D W Kell, L Falcon (Antwerp), Elsie Tiberius, Norman Rumbelow, Snaith, Pops, Oswald, J S Cox, John Balfour, Ben Nevis, Guest, E Louden, R Ingersoll, Shorewood, F Shorwood, T H Holdron, Frank Luttlebee, E Ridgway, R T Kemp, H H Nones, J A B (Durham), Stuart Beckeley, H Blacklock, F Casella (Paris), B L Dyke, E Elsdon, G L, Major J W W, T Kershaw, Alfred Rowley, S Lowndes, Elsie, Theodor Wullink, E L G, Emile Frau, L L Greenaway, Sidmouth, Blacklock, Rose Cleve, A Chapman, Lulu, F G Parker, R J Vines, G Fenbrooke, A Scottish Man, G W Law, Fire Pigg, H Stebbing, Botkin, Joseph Ainsworth, W S Wood, Nerina, Z Ingold, Sudbury, Suffolk, Chut, Leslie Lachlan, Shuttforth, J Perez Ventoso, S Hoare (Llanelly), and R H Brooks.

Solution of Problem No. 1940.

| WHITE. | BLACK. |
|---|---|
| 1. Q to H 5th | Kt to B 3rd* |
| 2. K to K 4th | Any move |
| 3. Mates accordingly. | |

* If Black play 1. Kt to Q Kt 4th or 1. Kt to K 6th, White continues with 2. Q to K 6th (ch), and mates with Q or Kt on the next move.

PROBLEM No. 1943.
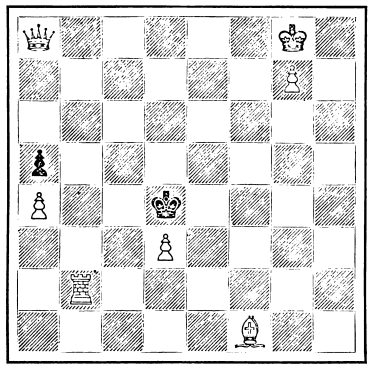
By H. M. Prideaux.

BLACK.



WHITE.

White to play, and mate in three moves.

One of the Games in the Match, now being played at St. Louis, between Messrs. Mackenzie and Judd. The notes are by Mr. Mackenzie.

(Irregular Opening.)

| WHITE (Mr. M.) | BLACK (Mr. J.) |
|---|---|
| 1. P to Q 4th | P to K B 4th |
| 2. P to K Kt 3rd | P to K 3rd |
| 3. B to Kt 2nd | P to Q B 3rd |
| 4. P to Q B 4th | Kt to K B 3rd |
| 5. Kt to Q B 3rd | P to Q 4th |
| 6. P to Q Kt 3rd | B to Q Kt 5th |
| 7. B to Q Kt 2nd | Kt to K 5th |
| 8. B takes Kt | B P takes B |
| 9. P to K 3rd | |

9. P to K B 2nd is a much stronger continuation.

| | |
|---|---|
| 9. | Castles |
| 10. K Kt to K 2nd | Kt to Q 2nd |
| 11. Castles | R to K B 6th |
| 12. K to Kt 2nd | P to K Kt 4th |
| 13. Kt to K Kt sq | P to Kt 5th |

Mr. Judd thought afterwards that he would have now done better by 13. R takes Q Kt.

| | |
|---|---|
| 14. Q Kt to K 2nd | Kt to K B sq |
| 15. Kt to K B 4th | Kt to Kt 3rd |
| 16. Kt takes Kt | P takes Kt |
| 17. P to K R 3rd | |

Taken the Rook would leave the White King in a very cramped situation.

| | |
|---|---|
| 17. | P takes P (ch) |
| 18. K to B 2nd | R to B 2nd |
| 19. P to K B 4th | |

19. Q to K Kt 4th is decidedly preferable.

| | |
|---|---|
| 19. | R to R 2nd |
| 20. R to Q B sq | Q to B 3rd |
| 21. R to Q B 2nd | R to Q 2nd |
| 22. K to B sq | R to Q 4th |
| 23. R to K R 2nd | K to Kt 2nd |
| 24. R takes P | Q R to K R sq |
| 25. K to Kt 2nd | R to R 2nd |
| 26. R takes R (ch) | R takes R |

| WHITE (Mr. M.) | BLACK (Mr. J.) |
|---|---|
| 27. Kt to R 3rd | K to Kt sq |
| 28. Kt to B 2nd | Q to R sq |
| 29. R to K R sq | R takes R |
| 30. Kt takes R | Q to R 4th |
| 31. Kt to B 2nd | K to B 2nd |
| 32. P to K Kt 4th | Q to B 5th |
| 33. P to Kt 5th | B to Q 3rd |
| 34. B to Q B 3rd | K to B sq |
| 35. B to K sq | Q to R 3rd |
| 36. P to Q Kt 4th | P to Q B 3rd |
| 37. P to Q R 4th | K to K 2nd |
| 38. Q to K 2nd | K to Q sq |
| 39. P to Q B 5th | |

White would have improved his chance of winning by playing 39. P to Q Kt 5th.

| | |
|---|---|
| 39. | B to Q B 2nd |
| 40. K to Kt 3rd | K to K 2nd |
| 41. B to Q B 3rd | K to B sq |
| 42. Q to Q sq | K to K 2nd |
| 43. K to Kt 2nd | K to B sq |
| 44. K to B sq | K to K 2nd |
| 45. K to K sq | Q to R 7th |
| 46. Q to K 2nd | Q to Kt sq (ch) |
| 47. K to Q 2nd | Q to Kt 7th |
| 48. K to Q sq | K to B sq |
| 49. R to K sq | K to K 2nd |
| 50. B to B 2nd | K to B sq |
| 51. B to Kt 2nd | K to K 2nd |
| 52. B to R 3rd | |

Having in view the advance of the Pawn to Q Kt 5th.

| | |
|---|---|
| 52. | K to Q sq |
| 53. K to Q 2nd | K to K sq |
| 54. Kt to Kt 4th | Q takes Q (ch) |
| 55. K takes Q | |

The game was continued for many more moves; but was eventually abandoned as drawn.

A match, the arrangements for which we announced a few weeks ago, between the best players of Cambridge University and the fourth class of the City of London Club, was played at Mouflet's Hotel, Newgate-street, on Saturday, the 7th inst. Each club was represented by twelve champions, and the contest turned out one of the closest conceivable. When the hour fixed for the termination arrived, the score stood at "six all," with one game to be adjudicated by the umpire, and when Mr. Blackburne, who officiated in that capacity, declared the unfinished game a draw, the announcement was received with hearty cheers. The following is the full score, for which we are indebted to Mr. Adamson, the honorary secretary of the City of London Chess Club:—

| CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY. | | CITY OF LONDON (4th Class). | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Mr. F. Mowle (King's Coll.) ... | 1 | Mr. C. G. Cudlip ... ... ... | 0 |
| Mr. F. F. Cox (St. Cath.) ... | 1 | Mr. E. Gordon ... ... ... | 0 |
| Mr. E. L. Raymond (Christ's) | 0½ | Mr. J. R. Hunnex ... ... ... | 1½ |
| Mr. W. A. Adamson (St. John's) | 0½ | Mr. M. D. Blunt ... ... ... | 0½ |
| Mr. J. Trimsby (Trinity ... | 0 | Mr. C. G. Barker ... ... ... | 1 |
| Mr. W. H. Longsdon (Trin.) ... | 0 | Mr. S. Israel ... ... ... | 1 |
| Mr. W. I. J. Lloyd (Trinity) | 1 | Mr. J. Foster ... ... ... | 0 |
| Mr. E. H. Carver, B.A. (Clare) | 1 | Mr. C. H. Coster ... ... ... | 0 |
| Mr. W. P. Puncombe (Non.) ... | 1 | Mr. Henry Chitty ... ... ... | 0 |
| Mr. W. H. Pemell (St. John's) | 0 | Mr. A. F. Long ... ... ... | 1 |
| Mr. C. F. Ritchie (Mag.) ... | 0½ | Mr. W. Sichler ... ... ... | 0½ |
| Mr. H. Heptins (Non.) ... ... | 0 | Mr. R. G. Laws ... ... ... | 1 |
| | 6½ | | 6½ |

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will (dated Oct. 29, 1879) with a codicil (dated Jan. 31, 1881) of Mr. Richard Johnson, late of Kennal Manor, Chislehurst, who died on Feb. 16 last, was proved on the 23rd ult. by Frederic William Walker, William Roberts, M.D., and Adam Murray, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £160,000. The testator leaves to his wife, Mrs. Emma Johnson, £1000, in addition to some specific bequests; and there are legacies to relatives, servants, and others. The residue of his real and personal estate is to be held upon trust for his wife for life, and at her death for his two grandsons, Richard Johnson Walker and William Richard Johnson Roberts.

The will (dated July 15, 1861) with four codicils (dated Nov. 6, 1865; Aug. 12, 1870; Feb. 23, 1877; and Aug. 3, 1880) of Mr. Francis Jervoise Ellis Jervoise, late of Herriard Park, Southampton, and of The Moat, Britford, Wilts, who died on Jan. 7 last, was proved on the 21st ult. by Francis Michael Ellis Jervoise, John Purefoy Ellis Jervoise, and Arthur Tristram Ellis Jervoise, the sons, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £90,000. The testator devises the Herriard and Britford estates to the use of his eldest son for life, with remainder to his first and other sons successively, according to seniority in tail male; the portraits, miniatures, and drawings at his two residences are made heirlooms to go with such estates; a farm at Yardley, Worcestershire, he gives to his son John Purefoy, and he also settles upon him the lordship or manor of Stratford Tony, Southampton; his farm at Stickney, Lincolnshire, he leaves to his son Arthur Tristram. There is other provision for his children, and some legacies. The residue of his property, real and personal, is to be divided between all his children, except his eldest son.

The will (dated July 15, 1880) with a codicil (dated the following day) of Mr. Charles Stephen Barron, late of No. 16, Orsett-terrace, Hyde Park, who died on March 6 last, was proved on the 12th ult. by Francis John Barron and William Clarke, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £45,000. The testator bequeaths £4000 to St. Mary's Hospital, Paddington; £2000 each to the Surrey County Hospital, and the Hospital for Consumption and Diseases of the Chest, Brompton; £1000 each to the Royal Hospital for Incurables, West-hill, Putney-heath; the Smallpox Hospital, Highgate; the Great Northern Hospital, Caledonian-road; the Cottage Hospital, Ventnor; the Middlesex Hospital; Charing-cross Hospital; the Metropolitan Convalescent Institution, Walton-on-Thames; the Dudley Stuart Home, Market-street, Edgware-road; the London Orphan Asylum, Watford; and the East London Hospital for Children, Shadwell; and numerous other legacies. The residue of such part of his personal estate as may by law be applied for charitable purposes he gives to such one or more hospitals, homes, or institutions for widows and children, or widows and children of soldiers, as may be selected by his executors; and the remainder of his property he gives to the said Francis John Barron.

The will (dated Dec. 20, 1876) of Mr. John Christian Bergmann, late of No. 20, Ampthill-square, who died on March 4 last was proved on the 16th ult. by William Edward Matthiessen, Charles Bogler, the nephew, and Henry Grose, the acting executors, the personal estate being sworn under £45,000. The testator bequeaths to his niece, Miss Mary Hardy, £200, the cash in the house, his furniture and household effects, except plate, and an annuity of £200; to the said Charles Bogler, £1000; to the said Henry Grose, £500; to the German Hospital, Dalston, £50; to be distributed by Dr. Cappel among German charities in London, £50; and other legacies. As to the residue of his property, he leaves one sixth upon trust for his brother Philip; one sixth for the children of his brother Charles; one sixth to his sister Dorothy Bogler; one sixth for the children of his sister Katherine Schmatz; one sixth to his niece Bertha Gershausen; and one sixth to his niece Ida Wesel von Schmid.

The will and codicil (both dated Feb. 1, 1876) of General Charles Gascoyne, Colonel of the 72nd Foot, late of No. 4, Chesterfield-street, Mayfair, who died on March 10 last, were proved on the 20th ult. by Major-General Edward Gascoyne Bulwer, C.B., the nephew, the sole executor, the personal estate being sworn under £45,000. The testator gives £100 each to the Royal Hospital for Incurables, West-hill, Putney, and the National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, Queen's-square, Bloomsbury; the plate presented to his late father by the Liverpool and Manchester Railway to his brother General Frank Gascoyne; all his real estate to his said nephew, Major-General Bulwer; £16,000 Consols upon trust for his brothers General Frank Gascoyne and Major Henry Gascoyne, for their lives; on the death of the survivor of them, the capital sum is to be divided between such of his then unmarried nieces as shall belong to the Protestant Catholic Church, as established by the rites and articles of the Church of England and not belonging to the Puseyite or High Church party; and other legacies. The residue of the personalty he bequeaths to Major-General Bulwer.

The will (dated Dec. 26, 1873) of Mr. Granville Robert Henry Somerset, Q.C., D.C.L., late of No. 16, Queen Anne's-gate, who died on March 23 last, was proved on the 14th ult. by Mrs. Emma Philadelphia Somerset, the widow and sole executrix, the personal estate being sworn under £40,000. The testator leaves everything which he may die possessed of, or to which he may be entitled, to his wife.

The will (dated Jan. 1, 1881) of Mr. Edward Jeggins, late of Bentley House, Park-road, East Moulsey, who died on the 23rd ult., was proved on the 11th inst. by the Rev. Jonathan Bayley, the Rev. John Presland, and Thomas George Bullen, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £35,000. The testator leaves to his housekeeper, Sarah Tattersfield, a pecuniary legacy of £1000, and all his household furniture, plate, and effects; he also leaves her for life his residence, Bentley House, and an annuity of £52; and there are legacies to his executors and others. The remainder of the pure personalty is to be held upon trust for his sisters-in-law, Mrs. Martha Jeggins and Mrs. Jane Amelia Jeggins, for their lives, and on the death of the survivor it is given to the said Rev. J. Bayley and the Rev. J. Presland for such of the several societies or congregations of the New Church (Swedenborgian) as the said trustees in their absolute discretion shall think fit. The residue of his property he gives to his said sisters-in-law absolutely.

The will (dated May 15, 1872) with three codicils (dated Aug. 10, 1879; and Feb. 9 and June 30, 1880) of Mr. Edwin Toby Caulfield, Commander R.N., late of Beckford House, Lansdown-crescent, Bath, who died on Feb. 24 last, was proved on the 13th ult. by Mrs. Alicia Almeria Caulfield, the widow, and Henry Cope Caulfield, and Edwin James Stuart Widdrington Caulfield, the sons, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £35,000. The testator gives his estate at Raheenduff, near Stradbally, Queen's County, Ireland, to his son Henry Cope, for life, and then to his son Edwin James Stuart Widdrington; provision is made for his wife, and also for his sons and daughters. He appoints his wife residuary legatee. C. G. C.

SOUND INVESTMENTS.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY OF CANADA.—The report and accounts recently issued, when studied by the light of the very satisfactory meeting held last week, abundantly demonstrate that, although there has been a marvellous rate of development during the past two years, the future may be looked forward to with perfect confidence. All who are interested in this Railway should carefully study the minutely analytical and exhaustive speech of the President on the occasion referred to. Abundant testimony is there afforded to justify the growing favour with which the securities of this Railway are regarded; and, although it is somewhat invidious to make a selection from Sir Henry Tyler's favourable statements, the following extracts are particularly interesting:—

"Within a limited period we may find the traffic on the Chicago line at least doubled. . . . Therefore I may venture to predict that it is quite worth our while to make our system as perfect as we can, with the view, not of the possibility or probability, but of the certainty, of our having in future more traffic than we shall be able to carry. . . . As I have already told you, the increased population and the increased area under cultivation in the Great West must assist us by bringing a great deal of traffic, and place us in a better position in the future than we have ever been in the past."

It is evident from the enormous emigration which is going on at the present time and the opening out of the vast territories in the West that the Grand Trunk Railway must be considerably enriched. Investors are gradually awakening to these facts, and hence the recent advance in quotations. The Five per Cent Debentures and the Five per Cent First Preference must be respectively regarded as high-class securities, the Second Preference at 96, earning the full 5 per cent, is decidedly cheap; while the Third Preference (which earned a small dividend last year) and the Ordinary Stocks being entitled to the whole reversion of the railway (which includes the Grand Trunk Company's proprietorship of £1,192,000 of the Ordinary stock of the Chicago line) are unquestionably attractive stocks for the future. Recent traffic returns both on the Grand Trunk and Chicago lines have shown such enormous expansion that the intrinsic merits of the property at the present time amply justify still higher quotations.

NEW YORK, PENNSYLVANIA, AND OHIO (late ATLANTIC AND GREAT WESTERN).—The statement of net working for the first two months of the year shows less favourable results than had been expected. This, however, is wholly explained by the unusual severity of the weather. There has been increased vitality in recent receipts, and it is fair to assume that still better results will be attained before the close of the half-year, as many indications of prosperity are manifesting themselves. The ridiculous attempts which have been made to forecast results for the remainder of the half-year, based on the working of two notoriously bad months, need not be regarded with the slightest anxiety; for even in the very worst case, presuming that no cash dividend should be paid, the distribution would be in stock, which at the market price would yield 7 per cent to present investors. The position of the Railway and its value to neighbouring lines are such that it must before long be absorbed by some of the great Companies surrounding it.

PHILADELPHIA AND READING.—The traffic and revenue statements issued by this Railway during the present year have uniformly shown highly favourable results, and as compared with all other American Railways which suffered in January and February from the special causes already referred to, the Philadelphia and Reading's net earnings exhibited large increases instead of decreases. The inherent value of this property doubtless explains the fierce contest now going on to supplant Mr. Gowen in the management. I think these shares should be firmly held for higher prices.

MEXICAN RAILWAY.—A review of the recent history of this Company and its extraordinary advancement to prosperity, must afford considerable encouragement to those who are interested in other Railways which are now emerging from similar troubles to those with which the Mexican Company formerly had to contend. A further marked improvement in values has taken place since last month, due to the great increase of traffic earnings.

GREAT EASTERN RAILWAY.—A great rise has taken place in this stock during the past month. Among the many favourable features, the prospect of an early removal of the restrictions upon cattle traffic is of great importance, as direct benefit will accrue to the extent of £1200 per week from this source. The extension of the line to the Millwall Docks in connection with the Midland, is likely to bring a large amount of traffic, and indeed at every point on this Company's system a wonderful development is going on. Thus, at Harwich, in order to provide for the rapidly increasing Continental traffic, and to further utilise this deep water port, a Company has been formed, and will be introduced in a few days, under very powerful auspices, for the construction of docks, new quays, and repairing slips. When these works are completed, a totally new trade will be attracted to the port, to the manifest advantage of the Railway. The consideration of these facts, in conjunction with the approaching completion of the Northern Extension, by which access will be gained to the Coal, Iron, and Manufacturing districts in the North, all tend to demonstrate the growing value of the Ordinary Stock, and those investors who now avail themselves of the opportunity will surely be rewarded.

ISLE OF MAN RAILWAY.—Upon the basis of last year's earnings these shares yield over 4½ per cent, but the prospects for last point to a dividend of 6 per cent, which would pay a present buyer nearly 7½ per cent. This is a well-managed and progressive line.

CORNWALL MINE RALS RAILWAY.—After some years of depression induced by the vicissitudes which overtook the various Mining enterprises upon which the success of this Railway depended, it at last shows signs of revival. In 1878, for the protection of various interests, it was placed in the hands of a Receiver, but steps are now being taken to restore its independence. The immediate inducements for bringing about this desirable result are, no doubt, afforded by the growth of the traffic receipts (the months of January and February showing an increase of over 30 per cent), and the re-opening of tin, copper, iron, and china-clay enterprises in Cornwall. Recent progress has been so very satisfactory, and the prospects of steady continuance are such, that in the days when a guaranteed minimum rental now paid by the Great Western Company, the latter will probably exercise their option which expires next year for the purchase of the line on the following agreed terms—viz., to guarantee 4 per cent on the Preference Stocks and 2½ per cent upon the Ordinary, in which event both Preferences would be worth 110, and the Ordinary about 70. If the Great Western should not exercise this option, I have such confidence in the latent merits of the property, that it will pay the Shareholders to wait for its natural development. Meantime, the 6 per cent Preference at 54, the 5 per cent Preference at 46, and the Ordinary at 31 are, in my opinion, attractive investments for the future.

TRAMWAYS.—After a period of neglect there are symptoms of returning vitality in these securities. This is scarcely surprising, when it is remembered that the majority of them pay dividends ranging from 3 to 8 per cent, and that experiments during the past month have demonstrated the practicability of substituting mechanical for horse power. In anticipation of returning activity, I recommend a selection of dividend-paying and non-dividend-paying shares for investment. Of the latter the most attractive are Swansea, Birkenhead, Imperial, and Sunderland.

BORDEAUX TRAMWAYS.—The traffic returns indicate a very favourable result for the half-year, and I think 6 per cent for the current six months, and 7 per cent for the remainder of the year may fairly be anticipated. The £10 Shares at 10s. premium are then fore cheap.

TRAMWAYS OF GERMANY.—The steadiness with which the earnings of this Tramway system continue to augment is most encouraging. For the four months ending April 30, the increase amounts to £1568, or 15 per cent. There can be no doubt as to the earning of a greatly increased dividend over last year, when 6 per cent was paid.

CANADA COPPER AND SULPHUR COMPANY.—Recent reports from these Mines are of the most favourable character, and in my opinion the £1 fully paid shares are now much better worth £3 than when quoted at that price a year ago. They can now be bought under £2.

INDIAN GOLD-MINES.— There has been much animation in this market, and the most conspicuous feature has been the advance from 25s to £10 in the shares of the pioneer undertaking the Indian Gold-Mines Company of Glasgow. The analysis of its first crushing operations has not yet been received in London, but it is hourly expected. As soon as it is made known, considerable firmness will no doubt be imparted to the market for the four Companies which I have recommended.

SOUTTY INDIAN GOLD-MINE.—The special report of Mr. Jennings, the secretary, who has just returned from a personal inspection of the property in India, is a valuable addition to the accumulated evidence as to the richness of these enterprises. It is worthy of very careful study. The allotment of four shillings per share will be paid immediately after the deed of transfer of the Treveylan property has been registered in Madras. This announcement is looked for immediately. The company's holding of Indian Treveylan shares now shows a profit of 50 per cent.

INDIAN GLENROCK.—It is evident that this company possesses so many valuable reefs that it will be impossible to work them all. The forthcoming practical demonstration by the Glasgow Company will, therefore, afford the opportunity for the formation of a number of sub-companies, to the great enrichment of the parent undertaking.

INDIAN PHŒNIX.—Now that the machinery and the first contingent of miners have arrived in India from Australia, the works are being pushed on very energetically. The position and prospects are represented most favourably by disinterested persons who have recently visited the property.

INDIAN TREVELYAN. — The confirmation of the report that alluvial deposits exist on this Company's Estates is an important feature affecting their value. The surface rights have just been purchased, so that the property is now freehold. All the works are rapidly progressing.

I think the shares of the above four companies are worth buying.

POTOSI GOLD-MINING COMPANY.—This Company has been only a few months in existence, although the gold from its quartz reefs has been sold in London in steadily increasing quantities for ten years past. The shares, which at one time were about £1 premium, have recently dropped to a premium. This price represents the disappointment caused by inefficient working rather than by any real gem we have. At the past month the value of the electric light as a substitute for gas has been strikingly proved by the lack of any extensive fire in the City, while at the same time the use of the Telephone since its recognition by the Postmaster-General is rapidly increasing with a rapidity unknown even in the history of telegraphy.

ELECTRIC LIGHT AND POWER GENERATING COMPANY.—Recent demonstrations prove that this Company's system of Electric Light by dividing the current with the "Brush" Company, and a new and practical use of the process will shortly be introduced, which is likely to result from the successful experiments of the past two years, both in England and France, very greatly to the benefit of the undertaking. While opinions may differ as to electric lighting superseding the use of gas, there can be no question that it must to a very great extent become a more popular illuminating agent, and it is therefore a matter for consideration whether holders of gas securities would not act wisely in exchanging a portion of their investments for shares in the best Electric Light Companies. The £1 shares of the Electric Light and Power Generating Company are already quoted at about 5s. 6d. premium, and in my opinion they are likely to attain much higher values.

TELEPHONE CONSTRUCTION AND MAINTENANCE COMPANY.—Formed upon the same basis as the Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company which has seen the successful pioneer of submarine telegraphy over the globe, this Company is likely to possess many features in the new department of this new branch of electrical science. Existing contracts alone will ensure a handsome return upon the capital, and if it therefore not surpassing the shares are quoted at ten shillings premium.

From Mr. WILLIAM ABBOTT'S Circular for May.

Tokenhouse-yard, London, E.C.

BREIDENBACH'S

SACHETS.

Wood Violet, White Rose, Stephanotis, Marechale, Eau Bouquet, Musk, Ylang Ylang, Opopanax, Jockey Club, Patchouly, Frangipanni, 1s. each; in silk bags, 1s. each; in satin cushions, 2s. 6d. each. Sold by all Perfumers and Fancy Dealers, or post-free from the Makers, 157 a, New Bond-street, London, W.

MRS. S. A. ALLEN'S

WORLD'S HAIR RESTORER

THE ADMIRATION OF THE WORLD. Mrs S. A. Allen's World's Hair Restorer is perfected for its wonderful life-giving properties to faded or falling hair, and quickly changing grey or white hair to its natural youthful colour and beauty. It is not a dye. A few simple applications to restore grey hair to its youthful colour and lustrous beauty, and induce luxuriant growth, and its continuous use thereafter to preserve it in its highest perfection and beauty. Dandruff is quickly and permanently removed. Sold by all Chemists and Perfumers.

THE LONG TRYING WINTER, necessitating large fires, and living in a hot, dry atmosphere, has been without effect upon the hair of most people, who will do well to use ROWLANDS' MACASSAR OIL during the Spring months if they desire the usual Spring growth of chevelure. Sold everywhere.

SPRING.—Cutaneous visitations now prevail, and render ROWLANDS' KALYDOR, for the Complexion and Skin, of peculiar value and importance. This unique botanical preparation allays all irritation and tenderness of the skin, removes cutaneous disfigurements, freckles, and tan, and imparts a healthy and blooming appearance to the complexion, and a delicacy and softness to the neck, hands, and arms. Sold in two sizes, by Chemists.

PIESSE and LUBIN.

Opoponax, Jockey Club, Patchouly, Frangipanni, Kiss-Me-Quick, White Rose, and 1000 others. Every flower that breathes a fragrance. 2s. 6d. each, or three Bottles in a Case, 7s. The above Sweet Scents in Sachet Powder, 1s. 6d. each, can be forwarded by post. Sold by the fashionable Druggists and Perfumers in all parts of the world.

2, NEW BOND-STREET, LONDON.

TURKISH PASTILS.

"Through all my travels few things astonished me more than seeing the beauties of the harem smoking Narghiles at Stamboul. After smoking, a sweet aromatic incense or pastil is used by them, which is said to impart an odour of flowers to the breath. I have never seen their equal for fragrance but once in Europe, and that was at PIESSE and LUBIN'S shop in Bond-street."—Lady W. Montagu.

In Packs, 2s.; by post, 2s. 2d.

2, NEW BOND-STREET, LONDON.

NUDA VERITAS.—GREY HAIR restored by this valuable specific to its original shade, after which it grows the natural colour, and lastly. Used as a dressing, it causes growth and arrests falling. The most harmless and effectual restorer extant. One trial will convince it has no equal. Price 10s. 6d., of all chemists and Hairdressers. Testimonials post-free.—R. HOVENDEN and SONS, London.

GOLDEN HAIR.—ROBARE'S AUREOLINE produces the beautiful Golden Colour so much admired. Warranted perfectly harmless. Price 5s. 6d. and 10s. 6d., of all Perfumers. Wholesale, HOVENDEN and SONS, 5, Great Marlborough-street, W.; and 91 and 93, City-road, E.C.

THE COURT HAIR DESTROYER. The newly-discovered, quite harmless, only effective remedy for superfluous hair, 3s. 6d.; post, privately packed, 45 stamps. of Inventor, JOHN LEON, 18, Fortescue-road, London, W.; or Chemists.

ALLEN and HANBURYS'

"PERFECTED"

COD-LIVER OIL.

"It is so pure and tasteless that when oil will agree at all this is sure to do so."—On Loss of Weight, Blood-spitting, and Lung Disease." by HORACE DOBELL, M.D., Consulting (late senior) Physician to the Royal Hospital for Diseases of the Chest.

ALLEN and HANBURYS'

"PERFECTED"

COD-LIVER OIL.

"Many to whom the taste of the oil has hitherto been an obstacle will doubtless be able to take it."—Lancet.

"Has almost the delicacy of salad oil."—British Medical Journal.

ALLEN and HANBURYS'

"PERFECTED"

COD-LIVER OIL.

"No nauseous eructations follow after it is swallowed."—Medical Press.

"A Pharmaceutical product which is in its way unrivalled."—London Medical Record.

"It is a great boon to get such an oil."—Practitioner.

ALLEN and HANBURYS'

"PERFECTED"

COD-LIVER OIL.

This Oil is manufactured FROM FRESH AND SELECTED LIVERS, at ALLEN AND HANBURYS' OWN FACTORY in NORWAY. It is prepared by an entirely new and distinct process, and presents in the most effective condition all the invaluable properties of the remedy.

ALLEN and HANBURYS'

"PERFECTED"

COD-LIVER OIL.

It is the ONLY OIL which does not "repeat." All who take Cod-Liver Oil will appreciate this. INSIST ON HAVING ALLEN AND HANBURYS' "PERFECTED" OIL, AND DO NOT BE PERSUADED TO ACCEPT CHEAP SUBSTITUTES, WHICH ARE PERSISTENTLY OFFERED.

ALLEN and HANBURYS'

"PERFECTED"

COD-LIVER OIL.

Sold only in capsuled bottles, bearing ALLEN and HANBURYS' SIGNATURE, and the TRADE-MARK (a PLOUGH), in Imperial quarter-pints, 1s. 3d.; half-pints, 2s. 6d.; pints, 4s. 9d.; quarts, 9s. Of all Chemists; and of

ALLEN and HANBURYS',
Plough-court, Lombard-street, London, E.C.

TONGA, A SPECIFIC FOR NEURALGIA. See Papers in the "Lancet" by Dr. Murrell, Dr. Ringer, Dr. Anstie, and C. Haier, Esq., ophthalmic surgeon to Guy's Hospital, for testimony as to the remarkable efficacy of TONGA, and for the record of names in cases of severe neuralgic pain removed by its use. In bottles, 4s. 6d. each. All Chemists. Sole Manufacturers, ALLEN and HANBURYS' London.

THE SKIN.—The glory of woman, the pride of man. It contains the delicate lines of beauty and constitutes all that we term "Loveliness;" yet how many thousands have their skins tortured by the use of the fashionable soaps, Carbolic, Coal Tar, Glycerine, and the coarse coloured soaps, caustic with alkali and made of putrid fats. The more delicate the skin the quicker its ruin. The ALBION MILK AND SULPHUR SOAP is the purest, the whitest, and most purifying of all soaps, by its purifying action taking away and preventing all pimples, blotches, and roughness. It is specially intended by the entire Medical Profession as the most elegant preparation for the skin that is known. By all Chemists, in Tablets, 6d. and 1s. THE ALBION SANATORY SOAP COMPANY, 532, Oxford-street, London.

COLDS CURED BY

DR. DUNBAR'S ALKARAM, or
Anti-Catarrh Smelling-Bottle.

ALKARAM. COLDS.
ALKARAM. COLDS.
ALKARAM. COLDS.

IF inhaled on the first symptoms, ALKARAM will at once arrest them, and cure severe cases in half an hour. Sold by all chemists, 2s. 6d. a Bottle. Address, Dr. Dunbar, care of Messrs. F. Newbery and Sons, 1, King Edward-st., E.C.

TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON,
FOR CONSTIPATION, BILE, HEADACHE.

TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON,
A LAXATIVE AND REFRESHING
UNIVERSALLY PRESCRIBED BY THE FACULTY.

TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON.
2s. 6d. per Box, stamp included.
Sold by all Chemists and Druggists.
Wholesale—E. GRILLON, 69, Queen-street, London, E.C.

"FOR THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."

CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE is warranted to cleanse the Blood from all impurities, from whatever cause arising. For Scrofula, Scurvy, Skin and Blood Diseases, its effects are marvellous. In Bottles, 2s. 6d. each, and in cases, containing six times the quantity, 11s. each, of all Chemists. Sent to any address for 30 or 132 stamps, of the Proprietor, F. J. CLARKE, Chemist, Lincoln.

THROAT AFFECTIONS and HOARSENESS.—All suffering from Irritation of the Throat and Hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES. These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable Chemists in the country at 1s. 1½d. per Box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "shrill cough," or bronchial affections cannot try them too soon, as unless relief is at once obtained they lead to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government stamp affixed to each box. Sold only by JOHN I. BROWN and SONS, Boston, U.S. European Depot, 83, Farringdon-road, London.

BLAIR'S GOUT PILLS,
THE GREAT
REMEDY FOR GOUT AND RHEUMATISM.
Sold by all Chemists, at 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. per Box.

HOOPING COUGH.
ROCHE'S HERBAL EMBROCATION.
THIS celebrated effectual Cure without internal medicine. Sole Wholesale Agents, W. EDWARDS and SON, 157, Queen Victoria-street (formerly of 67, St. Paul's-churchyard), London, whose names are engraved on the Government stamp.
Sold by most Chemists. Price 4s. per Bottle.

"KEATING'S POWDER" kills BUGS, Moths, Fleas, Beetles, and all Insects (perfectly unrivalled). Harmless to everything but Insects. Tins, 6d. and 1s.

FLORILINE.
For the TEETH and BREATH.

A few drops of the FRAGRANT FLORILINE on a wet tooth-brush produces a delightful foam, which cleanses the Teeth from all impurities, strengthens and hardens the gums, prevents tartar and arrests the progress of decay. It gives to the Teeth a pearl-like and beautiful whiteness, and imparts a delightful fragrance to the breath. It removes all unpleasant odour arising from decayed teeth, a disordered stomach, or tobacco smoke. The FRAGRANT FLORILINE is purely vegetable, and equally adapted for old and young.

The FRAGRANT FLORILINE should be used in all cases of bad breath, and particularly by gentlemen after smoking. The Florilline combines, in a concentrated form, the most desirable, cleansing, and astringent properties. At the same time, it contains nothing which can possibly injure the most sensitive and delicate organisation.

It beautifies the teeth and gums.
It arrests the decay of the teeth.
It acts as a detergent after smoking.
It renders the gums hard and healthy.
It neutralises the offensive secretions of the mouth.
It imparts to the breath a fragrance purely aromatic and pleasant.

Put up in large bottles (only one size) and in elegant toilet-cases, complete, at 2s. 6d. Sold by all Chemists and Perfumers.

Sold Wholesale by the ANGLO-AMERICAN DRUG COMPANY, Limited, 33, Farringdon-road, London.

FLORILINE.
For the TEETH and BREATH.

Sweet as the ambrosial air,
With its perfume rich and rare;
Sweet as violets of the morn,
Which the emerald meeks adorn;
Sweet as roseleaf-breathing Spring
From the richly-laden earth;
Is the "FRAGRANT FLORILINE."

The teeth it makes a pearly white,
So pure and lovely to the sight;
The gums assume a rosy hue,
The breath is sweet as violets blue;
While scented as the flowers of May,
Which cast their sweetness from each spray,
Is the "FRAGRANT FLORILINE."

Sure, some fairy with its hand
Cast around its mystic wand,
And produced from each fairy's bower
Scented perfumes from each flower;
For in this liquid gem we trace—
All that can beauty add and grace—
Such is the "FRAGRANT FLORILINE."

FLORILINE.
For the TEETH and BREATH.

Is the best liquid dentifrice in the world; it thoroughly cleanses partially decayed teeth from all parasites or living animalcule, leaving them pearly white, imparting a delightful fragrance to the breath. Price 2s. 6d. per Bottle. The Fragrant Florilline removes instantly all odours arising from a foul stomach or tobacco-smoke.

For children and adults whose teeth show marks of decay its advantages are paramount. The "florilline" should be thoroughly brushed into all the cavities; no one needs fear using it too often or too much at a time. Among the ingredients being soda, honey, spirits of wine, borax, and extract from sweet herbs and plants, it forms not only the very best dentifrice for cleansing ever discovered, but one that is perfectly delicious to the taste and as harmless as sherry. The taste is so pleasing that, instead of taking up the tooth-brush with disinke, as is often the case, children will on no account omit to use the "florilline" regularly each morning if only left to their own choice. Children cannot be taught the use of the tooth-brush too young; early neglect invariably produces premature decay of the teeth. "Florilline" is sold by all Chemists and Perfumers throughout the world, at 2s. 6d. per Bottle.

FLORILINE.
For the TEETH and BREATH.

If teeth are white and beautiful,
It keeps them so intact;
If they're discoloured in the least,
It brings their whiteness back;
And by its use what good effects
Are daily to be seen;
Thus hence it is that general praise
Greets "FRAGRANT FLORILINE!"

One trial proves conclusive quite,
That by its constant use
The very best effects arise
That science can produce.
It is the talk of every one,
An all-according theme;
Whilst general now becomes the use
Of "FRAGRANT FLORILINE."

It makes the breath as sweet as flowers,
The teeth a pearly white;
The gums it hardens, and it gives
Back sensations of delight.
All vile secretions it removes,
However long they've been;
The enamel, too, it will preserve.
The "FRAGRANT FLORILINE."

FLORILINE.
For the TEETH and BREATH.

It may or may not be generally known that micro-copical exam inations have proved that animal or vegetable particles gather, unobserved by the naked eye, upon the teeth and gums of at least nine persons in every ten; any individual can easily satisfy himself in the matter by placing a powerful microscope over any decayed tooth, when the living animalcule will be found to resemble a partially-decayed cheese more than anything else we can compare it to. We may also state that the FRAGRANT FLORILINE is the only remedy yet discovered able perfectly to free the teeth and gums from these parasites without the slightest injury to the teeth or the most tender gums.

Read this.—From the "Weekly Times," March 26, 1871:—"There are so many toilet articles which obtain all their celebrity from being constantly and extensively advertised that it makes it more any when anything new and good is introduced to the public that special attention should be called to it. The most delightful and effective toilet article for cleansing and beautifying the teeth that we in a long experience have ever used is the new Fragrant Florilline. It is quite a pleasure to use it, and its properties of imparting a fragrance to the breath and giving a pearly whiteness to the teeth make it still more valuable. Of all the numerous nostrums for cleaning the teeth to which from time to time have been fashionable and popular, nothing to be compared with the Florilline has hitherto been produced, whether considered as a beautifier or a valuable cleanser and preserver of the teeth and gums."

From the "Young Ladies' Journal":—"An agreeable dentifrice is always a luxury. As one of the most agreeable may be reckoned Florilline. It cleanses the teeth and imparts a pleasant odour to the breath. It has been analysed by several eminent professors of chemistry, and they concur in their testimony to its usefulness. We are frequently asked to recommend a dentifrice to our readers; therefore we cannot do better than advise them to try the Fragrant Florilline."

FLORILINE.
For the TEETH and BREATH.

I have heard a strange statement, dear Fanny, to-day,
That the reason that teeth do decay
Is traced to some insects that form in the gums,
And eat them in time quite away.
Animalcules, they say, are engendered—that is,
If the mouth is not wholesome and clean;
And I also have heard how to preserve them the best
Is the fragrant, the sweet "FLORILINE!"

Oh, yes! it is true that secretions will cause
Living objects to form on your teeth,
And revelling and wheedly do they pass on
In cavities made underneath;
But have no fear, now a remedy has now been found,
To keep your mouth wholesome and clean;
And you're perfectly right for your teeth to preserve,
There's nothing like sweet "FLORILINE!"

'Tis nice and refreshing, and pleasant to use,
And no danger its use can attend;
For clever physicians and dentists agree as well
Their anti-fermentation to be.
They say it is the best preparation that's known,
And evidence proves they are seen,
That nothing can equal the virtues that dwell
In the fragrant, the sweet "FLORILINE!"

FLORILINE.
For the TEETH and BREATH.

The "Christian World" of March 17, 1871, says, with respect to Florilline:—"Florilline bids fair to become a household word in England, and one of peculiarly pleasant meaning. It would be delinquent to conceive a more efficacious and agreeable preparation for the teeth. Those who once begin to use it will certainly never willingly give it up."

Mr. G. H. Jones, the eminent Dentist, of 57, Great Russell-street, says in his valuable little book on dentistry, says:—"The use of a good dentifrice is also indispensable, and one of the best preparations for cleansing the teeth and removing the impure secretions of the mouth is the liquid dentifrice called 'Fragrant Florilline,' which is sold by all respectable chemists."

The words "Fragrant Florilline" are a Trade-Mark.

Sold retail everywhere; and wholesale by the ANGLO-AMERICAN DRUG COMPANY, Limited, 33, Farringdon-road, London.

A WEDDING AT PEKIN.

We have, on former occasions, described and illustrated the customs of Chinese Weddings, both in private life, and in the illustrious instance of the reigning Emperor; our Special Artist, Mr. W. Simpson, having gone all the way from London to Pekin, as he relates in his pleasant volume, "Meeting the Sun," to furnish Sketches of the Imperial nuptial ceremonies, eight or nine years ago. A lady there who remembers his visit, Mrs. Albert Pirkis, of the British Legation, has now favoured us with an acceptable token of remembrance, which is engraved for the present publication. It is a pen-and-ink sketch of a marriage celebrated in the chapel of that Legation on Feb. 1, not according to Chinese rites of course, but with those of the Church of England, conducted by the Chaplain in the regular form. The peculiarity and novelty of the scene lay in the fact that the bride and bridegroom, and the bridesmaid, wore the Chinese dress, though English Christians, being indeed members of the China Inland Mission. Mr. Turner and Miss Crickmay, the happy couple of this occasion, with a lady friend of Miss Crickmay, had travelled all the way from Shan-Si, sixteen days' journey, in the depth of winter, to be married at Pekin. The costume in which they appeared, as shown in our Illustration, is that of Southern China. The bride wore a jacket of pale blue satin brocade, and under-skirt of dark satin, embroidered with blue flowers. The bridesmaid had a dark blue jacket, and dark red satin skirt, also embroidered with flowers. The bridegroom, Mr. Turner, in prune-coloured jacket and blue petticoat, with pig-tail, Chinese cap, and Chinese shoes, was a curious contrast to his groomsman, who wore the ordinary English dress.

MARRIAGE OF ENGLISH IN CHINESE DRESS AT PEKIN.

TUNIS AND CARTHAGE.

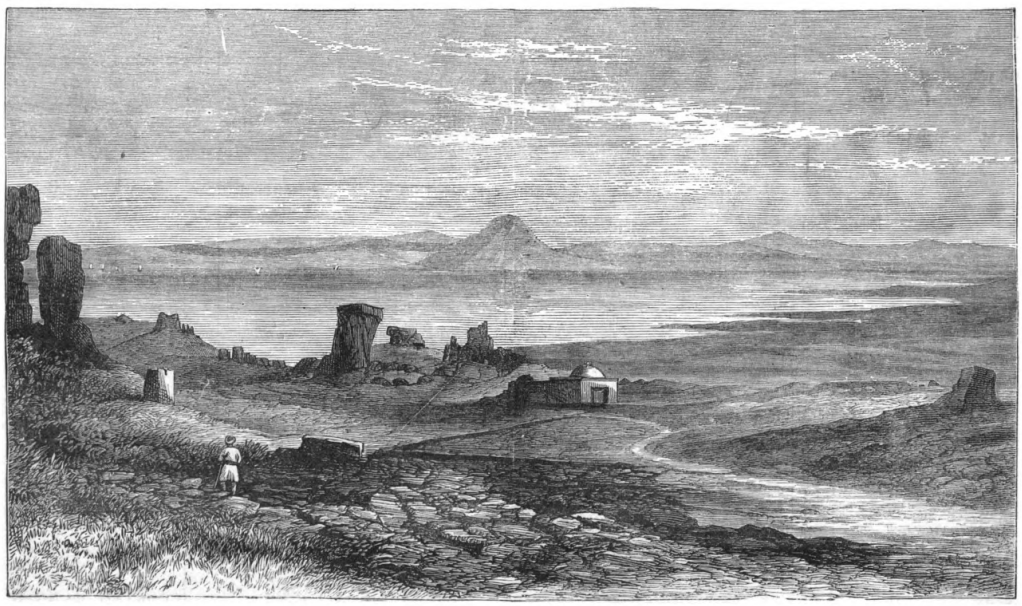
The French military and naval operations—a formidable hostile invasion—along the coast and inland borders of the Mussulman State Tunis, have been conducted with alarming vehemence. Some account of them, and of the position of that country, with its hereditary Bey, who is a remote vassal of the Turkish Empire, was given last week, together with views of the forts of Tabarka and Borj Djedid, which were bombarded and captured by the French. It was also stated that the French squadron had taken possession of the town and harbour of Biserta, and that General Logerot, entering the border district of the Khroumirs, had gained the notable stronghold of Kef, and was marching towards Beja. At the same time, singularly enough, the French Government professes not to be at war with the Bey of Tunis, but only intent on chastising the Khroumirs, though it is expected to demand of the Bey certain "material guarantees," and treats both his protest and the Sultan's with entire indifference. On Sunday morning last, the famous rock fort and shrine of Marabout Sidi Abdullah Ben Jemmel, attacked by General Vincendon with three brigades, from the camp of El Mama, fell into the hands of the French without resistance. It is believed that this will finish the operations against the Khroumirs; but whether or not the French mean to proceed to the capital, the city of Tunis, still remains to be seen. The whole force employed on land amounts to forty thousand men. The French Government has informed the Sultan that his sending any ships or troops to aid the Bey of Tunis would be considered as going to war against France. There is some apprehension of a Mussulman insurrection, not only in Tunis, but also in the French province of Algeria.

The city of Tunis, which is situated on the shore of a lagoon or inlet of the eastern coast, in the Gulf of Tunis, nearly opposite Malta, is only three miles distant from the ruins of ancient Carthage, shown in our Illustration. Carthage, the Venice of the Old World, the rival of Republican Rome, was a Phœnician colony, from Tyre, founded in the ninth century before Christ. Its commercial prosperity and naval power, till the third Punic war of the Romans completed its destruction, were renowned all over the shores and islands of the Mediterranean, and even among those of Western Europe on the Atlantic Ocean. There is little doubt that Carthaginian maritime enterprise reached the British Channel, as well as the Bay of Biscay, and on the western coasts of Spain and Gaul its trade has been distinctly traced. About the year B.C. 146, the city was demolished by the Romans, who afterwards erected a new colonial town upon its site. This in its turn was destroyed by the Saracens, about the end of the seventh century of the Christian era, and nothing is now to be seen but a few shapeless fragments of masonry, which appear to be the remains of vaults and cisterns. The small domed building, seen in our View of Carthage, is a Mahommedan shrine of later date.

The Council of the United Jewish Synagogue has given authority for the erection of a permanent synagogue in substitution of the present iron structure at St. John's-wood. The entire cost of the building is not to exceed £8000.

The School Board for London reassembled on the 5th inst., after the Easter recess, Mr. Edward Buxton, the chairman, presiding. A motion by Mr. H. Gover to amalgamate the by-laws committee and the industrial schools committee gave rise to a long discussion. The result was the loss of the motion by a majority of eight votes.——A substantial building, erected by the board in the Goodson-road, was publicly opened on the 4th inst. by Mr. Buxton, who explained that it was the thirty-fourth school built in the Greenwich district, and the two hundred and eighteenth over the whole of London. Accommodation has been provided for 800 children.



THE RUINS OF CARTHAGE, THREE MILES FROM TUNIS.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 2192.—VOL. LXXVIII. SATURDAY, MAY 21, 1881. WITH TWO SUPPLEMENTS SIXPENCE. By Post, 6½d.

THE IMPERIAL WEDDING AT VIENNA: PRINCESS STEPHANIE OF BELGIUM RECEIVING BRIDAL GIFTS FROM THE WOMEN OF SALZBURG.
FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE PAGE 505.

BIRTHS.

On the 14th inst., at 10, Upper Porchester-street, Hyde Park, the wife of Sir Daniel Adolphus Lange, of a daughter.

On the 2th ult., at Cedar Hill, Antigua, West Indies, the wife of the Hon. Henry Berkeley, Solicitor-General of the Leeward Islands, of a daughter.

On the 11th inst., at 86, Brook-street, Lady Heathcote Amory, of a son.

On the 12th inst., at 58, Inverness-terrace, W., the wife of Sir Thomas Raikes Thompson, Bart., of a son.

On the 12th inst, at Manchester-square, the wife of Sir Julius Benedict, of a son.

MARRIAGES.

On the 12th inst., at The Priory Church, Great Malvern, by the Rev. Walter Senior, B.A. Vicar of St. Thomas's, Nottingham, Charles Hawley Torr, of Nottingham, to Sarah Ann Heywood, fourth daughter of the late Thomas Hadfield, of Liverpool. No cards.

On the 10th inst., at Bishopthorpe Church, D. Brocklehurst, 2nd Life Guards, to Marion, eldest daughter of the Hon. Egremont Lascelles.

On the 21st ult., at St. Michael's Cathedral, Barbados, by the Right Rev. the Lord Bishop, assisted by the Rev. Thomas Clarke, M.A., Rural Dean and Rector of St. Michael, Elliot Grasett Louis, son of the late Thomas Louis, Esq., and grandson of the late Admiral Sir Thomas Louis, Bart., to Hannah Clarke, youngest daughter of Henry Filgrim, Esq., Speaker of the House of Assembly.

DEATHS.

On the 13th inst., at Upper Gloucester-place, Dorset-square, the Rev. James Hudson Malet, LL.D., Retired Chaplain R.N., aged 79.

On Feb. 12, at Warriri, Upper Essequibo River, British Guiana, S.A., James Frederick Pattison, Esq., aged 63, son of the late Thomas Pattison, Esq., of the East India Company, and Mary Anne Langton, his wife, all of London. The deceased was a member of the Hon. Haberdashers' Company from the age of 21 until the time of his death. Deeply regretted by family and friends.

On the 12th inst., at Albyn Villa, Coombe-road, Croydon, Lucetta Frances Bacon, widow of John Bacon, Esq., of East Dulwich, and eldest daughter of the late Rev. Thomas Gell, Rector of Boylstone, Derbyshire, in her 85th year.

On the 10th inst., at 28, Clapton-common, Walton Edmund, in his 53rd year.

On the 12th inst., at Whiston, after a short illness, the Hon. and Rev. William Howard, Rector of Whiston, Yorkshire, and Canon of York, third son of the late and brother of the present Earl of Effingham.

On the 13th inst., at Ipswich, after a short illness, Mary Dorothea, wife of Colonel Sir Edmund F. Du Cane, K.C.B., Royal Engineers, of Coomb Springs, Surrey, aged 46.

On the 13th inst., at her house, 6, St. Colme-street, Edinburgh, Miss Helen Forbes, eldest daughter of the late Hon. John Hay Forbes, Lord Medwyn, one of the Senators of the College of Justice, Scotland.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, or Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

INSTITUTE OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS. The FORTY-SEVENTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION is now OPEN from Nine till Seven. Admission, 1s.; Catalogue, 6d. Gallery, 53, Pall-mall. H. F. PHILLIPS, Secretary.

ROSA BONHEUR'S celebrated PICTURES, ON THE ALERT, and A FORAGING PARTY, which gained for the artist the Cross of the Order of Leopold of Belgium, at the Antwerp Academy, 1878. Also, the complete engraved works of Rosa Bonheur, including the well-known "Horse Fair," now on Exhibition at L. H. LEFEVRE'S GALLERY, 14a, King-street, St. James's, S.W. Admission, One Shilling. Ten to Five.

DORÉ'S GREAT WORKS.—"ECCE HOMO" ("Full of divine dignity."—The Times) and "THE ASCENSION;" "CHRIST LEAVING THE PRETORIUM;" "CHRIST ENTERING JERUSALEM;" with all his other Great Pictures.—DORÉ GALLERY, 35, New Bond-street. Daily, 10 to 6. 1s.

THE ANNUAL SPRING EXHIBITION OF HIGH-CLASS PICTURES by BRITISH AND FOREIGN ARTISTS, including Professor Leopold Carl Muller's picture, "An Encampment Outside Cairo," is Now Open at ARTHUR TOOTH and SONS' Gallery, 5, Haymarket. Admission, One Shilling.

FOUR-IN-HAND DRIVING CLUB.—The Painting of a Meet at the Magazine, with upwards of 150 Portraits from Life, is now on View at DICKINSON'S, 114, New Bond-street, W. Admission, from Ten till Dusk, One shilling.

MR. SIMS REEVES' FAREWELL ORATORIOS at the ROYAL ALBERT HALL, under the special patronage of HER MAJESTY the QUEEN and all the members of the Royal Family.

FOURTH CONCERT, WEDNESDAY, MAY 25, at Eight.

HYMN OF PRAISE and STABAT MATER. Artists: Madame Marie Roze, Madame Trebelli, Mr. Cummings, Signor Foli, and Mr. Sims Reeves.

ROYAL ALBERT HALL CHORAL SOCIETY.—Mr. SIMS REEVES'S FAREWELL ORATORIOS.—Orchestra and Chorus 1000. Organist, Dr. Stainer. Conductor, Mr. Barnby. Prices:—Stalls, 10s.; Arena, 10s. 6d. and 7s.; Balcony, 6s. and 4s. Admission, 1s. Tickets at the usual Agents'; Austin's Office, St. James's Hall; and the Royal Albert Hall.

MR. GANZ'S ORCHESTRAL CONCERTS, ST. JAMES'S HALL. The THIRD CONCERT will take place on SATURDAY AFTERNOON NEXT, MAY 28, at Three o'Clock. The Programme will include Berlioz's Symphonie Dramatique "Romeo and Juliette" (ending with the Queen Mab scherzo). Overtures, "The Hebrides" (Mendelssohn), "Guillaume Tell" (Rossini). New song, "Know'st thou the land" (A. Goring Thomas). Pianist—Herr Ernst Loewenberg. Vocalists—Miss Amy Aylward, Miss Orridge, Mr. Faulkner Leigh. Conductor—Mr. Ganz. Tickets, 10s. 6d., 7s., 5s., 3s., and 1s., at the usual Agents'; and of Mr. Wilhelm Ganz, 120, Harley-street, W.

THE BACH CHOIR.—Patron, her Majesty the QUEEN. Musical Director and Conductor, Mr. Otto Goldschmidt. J. Seb. Bach's MASS IN B MINOR. Sixth Performance, ST. JAMES'S HALL, WEDNESDAY EVENING, JUNE 1 (unavoidably postponed from May 18). All Tickets issued for that date are available for June 1, at a Quarter-past Eight o'Clock. Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, Madame Isabel Fassett, Mr. Shakespeare, Mr. Herzog, and Mr. Santley. Principal Violin, Herr Ludwig Straus. Full Orchestra, and the Bach Choir. Stalls, 12s. 6d.; Reserved Seats, 7s. 6d.; Balcony, 5s.; Area, 3s.; Gallery, 2s. Stanley Lucas, Weber, and Co., 84, New Bond-street; usual Agents; and Austin's Ticket-office, St. James's Hall.

THE BUILDING OF THE SHIP.—J. F. Barnett's new Cantata, ST. JAMES'S HALL next WEDNESDAY EVENING at Eight. Band and Chorus, 300. Conducted by the Composer. Tickets, 10s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 5s., 2s., and 1s., at St. James's Hall and the usual Agents'.

ST. JAMES'S HALL, PICCADILLY.
THE
MOORE and BURGESS MINSTRELS'
NEW PROGRAMME,
replete with musical gems, sparkling conundrums, and humorous sketches, will be repeated until the end of the present month.
EVERY NIGHT AT EIGHT.
MONDAY, WEDNESDAY, and SATURDAY at THREE and EIGHT.
FIFTY ARTISTES,
including the Juvenile Choir, the Statuesque Dancers, and powerful Phalanx of Comedians.
Fauteuils, 5s.; Sofa Stalls, 3s.; Area, 2s.; Gallery, 1s.
No fees.

MOHAWK MINSTRELS.—SANGER'S AMPHITHEATRE.—EVERY EVENING, at Eight, until Saturday, June 4. Most brilliant Success. Crowded Houses. Enthusiastic Encores. No Clodhopper extortion. 4000 Good Seats, at popular prices—6d., 1s., 1s. 6d., and 2s. E. MOWBRAY, Manager.

MOHAWK MINSTRELS.—GRAND IRISH FESTIVAL ENTERTAINMENT, WEDNESDAY EVENING, May 25. Irish Dances, Irish Songs and Ballads, Irish Recitations, Band of Harps, and other attractions.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Irving. On MONDAY, WEDNESDAY, and FRIDAY, MAY 23, 25, and 27, at Eight o'Clock, OTHELLO—Othello, Mr. Irving; Iago, Mr. Booth; Desdemona, Miss Ellen Terry. On TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY, MAY 24, 26, and 28, at 7.45, THE CUP and THE BELLS—STRATAGEM—Mr. Irving and Miss Ellen Terry. MORNING PERFORMANCES of OTHELLO TO-DAY (Saturday), at Two o'Clock—Othello, Mr. Irving; Iago, Mr. Booth; Desdemona, Miss Ellen Terry; and on SATURDAY, MAY 28—Othello, Mr. Booth; Iago, Mr. Irving; Desdemona, Miss Ellen Terry. Box Office (Mr. Hurst) open Ten to Five. Seats also booked by letter or telegram.

WESTMINSTER PANORAMA, YORK-STREET, QUEEN'S-GATE, S.W. (opposite St. James's Park Station and adjoining Royal Aquarium).—THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO, by C. Castellani. Covering over 20,000 square feet of canvas. The largest Panorama in England. WILL OPEN JUNE 1. Admission One Shilling.

MR. and MRS. GERMAN REED'S ENTERTAINMENT. Last Week of MANY HAPPY RETURNS, by Gilbert A'Beckett and Clement Scott; Music by Lionel Benson. A Musical Sketch, OUR INSTITUTE, by Mr. Corney Grain; and ALL AT SEA, by Arthur Law; Music by Corney Grain. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday, at Eight. Thursday and Saturday at Three.—ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place. Admission, 1s., 2s., Stalls, 3s., 5s. No fees. Booking-office open from 10 to 5. An entire Change of Programme, Monday, May 30.

THE
BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS,
A NEW JOURNAL FOR THE YOUNG.
The Proprietors of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS issued the first Illustrated Weekly Newspaper for Boys, price ONE PENNY, on Wednesday, April 6, 1881. THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS is a Journal full of Entertainment and Information for Youth; and, at the same time, a Paper which Parents can with confidence place in the hands of their Children.

CAPTAIN MAYNE REID'S "LOST MOUNTAIN." A New Romance in the best style of this famous Author, commenced in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS for April 6.

"SQUEE BIFFEN" STARTS A RAFT in No. 6 of THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS, MAY 18. This drollest and most humorous of original Stories for Boys, illustrated by JOHN PROCTOR, was begun in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS on April 6.

"THE NORTHERN MESSENGER," an Arctic Story, by JOHN LATEY, Jun., Complete in One Number, appears in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS, May 18.

CAPTAIN WEBB'S HISTORIC SWIM is fully described by "Dolphin," and Illustrated in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS for May 14. Webb and Fearn's Week's Swim is also amply illustrated in "Phil Holiday's Notes."

LIFE AFLOAT OF THE ROYAL MIDDIES, specially Written for THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS, and profusely embellished with Original Sketches by the Author, will be commenced in Next Week's Number.

BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS.
PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY.
One Penny; post-free, 1½d.

THE SECOND MONTHLY PART of THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS will be published next Thursday.
Price Sixpence; post-free, Eightpence.

SUBSCRIPTION TO THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS.
FOR THE UNITED KINGDOM:
Three Months, 1s. 8d.; six Months, 3s. 3d.; Twelve Months, 6s. 6d.
ABROAD:
Post-free to any part of Europe, United States of America, Canada, and Egypt, for One Year, 6s. 6d.; to India, Ceylon, China, and Japan, for One Year, 10s. 10d. Elsewhere Abroad, One Year, 8s. 8d.
All subscriptions to be paid in advance direct by Post-office order, payable at the East Strand Post-office, to THOMAS FOX, 10, Milford-lane, Strand, London.

HORSE SHOW, AGRICULTURAL HALL, ISLINGTON. Entries close MAY 23. SHOW OPEN JUNE 4, 6, 7, 8, 9, and 10. Prize-Lists and Forms of Entry may be had on application to the Office, Barford-street, N. By order, S. SIDNEY, Secretary and Manager. Agricultural Hall Company, Limited.

BRIGHTON.—PULLMAN DRAWING-ROOM CAR TRAINS leave Victoria for Brighton every WEEKDAY at 10.0 a.m. and 4.30 p.m., and Brighton for Victoria at 9.45 a.m. and 5.45 p.m.; also from Victoria on Sundays at 10.0; and from Brighton at 4.30 p.m.
EVERY SUNDAY.—A Cheap First-class Train from Victoria at 10.45 a.m., calling at Clapham Junction and Croydon. Day Return Tickets, 10s.

THE GRAND AQUARIUM AT BRIGHTON.—EVERY SATURDAY, Cheap First-Class Trains from Victoria at 10.55 and 11.50 a.m., and London Bridge at 9.30 a.m. and 12.0 noon, calling at Clapham Junction and Croydon. Day Return Fare—First Class, Half-a-Guinea (including admission to the Aquarium and the Royal Pavilion Picture Gallery, Palace, and Grounds), available to return by any Train the same day, except the 5.45 p.m. Pullman Car Train.
(By order) J. P. KNIGHT, General Manager.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, MAY 21, 1881.

The turn of events in Tunis has created no little concern throughout Europe. It is not merely that the policy of France in the Regency confirms previous suspicions, but it has been unscrupulously carried out. While the Khroumirs, who turn out to be less predatory than was supposed, have been, with their families, retreating to their mountain fastnesses out of reach of the invader, M. Roustan, the French Consul, and General Bréard were enacting what is hardly too strongly described as a coup d'état within the walls of the capital, a few miles from which an adequate supporting force was encamped. The hapless Bey, whose chief faults are that he is weak and holds a coveted territory, was peremptorily required, within a given number of hours, to sign a Treaty with his great neighbours in Algeria, which in effect makes him a vassal of France. He first refused, then hesitated, and finally yielded. It was a case of undisguised coercion. The act has been promptly ratified by the French Chambers, and applauded by the French people, but has created much misgiving throughout Europe, which sees in it an ill-omened revival of Imperialist policy under the ægis of the Republic.

One of the first effects of this high-handed proceeding was the downfall of the Cairoli Cabinet at Rome. The Italians were almost stupefied by an event which has suddenly frustrated their cherished policy and compromised their great and legitimate interests in Tunis. The disaster was Signor Cairoli's misfortune; not his fault. But his resignation does not alter the situation, and he bequeaths a fatal legacy to Signor Sella, his successor. The deep anger and disappointment of the Italian nation have a solid foundation. French supremacy means a deathblow to their industrial and commercial interests in Tunis, and the occupation by their rivals of a magnificent harbour, Biserta, within a hundred and twenty miles of the coast of Sicily.

The ulterior consequences of this deplorable event are likely to be far-reaching. England, like Italy, has had considerable mercantile relations with Tunis. But this aspect of the case is less important than the weakening of the Western alliance, which represents the higher civilisation of Europe. Whether or not the bitter remarks of our newspapers are actually justifiable, there is serious danger in stirring up international suspicion and animosity. Wisely, therefore, did Mr. Gladstone on Monday night, during the premature discussion raised by Mr. Guest, object to the hasty condemnation of "a country with which we have been for more than a generation in close and unbroken alliance," and plead for the advent of "authentic information before strong charges are made against its policy or conduct." The invasion of Tunis by France with a view to its ultimate absorption may be indefensible; but none of the great Powers, certainly not England, can with consistency protest against such aggressive action.

Hardly less important in a European sense is the untoward news from St. Petersburg. Alexander III., who has been for a month past shut up in his palace at Gatchina, has yielded to occult and malign influences, such as too often frustrate the best intentions of absolutist Sovereigns. The young Czar, whose strict retirement was thought to foreshadow beneficent projects of reform, has issued a manifesto to his people which asserts the full exercise of autocratic power, and has been followed by acts that leave little doubt of his intentions. After, apparently, much conflict in his Majesty's councils, the reactionary party has gained the ascendant. General Loris Melikoff, who has been striving for two years past to mitigate the severity of Russian despotism, and impregnate the Government with liberal ideas, has been cashiered, or—which is only a more gentle way of stating the fact—has been allowed to retire on the ground of ill-health. His colleagues, M. Abaza, Baron Nicolai, M. de Giers, and others, who more or less favoured a policy of amelioration, have also resigned; and General Ignatieff, the notorious diplomatist, who extorted from the Sultan the Treaty of San Stefano, and is supposed to be the embodiment of Sclavonic aspirations, has been commissioned to form a Cabinet. This unexpected change, due it is said to the influence of the Czar's former tutor, has created general gloom and apprehension in St. Petersburg. The prospects of Russia are as dark as they can be. It is possible that the era of foreign aggression may not be recommenced; but if Alexander III. has elected to meet the revolutionary forces that honeycomb Russian society by stern measures of proscription and repression, the terrible struggles of the last reign will probably be renewed, and his dynasty placed in peril. The Nihilists have promptly accepted the challenge thrown down to them, and in a new proclamation declare—"We accept the war forced upon us by your Majesty." It is difficult to believe that the young Emperor has resolved to turn a deaf ear to the sad teachings of experience.

The exhaustive speech of the Prime Minister on Monday in defence of the Irish Land Bill, though, contrary to custom, followed by many others, will probably shorten the wearisome debate and hasten the division on the second reading. It is impossible to forecast the progress of the measure in Committee. Two nights only in the week, unless day sittings should be resorted to, can be given to the consideration of its many and intricate clauses, which can hardly be disposed of before the end of June. Mr. Gladstone on Monday expressed the firm determination of the Government to persevere. But the obstacles in the way are serious. The House of Commons has become almost unmanageable. On that evening three hours were consumed in asking and answering all kinds of questions, some very trivial, two of which were accompanied by a motion for adjournment. This practice of consuming the time of the House has grown into a habit which blocks all legislation, as was abundantly shown in Tuesday night's debate on Mr. Dillwyn's motion.

With the present week the May religious anniversaries for the most part come to an end, and Exeter Hall, if not silent, will be restored to the uses of the Young Men's Christian Association, which remains in permanent possession of the building. At least four days or nights in every week for a month past have been sacred to the great societies which between them receive and expend an aggregate income of more than half a million in missions and philanthropic objects at home and abroad, and never fail to draw large if not overflowing audiences. On the whole, their resources, gathered from every part of the United Kingdom, are on the increase. Of those that work abroad, the Church Missionary Society has the largest income—£207,508. Next in order is the more venerable Propagation Society with £138,288. The Wesleyan Missionary Society spends about the same amount; the London Missionary Society, £108,247. The great organisations which are the handmaids of the missionary societies include the Bible Society, with its clear income of £114,328, and issues for the year of nearly three millions of Bibles and Testaments; and the Religious Tract Society, with total receipts of £193,580, and aggregate issues of some eighty millions of publications. These are but specimens of the many spiritual forces which during May take stock of their position, make a fresh start in the missionary field at home and abroad, and are sustained by the voluntary and never-failing zeal of their adherents. Two features of these great philanthropic agencies deserve passing notice. First, the subscribers to foreign missions are for the most part the most active patrons of home missions. Next, that—large as is the aggregate army of missionaries in distant countries, such as India, China, the South Seas, and Africa—the work is being more and more prosecuted by native converts, who have been trained to assist their European teachers.

Mr. Gladstone has been suffering from indisposition, which on Tuesday confined him to his bed. But he passed a good night, and attended to official business on Wednesday.

The Earl of Bandon is, the Morning Post believes, to be the new representative Irish peer.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

Baron Henry De Worms has not been a day too soon in calling the attention of the House of Commons, first, to the systematic exclusion of foreign Jews from Russia, and, next, to the disgraceful outrages lately committed in Southern Russia on those Israelites who are so unfortunate as to be born subjects of his Autocratic Majesty. Of course, the Muscovite Government may urge that, being a wholly despotic one, altogether defiant of public opinion, it is entitled to do what it likes with its own; but if it chooses to deny Jews of alien nationality permission to sojourn in the City of the Tsar, as it recently denied permission to Mr. Levisohn, a British subject of the Jewish faith, it should not allow the Russian Consul-General in London to grant a visa to the passports of Jews going to Russia, who, when they reach St. Petersburg, find themselves brutally ordered by the police "to clear out."

Tyrannical caprice combined with stupid and barbarous ignorance are at the bottom both of the persecution of the native and the banishment of the foreign Jews. The atrocities in the south may, in a measure, be due to religious fanaticism, and may possibly have been fomented by the Nihilists. But the ostracism of the Jews from St. Petersburg, Moscow, and other large cities is the outcome only of bureaucratic and police dunderheadism. It is the business of the Russian civil administration and the Russian gendarmerie to make anybody over whom they have any authority as uncomfortable as ever they can; and to worry the Jews is excellent sport for the tchinovniks. That religion has nothing whatever to do with the taboo placed on foreigners of the Hebrew faith is shown clearly enough by the fact that Jews belonging to the First Guild of Merchants are not molested. I could name, too, many Ministers of State, diplomatists, and officers of the army and navy who are, or were, Jews; and in the existing Russian press there is a powerful Hebrew element. The chief writer in the Journal de St. Pétersbourg, the organ of the Russian Foreign Office, is a Jew—and a very clever Jew.

The Russians are themselves accustomed to say jocularly that when Peter the Great was petitioned by some eminent foreign Israelites to allow their community to settle in St. Petersburg, he made answer, "My poor dear Jews, it is for your own good that I decline to grant the prayer of your petition. I know my own subjects only too well; and I know that four Jews would not be in matters of buying and selling a match for one Russian. They would be skinned alive." Peter had certainly lived long enough in Holland to mark the wonderful prosperity acquired by that little country mainly through the thrift and enterprise of the Jews; and why he should have wished to exclude them from his infant capital I fail to understand. But a great many things have been attributed to Peter Veliké which he never said or did. His famous Will, for instance. That is a wholly apocryphal document.

"Men of sense are all of one religion." Apropos of this essentially false epigram, as falsely attributed to the late Lord Beaconsfield, "T. E. C." is so kind as to write me from New-square, Lincoln's-inn, that in a Parisian newspaper, La France, he lately noted the following, under the head of "L'Esprit des Morts:"—"Le monde est une huître et mon epée l'ouvrira. Benjamin Disraeli Comte de Beaconsfield." The blundering translator has not only robbed Shakspeare, but wronged him by spoiling the sense of the epigram. Ancient Pistol, in "The Merry Wives," did not say that the world was an oyster. He said that it was his oyster which he with sword would open. An oyster may be anybody's oyster, and after the clever man has opened it with his sword the next (and cleverer) passer by—say, a lawyer—may swallow the delicious fish, and leave the opener nothing but the shell.

A gentleman who is chief shorthand clerk to a well-known London firm has obligingly sent me the copy of a post-card which he has written, containing 32,363 words. The post-card, which is about three inches and a half in breadth by two in height, looks like some pattern for "trousering;" but I have not a microscope on the premises, and my eyes are too weak to decipher any one of the 32,363 words. I suppose that it is a triumphant achievement in stenographic caligraphy; but may I venture deferentially to hint to the chief shorthand clerk that if he continues to draw so lavishly on his powers of vision he may find himself some of these days bankrupt in eyesight altogether. I squandered my own sight when I was young; and am now more than half blind.

Mr. J. T. Bedford writes me from Guildhall a very courteous note, in which he frankly admits that the supporters of the ancient coat of arms of the Corporation of London are not Griffins but Dragons, and that Mr. Birch's bronze beast at the western extremity of Fleet-street should be called (as I pointed out) a Dragon instead of a Griffin. Mr. Bedford quotes Edmondson, an eminent heraldic authority, who, in a work published one hundred years ago, gives the following description of the civic supporters:—"Two Dragons, with Wings expanded ar. Charged on the Wings with a Cross gu." Thank you, Mr. Bedford; yet will I wager that the bulk of talking and writing English people will continue and obstinately persist in continuing to call the bronze beast a Griffin. "And if his name be George, I'll call him Peter," says Philip Faulconbridge, in "King John." That is the principle to which the partisans of the "Griffin" versus the "Dragon" may be expected to adhere.

Mem.: A facete correspondent rejoicing in the surname of Griffin sends me a photographic carte de visite of a winged beast depicted on a wall of a villa at Pompeii, and which he holds to have been the Founder of his Family. But there were ancient griffins long before the Pompeian one.

She comes! She comes! Who? The aerial ship from California, to be sure. I read in a recent number of the San Francisco News Letter that the Provisional Committee of Incorporators of the Aeroplane Company for Navigating the Air have held their first meeting for the purpose of settling the list of the Board of Directors and drawing up a prospectus "indicative of the purposes of the Aeroplane carriages which will be in aid of the great and almost universal commingling of humanity throughout the world, of which the geographical position of California will form the initial point." The consulting and constructing engineer of the Company, Mr. Augustus Laver, has completed a working model of the invention, the principle of which is embraced in the fact that, "while the machine progresses through the realms of space, the gravity of its structure and its entire weight are neutralised." The Committee have not yet finally settled from where the Aeroplane ship Leland Stanford is to make her first trip, with Mr. Laver as first passenger. But she is coming! Of that there can be no doubt. So is my "ship" (which has been so very long a time coming home), freighted to the bulwarks with doubloons, ducats, pieces of eight, gold dust, and diamonds as big as hens' eggs. She is coming; so is the Good Time; and so are the Greek Kalends.

I note the prospectus of a Subscription Edition of Tobacconists' Papers of the eighteenth century compiled by Mr. John Ashton, and which Messrs. Clayton, of Bouverie-street, are about to publish. The collection will contain over a hundred facsimiles of the engravings—often very quaint and curious—on the papers in which the snuff and tobacco of our ancestors were wrapped up. In the specimen woodcuts, accompanying the prospectus, negroes, wild Indians, and "Captain John Smith, the first Englishman who ever went on shore in Virginia," conspicuously figure. The first act of Captain Smith on landing was, according to the legend on the tobacco-paper, to "take the King of Paspanegh prisoner." It is a pity that there is not a pendant to this spirited tableau in a woodcut representing Captain John Smith in dolorous captivity, and rescued from imminent death by the devotion of Pocahontas.

Mem.: Perhaps the most popular tobacco paper of the present age was the prospectus of an illustrated periodical, called "The Welcome Guest," started nearly five and twenty years ago by Mr. Henry Vizetelly. This prospectus took the form of a complete tale, entitled "The Story of the Sultan Mourad and his Welcome Guest." I think that about a quarter of a million copies of this opuscule were printed on very thin paper, and distributed gratuitously among the tobacconists of London and the provinces. As an advertisement, the "Tobacco paper prospectus" was a highly successful one; while drolly enough, it had the honour to be reviewed in most flattering terms in Blackwood's Magazine.

All the art-critics of the metropolitan press have, I doubt it not, made acknowledgment of the distinct technical service done to criticism by the "Academy Notes" and "Grosvenor Notes," edited by Mr. Henry Blackburn. In this page I am not an art-critic; still I may be allowed to make passing mention of what I may call the "French Blackburn," being an illustrated Catalogue to the pictures, drawings, and statuary in the Paris Salon. It is thrice as dear as our Blackburn; but then it is thrice as large. Some of the facsimile drawings are very fine, others are black and foggy. The French titles have English equivalents appended to them, and not a few of them are rather droll. For example, a picture representing a young lady in primitive costume weeping over a monument on which is the bust of a distinguished French idyllic painter deceased is called "La Nymphe à Corot." This the translator readers "The Nymph at Corot." What did she do when she got "at" Corot? Scratch his face?

One of the most eccentric productions, so far as subject is concerned, in this Illustrated Catalogue, is of a picture called "Le Café vient au secours de la Muse," tersely translated as "Coffee helps the Muse." In a really graceful composition a partially-draped lady, somewhat resembling the allegorical Muses one sees on the titlepages of old Encyclopædias of Arts and Sciences, is reclining on a couch, with a terrestrial globe at her feet, and a harp, with a splendid architectural background behind her. She is apparently much perplexed in the attempt to find a rhyme, say for "hippopotamus," or for "porringer," when there suddenly descends from the skies a winged damsel of Nubian complexion and simplicity of garb, who bears on a handsome salver a coffee pot and cup. Stimulated by the fragrant Mocha, the Muse succeeds, no doubt, in finding a rhyme for the obdurate "hippopotamus" or the provoking "porringer." The picture, which is by M. Ruffio, might be fitly purchased by an enterprising coffee dealer; and what a capital commercial poster it would make, from the Herkomer point of view!

But does coffee help the Muse? What do Mr. Tennyson, Mr. Browning, Mr. Swinburne, Mr. Oscar Wilde, write upon? Lord Byron, I have heard, took a little gin-and-water while he was penning the last cantos of "Don Juan;" and Schiller, according to Lord Lytton, resorted too frequently, in his later years, to potent Rhine wines while engaged in composition. Voltaire drank coffee all day and nearly all night long. I am no poet, but I can still work from eight to nine hours a day. Say that, after having had some coffee and a slice of bread in the morning, and read all your papers and some of your letters, you get comfortably to work by ten. You scribble until one p.m. Then half an hour's interval for a very light lunch, washed down by a glass of claret-and-water. From half-past one you scribble again until half-past five, when (while still scribbling) you have a cup of tolerably strong tea. Then you scribble again till seven, and at half-past or eight you have your dinner. On days when you have to go to the play, you must rise and dine an hour earlier. After dinner you should do no kind of work; but you may read and talk, or go to the theatre or into the World, and see the Show. I can manage to get through such a daily round as this, four, five, and occasionally six times a week, if I am permitted during the major part of my eight hours and a half labour to indulge in the solace of tobacco. Smoking, I suppose, will kill me some day; but Dr. Sangrado told me that it would kill me a quarter of a century ago.

With respect to the frequency with which, within recent years, English words have been adopted in colloquial French, "J. H." informs me that he read lately in a Paris newspaper the following paragraph:—

Boulevard Richard-Lenoir, le sieur Gaulard, 58 ans, cantonnier, a été renversé par un tramway et traîné sur un parcours de cinq mètres.

"It will be admitted," adds my correspondent, that a permanent way capable of capsizing a road-mender and then dragging him along for half a dozen yards is a very remarkable way indeed. But there is no use arguing with our vivacious neighbours in these matters. They delight in snipping off the ends of terms. They call a "skating-rink" a "skating;" and if they adopted our word dining-room they would abbreviate it to a "dining." Of old they did not abbreviate. They gently blended. Thus, our "bowling-green" was Gallicised as "boulingrin," and "riding-coat" as "redingote."

Over and over again have I been constrained to remind my beloved readers that my name is Davus and not Œdipus, and that I am, as a rule, as incapable of unravelling riddles as I am of penning stanzas in the Ottava Rima. Consequently, I am only able to echo the question propounded by my esteemed correspondent "H. H. T.," who asks whether anyone has yet successfully guessed the answer to Archbishop Whateley's famous riddle—

When from the ark's capacious round
The World came forth in pairs,
Who was the first to hear the sound
Of boots upon the stairs?

I asked one of the most idiotic of my acquaintance for a solution of the Whatelean mystery; and the harmless but fatuous creature replied that the first to hear the sound of boots on the stairs of Noah's ark was possibly the solea vulgaris, or common sole. Latinised, it has more than three quarters of an ear, and (translated into the sole of a boot) would be certainly the first to hear the sound which itself made. Having cut my idiotic acquaintance dead after this, I had recourse to my friend 'Arry. That lively personage suggested that the "Heel" was the first to hear the Boot-sounds. I then gave up the quest in despair; and, for aught I know, Sandro Botticelli or "Old Booty" may have been the first to hear the sounds in question.

The Earl of Rosebery presided last Saturday at the annual festival of the Artists' Benevolent Institution, and made, so it seemed to me from the reports in the papers, a very genial, graceful speech, full of sensible things. Lord Rosebery's utterances failed, however, to please a writer in the Standard, who, in a lively leading article, "chawed up" the noble chairman, "slated," "bulldosed," and otherwise disparaged him. That which appears in the highest degree to have aroused the ire of the writer in my respected contemporary was Lord Rosebery's harmless remark that "the popular idea of an artist is a very simple one. It assumes, as a fact, that he wears a long beard, that he smokes a great deal, and that he occasionally studies the antique, and then, in a moment of splendid inspiration, dashes off masterpieces."

"The popular idea," retorts the irate gentleman in the Standard, is nothing of the sort. "Our artists," he continues, "dwell in the airiest and brightest districts of Kensington or the Regent's Park. They have fine houses and keep fine company. They work as hard as scriveners during the hours of daylight. Their engagement-list is as full as that of a Cabinet Minister, and they have a comfortable balance at their bankers." All this would be true enough if the writer had only preceded "Our artists" by the two simple words, "Some of." I know "some" artists who live in fine houses, entertain fine company, have "society on the brain" when they should be studying the antique, and who give themselves upon occasion intolerably stuck-up airs. But I know many more artists—clever and industrious artists of both sexes—who are steeped in poverty to the very lips. And if there were not very many of these unfortunates there would be no need for Artists' Benevolent Funds and Institutions.

I bought, the other day, at a frame-maker's in Gray's-inn-road, some little water-colour studies on Bristol board—figure-subjects, slight, but tender and graceful in treatment, and brilliant in colour. I should have thought that, in Bond-street, a guinea apiece would have been a very moderate price for these sketches; but the frame-maker in Gray's-inn-road let me have half a dozen for a couple of shillings each. He had many more larger and more finished drawings by the same hand in his portfolio, he said, and they were the work of a lady, who had been a frequent exhibitor at the Royal Academy. No, my excellent Standard-Bearer, not all our artists live in fine houses, entertain fine company, and have comfortable balances at their banker's. Only "some." Only a few, perhaps.

Touching the proper pronunciation of the Christian name "Ralph," "W. D. F.," —— Hall, near Derby, one of a host of correspondents on this topic, tells me that in the will of Henry Fane, which was proved on the 7th of June, 1538, and of which my correspondent has seen the transcript at Somerset House, the name of the testator's son Ralph is uniformly spelt "Raaf." This was the Sir Ralph Vane stated in the thirty-second chapter of Hume's History of England, under the date of 1552, to have been the friend of the Protector Somerset, and as such condemned and executed. He was the illegitimate son of Henry Fane, of Hadloe, near Tonbridge, in Kent, who made the will cited above. Thus if "Raaf" was pronounced as it was spelt, Butler's "half" in "Hudibras" would have been pronounced "haaf," and would have rhymed very well with "Raaf." "Huaf" for "half" is, I pointed out in the outset, a peculiarity of American pronunciation; but the "Raaf" of Henry Fane's will lead once more to the conclusion that any new American word is often very old English.

G. A. S.

SOMEBODY'S COMING.—SEE PAGE 494.

THE IRISH LAND LEAGUE AGITATION: ATTACK ON A PROCESS SERVER.

Our Special Artist in the disturbed agricultural districts of the West of Ireland contributes another Sketch of the perils that frequently beset a process-server when employed in the legal execution of his duty. Some remarks upon this subject were made last week, having reference to the instance of a landlord near Claremorris, Mr. Walter Burke, who, finding that none of the ordinary process-servers in the country would venture to go round and deliver writs of ejectment to his defaulting tenants, has resolved to do it himself; galloping quickly, with his trusty servant, from one farmhouse to another; entering armed with a loaded revolver, not as a menace to others, but for his own needful protection, and, after showing the legal instrument, of which he leaves a copy, riding off as fast as he came. But the common agents who are customarily engaged in this service are not able to resort to the same means for their personal safety, and some of them have been very cruelly treated by furious mobs of the peasantry, at the instigation of the Irish Land League.

In the Court of Queen's Bench, Dublin, last week, motions were made to dispense, in many cases, with service of the writs in actions to recover rent. The lands were chiefly in the county of Tipperary. In one case the plaintiff's solicitor received from the local process-server, William Daly, a letter stating that he was laid up in the infirmary with a broken head, received in the discharge of his duty. He therefore could not serve the processes, nor would he try to do so, because he had been beaten in the town of Tipperary on April 5 last. It was also stated that Daly had latterly refused even to post writs; and the local solicitor, in a letter to the Dublin solicitor, wrote, "You had better put the association men in motion. We can get nothing done here now, as a reign of terror exists." In consequence of the lawlessness that prevails in the locality, by reason of the action of the Land League, personal service of writs and processes could only be effected by chance, and with great risk to the process-server. The motions were granted.

A few days ago the Sub-Sheriff of King's County and fifty police, under command of Captain L'Estrange, resident magistrate, attempted to seize cattle near Rohan, for half a year's rent due by six tenants. A considerable crowd assembled, and the stock were driven off before the Sheriff arrived, so that no seizure was made. The sub-inspector threatened to arrest the president of the local Land League for intimidating one of the Sheriff's officers.

As a large force of policemen and soldiers were marching to the railway station after the termination of a land meeting at New Pallas, they were assailed with volleys of stones by a large crowd. One policeman was knocked down and a soldier was badly treated. The soldiers, with this exception, reached the station in safety, but the police had to make a sudden retreat. It was thought the constabulary would have to fire on the mob, but this was spared.

Still worse deeds of dastardly cruelty have taken place. The other night a party of disguised men visited the house of a man named Clifford, who has been censured by the Land League, and, having roused him out of bed, cut off his ears, and left him in a state of insensibility. This outrage occurred at Kilorgan, in the county of Kerry, and is supposed to be agrarian. Another murder, arising from this agitation, was perpetrated last week. A gamekeeper named Connors, in the employ of Lord Dimsdale, was shot early on Thursday morning while returning, accompanied by his wife, in a cart from the fair at Gort to his home at Bookeen, county Galway, six miles from Athenry. While approaching the village of Bookeen about daybreak, three men fired from behind a hedge. Connors was severely wounded in three places. He was brought home and attended by Dr. Leonard, but died next morning. Connors had only recently been appointed bailiff in place of another man who had been dismissed, and he lately prosecuted some men for trespass. Three men, named Keogh, Fahy, and Dolan, have been arrested on suspicion of being concerned in the affair, and have been remanded.

Six additional baronies of the county of Tipperary have been proclaimed by the Lord Lieutenant, under the Act for the Protection of Life and Property; and seven more arrests of leading members of the Land League have been made, so that nearly a hundred persons are now in custody. In the meantime, Mr. Parnell has received a telegram from America, informing him that £20,000 has been there given to the funds of the Land League in Ireland.

SOMEBODY'S COMING!

Who can it be? The young lady at the drawing-room window, peeping out at the side edge of the Venetian blind, will not confess that she has any reason to expect Somebody, or Anybody, to call at the house about this hour of the day. We have no right to pry farther into her confidence; but a little acquaintance with the family affairs, such as an intimate friend of her parents might have gained from previous revelations, and from observing both her demeanour and theirs towards the gentleman who was met there at last evening's dinner-party, would throw some light upon the question. Did he say a word to her, or to her mamma, about his intention to call this morning, as he lingered near the door, with a look of reserved wistfulness, before taking his departure? There is evidently "something up," which has preoccupied Miss Alexandra's mind since breakfast-time, so that she cannot settle either to reading, or writing letters, or fancy work, or drawing or music; but has been running into the garden and back, as we see by her parasol on the table, and has got herself rather flustered with heat or excitement, which accounts for the fan in her hand. Now she listens for a click of the gate, or a masculine step on the gravel-walk, and hearing this, for the fifth or sixth time before luncheon, though it may be only the butcher, the baker, or the grocer's man from the village, Miss Alexandra is again at the window, pulling aside the blind, and pretending to want to know if it is likely to rain. The fond and foolish heart, imagining that this expected interview, with a certain proposal for her acceptance, will be the crisis of her fate and the greatest concern of her whole future life, may be excused some degree of impatience.

PARISIAN SAYINGS AND DOINGS.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Paris, Tuesday, May 17.

On Thursday last the Government made a statement to the French Senate and Chamber, which then met for the first time after the Easter vacation, announcing the object of the Tunisian Expedition and the satisfactory progress both of the military operations against the Khroumirs and of the negotiations with the Bey. The same evening General Bréart, who had arrived under the walls of Tunis with his brigade in the morning, was received by the Bey in his palace, and a treaty of guarantees was signed between France and Mohamed-el-Sadok. Great satisfaction was expressed in Parliament and in the Press when the news of the signing of the treaty arrived. This satisfaction was, however, diminished when it was found that the Bey, immediately after signing the treaty with General Bréard, wrote a letter to Said Pasha telling him that he had signed the treaty "constrained by force." This will oblige the French to look carefully after the execution of the treaty, and perhaps necessitate an army of occupation. At any rate, it will revive the old question of the suzerainty of the Porte in Tunis, and it coincides with ominous agitation in Tunis. Meanwhile the operations against the Khroumirs are still going on, and it can hardly be said that the Tunisian question has yet obtained a solution.

The Chamber's legislative existence will come to an end during the second week in July. Between now and then the deputies will have no lack of work, for at the present moment 231 bills and motions are in various stages of preparation for the consideration of the House. On Monday the report of M. Boysset on M. Bardoux's Electoral Reform Bill was read. This report, adopted in committee by seven votes against three, concludes in favour of the maintenance of the electoral law of 1875 — that is to say, of the scrutin d'arrondissement. The debate on the bill will take place on Thursday, when M. Gambetta will speak in favour of the scrutin de liste. This will be the first important event of the Session. After this debate M. Gambetta will visit his native town of Cahors, where grand fêtes are being prepared for his reception.

The arrival of Mdlle. Sarah Bernhardt in France is almost a Parisian event, although it took place at Havre. The great actress arrived on board the Amérique on Sunday morning. Fifty thousand people, it is said, were assembled on the quays and jetties, shouting with all their might, "Vive Sarah Bernhardt." As the Amérique was being towed into port the "divine" Sarah stood on the deck waving a flag to show the enthusiastic crowd where she was. On landing she was received by the President of the Humane Society and his men. The president made a little speech; two of the men presented two enormous bouquets; Sarah shed tears, and in her joy kissed half a dozen life-boat men who were nearest to her. On Monday night Sarah and her company played "La Dame aux Camélias" at the Havre Theatre for the benefit of the Humane Society. To-morrow Dona Sol is expected to arrive in Paris with her golden voice and the golden spoils of her American campaign, which are said to amount to 800,000f. There is, however, reason to believe that these figures are very much exaggerated.

Vice-Admiral La Roncière Le Noury died on Friday last, at the age of sixty-eight. M. Le Noury fulfilled several missions in England, took part in the Crimean War, commanded a Polar expedition organised by Prince Napoleon in 1856, and otherwise professionally distinguished himself. He entered political life in 1871, and joined the Bonapartists. He was elected Senator in 1876. The Admiral was President of the Geographical Society and of the Yacht Club.

The medal of honour of the Salon will be voted on Tuesday next. Apropos of the Salon, I may say that the management of the "Société des Artistes Français" has by no means given satisfaction; not only has favouritism been singularly evident, and protégés more numerous than ever, as may be seen by any competent judge of the majority of the pictures of which the Salon is composed, but the "Société des Artistes" have made the Salon a pure business speculation. The creation of a five-franc entrance fee and the admission of advertisements into the catalogue are small matters, which still are good as evidence. But what are we to say of the disinterestedness of a committee which allows a well-known photographer to enter the Salon before any other in consideration of a sum of 40,000f.? A similar arrangement is understood to have been made with several picture-dealers. The tendency of the leading French artists (I do not mean the members of the Institute) during the past two years is not to exhibit in the Salon. The conditions of exhibition are unfavourable, and the recompenses mean nothing. The success of the private exhibitions, which have been so frequent of late, indicates the path of the future. The great Salon will yield the place to the little Salons, les petits Salons as they have been aptly called.

M. Jules Vallès, who returned almost unwillingly from his London exile last year, has just published a new novel, "Le Bachelier" (Paris: Charpentier). This volume, which is dedicated "To those who have been brought up on Latin and Greek, and who have died of hunger," forms the second part of "Jacques Vingtras," a semi-autobiography published by M. Vallès last year, in which he narrated the history of his childhood. It will be followed by "L'Insurgé," in which we shall find the Vallès of the famous journal La Rue, the Vallès of the Réfractaires, and the Vallès of the Commune. I need not dwell upon the originality of the talent of M. Vallès, or his qualities as a stylist. I need not, either, examine his opinions, political or social. I speak of "Le Bachelier" purely from a literary and psychological point of view. It is a remarkable book.

T. C.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

ITALY.

The conclusion of the Tunisian treaty has, as was expected, led to a Ministerial crisis in Italy. Signor Cairoli announced in the Chamber last Saturday that he had tendered the resignation of the Ministry to the King. He explained that the situation created by the action of the French in Tunis was so grave that he and his colleagues desired to abstain from indicating their past policy or answering any interpellation on the question. His Majesty accepted the resignation of the Cabinet, and commissioned Signor Sella to form a new Ministry. He is stated to have succeeded in forming a Cabinet, constituted as follows:—Sella, President of the Council of Ministers and Minister of Finance; Robilant, now Ambassador at Vienna, Minister of Foreign Affairs; Biancheri, Minister of the Interior: Canizzaro, Minister of Public Instruction; Peruzzi, Minister of Public Works; Luzzati, Minister of Agriculture and Commerce; Ricotti, Minister of War; Brin, Minister of Marine; Mirabelli, Minister of Grace and Justice. There is said to be some uncertainty regarding the portfolio of for Foreign Affairs, but it is fully expected that Count Robilant will accept it.

SPAIN.

The result of the elections for municipal councillors has been officially published. Of the successful candidates 28,079 are favourable, and 3824 hostile, to the present Ministry.

HOLLAND.

The Second Chamber has adopted by a large majority the principal clauses in a bill restricting the issue of licenses for the sale of alcoholic liquors to a certain number in proportion to the population of each district, and making other provisions for the repression of drunkenness.

AUSTRIA-HUNGARY.

We gave last week an account of the Imperial Marriage at Vienna, and our present issue contains some Illustrations, with further particulars, of this auspicious social event. The Prince of Wales was present at the christening of the infant daughter of the Prince and Princess of Coburg, which took place on the 11th inst. The Emperor and Empress, the King and Queen of the Belgians, all the Archdukes and Archduchesses, Princess Gisela and Prince Leopold of Bavaria, the Count and Countess of Flandres, and Prince William and Princess Victoria of Prussia likewise attended the ceremony. The child was baptised Dorothea Marie Henriette Louise Stéphanie. A drawing-room in the Coburg Palace was arranged as a chapel, with an altar at one extremity. Cardinal Archbishop Siewor, assisted by the Primate of Hungary, officiated. The Queen of the Belgians acted as sponsor for the infant Princess. After the ceremony luncheon was served in the dining-room of the Palace. The King and Queen of the Belgians left Vienna on the 12th inst., after having taken leave on the previous day of the Crown Prince and Princess at Laxenburg, and of the Emperor and Empress early on the 12th. The Emperor, the Archdukes, the Prince of Wales, and the Burgomaster were present at the railway station; the parting between the Emperor and the King being of a most cordial character. The Prince of Wales left in the afternoon of the same day by the express train for Pesth.

The Crown Prince Rudolph and the Princess left Vienna on Wednesday morning for Pesth, amid the enthusiastic cheering of the people.

The Emperor Francis Joseph has conferred the grand cross of the Order of St. Stephen in brilliants upon the Sultan of Turkey, in grateful recognition of the reception given to the Crown Prince Rudolph during his recent visit to Palestine.

On the reassembling of the Lower Chamber of the Austrian Reichsrath on the 11th inst., President Smolka referred to the nuptial ceremony of the previous day, and dwelt on the enthusiasm with which the union of the Heir to the Throne with a Princess coming from a Constitutional kingdom and family like that of Belgium had been greeted throughout the wide provinces and by the numerous nationalities of the Austro-Hungarian Empire. In last Monday's sitting of the Lower House of the Austrian Reichsrath the Minister of Public Instruction brought forward the bills for the establishment of a Czech University at Prague, and authorising a supplementary credit to provide the necessary funds.

After a long debate the Lower House of the Hungarian Diet on Monday passed the Pesth-Semlin Railway Bill by a large majority.

GERMANY.

Prince Bismarck sustained another defeat in the Reichstag on Monday. After one or two divisions on certain clauses of the bill for introducing a system of biennial Budgets and quadrennial Parliaments, a vote was taken on the measure as a whole, when it was almost unanimously rejected, and a resolution of Herr Rickerts adopted, requiring the Budget for the Empire to be prepared and determined upon before the Budgets of the several States. This final result was, it is stated, brought about by the Conservatives and Clericals voting with the Liberals, whereas they had before given their support to the Government.

RUSSIA.

The Emperor returned to St. Petersburg on the 11th inst. from Gatchina with the Empress, and afterwards held the usual spring review. Wherever his Majesty was expected to pass crowds waited patiently and cordially welcomed him. Immediately after the review a proclamation was issued, in which the Emperor expresses his resolution to maintain his autocratic power, and invokes the people's aid in exterminating sedition and cultivating religion and morality in all the relations of life. News comes from St. Petersburg that the Liberal element in the Russian Government is shelved, and that the Reactionaries have triumphed. General Melikoff, M. Abaza, Baron Nicolai, M. Milutin, and M. de Giers have resigned, and General Ignatieff has been summoned to form a homogeneous Cabinet. These resignations have been precipitated by the Czar's last Manifesto, showing that he relies upon Autocracy alone to save the country under its present difficulties. The Nihilists, in a new proclamation, declare that they accept the war forced upon them.

The state of things in Southern Russia, where the attacks have been made upon the Jews, is described as deplorable. The correspondent of the Golos, telegraphing from Kieff, says he has seen more than 1800 families in the barracks, many of whom had been wounded and mutilated, and all had been two days without food.

DENMARK.

Owing to the rheumatic sufferings of the King having assumed great severity, his Majesty proceeds shortly to Wiesbaden.

AMERICA.

The vote of the Senate confirming the nomination of Mr. Stanley Matthews to the post of Justice of the Supreme Court was 22 for and 21 against.

Senators Conkling and Platt, of New York, have resigned their seats in the Senate. These Republican Senators (telegraphs the Philadelphia correspondent of the Times) resign from disgust at the outcome of the conflict with the President about the appointment of Mr. Robertson as collector for New York, every indication being that the Senate would confirm Mr. Robertson. The belief is that they intend asking the New York Legislature to re-elect them as an indorsement of their course against the President.

After a close investigation relative to diseases in swine, the United States State Department has published the conclusions at which it had arrived. It declares there is no more disease in America than in Europe, and that trichinosis is almost unknown at Chicago and Cincinnati—the two largest pork consuming centres.

A monument commemorating the battle of Cowpens was unveiled at Spartanburg, South Carolina, on the 11th inst., 20,000 people being present.

A wave of great heat for May has passed over the Atlantic States, the mercury rising in some places above 90. On the 12th inst. frequent sunstrokes were reported; seven cases having occurred in New York and Brooklyn.

Last week 14,281 emigrants landed at New York.

CANADA.

An official contradiction has been given to the rumour recently published by some Canadian papers to the effect that the Marquis of Lorne contemplated resigning the Governor-Generalship of Canada.

Sir J. A. Macdonald, the Premier, sails for England on Saturday (to-day).

The Chinese in British Columbia have struck against the tax imposed by the Chinese headmen. An affray occurred with the police, several of whom were injured. The Chinese threatened to return and burn the town.

INDIA.

The Viceroy telegraphs that at Candahar, according to the latest news, all is quiet. The principal chief of the Zamindawar Alizais has come in. Some damage done to the British cemetery has been repaired, the culprits imprisoned, and a permanent guard established.

A Times telegram says that, if the latest reports from Cabul can be trusted, the long-expected collision between the Ameer and Ayoob Khan is now imminent.

Calcutta has been visited by a storm of unusual severity, during which three men were struck dead by lightning.

AUSTRALIA.

The Legislative Council at Melbourne has passed the bill for the reform of the Constitution, with amendments modifying the measure in some important particulars. The telegram which contains this news adds that an amicable settlement of the question is expected. The revenue returns of Victoria during the past quarter show an increase under the head of railways of £60,000, and Customs £55,000, the total increase of revenue during the past nine months being £322,000. A large quantity of frozen English fish received in Australia by the Orient Line steamer Lusitania has been retailed in Melbourne in excellent condition, the average price realised being 4s. per pound.

A telegram from Melbourne, dated the 16th inst., announces the departure for England in the Orient steamer Siguria of Sir Herbert Sandford, R.A., Royal Commissioner to the Melbourne Exhibition. The Siguria sailed from Adelaide on the 14th inst. The feeling is said to be general that Sir Herbert Sandford has done his work admirably.

Sir Arthur Blyth, Agent-General for South Australia, has received a telegram from the Government at Adelaide, dated the 13th inst., announcing the resignation of the Treasurer, the Hon. G. S. Fowler, and the appointment of the Hon. W. B. Rounsevell in his place. Parliament has been summoned for the dispatch of business on June 2.

The revenue of Queensland for last month shows an increase of £20,000, and expenditure a decrease of £6000, as compared with the corresponding period of last year. The railway extension from Warwick to Stanthorpe has been opened, and the first turf has been turned of the projected line to Sandgate. Sir Arthur Kennedy, the Governor, is now on a tour in the northern ports. The season is favourable for the crops. Parliament will meet on July 5 next.

Cyprus is overrun with locusts, which are making great ravages among the wheat crop, and the barley crop is bad through blight.

The French Minister of Public Works proposes to apply the electric light, now employed in four lighthouses, to the remaining forty-two French lighthouses, at an expense of 7,000,000f., another 1,000,000f. being also expended in steam trumpet signals for foggy weather.

Tuesday night's Gazette contains the following notice respecting the University of Adelaide:—"The Queen has directed letters patent to be passed under the Great Seal granting and declaring that the degrees of Bachelor and Master of Arts and Bachelor and Doctor of Medicine, of Laws, of Science, and of Music, granted by the University of Adelaide, South Australia, on any person, male or female, shall be recognised as academic distinctions and rewards of merit, and be entitled to rank, precedence, and consideration in the United Kingdom and in the colonies and possessions of the Crown throughout the world, as fully as if the said degrees had been granted by any University of the said United Kingdom."

THE PLAYHOUSES.

Equally facetious and true is Mr. Punch's announcement that Messrs. Irving, Booth, McCullough, and Child have "taken a Moor for the Season." Nor should it be forgotten that at Sadler's Wells, for a brief period, Mr. Charles Warner also "took a Moor"—the Moor being that eminently noble one, Othello,—and, with the invaluable co-operation of Mr. Hermann Vezin as Iago, made a great deal more of the Moor than had been expected. The existing conjunction of theatrical stars in the Constellation "Othello" is all the more remarkable, since out of eight leading artists engaged in the performance of the Shakspearean tragedy at Drury Lane and the Lyceum respectively, four, Messrs. McCullough and Booth, Mr. Hermann Vezin and Miss Bella Pateman are Americans. The remaining four, Mr. Henry Irving, Miss Ellen Terry, Mr. E. Terriss, and Mr. John Ryder are, we are all glad and proud to know, English. Let it likewise be observed that in the matter of public utterances the Americans are the most prudish, not to say squeamish people in the world, and that the tragedy of "Othello" has a very embarrassing plot evolved in the very plainest of plain language; yet neither in the United States nor in this country has Mr. Booth or Mr. McCullough found it necessary to "Bowdlerise" the poet's text to the extent of mangling it. A few of the most striking crudities of Elizabethan speech have been omitted or softened down; but there the process of "Bowdlerisation" has ended. The result is that, both at Drury Lane and the Lyceum, there is presented that which I maintain to be a directly elevating, educational, and edifying performance, which young or old can take no more harm from witnessing than they can from reading the apologue of Susanna and the Elders and the Judgment of Daniel thereupon in the Apocrypha.

It is surely justifiable to compare the Othello of Mr. Irving with the Othello of Mr. Booth; but the comparison of Mr. John McCullough's Moor with that of either of the artists just named would be not only wholly unjustifiable, but clearly unjust to the really clever and painstaking tragedian now attracting crowded audiences to the National Theatre. It would be as unjust as, in art criticism, it would be to compare Mr. Frith with Mr. Burne Jones or Mr. Stacy Marks with Mr. Alma Tadema. All these distinguished painters are, in their several ways, excellent; but those ways are parallel, and may be prolonged to infinity without meeting. If Mr. John McCullough belong to any school it may be to that of Edwin Forrest and Gustavus V. Brooke. He is decidedly the kind of tragedian for a theatre of such vast dimensions as Drury Lane; and whatever the stalls or the private boxes may think about him, the more popular sections of the house can scarcely fail to be roused to enthusiasm night after night by an actor whose presence is so stately, whose mien is so comely, whose gestures are so dignified, and whose voice is so magnificently resonant. As for Mr. Hermann Vezin, who plays Iago to Mr. McCullough's Othello as superbly as he played it to Mr. Charles Warner's at Sadler's Wells, he should not care a brass farthing for those critics who sneeringly tell him that he looks physically diminutive or "mentally microscopic" on the immense stage of Old Drury. Perhaps the critics who tell him so are not themselves one hundred and eighty-seven feet eleven inches high. Charles Keen was a little man; but he was not by any means a contemptible Iago; and, as for Garrick, was Dr. Johnson's "Little Davy" a giant? For my part, I think that, on the whole, the little men have a decided advantage over the big ones as tragedians. Imagine the effect of a very tall Othello at the Prince of Wales's! As regards the low comedians, the very best of them—"Little" Knight, Oxberry, Buckstone, Keeley, Harry Widdicombe, "Jemmy" Rogers, John Clarke, David Rees, and the gloriously extant John Lawrence Toole, all belonged, or belong, to "the Lofty-stomached race of Little Men." Wright and Liston, I think, and perchance John Reeve, were actors of considerable inches.

So Mr. John McCullough has scored a distinct and brilliant triumph as Othello at Drury Lane; and he has been admirably seconded by Mr. Hermann Vezin as Iago. Further strength has been given to the cast by the touchingly emotional utterances of Miss Bella Pateman as Desdemona, the sonorous delivery and excellent by-play of Mr. John Ryder as Brabantio, the powerful declamation of Mrs. Arthur Stirling as Emilia, and the earnestness of Mr. Augustus Harris as Roderigo. Altogether, the performance of "Othello" at the National Theatre is a very fine one, and has moved the usually icy dramatic critic of the Times to such a pitch of enthusiasm as to incite him to quote Greek.

For six weeks, dating from the thirtieth instant, Old Drury will be given over to the company of the Court Theatre of the Duke of Saxe-Meiningen, who are to appear in a selection of plays from their capacious répertoire, embracing the works of Shakspeare, Schiller, Goethe, Molière, Gelpatzer, &c. I once saw the "Merry Wives of Windsor" in German, at Munich. It was rather a solemn performance. I should dearly like to see Molière's "Précieuses Ridicules" or the "Bourgeois Gentilhomme" in the Teutonic vernacular; so I have purchased an Ollendorff, and look forward to great things. The Meiningen Company are under the gracious patronage of his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales; and I hope that they will have better treatment at Drury Lane than the Dutch company had at the Imperial.

Mr. W. G. Wills, in a very modest and sensible letter to the Times, announces that he has withdrawn his tragedy of "Juana" from representation at the Court Theatre. He has been led, upon reflection, to observe that the gloom of the closing acts is too oppressive for an English audience; so he withdraws the grim piece with a view to the removal of the unpopular element of horror before the reproduction of "Juana" in the provinces and in America. I scarcely know Mr. W. G. Wills, personally; and, indeed, I most sincerely wish that I did not know any actors or any dramatists, at all. It is very hard to have to censure people whom you know and like; but the camaraderie engendered by what seems to be unduly close social contact between journalists and dramatic artists leads, to my thinking, to the adoption on the part of some critics of a perfectly revolting system of slavishly adulating actors and actresses who move in what is termed "Society," while these same critics spitefully disparage and vilify those comedians who do not "live in fine houses and entertain fine company." As regards Mr. Wills and his fellow-playwrights, I can say, with the negro clergyman,

> Git down off dem seats, white man or brudder;
> I care no more for one dan I do for udder.

But I have the highest admiration for Mr. Wills' poetic genius and dramatic candour; and I hope that he will believe in my sincerity when I express an opinion that, with a little care and thought, "Juana" might be turned into a very fine—nay, a very noble—play. The playwright has been hampered by the necessity of killing Madame Modjeska; and that gifted tragédienne, it appears, insisted that she would be killed, and that nobody should save her. At the same time, when Mr. Wills revises and recasts his play, let him consult some friend who is a Spanish scholar, and get rid of the uncouth and positively grotesque nomenclature of his personages. If "Fray Juan" is to become "Friar John," "Juana (whose name, at the Court, was generally pronounced "Guana" instead of "Huaña") should become "Johanna;" and if "Fray Felipe" is to be known as "Friar Philip," "Pedro," the page, should be called "Peter." There is, again, no such Spanish Christian name as Katrina. Esteban is an absurd surname for Juaña. Esteban is a Christian name, signifying Stephen. Murillo's Christian name was Esteban. Don Carlos de Narcisso is next door to an impossibility. He would be Don Carlos or Don Narciso of something or another. What should we think in English romantic diction of Sir Reginald Hugh, or Sir James John? The "Dame" Garcia should be the "Señora" Garcia; and the "Provost" should be the "Alcalde" of Toledo. Finally, the "loggia" of Juaña's castle should be the "patio." The "loggia" is characteristic not of Spanish but of Italian architecture. And how on earth, Mr. Wills, did a "Mother Abbess," with a lantern in her hand, obtain admission to a monastery full of Franciscan friars? These, it may be maintained, are but trifling solecisms. I reply that if a dramatic author lays the scene of his drama in Spain he is bound to give attention to the reasonable demands of local colour and nomenclature.

On Saturday, the fourth of June, Mr. Wilson Barrett transfers his brilliant troupe from the Court Theatre to the Princess's, and an English version of "Frou-Frou," written by Mr. Comyns Carr, will be produced, with, of course, Madame Modjeska in the principal character. She will, no doubt, be enchanting in it; but, you see, it is another "sighing and dying" part. The charming artiste might be the Lady Abbess of a female La Trappe, of which the inmates continually murmured to one another "Sœur, il faut Mourir," the orthodox response made being Sœur, Mourir il faut. The Court is to have a new lease of life after the performance, for seven nights only, dating from this instant Saturday, of "Adrienne Lecouvreur," with Madame Modjeska as Adrienne. On Monday, the sixth of June, that delightful English actress, Miss Marie Litton, will commence with "The Busy Body" a series of performances of Fine Old English Comedies. I have been looking over a good many Fine Old English Comedies lately. I found a vacant shelf, and filled it with a set of "Bell's British Theatre," which I bought cheap; and it struck me that not a few of the Fine Old Comedies were Fine Old Bores. But if any one can "pull through" with an antiquated comedy it is Miss Marie Litton.

G. A. S.

From the rather heavy, if elaborately mounted, tragedies of our large theatres it is a relief to escape to the small houses where farcical comedy makes the rafters ring with laughter. Mirth-moving as a Palais Royal piece, though free from the humour peculiar to the French stage, the new comic play at the Royalty, "The Member for Slocum," presents a series of diverting situations, all of which are capable of innocent explanation. Mr. Georgeult. Sims, the author (whose "Crutch and Toothpick" ran so successfully at the same little theatre), has managed his incidents with cleverness and discretion. Mr. Onesimus Epps, "the Member for Slocum," is a victim to an all-night sitting of the House of Commons and to a strong-minded advocate of women's rights. Miss Kate Lawler is the vivacious impersonation of this would-be wrecker of "The Member for Slocum's" domestic happiness; and the action never flags whilst she is on the stage. Full of fun from start to finish, the bustling gaiety of Mr. Sims's merry comedy is also well sustained by the other actors and actresses concerned, particularly by Miss Harriet Coveney (Mrs. Jeffs, the indignant mother-in-law), Mr. Arthur Williams (the luckless member), and Mr. Frank Cooper, whose natural style and easy manner materially contribute to the success of "The Member for Slocum."

An entire change of programme is announced for Monday, May 30, at Mr. and Mrs. German Reed's entertainment, consisting of two new pieces by Arthur Law, entitled "Cherry Tree Farm" and "A Bright Idea," the music to which is by Hamilton Clarke and Arthur Cecil respectively. Mr. Corney Grain will also give his new musical sketch, entitled "Ye Funcie Faire, 1881."

The Mohawk Minstrels still draw large and appreciative audiences at Sanger's Amphitheatre. The principal items of interest in the programme are the ballad-singing of Messrs. Kavanagh and Garland, the banjo-playing of Mr. Thomas, the cleverly-written songs of Mr. Harry Hunter, and Master Kavanagh's sweet rendering of "The Empty Cradle." Although "The Empty Cradle" is converted into a jig by every boy errant, is ground as a galop on every itinerant organ, and is tortured in various other ways, its old beauties are now revived. That the song has been given with more expression elsewhere will be admitted, but it has never been more musically rendered; and, if the air were unaccompanied, still greater effect would be gained. The graceful jig dancing of Messrs. F. Diamond and W. Ray adds variety to the entertainment.

MUSIC.

ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA.

Last week's specialties were duly recorded by us. This week opened with a performance, on Monday, of "Lohengrin," for the first time this season, when Madame Albani resumed the character of Elsa, and sang and acted with charm and power fully equal to those of any former occasion. As Lohengrin, Herr Labatt made his first appearance in England, and obtained a moderate success. His voice and style are more suited to declamatory passages than to those of sentiment and tenderness. His best efforts were in the denunciation of Ortruda in the finale to the second act, and in the more demonstrative portions of the great duet with Elsa in the bridal chamber. Mdlle. Mantilla, as Ortruda, was earnest and impassioned; Signor Cotogni was as efficient as heretofore as Telramondo; and M. Dauphin made a very favourable impression on his first appearance here as the Herald—Signor Silvestri having been satisfactory in the part of the King.

On Tuesday "Les Huguenots" was repeated, and Madame Fürsch-Madier and Signor Mierzwinsky were again very successful in their performances, respectively as Valentina and Raoul—this occasion having included the first appearance in England of Mdlle. Elly Warnots, who sang the florid music of Margherita di Valois with much brilliancy and refinement. The lady is evidently an accomplished artist, and we shall doubtless soon have occasion to speak further of her merits. The indisposition of Signor De Reszké caused the sudden transference of the character of San Bris to Signor Ugetti, who acquitted himself well.

For Thursday, "Dinorah" was announced, with Madame Sembrich's first assumption, in England, of the title-character, and the first appearance this season (as Hoel) of M. Lasalle. The return of Madame Patti is to take place next Tuesday in "Semiramide."

The first of this year's Floral Hall concerts—in association with the Royal Italian Opera—takes place this (Saturday) afternoon; Mesdames Albani, Sembrich, and Trebelli, and other eminent artists being announced to take part in the performances.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

The début of Mdlle. Adelgisa Gabbi in the title-character of Verdi's "Aida"—on Thursday week—was, on the whole, successful. The lady has good vocal and dramatic qualities; her appearance is pleasing, and her actions and gestures are dignified and appropriate. Her voice is capable both of fluent execution and sympathetic expression; the prevalence of tremolo having doubtless been largely owing to the nervousness of a first appearance. Mdlle. Gabbi produced a favourable impression in the scena of the first act, and in the duet with Amneris; and this was greatly enhanced by her singing in the important duet with Amonasro, in which the débutante displayed high powers of pathos and passion. The Amneris of Mdlle. Tremelli was in every respect a fine performance, as was that of Signor Galassi in the character of Amonasro; which has never been more finely rendered, both vocally and dramatically, than on this occasion. Signor Runcio was a very satisfactory Rhadames—other features of the cast not requiring specific notice.

Saturday's performance brought back Mdlle. Ilma di Murska, after an absence of two years. As Dinorah in Meyerbeer's charming opera so-named, the Hungarian prima donna sang with undiminished brilliancy and refinement. Among several special points, her fine delivery of the difficult "Shadow song" was prominent for admirable vocalisation and the enthusiastic reception which it met with. Dinorah's slumber song, and her share in the exquisite "Bell Trio" were sung with charming grace, the elaborate passages for Dinorah in the duet with Corentino having been very artistically executed. Mdlle. di Murska also sang with much dramatic expression in the fine trio which precedes the catastrophe of the torrent and the thunderbolt. The music of the principal Goatherd was excellently rendered by Mdlle. Tremelli; Signor Galassi acted and sang finely as Hoel, and Signor Runcio's Corentino was eminently good, both as to singing and acting. The parts of the Hunter and the Reaper were filled, respectively, by Signori Monti and Rinaldini. Other details require no comment. Signor Arditi conducted.

The Philharmonic Society gave the last concert but one of the sixty-ninth season on Thursday week, when a new orchestral "Sinfonietta," by Mr. F. H. Cowen, was produced, the composer having conducted its performance. It contains some pleasing and striking music, extremely well scored, and was very favourably received. We must take another opportunity to speak more in detail of the work.

The second of Mr. Charles Halle's twenty-first series of Pianoforte Recitals, yesterday (Friday) week, continued his serial performances of Beethoven's Sonatas and Bach's forty-eight Preludes and Fugues; this week's performances carrying the scheme still further forward.

The second of the present series of Mr. Ganz's excellent orchestral concerts took place on Saturday afternoon, when Berlioz's "Symphonie Fantastique" entitled "Episode de la Vie d'un Artiste" was repeated. Of the work and of its very effective rendering at the first concert we have already spoken.

The second of the extra Saturday Afternoon Concerts at the Crystal Palace, last week, included a performance of one of Joachim Raff's finest symphonies, that in C major (No. 2), and the first appearance here of Herr Heymann, who displayed great technical skill, but some exaggeration, in his execution of Chopin's first pianoforte concerto. Other items of the programme require no specific mention.

At the Alexandra Palace the second of a series of concerts, under M. Meyer Lutz, took place last Saturday, old English ballads constituting the programme.

The second of the new series of Richter concerts was given at St. James's Hall on Monday evening, when Brahms's "Academic" Festival overture, Lizst's "Mephisto Walzer," Wagner's "Siegfried Idyll," and Schumann's second symphony (in C) were admirably played by the fine band directed by Herr Richter. The third concert was announced for Thursday afternoon last, when the programme comprised the orchestral portions of Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream" music, Chopin's second concerto (with Mr. Bache as pianist), Goldmark's overture, "Penthesilea," and Mr. Cowen's "Scandinavian" symphony.

The South London Choral Association gave the second concert of the season at St. James's Hall on Thursday evening, with a varied and attractive programme.

The second of Mr. Sims Reeves's farewell performances in oratorio was announced to take place at the Royal Albert Hall this week in Handel's "Israel in Egypt." This was the third of the series of concerts—Mr. Reeves's appearance at the second, in Haydn's "Creation," having been prevented by his indisposition.

Rossini's "Moses in Egypt" was announced for performance by the Sacred Harmonic Society yesterday (Friday) evening, with Mesdames L. Sherrington and Enriquez, Mdlle. Enequist, Messrs. E. Lloyd, Cummings, Santley, Bridson, and Hilton, as principal solo vocalists.

Among the miscellaneous concerts of the week were those of Mr. Brinley Richards, Miss Maddalena Cronin, and Fraulein Bondy (pianists); Mr. Percy Blandford and Mr. Winn (vocalists); and Mdlle. Vaillant (violinist).

A second morning ballad concert is to be given by Mr. John Boosey to-day (Saturday).

Mr. J. F. Barnett's cantata, "The Building of the Ship," which was successfully performed at the last Leeds Festival, will be heard for the first time at St. James's Hall next Wednesday evening, when the composer will conduct. Miss Anna Williams, Madame Patey, and Messrs. Edward Lloyd and Santley will be the vocalists.

Miss Lillie Albrecht (whose compositions we have had frequent occasion to commend) will give her first pianoforte recital next Saturday afternoon, at Aberdeen House, under the patronage of the Earl and Countess of Charlemont and Mr. George Eyre; the vocalists on the occasion being Madame Arabella Smythe, Miss Coyte Turner, and Mr. Isidore de Lara; Mr. Lindsay Sloper conducting.

The amateur performance at the Imperial Theatre last week in aid of the Builders' Benevolent Institution realised £100.

A morning performance will be given at the Gaiety Theatre on Monday, the 30th inst., at 2.30, by the "Inseparables" Amateur Dramatic Club, in aid of the Hospital for Hip Disease in Childhood. "A Merry Widow" and "The Doubtful Victory" will be played.

Before the Cincinnati Scientific Society, the discovery has been announced of a process for fusing and moulding iridium, which has hitherto been deemed impossible. A bar of this metal, which was used as a substitute for the negative carbon in an electric lamp, burned sixty hours without loss of weight or change of form.

THE FRENCH EXPEDITION TO TUNIS: GOUMS, RECONNOITRING, ATTACKED BY KHROUMIRS.—SEE PAGE 505.

THE IMPERIAL WEDDING AT VIENNA: THE MARRIAGE CEREMONY IN THE PALACE CHURCH OF THE AUGUSTINES.—SEE PAGE 505.

FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

ROYAL ACADEMY EXHIBITION.

FOURTH NOTICE.

We have still to fill up not a few lacunæ in our notice of the figure-pictures at Burlington House; and in doing so we may conveniently follow the order of the catalogue, at least approximately. No. 12, then, "Her Daughter's Legacy," an old washerwoman regarding a sleeping boy, is a pathetic, broadly painted picture by an artist whose name—Arthur Hacker—is new to us. In "St. Anne's Almshouses, Antwerp" (23), the young Lincoln painter, W. Logsdail, again displays the results of training in the Antwerp school—admirable in the solid impasto, and vigorous realistic rendering of the architecture and figures, but less so as regards the tendency to blackness and apparent insensibility to beauty—also characteristic of the school. "In Antwerp, 1800" (230), by the same, shows the courtyard of the famous old printing establishment, now the Musée Plantin, with a couple of characteristic figures in costumes of the date indicated. "The Genius of the Family" (29), a Spanish boy playing a guitar before an admiring circle, by Mr. Burgess, has all the artist's usual careful—perhaps too uniformly careful—execution and all his nice discrimination of character and expression. A pretty figure of a Greek girl at "The Loom" (35), by C. E. Perugini, would be much more acceptable with less smooth, diaphanous texture, and more manly feeling for natural beauty. The busy motley market scene at "The Foot of the Rialto," where the true character of the Venetian crowd may best be seen, is rendered with generally excellent qualities of art by H. Woods in No. 61. An Italian farm-house interior (71), by G. Chicrici, with a child left unguarded in its chair screaming with fright at the irruption of a hungry crowd of turkeys, geese, cocks and hens, who would have their share of the yellow polenta that lies about the room, is a farcical exaggeration, but realised with extraordinary precision, firmness, and completeness.

In "Niobe" (83), with two of her children clinging to her in terror, and another lying dead at her feet, Mr. Schafer takes, and most successfully, a higher flight than he has hitherto attempted. The unformal spirited composition, the correct draughtsmanship both of figures and draperies, the refined colouring, with its delicate carnations, greens, and greys, form a beautiful harmonious whole, and evince decorative capacity of a high order. "The Daughter of Herodias" (87), by A. Sacheverel-Coke, is also a quasi decorative work of considerable promise. C. J. Staniland's "Relief of Leyden, 1574" (90)—so well described by the passage from Motley's "Dutch Republic," quoted in the catalogue—indicates a marked advance made by this painter. "Herdsmen of the Campagna Collecting Young Horses" (95) is an exceedingly spirited work by R. Beavis: the group of frightened, half-wild horses leaping the hurdles is capital. Mr. Croft's picture of King George II., dismounted, leading his troops at the Battle of Dettingen (101), has good points, but is disappointing compared with more important previous works. "Her Grace" (112), a small figure of a lady in white satin, by Mr. Pettie, is a fitting companion to "His Grace" of last year. A larger picture of a solitary youth "Trout-Fishing in the Highlands" (186), by the same, is very true to open-air nature in effect. But Mr. Pettie's best work of the year is "Before his Peers" (537), a half-length of a noble in a black, early sixteenth-century, jerkin and cap, pointing, in his defence, energetically to a parchment he holds in his hand—very able and vigorous, if not quite complete. "Yellow Marguerites" (114), the title of a female figure in classical draperies, by A. Moore, merely points, as usual, to an exquisitely refined scheme of colour. But, with the rare artistic gift here apparent, why does Mr. Moore content himself year after year by repeating single figures, generally in much the same attitudes? Although we have not met with the name of Rhoda Holmes prominently before, there is no sign of inexperience or of feminine weakness in the powerful picture to which that name is appended, representing "Mendicant Monks Collecting Elemosina for Christmas: Venice" (163).

Mr. Poynter's successes seem to be confined to alternate years, and among them cannot be counted his half-length of "Helen" (198)—Helen of Troy standing under a peristyle, her eyes wide open and eyebrows distorted with amazement—the cause of which is indicated by fighting men and blazing towers in the distance. Few will be satisfied with the conception of Helen's fatal beauty; there is no correspondence between the aim at the ideal in the face, and the very naturalistic rendering of the hand: the colouring is singularly dry and opaque. But the picture is most cruelly hung beside the melting, transparent sweetness of the President's "Idyll." Mr. Paget betrays very questionable taste in illustrating the horrible story of "Buondelmonte's Bride" (207); technically, however, the work gives high promise. By Signor F. Andreotti there is a pair of small pictures not surpassed in the exhibition for felicity of characterisation. The one shows an old monk, with fallen jaw and lank cheeks, fast asleep "During the Sermon" (209); the other, entitled "A Happy Father of Twins" (210), presents the same monk, habited as purveyor and cook of his fraternity, with radiant face, hugging a couple of huge fiaschi of red wine. J. W. Waterhouse has made a long stride in advance in the rich colouring and brilliant effect of "A Summer's Day" (221), a scene of classic life with figures disposed on and about a flight of steps. "Artist and Model" (236), by Mr. F. Goodall (whose more important works we have already reviewed), is the pretty incident, charmingly painted, of a little girl drawing from a dog, and holding before it a biscuit as a promised reward for posing steadily. "Bound for the Black Sea, 1854," by Mr. Hodgson, an elaborate picture of sailors merrymaking, and taking leave of sweethearts and friends, in a seaport town, is probably an early work, but gives promise of the fine humour with which the artist has so often celebrated Jack Tar afloat and ashore. "Married for Love" (294), by Mr. Marcus Stone, is, according to the painter's wont, sentimental in idea and daintily neat and finished in execution. A young heir is leading his handsome but poor and perhaps low-born wife, her baby at her breast, towards the garden-terrace of a country mansion, where his father sits, crippled by gout, lonely and brooding in the waning light. Forgiveness, reconciliation, and reinstatement will, of course, close the drama. Mr. Tourrier's picture (322) of Galileo recanting on his knees his heresy that the earth is not the fixed centre of the universe, presents an admirably conceived row of heads in those of the bigoted and ignorant, or hypocritical and astute Inquisitioners—not forgetting the one noble head that betrays an expression of doubt or conviction: but, strange to say, the figure of the astronomer himself is entirely unsympathetic, and not at all resembling the, if we remember rightly, extant authentic portraits of him. "The Young Solomon" (341), a boy prince, seated on a magnificent Oriental throne, and "The Palace in the Lake" (452), by Val. Prinsep, are aptly compiled, interesting recollections of his Indian travels. In speaking of Mr. Heywood Hardy's "Holy Lion," we omitted to mention his "Life's Chequered Ways" (403), a very well painted picture of a lady on horseback regarding pitifully a poor widow bearing an infant trudging along a country lane.

Another picture which we should have noticed earlier—indeed one of the most remarkable here—is "The Benediction" (422), by J. D. Linton. Belonging to a series designed for the decoration of a room (the first instalment of which was exhibited at the Grosvenor Gallery last year), it represents a youthful prince, with attendant generals, in complete armour, some bearing banners, kneeling in a stately church interior to receive an episcopal blessing before departing for a campaign. Near them also kneel the prince's father, a sister, and younger brother. This rich, picturesque, well-considered composition has little of the blackness in the shadows of previous works, and, if somewhat dull in effect, allowance must be made for a gravity of treatment appropriate to the incident, whilst the colouring, though low in tone, is artistic in quality; above all the faces throughout are excellent studies of suitably-chosen character admirably executed. "Before Naseby" (515), by L. J. Pott—Charles I. playing his favourite game at chess, and, sadly regarding an impending checkmate to the King on the board as anguring defeat to his own ill-played crown on the morrow, is clever and effective, if a little too showily painted piece of historical-genre. Mr. Tissot repeats a motive of previous pictures in "Quiet" (560), a lady and a little girl on a garden seat under the shade of a tree; and the same peculiar merits and defects reappear. The lady's arms pressed close to her sides conveys the impression that both her arms and chest are unnaturally attenuated in proportion to the head. "Good-by: on the Mersey" (981) depicts a crowd waving adieux from the shore towards a great passenger-ship steaming by down the river under a lowering weeping sky. "Washerwomen: Venice" (589), by C. Van Haanen—two shapely handsome girls, the one tucking up sleeve and skirt preparatory to work, the other rinsing a garment in the canal, is almost equal in rich intensity of colour to the "Pearl Stringers" of last year. The secrets of Venetian colouring, and of Flemish force and veracity (the artist commenced his studies in Antwerp) seem to have been mastered by this very able young Dutchman. The title "It's always the Largest Fish that's lost" (595) sufficiently explains the expressions of a row of monks seated listening to the narrative of a piscatorial member of their order, in the very clever and humorous picture, so named, by W. Dendy Sadler. C. Calthrop goes far to make up for some ground lately lost in "Au Revoir!" (892)—officers of the time of Queen Anne taking leave of the ladies of the Court at Hampton Court Palace before going to the wars; the remark also applies to "In the Cloisters" (1376). M. Legros' "Saint Jerome" (903) is but a remote approximation to the manner of the old masters at which it aims.

"Reminiscences" (963), by Gunning King—a Chelsea pensioner standing before the Wellington monument in St. Paul's—is another surprise, as the production of an artist whose name is new to us, so thoroughly competent and unhesitating is its technique; in truth, it has few superiors here in drawing, colouring, or execution, and that breadth and simplicity which usually comes only with long practice. "The Marionettes in the Harem" (967), by T. Raili, is significant of the childish life of women deprived of liberty in the East, and a very close reproduction of the style of Gérôme. "Heresy" (971), by R. Barret Browning—a monk in a remonstrating attitude before a heretic lying on a dungeon floor, his nude body very skilfully foreshortened towards the spectator's view, is a large, impressive work, and gives fair promise in its earnestness and power that the young painter will do no discredit in art to the names, so honoured in poetry, that he bears. A large picture by E. Blair Leighton of a handsome young knight reining in his destrier at a casement while his lady-love binds her scarf round his helmet as "A Gage d'Amour" (1365), is another very promising work by a young artist. The sweet face of the lady is full of tender devotion; the armour is painted to illusion; the conscientious painstaking everywhere displayed is most commendable, and we would only suggest that the care is too equally expended, and tends to produce a dull opacity in the colouring, particularly of the shadows. H. Schmalz's illustration of Tennyson's "Holy Grail"—"Sir Galahad" (1371), being equipped for his great "emprise," evinces research in the fashion of the armour, the altar, and other accessories, and is very fairly well painted, but the feeble manner in which the saintly knight stands is almost fatal to poetic sentiment. J. D. Watson's "Unpromising Pupil" (1383)—figures in seventeenth-century costume giving a lesson of manège to an awkward fellow clinging to the mane of a rearing charger, is droll and good in colour. R. W. Macbeth's "Ferry" (1407), with its load of Scotch rustics, has the vivacity and freshness of the Scotch school, but there is a certain artificial prettiness in the figures, and the water is hard and "slab" as plaster. "The Song of Miriam" (1413), by W. Gale, is the most considerable effort we have seen of his, and he may fairly be congratulated with a success proportionate to that effort. Mr. Topham's "Renouncing the Vanities by Order of Savonarola" (1423) is also the artist's most important work hitherto. We regret we have not space to describe his crowded but well-ordered composition, wherein is seen, influenced by the preaching of the iconoclastic reformer in the distance, and accompanying the procession ordered for the occasion, troops of priests bringing books and manuscripts, lewd pictures, and other works of art, together with masks and motley adjuncts of the Carnival; and the Florentine ladies divesting themselves of their trinkets, to throw on the great burning pile erected in the Piazza Signoria. The artist's peculiar type of female face is too prevalent, though less so than heretofore. The chief technical fault is the want of discrimination in the textures, gilded objects, for example, being not readily distinguishable from yellow drapery. "The Song" (1433), a classically-attired group of maidens, listening to one of their number chanting, with accompaniment of her lyre, under effect of glowing evening life, is idyllically conceived and charmingly painted by Mrs. Anderson.

Our notice would be still incomplete without mention of the following meritorious works:—"Dawn at Bethlehem" (3), by Theresa Thornycroft; "A Spring Morning: Haverstock Hill" (100), by G. Clausen; "Pax Vobiscum" (128), by Count W. von Reichenbach; "The Fishers" (180), by J. R. Weguelin; "Rival Beauties" (212), an effective still-life piece, by H. Maurice Page; "Homeward" (357), by Otto Scholderer; "For Better for Worse," &c. (333), by W. S. Stacey; "Burdens" (394), by C. Gregory; "Ich Dien" (428), by R. Hillingford; "Peace and War" (446), by J. R. Reid; "Jesus at the House of the Pharisee" (460), by F. W. Lawson; "The Visit to the Witch" (466), by E. F. Brewtnall; No. 477, by J. Clark; "Beethoven" (502), by C. Schloesser; "Rescued" (508), by B. Goddard; "The Naughty Boy" (544), by C. T. Garland; three illustrations of "The Mistletoe Bough" (551—3), by Jessie Magregor; "L'Invitation à la Valse" (562), by F. Dicey; "The Origin of the English Woollen Trade" (566), by D. W. Wynfield; "An Evening with Mozart" (896), by T. D. Hardy; "His First Offence" (913), by Haynes Williams; "Finding the Ring" (982), by G. B. O'Neil; "The Bachelor" (1350), by H. Helmick; and "The First-born at the Cottage" (1375), by J. Hayllar.

WORKS BY MR. HERBERT, R.A.

The chief and most novel, but by no means the only, attraction in the exhibition of Mr. Herbert's pictures at the Hanover Gallery is the great work, "The Judgment of Daniel," one of the series of four commissioned of the artist, about twenty-five years back, by her Majesty's Fine-Art Commissioners for the decoration of the Peers' Robing-Room of the Westminster Palace. This room was originally designed to serve as the court of the House of Lords, and hence it was arranged that the subjects of the wall-paintings therein should illustrate the Mosaic law and that of Christ. The present work will shortly take its place beside its already famous fellow "Moses bringing down the Tables of the Law." That Mr. Herbert, at his advanced age, will live to complete the original scheme, at the rate only at which he has hitherto progressed, is not in the course of nature to be expected. A careful inspection of this new picture will, however, go far to explain (even more than in the case of its predecessor) the length of time it has been in hand. Not only is it a very large and very complex composition of countless figures and elaborate architecture, painted with minutest care in every detail, but throughout the vast architectural mise en scène there are evidences of matured deliberation based on all possible preparatory research; and all the scores of more or less typical and representative figures testify to thoughtful and dramatic sympathies absorbed in the theme—for each one of these figures have a meaning or intention. Each figure serves to enforce the moral of the central incident; or, together with the architectural accessories, to suggest all that we know or can imagine of ancient Babylon. The ample notes in the catalogue relieve us from the necessity of giving descriptive particulars; but we may summarise by saying that perhaps no picture in the world is more replete with thought and ingenious invention—the ingenuity, indeed, is sometimes almost too tortuous, and approaches in certain minutiæ to the "conceits" of too ornate poetry. We may go further, and say that the strength of the picture is also its weakness, seeing that with so many claims upon mental attention the eye is also distracted. In the intensity of the artist's conception, and in his travail with the lesson he had to teach, he has wrought himself into an ascetic mood, which becomes painfully evident, for example, in the two principal figures—in the attenuated Daniel, and the still more unnaturally lengthened proportions of Susanna; and in the almost spasmodic expressions of these and others. To the same condition of mind may possibly be attributed the severity of some lines and forms, and the coldness of the colouring. This coldness strikes as unpleasant at first sight; and though the impression diminishes with familiarity, we still feel that we are in a frigidly luminous clime rather than in the clear sunlight of the Golden Orient. After all deductions, however, the work is an honour to the artist, to our school, and the nation.

The collection includes, besides a full-sized coloured cartoon of the "Moses descending from Mount Sinai," a selection from the works executed by the artist during his long career, which will be found highly interesting and instructive, showing as they do a wide range of power and successive changes of style. Some of these are as rich and warm as others of later date are cold, if not crude. The early pictures aim, in a rather conventional way, at Venetian colour; several landscapes are at once glowing, brilliant, and truthful. A picture of "The Youth of Our Lord" (10), painted as long ago as 1847, might pass as one of the earliest and best productions of the pre-Raphaelites, and the accidental cross formed by pieces of wood at which Christ starts prophetically is the anticipative germ of the idea that has reappeared in various guises in P. R. Morris's "Shadow of the Cross," in Holman Hunt's "Shadow of Death," and in works by other painters.

---

The sixth annual exhibition of "Paintings on China, by lady amateurs and artists," is likewise now on view at Messrs. Howell and James's.

A fourth annual exhibition at the "Guardi" Gallery, Haymarket, containing Continental pictures, several of them by artists of distinction, also opened this week.

The "United Arts Gallery," in New Bond-street, which opened on Monday last, adds another exhibition of considerable importance and promise to the many already existing; but we have not space this week to notice its contents.

Mr. S. A. Walker, of 230, Regent-street, has published portraits of the revisers of the New Testament, which must prove of great interest at the present moment, when the new version of the sacred volume is issued.

The gallery in the upper part of the Royal Albert Hall was opened on Monday last with the annual exhibition of pictures and water-colour drawings. A laudable effort has been made this year to procure many of the works which "were conditionally retained by the Royal Academy, but not hung for want of space." But, although probably about 4000 pictures and drawings were excluded from Burlington House, only 280 appear in this collection. All the world knows that it may be as discreditable to be rejected by the Academy; and among those who have had the courage to admit the exclusion of their works are J. Archer, R.S.A., Sir Robert Collier, J. Tissot, C. Brockman, H. Zimmerman, the Hon. Mr. W. Lowther, G. Steele, R.S.A., besides many others, including a large number of ladies. There is also a collection of water-colour copies of the Old Masters, lent by the Duchess of Edinburgh; and amongst the sculpture is a work of merit by Princess Louise, Marchioness of Lorne.

---

The inaugural banquet of the London International Exhibition Society, presided over by Lord Ronald Gower, was held in the United Arts Gallery last week; many gentlemen of literary and artistic note were present. Sir Garnet Wolseley returned thanks for the toast of the Army, Navy, and Reserve Forces; Lord Thurlow and Sir Edmund Lechmere, Bart., for the two Houses of Parliament; Mr. Justin McCarthy, M.P., for Literature; Mr. W. Q. Orchardson, R.A., and Mr. John Forbes-Robertson for the Royal Academy and Art in England; and President Herr August Becker, of Dusseldorf, for Art on the Continent. Lord Ronald Gower proposed also, in appropriate terms, the health of Mr. Tristram Ellis, who exhibits in one of the galleries of the exhibition a hundred drawings made during his recent Eastern tour, which extended as far as Kurdistan, Nineveh, and Bagdad. The artist responded briefly and modestly. In returning thanks for the guests, Cardinal Manning made, undoubtedly, the speech of the evening. The proceedings were enlivened by excellent music. These fine galleries have been designed by Mr. W. T. Sams. In extent they are inferior only to those of the Grosvenor, of which he was also the architect: and in adaptation to an end, and in general artistic effect, they maintain and even enhance his reputation.

---

The Bath and West of England Agricultural Association holds its annual exhibition this year at Tunbridge Wells, in Whitsun week, beginning on Monday.

THE SILENT MEMBER.

Which Liberal peer will have the courage to rise to do battle with the Marquis of Salisbury, who has signalised the beginning of his leadership with a caustic vigour which has not spared the most microscopic measure? The Earl of Rosebery might—in time—not be unequal to the task. Beneath that youthful, almost juvenile appearance lurks much worldly wisdom. Has he not graduated on the turf, won the richest prize in the heiress lottery, and been both electioneering Jehu and Lucullus to the Prime Minister? Besides, Lord Rosebery speaks neatly, has a turn for irony, and is known to take a laudable interest in affairs of State. His Lordship affects the peers' gallery of the Lower House in preference to the Upper Chamber. But he broke ground on Monday with a humane question as to the barbarous persecution of Jews in Russia; and might well be tempted to step often into the arena now he has a foeman worthy of his steel. To return to Lord Salisbury, it may be that he has poured forth the vials of his most acidulated hypercriticism upon the puny bills of the Government because from past official experience he deems the relations of France and Tunis too ticklish a question to revert to. So, whilst Earl Delawarr is put up to mildly interpellate Earl Granville regarding the French treaty with the Bey of Tunis, and to hold a Tunisian rod in pickle over the backs of Ministers, the noble Marquis has contented himself with tearing to pieces the Stolen Goods Bill and Charitable Trusts Acts Amendment Bill (the second reading of which the Lord Chancellor, nevertheless, succeeded in securing on the 12th inst.), and with showing his power by inducing Lord Morley on Tuesday to grant the Earl of Powis some Army returns after he had declined to furnish them. The growing interest which is being taken in our military organisation was more markedly shown in a conversation which originated in the Earl of Galloway's motion adverse to the "territorial" titles of regiments of the Line, a change which Lord Morley justified, but Lord Airey said could only be considered experimental.

In the House of Commons, the assumption of the Protectorate of Tunis by France occasioned a spasm of excitement on Monday. Sir H. Drummond Wolff (who, being presumably the Foreign Minister-Elect of the Fourth Party, deserves to be sketched here) is known to keep one eye with a fine frenzy ever rolling over the troubled waters of the East. Tunis naturally comes within the range of his vision. And the patriarchal action of the French in Tunis has from the first led him to ply Sir Charles Dilke with patriotic questions thereanent, in which duty he has been assisted by Mr. Otway (seemingly not unwilling to fire an occasional shot at the Ministry which has dared to leave him out in the cold), and more frequently by Mr. Montague Guest. The stalwart member for Wareham was the most animated actor in the Tunis drama on Monday. Mr. Guest, not satisfied with the diplomatic answer of the Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, moved the adjournment of the House, in order to affirm that England ought to keep to the Firman of 1871, by which the suzerainty of Turkey over Tunis was affirmed, and in order to urge the Government to join with Italy in protesting against "this high-handed"—he had almost said "outrageous"—attack on Tunis. There was a large gathering of Peers in the gallery when Mr. Gladstone rose, and poured oil on the troubled waters of the Mediterranean. Aided by the eloquent silence of Sir Stafford Northcote and his colleagues on the front Opposition bench, the Premier had no difficulty in restoring calm. The right hon. gentleman's terse appeal for the postponement of the discussion till the official despatches were before the House was, no doubt, acceded to all the more readily by reason of the inability of the leader of the Opposition to deny the accuracy of the Premier's statement that

The most important portions of the correspondence we shall lay before the House, so far as they involve the proceedings of this country, are portions which belong, not to the time of the present, but to the late Administration.

Before coming to the principal measure of the Government, a line or two may be given to minor matters. Mr. A. Macdonald (outlined as he sits, very well satisfied with himself, at the further corner of the front bench below the gangway on the Ministerial side) can hardly be included in this category. The hon. member for Stafford is the most frequently heard of the trio of working men representatives. On Monday, to wit, he wanted to know whether the fees for the erection of the monument in Westminster Abbey went into the pockets of Dean Stanley; and, upon receiving a negative answer from Lord F. Cavendish, propound'd a fresh series of questions relating to Abbey memorials. Lord Kensington on the previous Friday brought up her Majesty's gracious answer to the Address in favour of the Abbey monument to the late Earl. The same evening, Mr. Gladstone announced that the Oaths Bill would be postponed till after the passing of the Irish Land Bill; and later on the right hon. gentleman declared himself in favour of Sir Massey Lopes's idea of a separate Minister of Agriculture. Mr. Labouchere on Monday could not elicit from Lord Hartington any clear elucidation of the object of Captain Butler's secret visit to Merv. When the Secretary for India had in his most arid style, and he can be terribly dry on occasions, dilated on the foregoing topic, the turbulence which the Home-Rule brigade rejoice in broke loose, apropos of the application of the epithet "Buckshot Forster" to the Secretary for Ireland, who was naturally prompt to resent this as "an insult." But it is to be feared the audacity of the member for Dungarvan is incurable.

Mr. Gladstone's intervention in the Irish Land Bill debate early on Monday evening was an important step. As has been only too evident of late, the Prime Minister is not in the enjoyment of good health. Mr. Gladstone himself owned on Monday to "being somewhat indisposed, and not able to remain in the House throughout the evening." He yet nerved himself to make a speech not second in strength and eloquence to the generous tribute he paid to Lord Beaconsfield's memory on the previous Monday. Mr. Gladstone did not fail to touch this sympathetic chord anew in appealing to the Opposition to withdraw their antagonism to the Irish land measure. The right hon. gentleman first of all repudiated the charge that the bill was one of "confiscation." He maintained that the vital principle of the bill—the institution of a legal tribunal for the settlement of agrarian disagreements—was a just method of meeting the difficulty. In Lord John Manners's statement that he would vote in favour of Lord Elcho's amendment, Mr. Gladstone effectively said—

I perceive the first effect of the death of Lord Beaconsfield (Hear, hear). In my opinion, if he had been alive, that notice would never have been given. I have had experience of Lord Beaconsfield from a point opposite to his, and it has been a long experience, and you do not remain wholly ignorant of the man with whom on a thousand occasions you are obliged, however unequally, to measure swords. When, in 1868, a Liberal Government came into office and proposed the Disestablishment of the Irish Church, it would have been in the power of Lord Beaconsfield, if he had thought fit, to have prolonged that contest for years. On the contrary, I have not a doubt that Lord Beaconsfield saw that the issue was certain, and that for every interest, for the interest of the country, for his own, and for his party's interest, the sooner the goal was reached the better (Ministerial cheers). I believe he might probably have taken the same course of prolonging the contest over the Land Bill of 1870; and that bill, relatively to the circumstances in which it was introduced, was quite as great an innovation, and quite as daring a measure, as the present bill (Ministerial cheers). What is intended to be done now? Do you who sit opposite think—is there any one who thinks—that this question will ever be settled by a bill smaller than the bill of the Government—(loud Ministerial cheers); and if by powerful combinations, beginning below the gangway among a limited, but still not unimportant number of persons, you overthrow this bill and the Government which attaches its fortunes to this bill—(Ministerial cheers); and if you take their places, you will pass not a smaller, but a larger bill (Ministerial cheers).

Not without humour was Mr. Gladstone's allusion to Mr. Chaplin as "one of the fathers" of the Irish Land Bill. This shining light of the Conservative Party, who was not successful in his endeavour to answer this charge at once, sat down again, as sketched, but in such a manner as to imply, in the words of a famous phrase, "I sit down now; but the time will come when you will hear me!" And, to secure this opportunity, Mr. Chaplin moved the adjournment, and obtained his right to his innings on Thursday.

Mr Chaplin moved the adjournment

The Prime Minister's indisposition kept him from the House on Tuesday, when the Marquis of Hartington took the reins in his place, and had no difficulty in persuading Mr. Dillwyn to withdraw his elaborate new set of rules for regulating the conduct of business; and when Mr. Biggar easily secured a "count-out" in the middle of Mr. H. H. Fowler's speech in favour of a reduction in national expenditure. On Wednesday, Mr Gladstone was well enough to see a deputation of sugar refiners, anxious to revive their industry by the imposition of a duty on imported sugar. In the House, the afternoon was taken up with a debate on Dr. Cameron's Free Education Bill for Scotland, the second reading of which was negatived.

BENEVOLENT OBJECTS.

The Duke and Duchess of Connaught were present last week at the opening of Gordon House, Endsleigh-gardens, as a home for German girls of the working class. Count Münster, the German Ambassador, who presided at a luncheon, was accompanied by the Countesses Marie and Olga Münster.

The festival dinners of St. Mary's Hospital, Paddington, and the Governesses' Benevolent Institution, were held on Wednesday evening. Earl Stanhope presided at the former, and Sir M. Hicks-Beach at the latter, and both made urgent appeals for increased support to those institutions. For St. Mary's Hospital £650 was subscribed; and for the Governesses' Institution £2845, including £1695 from a gentleman who desired his name not to be known, for establishing two annuities.

Lord Derby took the chair yesterday week at a dinner in aid of the funds of the Middlesex Hospital, which took place at Willis's Rooms. Subscriptions were announced amounting to nearly £3000; including £50 from the chairman, £200 from the Fine-Arts Society (practically an exhibition of Mr. Millais's pictures), and a contribution of £811 from the Art Sketching Club.

Earl Percy, M.P., presided at the fourth anniversary dinner of the City Provident Dispensary and Surgical Appliance Association, which took place at the Freemasons' Tavern on Monday. The subscriptions amounted to nearly £250.

A meeting in aid of the East London Hospital for Children and Dispensary for Women, at Shadwell, was held in the Mansion House on Monday. The Lord Mayor presided.

A bazaar under the patronage of Princess Christian was held on Tuesday and Wednesday at the Eyre Arms Assembly Rooms, St. John's-wood, for the sale of work done by ladies in reduced circumstances; and on the same days a bazaar was held at the Riding-School, Knightsbridge, in aid of the building fund for the extension of the National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, Queen-square.

The annual meeting of the Royal General Theatrical Fund was held on Tuesday at the Lyceum Theatre. Mr. T. Swinbourne presided, and there was a larger attendance than usual. The chairman, in moving the adoption of the balance-sheet, said they might congratulate themselves on the prospects of the institution. It had passed through a crisis, and had been proved to be one of the best institutions ever formed. The sum of £1600 was paid to annuitants during the year.——The chair at the annual dinner on July 29 next will be taken by Mr. Henry Irving; and Mr. Sims Reeves has kindly promised to sing two songs.

Next Tuesday the festival dinner of the Royal Hospital for Children and Women will be held at Willis's Rooms. The Prince of Wales will preside; supported by the Lord Mayor and the Sheriffs of London and Middlesex. This institution, of which the Queen is the patron, was established in 1816.

The Earl of Jersey has consented to preside at a dinner at Willis's Rooms, in aid of the funds of the Industrial Home for Boys, 119, Copenhagen-street, on Friday, the 27th inst.

The Scottish gathering, which was inaugurated last year at the Lillie-bridge Grounds, is appointed to take place on June 18, at the Stamford-bridge Grounds, Fulham. The gathering is held in aid of the Scottish charities in London.

NOVELS.

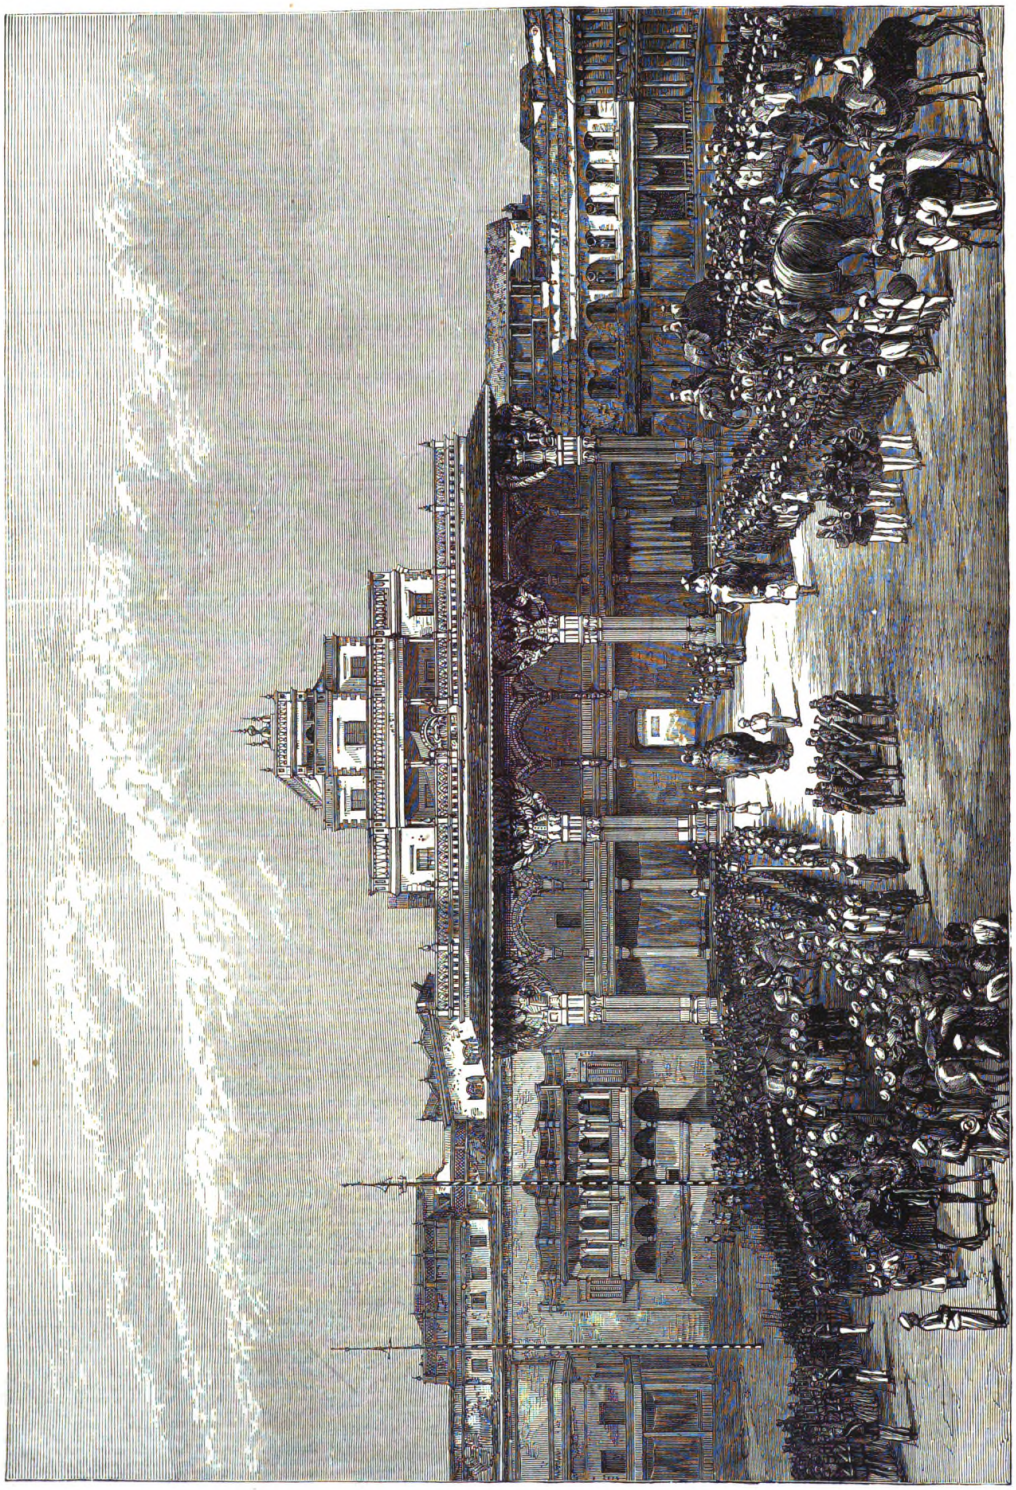
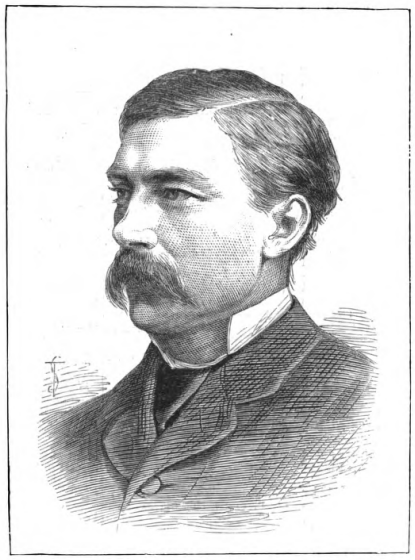
Two specimens of the superior woman, or woman of advanced views, are put prominently forward in the Rebel of the Family, by E. Lynn Linton (Chatto and Windus), and are treated with all the skill and literary power for which the writer is celebrated. One is probably intended as a shocking example of what advancement may lead to, and the other as a sample of the sweet woman capable of being produced by the modern system reasonably pursued and not carried to extremes. The story, from a certain point of view, is that of Cinderella over again; for the heroine is one Perdita, the plainest of three sisters, as the world generally counts plainness, and yet she is the best and noblest of the bunch, and although discountenanced, despised, and even "cut" by her own mother, saves that mother from pecuniary ruin by marrying the prince—of chemists and druggists: not that she married the chemist and druggist for that business-like purpose, she married him for the purest and most romantic reasons, so far as love unalloyed by any sordid considerations is romantic; her chance of assisting her mother by the marriage which that mother condemned and abhorred was unforeseen. The novel is, of course, clever, but it can hardly be regarded as pleasant, though it is sometimes very amusing; so many mean characters are seldom met with in the same number of pages, and the meanness of the Winstanleys, Perdita Winstanley excepted, requires more relief than is afforded by the two or three personages who have not extremely disagreeable qualities and manners. However, things may be considered to have been brought to a satisfactory conclusion when the wicked Frenchman is checkmated, and "the noblest man on earth, the wisest and most generous," who is a chemist and druggist, is "loved by the best girl on earth," who is Cinderella, otherwise Perdita Winstanley, "the daughter of a major and the granddaughter of a bishop—a rebel and a Democrat, not honouring, as she should, the purple lappet which fell across her soft smooth shoulders—the blueness of the blood which ran in her wicked veins." Howbeit, the rank of a major is not so awfully exalted as all that; nor does one generally look among bishops for the representatives of "blue blood."

Belgian flavouring gives an agreeable piquancy to the plentiful feast of love and marriage spread out before the reader in the three volumes entitled Beside the River: by Katharine S. Macquoid (Hurst and Blackett), a novel in which, as it would seem, the writer, whose travels in various foreign parts have supplied her with material for the composition of so many interesting and even instructive books, has rather introduced a tale for the sake of describing certain scenery than drawn upon her recollection of certain scenery for the sake of embellishing a tale. Love, however, so far as the story is concerned, is the principal, almost the only topic; enter a pair of lovers in the very first chapter, and exeunt—to get married, if you please—another, very different pair of lovers in the very last. In the meantime love, of a very passionate sort, but tinged with a suspicion of sordid views, has been causing tumultuous disturbances in various bosoms, and leads to a somewhat tragic incident, though the situation has its comic aspect. The fate of the heroine, a very captivating and admirable specimen of womankind, is scarcely equal to her deserts; she appears to be left upon the shelf at the end, sharing her love between a cow and a hospice, a pitiable condition for her who should have been the best of wives and mothers. So excellent are her sentiments, principles, and practice; indeed the tone of the novel throughout is most commendable. Very pretty, too, are many of the scenes to which the vicissitudes of the story give rise; and as happy as ever are the touches with which the writer hits off little womanly traits and the ways of women with the more brutal sex. Naturally, the French or Belgian marriage-laws are touched upon in the novel, and everybody knows that they do not leave a young girl who is under age much liberty as regards the choice of a husband; but to believe that an oral promise given by a grandmother on behalf of a granddaughter would be legally binding on the latter after the former's death, of which there would be no sort of evidence beyond the bare statement of the man interested, is more than ordinary human credulity will be able to manage. Fortunately, however, the interest of the story is independent of any such belief.

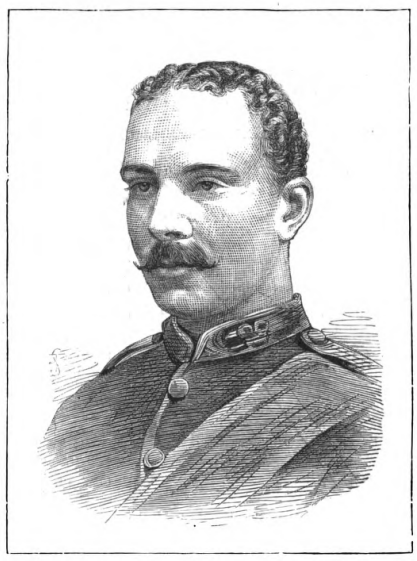
The notorious case of the "unhappy nobleman now languishing at Dartmoor," otherwise the "Claimant," seems to have suggested the fundamental idea of From Exile, by James Payn (Chatto and Windus), a novel in which, for the space of three volumes, the writer maintains his character for readability, ingenuity, vivacity, drollery, and skill in the portraiture of attractive, sprightly, ladylike English girls. Personation is the essential point of the story, which is of the slightest possible construction. It is a tale of a worthy who, though believed to have been drowned, has, like the famous Jack Robinson, "never been dead at all," and who, having "levanted" for fear of prosecution for a little murder he fancies his necessities as a poacher have obliged him to commit, takes passage on board a certain vessel, is shipwrecked, spends ten years or so on a desert island, is miraculously rescued and brought home to England, where he claims to be and is accepted, more or less cordially, for the heir of a deceased squire, whose son indeed he is, but on the "wrong side of the blanket." Meanwhile he has left the true heir, to whom the common paternity gave him sufficient resemblance for the purposes of imposture, to languish upon that desert island from which he selfishly escaped alone. Henceforth, of course, the main business of the story is to trace the career of the impostor until he reaches the pinnacle of success or the lowest depth of exposure and ruin, unless he should be prevented from the former or preserved from the latter by a premature death. Great capital is made out of the vulgar impostor's behaviour in society, and some very entertaining pictures and dialogues, full of pleasant humour, carry the reader easily along in a delightful frame of mind. Towards the end, however, the author has thought proper to have recourse, as he frequently has in his novels, to his treasury of horrors, from which he has extracted something calculated to make the blood run cold and the hair to stand on end, if it were not, as is generally the case with his more infernal contrivances, so excessively laboured as to lose force, and to need for sheer comprehension of the device a mental and moral condition incompatible with a cold thrill or an involuntary shudder. At the same time, it is more than likely that the dreadful way in which a murderous, heartless, cruel ruffian is represented to have fallen into the trap that he was laying for another is true to fact in every detail, and that the occurrence described is taken from real life. It is curious, however, to remark how differently readers are affected by what they know to be real and what they have good reason to suppose is fiction or to regard, if they please, as fiction; a dreadful accident, which really happened, and is reported at the time in the newspapers, cannot be described too elaborately; the more elaborate the report, the more it is gloated over with bated breath, creeping flesh, curdling blood, intense interest; but when there is a doubt of the reality or the propinquity, in point of time, or both, elaborate description is apt to excite impatience, and even to raise a smile at the evident effort to be dreadful.



PALACE OF THE MAHARAJAH OF MYSORE, INDIA.



THE LATE MAJOR SINGLETON, 92ND (GORDON) HIGHLANDERS.



THE LATE CAPTAIN NAIRNE, 94TH REGIMENT.

OFFICERS KILLED IN THE TRANSVAAL WAR.

The late Major Loftus Singleton, of the 92nd (Gordon) Highlanders, was fourth son of the late Henry Singleton, Esq., D.L., of Aclare, county Meath, Ireland. He entered the Army in 1861. He had served with his regiment through the recent campaign under General Sir F. Roberts in Afghanistan, from the battle of Charasiab to the termination of the war, and had gained some distinction. The regiment, when on the point of returning home, was suddenly ordered to reinforce Sir George Colley's command in Natal. At the battle on Majuba Mountain, on Feb. 27, Major Singleton was wounded in four places. After lingering two months, he died on the 1st inst., almost the last victim of the miserable conflict with the Boers of the Transvaal.

The late Captain Nairne, of the 94th Regiment, was one of those killed in the first action with the Boers, on Dec. 20, when a detachment of that regiment, under Lieutenant-Colonel Anstruther, was attacked on its march from Lydenburg to Pretoria. Captain Nairne (Stanford Norman McLeod Nairne) was born in 1841, the third son of the late Alexander Darnley Nairne, Esq., J.P., of Kingston, Jamaica. He was educated at King's College, and subsequently by private tutors. He entered the Army in 1862, obtained a first-class "extra" certificate of proficiency at Hythe, and served with his regiment, the 94th, during five years in India, returning to England in February, 1868. He held, nearly four years, the appointment of Adjutant of his regiment. In May, 1878, he received his company, and in February, 1879, went to South Africa with his regiment for the Zulu War. Captain Nairne was present at the battle of Ulundi, and afterwards served in the storming and capture of Sekukuni's stronghold. A correspondent writes of him as follows:—

"Ever anxious to encourage his men, with all ranks of whom he was a favourite, it may be mentioned to the credit of Captain Nairne that he alone, among the officers engaged in those wars, walked every inch of the road from Durban to Ulundi, back thence by the Zlobane Mountain to the Intombi River, then through New Scotland viâ Middleburg to Fort Weber, and further on to Sekukuni's Stadt; and from that point back again to Fort Weber, double marches having been performed frequently during the campaigns. The total number of miles thus traversed on foot was about 1000 from start to finish. Captain Nairne was a smart and energetic soldier, an intellectual man, and of a noble nature. His genial and unselfish disposition, with a courteous manner, gained him friends and admirers wherever he went."

THE MAHARAJAH OF MYSORE IN HIS CHILDHOOD.

THE MAHARAJAH OF MYSORE.

The important Native State of Mysore, in Southern India, after a long period of British administration, has been restored to the government of its legitimate Prince, the Maharajah Chamarajendra Wodiyar, who is eighteen years of age. He is the adopted son of the Maharajah Krishnaraj Wodiyar; and it was promised in 1868, by a Proclamation of the British Governor-General of India, that this adoption and the succession of Chamarajendra should be duly acknowledged upon his coming of age. That event took place on March 25 last, when the ceremonious installation of the young Maharajah was held in the city of Mysore, in the presence of the Right Hon. W. P. Adam, recently appointed Governor of Madras, who came instead of the Marquis of Ripon, the Viceroy of India. Mr. James Davidson Gordon, C.S.I., who has held the office of Chief Commissioner for the Government of Mysore since 1878, having previously been official guardian of the infant Rajah, is now appointed British Resident at the Mysore Court.

Mysore is one of the finest provinces in Southern India, and contained by latest census 5,055,412 inhabitants, or 2,535,924 males and 2,519,488 females. The value of the exports consisting chiefly of betel nut, coffee, cotton, cardamoms, rice, silk, and sugar, amount to £1,100,003; and the imports, consisting mainly of iron, gold, pepper, salt, and pulses, were £1,000,000. Since 1832 the control of the country has been entirely in our hands, and its affairs have been administered by a British Commissioner. Henceforth the only spot of ground that will remain to the British in Mysore territory will be the cantonment and Fort of Bangalore.

We give a Portrait of the Rajah in his boyhood, taken some years ago, and a View of his Palace, from photographs by Messrs. Hughes Brothers, of Madras.

HOME NEWS.

The Congress of the Social Science Association will be held this year in Dublin early in October.

The annual Caledonian fancy-dress ball is fixed for Monday, June 27, at Willis's Rooms.

A new dock was opened last Saturday at Sutton Bridge in connection with the port of Wisbeach.

The cricket-match at Lord's ended on Tuesday in a decisive victory for the M.C.C. over Sussex.

Mr. Frederick Charles James Millar, Q.C., and Mr. Ford North, Q.C., have been elected Benchers of the Inner Temple.

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach has been installed as Provincial Grand Master of the Gloucestershire Province of Freemasons.

Captain Stapleton J. Greville, R.N., has been awarded the naval pension of £80 a year, vacant by the death of Captain W. K. Jolliffe.

A Papal Bull relating to the constitution of the Roman Catholic Church in England was issued last Saturday from the Vatican and distributed among the Cardinals.

The six-days' swimming-match between Matthew Webb and George Fearn was brought to a close last Saturday night, the former winning very easily at the finish.

Sir Moses Montefiore has sent twenty-five guineas to the Ramsgate centre of the St. John Ambulance Association, which was opened by Major Duncan last Saturday.

The tenth annual dinner of the Pharmaceutical Society of Great Britain took place at Willis's Rooms on Tuesday night. Mr. Greenish, the president, took the chair.

Late on Monday night an attempt was made at Liverpool to blow up or injure the buildings which serve as the police barracks in that city.

Yesterday week Dr. Habershon, the President of the Metropolitan Counties Branch of the British Medical Association, gave a conversazione to a large number of guests at the South Kensington Museum.

Mr. Henry Yates Thompson (Liberal) and Mr. W. Farrer Ecroyd (Conservative) were nominated on Wednesday as candidates for the representation of Preston, the polling taking place on Friday.

The annual festival of the Church Sunday-School Choir, in connection with the Church of England Sunday-School Institute, was held on Monday at the Crystal Palace, the principal feature being a concert by 5500 members of church choirs.

A meeting of the Victoria (Philosophical) Institute took place on Monday, when a paper on "The Rainfall and Climate of India" was read by Sir Joseph Fayrer, K.C.S.I., F.R.S., before a large and distinguished audience.

The final round in the lawn tennis tournament, open to all England, was played on the 12th inst., at Oxford, when Messrs. Renshaw, Maida-vale Club, beat Messrs. Down and Vaughan, taking the challenge cup for the second time.

At a meeting of the Carlton Club held last Saturday it was decided to increase the number of members from 960 to 1100, apart from what are known as the "Parliamentary" members. The entrance fee is to be raised from £20 to £30.

A meeting of the managers of the Metropolitan Asylums District was held last Saturday—Dr. Brewer in the chair. Much of the sitting was occupied in a discussion as to the best way to meet the increase of the smallpox epidemic in London.

At the Mansion House yesterday week, at the invitation of the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress, a large and fashionable assembly gathered at a conversazione held under the auspices of the Evangelical Alliance, with the object of hearing reports of progress from representatives of the nations of the world where the operations of the Alliance are carried on.

The Rev. P. G. Medd, M.A., formerly Fellow of University College, Oxford, has been elected Bampton Lecturer for the ensuing year. Mr. Medd is Honorary Fellow of King's College, London; Examining Chaplain to the Bishop of St. Albans; Member of the Council of Keble College, Oxford; and Honorary Canon of St. Albans.

The Victoria Cross is to be conferred on Captain (now Brevet-Major) Euston Henry Sartorius, 59th Regiment; Sergeant Patrick Mullane and Gunner James Colliss, of the Royal Horse Artillery; and Provisional Lance-Corporal Joseph John Farmer, of the Army Hospital Corps, for gallant conduct in Afghanistan and South Africa.

Last week 2561 births and 1427 deaths were registered in London. Allowing for increase of population, the births exceeded by 42, whereas the deaths were 79 below the average numbers in the corresponding week of the last ten years. There were 69 fatal cases of smallpox in London last week, 6 of these belonging to Hackney, 11 to Shoreditch, 3 to Bethnal-green, 4 to Mile-end Old Town, 9 to Camberwell, and 11 in Greenwich and Deptford.

The annual meeting of the Society for Propagating the Gospel in Foreign Parts was held in St. James's Hall on the 12th inst.—the Archbishop of Canterbury in the chair. The report set forth that the income of the society for the past year was £138,288; and it was with pain the committee announced the treasurers had declared, after deduction for foreign expenditure in 1882, there would be only available £73,000, or £9000 less than was voted in diocesan grants for 1881. The present condition of the society's funds arose from a falling off of the general fund during the past three years, chiefly, it was believed, from donors diverting their gifts to special missions.

It may be fairly assumed that there will be a considerable demand for almond-oil and rosemary-water, and much rubbing of smooth pates night and morning, by old gentlemen, and by some young ones too, who chance to read or hear of a letter in the Globe, which runs thus:—"Tonics are destructive; they burn the hair and make it snap. Shampooing dries it bad enough; followed by tonics it is inevitable tonsure. I am seventy-eight years old; have spent a fortune in my time on the highest class tonics and pomades, and nature resisted them. Last year nature grew tired of resistance; hair came out by combsfull, and my crown was as bald and as white as a five-shilling piece. I repented. Hair too dry. Like watering plants with pepper and water; wants natural nourishment. To make a short story, I rubbed in simple almond-oil every night, and plain boiled rosemary-water sparingly in the morning. The present conclusion is that I need not, as Punch says, 'sit at church in the gallery.'—SCIENS."

The Extra Supplement.

CHICHESTER CATHEDRAL.

The South Saxon or Sussex Kingdom, extending along the seacoast from Hampshire to Kent, in the sixth and seventh centuries of the Christian era, was almost separated from the rest of England by the great Forest of Anderida, which filled the whole "Weald" between the North and South Downs, and by the marshes that lay to the east and to the west of Sussex, where the South Downs end, there giving place to the lower shores. This sequestered situation was probably the cause why Sussex was the last of the Saxon settlements in England to receive Christianity. It was about the year 650 that Wilfrid of Northumbria, returning from France, where he had been consecrated as Archbishop of York, was shipwrecked on this coast, and had a narrow escape of being killed by the barbarous people. In memory of his deliverance, Wilfrid came back, thirty years later, when he was expelled from Northumbria, and undertook the religious instruction of the South Saxons. He was assisted by their King Ædelwalch and Queen Eabba, who abjured the worship of Thor and Odin; and he fixed his abode on Selsey Island, which was the seat of the Bishopric he founded until the Norman Conquest. In 1075, when Stigand, chaplain to William the Conqueror, held this See, it was removed to Chichester. The list of subsequent Bishops of Chichester includes Bishop Ralph, a bold supporter of Anselm in his struggle for the privileges of the clergy against William Rufus and Henry I.; Bishop Neville, Chancellor of England from 1223 to 1238; Bishop Richard de la Wych, under King Henry III., a Dominican monk who was canonised as a Saint; Bishop Gilbert, likewise renowned for his piety; John Langton and Robert Stratford, who were Chancellors of the realm; Adam de Molcyns, a diplomatist in the reign of Henry VI.; Reginald Pecock, a great theologian and opponent of the Lollards, author of "The Repressor of Overmuch Blaming the Clergy," but himself obliged to recant some propositions contrary to the Romish creed; Bishops Sherborne, George Day, and Christopherson, who were strenuous against the Protestant Reformation; and Richard Montague, a great High Churchman in the time of Charles I.

The Cathedral was built first in the Norman period, by Bishop Ralph, on the site of a Saxon monastery dedicated to St. Peter; and part of the nave and choir is still Norman, with two aisles: this portion was restored twenty years ago. The retro-choir, of Transition architecture, was constructed early in the thirteenth century, and is remarkable for the elegance of the detached shafts, of Purbeck marble, standing outside the massive circular piers; the great pier-arches are circular, inclosing pointed arches. The Lady Chapel, by Bishop Gilbert, is also beautiful. With regard to the exterior of this Cathedral, as shown in our Illustration from the drawing by Mr. S. Read, its principal feature is the spire, which, though far less lofty (being 271 ft.) than the one at Salisbury, is finely proportioned, and bears an harmonious relation to the lower group of buildings. The tower from which it rises was erected, probably, by Bishop John de Langton, in the early part of the fourteenth century. The upper part of the spire was rebuilt by Sir Christopher Wren, who furnished its interior with an ingenious pendulum-stage, hanging from the summit inside, to preserve its perpendicular against the force of high winds. The west front, originally Norman, is of the Early English style, in three storeys, surmounted by a gable. It was flanked by two towers, but the north tower has been destroyed. Chichester Cathedral has some interesting works of sculpture among its monuments, including two or three fine groups by Flaxman, and bas-relief slabs of ancient date, rather curious in design.

REVISED VERSION OF THE NEW TESTAMENT.

On Tuesday the Revised Version of the New Testament, the result of eleven years' continuous and devoted labour, was given to the world. One copy was formally presented to the Queen, two copies were given to the two Houses of Convocation; and the volume was then distributed throughout the land.

The titlepage states that the work is "translated out of the Greek, being the version set forth A.D. 1611 compared with the most ancient authorities and revised A.D. 1881." In a preface of twenty-five pages, the revisers give a history of their proceedings, and sketch the rules which have guided them in the accomplishment of their difficult task. The Gospels and Epistles in the Revised Testament are not divided into chapters and verses, the plan adopted by the Revisers being to arrange "the Sacred Text in paragraphs, after the precedent of the earliest English versions, so as to assist the general reader in following the current of narrative or argument." As an example of the mode in which the Revisers have done their work, the new version of the Lord's Prayer, as given in the fifth chapter of St. Matthew, may be cited:—"Our Father which art in heaven, Hallowed be Thy name. Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done, as in heaven, so on earth. Give us this day our daily bread. And forgive us our debts, as we also have forgiven our debtors. And bring us not into temptation, but deliver us from the evil one." A marginal note says that "Many authorities, some ancient, but with variations, add, 'For Thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever. Amen.'"

Different opinions will be entertained as to the merits of the work. There is much in it that will cause a shock of painful surprise to some, that will be scanned with critical curiosity by others, and which by others again will be accepted as enlightened improvements in a valuable text.

The rules laid down by the Committee of Convocation for the guidance of the Revisers were as follow:—

1. To introduce as few alterations as possible in the text of the Authorised Version consistently with faithfulness.
2. To limit, as far as possible, the expression of such alterations to the language of the Authorised and earlier English Versions.
3. Each Company to go twice over the portion to be revised, once provisionally, the second time finally, and on principles of voting as hereinafter is provided.
4. That the text to be adopted be that for which the evidence is decidedly preponderating; and that when the text so adopted differs from that from which the Authorised Version was made, the alteration be indicated in the margin.
5. To make or retain no change in text on the second final revision by each Company except two-thirds of those present approve of the same, but on the first revision to decide by simple majorities.
6. In every case of proposed alteration that may have given rise to discussion, to defer the voting thereupon till the next meeting, whensoever the same shall be required by one-third of those present at the meeting, such intended vote to be announced in the notice for the next meeting.
7. To revise the headings of chapters, pages, paragraphs, italics, and punctuation.
8. To refer, on the part of each Company, when considered desirable, to divines, scholars, and literary men, whether at home or abroad, for their opinions.

The production of the Revised Edition of the New Testament has been a severe strain on the University Presses of Oxford and Cambridge. While the work of translation was going on great precautions had to be taken to prevent any of the proof-sheets from falling into the hands of unauthorized persons. The translators had to be supplied with copies, but they were bound in honour not to disclose the emendations that were proposed by the various writers and finally adopted by the Company.

A Select Committee of the House of Commons have passed the preamble of the Metropolitan Bridges Bill, by which powers are granted to the Board of Works to enable them to construct new bridges at Battersea and Putney, to partially rebuild the bridge across Deptford-creek, and to enlarge the centre arch of Vauxhall Bridge by taking out the two centre piers and placing a suspended girder across the interval.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING MAY 28.

SUNDAY, MAY 22.

Fifth Sunday after Easter. Rogation Week.
Evening Lessons: Deut. vi.; John vii. 25. Evening Lessons: Deut. ix. or x.; Titus i.
St. Paul's Cathedral, 10.30 a.m., Rev. H. W. Burrows; 3.15 p.m., Rev. Canon Stubbs; 7 p.m.
St. James's, noon, Rev. Canon Tarver.
Westminster Abbey, 10 a.m., 3 p.m., and 7 p.m.
Whitehall, 11 a.m., Rev. V. H. Stanton; 3 p.m., Rev. Dr. Thornton (Boyle Lecture—on the Grounds of Belief).
Savoy, 11.30 a.m., the Bishop of Carlisle; 7 p.m., Rev. Canon C. F. Tarver.

MONDAY, MAY 23.

Levée to be held by the Prince of Wales at St. James's, 2 p.m.
Cambridge Term divides at noon.
Agricultural Society, anniversary, 12.
Geographical Society, anniversary, 2 p.m.; dinner, 7 p.m.
British Architects' Institute, 8 p.m.
Plymouth Art and Industrial Exhibition to be opened.
Society of Arts, Cantor Lecture, 8 p.m. (Mr. H. Brudenell Carter on Colour Blindness).
Royal Thames Yacht Club matches.

TUESDAY, MAY 24.

Queen Victoria born, 1819.
Horticultural Society, 11 a.m.
Royal Institution, 3 p.m. (Professor Dewar on the Non-Metallic Elements).
Linnean Society, anniversary, 3 p.m.
Anthropological Institute, 8 p.m.
Civil Engineers' Institution, 8 p.m. (Discussion on Torpedo-Boats, &c.; Mr. R. H. Brunton on the Production of Paraffin).
Medical and Chirurgical Society, 8.30.
Hibbert Lectures, St. George's Hall, 5 p.m. (Mr. Davids on Buddhism).
Gresham Lectures, 6 p.m. (Dr. J. T. Abdy on Law; and on the 25th, 26th, and 27th).
Royal Hospital for Children, festival dinner, Willis's Rooms, 7.30 p.m. (the Prince of Wales in the chair).
New Thames Yacht Club, cutter match.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 25.

Princess Helena born, 1846.
Botanic Society, exhibition, 2 p.m.
Society of Arts, 8 p.m.
Royal Society of Literature, 8 p.m. (Mr. Pfoundes on Old Japanese Literature).
Geological Society, 8 p.m.
Oxfordshire Agricultural Society at Thame (two days).
South Kensington Museum, 4 p.m. (Captain Abney on Photography and Solar Physics)—and on Friday.
National Educational Union, anniversary, 2.30 p.m.
Railway Benevolent Institution, annual dinner, Freemasons' Tavern, 6.30 p.m.
State Ball at Buckingham Palace.

THURSDAY, MAY 26.

Ascension Day.
Trinity Term begins.
Royal Institution, 3 p.m. (Professor Tyndall on Magnetism).
Inventors' Institute, anniversary, 4 p.m.
Telegraph Engineers' Society, 8 p.m.
Philharmonic Society, 6th concert, 8.
Society of Arts, 8 p.m. (Mr. S. Bidwell on Telegraphic Photography).
Infant Orphan Asylum, Wanstead, elections, Cannon-street Hotel, 10.
London Academy of Music, annual concert, St. James's Hall, 3 p.m.

FRIDAY, MAY 27.

New Moon, 11.36 p.m.
Mansion House: Conference on Thrift, 2.30 p.m.
United Service Institution, 3 p.m. (Major-General D. J. Newall on Military Organisation).
Botanic Society, lecture, 4 p.m.
Paleontographical Society, anniversary, 4.30 p.m.
Quekett Microscopical Club, 8 p.m.
Royal Institution, 8 p.m. (Professor H. E. Roscoe on the Artificial Production of Indigo, 9 p.m.).
Architectural Association, 7.30 p.m.
St. Bartholomew's Hospital, conversazione—the Prince and Princess of Wales expected.

SATURDAY, MAY 28.

The Queen's Birthday to be kept in London.
Botanic Society, 3.45 p.m.
Royal Institution, 3 p.m. (Professor C. E. Turner on Russian writers).
Physical Society, 3 p.m.

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE KEW OBSERVATORY OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY.

Lat. 51° 28′ 6″ N.; Long. 0° 18′ 47″ W.; Height above Sea, 34 feet.

| DAY. | DAILY MEANS OF Barometer Corrected. | Temperature of the Air. | Dew Point. | Relative Humidity. | Amount of Cloud. | THERMOM. Maximum, read at 10 P.M. | Minimum, read at 10 P.M. | WIND. General Direction. | Movement in 24 hours, read at 10 P.M. next night. | Rain in 24 hours, read at 10 A.M. next morning. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Inches. | ° | ° | (0-10) | ° | ° | | | Miles. | In. |
| 1 | 29·641 | 49·6 | 41·5 | ·76 | 7 | 60·0 | 42·6 | WSW. SW. | 338 | 0·160 |
| 2 | 29·634 | 49·6 | 41·5 | ·76 | 10 | 56·0 | 45·2 | NE. NNE. | 309 | 0·175 |
| 3 | 29·997 | 43·3 | 32·3 | ·68 | 7 | 48·9 | 39·9 | NNE. N. | 241 | 0·000 |
| 4 | 29·994 | 44·7 | 42·9 | ·94 | 3 | 57·2 | 31·8 | SSW. W. | 218 | 0·050 |
| 5 | 30·179 | 51·8 | 40·9 | ·68 | 7 | 61·2 | 40·2 | SW. | 275 | 0·000 |
| 6 | 30·287 | 56·7 | 49·0 | ·77 | 5 | 66·5 | 50·0 | SW. | 360 | 0·000 |
| 7 | 30·564 | 54·7 | 38·9 | ·58 | 2 | 66·9 | 42·3 | NNW. N. | 125 | 0·000 |
| 8 | 30·598 | 52·3 | 37·4 | ·60 | 1 | 63·9 | 42·5 | NNE. | 210 | 0·000 |
| 9 | 30·566 | 47·8 | 35·2 | ·64 | 6 | 57·6 | 38·1 | N. NNE. | 289 | 0·000 |
| 10 | 30·603 | 43·2 | 30·6 | ·64 | 6 | 54·2 | 30·9 | NNE. NE. | 316 | 0·000 |
| 11 | 30·734 | 44·5 | 33·6 | ·68 | 5 | 58·0 | 31·5 | NE. ENE. | 151 | 0·000 |
| 12 | 30·8 5 | 51·0 | 39·8 | ·70 | 9 | 61·5 | 37·8 | NNE. NE. | 176 | 0·000 |
| 13 | 30·005 | 51·5 | 41·4 | ·64 | 2 | 71·2 | 40·5 | E. SW. | 173 | 0·000 |
| 14 | 29·950 | 54·5 | 42·9 | ·67 | 9 | 66·1 | 42·5 | SW. W. | 198 | 0·000 |

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at ten o'clock a.m.:—

FROM MAY 1 TO MAY 7.

| | | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Barometer (in inches) corrected .. | 29·670 | 29·586 | 29·943 | 29·834 | 30·183 | 30·248 | 30·339 |
| Temperature of Air .. | 51·2° | 52·2° | 46·7° | 50·2° | 55·3° | 60·6° | 56·4° |
| Temperature of Evaporation .. | 47·3° | 47·3° | 40·8° | 45·8° | 49·4° | 55·0° | 51·4° |
| Direction of Wind .. .. | W. | W. | NNE. | N. | SW. | SW. | W. |

FROM MAY 7 TO MAY 14.

| | | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Barometer (in inches) corrected .. | 30·016 | 30·582 | 30·611 | 30·603 | 30·368 | 30·187 | 29·980 |
| Temperature of Air .. .. | 56·9° | 53·8° | 47·4° | 47·2° | 50·4° | 56·7° | 57·2° |
| Temperature of Evaporation .. | 48·8 | 46·3° | 40·4° | 41·4° | 49·2° | 52·6° | 50·5° |
| Direction of Wind .. .. | NE. | NNE. | NE. | N. | N. | SSW. | W. |

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE FOR THE WEEK ENDING MAY 28.

| Sunday. | | Monday. | | Tuesday. | | Wednesday. | | Thursday. | | Friday. | | Saturday. | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| M | A | M | A | M | A | M | A | M | A | M | A | M | A |
| h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m |
| 3 40 | 9 13 | 0 | 50 | 10 23 | 10 57 | 11 37 | 11 57 | — | 0 23 | 0 48 | 1 10 | 1 35 | 1 57 |
| | | | | | | | | | | | | 2 | 15 |

SUBSCRIPTION TO THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

AT HOME.

| | |
|---|---|
| Twelve months (including Christmas Number), | £1 9s. 3d. |
| Six months, 14s. | Christmas Half-Year, 15s. 3d. |
| Three months, 7s. | Christmas Quarter, 8s. 3d. |

Copies will be supplied direct from the Office to any part of the United Kingdom and the Channel Islands, for any period, at the rate of 6d. for each Number, paid in advance.

ABROAD.

The yearly subscription abroad is 26s. 4d. (on thin paper, 22s.), with the following exceptions:—

To Aden, Borneo, Ceylon, India, Java, Labuan, Mozambique Penang, Philippine Islands, Sarawak, Singapore, and Zanzibar, 41s. (thin paper, 34s.)

To the Hawaiian Islands, Madagascar (except St. Mary), and Paraguay, 45s. (on thin paper, 36s. 4d.)

Subscribers are specially advised to order the thick paper edition, the appearance of the engravings in the thin paper copies being greatly injured by the print at the back showing through.

Newspapers for foreign parts must be posted within eight days of the time of publication, irrespective of the departure of the mails.

Subscriptions must be paid in advance, direct to the Publishing Office, 198, Strand, in English money; by cheque crossed the Union Bank of London; or by Post-Office Order, payable at the East Strand Post Office, to George C. Leighton, of 198, Strand, London.

MUSICAL PUBLICATIONS.

Messrs. Chappell and Co. have recently published some graceful songs, among which we may mention "The Nightingale sang to the Rose," "At Parting," and "Come forth" (a Venetian serenade), by W. Fullerton; "Weariness," by G. Muratori (words by Longfellow); "Oh, yes! oh, yes!" by Ernest Birch; "Ever near" and "Why?" by Mrs. M. F. Ronalds; "At the Portal," by Nicola Ferri; "Welcome," by Lady Arthur Hill; and "Thoughts at Sunrise," by Mrs. L. Moncrieff.

Messrs. Boosey and Co. have lately brought out some pleasing songs, among which may be specified "Fairly Caught," by Louis Diehl—in a naive, coquettish style, and within the compass of a limited range of voice; and "The Merchant of Cheapside," by the same composer; "The Children of the City," by Stephen Adams; and "A Summer Shower," by Theo. Marzials—the last named being lively, with an easy accompaniment.

From Messrs. Novello, Ewer, and Co. we have received some charming trios for female voices, by Carl Reinecke; several part-songs, varied and characteristic, by the well-known favourite composer, Signor Ciro Pinsuti; "Autumn is Come Again," also a part-song, by F. Corder, full of freshness and vivacity. We have, in addition, from the same firm, a "Suite," in E major, for the organ, by E. Emile Bernard, which is likely to be a useful addition to the organist's répertoire; and a very handy and inexpensive arrangement of the sacred cantata, "Supplication and Praise," by Robert Sloman, of which composition we have already spoken in connection with its performance in public. The name of Franz Abt is always hailed with delight by those in quest of a good song, and the one before us, "Only to Love Thee," is well calculated to sustain the composer's high reputation.

Messrs. Novello, Ewer, and Co. have added Spohr's "Hymn to St. Cecilia" to their large collection of sacred works in octavo form. Of the cheapness of these handy editions that now referred to is one of many instances, the price being one shilling. From the same publishers we have—in similar form—Franz Abt's agreeable cantata, for female voices, entitled "The Wishing-stone," a production well suited for amateur drawing-room performance.

The second series of Messrs. Novello, Ewer, and Co.'s "Part-song Book" carries the work to the completion of the fifteenth volume, which includes twenty-six pieces of vocal harmony—in different styles—mostly by modern composers, English and foreign. The work, altogether, furnishes an extensive and valuable collection.

"Three Intermezzi," by C. V. Stanford, are also published by Messrs. Novello, Ewer, and Co. These pieces are for pianoforte and clarinet, the part for the latter instrument being adapted for either violin or violoncello. Without palpable imitation, it would seem as if Mr. Stanford had had in his mind the beautiful "Fantasie-stück," op. 73, and "Romances," op. 94, of Robert Schumann; the "Intermezzi" belonging distinctly to that school, yet possessing sufficient individuality to give them their special interest.

"Columbus," a dramatic cantata, by H. Gadsby (Novello, Ewer, and Co.). This setting of Mr. Grist's poem, based on the final scenes of the voyage of the great discoverer, has already been commented on in our recent notice of its successful first performance at the Crystal Palace; and we need now only refer to its appearance in a handy and inexpensive form, in which shape it will be largely acceptable to choral societies, private and public.

From the same publishers we have also a welcome contribution to organ music in the shape of Six Soft Voluntaries by George Calkin; and a bold and characteristic setting of Allan Cunningham's words, "A wet sheet and a flowing sea" (for baritone), by J. Shaw (sung by Mr. Thurley Beale).

From Messrs. Lamborn Cock and Co. we have some welcome vocal contributions, notably the song "Lilac Bloom," by Sir Julius Benedict; "The Unfinished Song" and "Sowing and Reaping," by Signor Ciro Pinsuti; "My Heart," by Jacques Blumenthal; "My Child" and "There is dew for the Flow'ret," by C. A. Macirone; "The Golden Maid," by Walter Maynard—also some pretty part-songs, one of which, entitled "A Charade," a breaking-up song, for treble voices, by Madame Sainton-Dolby, is likely to become a favourite with young ladies on those joyful occasions.

There are much pathos and grace in the songs "The Lost Love," by Eaton Faning, and "Gone for Aye," by Myles B. Foster (both suitable for voices of moderate compass), issued by Messrs. Stanley Lucas, Weber, and Co., who have also recently published an arrangement by Mr. A. O'Leary, for two performers on the pianoforte, of Mr. Arthur Sullivan's bright and sparkling "Ouvertura di Ballo," a pleasing Romance for violin and pianoforte, "L'Adieu," by J. T. Carrodus, and a pretty and brilliant "Valse Caprice," for piano, by Josef Trousselle, besides several songs which deserve favourable mention—among them being "Sympathy," by J. P. Goldberg; "Hearts good and true" and "It was a thorn," by F. Westlake; "The Afterglow" and "Somehow," by Eaton Faning; and an agreeable setting of Shelley's "Good Night," by Ernest Ford.

Favourable mention may be made of the songs "Dreams of Thee," by Bennett Gilbert, and "Man Overboard," by F. St. John Lacy, among several graceful compositions published by Messrs. B. Williams and Co.

Foremost in the list of welcome additions to the vocalist's répertoire lately issued by the firm of Messrs. Duff and Stewart, we may name "Sweet Dream," by the popular composer Franz Abt.

Messrs. Marriott and Williams have lately published several pretty songs, one, "The Lost Sunbeam," by Nicola Ferri, being composed for and sung by Mr. Herbert Reeves; "The Yeoman's Daughter," by Michael Watson; "Two Robins," by Henry Pontet; "There was Hope in the Breeze," by Madame Sainton-Dolby, are easy and pleasing.

Messrs. Duncan Davison and Co. have published "The Bright Hereafter," a graceful song by Franz Abt, suitable for a medium compass; and a pleasing Bourrée, for pianoforte solo, by Brownlow Baker.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

THE NEW AND POPULAR NOVELS.
Now ready, at all the Libraries, in 3 vols.,
THE FUTURE MARQUIS. By CATHARINE CHILDAR.
SYDNEY. By GEORGIANA M. CRAIK.
HARRY JOCELYN. By Mrs. OLIPHANT.
LOVE-KNOTS. By Author of "Ursula's Love Story."
AMONG THE HILLS. By E. FRANCES POYNTER. Author of "My Little Lady." &c. 2 vols. [Next week.
CHEAP EDITION OF LORD BRACKENBURY. By AMELIA B. EDWARDS. 5s. bound and illustrated.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

Now ready at all Booksellers,
THE CORRESPONDENCE OF TALLEYRAND AND LOUIS XVIII. DURING THE CONGRESS OF VIENNA. 2 vols., demy svo. price 24s.
RICHARD BENTLEY and Son, New Burlington-street.

NEW NOVELS, at ALL LIBRARIES.
TWO PRETTY GIRLS. By M. A. LEWIS. 3 vols.
AN OCEAN FREE LANCE. By the Author of "A Sailor's Sweetheart." 3 vols.
POLLY AND PASSION. By Mrs. CAMPBELL PRAED. 3 vols.
THE CAMERONIANS. By the Author of "The Romance of War." 3 vols. [Immediately.
RICHARD BENTLEY and Son, New Burlington-street.

MISS BRADDON'S LATEST NOVEL.
New Edition, price 6s., uniform with "Just as I Am,"
ASPHODEL. The Latest Novel. By the Author of "Lady Audley's Secret," "Aurora Floyd," &c.
London: J. and R. MAXWELL, Milton-house, Shoe-lane, E.C.

Just published, fcap 8vo, cloth, price 3s. 6d.,
IN DOORS AND OUT. Poems. By E. WORDSWORTH.
HATCHARDS, 187, Piccadilly, London.

Fifteenth Edition, enlarged to 100 pages, post-free 1s.,
HOW TO INVEST. No one should invest either large or small sums without first reading this work. "More valuable than ever."—Vide Public Press. Published by
E. J. BARTLETT, F.R.G.S., 30, Great St. Helen's, London.

ANGLO-AMERICAN METHOD; or, A New and Infallible System to LEARN, in Three Months, how to Read, Write, and Pronounce Correctly the FRENCH LANGUAGE. By J. DE FALLON, B.A., L.L.B. Cloth, 8vo, pp. 791, price 8s.—London: DULAU and Co., 37, Soho-square.

PRACTICAL LESSONS IN PAINTING ON CHINA, PORCELAIN, EARTHENWARE, &c. By Madame la Baronne DELAMARDELLE; from the French by GUSTAVE A. BOUVIER. 4th Edition. Price 1s.; post-free, 1s. 1d.—London: LECHERTIER, BARBE, and Co., 60, Regent-street.

THE NEW FASHION-BOOK for 1881.
"It is a complete index to the Fashionable Novelties of the day, furnishing Made-up Costumes of all that is choicest and newest."—Morning Post.
"The Manual for the Current Season has just appeared, and will prove useful to those who desire to be au courant with the latest modes. The illustrations comprise—Travelling, Walking, Evening, Dinner, Reception Dresses, Millinery, Laces, and Children's Frocks."—The Queen.
"Contains a vast deal of valuable information to ladies on the important subject of dress; the character of materials and the varied style of dresses adapted for the present season are fully described. The illustrations are numerous and are artistically executed."—Court Circular.
The New Number is now ready. Post-free for 12 stamps.
DEBENHAM and FREEBODY, Wigmore-street, and Welbeck-street, London, W.

Second Edition, Illustrated. In paper cover, 2s. 6d.; cloth, 3s. 6d.
FANCY DRESSES DESCRIBED; or, What to Wear at Fancy Balls. By ARDERN HOLT.
"What to wear at a fancy ball is often a question of momentous interest, and it is answered in every particular by a little book called 'Fancy Dresses Described.'"—Daily Telegraph.
"The descriptions of toilettes are thoroughly practical, and the authoress may be accepted as an authority."—Court Journal.
"This little manual of What to Wear at Fancy Balls will supply a real want."—Vanity Fair.
DEBENHAM and FREEBODY, Wigmore-street and Welbeck-street; Wyman and Sons, Great Queen-street; and all Booksellers.

JUST PUBLISHED, post-free, 2 stamps,
DYSPEPSIA and the SEVERER FORMS OF INDIGESTION. A small pamphlet on these distressing complaints and their complete cure. Published by the Author, RICHARD KING, Esq., Staff Surgeon R.N., 23, Warwick-st., Rugby.

Eighth Edition, cloth, post-free, 33 stamps,
DR. BARR MEADOWS on Skin Disease. Remarks on the Abuse of Arsenic, and specifics.
London: G. HILL, 154, Westminster-road.

Third Edition, price 1s., post-free,
THE New Electrolytic Treatment of Cancer and of Simple Tumours. By G. EDGELOW, M.D.
NELSON and Co., 23, Duke-street, Grosvenor-square, W.

Second Edition, 1s., or 13 stamps by post,
SKIN DISEASES TREATED HOMŒOPATHICALLY. By W. EPPS, L.R.C.P. 100 cases, including 40 distinct varieties of skin diseases.
JAMES EPPS and Co., 48, Threadneedle-st.; and 170, Piccadilly.

New Edition, pp. 180, cloth, 1s.; by post for 13 stamps,
DOG DISEASES TREATED BY HOMŒOPATHY. By JAMES MOORE, M.R.C.V.S. Each disease is fully described and prescribed for.
JAMES EPPS and Co., 170, Piccadilly; and 48, Threadneedle-st.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

CAPTURE OF ENGLISH SUBJECTS BY GREEK BRIGANDS. Profusely illustrated by Gustave Doré, price 2s.; cloth, 2s. 6d.
THE GREEK BRIGAND. A Romance of Reality. By EDMUND ABOUT, Translated by Sir C. Wraxall, Bart.
London: J. and R. MAXWELL, Milton House, Shoe-lane, E.C.

DE LA RUE & CO.'S ANNOUNCEMENTS.
BUNHILL-ROW, LONDON, E.C.
Just out, demy svo, cloth, extra gilt, price 21s.,
With a Portrait, and Map of the Country,
COLONEL GORDON IN CENTRAL AFRICA, 1874-1879. From Original Letters and Documents. Edited by GEORGE BIRKBECK HILL, D.C.L., Author of the "Life of Sir Rowland Hill, K.C.B." &c.

In Two Handsome Volumes, demy svo, price 32s., with a Portrait by Paul Rajon, and other Illustrations,
THE LIFE OF SIR ROWLAND HILL, K.C.B., and the HISTORY OF PENNY POSTAGE. By SIR ROWLAND HILL, and his nephew GEORGE BIRKBECK HILL, D.C.L., &c.

With Maps, and numerous Original Etchings on Stone,
THE SHORES AND CITIES OF THE BODEN SEA. By S. J. CAPPER. Demy svo, cloth, price 16s.
Forms an excellent guide-book to the district,

Just out, crown svo, cloth, price 8s.,
HISTORY OF GERMANY, Political, Social, and Literary, brought down to the present day. By the Rev. R. COGHLAN BREWER, Trinity Hall, Cambridge. Author of "History of France," "Guide to Science," &c.

Just out, 13th Edition, svo, cloth, gilt extra, price 5s.,
THE LAWS AND PRINCIPLES OF WHIST. The Standard Work on Whist. By "CAVENDISH." Greatly Enlarged and Revised throughout.

New and Cheaper Edition, crown svo, price 9s. 6d.,
BILLIARDS. By J. BENNETT (CHAMPION). Edited by "CAVENDISH." With upwards of 200 Illustrations.

A New and Improved Edition, cap svo, cloth, price 3s. 6d.,
LAWS OF SHORT WHIST, and a Treatise on the Game. By JAMES CLAY.

TRADE JOURNAL FOR BUILDERS AND ENGINEERS.
BUILDING AND ENGINEERING TIMES. Saturday, Twopence. Devoted to the interests of Architects, Builders, Contractors, and Engineers. Specimen copy, post-free, 2½d. Sold by all Newsagents. Office, 158, Aldersgate-street, London, E.C.

GRAND COMPETITION and EXHIBITION of DESIGNS for CHRISTMAS and NEW YEAR CARDS, to be held in JULY next, at the EGYPTIAN HALL, Piccadilly. £200 given by Messrs. S. Hildesheimer and Co., Fine-Art Publishers, to be awarded in 70 prizes. Conditions of competition can be had on application to R. F. MCNAIR, Manager, Egyptian Hall.

FOR ARMS and CREST send Name and County to T. MORING, Late of Court Heraldic Office, 323, High Holborn, W.C. Plain Sketch, 3s. 6d.; Coloured, 7s. 6d. Seals, Dies, and Diplomas. Illustrated Price-Lists post-free.

FOR FAMILY ARMS (Lincoln's-inn Heraldic Office) send Name and County. Sketch, 3s. 6d.; in colours, 7s. 6d. Arms Painted and Engraved on Seals, Dies, &c. PUGH BROTHERS, Great Turnstile, Lincoln's-inn, W.C.; and 76, Queen Victoria-street, E.C. Prize Medal, Paris, 1878.

CHROMOPHOTOGRAPHY. (KRAUS' PROCESS.)
The New Art (enabling any person without previous knowledge of either Painting or Drawing) to colour Photographs on convex glasses, in imitation of China and Enamel Painting. Boxes containing every requisite, 20s. and 30s. Particulars post-free. Specimens shown on application at the Sole Agents, J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, London, W.

VITREMANIE, superseding Diaphanie. An easy and inexpensive method of decorating windows in churches, public buildings, and private houses, by which may be produced the rich colouring and beautiful designs equal in appearance to the stained glass. Handbook of Designs and full instructions, 1s. 1d. Boxes, containing designs, &c., at 21s., 31s. 6d., 42s. Particulars post-free. Sole inventors, J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, London, W.

WHAT IS YOUR CREST and WHAT IS YOUR MOTTO? Send name and county to CULLETON'S Heraldic Office. Plain sketch, 3s. 6d.; in colours, 7s. The arms of man and wife blended. Crest engraved on seals, rings, books, and steel dies, 8s. 6d. Gold seal, with crest, 28s. Solid Gold Ring, 18-carat, Hall-marked, with crest, 42s. Manual of Heraldry, 850 engravings, 3s. 6d.—CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

CULLETON'S GUINEA BOX of STATIONERY contains a Ream of the very best Paper and 200 Envelopes, all stamped in the most elegant way with Crest and Motto, Monogram, or Address, and the engraving of Steel Die included. Sent to any part for P.O. order.—T. CULLETON, 20, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

VISITING CARDS, by CULLETON. Fifty best quality, 2s. 6d., post-free, including the Engraving of Copper-plate. Wedding Cards, 50 each, 50 Embossed Envelopes, with Maiden Name, 13s. 6d.—T. CULLETON, Seal Engraver, 25, Cranbourn-street, St. Martin's-lane, W.C.

JOSEPH GILLOTT'S STEEL PENS.
GOLD MEDAL,
PARIS,
1878.

SMART'S WRITING INSTITUTION, 97B, Quadrant, Regent-street (entrance in Swallow-street). Open from Ten till Nine daily. Persons of all ages received privately and taught at any time suiting their own convenience. Lessons one hour each. No classes. No extras. Improvement guaranteed in eight to twelve easy lessons. Separate room for ladies. Apply to Mr. Smart, as above.

SCRAPS for SCREENS and SCRAP-BOOKS (Coloured).—Immense variety of Flowers, Figures Birds, and Landscapes, from 1s. per sheet; 1 doz. assorted, 10s. 6d.
London: WM. BARNARD, 339, Edgware-road.

IN MEMORIAM.—Memorial Wreaths of the Choicest Flowers tastefully arranged, 10s. 6d. each, for town or country. Price-Lists free.—WILLIAM HOOPER, 384, Oxford-street, W.

JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS' PATENT SOSTENENTE PIANOS have gained the highest awards at all the recent International Exhibitions, including the two First Prizes, Melbourne, 1880; the First Prize, Queensland, 1880; the two First Special Prizes, Sydney, 1880; the Legion of Honour, Paris, 1878, &c. For SALE, Hire, and on the Three Years' System.—18-20, Wigmore-st., London W. Illustrated Lists free.
JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS' PIANOS for SALE, Hire, and on the Three-Years' System.—18-20, Wigmore-street; and the Brinsmead Works, Grafton-road, N.W. Lists post-free.

ERARDS' PIANOS.—Messrs. ERARD, of 18, Great Marlborough-street, London, and 13, Rue de Mail, Paris, Makers to her Majesty and the Prince and Princess of Wales. CAUTION.—The Public are hereby cautioned against buying the name of "Erard" which are not of their manufacture. For information as to authenticity apply at 18, Great Marlborough-st., where new Pianos can be obtained from 50 guineas.

ERARDS' PIANOS.—COTTAGES, from 30 guineas.
OBLIQUES, from 85 guineas.
GRANDS, from 125 guineas.

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| NUBIAN | N.B. | BLACKING. |
| NUBIAN | Produces an instantaneous polish without brushing. One application lasts a week. Makes Boots Waterproof, Wear-proof, and Weatherproof. | BLACKING. |
| NUBIAN | | BLACKING. |
| NUBIAN | —— | BLACKING. |
| NUBIAN | N.B. | BLACKING. |
| NUBIAN | Saves twice the cost in time and brushes, renders leather soft, supple, and beautiful. One moment, it contains no corrosive acid. | BLACKING. |
| NUBIAN | | BLACKING. |
| NUBIAN | —— | BLACKING. |
| NUBIAN | N.B. | BLACKING. |
| NUBIAN | For Sealds. Travellers, saves time, saves money, saves our feet, and our leather. One application lasts a week. | BLACKING. |
| NUBIAN | | BLACKING. |
| NUBIAN | —— | BLACKING. |
| NUBIAN | N.B. | BLACKING. |
| NUBIAN | The economiser of time, money. The delight of ladies. The most elegant garments are never soiled by it, and it can be used on every description of boots and shoes. | BLACKING. |
| NUBIAN | | BLACKING. |

HAY FEVER CURED BY DR. DUNBAR'S ALKARAM, or Anti-Catarrh Smelling-Bottle.
ALKARAM. HAY FEVER.
ALKARAM. HAY FEVER.
ALKARAM. HAY FEVER.
IF inhaled on the first symptoms, ALKARAM will at once arrest them, and cure severe cases in half an hour. Sold by all Chemists, 2s. 9d. a Bottle. Address, Dr. Dunbar, care of Messrs. F. Newbery and Sons, 37, Newgate-street.

BLAIR'S GOUT PILLS,
THE GREAT
REMEDY FOR GOUT AND RHEUMATISM.
Sold by all Chemists, at 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. per Box.

A NEVER-FAILING REMEDY for Bilious and Liver Complaints, Indigestion, Wind, Spasms, Giddiness, Dizziness of the Eyes, &c. DR. SCOTT'S BILIOUS and LIVER PILLS are the most correct all disorders of the liver, stomach, kidneys, and bowls. The Ointment is unrivalled in the cure of bad legs, old wounds, gout, and rheumatism.

JAY'S, Regent-street.

MOURNING.—Messrs. JAY'S Experienced Assistants travel to any part of the kingdom, free of expense to purchasers. They take dresses and millinery with them, besides patterns of materials, all marked in plain figures, and at the same price as if purchased at the Warehouse in Regent-street. Funerals at stated charges conducted in London or country. JAY'S, REGENT-STREET.

EVENING DRESSES, Black Net, Tulle, and Spanish Lace.—Messrs. JAY prepare for the season a variety of black Evening Dresses, which they can confidently recommend both for correctness of fashion and economy in price. Designs and prices postage-free.
JAY'S, Regent-street.

DRESS.—Messrs. JAY respectfully invite their clientele to the choice collection of Pattern Costumes of the Newest Type of Fashion, which are imported from Paris and Berlin.
JAY'S, Regent-street.

PEAU DE CHAMOIS COSTUMES.—A varied series of COSTUMES, made from Peau de Chamois Satin, are produced weekly during the season. Price 6½ guineas each, including sufficient satin to make a bodice.
JAY'S,
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
REGENT-STREET, W.

TEENS that young ladies are in no hurry to get out of—
"LOUIS" VELVET-TEENS.
THE "LOUIS" VELVETEEN
IS SIMPLY UNIQUE.
Do not be induced by persuasion to take any other.
LOUIS AN EXTRA PROFIT TO YOUR LOSS may be speciously made if you accept, under whatever name offered, an inferior quality of Velveteen.
"THE LOUIS"
has established its reputation so widely that even a slight inferiority would injure its repute, which constitutes
LOUIS A TEST OF MERIT,
and guarantee of
UNSURPASSED QUALITY.
Be sure you find the words
THE "LOUIS" VELVETEEN
on every yard,
or you have not the
GENUINE "LOUIS,"
notwithstanding assertions to the contrary.

WEDDING BOUQUETS of the Choicest Flowers tastefully arranged. Bridal Bouquets, 10s. 6d each. Bridesmaids' Bouquets, 5s. 6d. each, for town or country. Price-Lists free.—WILLIAM HOOPER, 384, Oxford-street, W.

PRATT'S WATER PAD TRUSSES are the
MOST EFFECTUAL CURE FOR RUPTURES.
PRATT'S ELASTIC STOCKINGS,
for VARICOSE VEINS, &c.
Surgical Mechanician to St. Bartholomew's Hospital,
420, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON.

"AND TEETH LIKE ROWS OF PEARLS."
JEWSBURY and BROWN'S Exquisite Compound,
THE ORIENTAL TOOTH-PASTE.
The celebrated original and only genuine Oriental Tooth-Paste is signed "JEWSBURY and BROWN, Manchester. Established 30 years." PEARLY WHITE and SOUND TEETH, healthy gums, firm and bright of colour so essential to beauty and fragrant breath, are all inspired by the use of this much perfect Dentifrice. Pots, 1s. 6d.; double, 2s. 6d. All Perfumers and Chemists. Only the ORIGINAL ORIENTAL TOOTH-PASTE is signed JEWSBURY and BROWN, Manchester, and each pot bears their Trade Mark, J. and B. in a double triangle.

NUDA VERITAS.—GREY HAIR restored by this valuable specific to its original shade, after which it grows the natural colour, not grey, used as a dressing, it causes growth and arrests falling. The most harmless and effectual restorer extant. One trial will convince it has no equal. Price 10s. 6d., of all Chemists and Hairdressers. Testimonials post-free.—R. HOVENDEN and SONS, London.

GOLDEN HAIR.—ROBARE'S AUREOLINE produces the beautiful Golden Colour so much admired. Warranted perfectly harmless. Prices 5s. 6d. and 10s. 6d., of all Perfumers. Wholesale, HOVENDEN and SONS, 5, Great Marlborough-street, W.; and 93 and 95, City-road, E.C.

THE COURT HAIR DESTROYER.—The newly-discovered, harmless, only effectual remedy for superfluous hair, 3s. 6d., post-paid, privately packed, 4s stamps, of Inventor, John Leon, 18, Porteous-road, London.W.; or Chemists

DINNEFORD'S MAGNESIA.
The best remedy for Acidity of the Stomach, Heartburn, Headache, Gout, and Indigestion. The safest aperient for delicate constitutions, Ladies and Children. Of all Chemists.

ALLEN AND HANBURYS'
"PERFECTED" COD-LIVER OIL is free from disagreeable taste and smell, and causes no nausea or after-taste. Of all Chemists, in capsuled bottles only.

"KEATING'S POWDER" kills BUGS, Moths, Fleas, Beetles, and all Insects (perfectly unrivalled). Harmless to everything but Insects. Tins, 6d. and 1s.

NEW MUSIC.

OLIVETTE. New Comic Opera. Enormous success at the Strand Theatre. Adapted by H. B. Farnie; Music by AUDRAN.
Vocal Score ... 2s. net.
Abridged Edition of the Vocal Score, containing the Overture, Songs, &c. ... ... ... ... 2s. 6d. "
Pianoforte Solo ... ... ... ... 2s. 6d. "
All the Favourite Airs, arranged for the Violin ... 1s. 6d. "
Lancers, D'Albert ... 2s. net. | Galop, D'Albert ... 2s. net.
Waltz, D'Albert ... 2s. " | Scottish and Pearse ... 2s. "
Quadrille, D'Albert ... 2s. " | Waltz, D'Albert ... 2s. "
Polka, D'Albert ... 2s. "
Boston Smith's Fantasia ... ... ... ... 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

NEW AND POPULAR SONGS.

WELCOME. Lady ARTHUR HILL. 2s. net.
CŒUR DE LION. H. J. STARK. Sung by Mr. Oswald. 2s. net.
AT THE PORTAL. N. FERRI. Sung by Madame Mary Cummings. 2s. net.
WHAT THE FIRELIGHT TOLD. J. L. ROECKEL. 2s. net.
THE CHILDREN IN THE WOOD. ROECKEL. 2s. net.
WHERE THE PURPLE VIOLET GROWS. From "The Turquoise Ring." L. BENSON. 2s. net.
DINNA LEAVE ME. A. M. WAKEFIELD. Composer of "No, Sir." 2s. net.
THOUGHTS AT SUNRISE. Mrs. L. MONCRIEFF. 2s. net.
THE LASS I LOVE. OLIVER CRAMER. 2s. net.
LOVE FOR LOVE. OLIVER CRAMER. 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

NEW SONGS by Mrs. RONALDS.
IN SHADOW ... ... ... ... 2s. net.
WHITE ... ... ... ... 2s. net.
EYES NEAR ... ... ... ... 2s. net.
DIS MOI POURQUOI ... ... ... 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHARLES D'ALBERT'S NOVELTIES.
PIRATES OF PENZANCE LANCERS, WALTZ, QUADRILLE, POLKA, and GALOP ... each 2s. 0d. net
ADELINA WALTZ. Illustrated with beautiful Portrait of Madame Patti ... ... ... ... 2s. 0d. net
PORTIA WALTZ ... ... ... ... 2s. 0d. net
DRINK, PUPPY, DRINK! POLKA ... ... ... 2s. 0d. net
CONGRESS LANCERS ... ... ... ... 2s. 0d. net
DISTANT SHORE WALTZ ... ... ... 2s. 0d. net
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S THREE-YEARS' SYSTEM OF HIRE of PIANOFORTES, HARMONIUMS, and AMERICAN ORGANS, by which the instrument becomes the property of the Hirer at the end of the third year, provided each quarter's hire shall have been regularly paid in advance. Pianofortes, from 2 gs., Harmoniums, from £1 5s.; and American Organs, from £2 10s. a Quarter.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S PIANINOS, from 20 guineas.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S COTTAGES, from 27 guineas.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S GRANDS, from 75 guineas.

CHICKERING PIANOFORTES, from 120 guineas, with American discount.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ALEXANDRE HARMONIUMS, for Church, Schools, or Drawing-Rooms, from 8 to 150 guineas; or, on the Three-Years' System, from £1 5s. per quarter.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S IMPROVED AMERICAN ORGANS, combining Pipes with Reeds, Manufactured by Clough and Warren, Detroit, U.S.A. The immense advantages these instruments possess over the Organs hitherto imported have induced Messrs. Chappell and Co. to undertake the sole Agency of this eminent Manufactory. A large variety on view, from 18 to 250 guineas. Price-Lists on application to CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

CLOUGH and WARREN'S Favourite ORGAN. Compass, five octaves, ten stops, four sets of reeds, two of two and two thirds octaves and two of two and one third octaves, knee swell, elegant carved Canadian walnut case, price 27 guineas. With twelve stops, sub-bass octave coupler, and two knee pedals, 35 guineas. Illustrated Price-List free by post.
Sole Agents, CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

INSTRUMENTS by ALL MAKERS may be HIRED or PURCHASED on the Three-Years' System.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

A LARGE DISCOUNT TO PURCHASERS FOR CASH.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHARLES HALLÉ'S PRACTICAL PIANOFORTE SCHOOL.
Section I.—No. 1, PIANOFORTE TUTOR.
Catalogues and all Particulars may be had from FORSYTH BROTHERS, London, 272a, Regent-circus, Oxford-street; Manchester, Cross-street and South King-street; and all Musicsellers.

"Steinway is to the Pianist what Stradnarius is to the Violinist."—Herr Joachim.

THE STEINWAY PIANOFORTES,
GRAND AND UPRIGHT,
THE GREATEST PIANOFORTES IN THE WORLD.
The Steinway Pianofortes are the chosen instruments of the educated and wealthy classes in every nation throughout civilisation, and have by far the largest annual sale of any pianofortes in the world.
STEINWAY and SONS,
STEINWAY HALL,
LOWER SEYMOUR-STREET, PORTMAN-SQUARE, W.
(And at Steinway Hall, New York.)

BROADWOOD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System, from £2 12s. 6d. per Quarter.

COLLARD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System; in Black and Gold Cases at £4 14s. 6d. to £5 5s., £6 6s., £7 7s., and in special Early English Ebonised Case, £8 8s. per Quarter.

ERARD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System, from £5 5s. per Quarter.

CRAMER'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on their Three-Years' System, from £1 11s. 6d. per Quarter. Detailed Lists post-free on application to Regent-street, W.; Bond-street, W.; Moorgate-street, E.C.; and 165, High-street, Notting-hill.

£20 SCHOOL-ROOM PIANO (Co-operative price for cash). Seven octaves—strong, sound, and substantial. Adapted for hard practice. Carefully packed free, and sent to any part. Drawings gratis.
THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street.

£35.—There is nothing in London—nor, in fact, in all England—to be compared to the elegantly carved DRAWING-ROOM TRICHORD COTTAGE PIANOFORTE, with Check-Repeater Trigg Lever, which is sold for £35 by THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, Portman-sq.

PLEYEL WOLFF and CO.'S PIANOS.
Every description of these celebrated Instruments for SALE or HIRE. Sole Agency, 170, New Bond-street, W.

PIANOFORTES for HIRE or for SALE, from 25 guineas upwards.—JOHN BROADWOOD and SONS, 33, Great Pulteney-street, Golden-square, W. Manufactory, 4a, Horseferry-road, Westminster, W.

NEW MUSIC.

LA MASCOTTE. Opéra Comique by AUDRAN, Composer of "Olivette." Performed in Paris with the greatest possible success.
THE COMPLETE OPERA, with French Words, price 12s.
THE COMPLETE OPERA, with English Words (in the press).
THE COMPLETE OPERA for Piano Solo, 2s. 6d.
Quadrilles, Waltzes, and other Arrangements in hand.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

THE ROYAL EDITION OF OPERAS, for Voice and Pianoforte, is the most perfect form ever published. Edited by ARTHUR SULLIVAN and J. PITTMAN.
ITALIAN AND ENGLISH WORDS.

| | s. d. | | s. d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Ballo in Maschera (Un) .. | 3 6 | Huguenots (Les) ... | 5 0 |
| Barbiere di Siviglia (Il) | 3 6 | Lucia di Lammermoor ... | 3 6 |
| Crown Diamonds (The) .. | 3 6 | Lucrezia Borgia ... | 3 6 |
| Dinorah ... | 3 6 | Martha ... ... ... | 3 6 |
| Domino Noir (Le) ... | 3 6 | Masaniello ... ... | 3 6 |
| Don Giovanni ... | 3 6 | Mireila ... ... | 3 6 |
| Don Pasquale ... | 3 6 | Norma ... ... | 3 6 |
| Elisir d'Amore (L') ... | 3 6 | Porter of Havre (The) ... | 3 6 |
| Faust ... ... | 3 6 | Puritani (I) ... ... | 3 6 |
| Favorita (La) ... | 3 6 | Rigoletto ... ... | 3 6 |
| Fidelio ... ... | 3 6 | Robert le Diable ... | 5 0 |
| Figaro ... ... | 3 6 | Semiramide ... ... | 3 6 |
| Figlia del Reggimento (La) | 3 6 | Sonnambula (La) ... | 3 6 |
| Flauto Magico (Il) ... | 3 6 | Traviata (La) ... | 3 6 |
| Fra Diavolo. ... | 3 6 | Trovatore (Il) ... ... | 3 6 |
| Guillaume Tell ... | 5 0 | Vaccaio Fantasma (Il) ... | 3 6 |

A List of the Complete Series, containing English Operas, and Operas with German and French Words, gratis on application.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

RUBINSTEIN'S SHILLING ALBUMS in the MUSICAL CABINET. 203, 210, 213. RUBINSTEIN'S THREE ALBUMS. 20 Pieces.
206. RUBINSTEIN'S SIX STUDIES.
207. RUBINSTEIN'S SIX PRELUDES.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

Price 2s. 6d. each, paper; 4s., cloth, gilt edges.
RUBINSTEIN'S SONGS.
RUBINSTEIN'S VOCAL DUETS.
With German and English Words.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

THE VIKINGS' SONG. By STEPHEN ADAMS. Sung by Signor Foli. 2s. net.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

THE BOATSWAIN'S STORY. Mr. Santley's last success. By MOLLOY. Sung at the last four Ballad Concerts, and always encored. Price 2s.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

ALL IN ALL. JOSEPH MAAS' Successful New Song. By F. H. COWEN. Sung at the Ballad Concerts at St. James's Hall, and encored on each occasion.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

MARZIALS' NEW SONGS.
A BASKET OF LOVES. Sung by Mrs. Osgood.
A SUMMER SHOWER. Sung by Miss Mary Davies.
ROCHESTER BELLS. Sung by the Composer.
THAT SWEET STORY OF OLD. Sacred Song.
2s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S MINIATURE PIANOFORTE. Price 17 Guineas. Size, 41 inches high, 20½ inches wide, 5½ octaves; has an excellent quality of tone, and is strongly recommended as an attractive and good piano. Prospectus on application to BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

JOSEPH WILLIAMS'S LIST.
THE LATEST SUCCESS.
BILLEE TAYLOR. Comic Opera. By H. P. STEPHENS and S. SOLOMON.
VOCAL SCORE ... ... ... ... 6s. net.
SONGS.
ALL ON ACCOUNT OF ELIZA (Third Edition). 2s. net.
SELF-MADE KNIGHT (Second Edition). 2s. net.
THE VIRTUOUS GARDENER. 2s. net.
FANTASIA FOR PIANO. CH. TOURVILLE. 1s. 6d. net.

PIANO SCORE (Complete). 2s. 6d. net. Now ready.
*QUADRILLES. By CHARLES COOTE. 2s. net.
*LANCERS. By ARTHUR GREVILLE. 2s. net.
*WALTZES. By CHARLES GODFREY. 2s. net.
DANCE MUSIC, BILLEE TAYLOR, ready. Orchestra, 2s.; Septet, 1s. 6d.
* Beautifully Illustrated.

HENRY FARMER'S PIANOFORTE TUTOR, considerably Enlarged and Fingered by the Author. Fourth Edition. 4s.
"Decidedly the best and most useful instruction book we have seen."—Musical Review.

THE LOVE OF OLD. ROECKEL'S charming New Song will be sung by Miss Damian at her forthcoming engagements. Post-free, 24 stamps.

PIANO DUETS.
C. REINECKE. Three Sonatas, Op. 139. Price 2s. each, net.

PIANO SOLOS.
W. KUHE. NEW SACRED TRANSCRIPTIONS.
Eli (Costa). Naaman (Costa). Price 2s. each net.
TH. LACK. NEW PIECES.
Menuet, La Mouette, Bolero. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
H. ROUBIER. NEW PIECES.
Cavatine (Caprice), Lutin Rose, Le Regiment qui passe. Price 2s. each net.
FRANZ HITZ. NEW PIECES.
Cavatelage (Caprice). Price 1s. each net.
OUR FAVOURITES. Nos. 1 to 6. Moderately Easy Pieces on Popular Subjects. Arranged by CH. TOURVILLE. Price 1s. 3d. each net.

THE PROGRESSIVE MUSIC SCHOOL.
Carefully Edited, Fingered, and Corrected from the Original Manuscripts by J. LEYBACH. First Series (very easy), 15 Numbers. Numbers 1 to 14, price 1s. 3d. each net. Number 15, price 1s. 6d. net.

VIOLIN AND PIANO DUETS.
S. JACOBY. Six Popular Airs (Easy). Price 1s. each net.
CH. TOURVILLE. Twelve Favourite Subjects (Moderate). Price 1s. 6d. each net.

H. FARMER. Popular Violin Solos (Brilliant), with Piano Accompaniment. Nine Numbers. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, Berners-street, W.; and 123, Cheapside, E.C.

SUNG BY ARTHUR ROBERTS.
THE GOOD YOUNG MAN WHO DIED. By Matthew Lay. Words by Stephen Massett; Music by E. SOLOMON. "He has left this world for a brighter sphere. There's a neat little headstone o'er him. Telling how much we held him dear. And how deeply we regret him, But that can not tell how we miss his ways. Our friend, philosopher, and guide; for years to come we shall sing in praise Of the good young man who died." Post-free for 24 stamps.—London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, Berners-street; and 123, Cheapside.

NEW SONGS by WALTER MAYNARD. Just published.
"FROM Lamborn Cock, of Holles-street, Oxford-street, comes a variety of compositions, chiefly vocal. Of these, the place of honour is due, perhaps, to the productions of Walter Maynard, who always writes with a certain originality consonant with his subject. 'LOVE DESCRIBED' is a flowing air in E flat, excellently illustrative of lines from Mrs. Lovell's play. 'THE GOLDEN MAID' is a love story (the words by the Author of 'Gina's Baby') that may be made very effective by singers putting themselves on distinctness of enunciation; and the nautical air, 'COMFORT BAY. 'Be see'r yarn,' is vigorous and altogether uncommon. Many sea songs, whilst warmly received in convivial assemblies, are unsuited to the drawing-room; but 'Comfort Bay' would not be out of place either in the smoking-room or the salon."—Daily Chronicle, April 14, 1881

THE HUMMING BIRD. Polka, for Voice and Piano.
"Sparkling and vivacious—bright, lively, and melodious."—Lloyd's News.

SLUMBER SONG.
"Tranquil and flowing."—Lloyd's News.

CONSOLATIONS.
"The words—curiously pathetic and quaint, beyond the level of women's verse—are by Alice Meynell. The music is of a meditative, thoughtful character."—Lloyd's News.
Each free by post for 24 stamps.
LAMBORN COCK, 23, Holles-street, Oxford-street, W.

NEW MUSIC.

THE MUSICAL TIMES for MAY contains: Verdi's Opera "Simon Boccanegra," at the Scala of Milan—The Music of Dvorak—The Great Composers: Berlioz—Mr. Pepys the Musician, by F. Hueffer—"Past Hours," Sullivan's New Opera—Monday Popular, Crystal Palace, and Bach Choir Concerts, &c.—Royal Italian Opera—Occasional Notes, Foreign and Country News, Reviews, Correspondence, &c. Price 3d.; post-free, 4d.; annual subscription, 4s., including postage.

THE MUSICAL TIMES for MAY contains: "The Son of God goes forth to war" (St. Ann's tune), by ARTHUR SULLIVAN; and "God so loved the world." Anthem. By Sir JOHN GOSS. Price 1½d.

NOVELLO'S ORIGINAL OCTAVO EDITION OF OPERAS. Edited and Corrected according to the Original Scores, by NATALIA MACFARREN and BERTHOLD TOURS. The English Translations by Natalia Macfarren and the Rev. J. Troutbeck, M.A., &c.

| | s. d. | | s. d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Fra Diavolo ... ... | 3 6 | Die Zauberflöte ... ... | 3 6 |
| Masaniello ... ... | 3 6 | Il Seraglio ... ... | 3 6 |
| Fidelio ... ... | 3 6 | Il Barbiere ... ... | 3 6 |
| Norma ... ... | 3 6 | Guillaume Tell ... ... | 5 0 |
| La Sonnambula ... ... | 3 6 | Il Trovatore ... ... | 3 6 |
| I Puritani ... ... | 3 6 | Travviata ... ... | 3 6 |
| Lucia di Lammermoor ... | 3 6 | La Traviata ... ... | 3 6 |
| Lucrezia Borgia ... ... | 3 6 | Ernani ... ... | 3 6 |
| La Figlia del Reggimento | 3 6 | Tannhauser ... ... | 3 6 |
| Martha ... ... | 3 6 | Lohengrin ... ... | 3 6 |
| Iphigenia in Aulis ... | 3 6 | Flying Dutchman ... | 3 6 |
| Iphigenia in Tauris ... | 3 6 | Oberon ... ... | 3 6 |
| I Zelbi in Nord ... | 3 6 | Der Freischütz ... ... | 3 6 |
| Don Giovanni ... ... | 3 6 | Precious ... ... | 1 6 |
| Le Nozze di Figaro ... | 3 6 | (To be continued.) | |

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners-street, W., and 80 and 81, Queen-street, E.C.

THREE NEW SONGS. By Lord HENRY SOMERSET. ONE MORE (in F and D), 2s.; DAWN, NOON, AND NIGHT (in F), 2s. 6d.; GOOD-BYE (in G minor and E minor); the Words by Major G. J. Whyte-Melville, 2s. 6d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER, and Co.

O, SANTA MELODIA. A Transcription of Donizetti's beautiful theme by BRINLEY RICHARDS. Post-free for 18 stamps. "The vast amount of experience gained Mr. Richards can stands him in good stead in the construction of the piece before us."—Orchestra.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

DAILY VOCAL EXERCISES. By CIRO PINSUTI. "Indispensable to all who desire to keep their voices in training by a short and judicious daily practice." Post-free for 18 stamps.—London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

THE GOLDEN TREASURY.
By W. S. ROCKSTRO.
No. 1. March, from Handel's "Rinaldo."
No. 2. "Rigaudon." By Rameau.
"Two delightful classical works."
Post-free for 24 stamps each.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

MAY THY PATH BE STREWN WITH ROSES. New Song. By Miss PHILP. The Music is as charming as the Poetry. Post-free for 18 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

EXTRACT from SONATA in D, MOZART. Arranged for the Piano by GEO. F. WEST. 3s.; post-free for 18 stamps. "Mr. West's compositions are universally appreciated."—London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

EXTRACT from HAYDN'S OVERTURE in D. Arranged for the Piano by GEO. F. WEST. Post-free for 18 stamps.
"Mr. West's name upon a titlepage is always a guarantee of a thoroughly reliable transcription."
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

WHEN ALL THE WORLD IS YOUNG. New Song. By A. J. CALDICOTT. A most effective setting of Charles Kingsley's fine poem. Post-free for 18 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., 6, New Burlington-street.

THE BUGLER. In D, F, and G. By CIRO PINSUTI. Words by F. E. Weatherly.
This very successful song has now reached the Tenth Edition.

THE CHALLENGE. For Bass and Baritone. By HUMPHREY J. STARK. Words by E. Oxenford. A bold and vigorous composition, and received always by great applause and repeated encores.

THE ROYAL EXCHANGE. ODOARDO BARRI. "A brilliant and effective song for vocalists in which charming music is united to a quaint little story."—Review.

WEIT VON DIR (Far from Thee). Waltz. By OSCAR SEYDEL. "When she went back to the ball-room, Captain Winstanley followed her, and claimed the waltz. The band was just striking up the latest German melody, 'Weit von Dir,' a strain of drawing tenderness."—Vide Miss Braddon's "Vixen." Each of the above 2s. net.
B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster-row.

MADAME CHRISTINE NILSSON'S NEW SONG.
A SONG OF THE NORTH. By LADY LINDSAY (of Balcarras). Price 2s. net.
PATEY and WILLIS, Publishers, 20, Great Marlborough-street, W.

WEDDING and BIRTHDAY PRESENTS at RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly, London.
SETS FOR THE WRITING-TABLE and BOUDOIR, IN POLISHED BRASS, OXIDIZED, SEVRES CHINA.
BRONZE, and OXIDIZED SILVER, from ... ... 21s. to £10
WRITING AND DRESSING TABLE ... ... 63s. to £20
DRESSING CASES ... ... ... ... 21s. to £20
DESPATCH BOXES ... ... ... ... 21s. to £10
TOURISTS' WRITING CASES ... ... ... 4s. 6d. to £4
ENVELOPE CASES and BLOTTING BOOKS.. 10s. 6d. to £3
INKSTANDS ... ... ... ... 5s. to £5
CANDLESTICKS (per pair) ... ... ... 7s. 6d. to £5
WORK BOXES ... ... ... ... 10s. to £5
THE NEW "TANTALUS" LIQUEUR STAND 105s. to £10
THE "TANTALUS" SODA and BRANDY STAND, £5 12s. 6d.
And a large and choice assortment of ENGLISH, VIENNESE, and PARISIAN NOVELTIES, from 5s. to £5.

PORTRAIT ALBUMS at RODRIGUES', with Patent Leather Guards, 4s. 6d. to £5. Floral Albums, Scrap Albums, Presentation and Memorial Albums.
Albums of every description made to order.—42, Piccadilly.

RODRIGUES' MONOGRAMS, ARMS, CORONET, CREST, and ADDRESS DIES.
Engraved as items from Original and Artistic Designs.
NOTE-PAPER AND ENVELOPES brilliantly Illuminated by hand in Gold, Silver, Bronze, and Colours.
BEST RELIEF STAMPING, any colour, 1s. per 100.
All the New and Fashionable Note-Papers.
A VISITING CARD PLATE, elegantly Engraved, and 100 Superfine Cards printed, for 4s. 6d.
BALL PROGRAMMES, BILLS OF FARE, GUEST CARDS, WEDDING CARDS, and INVITATIONS in every variety.
HENRY RODRIGUES, 42, Piccadilly, London.

DIAMONDS. SAPPHIRES. CATS'-EYES. OPALS. EMERALDS.
Mr. STREETER,
18, New Bond-street, W.
INTRODUCER of 18-CARAT GOLD JEWELLERY
and
ENGLISH LEVER WATCHES,
(MACHINE-MADE.)
BRANCH ESTABLISHMENT,
COLOMBO, CEYLON.

WALKER'S CRYSTAL CASE WATCHES are superseding all others. Prize Medals—London, 1862; Paris, 1867. Silver Watches, from £4 4s.; Gold, from £10 5s. Price-Lists sent free.—77, Cornhill; 220, Regent-street; and 76, Strand.

THE FINEST WATCHES MADE. SEWILL'S KEYLESS WATCHES, Prize Medals, London, Paris, and Philadelphia. Damp and Dust-proof, in-case cases, adjusted and compensated for all climates, £10 10s., £14 14s., and £25; Ladies', £7 7s., £10 10s., and £18 18s.; in silver cases, for Ladies or Gentlemen, £5 5s., £6 6s., and £8 8s. Forwarded on receipt of remittance.—J. Sewill, 20, Cornhill; London; and 61, South Castle-street, Liverpool.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.
SUBSTANTIAL ARTISTIC FURNITURE (Registered).
OETZMANN and CO.,
HAMPSTEAD-ROAD,
NEAR TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD.
CARPETS, OETZMANN and CO.
FLOOR-CLOTHS, LINOLEUMS,
DINING-ROOM FURNITURE,
DRAWING-ROOM FURNITURE,
BED-ROOM FURNITURE, OETZMANN and CO.
BEDSTEADS, BEDDING,
DRAPERY, LINENS, &c.
FURNISHING IRONMONGERY,
ELECTRO-PLATE and CUTLERY,
KITCHEN REQUISITES,
CHINA, GLASS, OETZMANN and CO.
PICTURES, BRONZES, &c.,
CLOCKS, LAMPS, &c.
PIANOS, OETZMANN and CO.
ARTISTIC PAPERHANGINGS,
PAINTING, DECORATING, &c.,
GAS-FITTINGS, &c., OETZMANN & CO.
HOUSES TO BE LET OR SOLD.
REMOVALS by ROAD, RAIL, or SEA.
POSTAL ORDER DEPARTMENT.
SHIPPING DEPARTMENT.
DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE,
THE BEST FURNISHING GUIDE EXTANT,
GRATIS and POST-FREE,
OETZMANN and CO.,
67, 69, 71, 73, 77 and 79, OETZMANN and CO.,
HAMPSTEAD-ROAD, LONDON.

HEAL and SON.
BED-ROOM FURNITURE.
DINING-ROOM FURNITURE.
DRAWING-ROOM FURNITURE.
HEAL and SON,
196 to 198, TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD, W.

THE ART-FURNISHERS' ALLIANCE, Limited, 157, New Bond-street, London, W., IS NOW OPEN,
as a medium for producing the best Art-effects in all branches of Home Furnishing and decoration at the least possible outlay.
The Public is invited to inspect the Original Assortment of Furniture and other specially selected objects of domestic use and decorative art, new on sale, and designated by the "Whitehall Review" of April 14 as "the most superb collection of artistic furniture and accessories ever brought together."
Every article has its price affixed. Those intending to build, alter, or redecorate their houses, should inspect the examples now on Sale at
THE ART-FURNISHERS' ALLIANCE, LIMITED,
157, New Bond-street, W.
CHARLES DARNELL, Ph.D., F.R.S.,
Art Adviser.
EDWARD LEE, Esq., F.S.A., Sec.,
Secretary and Manager.

AN OLD RECOMMENDATION.
A LETTER from MRS. THRALE. (Reprinted by Messrs. MORTLOCK, Oxford-street.) 1880.

Bath,
Thursday, 12th Oct., 1808.
To Sir James Fellowes.
My dear Sir James Fellowes, like his own Western sun, delights to warm and gild the evening of a stormy day: but I have no commissions that I can remember. Divic Robinson has sent the wine and I have sent him the money, so that's all over. When you feel your own purse too heavy, take it to MORTLOCKS', in OXFORD-STREET, and carry Lady Fellowes a beautiful specimen of South Wales China, and tell him I am panting for my tea-pails and large dishes to use this day or delight.
Yours and all your family's obliged and faithful,
H. L. PIOZZI.

GARDNER'S DINNER and TABLE GLASS SERVICES. Free, graceful, and original designs, of unequalled value. Dinner Services, from 21s. Table Glass Services, of the best Crystal, for twelve persons, complete, 63s. Cash discount, 15 per cent. Coloured Photographic Sheets and Illustrated Glass Catalogues post-free.
453 and 454, West Strand, Charing-cross.

ELKINGTON and CO.
ELECTRO PLATE.
SILVER PLATE.
CLOCKS and BRONZES.

ELKINGTON and CO.
TESTIMONIAL PLATE.
CUTLERY, &c.
Illustrated Catalogues post-free.
ELKINGTON and CO., 22, Regent-st.; or 42, Moorgate-st., City.

FOR SOUTH AFRICA.—How to get rid of your left-off clothes, jewels, furniture, antique lace, old gold teeth plates, &c. Why, send them to the most respectable purchasers, who pay you ready money before taking them away.—Mr. and Mrs. PHILLIPS, Old Curiosity Shop, 21, Thayer-street, Manchester-square, London, W.

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LEIGHTON, 198, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY, MAY 21, 1881.

THE FRENCH IN TUNIS.

The combined military demonstrations and diplomatic negotiations of the French Government in Tunis, pushed close up to the Bey's Palace of the Bardo, just outside the capital, have succeeded in procuring his assent to a French Protectorate, and to the French occupation of several important points on the seacoast and the frontier next to Algeria. We give a Portrait of the Bey, Mohammed Sadik, whose position has been described in a former notice of this subject; with some additional Views of Tunis, the seaport town of Biserta, and the inland fortress and Mohammedan sacred city of Kef, to the south of the Khroumir country, which has also fallen into the possession of the French.

It has been stated that the French Expeditionary Corps, which numbered about twenty thousand men, was under the command of General Forgemol. The left wing, composed of three brigades, was commanded by General Delebecque; and the right wing, also numbering three brigades, was under the orders of General Logerot. A preliminary operation, already described, was that of the occupation of the Island of Tabarka. The ironclad Surveillante, carrying twelve heavy guns, and the gunboats Chacal and Hyène, each having four guns, had been chosen for the task. The troops to be landed comprised about sixteen hundred men. It was all managed, in a few days, by some bombarding of the seaside forts, and some active marching across country in the interior, but with very little fighting. Tabarka, and the neighbouring castle on the mainland coast, were abandoned after a severe bombardment.

The town of Kef—the old "Sicca Veneris" of the Romans—is, or rather ought to be, an important stronghold. It is situated on a lofty peak, 2400 ft. in height, and is fortified after a fashion. The Beys of Tunis have always held it to be, with Beja, the only place capable of arresting an invasion from Algeria. Unfortunately, however, for Kef, the neighbouring peak of Ksar-er-Roula towers above it, and it has never been looked after by the Tunisians. The importance of Kef is increased, on account of its being a religious town as well as a fortress. It is inhabited by the religious chiefs of the four great Mussulman sects, who exercise an enormous influence over the neighbouring tribes, and who could raise them in a moment. The French have, therefore, for political as well as strategical reasons, acted wisely in marching straight upon Kef, which is one of the keys of the Khroumirs' land and of Tunis as well. On the 26th ult., General Logerot having appeared before the place, summoned the Governor to surrender, and made preparations for an assault, it yielded without any resistance.

The column of General Logerot, it seems, met with no actual opposition as it penetrated into Tunisian territory. The passage of the Oued-Mellegue was effected with order and rapidity. The horsemen of the "Goums" were the first to cross the river. Skirmishers were then thrown out, two batteries of mountain guns taking up a position on the neighbouring heights to protect the left bank. The Delebecque column suffered severely from the tropical rainfall, as it was marching over a difficult country, steep and thick with brushwood. The camps were literally flooded, but the young soldiers are said to have been in capital spirits and eager for the fray. The Khroumirs were well armed, and were intrenched on the heights of Roum-el-Souk and El Aioun, opposite General Vincendon's column. But there has been only desultory skirmishing, of the character shown in our Illustration.

The Bey was forced to sign the treaty on Wednesday last week, when General Bréard, with a force of 4000 men, arrived at the Palace outside the city of Tunis.

MOHAMMED SADIK, THE BEY OF TUNIS.

The force which is to occupy Biserta, and which has been conveyed thither by the Dryade and Sarthe, comprises 2000 men. These troops have taken the place of the brigade of sailors who were landed on the first inst. to take possession of the town. The reason officially assigned for the occupation of the place is that it was the centre from which the Khroumirs drew their supplies of provisions; and, further, that the occupation will complete the blockade of the Khroumirs, and facilitate the revictualling of the French army.

This once important place, Biserta, to which much attention is now directed on account of the French occupation, is situated at the bottom of the bay formed by the Cape Ras-el-Zebib (the Promontorium Apollinis) and Cape El-Alrid (Promontorium Candidum). The lake, on the shores of which it is situate, communicates with the sea by a canal still deep enough to receive small vessels. In the time of Barbarossa it was a city of great strength and magnificence; but this has disappeared, and it is now but a small town of some 8000 inhabitants, for the most part Arabs and a few Europeans. The Lake of Biserta is the chief source of the trade, abounding as it does in tunny and other kinds of fish, the monopoly of which is farmed out by the Government for £1600 a year. The fish is brought to Tunis market, forty miles distant, every morning, on pack-horses. The coral fishery is tolerably productive, and about fifty Italian vessels annually visit it for that purpose. Besides these industries, Biserta is famous for its grapes, which are of beautiful quality, although the wine made from them cannot be kept for any length of time. A great quantity of coarse pottery is also made here, and supplies most of the wants of the population of the Regency. The district comprises ten villages, having some 120,000 acres of fertile land in cultivation, producing Indian corn, buckwheat, millet, olives, &c. At one time cotton was grown successfully, but the price was so low that the natives have almost abandoned the cotton crop, as they have also done in the case of tobacco, which, being a State monopoly, they could not sell at sufficient profit. The olive plantations yielded about 250,000 gallons of oil per annum. The port of Biserta was once the finest on the coast, but mud has accumulated so that only vessels of from thirty to thirty-five tons can now enter.

Our Illustrations are from photographs by M. Catalanotti, of Tunis.

THE IMPERIAL WEDDING AT VIENNA.

We present several Illustrations, from Sketches by our Special Artist, of the interesting scenes which preceded and accompanied the splendid nuptials of the Imperial Crown Prince Rudolph of Austria and Hungary with Princess Stéphanie of Belgium. The portraits both of the bride and bridegroom have already been published in this Journal.

The Princess, with her Royal parents, the King and Queen of the Belgians, arrived on the 5th inst. at Salzburg, the capital of the Tyrol, where she was met by her intended husband. On Saturday, the 7th inst., the Royal party moved to the Imperial palace of Schönbrunn, near Vienna; and on the following Monday the bride made her grand public entry, with a superb procession, into the Imperial city. The marriage ceremony took place next day (Tuesday of last week) at the Church of the Augustines, attached to the Imperial palace.

RECEPTION AT SALZBURG.

The arrival of the Belgian Royal Family at Salzburg was the first incident of popular festivity. The Royal railway train which brought them, and the railway station, were decorated with flowery wreaths; and the saloon was filled with roses and lilies of the valley, the Princess's favourite flowers. The meeting on the platform between the Crown Prince and his future bride was most affectionate. The greetings lasted ten minutes, for there were the fair bride's parents, relations, and a numerous suite to be welcomed to Austria. She had with her, besides her father and mother, also her little sister, Princess Clementine. The old archiepiscopal city and its lofty fortress were decked out bravely, and bade a hearty welcome to the Belgians. There were deputations, torchlight processions, and serenades, while the surrounding hill-tops glowed with bonfires. Princess Stéphanie received many gifts; but what pleased her most was the offering of a deputation of comely peasant girls in national dress. They brought her the usual presents received by a "Salzkammergut" bride—a spinning-wheel, symbolical of industry, a wash-tub, a wooden platter, laden with butter and lard, a honey cake, and a holiday shawl of native work, in white and gold.

THE IMPERIAL WEDDING AT VIENNA: PRINCESS STÉPHANIE OF BELGIUM ON HER WAY TO SCHÖNBRUNN.
FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

AT VIENNA AND SCHÖNBRUNN.

The journey from Salzburg to Vienna, and the drive to the neighbouring Palace of Schönbrunn, were a continued display of general rejoicing. At every station and all along the line were masses of people come to see the "flower-train" go by, bearing the King's daughter, who was to wed the Emperor's son. At Wels and Linz were deputations, and the stations were profusely decorated. The Westbahn terminus at Vienna was one gigantic bower of choice flowers. A blaze of uniforms and costumes, military, ecclesiastical, and diplomatic, occupied the reserved part of the platform. Shortly before four p.m. arrived the Emperor and his son; Franz Joseph attired in the uniform of a field marshal, and Crown Prince Rudolph as a general, both wearing the Belgian "grand cordon." Outside was a host of Court carriages and equipages of the nobility, and very gorgeous were the national liveries of the servants of magnates, Magyar, Czechian, and Polish. There was a pause, during which those on the platform conversed in an under-tone—the Emperor with the Adjutant-General Baron Mondel, F. M. Baron Philippovics, and the Crown Prince. At last a whistle was heard, there was a moment of eager expectation, and the "flower-train," punctual to an instant, rushed into the station. The band of the guard of honour struck up the "Brabançonne." The first person who alighted was the Queen of the Belgians, and then Princess Stéphanie, who attempted to kiss the Emperor's hand, but whom he folded in his arms instead. King Leopold followed, dressed in the uniform of an Austrian colonel, and wearing the grand cross of the Order of St. Stephen. Several bouquets were presented by bevies of white-clad damsels. The drive to Schönbrunn, through triumphal arches and between crowds of enthusiastic people, took fully an hour. The Emperor and Princess Stéphanie repeatedly bowed in acknowledgement of the popular acclamations. At Schönbrunn her Royal Highness was received by the Empress of Austria and the rest of the Imperial family. In the evening a state ball was given in the grand saloon of the Hofburg. The Emperor and Empress and the Imperial Family, the King and Queen of the Belgians, all the foreign Princes in Vienna, and the members of the diplomatic body were present. The Crown Prince Rudolph and Princess Stéphanie took part in the dancing. All the guests were charmed with the graceful appearance of the bride. Next morning the Crown Prince and Princess Stéphanie received at the Schönbrunn Castle a number of deputations who came to present their congratulations to them on the occasion of their approaching marriage. The first of the deputations was that of the Hungarian Diet, wearing their splendid national gala costume. After them came representatives of both Houses of the Austrian Reichsrath. Next appeared deputations from the city of Pesth and from the Vienna Common Council, headed by the Burgomaster. Our Artist made a sketch of the scene at Fünfhaus, on the road from the city to Schönbrunn.

THE BRIDE'S ENTRY INTO VIENNA.

The proceedings of Monday week began with the arrival of Princess Stéphanie, accompanied by the Queen of the Belgians, from Schönbrunn, at the Theresianum. This ancient and aristocratic educational institution, which takes its name from its founder, the Empress Maria Theresa, has for a century past been the traditional starting-point for processions at the entry of the brides of the Imperial House into the Austrian capital. Here the Queen and Princess alighted, and proceeded to the inner apartment for the final toilette.

When the illustrious ladies were ready, they were conducted by the Court Marshal to their state carriage, which was drawn by six white horses. The procession moved off, and the bells began to peal from all the steeples in the city, while repeated salvos of artillery thundered from the guns at the Arsenal. The procession was headed by a squadron of Cavalry, followed by the Quartermasters on horseback. Then came the eighty Councillors and Chamberlains, some on horseback, two abreast, the rest in carriages. After these came various diplomatic personages in their own two-horse equipages, attended by their own household servants; six trumpeters on horseback; the liveried servants of the Court, two and two; and two Quartermasters on foot. Then in a state carriage, drawn by six horses, followed four Chamberlains in Waiting. At each door of this carriage, as well as at each successive state equipage, were running footmen. Next came a carriage drawn by six horses, with the stewards of the household, a six-horse carriage with the Master of the Horse surrounded by the under officers of the Royal stud on horseback; a detachment of Royal Life Guards (Foot) with their standards and military bands. Now appeared the superb carriage of state, containing the Queen of the Belgians and the bride, who looked charming and happy. The General in command, with lowered sabre, rode on the left side of the bridal carriage. On the right side of the carriage rode the Court Equerry-in-Chief, while at each door were two lacqueys in livery. Six halberdiers of the Life Guard and six of the Horse Guards, with their chargers, formed the escort. Then followed six Court Pages on horseback, and a detachment of the Hungarian Life Guards on horseback; in a state carriage drawn by six horses the two Lady Stewardesses of the Household, and two six-horse state carriages containing the Ladies of Honour in Waiting. Behind all came a company of infantry and a squadron of cavalry, who closed the procession. All appeared in full-dress or gala uniform. The Hungarian Life Guards wore panther skins and yellow csismus. The private servants, the servants in livery, the inspector of the carriages, and the Court Quartermasters were bareheaded.

At the Elizabeth Bridge over the Wieden, which forms the boundary of the city on that side, was erected an extensive and handsome portal of honour, in the form of an immense pavilion, surmounted by a gilded metal cupola, from which were suspended hangings of red damask, drawn back by Cupids. The pavilion extended to the extremity of the bridge, and rested upon eight pillars, to represent marble; the roof of iron fretwork tastefully interwoven with foliage, and flanked by a balustrade, on each end of which were placed high pillars crowned by the Imperial eagle, and entwined with flowers. As the state carriage with the Princess passed under the triumphal arch the procession halted, and from all sides resounded the cheers of the multitude, and salvos of artillery. The Burgomaster, at the head of the Municipality and the Magistrates of Vienna, welcomed the august bride in a short address, and the Royal carriage passed on to the bridge, which was converted into a greenwood avenue. Here the Royal bride was greeted by a group of maidens, two hundred in number, arrayed in robes of white. One of them gracefully presented to the Princess a bouquet composed of her favourite flowers—lilac, lilies of the valley, and roses—bound with a ribbon woven of the Belgian colours. The homage of the fair daughters of Vienna was deeply gratifying to the Princess, and it was with evident pleasure, and not without emotion, that she gracefully accepted the bouquet from their hands.

The streets through which the procession passed were lined with troops. Upon the outer Burgplatz the scholars of the Neustadter and Technical Military Academy, with the cadets of the Infantry and Artillery Schools, were drawn up in order. Outside the palace gates various deputations selected to represent the principal public bodies and corporations were assembled. They numbered about 4500 persons, and carried the magnificent banners and other artistic emblems used on the occasion of the Silver Wedding of their Imperial Majesties two years ago. At length the procession reached the "Hofburg," or Imperial Palace, stopping before the "Ambassadors' Steps." The Queen and Princess, attended by the chamberlains and stewards of the Royal household, alighted from the carriage, and were received by the Emperor and Crown Prince. Followed by the whole suite, their Majesties and the bride proceeded through the rows of guards into the apartments where they were awaited by the Empress and the King of the Belgians.

THE MARRIAGE.

The wedding ceremony took place in the Palace Church of the Augustines, at eleven o'clock on Tuesday, the 10th inst. The interior of the church was decorated with Gobelins tapestry, purple damask hangings, and lighted crystal chandeliers. In front of the high altar, which was adorned with flowers, stood the gilded prie-dieu and the fauteuils of the Royal bride and bridegroom, above which was a baldachin brocaded with gold. Similar canopies overhung the seats on the right of the altar for the Emperor and Empress and the King and Queen of the Belgians. Close to the places of the Imperial family were the seats of the Prince of Wales, Prince William of Prussia, the Count of Flanders, and other princely visitors. There were seats for the Court officials, the ladies of the palace, the Knights of the Golden Fleece, the heads of the Austrian and Hungarian deputations, the representatives of the high corporate bodies, the Corps Diplomatique, the Army, and the Press. The representatives of the Austrian Episcopacy, arrayed in the gorgeous robes of Roman ecclesiastics, were joined by Cardinal Vanutelli, the Papal Nuncio, and by Cardinal Prince Schwarzenberg, Archbishop of Prague, who had to conduct the service. The bridal procession walked from the Palace to the church through the so-called Argus Passage. It was ushered on by the Lord High Steward, the Court Chamberlains, Privy Councillors, Knights of the Golden Fleece, and the Court Chaplain. These were followed, walking in pairs, by the Archduke Karl Ludwig and the Prince of Wales, Archduke Ludwig Victor and Prince William of Prussia, Duke of Tuscany and Lord Torrington (representing Queen Victoria), Archduke Joseph (brother to the Queen of the Belgians) and Prince Leopold of Bavaria, Archduke Heinrich and the Count of Flanders, Archduke Rainer and the Duke of Coburg, Archduke Sigismund and the Duke of Nassau, Archdukes William and Ernest. Then came the bridegroom—namely, the Crown Prince Rudolph, attended by his Chamberlains, and followed by the Emperor of Austria and the King of the Belgians, the Lord Chamberlain, the Officers of the Guard, and the Gentlemen of the Belgian Court.

The Empress and the Queen of the Belgians walked together, conducting Princess Stéphanie of Belgium between them, attended by their respective suites, and followed by the Archduchess Gisela and the Archduchess Clotilde, the Archduchess Maria Theresa and the Duchess of Tuscany, the Archduchess Marie and the Princess Victoria of Prussia, the Duchess of Coburg and the Countess of Flanders. The Chamberlains of the Royal Princesses escorted them on each side. The Ladies of the Robes and Ladies of Honour closed the procession. It was saluted, on its arrival, with a flourish of trumpets, and was received at the church steps by the Prince Archbishop of Prague. Their Majesties conducted the Bride and Bridegroom to the prie-dieu before the High Altar, and then took their own seats under the baldachins.

The Prince on the right and the Princess on the left knelt in devotion while the Prelate performed the consecration of the nuptial rings. They rose and, after bowing to their august parents, advanced together to the High Altar. The Archbishop delivered a short but impressive address; in which he alluded to the marriage of the present Emperor and Empress, solemnised in that church twenty-five years ago, and said that millions of their subjects would now join in beseeching the blessing of Heaven upon the Crown Prince and his bride. The Archbishop then put the usual questions, first to the Prince and then to the Princess. The Chaplain of the Hofburg presented the golden salver with the nuptial rings, and the Prince first placed one upon the finger of the Princess, who in her turn placed the other upon his hand. Then, joining hands, they received the benediction of the priest upon their union. At this moment salvoes of artillery from the "Burg Platz" broke in upon the solemn silence of the church, and announced the completion of the nuptial ceremony. The roar of the guns was succeeded by joyous peals from every church steeple in the city.

After a pause, all kneeling, the officiating Prelate offered up the usual prayers, and sprinkled the newly-married pair with holy water. They rose, and, bowing first before the altar and then to their parents, resumed their former places on the prie-dieu, while the Prelate intoned the "Te Deum Laudamus," which was taken up by the silvery voices of the choir. Six Pages of the Court were standing by the altar with burning tapers. Again resounded salvoes of artillery, followed by the pealing of the bells. When the "Te Deum" was finished, two Court Chaplains chanted the "Benedicamus Patrem," and the Prelate concluded by giving his blessing to the kneeling assemblage.

While the procession was re-forming the bride and bridegroom received the congratulations of their relatives and guests. The Emperor embraced and kissed the Crown Prince and the Crown Princess; and so did the Empress and the King and Queen of the Belgians. The procession left the church under a flourish of trumpets, in nearly the same order that it came; save that the newly-married pair walked together, in front of the Emperor and the King of the Belgians, who were followed by the Empress and the Queen of the Belgians.

---

The Council of the Royal Academy have testified their sense of the importance to artists of the new Copyright Bill of the Law Amendment Society by subscribing £50 towards the expenses. The Hibernian Academy of Arts, the Scottish Academy, the Society and Institute of Painters in Water Colours, the Society of Arts, and the Committee of the Grosvenor Gallery have each subscribed ten guineas; and the Printsellers' Association, £50.

The public school prize medals given annually by the Royal Geographical Society to encourage the study of geography in our public schools have been awarded as follows for the ensuing year:—In physical geography, the gold medal to R. G. Reid, of Dulwich College; and the silver medal to S. Edkins, of the City of London School. In political geography, the gold medal to T. Brooks, of the London International College; and the silver medal to C. T. Knaus, of Dulwich College. Boys from the following schools obtain "honourable mention:"—Harrow, Winchester, Dulwich, London International College, Manchester Grammar School, and Liverpool College.

ROYAL INSTITUTION LECTURES.

HYDROGEN.

Professor Dewar, F.R.S., in his second lecture on the Non-Metallic Elements, given on Tuesday, the 3rd inst., resumed his experimental illustrations of the phenomena connected with the occlusion of hydrogen gas by palladium. That hydrogen combines with iron and other metals was demonstrated, and it was stated that a meteorite, when heated by the late Professor Graham, gave off gas of which at least 85·5 per cent was hydrogen; from which he inferred that the meteorite must have been ignited in an atmosphere of which the prevailing ingredient was hydrogen, in a highly condensed state. The absorption of oxygen gas by silver in a state of fusion, and the expulsion of the gas as if from a volcanic crater when the metal cooled, was well shown, and the great difference between this phenomenon and the occlusion of hydrogen by palladium was pointed out. As no non-metallic element in a gaseous state has been observed in the chromosphere of the sun, the presence of hydrogen in it is regarded as a very important evidence of the metallic character of this gas. Some striking illustrations of the results obtained by the scientific application of powerful and low silent electric currents were given, and the universal action of the latter in the processes of vegetation was specially noticed.

OZONE.—ATMOSPHERIC ELECTRICITY.

Professor Dewar in his third lecture, given on Tuesday, the 10th inst., illustrated the production and properties of ozone, a modified state of the oxygen of the atmosphere, observed by Schönbein of Basel in 1840, during the decomposition of water by the electric current. Ozone is produced by the electric discharge, and by various forms of oxidation in the atmosphere, and by the combustion of phosphorus in the presence of moisture. During its formation it stores up much energy, and is consequently a more powerful oxidiser than oxygen itself. Successive researches have demonstrated ozone to be really three volumes of oxygen compressed into two. How its presence may be readily tested by the iodate of starch was explained. Illustrations were also given of the formation of nitrates and nitrous acid in the atmosphere by silent electrical discharges, with suggestions as to the way in which plants probably combine the nitrogen essential to their growth. In the latter part of the lecture the Professor considered and explained the origin of atmospheric electricity. The enormous energy required for the electric discharges in the atmosphere can be most readily obtained from the precipitation of aqueous vapour, as cloud, fog, or ice globules. Experiments were shown to prove that vapour precipitates most readily when the temperature is reduced in presence of finely suspended solid matter, which always exists in air, but which can be removed by passing it over cotton-wool. In pure air precipitation takes place in large spheres of water, which fall slowly. In impure air the spherules are very small, and take a long time to fall, thus producing a mist. The actual amount of solid matter required to generate this misty state of the water particles does not exceed the fourteen-thousandth part of a milligramme; so that the reaction, for delicacy, can only be compared with spectroscopic tests. The fine spheres of water produce coronas round flame; the large ones do not. The recent experiments of Coulier and Aitken on this subject were illustrated, and will be continued.

TERRESTRIAL MAGNETISM.

Professor Tyndall in his second lecture, on Thursday, the 8th inst., specially referred to Robert Norman's observation of the inclination or dip of the magnetic needle in 1576, which is due to the attraction of the earth. At the equator the position of the needle is horizontal; but it dips more and more as it is carried northwards, till at the magnetic north pole it becomes vertical, which was ascertained by Sir James Ross on June 1, 1831. A long-continued series of observations has demonstrated that the earth is really a great magnet, with properties like those of ordinary magnets. By projecting the magnified shadow of a circular steel magnet upon the screen, and causing iron filings to be strewed upon the magnet, Professor Tyndall showed how the lines of force proceed from the earth. He also showed how bodies are magnetised by induced terrestrial currents, and then explained and illustrated the principles involved in the diurnal variation of the declination of the magnetic needle. He also alluded to the relation observed between the periodicity of the maximum of auroræ boreales and of the solar spots, and the probability that the sun acts upon the earth just as one magnet acts upon another. The action of the moon upon the magnetic needle was also noticed. Among other experiments, the Professor showed how the polarity of a magnetised poker was changed by percussion. Finally, he exhibited the lines of force produced from a copper wire, a non-magnetic metal, which had been magnetised by means of an electric current.

ELECTRO-MAGNETISM.

Professor Tyndall, in beginning his third lecture, on Thursday, the 12th inst., commented on the long-continued invaluable labours of Sir Edward Sabine and others at various Government observatories, in different parts of the world, in relation to terrestrial magnetism, and on the very important researches of Sir G. B. Airy and Mr. Archibald Smith for neutralising the dangerous effects of the earth's magnetic currents upon iron ships. He then gave a number of experiments illustrating the phenomena of electro-magnetism. A copper wire and a coil or helix of copper-wire, when connected with a voltaic battery, behaved precisely as an ordinary magnet. The magnetism of the helix was greatly increased by the insertion of a core of soft iron. Magnetism was infused into them by the electric current. He then explained and illustrated Ampère's theory of molecular currents. The alternate minute elongation and contraction of a bar of iron, when magnetised and demagnetised, was well shown by the movements of a spot of light reflected from a small mirror attached to the bar. Sir William Grove's beautiful experiment, exhibiting the movements of magnetised particles of magnetic oxide, was well shown; and the influence of the magnet upon the green vapour of silver in the arc between the poles of the voltaic battery was very striking. In conclusion, the construction of Reiss's telephone, invented in in 1861, was explained, and sounds produced by it in the laboratory were distinctly heard in the theatre.

THE LAND SYSTEMS OF ENGLAND AND IRELAND.

The Hon. George C. Brodrick, in beginning his discourse at the weekly evening meeting on Friday, the 6th instant, stated that the English and Irish land systems have a common historical origin—namely, a tribal settlement or village community, representing a clan or group of kindred families. This left no room for the present threefold division of landlords, tenant-farmers, and farm labourers. Gradually the chief members of the clan obtained larger allotments, and formed a landed aristocracy, under which the village community became the manor, the greater freeholders became tenants, and the lesser sank to the class of villeins or mere labourers. These changes were effected in England before the Norman conquest, and in Ireland before the rule of Henry II. During the Middle Ages this land system was profoundly affected by the introduction of feudal tenures. Feudalism, it was said, is still the real basis of our present land systems, though legally abolished in the reign of Charles II.; and it continued to regulate those of the Continent till the French Revolution. The chief indelible features of feudalism which Mr. Brodrick discussed and illustrated were:—1, The law of primogeniture; 2, family settlements; 3, the consequent distribution of land among a comparatively small and decreasing number of families; 4, the cultivation of the land by a class of tenant-farmers, holding from year to year, and frequently without the security of a lease; and, 5, the dependent condition of the agricultural labourers, hired daily or weekly, and seldom having any interest in the soil. In these respects, when compared with other countries, England is unique. Adverting to Ireland, he gave many details respecting the relative positions of the landowners, the tenant-farmers, and the cottiers. In his concluding remarks he expressed his conviction that no land reforms can be permanent or beneficial which are not in harmony with the organic and apparently indestructible elements of our national character.

MENTAL IMAGES AND VISION.

Mr. Francis Galton, F.R.S., began his discourse at the Friday evening meeting, the 13th inst., by stating that, during his inquiries respecting Mental Imagery, he had met with many sane and healthy persons subject to visions or hallucinations of sight or sound. Scenes flashed unaccountably across their mind's eye, reaching from the lowest to the highest forms. Under these he ranked the "number forms," which are fixed patterns, peculiar to individuals, in which those who see them find their visualised numbers invariably to arrange themselves. Another form is the involuntary association of colour with sounds. A large and very curious diagram, drawn by the Rev. J. Key, of Graham's Town, South Africa, was exhibited, showing letters, words, and colours. A third form of vision—the association of features or faces with words—was exhibited by sketches, contributed by Mrs. Haweis, the authoress. The poet Goethe stated that whenever he bent his head, closed his eyes, and thought of a rose, a sort of rosette appeared, and continued unfolding its petals, so long as he chose to watch it. Illustrations of the forms of vision experienced by the Rev. George Henslow were also shown. Another stage of vision is the phantasmagoria—a crowd of faces seen by many in the dark, just before sleeping, and by some in daylight. In relation to these, Mr. Galton referred to his own experience. In one case, a solitary link in a chain of events was wholly isolated from the rest. So it is in visions; one link in a series of brain actions lies within the domain of consciousness, while all that precedes or follows lies without, and the existence of such can only be inferred. The formation of faces in the fire, on wall papers, &c., was attributed to the narrowness of distinct vision, much aided by imagination. Three lantern photograph images were exhibited of selected, rejected, and supplied pictures of faces. A dioramic combination of the first two produced the picture as it fell on the retina, and a combination of the first and last produced the illusion. Other illustrated explanations were given, with interesting anecdotes.

EARLY SCOTTISH LITERATURE.

Professor Henry Morley began his second lecture on Saturday the 7th inst., with remarks on the evidence of the old Scandinavian spirit in the Border ballads, of which "Chevy Chace," celebrating the battle of Otterburn, on Aug. 19, 1388, was described as a typical example. After noticing the "Oryginall Cronykil of Scotland," in octosyllabic metre, by Andrew Wyntoun, prior of St. Serf, Lochleven, about 1420, who collected many quaint legends, the Professor characterised the "Adventures of Sir William Wallace," written by Blind Harry, a wandering minstrel, about 1461, as less refined than "the Bruce," by Archdeacon Barbour, and containing mythical incidents, yet full of natural vigour. The metre, varying with the subject, indicates French influence. Literature, which languished in England in the latter part of the fifteenth century, through the desolating War of the Roses, flourished in Scotland, and poets abounded, favoured by the Court of James IV. Eminent among these was Robert Henryson, the first Scottish pastoral poet, deeply imbued with a sense of nature. As a specimen of this work Professor Morley read "Robin and Makyn," a dialogue. Henryson produced "Fables," in which Scottish humour and wisdom are mingled, and vigorous lyrics. William Dunbar, the first really great poet after Chaucer, was born about 1460, and some of his works were printed by Andrew Miller and Walter Chapman, the first licensed to print in Edinburgh, in 1507. His works are allegorical, moral, and comic. As a specimen, the Professor read the pathetic "Lament of the [deceased] Makers" (or poets), each verse ending with the Latin words, "Timor mortis conturbat me" ("The fear of death disturbeth me"). The productions of Gavin Douglas, Bishop of Dunkeld, the translator of the Æneid of Virgil about 1513, were described as frequently verbose and conventional. Sir David Lindsay, born about 1490, had the charge of James V. from his infancy, and was his lifelong faithful friend and monitor, as shown in many poems, such as "The Dream" and "The Complaint." "The Satire of the Three Estates," a morality play, which combined broad humour with deep pathos, was performed before the King and Court in 1539, and no doubt conduced to the "friendly act of reformation" soon after. Lindsay eventually became an associate of John Knox, who warmly supported the ecclesiastical and moral code established by Calvin at Geneva in 1541, and made it the basis of the Scottish National Church.

LATER SCOTTISH LITERATURE.

Professor Henry Morley in his third lecture, given on Saturday last, the 14th inst., after some remarks on John Knox, to whom Scotland owes its popular national education, and giving an extract from his violent "Blast of the Trumpet against the Monstrous Regiment of Women" in 1558, quoted one of the "Godly and Spiritual Songs" of the time, directed against the Pope. He then gave a rapid sketch of the life and works of George Buchanan (1506—1582), renowned for his Latin poems and plays, and for his keen satires against the Franciscans, for which he suffered much persecution. The poetry of William Drummond of Hawthornden (1585—1649), the associate of Ben Jonson, were said to show more refinement than vigour; while the "Apology for the Quakers," by Robert Barclay, was cited as a specimen of sharp warning addressed to Charles II. (1678). After noticing the depressing influence of formalism and rationalism in the beginning of the eighteenth century, Professor Morley commented on the revival of the sense of nature, apparent in the "Gentle Shepherd" of the kindhearted, cheery Allan Ramsay, and the elegant "Seasons," which prove James Thomson to have been a close observer of the phenomena he describes. David Hume was characterised as among the first to apply the philosophic study of cause to our history. Smollett's novels were referred to as exhibiting a deep knowledge of human nature, with broadly humorous pictures of the life of the time; and Adam Smith, in his "Wealth of Nations," laid the foundation of the success of modern political economy. "The Farmer's Inglo" of the unfortunate Robert Ferguson, and the immortal lyrics of his great successor, Robert Burns, having been commented on, the lecture closed with a graphic sketch of the life of Sir Walter Scott, who, after attaining great prosperity, when he found himself face to face with ruin, did not succumb, but died an honest man, and died for his honesty.

Professor Roscoe will give a discourse on the Artificial Production of Indigo on Friday evening next, the 27th inst.

THE COURT.

Her Majesty during the past week, previous to her departure for the Highlands, has entertained numerous guests both at luncheon and at dinner, the visitors having included Princess Christian, the Grand Duke and Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, the Duke of Cambridge, the Count d'Eu, the Archbishop of Canterbury and Miss Tait, the Portuguese Minister, and Madame d'Antas, the Belgian Minister, and Madame Solvyns, the United States Minister, Mr. and Mrs. Gladstone, and various distinguished personages.

Princess Louise of Lorne and Prince Leopold have been staying with the Queen at Windsor.

The Lord Steward and the Comptroller of the Household have had audiences of her Majesty to present addresses from both Houses of Parliament, and the Judge Advocate-General has also had an audience of the Queen.

Her Majesty and the Royal family attended Divine service on Sunday, in the private chapel of the castle; the Rev. Francis Paget, Tutor of Christ Church, Oxford, officiating.

On Monday the Queen and Princess Beatrice visited the Empress Eugénie at Coombe Cottage, Malden. The journey was made by railway viâ Twickenham Junction to Norbiton, whence her Majesty drove to her destination. Among those assembled on the route to give loyal greeting were the inmates of the Kingston Union.

The King and Queen of Sweden and Norway arrived from Bournemouth on Tuesday on a visit to the Queen, and his Majesty was invested with the Order of the Garter.

Her Majesty held a Council on Wednesday. The first state concert of the season was given the same evening at Buckingham Palace.

The favourite peacocks of the late Lord Beaconsfield have been sent from Hughenden Manor to the Queen at Windsor by her Majesty's desire.

The Queen expressed a wish that the group entitled "The Good Shepherd," modelled by the Rev. Canon Harford, may be reproduced in bronze for her.

Viscount Torrington has returned from Vienna, where he was deputed to represent her Majesty at the nuptials of the Crown Prince Rudolph and Crown Princess Stéphanie.

It is stated that the Queen has determined, on the occasion of her approaching birthday, to confer upon Prince Leopold the style and title of the Duke of Albany.

Her Majesty has received a copy of the newly-revised New Testament at the hands of the Archbishop of Canterbury, as representing the Committee of Revision.

Her Majesty has signified her intention of holding the volunteer review on July 9.

Sir John Cowell, by command of the Queen, attended the funeral of the late Mr. Andrew Toward, at Whippingham church. Mr. Toward was for thirty-nine years land steward at Osborne to the Queen.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince of Wales was received and fêted at Pesth with the utmost enthusiasm. He attended the spring races last Saturday, when, upon his arrival upon the course, the military bands in attendance played "God Save the Queen." In the evening the Magyar nobility gave a ball at the Hôtel de l'Europe in honour of his Royal Highness. On Sunday the Prince dined with Count Andrassy, and was present afterwards at a soirée given by him.

An official communication to the Swansea Corporation states that the Prince will open the new dock at that port in October, when the Princess will probably accompany him.

The Princess has accepted from Lord Carrington, as chairman of the Central Chamber of Agriculture, two shawls manufactured in British wools. Her Royal Highness dined with Lord and Lady Suffield on Tuesday.

Madame Curt Schulz has played her newly-introduced instrument, the Hungarian pedal cymbal, before the Princess.

A Reuter's telegram of Monday from Albany, Western Australia, states:—Her Majesty's ship Bacchante, having on board Princes Albert Victor and George of Wales, has arrived here partially disabled, having been struck during a gale by a heavy sea, which injured her steering gear, carried away her life-boat, and did other damage. The Bacchante consequently parted from the detached squadron on the 12th inst., and has put in here for repairs. If all goes well she will join the squadron on the 19th at Cape Otway, south-west from Port Phillip. The two Princes are in perfect health.

Princess Christian opened a bazaar at the Cannon-street Hotel last Saturday in aid of the funds of Mrs. Hilton's crèche, infant home and infant infirmary.

Princess Louise of Lorne, with Prince Leopold, dined with Mr. Cyril Flower, M.P., and Mrs. Cyril Flower on Monday at Surrey House, Hyde Park-place. After dinner Mrs. Flower held her first assembly. The Princess and Prince Leopold have been to the Royal Italian Opera, Covent-garden; and her Royal Highness has inspected the old church of Great St. Helen's, Bishopsgate, and Crosby Hall, the old palace of Richard III., and has visited the United Arts Gallery.

The Duke and Duchess of Connaught were present at the opening of Gordon House, Endsleigh-gardens, as a home for German girls of the working class. The German Ambassador presided at a luncheon, and among those present were the Earl and Countess of Aberdeen, who have been the principal contributors to the expense of opening the home. The Duchess declared the opening.

Prince Leopold has visited the International Exhibition of Milling Machinery at the Agricultural Hall.

The Grand Duke and Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz and the Duchess of Teck have lunched with Baroness Burdett-Coutts and Mr. Burdett-Coutts-Bartlett.

On Tuesday, at Moor Park, Rickmansworth, the seat of Lord Ebury, great rejoicings took place, it being Lord and Lady Ebury's "golden wedding" day. The tenantry presented them with a congratulatory address and a silver inkstand, the tradespeople a similar address and a silver épergne, and the servants of the household a silver candelabrum.

Messrs. Radclyffe and Co., of High Holborn, have been awarded a silver medal and diploma for their umbrella fountain in the Norwich Fisheries Exhibition.

Thirty-six thousand emigrants left Liverpool last month for the United States, showing an increase of six thousand on the number that left in April last year.

THE CHURCH.

PREFERMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.

Bedford-Jones, Canon, to be Archdeacon of Ontario.
Berry, W. B., Vicar of Hoddlesden, near Darwen; Vicar of Smallbridge.
Browne, Henry Cavendish; Rector of Bredon.
Brown, J. R., Vicar of Oughtibridge, near Sheffield; Rector of Helland, near Bodmin.
Buck, R. H. K., Rector of St. Dominick; Honorary Canon of St. Germoe in Truro Cathedral.
Chappel, William Pester, Rector of Camborne; Honorary Canon of St. Constantine in Truro Cathedral.
Devereux, Nicholas Jessop; Vicar of St. Mary's, Hoxton.
Duke, H. H., Vicar of Westbury; Rector of Brixton Deverill, Salisbury.
Escott, William Sweet; Perpetual Curate of Crewkerne.
Johnson, John Allen; Vicar of Biddlestone-cum-Slaughterford, Wilts.
Lowe, Charles; Vicar of Holy Trinity, Bolton-le-Moors.
Melville, David, Rector of Great Witley; Canon of Worcester.
Milsom, Edward, Assistant-Curate of St. Stephen's, Lewisham, S.E.; Vicar of Helperthorpe, York.
Nichols, Henry Reginald; Curate of Skelton-in-Cleveland.
Pope, A., Vicar of Preston-on-Wye and Blakemere; Vicar of Diddlebury.
Prest, Edward, Archdeacon of Durham; Rector of Ryton.
Reed, Charles Martyn; Rector of Hasfield.
Richardson, H. H., Honorary Canon; Canon-Residentiary, Cathedral of Argyll and the Isles.
Ritchie, Robert; Incumbent of St. Anne's, Cupar-Angus, N.B.
Shepherd, W. R.; Vicar of Preston-on-Wye with Blakemere.
Smart, Edward Henry; Vicar of Kirby-in-Cleveland.
Smyth, Arthur; Curate of North Ormsby.
Tahourdin, S. K., Curate of Holy Trinity, Westminster; Minor Canon in H.M. Chapel Royal of St. George, Windsor Castle.
Thornton, F. V.; Honorary Canon of Truro Cathedral.
Torre, Nicholas Kirkby; Curate in Sole Charge of South Marston, Wilts.
Tudor, J. L.; Vicar of Turkdean.
Vidal, R. W. Sealy; Vicar of Abbotsham, North Devon.
Wanstall, E. F.; Vicar of St. George's, near Wellington, Shropshire.
Yarranton, A. J.; Perpetual Curate of Burtle, Diocese of Bath and Wells.

The spring conference of the Church Association was held last week at Willis's Rooms.

The anniversary Festival of the Sons of the Clergy was held on Wednesday, under the dome of St. Paul's Cathedral.

A fine five-light Munich window, by Messrs. Mayer and Co., has been placed in Dinnington church to the memory of Mr. John Carver Athorpe, of Dinnington Hall.

The new Church of St. Alban's, Birmingham, was opened on the 2nd inst.; but, in consequence of the heavy debt which remains upon the building, its consecration has been deferred.

The Rev. W. Warburton, Inspector of the Winchester District, succeeds Canon Tinling as Inspector of Training Colleges for Schoolmistresses in England and Wales.

At St. Jude's Church, Southsea, on Sunday week, a member of the congregation put in the collecting bag a cheque for £2000 in aid of the fund for a new church in the parish.

The Queen has issued a Commission to inquire into the constitution and working of the Ecclesiastical Courts as created or modified under the Reformation Statutes of the 24th and 25th years of King Henry VIII. and any subsequent Acts.

The Rev. Thomas Dugdale Harland, M.A., M.L., on his resignation of the curacy of Stretford, Manchester, has received from the congregation, the choir, and the Sunday schools, numerous tokens of regard and esteem.

The Archbishop of Canterbury on the 7th inst. consecrated the new chancel of St. Mary's Church, Plaistow, which has been added at a cost of £2063. Although begun so long ago as 1864, the edifice still lacks two transepts and a tower.

The Archbishop of Canterbury on Saturday last consecrated a new church, built by Mrs. Hall at Faversham to perpetuate the memory of her late husband, Mr. W. W. Hall, of the firm of gunpowder manufacturers, in the district known as the Brents suburb of Faversham.

Under the presidency of the Archbishop of Canterbury, the sixty-third annual meeting of the Incorporated Church Building Society was held on the 9th inst. at the offices, 7, Whitehall. The report for the year showed that applications had greatly increased, while only a small increase in the subscriptions had been made on the amount collected in 1879-80.

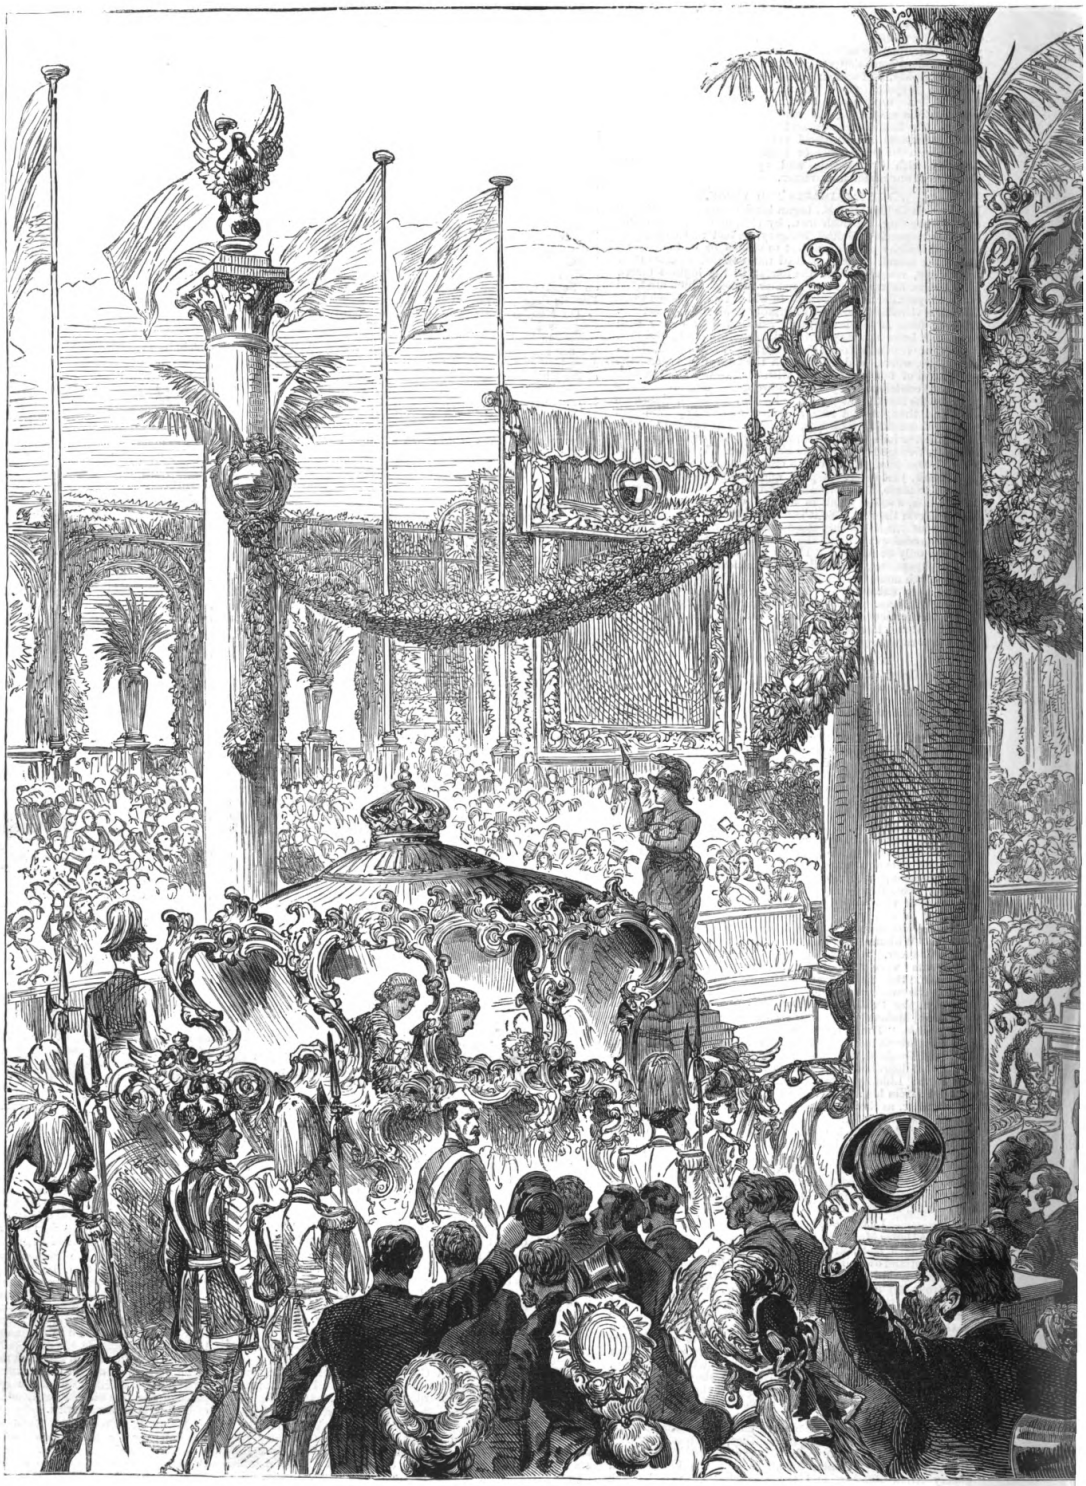
The Convocation of Canterbury resumed its sittings on Tuesday, when a formal report was made of the completion of the Revision of the New Testament, and the Primate said he hoped at no distant time that the Revision of the Old Testament would be finished. A committee was appointed to consider the subject of the inadequate performance of duties by clergymen; and the Lower House passed a resolution in favour of constituting a Board of Missions.

The galleries having been removed from St. Mary's Church, Bury St. Edmund's, one of the noblest parish churches in England, five large three-light windows in the south aisle have been filled by Messrs. Heaton, Butler, and Bayne with some admirable painted glass, in memory of departed friends of the several donors—Mr. Sparke, Mr. Clayton, Mr. Stow, Mr. King, and Miss Wright. These windows form part of a series of ten, and the subject to be illustrated throughout is "The Triumph of Faith," as exemplified in the 11th chapter of Hebrews. It is hoped that the remaining five windows in the aisle may before long receive the attention of generous persons anxious to provide a graceful memorial of those who have "gone before."

According to a long-established custom, Messrs. Webster and Larkin have issued a second edition of "Webster's Royal Red Book." That the work is corrected down to a very recent date is shown by the omission of Lord Beaconsfield's name from the alphabetical list of names, and also from the list of residents in Curzon-street and from the members of her Majesty's Privy Council; to which the names of Sir Arthur Hobhouse and other recently "sworn" members are added. The name of Lord Carlingford also appears as Lord Privy Seal in the room of the Duke of Argyll.

At meeting of the School Board for London, on the 12th inst., a deputation, headed by Mr. J. Beal, presented a memorial having reference to the proposed scheme of the Charity Commissioners for the future administration of Christ's Hospital. The deputation urged that instead of the scheme of the Charity Commissioners the property of the hospital should be realised and applied to the maintenance of day schools for both sexes throughout the metropolis, or in some other way, to advance the education of the great mass of the poorer class. The memorial was referred to the Educational Endowments Committee. The meeting was made special to elect a member in place of the late Sir Charles Reed, and Mr. B. S. Olding was elected by a large majority.

Mr. G. E. Baker, M.A., Magdalen College, the secretary to the Delegacy for the Oxford Local Examinations, has issued a tabular statement of the total number of candidates and of the subjects offered for the examination, which begins on Monday, May 30, at two p.m. There are thirty-seven centres this year, being four in excess of last year. The number of junior candidates this year is 1631, of whom 418 are girls and 1213 boys, being an increase of 159 candidates over last year. The number of senior candidates this year is 777, of whom 395 are girls and 382 boys, being an increase of 97 over last year. The total number of candidates this year is 2412, against 2116 last year. There will be an examination for "women" candidates at thirteen centres this year.



THE IMPERIAL MARRIAGE AT VIENNA

FROM A SKETCH BY O

ATE ENTRY OF THE BRIDE INTO VIENNA.

AL ARTIST. – SEE PAGE 505.

OBITUARY.

SIR JOHN DIGBY MURRAY, BART.

Lieutenant-Colonel Sir John Digby Murray, Bart., of Blackbarony, in the county of Peebles, formerly of the Scots Fusilier Guards, died at Florence on the 8th inst. He was born April 17, 1798, the second son of Sir John Murray, eighth Baronet, by Anne, his wife, daughter of Mr. John Digby, of Sandylane, in the county of Limerick, and succeeded to the baronetcy at the death of his elder brother, Sir Archibald John Murray, in 1860. He married, first, 1823, Susannah, daughter of Mr. James Cuthbert; and secondly, 1827, Frances, daughter and coheir of Mr. Patten-Bold, of Bold Hall, M.P., and by the latter leaves issue. The eldest son is now Sir Digby Murray, eleventh Baronet, of Blackbarony. The baronetcy of this old family was conferred by Charles I. on Sir Archibald Murray, of Blackbarony, in 1628.

DR. SANDWITH.

Humphrey Sandwith, M.D., C.B., died at 26, Avenue Friedland, Paris, on the 16th inst. He was born in 1822, the eldest son of Dr. Sandwith, an eminent Yorkshire physician; and settled at Constantinople in 1849 to follow the medical profession. Thus commenced his connection with the East, where he subsequently acquired so much distinction and celebrity. He was attached to Mr. Layard's expedition to Nineveh; and in 1853, after the Russian and Turkish war broke out, joined General Beatson's force on the Danube as medical officer. Not long after, when General Williams undertook the defence of Kars, Sandwith was appointed chief of his medical staff, and performed his arduous duties in that memorable siege with the greatest humanity and skill. On his return home he published his work "The Siege of Kars," descriptive of an episode of historic importance with which the names of Williams, Lake, and Sandwith will be for ever associated. The Queen conferred on him the decoration of C.B., and the University of Oxford the honorary degree of D.C.L. In 1857 Dr. Sandwith was made Colonial Secretary in the Mauritius, and remained in that office until 1860. A few years later, in 1868, he contested, unsuccessfully, the borough of Marylebone, on Liberal principles. He was always devoted to Servia, and was regarded as the chief representative in Western Europe of Servian interests.

The Hon. Maria Wrottesley, daughter of John, first Lord Wrottesley, by Lady Caroline, his wife, daughter of Charles Earl of Tankerville, on the 2nd inst., aged seventy-two.

Lady Du Cane (Mary Dorothea), wife of Colonel Sir Edmund Frederick Du Cane, K.C.B., Royal Engineers, and daughter of Lieut.-Colonel Molloy, Rifle Brigade, on the 13th inst., aged forty-six.

Colonel George Sim, of the Royal (late Bengal) Engineers, on the 13th inst., at his residence, Sparrows Herne, Bushey-heath, near Watford, in the fifty-eighth year of his age. He served in the Sutlej campaign, and was present at the battle of Sobraon.

The Rev. Charles John Elliott, M.A., Vicar of Winkfield, and hon. Canon of Christ Church Oxford, on the 11th inst., in his sixty-second year. Mr. Elliott graduated at St. Catharine's College, Cambridge, in 1840. Known as an accomplished Hebraist, he was appointed on the Old Testament Revision Committee, now sitting.

The Venerable Richard Brindley Hone, M.A., Archdeacon of Worcester, and Rector of Halesowen, near Birmingham, on the 5th inst., aged seventy-six. He graduated at Brasenose College, Oxford, in 1827, was ordained in the following year, and in 1836 became Rector of Halesowen. In 1845 he was appointed to an honorary canonry in Worcester Cathedral, and in 1849 to the archdeaconry of Worcester.

Mr. Ambrose Isted, of Ecton, Northamptonshire, D.L., on the 13th inst., in his eighty-fifth year—a considerable landed proprietor, representing an old Northamptonshire family. He married first, in 1832, Eleanor Elizabeth, daughter of the Hon. Richard Bruce Stopford, which lady died in 1851; and secondly, in 1853, the Hon. Frances Elizabeth, daughter of Thomas, Viscount Anson, and widow of the Hon. Charles John Murray.

Lady Henry Moore, mother of the Marquis of Drogheda, recently, at her residence in Eccleston-square, aged seventy-eight. She was the second daughter of Sir Henry Parnell, Bart., afterwards Lord Congleton, and married Lord Henry Seymour Moore, Sept. 28, 1824. Her husband died in August, 1825, and by him she had an only son, the present Marquis of Drogheda. She remained a widow five years, when she married Mr. Edward Henry Cole, of Stoke Lyne, Oxon.

Sir Robert Bowcher Clarke, C.B., late Chief Justice of Barbadoes, on the 9th, at Eldridge, Chisellhurst, aged seventy-eight. He was the eldest son of the late Mr. Robert Bowcher Clarke, of Eldridge, in the island of Barbadoes. In 1827 he took his degree at Trinity College, Cambridge, and was called to the Bar in the same year. He held the office of Solicitor-General in Barbadoes from 1837 to 1842, and was also Speaker of the House of Assembly. In 1842 he was appointed Chief Justice of Barbadoes, and he also held the Chief Justiceship of St. Lucia from 1848 to 1859. He retired in 1874.

The Hon. and Rev. William Howard, M.A., Hon. Canon of York, and Rector of Whiston, in Yorkshire, on the 12th inst., at his Rectory. He was born April 23, 1815, the third son of Kenneth-Alexander, first Earl of Effingham, G.C.B., by Charlotte, his wife, daughter of Neil, third Earl of Rosebery. He was educated at Christ Church, Oxford, and graduated third class in classics and mathematics. The rectory of Whiston he held from 1841, and the hon. canonry of Driffield from 1862. He married, Feb. 12 in that year, Barbara Frances Wilhelmina, daughter of Lieutenant-General Chester.

Mr. Robert Artkington, of Leeds, has given to the Freedmen's Aid Society—an organisation for evangelising Africa by means of coloured American ex-slaves—£3000 for the purpose of extending their operations in East Central Africa, and steps are at once to be taken to accomplish the project.

Mr. Joseph Armitage Robinson, has been elected a Fellow of Christ's College, Cambridge. Mr. Robinson was fourth Classic in the Tripos of 1881, Chancellor's Classical Gold Medallist of the same year, and one of the Winchester Reading Prizemen of 1880.

A Parliamentary return was issued yesterday week, "arranged according to counties, showing the number of accounts of depositors in Post-Office savings banks remaining open on Dec. 31, 1879," and the amount of interest standing to the credit of those accounts. The total amount so lodged was £32,012,134. Of this England deposited £29,051,024; Wales, £898,575; Scotland, £572,479; Ireland, £1,417,338; and the islands in the British seas, £72,665.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications relating to this department of the Paper should be addressed to the Editor, and have the word "Chess" written on the envelope.

A G (Maida-vale).—There are nearly fifty chess clubs in the metropolis, and we cannot devote space to such a long list. You can get the information you require from the "Chess Club Directory," published by Bemrose and Sons, 10, Paternoster-buildings.

Dr B L (New York).—You will find the answer to your inquiry in our issue of April 2 last.

Pilgrim (Bolton).—The late Mr. Staunton was born, as he himself informed us, in the year 1810. He was consequently only fourteen years old when the famous correspondence match between London and Edinburgh was commenced in 1824.

Shadforth.—We missed you from the list that week. Your letter must have miscarried in transit. Your solution of No. 1939 is, of course, correct.

H S.—We should not have supposed that any one required to be told the mating stroke in a two-move problem. In No. 1939, after the move 1. K to Kt 4th, if Black play 1. Kt to K B 4th, White's answer is 2. Q to Q 8th, checkmate. You are usually so successful that we fancy you must have set up the position incorrectly.

E W Y (Cape Town).—We shall be glad to hear of your success in establishing a chess club in your locality. The problems inclosed in your letter shall be examined.

L L G (Wells).—The law relating to counting fifty moves becomes operative only when one player has sufficient force on the board to effect mate and the other has not. When the weaker side has Pawns left there is no case for counting, because there is then a possible mating power in the promotion of one of them.

T M M (Secunderabad).—Your problems are held over until you have sent the solutions, which should have accompanied them in the first instance. A Pawn, when advanced to the royal rank, may be promoted to any piece except a King.

R J S B (Newington-butts).—A chess club for ladies is held at the Ladies' College, Little Queen-street, Holborn. Mrs. Bowen is the president.

Correct Solutions of Problems No. 1936 received from T M Manickum (Secunderabad); of No. 1938 from Dr B Lorinz (New York); and of Nos. 1938 and 1939 from Ya, U.S.

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1940 received from Shadforth, J Haigh, A C (Staines), John Tucker, N M Carrig, Leslie Lachlan, William Miller, Espanol, and James Atkinson.

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1941 received from A C (Staines), Indagator, John Tucker, N M Carrig, J Haigh, J P H (Arundel), Espanol, J J Heaton, W D Hutchins, G Michal (Rotterdam), James Atkinson, and E J S Baldwin.

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1942 received from H B, S Farrant, Jupiter Junior, H H Noyes, F G Parslow, R Ingerroll, D Templeton, C W Milsom, F Ferris, S Lowndes, C8 Coxe, W J Rudman, R J Vines, E Elsbury, Nerina, T Holdron, J G Anstee, Ben Nevis, W Hillier, E Tweddell, N Waddell, R L Dyke, L L Greenaway, Aaron Harper, An Old Hand, C Gawald, Kitten, L Falcon (Antwerp), H Blacklock, Elsie, L Sharwood, E Sharwood, G Fulder (Ghent), M O Halloran, H K Awdry, G W Law, R Gray, D W Kell, Shadforth, E L G, J Alois Schmucke, Albert Mass, J W W, A Chapman, Maurice Abrahams (Paris), Fire Fly, Alpha, James Dobson, Pilgrim, R H Brooks, Leslie Lachlan, Dr F8t, J Perez Ventoso, Norman Rumbelow, John O Mills, E Louden, Frank Littlebov, Lulu, and Henry Frau (Lyons).

Solution of Problem No. 1941.

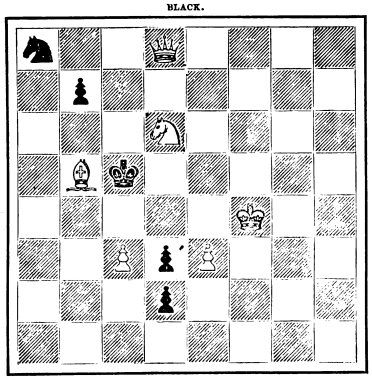
| WHITE. | BLACK. |
|---|---|
| 1. K to Q 2nd | R to K 7th (ch)* |
| 2. Kt takes R (ch) | K to K 4th |
| 3. Q takes P. Mate. | |

*If 1. B takes Kt, then 2. B to K 5th, mating next move with Q or Kt, according to Black's play.

PROBLEM No. 1944.

By W. H. Taylor (Yokohama).

BLACK.



WHITE.

White to play, and mate in three moves.

Played in London between Mr. Aylmer Maude, of Moscow, and Herr Zukertort.

(Queen's Bishop's Pawn Opening.)

| WHITE (Mr. M.) | BLACK (Herr Z.) |
|---|---|
| 1. P to K 4th | P to K 4th |
| 2. Kt to K B 3rd | Kt to Q B 3rd |
| 3. P to Q B 3rd | Kt to K B 3rd |
| 4. P to Q 4th | Kt takes P |
| 5. P to Q 5th | B to B 4th |

This fine counter-stroke is, we believe, the invention of Mr. G. B. Fraser, of Dundee.

| | |
|---|---|
| 6. P takes Kt | B takes P (ch) |
| 7. K to K 2nd | Kt P takes P |

Black may also play 7. P to Q 4th without disadvantage. The move in the text is generally considered slightly inferior.

| | |
|---|---|
| 8. Q to R 4th | P to K B 4th |
| 9. Q Kt to Q 2nd | Castles |
| 10. Kt takes Kt | P takes Kt |
| 11. Q takes P (at K 4th) | P to Q 4th |
| 12. Q takes K P | |

Most of the analysts concur in the opinion that this coup, giving up the Queen for Rook and Bishop, is better than retreating the Q to R 4th or B 2nd.

| WHITE (Mr. M.) | BLACK (Herr Z.) |
|---|---|
| 12. | R to K sq |
| 13. Q takes R (ch) | Q takes Q (ch) |
| 14. K takes B | B to Kt 5th |
| 15. B to Q 3rd | Q to R 4th |
| 16. B to Q 2nd | R to K B sq |
| 17. B to K 2nd | P to Q 6th |
| 18. P takes P | Q to R 5th (ch) |
| 19. K to B sq | B takes Kt |
| 20. P takes B | Q takes P (at Q 5th) |
| 21. B to B 3rd | |

Black, it is likely enough, anticipated this move when he advanced the P to Q 5th. White cannot now do better than force the draw at once, or remain with both Rooks out of play for the rest of the game.

| | |
|---|---|
| 21. | Q to Kt 5th |
| 22. R to K Kt sq | R takes P (ch) |
| 23. B takes R | Q takes B (ch) |

Drawn by perpetual check.

Played at the Divan, between Messrs. Steele and Blackburne.

(Evans' Gambit.)

| WHITE (Mr. S.) | BLACK (Mr. B.) |
|---|---|
| 1. P to K 4th | P to K 4th |
| 2. Kt to K B 3rd | Kt to Q B 3rd |
| 3. B to B 4th | B to B 4th |
| 4. P to Q Kt 4th | B takes Kt P |
| 5. P to B 3rd | B to R 4th |
| 6. P to Q 4th | P takes P |
| 7. Castles | P to Q 3rd |
| 8. P takes P | B to Kt 3rd |
| 9. P to Q 5th | Q Kt to K 2nd |
| 10. P to K 5th | Kt to R 3rd |

A defence which is very rarely adopted, but, as we believe, perfectly sound.

| | |
|---|---|
| 11. Kt to B 3rd | Castles |
| 12. B takes Kt | P takes B |
| 13. Kt to K 4th | |

The capture of the Knight was not good; but White, having adopted that line of play, should have continued with 13. Q to Q 2nd.

| | |
|---|---|
| 13. | Kt to Kt 3rd |
| 14. Kt to B 6th (ch) | K to R sq |
| 15. Kt to Kt 5th | Kt takes P |

| WHITE (Mr. S.) | BLACK (Mr. B.) |
|---|---|
| 16. K Kt to K 4th | B to K B 4th |

Black could have taken the Bishop with safety, but probably preferred getting the attack into his own hands.

| | |
|---|---|
| 17. R to Q B sq | B takes Kt |
| 18. Kt takes B | P to K B 4th |
| 19. Kt to Kt 3rd | P to B 5th |
| 20. Kt to K 4th | Q to B 6th |
| 21. R to K sq | P to B 6th |
| 22. P to Kt 3rd | Q to Kt 4th |
| 23. P to B sq | Q R to K sq |
| 24. R to B 3rd | Kt to Kt 5th |

The beginning of a very pretty combination, which forces the game out of hand.

| | |
|---|---|
| 25. P to K R 3rd | Kt takes P |
| 26. Kt takes Kt | B takes Kt (ch) |
| 27. K takes B | R to K 7th (ch) |
| 28. K to Kt sq | |

Obviously, he has nothing better to do.

| | |
|---|---|
| 28. | P to B 7th (ch), |

and White resigned.

The Rev. A. B. Skipworth, of Tetford Rectory, Horncastle, states that the next meeting of the Counties Chess Association will be held at Leamington the latter part of October. During the meeting the various points of his letter, which we published some little time ago, will be fully discussed. Prizes will be offered at Leamington, as in previous years. Mrs. Rimington Wilson's memorial prize will be decided at that meeting, and a £2 2s. prize, given by Mr. J. O. Howard Taylor for the most brilliant casual games, will be offered. The latter prize was held over from the Boston meeting, the conditions of competition not having been complied with. The society will be locally aided by Signor Arpa and Mr. Cutler, along with other patrons. Mr. Skipworth acts as secretary and treasurer.

It is announced that the games in the match between Messrs. Blackburne and Gunsberg will be published in pamphlet form, with notes by Mr. W. N. Potter. Mr. Heywood is the publisher.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will (dated July 13, 1874) with two codicils (dated March 16, 1876, and Aug. 2, 1878) of Mr. Edward Baker, late of No. 3, The Cedars, Clapham-common, who died on Nov. 13 last, was proved on the 2nd inst. by Mrs. Hannah Charlotte Baker, the widow, and George Watson, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £90,000. The testator leaves to his executors £500 each; to his wife his furniture, plate, horses and carringes; some specific gifts of jewellery to his cousin John Lomas and to Mr. Watson; to the man-servant who has been longest in his service a B Debenture for £180 in the Great Eastern Railway Company; to the man-servant who has been next longest in his employ eighty £1 shares in the County Fire Office; to the man-servant who has been third longest in his service his gold watch, best gold chain, and gold brandy case; to the man-servant who has been fourth longest in his service his second best gold chain, ivory box of gold and silver coins, and large gold pen and pencil case; to each of the male and female servants in his service at his decease £300; and the residue of his real and personal estate upon trust for his wife for life. At his wife's death he bequeaths £10,000 upon trust to apply the annual income for the benefit of the Protestant poor of the parish of Clapham; £5000 upon trust to apply the annual income for the benefit of the Protestant poor of the parish of Hutton, Essex; £1000 to the Tallowchandlers' Company; £300 each to the London Orphan Asylum, the British Orphan Asylum, the Infant Orphan Asylum, the Asylum for Fatherless Children, the Royal Asylum of St. Ann's Society; the Asylum for Idiots, Earlswood; the Orphan Working Schools, the Governesses' Benevolent Institution, the National Benevolent Institution, the Commercial Travellers' Schools; the Hospital for Incurables, Clapham-road; the Hospital for Incurables, Putney; the London City Mission, the Ragged School Union, the Clapham Domestic Mission, the Clapham Infants' Friend Society, the Clapham Widows' Friend Society, the Clapham Pension Society, the Clapham branch of the Society for Organising Charitable Relief and Repressing Mendicity, the Clapham General Dispensary, the South American Missionary Society, the Colonial and Continental Church Society, and the National Refuges for Homeless and Destitute Children;—£200 each to the Religious Tract Society, the School for the Indigent Blind, the Female Orphan Asylum, the Brompton Consumption Hospital, the Royal Sea-Bathing Infirmary, the City of London Hospital for Diseases of the Chest, the London Society for Teaching the Blind to Read, the Female Servants' Home Society, the Shipwrecked Fishermen and Mariners' Benevolent Society, the School of Industry for Female Orphans, the British and Foreign Bible Society, the Church Missionary Society, the Book Society for Promoting Religious Knowledge among the Poor, the Society for Promoting Female Education in the East, the Colonial Church and School Society, the Church Pastoral Aid Society, the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, the Irish Church Missions to the Roman Catholics, the London Society for Promoting Christianity among the Jews, the Hackney Benevolent Pension Society, the London Philanthropic Society, the South Metropolitan Fire Brigade (Volunteers), and the Royal Botanic Society of London;—and the remainder of such part of his personal estate as may be by law applied for charitable purposes to the principal London hospitals, at the discretion of his trustees. He also leaves, after the death of his wife, to his brother-in-law, the said George Watson, £10,000; to Miss Georgiana Ellen Day, George Henry Cooke, and John Lomas, £3000 each; to Jane Calsden, £500; and the ultimate residue of his trust estate to the children of his said brother-in-law in equal shares.

The will (dated June 22, 1877) with two codicils (dated June 28, 1877, and Sept. 16, 1880) of Mr. Thomas William Palmer, J.P., late of Castle Hill, Brough, East Riding of Yorkshire, who died on March 1 last, at Scarborough, has been proved at the York district registry by Joseph Lambert and Thomas William Palmer, the son, the acting executors, the personal estate being sworn under £35,000. The testator leaves upon trust for his daughter Mrs. Charlotte Neithorpe Hacker, £8000, and he gives her the pair of gauntlets formerly belonging to Queen Henrietta Maria; upon trust for his daughter Mrs. Mary Brooke Dubree and Miss Eleanor Palmer, £6000 each; upon trust for his clerk, Mr. Blythe, 14,000 Rupee Paper and £2000, together with a cottage residence for life; 100 guineas to his executor, Mr. Lambert; 100 guineas each to his grandchildren; an annuity of £42 to Sarah Ann Peck; and 19 guineas to Ann Mills if in his service at his decease. The residue of his real and personal property he gives to his said son.

The will (dated Sept. 13, 1880) of Miss Mary Ann Hancock Henery, late of No. 38, Arlington-road, Camden Town, who died on the 2nd ult., was proved on the 22nd ult. by Miss Sophia Ann Indermaur and Miss Louisa Margaret Indermaur, the executrixes, the personal estate being sworn under £16,000. The testatrix gives £500 each to the Royal Free Hospital, Gray's-inn-road; the Middlesex Hospital, University College Hospital, St. Giles's Ragged Schools and Refuges; the Cripples' Home, Marylebone; the Blind Asylum, Kennington; the Hospital for Paralysis, Putney; the School for Fatherless Children, Reedham; the Hospital for Consumption, Brompton; and St. Pancras Almshouses;—£500 to Frances Cromwell, in her service; and the residue of her real and personal estate to her two executrixes for their own use.

The will (dated Dec. 27, 1880) of Lieutenant Robert Hamond Elwes, Grenadier Guards, late of Congham House, Norfolk, who died on Jan. 28 last at Laing's Neck, Natal, was proved on the 28th ult. by Alexander Weston Jarvis and Thomas Astley Horace Hamond, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £12,000. The testator leaves the pictures, plate, and stuffed birds at Congham House, and his watch and chain, to go as heirlooms with his settled estate; certain moneys, securities for money, effects, and £200 per annum charged on his real estate to Mrs. Julie Marie Stevens; and the residue of his real and personal estate to the person who shall succeed to the settled estate.

The will (dated Jan. 29, 1879) of Mr. James Stocks Moon, late of Starborough Castle, Lingfield, Surrey, who died on Dec. 10 last, at Brighton, has been proved by James Moorhouse Stocks, the uncle, and Thomas Will, the executors, the personal estate in the United Kingdom being sworn under £4000. The testator leaves Starborough Castle to his brothers George and Walter; and, amongst other bequests, he directs his executors, having promised Mr. Shepherd that he would not sell his white horse Garibaldi, to cause it to be killed, and its skin he gives to Mr. Stocks and Mr. Will to be divided between them. The residue of his property he leaves to his mother and to his sisters, Margaret and Anne. C. G. C.

Mr. Tom Collins, the Conservative candidate, has been returned as member for Knaresborough by a majority of 41 votes over Mr. Milnes Gaskell, in succession to Sir H. Mersey-Thomson, unseated on petition.

FORTY-EIGHTH ANNUAL REPORT of the
NATIONAL PROVINCIAL BANK OF ENGLAND (Limited).

MAY 19, 1881.

SUBSCRIBED CAPITAL, £12,037,500.

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| CAPITAL—Paid | .. .. .. | £1,800,338 |
| Calls Unpaid | .. .. .. | 0 |
| Uncalled | .. .. .. | 2,121,000 |
| Reserve Liability | .. .. .. | 8,023,000 |
| | | £12,037,500 |

RESERVE FUND, £1,133,034.

Number of Shareholders, 6113.

DIRECTORS.

THE MOST HON. THE MARQUESS OF AILESBURY.
CHARLES BARCLAY, Esq.
GEORGE HANBURY FIELD, Esq.
JOHN OLIVER HANSON, Esq.
DUNCAN MACDONALD, Esq.
HENRY FAULL, Esq.
JOHN STEWART, Esq.
SIR JAMES SIBBALD DAVID SCOTT, Bart.
RICHARD BLANEY WADE, Esq.
ROBERT WIGRAM, Esq.
HON. ELIOT THOMAS YORKE.
EDWARD ATKINSON, Esq., Honorary Director.
ROBERT FERGUSSON and THOMAS GEORGE ROBINSON, Joint General Managers.
CHARLES NORRIS WILDE, Esq.,
ERNEST JAMES WILDE, Esq., Solicitors.

RICHARD BLANEY WADE, Esq., in the Chair.

REPORT.

The Directors have now the pleasure of presenting the Forty-eighth Annual Report to the Shareholders, and to submit the following statement of profits for the year 1880—viz.:

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| BALANCE of UNDIVIDED PROFITS from Dec. 31, 1879 .. .. .. .. | | £21,767 4 9 |
| NET PROFITS for the year 1880, after making provision for bad and doubtful Debts, Rebate on Bills Discounted, &c. .. .. .. .. | | 367,568 18 3 |
| | | £389,336 3 0 |
| Less Dividend of 4 per cent paid in July, 1880.. .. .. .. | £72,000 0 0 | |
| Less Dividend of 4 per cent paid in January, 1881 .. .. .. | 76,275 0 0 | |
| Less Bonus of 5 per cent paid in January, 1881 .. .. .. .. | 90,000 0 0 | |
| Less Bonus of 6 per cent payable in July .. .. .. .. .. | 113,400 0 0 | |
| | | 351,675 0 0 |
| | | £37,651 3 0 |

The profits of the past year enable the Directors to recommend that a Bonus of 6 per cent for the half-year ending Dec. 31 last be now declared, payable in July next, which, with the Dividend of 4 per cent paid in July last, and the Dividend and Bonus, together, 9 per cent, paid in January, 1881, make the total distribution 19 per cents free of income tax, leaving a balance of £37,651 3s. to be carried forward to the year 1881, which, with the Reserve Fund of £1,133,034, makes the rest or undivided profits at Dec. 31, 1880, £1,170,685 3s.

The RESERVE FUND of £1,133,034 (wholly invested in Government securities), shows an increase of £167,302 during the year 1880, as stated hereunder:—

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Amount at Dec. 31, 1879 .. .. | .. £965,232 | 0 0 |
| Premiums on New Shares since received .. | 167,302 | 0 0 |
| ,, received in anticipation of Calls | 500 | 0 0 |
| | £1,133,034 | 0 0 |

The average of the published rates of the Bank of England for the year 1880 was £2 15s. 2d., as compared with £2 10s. 2l. for the year 1879.

In order to meet the requirements of the Branches and connections of the Bank, a Branch was established in LIVERPOOL in December last; and in the early part of the present year a Branch was opened in SOUTH KENSINGTON for the convenience of customers in that neighbourhood.

The Registration of the Bank as a Limited Company was completed on July 1 last. The results have proved eminently satisfactory, and fully justify the best expectations of the Directors.

The Directors report with deep regret the decease of their late esteemed colleague John Kingston, Esq., the oldest member of the Board, who for thirty-six years rendered to the Bank most valuable and important services as a Director.

The death of Mr. Kingston has caused a vacancy in the Direction, for which George Forbes Malcolmson, of 6, Token-house-yard, Esquire, a qualified proprietor, has offered himself as a candidate.

The Directors have to announce the retirement, in September last, of Mr. Holt, one of the General Managers, after a long and faithful service of forty-five years.

The following Directors go out of office by rotation, but, being eligible for re-election, offer themselves accordingly—viz.:—

JOHN OLIVER HANSON, Esq.
GEORGE HANBURY FIELD, Esq.
JOHN STEWART, Esq.

In conformity with the provisions of the Act, it will be requisite for the Shareholders to elect Auditors and vote their remuneration. Mr. Edwin Waterhouse, of the firm of Messrs. Price, Waterhouse, and Co., and Mr. Roderick Mackay, of the firm of Messrs. R. Mackay and Co., offer themselves for re-election.

NATIONAL PROVINCIAL BANK OF ENGLAND, LIMITED.
Dec. 31, 1880.

LIABILITIES.

| Dr. | | | £ | s. | d. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| TO PAID-UP CAPITAL:— | | | | | |
| 40,000 Shares of £75 each, £10 10s. paid | .. | .. | 420,000 | 0 | 0 |
| 105,025 ,, £20 ,, £13 ,, | .. | .. | 1,365,325 | 0 | 0 |
| 28,125 ,, £20 ,, £6 ,, | .. | .. | 168,750 | 0 | 0 |
| 16,575 ,, £20 ,, £2 ,, | .. | .. | 33,150 | 0 | 0 |
| | | | £1,980,950 | 0 | 0 |
| Paid in anticipation of Calls | .. | .. | 500 | 0 | 0 |
| | | | £1,980,938 | 0 | 0 |
| ,, RESERVE FUND:— | | £ | s. | d. | |
| At Dec. 31, 1879 .. .. | .. | 965,232 | 0 | 0 | |
| Premiums on New Shares received during year 1880 .. | .. | 167,302 | 0 | 0 | |
| Ditto, in anticipation of Calls | .. | 500 | 0 | 0 | |
| | | 1,133,034 | 0 | 0 | |
| ,, Amount due by Banks on Deposits, &c. .. .. | .. | 29,138,436 | 18 | 10 | |
| ,, Acceptances .. .. | .. | 436,803 | 3 | 10 | |
| ,, PROFIT AND LOSS ACCOUNT— | | | | | |
| Balance from year 1879 .. | 21,767 | 4 | 9 | | |
| Net Profits for year 1880 .. | 367,568 | 18 | 3 | | |
| | 389,336 | 3 | 0 | | |
| Less Dividend paid July, 1880 .. .. .. | 72,000 | 0 | 0 | | |
| | 317,336 | 3 | 0 | | |
| | £32,916,138 | 5 | 8 | | |

ASSETS.

| BY CASH:— | | Cr. | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|
| | | £ | s. | d. |
| At Bank of England and at Head Office and Branches .. .. .. .. | | 2,677,043 | 8 | 0 |
| ,, Call and Short Notice.. .. .. .. | | 3,884,500 | 0 | 0 |
| | | 6,561,543 | 8 | 0 |
| ,, INVESTMENTS— | £ | s. | d. | |
| English Government Securities | 5,105,559 | 11 | 10 | |
| Indian Government and other Securities, Railway Debentures, &c. .. .. | 2,874,462 | 14 | 2 | |
| ,, Bills Discounted, Loans, &c. .. | .. | 17,851,000 | 7 | 2 |
| ,, Securities against Acceptances, per contra .. .. | .. | 436,803 | 3 | 10 |
| ,, Banking Premises in London and Country .. .. | 770,236 | 0 | 5 | |
| Less at Credit of Depreciation Fund .. .. .. | 184,007 | 0 | 4 | |
| | 586,229 | 0 | 1 | |
| | £32,916,138 | 5 | 8 | |

RICHARD B. WADE,
D. MACDONALD,
ROBT. WIGRAM,
R. FERGUSSON,
T. G. ROBINSON,
} Directors.
} Joint General Managers.

We beg to report that we have ascertained the correctness of the Cash Balances, and of the Money at Call and Short Notice as entered in the above Balance-Sheet, and have inspected the securities representing the investments of the Bank, and found them in order. We have also examined the Balance-sheet in detail with the books at the Head Office and with the certified returns from each Branch, and in our opinion such Balance Sheet is properly drawn up so as to exhibit a true and correct view of the state of the Bank's affairs as shown by such books and returns.

EDWIN WATERHOUSE,
ROD. MACKAY,
} Auditors.

The above Report having been read, it was unanimously resolved—

That the same be adopted and printed for the use of the Proprietors.

That John Oliver Hanson, Esq., George Hanbury Field, Esq., and John Stewart, Esq., be re-elected Directors of the Bank.

That George Forbes Malcolmson, Esq., be elected a Director to fill the vacancy caused by the death of John Kingston, Esq.

That Mr. Edwin Waterhouse and Mr. Roderick Mackay be reappointed Auditors of the Bank, and that they be paid four hundred guineas for their services during the past year.

That the best thanks of the Proprietors be presented to the Directors for their very successful management of the affairs of the Bank.

That the best thanks of the Proprietors be given to the General Managers, and to the Branch Managers, and other Officers of the Bank, for their efficient services.

That the best thanks of the meeting be presented to the Chairman for his able conduct in the Chair.

Extracted from the Minutes by
R. FERGUSSON,
T. G. ROBINSON,
} Joint General Managers.

GENUINE DUBLIN WHISKY.
THE MOST WHOLESOME OF ALL SPIRITS.
DUBLIN WHISKY, Distilled by Messrs. JOHN JAMESON and SON, GEORGE ROE and CO., WILLIAM JAMESON and CO., and JOHN POWER and SON: can be obtained in Wood by wholesale merchants and dealers direct from their respective distilleries.

ROBERT ROBERTS AND CO.'S CELEBRATED TEAS.
TWELVE POUNDS AND UPWARDS CARRIAGE PAID.
Samples and Price-lists free by post.
Queen Insurance-buildings, Liverpool. ESTABLISHED 1840.
No agents.
All communications and orders direct.

FRY'S | Gold Medal, Paris, 1878. First Award, Sydney. | FRY'S CARACAS COCOA. "A most delicious and valuable article."—Standard.

COCOA. PURE COCOA ONLY. FRY'S COCOA EXTRACT. "Strictly pure."—W. W. STODDART, F.I.C., F.C.S., City Analyst, Bristol. Thirteen Exhibition Medals.

CHOCOLAT MENIER. Awarded the GRAND DIPLOMA OF HONOUR.

CHOCOLAT MENIER, in ½lb. and ¼lb. Packets. For BREAKFAST and SUPPER.

CHOCOLAT MENIER.—Awarded Twenty Eight PRIZE MEDALS. Consumption annually exceeds 18,000,000lbs.

CHOCOLAT MENIER. Paris, London, New York.
Sold Everywhere.

SCHWEITZER'S COCOATINA.
Anti-Dyspeptic Cocoa or Chocolate Powder.
Guaranteed Pure Soluble Cocoa, with excess of Fat extracted.
Four times the strength of Cocoa Thickened yet Weakened with Arrowroot, Starch, &c.
The faculty pronounce it the most nutritious, perfectly digestive Beverage for "BREAKFAST, LUNCHEON, or SUPPER."
Keeps in all Climates. Requires no Cooking. A teaspoonful to Breakfast Cup, costing less than a halfpenny. Samples gratis.
In Air-Tight Tins, at 1s. 6d., 3s., &c., by Chemists and Grocers.
H. SCHWEITZER and CO., 10, Adam-street, London, W.C.

BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR
IS A WORLD-WIDE NECESSARY.

BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR
FOR THE NURSERY.

BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR
FOR THE FAMILY TABLE.

BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR
FOR THE SICK-ROOM.

BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR
HAS A WORLD-WIDE REPUTATION.

THE ESSEX FLOUR and GRAIN COMPANY, Liverpool-road, London, N., supply the best goods only. Flour: Whites for Pastry, per 56 lb., 3s. 4d.; Households, for bread making, 3s. 1d.; Wholewheaten Meal (granulated), for Brown Bread, 8d.; Best Scotch Oatmeal for Porridge, per 14 lb., 3s.; Rounding for Dogs, Black Wheat, Maize, and Mixed Corn for Poultry, per bushel, 5s.; Middlings, 2s.; Bran, 1s.; Pearl Split Peas, per peck, 1s.; Split Egyptian Lentils, 3s.; Meat Biscuits, per 14 lb., 2s. 6d.; Barley Meal, per 48 lb., 6s.; Lentil Flour, per 1lb. tin, 8d.; per 14 lb., 6s. All other kinds of Grain and Seeds. Prices on application. Special quotations for large orders. P.O. Orders and Cheques to be made in favour of George Young.

PAINT FOR EXTREMES OF CLIMATE. CARSON'S ANTI-CORROSION PAINT, Patronised by her Majesty, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Edinburgh, and 15,000 of the Nobility, Gentry, and Clergy, for every description of outdoor work, has been established upwards of eighty years, and has the reputation over every part of the habitable globe of being the best Preserver of Iron, Wood, Stone, &c.
It stands any extreme of climate, and seems only to harden with exposure. It is sold in all Colours.—Prices, patterns, and full particulars of free delivery, cash discount, with flattering testimonials; also list of Oils, Varnishes, Brushes, &c., can be had upon application to WALTER CARSON and SONS, La Belle Savage-yard, Ludgate-hill, London; 21, Bachelor's-walk, Dublin.

CARSON'S ANTI-CORROSION PAINT is used by all the leading horticulturists for their conservatories and hot-houses, and has stood a practical test of upwards of eighty years.

CHUBB'S SAFES FOR JEWELS, DEEDS, PLATE, BULLION, &c.

CHUBB'S LOCKS AND LATCHES, CHESTS, BOXES, &c.

CHUBB'S ILLUSTRATED PRICE-LISTS POST-FREE.

CHUBB and SON, 128, Queen Victoria-street, E.C.; and 68, St. James's-street, London.

EPPS'S COCOA. GRATEFUL and COMFORTING. "By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operation of digestion and nutrition, and by careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.
JAMES EPPS and CO., HOMŒOPATHIC CHEMISTS.
Also, EPPS'S CHOCOLATE ESSENCE, for Afternoon Use.

TRELOAR and SONS' LUDGATE-HILL.

MATS. FLOORCLOTH.

LINOLEUM. CARPETS.

TRELOAR and SONS, 69, Ludgate-hill, were established 1832. They are the only firm in London who deal exclusively in Floor Coverings. They have been awarded seven Prize Medals, including one at Paris, 1878. The Fine Arts Galleries at the International Exhibitions of 1851, 1853, 1855, 1862, 1865, 1869, and 1878, were covered with matting specially manufactured by them.

PETER ROBINSON,
103 to 108, OXFORD-STREET.
NEW SPRING GOODS
in all Departments.
ILLUSTRATIONS AND PATTERNS FREE.

FASHION-BOOK and PRICE-LIST will be Ready early in May. Sent free by post.

LADIES IN THE COUNTRY
Are requested to write for Patterns of

NEW SPRING SILKS, including
PONGE WASHING SILK, 20 yards for 1 Guinea.
PONGEE GARNITURES, 4½ yards long, Embroidered in Silk, 10s. 6d. the piece.
300 PIECES of GRISAILLE SILKS, 22s. 6d. the Dress.

SPECIAL.
180 PIECES of COLOURED GROS GRAIN, in all the New Shades, 2s. 9½d. per yard.
100 PIECES of NEW BLACK BROCHÉ SATIN, from 2s. 11d. per yard.
BLACK SATINS, soft and bright, from 1s. 6d. per yard.
100 PIECES of extra Rich BLACK SILK MERVEILLEUX, 4s. 6d. per yard, 24 in. wide.
160 SHADES of New DUCHESSE SATINS, extra wide width, 4s. 9d. per yard.
RICH BLACK SATIN GROUND BROCADED VELVET, for Mantles, &c., 7s. 11d. per yard.
ITALIAN SATINS, in every shade of Colour, from 2s. 11d. per yard.
ALL the LATEST NOVELTIES in SHADED and BROCADED SILKS, from 3s. 6d. to 7s. 6d. per yard.
PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON.

LADIES IN THE COUNTRY
are requested to write for Patterns of

NEW SPRING DRESSES, including
ANGOLA BEIGE, 25 in. wide, 10d. to 1s. 6d. per yard.
ANGOLA BEIGE, 45 in. wide, 1s. 10d. to 2s. 9d. per yard.
VIGOGNE CASHMERE, very fine, 26 in. wide, 1s. 6d. per yard.
CACHEMIRE DE L'INDE, 50 in. wide, 2s. 11d. to 3s. 9d. per yard.
CASHMERE MERINOS, New Spring Colours, very wide, 1s. 11d. to 2s. 9d.
CACHEMIRE DE PARIS, very fine, 46 in. wide, 1s. 11d. to 3s. 9d. per yard.
VIGOGNE CLOTH, 26 in. wide, all Wool, 1s. 6d. per yard.
DRAB CASIMIR, 36 in. wide, 1s. to 1s. 9d. per yard.
Rich Wool and Silk MIXED FABRICS, Pompadour and other elegant styles for Draping, 1s. 9d. to 3s. 6d. per yard.
All the above in Black and every shade, including the NEW HIGH ART COLOURS.
RICH VELVET VELVETEENS in the New Black, as advertised, very wide, 2s. 6d. to 3s. 9d. per yard. In White and all the New Colours, 2s. 9d. to 4s. 6d. per yard.
SPECIAL SALE of 120 pieces RICH BLACK DAMASSE CASIMIR, at 1s. 9d. per yard; usual price 3s. 6d.
BLACK GRENADINES, Plain, Broché, and Striped.
An enormous collection of PRINTED SATINES, Percales, Cambrics, Cretonnes, &c., in every variety of design.
Several hundred pieces last year's patterns best French Cambrics, at 4½d. per yard.
OSBORNE LAWNS, a very Useful Fabric for MORNING DRESSES. In Plain, Checked, and Striped, all Colours. These goods are very wide, and one uniform price, 7½d. per yard.
PATTERNS POST-FREE.

MADE MATERIAL COSTUMES.
A well-selected assortment of all the leading styles and combinations, including:—

| | |
|---|---|
| Light Fawn Cashmir, trimmed braid .. | .. £1 9 6 |
| Plain and Fancy Beige .. .. | .. 2 12 6 |
| French Cashmere, trimmed rich brocades | .. 3 19 6 |
| Cashmere de l'Inde, trimmed ombre .. | .. 4 4 0 |
| Plain and Printed Cambrics and Percales | .. 1 14 9 |
| New Printed Satines .. .. | .. 1 7 6 |
| Corded and Zephyr Lawns .. .. | .. 1 11 6 |

Patterns and Illustrations of the above Costumes, with Forms for Self-Measurement, post-free.
PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON, W.

NEW SPRING DRESSES.—New Heather Tweed Serges, 7½d. New Grenit Mohair Cloths, 6½d. Patterns free.—JOHN HOOPER, 52, Oxford-street, W.

NOVELTIES for LADIES' MORNING DRESSES.—French Satteens, 8½d.; Pompadours, 7½d.; Prints, 6½d.; Linen Lawns, 8½d. Patterns free.
JOHN HOOPER, 52, Oxford-street, W.

GLOVES AT WHOLESALE PRICES.
The New Enclosed Price-List for Spring, 1881, is now ready, and will be forwarded post-free upon Application.
THE LONDON GLOVE COMPANY,
45A, Cheapside, E.C.

SHIRTS.—FORD'S EUREKA SHIRT. Patterns of the new French Regattas and Oxford Mat Shirts, with collars attached, or two detached, sent by post to select from on receipt of two stamps. Prices from 42s. the half-dozen.
R. FORD and CO., 41, Poultry, London.

ELECTRICITY IS LIFE.
PULVERMACHER'S "GALVANISM," NATURE'S CHIEF RESTORER OF IMPAIRED VITAL ENERGY."
In this Pamphlet the most reliable proofs are given of the vast and wonderful curative powers of Pulvermacher's Patent Galvanic Chain-Bands, Belts, &c., in Rheumatic, Nervous, and Functional Disorders. Sent post-free for three stamps on application to
J. L. PULVERMACHER'S GALVANIC ESTABLISHMENT, 194, Regent-street, London, W.

HOOPING COUGH.
ROCHE'S HERBAL EMBROCATION.
THIS celebrated effectual Cure without internal medicine. Sole Wholesale Agents, W. EDWARDS and SON, 157, Queen Victoria-street (formerly of 67, St. Paul's-churchyard), London, whose name is engraved on the Government stamp.
Sold by most Chemists. Price 6s. per Bottle.

THROAT AFFECTIONS and HOARSENESS.—All suffering from Irritation of the Throat and Hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES. The famous "Troches" are now sold by most respectable Chemists in this country, at 1s. 1½d. per Box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or similar affections cannot try them too soon, as simular troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN and SONS, Boston, U.S. European Depôt, 33, Farringdon-road, London.

TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON, For CONSTIPATION, BILE, HEADACHE.

TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON, A LAXATIVE AND REFRESHING FRUIT LOZENGE, UNIVERSALLY PRESCRIBED BY THE FACULTY.

TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON. 2s. 6d. per Box, stamp included. Sold by all Chemists and Druggists. Wholesale—E. GRILLON, 69, Queen-street, London, E.C.

PETER ROBINSON'S
COURT and GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
REGENT-STREET.

FAMILY BEREAVEMENTS.
Upon Receipt of Letter or Telegram
PETER ROBINSON'S EXPERIENCED DRESSMAKERS and MILLINERS TRAVEL to ALL PARTS of the COUNTRY (no matter the distance) FREE OF EXPENSE TO PURCHASERS, with Dresses, Mantles, Millinery, and a full assortment of MADE-UP ARTICLES of the best and most suitable description. Also Materials by the Yard, and supplied at the same VERY REASONABLE PRICES as if Purchased at the Warehouse in "REGENT-STREET."
Mourning for Servants at unexceptionally low rates, at a great saving to large or small families.
Funerals Conducted in Town or Country at Stated Charges.
Address 256 to 262, Regent-street, London.
PETER ROBINSON'S.

THE BEST CRAPES,
THAT WILL NOT SPOT WITH RAIN.
Special qualities finished by the manufacturer in this desirable manner solely to the order of PETER ROBINSON.
Good qualities from 5s. 6d. to 12s. 9d. per yard. Others, not finished by this process, from 1s. 6d. to 4s. 6d.

A SPECIAL PURCHASE.
300 PIECES OF
RICH BLACK BROCADED SILKS, very fashionable now for Costumes and Mantles, 2s. 9d., 3s. 11d., 4s. 3d., 4s. 9d., 5s. 11d., 6s. 6d.

100 PIECES OF
BLACK SATIN IMPERIAL, a New Make of Satin, Rich in appearance, and wears better than any other silk. 5s. 6d., and up to 10s. 3d.

BLACK SATIN MERVEILLEUX, new this Season. 3s. 6d., 4s. 11d., 5s. 9d., 6s. 6d.

BLACK SATIN DE LYON, a good useful Silk, for Hard Wear, 3s. 6d., 4s. 11d., 5s. 11d., 6s. 6d.

BLACK DUCHESS SATIN, at 5s. 6d., 6s. 6d., 7s. 6d.: Magnificent qualities at 7s. 6d. and 10s. 6d.

BLACK SATINS (Cotton Backs), 1s. 11d., 2s. 6d., 2s. 11d., 3s. 11d.

BLACK BROCADED VELVETS, 5s. 9d., 6s. 11d., 8s. 9d., 10s. 9d.

BLACK TWILLED SILKS, for Summer Wear, at 3s. 6d., and above.

BLACK SURAT SILKS, with White Floral Designs, 2s. 11d., 3s. 6d., 3s. 11d.

COSTUMES in SILK, SATIN, and BROCADE.
Facsimiles of Expensive Paris Models at 4½ guineas and up to 20 guineas.
Materials for Bodices included.
For Patterns of the above, Please write to—
PETER ROBINSON'S, REGENT-STREET, Nos. 256 to 262.

THE LONG TRYING WINTER, necessitating large fires, and living in a hot, dry atmosphere, has not been without effect upon the hair of most people, who will do well to use ROWLAND'S MACASSAR OIL during the Spring months if they desire the usual Spring growth of chevelure. Sold everywhere.

SPRING.—Cutaneous visitations now prevail, and render ROWLANDS' KALYDOR, for the Complexion and Skin, of peculiar value and importance. This unique botanical preparation allays all irritation and tenderness of the skin, removes cutaneous disfigurements, freckles, and tan, and imparts a healthy and blooming appearance to the complexion, and a delicacy and softness to the neck, hands, and arms. Sold in two sizes, by Chemists.

PIESSE and LUBIN.
Opoponax, Jockey Club, Patchouly, Frangipanni, Kiss-Me-Quick, White Rose, and 100 others, from every flower that breathes a fragrance. 2s. 6d. each, or three Bottles in a Case, 7s. The above Sweet Scents in Sachet Powder, 1s. 6d. each, can be forwarded by post. Sold by the fashionable Druggists and Perfumers in all parts of the World.
2, NEW BOND-STREET, LONDON.

TURKISH PASTILS.
"Through all my travels few things astonished me more than seeing the beauties of the harem smoking Narghiles at Stamboul. After smoking, a sweet aromatic lozenge or pastil is used by them, which is said to impart an odour of flowers to the breath. I have never seen these breath lozenges but once in Europe, and that was at PIESSE and LUBIN'S shop in Bond-street."—Lady W. Montagu.
In Packets, 2s.; by post, 2s. 2d.
2, NEW BOND-STREET, LONDON.

BREIDENBACH'S
SACHETS.
Wood Violet, White Rose, Stephanotis, Maréchale, Ess. Bouquet, Musk, Ylang Ylang, Opoponax, Millefleurs, Chypre. In paper envelopes, 1s. each; in silk bags, 1s. each; in satin cushions, 2s. 6d. each. Sold by all Perfumers and Fancy Dealers, or post-free from the Makers, 157B, New Bond-street, London, W.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY for the HAIR.
If your hair is turning grey, or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White Hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots where the glands are not decayed. "The Mexican Hair Renewer" is sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere, at 3s. 6d. per Bottle.

FLORILINE. For the Teeth and Breath. Is the best Liquid Dentifrice in the world; it thoroughly cleanses partially-decayed teeth from all parasites or living "animalculæ," leaving them pearly white, imparting a delightful fragrance to the breath. The Fragrant Floriline removes instantly all odours arising from a foul stomach or tobacco smoke, being partly composed of honey, soda, and extracts of sweet herbs and plants. It is perfectly harmless, and delicious as sherry. Sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere, at 2s. 6d. per Bottle.

THE SKIN.—The glory of woman, the pride of man. It contains the delicate lines of beauty and constitutes all that we term "loveliness;" yet how many thousands have their skins blemished by the use of the irritant soaps. Carbolic, Coal Tar, Glycerine, and the coarse coloured soaps, caustic with alkali and made of putrid fats. The more delicate the skin the quicker its ruin. The ALBION MILK AND SULPHUR SOAP is the purest, the whitest, and most purifying of all Soaps, by its purifying action taking away and preventing all pimples, blotches, and roughness. It is recommended by the entire Medical Profession as the most elegant preparation for the skin that is known. By all Chemists, in Tablets, 6d. and 1s. THE ALBION SANATORY SOAP COMPANY, 532, Oxford-street, London.

"FOR THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."
CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE is warranted to cleanse the Blood from all Impurities, from whatever cause arising. For Scrofula, Scurvy, Skin and Blood Diseases, its effects are marvellous. In Bottles, 2s. 6d. each, and in cases, containing six times the quantity, 11s. each, of all Chemists. Sent to any address for 30 or 132 stamps, of the Proprietor, F. J. CLARKE, Chemist, Lincoln.

THE FRENCH OCCUPATION OF TUNIS.

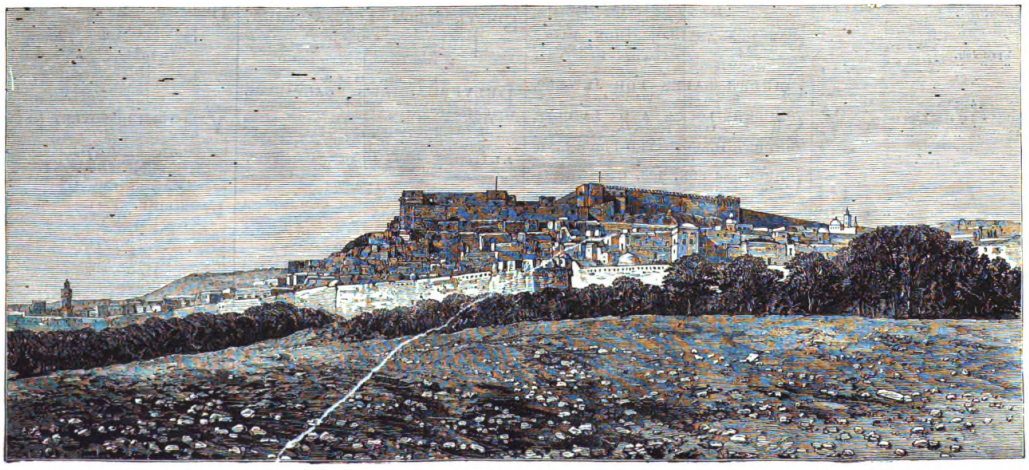
SEE PAGE 505.

THE CITY OF TUNIS.

BISERTA, TUNIS, OCCUPIED BY A FRENCH GARRISON.



KEF, TUNIS, CAPTURED BY THE FRENCH ARMY.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

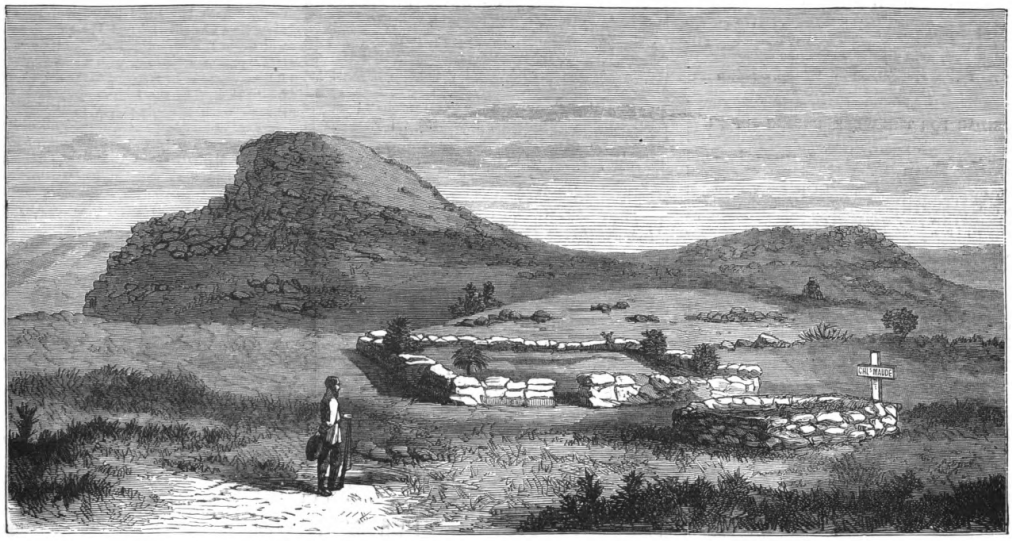
REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 2193.—VOL. LXXVIII. SATURDAY, MAY 28, 1881. WITH TWO SUPPLEMENTS SIXPENCE. By Post, 6½d.



SUMMIT OF MAJUBA HILL, WITH THE GRAVES OF CAPTAIN MAUDE AND SOLDIERS KILLED IN THE FIGHT OF FEB. 27.—SEE PAGE 518.

IRISH HARVESTERS ON THEIR WAY TO ENGLAND.—SEE PAGE 518.

BIRTHS.

On Sunday, the 15th inst., at his residence, Owton Manor, West Hartlepool, the wife of George Steel, Esq., of a daughter.

On the 17th inst., at 9, Lower Fitzwilliam-street, Dublin, the wife of Conolly W. Lecky Browne Lecky, of a son.

On the 24th ult., at Cedar Hill, Antigua, West Indies, the wife of the Hon. H. Berkeley, of a daughter.

On the 22nd inst., at 15, Warwick-square, the Hon. Mrs. Corry, of a son.

On the 18th inst., at 21, Park-lane, the Hon. Lady Baird, of a daughter.

On the 18th inst., at 25, Belgrave-square, the Lady Trevor, of a daughter.

On the 17th inst., the late Wilhelmina Brooke, of a daughter.

On the 20th inst., at 3, St. George's-place, the wife of Sir William Gregory, of a son.

MARRIAGES.

On the 21st ult., at Lahore, by the Right Rev. the Bishop of Lahore, assisted by the Rev. W. H. Tribe, William Mackworth Young, Esq., Bengal Civil Service, to Frances Mary, eldest daughter of Sir Robert Eyles Egerton, Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjaub.

On the 19th inst., in London, Sir John Salusbury Trelawny, Bart., to Harriet Jacqueline, widow of Colonel E. G. W. Keppel, of Lexham Hall, Norfolk, and youngest daughter of the late Sir Antony Buller, Knight of Pound, Devonshire.

DEATHS.

On Dec. 20, 1880, at Brunker Spruit, Transvaal, of wounds received on the battle-field, in the attack by the Boers, Stanford Norman McLeod Nairne, Esq., Captain H.M.'s 94th Regiment, very dearly loved and deeply lamented.

On the 21st inst., Esther Fanny, wife of John Capel Philips, of The Heath House, Tean, Staffordshire.

On the 20th inst., at Bankfield, Urswick, Hal Smith, Esq., J.P., aged 50 years, late of Springfield, Egremont, Cheshire.

On the 20th inst., at Weston Manor, Bicester, in her 75th year, Lady Georgina Anne Emily Bertie, widow of the late Hon. and Rev. Frederic Bertie.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, or Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.*

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING JUNE 4.

SUNDAY, MAY 29.

Sunday after Ascension.
Restoration of King Charles II., 1660.
Morning Lessons: Deut. xxx.; John xi. 17-47. Evening Lessons: Deut. xxxii. or Josh. i.; Heb. iv. 14 and v. St. Paul's Cathedral, 10.30 a.m., Rev. Canon Fleming; 3.15 p.m., Rev. Canon Stubbs; 7 p.m. Westminster Abbey, 10, 3, and 7. St. James's, noon, the Bishop of London. Whitehall, 11, Rev. V. H. Stanton; 3, Rev. Dr. Thornton (Boyle Lecture, Grounds of Belief). Savoy, 11.30, Rev. Henry White, the Chaplain; 7, Rev. Gordon Calthrop.

MONDAY, MAY 30.

Asiatic Society, anniversary, 4 p.m. Surveyors' Institution, annual meeting, 3 p.m. Society of Arts, Cantor Lecture, 8 (Mr. H. Brudenell Carter on Colour Blindness).

TUESDAY, MAY 31.

Royal Institution, 3 p.m. (Professor Dewar on Non-Metallic Elements). Gresham Lectures, 6 (Rev. E. Ledger on Astronomy (four days). Civil Engineers' Institution, 8 p.m. (Mr. R. H. Brunton on Paraffin). Society of Arts, 8 p.m. (Consul J. A. Gubbins on Loochoo).

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 1.

Epsom Races: Derby Day.
Entomological Society, 7 p.m.
British Archæological Association, 8. South Kensington Museum, 4 p.m. (Captain Abney on Photography in relation to Solar Physics).

THURSDAY, JUNE 2.

Royal Institution, 3 p.m. (Professor Tyndall on Magnetism).
Royal Society, elections, 4.30 p.m.
Antiquaries' Society, elections, 8.30.
Archæological Institute, 4 p.m.
Linnean Society, 8 p.m. Chemical Society, 8 p.m. (papers by Messrs. Perkins, Allen, Thomson, and Pickering). Society of Arts, conversazione, South Kensington Museum, 8.30 p.m. London Sailing Club.

FRIDAY, JUNE 3.

Prince George of Wales born, 1865.
Easter Law Sittings end.
Oxford Term ends.
Epsom Races: the Oaks.
United Service Institution, 3 (Capt. Lumley on Mounted Infantry).
Horticultural Society Great Summer Show, 1 p.m. (four days). Botanic Society, lecture, 4 p.m. Geological Association, 8 p.m. Philological Society, 8 (Mr. Sweet on Points in English Grammar). Royal Institution, 8 p.m. (Professor W. G. Adams on Magnetic Disturbance, Auroræ, and Earth Currents).

SATURDAY, JUNE 4.

Oxford Term begins.
Royal Institution, 3 p.m.
Actuaries' Institute, anniversary, 3.
Horticultural Society, exhibition, 10.
Horse Show, Agricultural Hall, opens. Royal Institution, 3 p.m. (Professor C. F. Turner on the Great Modern Writers of Russia—Gogol). Yachting: Thames Sailing, Royal Alfred, Royal Portsmouth, and Corinthian Clubs.

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE KEW OBSERVATORY OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY.

Lat. 51° 28′ 6″ N.; Long. 0° 18′ 47″ W. Height above Sea, 34 feet.

| DAY. | DAILY MEANS OF Barometer Corrected | Temperature of the Air | Dew Point. | Relative Humidity. | Amount of Cloud. | THERMOM. Maximum. Read at 10 p.m. | Minimum. Read at 10 p.m. | WIND. General Direction. | Movement in 24 hours, read at 10 p.m. next morning. | Rain in 24 hours, read at 10 a.m. next morning. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Inches. | ° | ° | % | 0–10 | ° | ° | | Miles. | In. |
| May 15 | 29·652 | 54·3 | 40·4 | 62 | 9 | 62·2 | 48·5 | SSW. | 402 | 0·060 |
| 16 | 29·669 | 48·9 | 40·8 | 75 | 7 | 56·8 | 44·9 | WSW. W. NW. | 426 | 0·035 |
| 17 | 29·849 | 49·0 | 42·8 | 81 | 10 | 58·3 | 36·3 | NW. SSW. | 444 | 0·120 |
| 18 | 29·985 | 51·7 | 47·9 | 86 | 9 | 62·9 | 46·0 | SW. SSW. | 502 | 0·135 |
| 19 | 29·656 | 53·5 | 43·1 | 70 | 6 | 62·5 | 48·5 | SSW. SW. | 453 | 0·005 |
| 20 | 29·944 | 52·0 | 41·1 | 69 | 5 | 61·9 | 47·0 | SW. WSW. | 288 | 0·030 |
| 21 | 30·305 | 53·3 | 40·7 | 65 | 5 | 68·1 | 41·0 | SW. WSW. W. | 122 | 0·000 |

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at ten o'clock a.m.:—

| | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Barometer (in inches) corrected .. | 29·767 | 29·702 | 29·943 | 29·586 | 29·604 | 29·875 | 30·276 |
| Temperature of Air .. .. | 50·6 | 51·75 | 53·8 | 54·6 | 51·0 | 50·0 | 52·9 |
| Temperature of Evaporation .. | 50·7 | 46·9 | 48·2 | 53·10 | 50·2 | 46·4 | 49·9 |
| Direction of Wind .. .. | SSW. | W. | SW. | SW. | SW. | WSW. | WSW |

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE

FOR THE WEEK ENDING JUNE 4.

| Sunday. | | Monday. | | Tuesday. | | Wednesday. | | Thursday. | | Friday. | | Saturday. | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| M | A | M | A | M | A | M | A | M | A | M | A | M | A |
| h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m |
| 2 53 | 3 6 | 3 12 | 3 30 | 3 56 | 4 7 | 4 25 | 4 44 | 5 0 | 5 17 | 5 37 | 5 57 | 6 18 | 6 40 |

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Irving. On MONDAY, WEDNESDAY, and FRIDAY, to JUNE 11, THE CUP and THE BELLE'S STRATAGEM—Mr. Irving and Miss Ellen Terry, Mr. Tapley, Howe, Pinero, Tyars, Beaumont, Miss Sophie Young, &c. On TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY, MAY 31, JUNE 2, 4, 7, 9, 11, OTHELLO—Othello, Mr. Booth; Iago, Mr. Irving; Desdemona, Miss Ellen Terry. MORNING PERFORMANCES—OTHELLO, TO-DAY (Saturday) and WEDNESDAY, JUNE 8, at Two o'Clock—Othello, Mr. Booth; Iago, Mr. Irving; Desdemona, Miss Ellen Terry. THE BELLE'S STRATAGEM, SATURDAY, JUNE 4—Mr. Irving and Miss Ellen Terry.

LYCEUM.—PROSPECTIVE PROGRAMME for the SEASON.—Mr. Irving begs to announce that before the close of the present season, which will end on JULY 23, the following Plays will be presented:—OTHELLO, THE CUP, THE BELLE'S STRATAGEM, HAMLET, THE MERCHANT OF VENICE, CHARLES I., THE BELLS, and EUGENE ARAM; and for the convenience of the public the following are the dates and nights of representations of each piece:—OTHELLO (in which Mr. Edwin Booth will appear), Nine times more, including Two Morning Performances; THE CUP and THE BELLE'S STRATAGEM, Two, One Morning, Ten times; on Saturday, June 18, HAMLET, Nineteen Performances, including Two Morning; July 2, 9, and 22, THE BELLS; Monday, July 11, THE MERCHANT OF VENICE, Seven Performances, including One Morning; July 18 and 19, EUGENE ARAM, Two Performances; July 20 and 21, CHARLES I., Two Performances; Saturday, July 23, Last Night of the Season, and Last Appearance in London until the end of December of Mr. Irving, Miss Ellen Terry, and the Lyceum Company. Seats can only be booked one month in advance; also by letter or telegram.

MR. and MRS. GERMAN REED'S ENTERTAINMENT.—CHERRY TREE FARM, a New Piece by Arthur Law; Music by Hamilton Clark; YE FANCIE FAIRE, a New Musical Sketch by Mr. Corney Grain; and A BRIGHT IDEA, by Arthur Law; Music by Arthur Cecil. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday, at Eight; Thursday and Saturday, at Three.—ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place. Admission, 1s., 2s.; Stalls, 3s., 5s. No fees. Booking-Office open from Ten to Six. Twice Whit Monday, at Three and Eight.

YORKSHIRE FINE-ART and INDUSTRIAL INSTITUTION, YORK.

NOW OPEN,
THE SUMMER EXHIBITION OF PAINTINGS,
and the
PRINCE OF WALES'
MAGNIFICENT COLLECTION OF INDIAN PRESENTS.
Admission One Shilling. Excursionists Sixpence.

THE ANNUAL SPRING EXHIBITION OF HIGH-CLASS PICTURES by BRITISH AND FOREIGN ARTISTS, including Professor Leopold Carl Muller's picture, "An Encampment Outside Cairo," is Now Open at ARTHUR TOOTH and SONS' Gallery, 5, Haymarket. Admission, One Shilling.

INSTITUTE OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS. The FORTY-SEVENTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION is now OPEN from Nine till Seven. Admission, 1s.; Catalogue, 6d. Gallery, 53, Pall-mall. H. F. PHILLIPS, Secretary.

GUARDI GALLERY, 11, Haymarket.—FIFTH SUMMER EXHIBITION of PICTURES is NOW OPEN. "Temptation of St. Anthony," "Maidens at the Well," by Hermann Philips; "Dance Macabre," by Beaulieux; "The Challenge," by Domingo; and many other fine Continental Works. Admission, 1s., including Catalogue.

LA SOCIÉTÉ DES AQUARELLISTES FRANCAIS. Now ON VIEW, an EXHIBITION of WATER-COLOUR DRAWINGS by the Members of the above Society, at GOUPIL and CO.'S GALLERIES, 25, Bedford-street, Covent-garden. Admission, One Shilling. An illustrated Catalogue has been published.

SWISS EXHIBITION OF SWISS SCENERY AND SWISS SCENES, by Swiss Painters. Instituted by the Cercle de Beaux Arts of Geneva.—166, New Bond-street. Admission, 1s.

ROSA BONHEUR'S celebrated PICTURES, ON THE ALERT, and A FORAGING PARTY, which gained for the artist the Cross of the Order of Leopold of Belgium, at the Antwerp Academy, 1879. Also, the complete curawud works of Rosa Bonheur, including the well-known "Horse Fair," now on Exhibition at L. H. LEFEVRE'S GALLERY, 1a, King-street, St. James's, S.W. Admission, One Shilling. Ten to Five.

DORÉ'S GREAT WORKS.—"ECCE HOMO" ("Full of divine dignity."—The Times) and "THE ASCENSION," "CHRIST LEAVING THE PRETORIUM," "CHRIST ENTERING JERUSALEM," with all his other Great Pictures.—DORÉ GALLERY, 35, New Bond-street. Daily, 10 to 6. 1s.

ROYAL PANORAMA GALLERIES, Leicester-square. LIFE SALON of LONDON.—EXHIBITION OF PICTURES by M.M. Baudry, Bonnat, Bonvin, J. Boulanger, J. Breton, Carolus, Duran, De Knyff, Robert Fleury, Gérome, Hebert, Henner, Jalabert, Jules Lefebvre, Madrazo, Meissonier, Rousseau, Tissot, &c. Sculptures by Carrier-Belleuse, Gerwin, &c. Open MONDAY, JUNE 6, from Ten a.m. to Seven p.m. Admission, One Shilling.

WESTMINSTER PANORAMA, YORK-STREET, QUEEN ANNE'S-GATE, S.W. (opposite St. James's Park Station and adjoining Royal Aquarium).—THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO, by C. Castellani. Covering over 20,000 square feet of canvas. The largest Panorama in England. WILL OPEN WHIT MONDAY, JUNE 6. Admission One shilling.

THE BACH CHOIR.—Patron, her Majesty the QUEEN. Musical Director and Conductor, Mr. Otto Goldschmidt. J. Seb. Bach's MASS IN B MINOR. Sixth Performance, ST. JAMES'S HALL, WEDNESDAY EVENING, JUNE 1 (unavoidably postponed from May 18). All Tickets issued for that date are available for June 1, at a Quarter-past Eight o'Clock. Madame Lemmens-Sherrington, Madame Isabel Fassett, Mr. Shakespeare, Mr. Burgon, and Mr. Kempton. Principal Violin, Herr Ludwig Straus. Full Orchestra, and the Bach Choir. Stalls, 12s. 6d.; Reserved Seats, 7s. 6d.; Balcony, 5s.; Area, 3s.; Gallery, 2s. Stanley Lucas, Weber, and Co., 84, New Bond-street; usual Agents; and Austin's Ticket-office, St. James's Hall.

ST. JAMES'S HALL, PICCADILLY.
THE
MOORE and BURGESS MINSTRELS'
NEW PROGRAMME,
replete with musical gems, sparkling comicalities, and humorous sketches, will be repeated until the end of the present month.
EVERY NIGHT AT EIGHT,
MONDAY, WEDNESDAY, and SATURDAY at THREE and EIGHT.
FIFTY ARTISTES,
including the Juvenile Choir, the Statuesque Dancers, and powerful Phalanx of Comedians.
Fauteuils, 5s.; Sofa stalls, 3s.; Area, 2s.; Gallery, 1s.
No fees.

BRIGHTON. — PULLMAN DRAWING-ROOM CAR TRAINS leave Victoria for Brighton every WEEKDAY at 10.0 a.m. and 4.30 p.m., and Brighton for Victoria at 9.45 a.m. (Pullman Car) and 5.45 p.m.; also from Victoria on Sundays at 10.45, and from Brighton at 8.30 p.m.
EVERY SUNDAY.—A Cheap First-Class Train from Victoria at 10.45 a.m., calling at Clapham Junction and Croydon. Day Return Tickets, 10s.

THE GRAND AQUARIUM AT BRIGHTON.—EVERY SATURDAY Cheap First-Class Trains from Victoria at 10.55 and 11.20 a.m., and London Bridge at 9.30 a.m. and 12.0 noon, calling at Clapham Junction and Croydon. Day Return Fare—First Class, Half-a-Guinea (including admission to the Aquarium and the Royal Pavilion Picture Gallery, Palace, and Grounds); available to return by any Train the same day, except the 5.45 p.m. Pullman Car Train.
(By order) J. P. KNIGHT, General Manager.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, MAY 28, 1881.

The first and somewhat hasty impressions produced by crude criticisms of the Revised New Testament have been succeeded by a juster estimate of its scope and merits. More leisurely examination reveals the great fidelity as well as scholarly capacity of the Revisers, who in many a passage must have been greatly tempted to interpret the text in harmony with modern predilections rather than with literal exactness. Tested by this standard, as well as by the rules laid down at starting, the Revisers, it is now seen, have with scrupulous accuracy rendered the text of the most trustworthy modern manuscripts, which are more complete and valuable than such as were available when the Authorised Version was produced. Scholars have been afforded special facilities for critical examination by the simultaneous publication of the Greek Testament with the readings adopted by the Revisers, while the general public are beginning to understand that the task undertaken by them was not the production of a wholly new translation, nor a paraphrase of the original text with a view to preserve cherished traditions and conciliate devotional feeling, but a scrupulous rendering of the original Greek with as much regard to the phraseology of the Authorised Version as was consistent with truth. Three times during the long space of eleven years did the revised text pass under the critical eye of each member of that large "Company," and no changes were accepted unless by a majority of two-thirds.

Any detailed criticism of this gigantic Biblical work would be presumptuous and indeed impossible in this column. Some of the omissions and many of the changes have created painful surprise, such as those made in the Lord's Prayer as it has been handed down to us from generation to generation. The Revisers had to consult fidelity at the expense of feeling. When so learned a body of scholars discard the doxology at the close of the Prayer, those who would retain it in spite of the best manuscripts are put on their defence. The much-discussed change, "Deliver us from the evil one" for "Deliver us from evil," may appear almost harsh when regarded from our modern standpoint. But the alteration, besides being strictly accurate, accords with the Jewish habit in the time of our Lord of personifying both evil and good qualities. This is only a specimen, though one of the most conspicuous, of the alterations conscientiously made by the Revisers.

Some emendations, though accurate enough, might perhaps have been dispensed with as unimportant or destructive of rhythm. Others, especially in the Pauline Epistles, throw a new and fresh light on the writer's meaning. By a very slight change, many an obscure passage becomes intelligible, and hardly any alterations can be said to have much doctrinal significance. One, however, is not unimportant. In the 5th of Romans we read in the Revised Version, "For as through the one man's disobedience the many were made sinners, even so through the obedience of the one shall the many be made righteous,"—the restoration of the definite article giving a more precise meaning to the passage. Some changes, however defensible on critical grounds, will be seen with regret—such as the favourite text, which now reads, "With but little persuasion, thou wouldst fain make me a Christian;" and the equally familiar "good-will towards men," which seems changed for the worse into "peace among men, with whom He is well-pleased." But we ought to be resigned to the substitution of "love" for "charity" in the famous chapter in Corinthians I., though some strongly object to it. The omissions are more considerable than a cursory examination would reveal, though they will be obvious to students of the Sinaitic, Vatican, and Alexandrian manuscripts. The Revisers have made short work of the "Three Witnesses;" but the last twelve verses of St. Mark, which some of the best Biblical critics regard as equally spurious, are retained, though with hesitation.

Although the Revised New Testament is much more faithful and perfect than the Authorised Version—which, however, is preserved in its substantial integrity—it is not surprising that there should be much hesitation as to its hearty and unreserved acceptance. The enormous sale here and in America testifies to the eagerness of public curiosity and to the widespread interest in this, the most valued and revered portion of the Bible. The reissue of no other book, ancient or modern, has excited one tithe the interest of this new version of the New Testament. Its circulation is already counted by hundreds of thousands on this side the Atlantic, and in America the foremost daily paper printed the entire text from Matthew to Revelations in one issue. The several editions of the Revised New Testament cannot be produced fast enough to satisfy the popular demand.

Whether this demand will soon be met, or will become unlimited, depends partly, but not wholly, on the amount of confidence which the Revised Version will ultimately inspire. There are not a few difficulties in the way of its universal acceptance. It was undertaken under the auspices of Convocation, and in the end the ablest scholars of the chief Protestant communions outside the Church of England were associated with those inside in this privileged and meritorious work. The inquiry as to how the Revised New Testament is to receive the stamp of national approval has brought out some curious points. It seems that the Authorised Version never was formally "authorised." It came into general use without the direct sanction or intervention of the Crown, Parliament, or Convocation. But the Act of Uniformity, which prescribes the use of the Prayer Book, covers also such portions of the Bible as are contained in the Lessons. The Bishop of London is, therefore, quite perplexed as to the course which ought to be pursued in respect to the Revised Version, and he even warns his clergy—vainly, it would appear—against making use of it in their prescribed services; the Archbishop of Canterbury disclaims the report that he, as the Primate, has formally presented a copy of the book to her Majesty, which was sent to Windsor Castle in the customary way by the chairman of the Revision Company; Convocation orders it to lie on the table, while, with some hesitation, thanking its compilers; and of course the various Nonconformist bodies, untrammeled by official forms, are free to act as they please.

But when precedents offer no guidance, the world is apt to dispense with precedents. If, as seems probable, the Revised New Testament forces its way into public favour, as did the Authorised Version, the means of adopting it in our places of worship, as well as in our homes, will soon be discovered. Probably it is only a question of time. At all events, the issue of the Revised New Testament is, from many points of view, a very memorable event. It is the most perfect interpretation of the more precious portion of the Divine Oracles which has been offered to the world, either in the original text, or in the form of faithful translation. While the chaff has been blown away by reverential criticism, the wheat remains. Nothing that is vital or precious has been lost in the process. The entire scope and spirit of the original New Testament are there in essence. And if, in order to secure this consummation, something of time-honoured associations and not a few fond but weak prejudices have to be sacrificed, the gain transcendently exceeds the loss, and future generations will profit entirely by what to many now living may not appear an unmixed blessing.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales took the chair on Tuesday evening at Willis's Rooms at a festival dinner of the Royal Hospital for Children and Women. This admirable institution is seventy-one years old, and for a great length of time has enjoyed Royal patronage. The Prince's grandfather, the Duke of Kent, presided at the first annual festival of the hospital; and his Royal Highness's great-uncle, the Duke of Sussex, also took a warm interest in it. The Prince mentioned in the course of his speech that since the foundation of this most deserving and unassuming charity so many as four hundred thousand children had been relieved. And such children! This is pre-eminently the country in which the infants of affluence are pretty and rosy and chubby, and in which the brats of want and improvidence and vice are ugly and cadaverous, and, on the whole, shocking and shameful to look upon. The poor little mites, are in tens of thousands of cases, born diseased. They are the unhealthy offspring of unhealthy parents; and it is, in the main, their lot to grow up to be unhealthy boys and girls and men and women in unhealthy neighbourhoods, festering with unhealthy hovels.

The Prince spoke fluently, pleasantly, and to the point. His speeches had evidently not been elaborately prepared; and were, perhaps, all the better for the absence of over-elaborate preparation. He had been somewhat overweighted, too, at the beginning of the speech of the evening by the intolerably long and dreary oration of the gallant officer who returned thanks for the Army, and who emphasised his prolonged periods with a walking-stick. But brave old Admiral Sir Harry Keppel, who responded for the Navy, spoke with sailor-like terseness and brevity. The Lord Mayor was impressive, and just long enough; and the Bishop of Rochester, who proposed the health of the illustrious chairman, was neatly felicitous.

The hospital is poor, and needs a sum of five thousand pounds very badly. I could see directly I glanced round the room with its two hundred guests that "there was money in it." Do you know why? Because I saw so many scores of people that I did not know. The unknown benefactor is, as a rule, the most munificent, just as your unknown friend (I am glad to say that I have many friends whom I do not know from Adam) is generally the most generous, the most sympathetic, and the most constant.

"How much money?" asked a gallant gentleman who was my neighbour. "Three Thousand pounds? That's what they expect." "No," I replied. "I can pretty well take the measure of most of those spectacles, shirt fronts, and bald heads. The subscription list is worth a safe two thousand pounds." By-and-by, the schedule of donations was read; and it "footed up," in American parlance, to eighteen hundred and forty pounds. My gallant neighbour looked at me half contemptuously, half reproachfully. He evidently thought me a Humbug. But—aha!—the secretary had a supplementary list to read; and this made the total amount subscribed just exceed two thousand pounds. Victory!

One smoked, after the Queen's health had, with tremendous enthusiasm, been drunk. On the pedestal of one of the numerous statues of the Prince which, in process of time, Mr. Boehm, Mr. Woolner, Mr. Theed, and Mr. Belt may be called upon to execute, should be inscribed the words "and H.R.H. permitted smoking at public dinners." Ye treasurers and secretaries of all hospitals, asylums, and other beneficent institutions, bear the potential tobacco inscription in mind. One does not go to a public dinner to swill strong wines. I noticed that many of my neighbours touched scarcely anything stronger than Apollinaris and a little hock. But three people out of five, nowadays, yearn for a cigar or a cigarette after dinner. I don't know how other smokers feel in the matter; but, so far as I am personally concerned, permission to smoke is always followed by the addition of cent per cent to the mite which I am able to give to the funds of the charity.

Many fewer persons will, I am afraid, agree with me when I say that the presence of ladies at charity dinners—the Mansion House banquets are totally different things—are, in the interests of the charity itself, distinctly objectionable. I like to see the ladies in the gallery or on a raised dais. I like to hear that they have been regaled with cakes, ices, tea and coffee, and sparkling moselle; and I have been told, although the assertion nearly passes my powers of credence, that they like to listen to the after-dinner speeches. Well; among these prolusions may be the utterances of the Beloved One below, the husband, brother, or sweetheart; and the oratorical wheat will at length emerge from the chaff.

But to the advantage of the presence of ladies at the banquet itself I entertain the gravest doubts. The length of the repast must weary them. Ladies are physically incapable and naturally reluctant to applaud vehemently; they cannot cheer; and a speaker addressing an audience of whom one half are members of the Better Sex is robbed of half his hand-clappings and half his "hurrahs." And applause is the breath of life to the orator, as it is to the actor. Again, and this is the most serious of my gravamina, the very best of good women are apt to be economical. They will give away thousands, in the lump, for a worthy object; but will haggle over that eightpenny fare with the cabman, and be very hard on the greengrocer touching the extra twopence-halfpenny for the cauliflowers. Now, when a gentleman, perfectly sober and not perhaps in the best of tempers, owing to his being deprived of the tobacco for which he pants, and with a dear, nice, good, economical lady by his side, looks at the subscription paper which the secretary has handed him, he is apt to think twice before filling it up; and the result of second thoughts very frequently is that where, under other circumstances, he would have given two guineas, he now gives one.

I observe that the committee of the Carlyle Memorial Fund are again advertising for public support; nor can I see any valid reason why the Rev. Gerald Blunt and Mr. A. B. Mitford should relax their efforts to obtain funds for erecting a statue of Mr. Carlyle on the Thames Embankment because, forsooth, a blundering editor has chosen to make public certain notes and comments on people never intended to be put in print. Thomas Carlyle, Historian, Essayist, and Philosopher, is not one whit the less True Thomas of Chelsea to me, and not the less, in every sense of the word, Illustrious because, half a century ago, when he was young, and poor, and struggling, he "booed" a little to influential folk; and because, long years after, in a peevish, dyspeptic, Solitary old age, he jotted down some ill-tempered allusions to people whom he had known. I cannot imagine noble old Ben Jonson ever penning one single line of detraction of Shakspeare; still, it is just possible that, when he was getting very old and gouty, Ben may have written in his memorandum-book (happily destroyed in the Great Fire) that Spenser was a very overrated poet; that Marlowe was quarrelsome in his cups; that Sir Walter Raleigh could be offensively haughty on occasion; that my Lord Burleigh was a bore, and Sir Christopher Hatton a light-heeled impostor. What a thunderbolt would fall in the historical atmosphere could such a memorandum-book be made manifest! Dire would be the amazement, again, could some stray notes of Shakspeare himself be discovered, ending with such a sentence as the following:—"Taking men and women all round, as I have seen them, their loves, their hatreds, their passions, their follies, and their vices, it seems to me that about the most valorous, earnest, constant souls of this my age have been Mistress Viviana Radcliffe and Master Guido Vaux, of Yorkshire."

You noticed that I wrote "Solitary" in italics just now. There it is. It is Solitude that makes great men "cranky" and ill-tempered. "The notice you have been pleased to take of my labours had it been early had been kind; but it has been delayed till I am indifferent and cannot enjoy it; till I am solitary and cannot impart it; till I am known and do not want it." Johnson might never have written bitter words to Chesterfield had he had a wife by his side. "My dear," Mrs. J. would have said, "I am sure his Lordship means to be very kind. Life is not long enough to quarrel. You must write his Lordship a nice letter. You will be asked to dine at Chesterfield House, and I must get you new buckles for your shoes, and have your wig done up by Mr. Frizell in Ship-yard, for it is in a shocking condition." But Mrs. J. was cold and dead. There was no one to share his cup; no one to smooth the scowl from his brow, and kiss the ugly angles away from his mouth. Deliver us from war, plague, and famine—from usurers, anonymous letter writers, garotters, and bores—from being bores ourselves, and from being Alone!

Touching Mr. James Anthony Froude, who has been abused as though he had tried to blow up the Mansion House, set the Thames on fire, and murdered Eliza Grimwood, I would respectfully counsel that ripe scholar and distinguished historian to refresh his remembrance of a certain very sagacious tractate prefixed to "the Works of Mr. Abraham Cowley" (London, folio, 1684). Faithorne's portrait of the poet. The big book is edited by Mr. Clifford, who begins his preface thus:—"Mr. Cowley, in his will, recommended to my care the revising of all his works that were formerly printed, and the collecting of those papers which he had designed for the press. And he did so with this particular obligation. That I should be sure to let Nothing pass that might seem the least offence to Religion or to good manners. The interests of religion are, of course, thoroughly safe in the hands of Mr. Froude. It is only in the matter of "good manners" that he was slightly indiscreet.

An artful gentleman signing himself "Corium" does not solve the riddle attributed to Archbishop Whately, but he sends one, a poem in several silly verses, called "The Song of the Boots," which he obligingly tells me I am quite at liberty to print. No; my artful friend, I will not print your verses. What, ho! the basket, quick!

"H. W." is less artful, but more practical. The best answer, he writes, which he has seen is this—

To him who cons the matter o'er
A little thought reveals,
That it was he who went before
A pair of soles and eels.

If this be right, my idiotic friend (I was the idiot) and 'Arry of the Heels had some dim inkling of the true solution, although they were unable to shape it into verse.

But "J. M. C.," South Kensington, offers another solution:—

When from the ark's capacious round
The World came forth in pairs,
The Calf was first to hear the sound
Of boots upon the stairs.

"Another way," as Mrs. Glasse has it. "J. J.," Devizes, reads "Beasts" instead of "World," in the second word of the second line of the riddle itself, and suggests this prose suggestion that the sound of "boots upon the stairs" was first audible to him who drove the kine, and heard their high lows as they emerged from the ark.

The following, from a "J. J.," but dating from Hemel Hempstead, speaks for itself; and while it gives what seems to be the most tangible solution of the riddle, throws a provoking doubt on its authorship. Was the Editor of "Once a Week" in the year 1868 the late Mr. E. S. Dallas?

Hemel Hempstead, Herts, Saturday, May 21, 1881.

Dear Sir,—With reference to H. T.'s query in your "Echoes" of to-day, there appeared in the May part, 1868, of "Once a Week" this:—

In a recent number of "Once a Week" there appeared a riddle which was said to be insoluble.—

When from the ark's capacious round
The world came forth in pairs,
Who was it that first heard the sound
Of boots upon the stairs?

It was said that Archbishop Whately offered £5 for its solution. Here it is:—

To him who cons the matter o'er
A little thought reveals,
He heard it first who went before
Two pair of soles and (h)eels.

The editor of the periodical in question, in conclusion, told his readers that they were misinformed as to the riddle being of Whately's making; it was of his bewilderment.

"Atlas," carissimo mio, how did you contrive to find at the bottom of a box the bill of a Bishop who had dined at the Athenæum club? I thought that the universal custom at all clubs which are clubs—pardon the pleonasm—was for the bill to be brought by the waiter to the member who had dined. Then the member paid his bill; and the bill itself was returned to the steward, who filed it for its production, if necessary, at the next meeting of the committee.

It is possible that the account should have got astray somehow. The strangest things get astray. In a rag shop in New York, in 1863-4, I picked up a number of folios superbly bound in crimson morocco, gilt edges, tooled, extra, lined with blue watered silk, containing the manuscript reports to his Majesty Louis Philippe of his Ministers of Finance and the Interior. The books had probably formed part of the plunder of the palace of the Tuileries in February, 1848. I bought them for a few cents a pound, and converted them into albums for newspaper cuttings; else, I would send them, with my duty, to the Comte de Paris, if Monseigneur cared to have them. But there they are, each with a crown royal and the initials "L. P." on the covers.

Apropos of the late Earl of Beaconsfield, here is a strictly veracious anecdote. There lives and flourishes in a famous watering-place on the southern coast the landlord of a hostelry equally renowned, and who had the honour ever so many years ago of ordering young Mr. Benjamin Disraeli out of the library or the newspaper-room of the club where "Atlas'" Bishop dined. The worthy Boniface to whom I allude was at one period of his career steward of the Athenæum, of which old Mr. Isaac Disraeli, author of "The Curiosities of Literature," was one of the earliest members. He was accustomed to stay very late at the Athenæum, and his son Benjamin, then a mere youth, and whose filial piety was well known, used to come to Pall-mall every night to fetch his father home. But one evening young Mr. Benjamin ventured to enter either the library or the reading-room, and to sit there conversing with his papa. A horrified servant was forced to report the presence in the sacred precincts of a non-member to the steward; and it was the stern duty of that functionary politely to request the intruder to withdraw.

Here is another little anecdote relating not, however, to the remote past, but to the immediate present. Scene, a private box at the Prince of Wales's Theatre. Personages represented, a Belgravian mamma and a charming little girl of ten—one of Mr. Du Maurier's golden-haired, black silk, "pianoforte legs" children. Charming little girl, who is witnessing with delicious little bewilderment the performance of "The Colonel," loquitur: "Mamma, dear, is Mr. Oscar Wilde such a very wicked man? Why was he so naughty?" Tableau.

More English words clapped without ceremony into the French (newspaper) language! A gallant correspondent at Chatham, "H. W. T.," sends me the following from the Paris Figaro:—

Arrivage de poneys et doubles poneys, cobs de toute beauté et de toutes tailles, à vendre de confiance le 5 mai et jours suivants, chez M. Joseph, rue l'Olive, 6, à La Chapelle-Paris.

My correspondent is puzzled to know what "doubles poneys" may mean. "Well matched pairs," perhaps.

From the University of Leipsic, with the initials "F. W. R.," comes the following well-known couplet of Schiller's:—

Welche Religion ich bekenne? Keine von Allen,
Die du mir nennst! Und warum keine? Aus Religion.

Is this, "F. W. R." asks, the original germ out of which the various epigrams you quote have been evolved?

Numerous correspondents, including Professor W. W. Skeat, tell me that there is a very good Concordance to Pope, by Abbot (it is somewhat scarce, I should say), in which the eccentricity of some of the poet's rhymes is duly noted.

Mem.: The correct Spanish pronunciation of the name of the heroine in Mr. Wills's tragedy of "Juana" is "Huana," with an n, and not "Huaña" with an ñ. Thank you, "G. B. D."

A lady at Kilburn has died through excessive indulgence in tight lacing. The medical gentleman who made the post-mortem examination deposed that the stomach of the unfortunate deceased was contracted by a band in the middle to one eighth of its normal size, and that there was a deep indentation in the liver, the result of pressure from the stays. Would my readers like to know the names of a few most distinguished medical authorities who have inveighed—and ineffectually inveighed—against tight lacing? I will mention Bonnaud, Müller, Grunes, Camper, Platner, Soemmering, Morgagni, Harrison, Winslow, Rougement, Wormes, Mascagni, Reinhardt, and Wegelin. Go to the British Museum Reading-Room and ask for a book called "Deformities of the Spine and Chest," by Charles Rogers Harrison, M.R.C.S., London, Churchill, 1842, and you will find a list of one hundred and seven cruel diseases and disorders which may be provoked or aggravated by tight lacing. Read what Jean Jacques Rousseau and the illustrious Buffon have written on the subject. Aye, and read the old Michel Sieur de Montaigne.

Pour faire un corps bien espagnolé quelle Gehenne les femmes ne souffrent-elles pas, guindées et sanglées avec de grosses coches (entailles) sur les costes jusqu'à la chair vive. Oui, quelque fois à en mourir (at Kilburn). Et Ambroise Paré qui avait vu sur la table de dissection de ces jolies personnes à fines taill s, lève le cuir et la chair et nous montre leurs costes chevauchant les unes pardessus les autres.

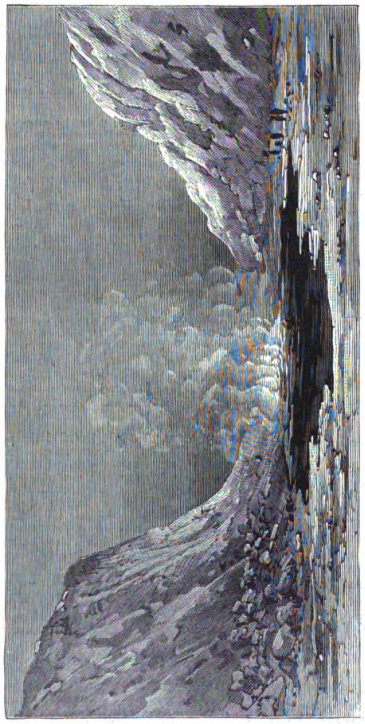
After reading this the "Jolies personnes à fines tailles" will probably proceed to lace themselves more tightly than ever.

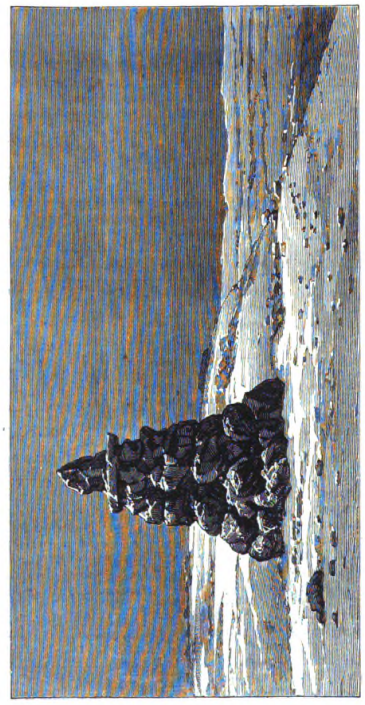
G. A. S

BLACKROCK HILL, STEWART'S MONUMENT.

CAPE HERSCHEL.



OPEN RAPIDS, BACK'S RIVER.



MONUMENT AT DOUGLAS BAY.

THE AMERICAN FRANKLIN SEARCH EXPEDITION: SKETCHES BY MR. H. W. KLUTSCHAK.

SEE PAGE 518.

THE AMERICAN FRANKLIN SEARCH EXPEDITION: SKETCHES BY MR. H. W. KLUTSCHAK.

BOAT PLACE, EREBUS BAY.

THE FIRST FROST: BUILDING A SNOW HOUSE.

Extra Supplement.

"PIPING TIMES OF PEACE."

The old soldier of the French wars, now sitting in his rustic garden at home, and playing a tune on the clarionet, to the entertainment of the listening girls behind the fence, is surely an agreeable representative of innocent repose from the toils and perils of grim-visaged war. He might have been a comrade of My Uncle Toby, or of Goldsmith's retired veteran who "shouldered his crutch and showed how fields were won;" there is such a quaint old-fashioned air of the last century about this kind old fellow, and his uniform, not yet quite past wearing in this state of dishabille, is of the same antiquated pattern. It would be pleasant to sit with him an hour or two; and, when he has performed all he knows upon the musical instrument that yields a customary solace of his evening leisure, to let him talk of campaigns and sieges in different foreign parts, where "Brown Bess," with the bayonet stuck in her muzzle, followed up the shower of hand-grenades to the discomfortune of a host of Frenchmen and Spaniards lining the hostile rampart—or where, on the sultry plains of India, in the early days of British conquest there, myriads of dusky warriors, the chivalry of the Mogul or Mahratta Empire, were put to flight by a small band of disciplined English soldiers. We prefer, nevertheless, to live in the "piping times of peace," and to leave, far off in the past, those tales of military glory.

LAST LOOK AT MAJUBA HILL.

The summit of that fatal eminence, overlooking Laing's Neck, on the Transvaal frontier of Natal, where Sir George Colley and so many gallant British soldiers fell in the disastrous conflict of Feb. 27, is once more represented in our Special Artist's Sketch, showing the simple arrangements that have been made to protect the graves of soldiers buried there, and to mark the exact spot where General Colley was killed. The graves of many of the soldiers are in the square plot of ground which is now inclosed with a rude wall of loose stones, and there is a wall about the mortal resting-place of Captain Maude, which lies nearest to the front. This is in a slight hollow under the north side of the rocky central ridge, which was shown in Major Fraser's plan lately engraved by order of the War Office, and republished in our Journal a fortnight ago. A cairn or pile of stones to the right marks where Sir G. Colley fell. The top of Majuba Hill is not flat but undulating; a rough estimation of its breadth would make it between 500 and 600 yards, but the surface being so uneven it is impossible in some places to see one side from the other. Many stones hastily raised as a cover still stand, and the marks of bullets show thickly on some, especially where the 92nd made their stand. The bird's-eye view obtained at Natal, the Transvaal, and the Orange Free State is from this position magnificent.

IRISH HARVESTERS FOR ENGLAND.

This party of men and women travelling on foot along the road in Connemara from their native district, to reach, as best they can, the nearest seaport for passage to England, was sketched the other day by our Special Artist in the West of Ireland. Mr. Bright, in his recent speech on the Irish Land Bill, referred to the practice of many poor people yearly coming over to this country for the purpose of harvest work, arriving by hundreds at Liverpool, Bristol, or Glasgow, and walking all over the agricultural shires to find temporary employment in the service of our farmers. "They work," he said, "with energy and zeal not surpassed by any English labourers, and they save what they earn; a great farmer in Northumberland told me, last autumn, that he thought these men live on less than sixpence a day. And having, in a very good harvest, made perhaps £10 or £12, they cross the Channel again, go back all through Ireland, and return to their own cabins with this small treasure that they have worked so hard for. "The men who do that," continued Mr. Bright, "are not without virtue; and, under favourable circumstances, they might become a very admirable part of the population of any country."

Our Special Artist writes, to the same effect, "It is, indeed, a very remarkable feature in the life of the cottiers and small farmers throughout the West of Ireland. Every year, as soon as they have set their potatoes, but generally about the beginning of May, there begins a constant stream of these harvesters, on the roads leading to the seaport towns, where there is a special service to carry them to their destination. As the holdings are so small that they cannot support the large families who live on them, the younger members of the family go on these harvesting expeditions. But it is not an uncommon thing for the whole family to leave their cabin and their land without a soul in charge; bolting the doors and barring the windows of the cabin, and then leaving the crop that they have just set in the ground to mature, unprotected, while they are away in England and Scotland reaping the harvest, and saving the money to pay the rents of their little holdings on the mountain side or along the seacoast. It is their hope to return in autumn, relieved of the one burning anxiety of the tenant class of Ireland—the rent. As the seasons are later in Ireland than in England and Scotland, these harvesters are in time to reap their own crops when those of England and Scotland are gathered."

THE AMERICAN FRANKLIN SEARCH EXPEDITION.

Some remaining Illustrations, from the Sketches by Mr. H. W. Klutschak, the Bohemian artist, who accompanied the expedition of 1878, 1879, and 1880, sent out by the New York Geographical Society in search of relics and monuments of the ill-fated Arctic exploring party commanded by Sir John Franklin in 1847, appear in this Number of our Journal. Others were presented to our readers several months ago, with a sufficient account of the expedition. It proceeded overland, from the northern shore of Hudson's Bay, to Simpson's Strait, there crossing over to King William's Land, and thoroughly exploring the whole of its western coast as far as Cape Felix, where H.M.S. Erebus and H.M.S. Terror were beset with ice and stopped, in September, 1846, and were forced to desist from the North-West Passage. The American party two years ago consisted of Lieutenant Frederick Schwatka, an officer of the United States' Army, Mr. W. H. Gilder, correspondent of the New York Herald, Mr. Klutschak, and Mr. Frank Melms, of Milwaukie, volunteers, with Joe Eberling, of Croton, Connecticut, an experienced Arctic traveller, who was engaged as guide and Esquimaux interpreter. They travelled with several dog-sledges, for the conveyance of their needful stores, accompanied by a numerous band of Netchillik Esquimaux, and passed two winters in that dreary region; the first winter at Camp Daly, near Dépôt Island, at the entrance to Chesterfield Inlet, Hudson's Bay; the second winter being occupied by their return journey, across Adelaide Peninsula, and over Back's River and Wager River, to the place from which they had started, arriving in the first week of March, 1880. This overland winter journey was a feat that had not been attempted by preceding Arctic travellers, and the experiences of Lieutenant Schwatka and his companions, which have been partly described in former notices and extracts from their journals, were of more than usual interest. We have also given some particulars of the discovery of the graves of Lieutenant Irving and other British officers who died in 1847 or 1848 on the shores of King William's Land, during the long and miserable sufferings of our unfortunate countrymen after the loss of their ships. The places shown in our present Illustrations are, the rapids of Back's River, and Black Rock Hill, with Stewart's Monument, which were passed in the march of four hundred miles northward from Hudson's Bay to Simpson's Strait; Cape Herschel, Douglas Bay, and Erebus Bay, on the coast of King William's Land, with the monuments erected by Lieutenant Schwatka's party to the memory of Sir John Franklin's comrades who had perished there; and we also give an Illustration of the method of building a snow house, for which the blocks of congealed snow are very neatly shaped and trimmed with a large knife. They are built up, with skilful masonry, into a compact beehive structure, proof against the storms of an Arctic winter, and strong enough to bear the superincumbent weight of snowdrifts upon its domed roof, through a residence of five or six months in that inclement region.

PARISIAN SAYINGS AND DOINGS.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Paris, Tuesday, May 24.

On Thursday last in the course of one single and laborious sitting the Chamber of Deputies resolved a question which has been under discussion for six months. It voted the Bardoux Bill, and re-established the scrutin de liste. The bill was supported by M. Bardoux, opposed by M. Roger, and defended by M. Gambetta in an important speech, which carried the day. The bill was voted without debate on the clauses after a division on the first clauses, on which the whole bill depends. This first clause was adopted by 267 votes against 202. As according to the Bardoux Bill each department elects a number of deputies varying in proportion to the number of inhabitants, the whole number of deputies will be increased by fifty-five, and the new Chamber will consist of 590 members.

After having won the battle of the scrutins, M. Gambetta began to pack up his trunks, and to-night he will leave Paris for his native town of Cahors, where great feasting and junketing will take place in honour of the illustrious statesman. During his visit to Cahors M. Gambetta will make a speech, in which he will inform France how her affairs stand, and what she is to do at the general elections next October.

On Saturday the Senate proceeded to the election of two life Senators. The voting was instructive. The Republican candidates were MM. Victor Lefranc and Henri Didier, and the candidates of the Right of the House General de Rivière and M. Robinet de Cléry, the defender of the religious congregations in their recent lawsuits with the Government. The result of the voting was thus: M. Lefranc, 151; M. Didier, 148; M. de Rivière, 91; M. de Cléry, 89. This result shows the profound change which has taken place in the Senate within the last four years, in the course of which the once irresistible anti-Republican majority has become transformed into a minority which forms scarcely one-third of the Senate.

A very important exhibition was opened at the Cercle de l'Union Artistique on Monday last, consisting of eighteen pastels of M. Joseph de Nittis. M. de Nittis has so completely revolutionised the exquisite art of La Tour, of Léotard, of Rosalba Carriera, and of Greuze, that he may be said to have created a new art, and an art that is essentially modern. There are notably in this exhibition three very large pictures of scenes on a Parisian racecourse, with figures nearly life-size, and panoramic backgrounds sweeping away over hill and dale that are altogether unique. In drawing a portrait of a lady, M. de Nittis represents her, as he has represented Madame E——, in her salon, surrounded by the furniture and objects of art that contribute to the elegance and comfort of her daily life. He shows us another lady in her carriage, another in a garden, another in her box at the Opera with an ideal background representing the second act of the ballet of "La Korrigane." The portrait of M. de Goncourt shows us the eminent novelist in his library at work on the manuscript of his new book, "La Faustа," with a glimpse of a wintry landscape scene through the window. No artist has ever yet turned the pastel to such varied uses and with such perfect mastery. Each picture exhibited by M. de Nittis is the result of distinct study and research in the technical handling of the pastel—a result so charming, so powerful, and so surprising that one may truly say that the artist has discovered a new art, in which it is possible to obtain effects of colour, a truthfulness and delicacy of modelling; and, above all, a pulverous softness that oil-painting cannot give. Pastel, too, has this inexpressibly great advantage in the eyes of an artist whose passion it is to seize all that is striking, peculiar, and elegant in the movement of modern life—it is an essentially rapid means of obtaining complete effects.

There is now a vacancy in the French Academy, through the death of M. Duvergier de Hauranne, which occurred on Friday last. M. de Hauranne was born in 1798. After having been a Liberal and a promoter of the Revolution of 1830, he became, successively, a doctrinaire and a Royalist. M. de Hauranne was essentially a mediocrity. For many years he was one of the publicists in ordinary of the Revue des Deux Mondes. The heaviest parcel of his literary baggage is a "History of Parliamentary Government in France." He was elected a member of the Academy in 1870, in place of the Duke Victor de Broglie.

Victor Hugo seems destined to receive from the nineteenth century the same honours that Voltaire received from the eighteenth. Both have had their busts crowned on the stage of the Théâtre Français, both have been the object of immense popular manifestations, and both will have seen a statue raised in their honour during their lifetime. In 1770 seventeen philosophers and writers met at Madame Necker's and decided that a statue should be raised in honour of Voltaire, with this inscription:—"A Voltaire vivant, par les gens de lettres, ses compatriotes." On Wednesday last a group of men of letters and journalists met at the Salle des Capucines and appointed a provisional committee of twelve, under the presidency of M. Louis Blanc, for the purpose of raising a statue of Victor Hugo on the place in the Avenue d'Eylau, to which the poet's name has recently been given. The Place Victor Hugo will therefore shortly be completed by a statue of the greatest lyric poet of the age.

T. C.

The memorial to the Prince Imperial, which was to have been placed in Westminster Abbey, has been sent to Windsor, where it will be erected in the Braye Chapel at St. George's.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

SPAIN.

The celebration of the Centenary of Calderon de la Barca, the Shakspeare of Spain, has been held this week at Madrid. It began on Sunday by recitations in the University of compositions in poetry and in prose in honour of Calderon, and the presentation of prizes to the successful competitors. The King and Queen were present, and the proceedings passed off amid the enthusiastic applause of a crowded audience of all nationalities. Upwards of 70,000 visitors have arrived at Madrid to witness these festivities, among whom are representatives of home and foreign corporations, including the Mayor of Rome and the representatives of the Municipality of Paris. Portugal is also largely represented.

GERMANY.

In honour of the birthday of Queen Victoria, the Crown Prince and Princess gave a banquet at their palace on Tuesday. The Emperor was present, with all the members of the Imperial family.

The German Parliament on Monday read the commercial treaty with China the second time without debate. The treaty of commerce with Austria-Hungary was concluded, and that with Switzerland has been signed.

AUSTRIA-HUNGARY.

The Crown Prince Rudolph and his bride returned to Vienna on Monday afternoon upon the conclusion of their highly successful visit to Pesth. From the station their Imperial Highnesses drove immediately to Schönbrunn, where the Emperor and Empress have taken up their residence for the early summer. The Crown Prince and Princess will leave Vienna again in a few days for Prague, where great preparations have been made for their arrival.

On Monday the Lower House of the Reichsrath adopted by 156 votes to 149 the proposal of the school committee to shorten the term of compulsory attendance at school.

RUSSIA.

The Emperor on Monday received a deputation of leading Jews in St. Petersburg, who, after assuring his Majesty of the loyalty and devotion of the Jews, were asked to draw up a memorial on the subject of the Jewish grievances, to be submitted to General Ignatieff.

General Ignatieff has circulated a document among the governors of the provinces, setting forth the views of the Government upon the condition of the country.

An Imperial ukase has been issued incorporating the Tekke territory and the Trans-Caspian military district with the Caucasian military district, with the title of the Trans-Caspian Territory, under the supreme commander in chief of the Caucasian army.

The greater part of Pinsk, a town of 18,000 inhabitants, in the Government of Minsk, was destroyed by fire on Monday.

At St. Petersburg arrests of Nihilists continue, an important capture being that of Ivan Michailovitch, an accomplice of the persons hanged for the murder of the late Czar.

The Russo-Chinese treaty has been ratified.

AMERICA.

The Session of the United States Senate closed yesterday week, and Congress will not be called together again till the first Monday in December. The Senate rejected the nomination of Mr. William E. Chandler as Solicitor-General, which was opposed by the Attorney-General; but unanimously confirmed Mr. Robertson's appointment as collector of the New York port.

Mr. Conkling, after extended conferences with his New York friends on Saturday and Sunday, has decided to become a candidate for re-election as a Senator, and also that Mr. Platt should run. A letter from General Grant has been published strongly supporting Mr. Conkling.

Mr. Blaine, the Secretary of State, has reported that the case of Michael Boyton does not warrant interference.

The Supreme Court of Pennsylvania has affirmed the decree of the Court of Common Pleas declaring that Mr. Bond and his associates are the legally elected officers of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad Company.

Mr. Thomas A. Scott, described as the greatest American railway manager of his day, died recently, after a lingering illness, at the age of fifty-seven.

CANADA.

At a Cabinet Council held at Halifax on the 21st inst. the following appointments were made:—Chief Justice of Nova Scotia, Mr. James Macdonald; Minister of Justice, Mr. Alexander Campbell; Postmaster-General, Mr. John O'Connor; Secretary of State, Mr. J. A. Mousseau; President of the Council, Mr. A. W. Maclellan (of Nova Scotia).

Fighting has taken place in the Transvaal between the Boers and the Kaffirs.

Native outbreaks have occurred in Algeria, but have been suppressed by the French.

Two more earthquake shocks have occurred at Chios, damaging the few houses still standing.

A Lloyd's telegram, dated Melbourne, May 21, states that the Flying Squadron has arrived there.

Prince Alexander proposes making a tour throughout Bulgaria, with the object of personally ascertaining the feeling and condition of the country.

Mr. Goschen has paid the ransom demanded for Mr. Suter, the Englishman recently captured by Turkish brigands, and Mr. Suter has been liberated. Another gentleman has been captured by brigands, and a ransom of £6000 is demanded.

Preaching in the open air has been prohibited in Calcutta, owing to the disorders thereby occasioned. As the missionaries claim prescriptive rights, the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal has been applied to for instructions.

An exhibition will be opened at Gothenburg on June 1, to which the best artists and sculptors in Sweden, Norway, Denmark, and Finland will contribute. There will also be an exhibition of pictures from private collections in those countries.

The Wurtemberg Industrial Exhibition was opened on the 19th inst. by the King and Queen in person. The ceremony was favoured by fine weather, and passed off in a brilliant and successful manner. The arrangements of the exhibition are of a tasteful character.

Colonel Charles E. Oldershaw, C.B., R.A., commanding the Royal Artillery at Mhow, Bombay, has been appointed to the Sind command, with the rank of Brigadier-General. This gallant officer served throughout the Crimean campaign, and distinguished himself in command of a battery.

Count Harry Arnim died at Nice on the 19th inst., aged fifty-eight. The circumstances attending his recall as German Envoy to France, and the trial which followed, are matters of history. He was sentenced to three months' imprisonment, and, on appeal, the time was increased. Shortly afterwards the pamphlet "Pro Nihilo" appeared. Count Arnim was then indicted for treason, and sentenced to five years' penal servitude; but he had previously left the country.

BENEVOLENT OBJECTS.

The Queen has been pleased to become a patroness of the United Kingdom Beneficent Association, and has sent £50 in aid of its funds.

Her Majesty and the Prince and Princess of Wales have graciously extended their patronage to the bazaar which is to be held in the Horticultural Society's Gardens on July 6 and 7, in aid of the scheme for erecting coffee taverns at the various military stations in the United Kingdom. Colonel Tilney, of the Liverpool Rifle Volunteers, has forwarded £100 in furtherance of the scheme.

A festival dinner in connection with the Royal Hospital for Women and Children in the Waterloo-road took place on Tuesday evening at Willis's Rooms—the Prince of Wales in the chair. The result of an appeal by his Royal Highness was a subscription list of about £2000, this sum including 100 guineas from the Prince, £200 from Mr. E. Lawrence, £200 from Mr. Eastwood, £200 from Mr. Torkington, Mr. Crompton Roberts £100, and Messrs. Lucas Brothers £105.

The Prince and Princess of Wales have given their patronage to the George Stephenson Centenary Festival, which is to be held at the Crystal Palace on June 9, in aid of the funds of the Railway Servants' Orphanage, Derby.

The thirtieth anniversary of the Royal Cambridge Asylum for Soldiers' Widows was held last Saturday at the Royal United Service Institution. The Duke of Connaught presided.

Prince Leopold presided at the annual festival of the University College Hospital, held at Willis's Rooms on the 20th inst., having on his right the Duke of Connaught. The company numbered about 200, and comprised many distinguished guests. Prince Leopold, in proposing "Prosperity to the University College Hospital," said that, by unavoidable causes, it stood in great need of support. Attracted by the reputed skill of its eminent medical officers, patients came from all parts of the metropolis. In 1880 the number of in-patients amounted to 2789, and each of the 200 beds had been occupied by fourteen different persons within the year. Since 1832 nearly 5000 medical men had received their training within its walls. The Duke of Connaught declared that the Royal family owed a debt of gratitude to members of the medical profession coming from the hospital; and Prince Leopold added that he could justly assert that no one living had, of his knowledge and experience, a greater right than himself to indorse all that could be said in praise of these eminent men. The subscriptions amounted to £1230.

Mr. Samuel Brandram's recital of the first part of "King Henry IV." was given on the 18th inst., by permission of Mr. and Mrs. Freake, at 1, Cromwell-houses, in aid of the Bournemouth branch of the Hospital for Hip Disease. The recital proved in every respect a highly gratifying success.

The annual general meeting in connection with the London Temperance Hospital was held on Monday evening in the hospital, Hampstead-road. Mr. E. Stafford Howard, M.P., presided. The report showed that the in-patients for the past year numbered 143. The receipts amounted to £1579 and the expenditure to £1435. The hospital had been opened, free from debt, at an expense of £25,000.

There was an amateur concert on Tuesday at Dudley House in aid of the Young Women's Help Society.

The annual meeting of the General Domestic Servants' Benevolent Institution was held on Tuesday at Willis's Rooms—the president, Lord Ebury, in the chair.

A meeting was held in the saloon of Drury Lane Theatre on Tuesday afternoon, at which the new constitution, rules, and regulations of the Dramatic and Musical Sick Fund were submitted for consideration.

The annual ball in aid of the Central London Throat and Ear Hospital, Gray's-inn-road, was held on Wednesday night at Willis's Rooms, under very distinguished patronage.

On Wednesday afternoon the annual general meeting of the Society for Training Teachers of the Deaf was held at The Elms, Castle Bar Hill, near Ealing. After the business of the day there was a conversazione, when visitors were afforded an opportunity of witnessing the method of instruction.

Lord Derby took the chair at the annual court of governors of the Consumption Hospital, Brompton, on Thursday.

On Thursday evening the biennial dinner in aid of the funds of the Metropolitan Dispensary, in Fore-street, Cripplegate, was held at the Albion. The Lord Mayor, M.P., presided, and a good list of subscriptions was announced.

Eton School having undertaken the support of a Mission in East London, a meeting of Old Etonians was held at Willis's Rooms last Saturday, to assist the scholars in their movement. Addresses were delivered by Sir S. Northcote, who presided, the Earl of Carnarvon, the Bishop of Bath and Wells, Lord Coleridge, the Bishop of Bedford, and others, encouraging the Eton scholars in the excellent work they had undertaken.

The annual excursion of the teachers and senior scholars of the Metropolitan Sunday Schools to the Home for Little Boys, Farningham, took place last Saturday. Over 2000 were conveyed by special trains, and the outing was much enjoyed.

A bazaar on an extensive scale in aid of the children's wards of the North-West London Hospital, 18 and 20, Kentish Town-road, was opened yesterday at the St. Katherine's Schools, Regent's Park, and continued to-day. The bazaar is patronised by many ladies of distinction.

A morning performance will be given by the "Inseparables" Amateur Dramatic Club next Monday, at the Gaiety Theatre, in aid of the Hospital for Hip Disease in Children, 18, Queen-square, and Bournemouth.

MASONIC CHARITIES.

Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, M.P., the recently installed Provincial Grand Master for Gloucestershire, presided on the 18th inst. at the ninety-third anniversay festival of the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls, at the Freemasons' Tavern, and was supported on the right by Sir Francis Burdett, Provincial Grand Master for Middlesex, and on the left by Sir H. Edwards, Provincial Grand Master of West Yorkshire. A large number of ladies were also present, and during the dinner partook of a collation provided separately. Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, in proposing the toast of "Success to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls," warmly advocated the claims of the charity. The toast was received with all honours, and the lists were then read by Brother Hedges, the secretary. The total, with lists to come in, amounted to £5884 from the provinces (including £1000 from Gloucestershire, the chairman's province), and £5559 from London—in all, £11,454.

Yesterday week the annual meeting of the subscribers of the Royal Masonic Benevolent Institution was held at the Freemasons' Tavern. The report stated that at the festival, in February, £14,360 was raised. Bearing that in mind and the large number of candidates, it had been determined to place five additional men and five additional widows on the funds. The number to be elected was therefore twenty-five men and fifteen widows. The institution was expending £11,600 annually for annuities, which was exclusive of working and incidental expenses.

MUSIC.

ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA.

On Thursday week Madame Sembrich was to have assumed—for the first time in England—the character of Dinorah in Meyerbeer's opera so named. The accomplished Dresden prima donna, however, was suffering from a cold, and the opera was therefore changed to "Il Trovatore," Mdlle. Valleria having sustained the character of Leonora with much effect—as on past occasions. M. Lassalle's promised first appearance this season took place as the Count di Luna instead of Hoel. The excellent French baritone sang finely throughout, and was encored in the aria, "Il balen." The fine performance of Madame Trebelli as Azucena was, as often before, a special feature in the cast, Signor Marini having sung with much effect as Manrico.

Madame Sembrich's performance as Dinorah took place on Monday, when that artist added another to her previous successes by her fine singing, particularly in the "Shadow-song." Madame Trebelli as the principal Gastherd, and M. Lassalle as Hoel, were as admirable as on previous occasions; Signor Marini was a very good Corentino, and the cast was otherwise efficient. M. Dupont conducted.

On Tuesday Madame Adelina Patti appeared for the first time this season, in the title-character of Rossini's "Semiramide." The great prima-donna sang brilliantly, especially in the bravura air, "Bel raggio;" and the duet, "Ebbene," with Arsace, the slow movement of this having been encored. The last-named character was finely sustained, as heretofore, by Madame Scalchi, M. Gaillard having been the Assur, Signor I. Corsi the Idreno, and Signori Silvestri and Scolara respectively Oroe and the Ghost of Nino. Signor Bevignani conducted.

The first Floral Hall concert of the season took place last Saturday afternoon, and included fine performances by Mesdames Albani, Sembrich, and Trebelli, Signor Gayarré, and M. Lassalle, and other members of the Royal Italian Opera company.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

During last week "La Favorita" and "Aïda" have been repeated, cast as recently noticed. On Saturday Mdlle. Gabbi (who recently made her first and second appearances here as Aida) sustained the character of Leonora in "Il Trovatore," and was again favourably received. Mdlle. Tremelli's Azucena was a repetition of an artistic performance that has before been commended. Signor Ravelli, as Manrico, sang with special effect, and elicited an enthusiastic demonstration by his fine delivery of the solo "Di quella pira," which was encored by acclamation. Signor Galassi's Count di Luna was the same efficient performance as before.

On Tuesday the opera was "Marta;" the title-character sustained by Mdlle. Ilma di Murska, who sang artistically; and was well supported by Mdlle. de Belocca as Nancy, Signor Ravelli as Lionello, Signor Corsini as Lord Tristano, and Signor Del Puente as Plumketto. Signor Arditi conducted, as usual.

---

Mr. Sims Reeves's second farewell performance in oratorio (last week) included his fine declamatory singing in the air, "The enemy said," and recitative passages in "Israel in Egypt," and the recitative, "Deeper and deeper still," and air, "Waft her, angels." His next appearance was to have been in Mendelssohn's "Hymn of Praise," and Rossini's "Stabat Mater," last Wednesday evening; but, in consequence of his having had to undergo an operation on the face, the performance then announced is postponed to June 15.

Rossini's "Moses in Egypt" was performed by the Sacred Harmonic Society yesterday (Friday) week. Of the beauty and power of this music (secular as it is in style) we have more than once spoken in reference to its several performances by the society, and again it produced a powerful impression; among special instances of which was the duet, "Oh! Fate," by Mr. E. Lloyd and Mr. Bridson. The other principal solo vocalists were Mesdames Sherrington and Enriquez, Mdlle. Enequist. Mr. Cummings, Mr. Santley, and Mr. Hilton. Sir M. Costa conducted.

The third of the extra Saturday afternoon concerts at the Crystal Palace took place last week, and included the first performance in England of Rubinstein's "Russian" symphony, this being his fifth work of that class. Like most of the composer's larger productions, it contains striking passages in alternation with much that is laboured and diffuse, and may be more justly spoken of after a second hearing. Mrs. Hutchinson made a very successful first appearance here, and was greatly applauded in her delivery of Haydn's air "With verdure clad" and Schubert's "Die Junge Nonne." Mr. F. Rummel played, with brilliant execution, Grieg's pianoforte concerto in A, and Liszt's Hungarian fantasia—other items not needing specific mention.

The third of the Richter concerts—on Thursday week—took place in the afternoon, and included fine orchestral performances of the overture and principal orchestral pieces of Mendelssohn's "Midsummer Night's Dream" music; Goldmark's overture illustrative of H. von Kleist's tragedy "Penthe-Silea," and Mr. F. H. Cowen's "Scandinavian" symphony. Chopin's second pianoforte concerto (in F minor) was forcibly rendered by Mr. Walter Bache. At the fourth concert (on Monday evening) Beethoven's overture, op. 124, and his symphony in C minor, and Brahms's "Tragic" overture were finely rendered; the other orchestral piece having been an uninteresting "Capriccio" by Herr Gradener. Herr Straus played Spohr's second violin concerto in excellent style.

Mr. John Boosey gave a second Morning Ballad Concert on Saturday last, a third being announced for June 4.

The third of this year's matinées of the Musical Union took place on Tuesday afternoon, when the string quartet party was as before; the solo pianist having been M. Theodore Ritter, who played with great success in a trio by Saint-Saëns, and several solo pieces.

Mr. J. F. Barnett's cantata, "The Building of the Ship" (the words from Longfellow), was announced for performance at St. James's Hall on Wednesday evening, conducted by the composer. The work was written for, and performed at, the Leeds Festival in October last, and has already been commented on. The solo singers named were Miss A. Williams, Madame Patey, Mr. E. Lloyd, and Mr. Santley.

Messrs. Ludwig and Daubert gave the second of their series of excellent chamber concerts, at the Royal Academy of Music, on Wednesday evening.

M. Hlavatch, Imperial organist at St. Petersburg, gave an Harmonium Recital at Steinway Hall on Monday afternoon, the programme having included some of his own compositions. The first public recital will be given at the same place next Friday.

The Highbury Philharmonic Society's third concert of the season took place on Monday evening, the programme having comprised Beethoven's music to "The Ruins of Athens," and Mr. Hatton's cantata "Robin Hood."

The Philharmonic Society gave the sixth and last concert of the sixty-ninth season on Thursday evening, when Madame Albani and Mr. Herbert Reeves were announced as the vocalists, and Madame Menter was to play Beethoven's pianoforte concerto in E flat.

The summer concert of the London Academy professional students took place at St. James's Hall on Thursday afternoon. There was an orchestra and a choir of 200 performers, conducted by Dr. Wylde, principal of the Academy.

Mr. Charles Halle's fourth recital of Beethoven and Bach took place yesterday (Friday) afternoon.

A good amateur concert, in aid of the restoration of the English Church, Rue d'Aguesseau, Paris, was announced for Friday evening, this week.

The third of Mr. Ganz's excellent orchestral concerts takes place this (Saturday) afternoon at St. James's Hall, the programme including Berlioz's "Romeo and Juliet" symphony (ending with the "Queen Mab" scherzo), and other interesting features.

An Irish festival, in commemoration of Moore, is to take place at the Royal Albert Hall this (Saturday) afternoon, under the direction of Mr. W. Carter.

Mr. Oberthür gives a morning concert next Monday at St. James's Hall, under the patronage of the Duchess of Wellington; on which occasion will be performed, for the first time, his new cantata for ladies' voices, "The Red Cross Knight."

"The Golden Legend" a dramatic cantata (words by Longfellow), composed by the Rev. H. E. Hodson, was performed with success at a concert given at Willis's Rooms last Monday afternoon in aid of the Froebel Centenary Memorial Fund at Blankenburg.

The third concert of the Glück Society, directed by Mr. Malcolm Lawson, took place at the Royal Academy of Music on Tuesday evening, and included performances of a "Stabat Mater" by Josquin de Prez, a "Gaudeamus" by Carissimi, Schubert's Mass in F, and the first act of Glück's "Iphigenie en Aulide."

LEADVILLE, COLORADO.

The surprising rapidity with which the mineral riches of the State of Colorado, comprising part of the Rocky Mountain range of North America, have been developed by a host of eager settlers within the past twenty years, was noticed by us upon a former occasion. Leadville, the place where our Illustrations now presented were sketched by the same correspondent who furnished those of other mining districts, is the capital of Lake County, in the centre of the carbonate of lead region. It is situated in an almost level plain, on the banks of California Gulch, four miles from its junction with the Arkansas river. This place was first explored for gold in the summer of 1860, and a camp of five thousand men had assembled here in the following year. Gold was obtained, before the close of 1865, to the amount of three or four millions sterling in value, but the yield soon afterwards declined, though a new lode, which was opened in 1868, proved to be remunerative for a short time. The discovery of carbonate of lead, containing a large proportion of silver, was made at a later date, and it was not till April, 1877, that smelting furnaces for the treatment of this ore were erected on the site of Leadville, where a busy town of 20,000 inhabitants has since grown up. Hundreds came that year, and thousands in the year following; lines of stage-coach traffic and freight waggons, to and from Denver and South Park, were speedily established, and Leadville soon possessed its hotels, stores, banks, dancing-saloons and gambling-saloons, two or three newspapers, also two churches and a school-house, for the needs or desires of a large population. The Iron lode, the Camp Bird, the Argentine, the Carbonate, the Long and Ivory, have especially that of Fryer Hill, have produced silver to an enormous amount, rivalling the great Comstock lode in the Sierra Nevada of California. Building and land-jobbing, in the town which grew so quickly, and where street frontage has reached the value of 250 dollars per square foot, realised immense fortunes within a few months. It is declared by some visitors to be "the liveliest town the world can show to-day." After nightfall, by lamplight, they say, "it fairly booms with excitement and life. The miners then drift into town in swarms; a dozen bands are drumming up audiences for the theatres and variety shows; scores of saloons and gaming-houses are in full blast, and the entire place has the aspect of a grand holiday. Those who make money so easily spend it quickly, and life here tends to prodigality among all classes." But we are told by Mr. Frank Fossett, whose book on Colorado has been quoted, that Leadville is not worse, for actual crime, than other American cities.

STATE OF IRELAND.

Five arrests were made yesterday week under the Coercion Act. They were Father Sheehy, the chairman, and Messrs. Gilbertson, Collins, and McCarthy, active members of the Kilmallock Land League, who were lodged in Naas Gaol. The fifth person arrested was P. F. Doyle, chairman of a branch of the Land League near Killarney. Mr. Thomas Brennan, who has been closely identified with the Irish Land League since its formation, was on Monday arrested and lodged in the gaol at Naas; and on Tuesday Mr. Thomas Doherty, secretary of the Kilfinane branch of the Land League; Mr. Daniel Reardon, assistant secretary; and Mr. F. A. Allen, a member, were arrested. Mr. T. Sexton, M.P., has left London for Dublin, to temporarily direct the business of the Irish National Land League, pending the appointment of a successor to Mr. Brennan, the imprisoned general secretary. At the Land League meeting on Tuesday, the arrest of Mr. Brennan was strongly denounced as showing the spirit in which the English Government meant to pursue the struggle. Mr. A. J. Kettle, who presided, advised the Irish tenants to make a national, general, and unconditional struggle against rent.

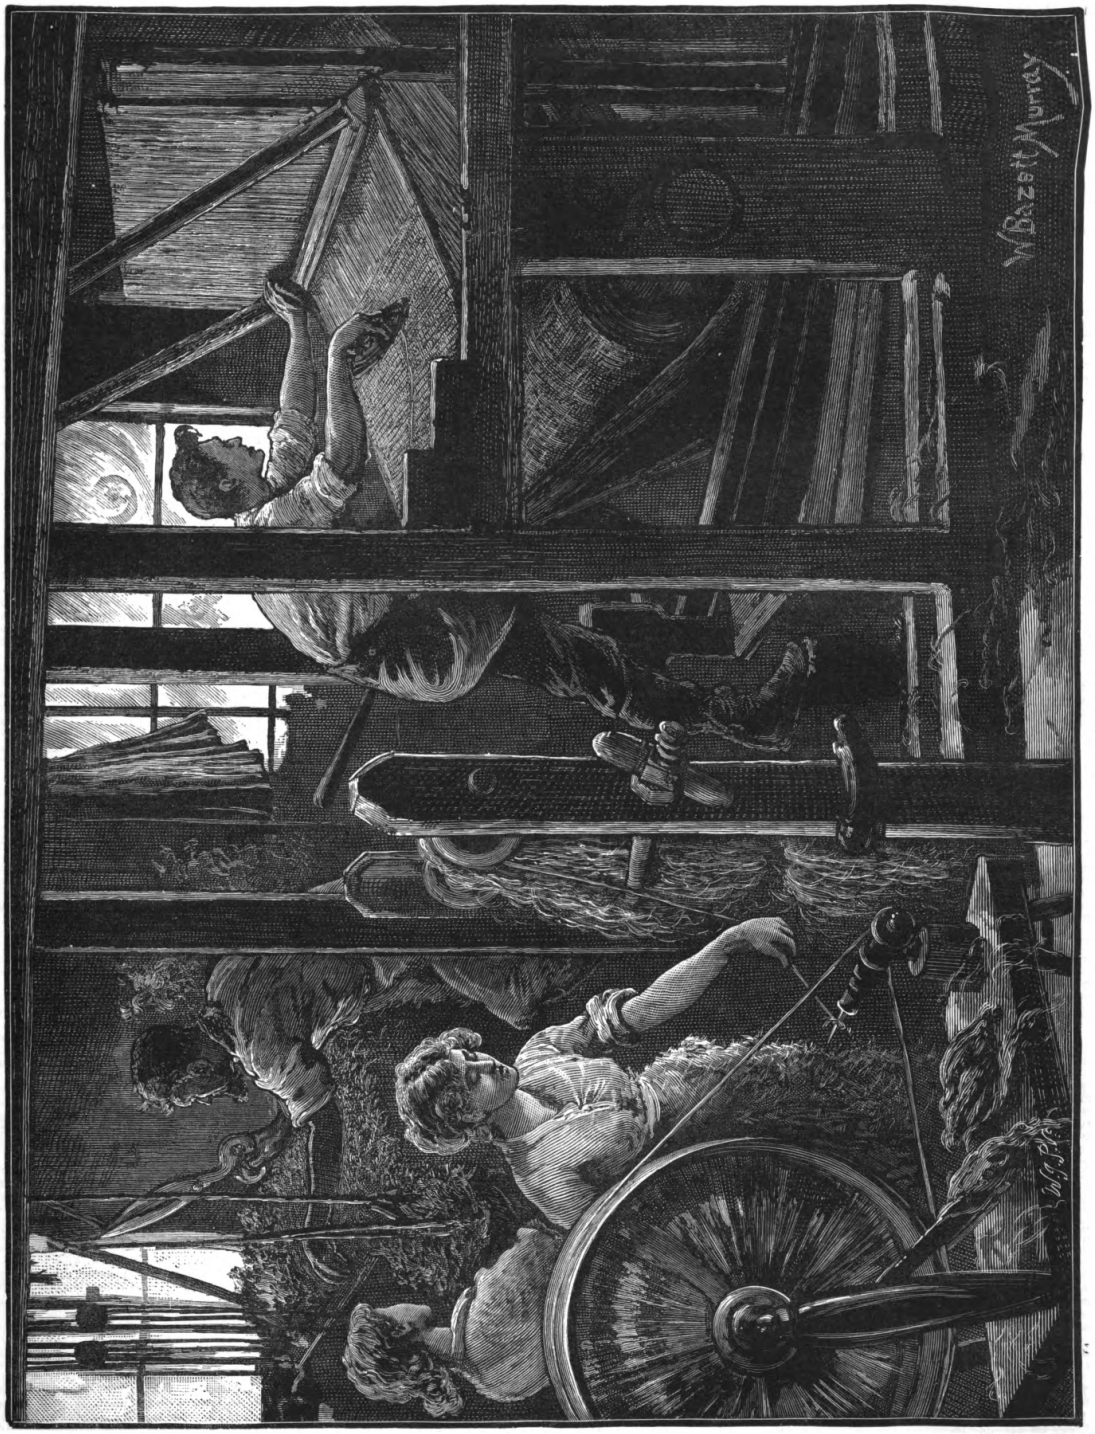
The New Pallas district, in Limerick county, is in a very disturbed state. A large force of military and constabulary went last Saturday to Doon, where some evictions were to take place. Some of the peasantry took possession of a ruin of an old castle, and hurled stones at the troops and police, some of whom were hurt. As the castle could not be taken, except by firing at its defenders, an assault was not attempted, and a cordon was drawn round the place to starve out its garrison.

The Marquis of Ormonde has granted a reduction of rent to his tenantry in Tipperary. The reduction leaves the rent equal to the Government valuation.

---

Commander Evans, Paymaster Colborne, Carpenter Baird, Engineer Walker, and seven of the men saved from the crew of her Majesty's sloop Doterel arrived at Lisbon last Tuesday on board the steamer Britannia. Commander Evans, who was wounded by the explosion, was in his bath at the time. He is still suffering from the effects of the injuries which he received. The Doterel was at anchor off Sandy Point when the catastrophe occurred and sank immediately afterwards. None of the survivors are able to explain the cause of the explosion They were rescued by a whaling vessel.

SKETCHES NEAR LEADVILLE, COLORADO.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.



MATTING-WEAVERS.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

WEAVING MATTING.

The manufacture of that kind of matting which is commonly used for the covering of passage floors, whether made of hemp or jute or cocoanut fibre, or the dried grass-stalks of tropical vegetation, employs a certain class of operatives at the East End of London, as well as in Dundee, Glasgow, and other Northern towns. This industry is carried on not only in the factories but in the houses of some of the workpeople, by the aid of the old-fashioned spinning-wheel and handloom, as shown in our Illustration. It is not, of course, the finest sort of work—not to be compared with that of the silk-weaver, who still continues to ply his solitary loom in Spitalfields; but it affords the means of subsistence to many humble families, such as that who appear so busy together in our Artist's drawing; the father weighing out a proper quantity of fibre, which the younger child is ready to carry where it is wanted; the other sister, carefully and deftly turning the wheel; and the son at his loom, throwing the shuttle with practised skill, and interlacing the warp and the weft to compose a strong and durable fabric, which shall be trodden by the feet of hundreds of people, without the slightest thought of those by whom it was made.

THE SILENT MEMBER.

Although noble Lords are called upon to sit in the Upper House for a very brief period on four days a week only, the lot of her Majesty's Ministers in this resplendent chamber cannot be termed a happy one. At any moment they may now be called upon to look on, vainly lifting up their voices in protest, while the newly-chosen Leader of the Opposition pounces on a measure and worries the clauses as if they were so many rats and he a terrier. Such was the case on Tuesday, as will presently be shown. In the teeth of these untoward circumstances, the Minister who most successfully emulates Earl Granville's enviable serenity is the Earl of Kimberley, here sketched. A Transvaal War may break out, and a Laing's Neck or Majuba Hill disaster occur; yet the complacent equanimity of the bland Secretary for the Colonies remains unruffled. Lord Kimberley belongs to the privileged group, who have only to open their mouths, and the ripe fruit of office drops into them. If the Earl of Carnarvon should, in bird-like fashion, peck at the South African policy of the Government, the tu quoque argument unfailingly comes to Lord Kimberley's lips in reply. Turning from the self-satisfied Secretary for the Colonies to his benign leader, it may, in passing, be remarked that Earl Granville's suave sagacity was notably exemplified in his able answer to Lord Leamington on May 19 with respect to the right of foreigners to asylum in this country; and on Tuesday, in the Foreign Secretary's reply to the deputation which waited upon him in reference to the cruel outrages on Jews in Russia.

The inordinate demands of Ireland on the attention of Parliament are inexhaustible. Possibly to get their Lordships' hands in for the Irish Land Bill, the Marquis of Lansdowne on Monday procured the appointment of a Committee on the Irish Jury Laws, which the noble Marquis maintained had proved inadequate. Then, on Tuesday, the Duke of Argyll gave notice of his intention on June 17 to call attention to the report of the Bessborough Commission on the Irish Land Laws. The Earl of Rosebery having elicited from Earl Granville the satisfactory information that the Convention between Turkey and Greece had been signed that afternoon, it was then that the Lord Chancellor was "worried" most resolutely by the Marquis of Salisbury, aided by Earl Cairns. These two noble Lords fell upon the Charitable Trusts Bill with such determination, and were supported so stanchly by a large majority, that the additional power it was proposed to bestow upon the Charity Commissioners was reduced and limited to a great extent, albeit the measure, or what was left of it, passed through Committee.

Let us descend to the Lower House—if it be a descent. Mr. Gladstone has carried the Irish Land Bill through the second reading by an overwhelming majority. Not much fresh light was thrown on the well-thrashed subject on the night of the division, Thursday se'nnight. Mr. Chaplin, in resuming the debate in his most solemn senatorial manner, applied the epithet "judicial plunder" to the measure, which Sir Stafford Northcote said contained principles of "intrinsic injustice" and Mr. Parnell argued did not go half far enough, but which Lord Hartington vigorously defended as being merely a supplementary bill to the Act of 1870. One member who intervened temperately in the discussion may be outlined, if only to remind the Ministry of the existence of the Right Hon. James Stansfeld. The long-haired representative of Halifax, like Mr. Baxter, has not taken kindly to exile from office, though he may endeavour to hide his feelings under a mask of calm content. It will readily be conceded that Mr. Stansfeld looks little like the aider and abettor of conspirators that Lord Beaconsfield once essayed to make him appear to be. His present exclusion from office may, perhaps, be attributed to an over-modest hiding of his light under a bushel. The Government, however, were reminded of Mr. Stansfeld's sterling ability as a debater in his clear and argumentative speech in favour of the Irish Land Bill, which was virtually read the second time by 352 to 176 votes, 176 having been the majority by which Lord Elcho's adverse amendment was rejected. Thursday was fixed upon for the Committee on the measure; and, in view of the enormous number of amendments threatened—about six hundred!—Mr. Gladstone has appealed to the House to hold day sittings on Fridays and Tuesdays until the bill is passed through Committee.

The Collins incident claims a word. Generally glad to welcome back familiar faces, the House was not sorry to see Mr. Tom Collins approach the table to take the oath yesterday week. But Sir Wilfrid Lawson appears to have seized the notion that it was somehow illogical to allow that that which in Mr. Collins's mouth was but a legitimate word in Mr. Bradlaugh's was rank blasphemy. The hon. Baronet, accordingly, though hardly in a spirit of "gay wisdom" this time, sought to prevent Mr. Collins from taking the oath until the House was satisfied as to his religious opinions. But the oath was administered, and Mr. Collins, quite at home, shook hands with one or two Ministers, amid laughter at the discomfiture of Sir Wilfrid Lawson, who had to be reminded by the Speaker, Mr. Gladstone, and Sir Stafford Northcote that the cases of Mr. Collins and Mr. Bradlaugh were totally dissimilar.

With quite a Donnybrook liveliness did Monday's sitting open, albeit there was no Irish business down on the paper. There was a storm brewing that the noble Lord who leads the "Fourth Party" may have been hardly prepared for. It burst from the Treasury Bench, the Marquis of Hartington, of all Ministers, being the author of it. Having briefly disposed of Mr. Labouchere's question regarding the grant to Sir F. Roberts, Lord Hartington (delineated in his roused mood) turned on Lord Randolph Churchill; and, with some severity, read the interpellation, which the noble Lord had put to him. This is the language they were couched in:—

To ask the Secretary of State for India whether it is a fact that Sir Garnet Wolseley received for his eminent services in Ashantee a grant of £20,000; whether General Sir Frederick Roberts, on his return from India, was definitely informed by him that in return for his equally eminent services in Afghanistan, he would receive a grant of £20,000; and whether Sir Frederick Roberts, on his return home from South Africa, was informed that the grant of £20,000 had been reduced by him to £12,000; and, if so, why the grant originally promised has not been made.

Lord Hartington took more than his usual pains even to explain that the difference in the two cases was that Sir Garnet Wolseley's was a grant from Parliament, whereas the grants of £1000 a year (commutable to £12,500 in a lump sum) were given to Generals Sir Donald Stewart and Sir Frederick Roberts by the Council of India, and precedent had been closely followed in the latter case. Lifting his voice and looking straight at his questioner, the Marquis of Hartington added—"I think I am entitled to ask the noble Lord upon what grounds, other than those contained in the calumnious, lying gossip which appears in certain newspapers published in this metropolis, he has founded the question put to me containing imputations which, as I consider, are so injurious." Did he derive his information from Vanity Fair? subsequently asked the noble Marquis. But, heedless of the rounds of Ministerial cheers that Lord Hartington's spirited statement elicited, Lord Randolph Churchill only rose to decline to name his informant. His Lordship is represented on his legs; but he is far more at home when coolly seated with habitual nonchalance on the front seat below the gangway on the Opposition side, seemingly oblivious to the tartest retorts of an irritated Minister, and mindful only of the nice conduct of a well-trained moustache.

There followed on Monday Sir Charles Dilke's rather too formal and unsympathetic replies to Baron de Worms's questions relating to the persecution of Jews in Russia; and the Under-Secretary's more satisfactory answer to Sir H. D. Wolff's patriotic query as to the safety of British subjects in Tunis under the French treaty with the Bey. The combustible temper of the Home Rulers then broke into flame, apropos of the issue of a circular to the Irish Constabulary; but the firmness of the Speaker soon allayed the Milesian flame. Mr. Gladstone next explained that it was intended to drop the idea of allowing spirituous liquors to be sold on the Pullman railway cars; and the Prime Minister gladdened Mr. Pell by a favourable comment on his proposal for a yearly budget for local taxation and finance. In Committee on the Customs and Inland Revenue Bill, some progress was made; and the House adjourned at a late hour till two on Tuesday afternoon. The sad news of the death of Sir William Adam was made the occasion of feeling tributes to the memory of the late Governor of Madras from Mr. Onslow, Mr. Gladstone, and Sir Stafford Northcote. The small hours of Tuesday morning had been taken up by Mr. Justin McCarthy's prolix speech censuring the Irish Executive for proclaiming a state of siege in Dublin, and for the imprisonment of the Rev. Mr. Sheehy and Mr. Dillon. Why cannot the popular author of "My Lady Disdain" render his Parliamentary style as attractive as his novels are? Mr. Forster was in far too serious a mood to attempt on Tuesday afternoon to elucidate this point; and confined himself, in his ruggedly earnest manner, despite a succession of rude interruptions from the Home-Rule members, to an elaborate defence of his administration of Ireland. The "exuberant verbosity" of the Hibernian members, in the face of an indignant remonstrance on the part of Mr. Gladstone, prevented the question being brought to an issue that night. What will follow? Only the hastening on of the reform of the mode of procedure with public business foreshadowed by Mr. Gladstone on Monday.

The "count out" on the preceding evening was naturally protested against by the Radical members on Wednesday afternoon, which sitting was mainly devoted to the second reading of Mr. J. Stewart's Scottish Removal Term Bill, Mr. Dillwyn's Lunacy Law Amendment measure, and the neat and effective introduction of Mr. Bryce's London City Parochial Charities Bill, which proposed to remove some of the monstrous abuses that exists in the City, and which would probably have been read the second time also had not Mr. Warton talked it out.

---

The long-drawn-out Turco-Greek Convention, arranging the transfer of territory to Greece, was on Tuesday signed by the Ambassadors and Turkish Delegates.

There has been a terrible steam-boat accident in Canada. On Tuesday evening the steamer Victoria, while returning from Springbanks, four miles from London (Ontario), with over 600 excursionists on board, capsized at a point one mile down the river, in twelve feet of water, and became a total wreck. The total loss of life is estimated at 175.

Johann Most, a journalist, indicted for unlawfully publishing in the Freiheit libels on the late Emperor of Russia, and also with encouraging persons to murder the Emperor of Germany, the Emperor of Russia, and other persons in Europe, out of her Majesty's dominions, was on Wednesday found guilty on all the counts, but recommended to mercy on the ground of his being a foreigner. Sentence was respited for argument on some questions of law.

HOME NEWS.

The State apartments of Windsor Castle are open to the public.

The Four-in-Hand Driving Club met at the Magazine, Hyde Park, on Wednesday.

The London Gazette contains a treaty of extradition concluded between Great Britain and Switzerland, which is to come into operation on the 31st inst.

The arrangements in connection with the holding of the Bath and West of England Society's show at Pembridge are complete, and the opening will take place on June 9.

At the Duke of Wellington's rent audit for the Hampshire estates last week his Grace returned to his tenants the whole of their rents for the past half year.

At the adjourned general meeting of the Royal Historical Society the motion to re-elect Dr. Rogers as secretary and historiographer was negatived by a large majority.

At a meeting of the Royal Institute of British Architects on Tuesday the Royal Gold Medal was presented to Mr. George Godwin, editor of the Builder.

Sir Harcourt Johnstone, Bart., presented the annual prizes to the boys of the Yorkshire Society School on the 18th inst., and presided at the anniversary dinner on the 25th inst.

Mr. W. Farrar Ecroyd has been elected for Preston by a majority of 1664 over Mr. H. Yates Thompson; the numbers being—Ecroyd (C), 6004; Thompson (L), 4340.

Professor J. V. Jones, B.A., B.Sc., was yesterday week elected Principal of Firth College, Sheffield, in the place of Professor Bentley, who has resigned.

Sir William Withey Gull, Bart., M.D., has been appointed a member of the General Council of Medical Education and Registration of the United Kingdom.

The first summer exhibition of flowers and plants at the Royal Botanic Society's gardens took place on Wednesday; the bands of the 1st and 2nd Life Guards being in attendance.

The Common Council have decided to buy, at a cost of £650, the late Mr. Walker Bailey's collection of Roman, medieval, and other antiquities found in the city between 1863 and 1872.

The trustees of the Earl of Mornington, who was hereditary Lord Warden of Epping Forest, have obtained an award of three hundred pounds as compensation for the extinguishment of that office.

The second annual meeting of the Spelling Reform Association was held in the rooms of the Royal Asiatic Society on Wednesday; the Rev. Professor A. H. Sayce, M.A., president of the Association, in the chair.

The vacancy in the Professorship of Political Economy at University College, London, caused by the resignation of Professor Stanley Jevons, has been filled by the appointment of Mr. Herbert Somerton Foxwell, M.A.

At a public meeting held at the Guildhall, Portsmouth, on Monday evening, it was resolved to form in that town a centre of the St. John Ambulance Association, with classes for the instruction of all in the first treatment of injured persons.

The Royal Horticultural Society will hold a great flower show and horticultural implement exhibition on Friday, June 3, to be continued on the following days, Saturday, Whitsun Monday and Tuesday. The band of the Royal Horse Guards will attend each day.

Last week 2463 births and 1488 deaths were registered in London. Allowing for increase of population, the births exceeded by 59, and the deaths by 14, the average numbers in the corresponding week of the last ten years. There were 103 deaths from smallpox.

Whilst a letter-sorter in the post-office at Gloucester was emptying a bag he was startled by a snake falling from it. The animal was about three feet in length, and had evidently been sent through the post in a parcel from which it had escaped. It was destroyed.

Mr. Alderman Fowler, M.P., presided on Monday at a meeting of the Scio Earthquake Relief Fund, held at the Mansion House. It was stated that the fund amounted to £22,895, of which £20,564 had been remitted for distribution. A further sum of £1400 was ordered to be forwarded.

The trustees of Mason's Science College, Birmingham, have elected Mr. Edward Arber, Honorary Fellow of King's College, and Assistant Professor of English Literature, University College, London, to the Professorship of English Languages and Literature. All the chairs are now filled.

A convocation was held on Tuesday at Durham University, to consider the question of whether female students, who shall have fulfilled the requirements of the University, shall be admitted to the public examination to stand to the first degree in arts. After a long discussion, it was resolved that women should be admitted.

The snuff-boxes and bijouterie of the Bâle Collection were sold on Tuesday at Christie's. One of the principal specimens was a beautiful oval locket of the finest Cinquecento period, which was bought by Mr. Frederick Davis, of Pall-mall, for 2335 guineas. This is said to be a finer specimen than the well-known one in the Louvre Museum.

The French Government has presented to the South Kensington Museum some valuable examples of French modern art manufacture, comprising twenty-three Sèvres vases, a copy in Gobelins tapestry of D. Ghirlandajo's picture, "The Visitation," in the Louvre, and two pieces, representing flowers and ornaments, of Beauvais tapestry.

The Cutlers' Company have sent in their returns to the City Companies Commission. In a letter accompanying their returns, which are of an exhaustive character, the company state that their "readiness to assist the Commission is not to be taken as an admission of any right in the Crown or any other jurisdiction to inquire into the private property of the company, or to deal with it in disregard of their rights." Other companies have sent in their returns, with protests.

The ninety-third anniversary meeting of the Linnean Society was held on Tuesday at the society's rooms, Burlington House—Professor J. G. Allman, retiring president, in the chair. The society has lost by death several eminent members during the year. The balance-sheet showed the society to be in a good financial position, a balance of over £500 remaining to its credit at the end of the year. Professor Allman gave the customary address, and in so doing took up one special zoological group which he dealt with in reference to the investigations and discoveries made therein during the year.

Monday was the last day for the reception of entries for the eighteenth annual horse show to be opened at the Agricultural Hall, Islington, next Saturday. The number of entries exceeds 300, and comprise some of the finest and most noted fieldsters from the most celebrated hunting studs throughout the kingdom. The prize list has been considerably augmented, and in the four classes for hunters, in addition to £60 as a first, £30 as a second, and £20 as a third in the first and second classes, and £50 and £25 in the third and fourth classes, there will be awarded an extra prize in cash of £50, and the Agricultural Hall gold medal for the best hunter amongst the prize horses in the four classes specified. There will be fifteen classes in the aggregate, with medals to every horse commended. Specialities are to be introduced connected with the leaping prizes.

The second May session of the Central Criminal Court was opened on Monday with forty-seven male and twelve female prisoners for trial. The calendar contains one charge of wilful murder, one of manslaughter, two of wounding with intent to commit murder, one of sending a threatening letter, two of administering poisons, and other serious cases. Thomas Webb, against whom a previous conviction was recorded, received sentence of eighteen months' imprisonment for offering a bad half crown to the collector at a missionary meeting, asking at the same time for two shillings in change.

The Royal Agricultural Society held its annual meeting on Monday, and reported a small decrease in the number of members. Mr. John Dent was elected president for the ensuing year, and it was resolved to hold the meeting for 1882 at Reading. A deputation was appointed to wait upon Earl Spencer and ask that the restrictions upon the movement of cattle should not be removed in the face of the existence of foot-and-mouth disease in twenty-three counties. Lord Spencer said it was intended to maintain the important restrictions. —— The Marquis of Hartington has accepted the presidency of the Yeovil Agricultural Society.

A Conference on National Thrift was held at the Mansion House yesterday week. The Lord Mayor, who presided, explained that the Mansion House Thrift Committee was never intended to become an organisation for collecting funds. Lord Lymington, M.P., urged the necessity of legislation to remedy the unsoundness of friendly societies. Mr. Sclater-Booth, M.P., whilst admitting that the small friendly societies had failed, maintained that the great mass of them were in a satisfactory condition. Earl Nelson, Mr. T. Hughes, Q.C., and the Rev. W. L. Blackley also spoke. —— M. Blanchet, the founder of the Mutual Financial Assurance Company of Paris, has given one hundred pounds to this society.

Sir James M'Garel Hogg, chairman of the Metropolitan Board of Works, entertained his colleagues on the board and a large number of distinguished guests at dinner at Willis's Rooms last Saturday. The Duke of Connaught, the Speaker of the House of Commons, and Mr. Shaw-Lefevre were among the guests who spoke. In returning thanks for the toast of "The Royal Family," the Duke of Connaught said he had always taken a deep interest in the welfare of the people of the metropolis of the world, and he and the other members of his family were always ready to help in any great work. They had all, except his second brother, been born in London, and it was only natural that they should have an affection for the place of their birth. In proposing "The Metropolitan Board of Works," the Duke congratulated the members upon the grand improvements which had been effected in London during the past twenty years.

THE DUKE OF ALBANY.

Her Majesty, following prescription in such matters, has been pleased to create her youngest son, Prince Leopold, Duke of Albany—a title of historic, though somewhat melancholy, associations in connection with Scotch history, and more recently borne by the Duke of York, the second son of George III. To go no further back—though the title meets us in "King Lear"—it was a Duke of Albany who, in 1552, as Regent for Scotland, declared war against England, though the threat was not carried out, and who, a year later, having fled to the Continent, lost his life in the battle of Pavia. The new Royal peer happily lives in a time when such traditions can be recalled with equanimity. His Royal Highness, though of delicate health, has made a distinct sphere for himself. Like his honoured father, the Prince Consort, he has cultivated the arts of peace. Of studious habits and refined tastes, he does not, as he might, surrender himself to lettered ease, but, as occasion offers, lends the aid of his high position and persuasive eloquence to the advancement of social and educational reforms. His speeches on these subjects have been of no mean order, and Prince Leopold is recognised as one of the most able and indefatigable promoters of all movements that tend to refine and elevate the population. It is a happy circumstance that the Queen, whose sixty-second birthday is being celebrated this week, has been spared to see her four sons, as we say, "settled in life," and members of the Second Estate of the Realm. The Prince of Wales takes his seat in the House of Lords by virtue of his title of Duke of Cornwall. Prince Alfred is merged in the Duke of Edinburgh, and occupies a foremost position in the Navy. The Army is the chosen profession of Prince Arthur, who derives his title of Duke of Connaught from the Emerald Isle. And now Prince Leopold takes his place as a Peer of the Realm by the side of his elder brothers, under the designation of Duke of Albany, which we doubt not will be for many a year identified with every wise effort to ameliorate the social condition of the industrial classes.

The following official announcement of Prince Leopold's new titles appears in Tuesday's Gazette:—The Queen has been pleased, by Letters Patent under the Great Seal of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland, bearing this date, to grant unto her Majesty's fourth son, his Royal Highness Prince Leopold George Duncan Albert, K.G., K.T., G.C.S.I., G.C.M.G., and his heirs male, the dignities of Baron Arklow, Earl of Clarence, and Duke of Albany.

THE VOLUNTEERS.

Two field-days of metropolitan volunteer regiments were held at Bushey Park and Hyde Park last Saturday.

Four battalions, which were conveyed in special trains from the Waterloo station to Hampton Court and Teddington, were formed up at Bushey shortly after six o'clock as follows:—London Rifle Brigade, about 500 of all ranks, Lieutenant-Colonel W. Haywood; 12th Middlesex (Civil Service), and one company of the 25th Middlesex attached, about 450 of all ranks, Lieutenant-Colonel Viscount Bury; 15th Middlesex (Customs and Docks), nearly 600 of all ranks, Lieutenant-Colonel Kennard, M.P.; and 24th Middlesex, about 450 of all ranks, Lieutenant-Colonel Du Plat-Taylor. Colonel Clive, Grenadier Guards, was the brigadier.

In Hyde Park two regiments were paraded for brigade drill, the 2nd and 3rd City of London, the former commanded by Lieutenant-Colonel Vickers and the latter by Lieutenant-Colonel Laurie. The two battalions made up a total strength of nearly 1000. Colonel the Hon. Paul Methuen, Scots Guards, was the brigadier. Changes of front, deployments, &c., were followed by the practice of the new attack.

In Hyde Park also the 20th Middlesex (Artists), under the command of Major Edis, were exercised in a variety of battalion movements.

It has been decided to hold the annual encampment of the 2nd East Kent this year at Bobbing Park, near Sittingbourne; beginning on June 18, and terminating on the 25th.

The Canadian rifle team selected to compete at the next Wimbledon meeting left Quebec on Wednesday.

NEW BOOKS.

Something more and better than mere pleasure is to be derived from such a book as A Pilgrimage to Nejd, by Lady Anne Blunt (John Murray); for the two volumes, with their useful map, satisfactory portraits, and many striking illustrations, contain not only a very interesting and entertaining account of a really romantic trip but a great deal of what can hardly fail to be valuable and instructive information of a practical kind. Whether the pilgrims—for husband and wife journeyed and suffered and even fought in company—actually reached "the cradle of the Arab race," is a question which has been and will be discussed by authorities most competent to discuss it; but the ordinary reader will undoubtedly be of opinion that quite enough is said in the preface to justify the title and to create a doubt as to whether, if the adventurous husband and wife did not go to what is correctly termed Nejd, they went any whither at all. And that they went some whither at great cost of money, time, and trouble, and at no little risk, and that the district of Central Arabia into which they penetrated ought to have been Nejd, unless Nejd, like the sands of its adjacent deserts, have the attribute of shifting, seems to be as evident as narrative combined with argument can make anything. Their guide—if this title be not something of a misnomer—upon their pilgrimage was a young man who, like Caleb, was in search of a wife, and who had a vague idea that he would find relatives in Nejd, and among them the desideratum he was in quest of. This circumstance adds to the romance of the situation, especially as the young man was a little weak in the maternal part of his pedigree, though the paternal was all that could be desired, and wished to accomplish such a marriage as would altogether rehabilitate his family. The pilgrims and the young man in attendance upon them had the extraordinary good fortune to light upon both branches of the family they sought; and before a hundred and fifty pages of the first volume are devoured, as they are sure to be by all readers, Mohammed—that is, the young man—has signed the marriage contract. He does not, however, obtain his bride at once, and there comes over the reader a melancholy feeling of doubt as to whether he ever will; for the pilgrimage to Nejd is cut short by a message recalling Mohammed home, where the affairs of his family have always been more than slightly complicated in consequence of political faction, usurpation, and other matters leading to manslaughter even among people more civilised than the Arabs. At the hundred and ninth page, then, of the second volume, the absorbing story of the adventurous pilgrimage, with all manner of attractive episodes, including remarks concerning various breeds of Arab horses, is brought to an abrupt conclusion. But there is more adventure, of a more serious kind, to come; and the history of it is given in some hundred and fifty or more graphic pages, containing an account of "Our Persian Campaign." Then comes an appendix with "notes on the physical geography of Northern Arabia," a historical sketch of which Wahhabism is the subject, and a memorandum relating to the Euphrates Valley Railway and kindred projects. And so ends, with a copy of some "rock inscriptions and drawings in Jebel Shammar," a book which it is impossible to read without respect and admiration as well as constant delight. The following uncompromising opinion will, no doubt, receive attention in the proper quarter; it is not in the words of the lady who has written the narrative, but of her husband, who is the editor, and thus it runs:—"With regard to the sequel of our Arabian journey, the further journey from Bagdad to Bushire, I should not intrude it on the notice of the public, but that it serves as an additional proof, if such be wanting, of the folly of those schemes which, under the name of "Euphrates Valley" and "Indo-Mediterranean" railway companies, have from time to time been dangled before the eyes of speculators. A country more absolutely unsuited for railway enterprise than that between the Mediterranean and the Persian Gulf has probably never been selected for such operations; and, if the recital of our passage through the uninhabited tracts, which form nine tenths of the whole region, shall deter my countrymen from embarking their capital in an enterprise financially absurd, I feel that its publication will not have been in vain." This is strong language, and, as the schemes condemned have been propounded and supported by men of high character, long experience, and presumably special knowledge, it was no doubt well weighed before it was put into print.

Perfectly satisfactory performance of so difficult a task as that undertaken in Corneille and Racine, by Henry M. Trollope (William Blackwood and Sons), one of the volumes in the interesting series of "Foreign Classics for English Readers," was scarcely possible within the necessary limits of space. A great deal more should have been told about both Corneille and Racine, especially as regards the relations established at home between the brothers Corneille for the supply of rimes, as regards the rise and decline of Corneille and his consciousness and explanation of the latter, and as regards the emancipation of Corneille from the hack-work done for Richelieu, the way in which Racine's genius was handicapped by the heavy weight of Madame Maintenon and the pupils of Saint-Cyr, and the intercourse between Racine, Boileau, and La Fontaine. Perhaps room might have been found, had there been less criticism and less explanation of things which do not require criticism and of things which called for no explanation. But all these little volumes, or at any rate most of them, seem to be compiled upon a plan which is scarcely in harmony with the object of the series, if that object have been correctly assumed to be as follows: to place before readers unacquainted with certain languages an opportunity of forming their own opinion about writers and works about whom and which they know little or nothing, because the languages are unintelligible. Common sense, then, would suggest that the best way of attaining this object would be to give as full a biographical account as conditions of space may allow, as succinct a summary as is possible of the work upon which the judgment is to be passed, as copious extracts, translated in the fashion most likely to exhibit, if only approximately, the style of the original, as the number of pages at command can hold, and no criticism or personal opinion at all. But the desire to teach one's grandmother appeared to be so universal and so indomitable that the course suggested is seldom or never adopted. In the present instance the translations may be a faithful reproduction of the original matter, but of the manner they do not, for the most part, give the very faintest idea. It would be unjust, however, to the maker of the volume to hold him responsible for that; he has given his reason for rendering French verse into English prose, and there is no denying that it is a sound one and a modest one. He has been accused of miscalling a play a "comedy;" but he has carefully explained that "the word 'comedy' is sometimes synonymous with drama or theatrical play—we find it so used very constantly in the seventeenth century." It is quite certain that "comédie" was the term applied to many a play of Corneille's which was not what we call nowadays a comedy, and to many a play of Racine's besides "Les Plaideurs." Fortunately, though the majority of the translations are in prose, a friendly hand has supplied a few specimens of Corneille's versification, or an approximate equivalent, so that the English reader may judge of the trial to which a French ear must be exposed when "The Cid" is played to a long-suffering audience.

A smattering is all that can be acquired and apparently all that was intended to be acquired from The Classics for the Million: by Henry Grey (Griffith and Farran), a volume consisting of less than three hundred and fifty pages, into which the author or compiler has compressed "an epitome, in English, of the works of the principal Greek and Latin authors." The arrangement is chronological, from Homer, whose death is assigned to 850 B.C., to the Greek Anthology, to which, reasonably enough, no date is given, because the various contributors flourished at various times, with an interval of centuries between many of them, and to put the date of the earliest collection might have been difficult as well as misleading; and from Plautus, whose death is assigned to 184 B.C., to Quintilian, who is considered to have died A.D. 118. It is astonishing, under the circumstances, how much is done in a pleasant, chatty manner likely to promote the object which the author or compiler professes to have had in view, the object of inciting his readers to "ask for more," not necessarily from him, but from any source of which they can avail themselves; but it is evident that a great deal must also have been left undone. It is difficult to see, however, why the author or compiler should have disregarded the prevalent fashion, for which there is sound reason, of distinguishing the Greek from the Roman mythology by adhering to the Greek and Roman forms of proper names; he has adopted the old promiscuous nomenclature, for which requirements of space cannot be pleaded. However, it is just possible that the readers to whom he appeals, if they know anything at all about ancient Greek personages, whether human or divine, real or mythological, know them best by their Latinised names; and he may, therefore, have exercised a wise discretion. It is curious that in the lines which he quotes from the "Anthology" concerning the birthplace of Homer he should not have noticed the signal omission of Smyrna, generally considered to have been not second in pretensions even to Chios among the seven claimants. The omission may be in the original; but the original is not at hand to refer to; and, with the omission, it is impossible to make up the well-known hexameter Latinised into "Smyrna, Chios, Colophon, Salamis, Rhodos, Argos, Athenæ," for Samos, which is given instead of Smyrna, does not fit. The author or compiler is very conscientious in giving the names of the English translators from whose versions he has taken extracts; and those extracts appear to have been chosen with much judgment, so as to create in the reader a wish to have further examples. To mention the names, therefore, was not only conscientious, as regards the translator's honour, but useful also, as regards the reader's convenience. The book will certainly afford pleasure, though in small quantities.

In the Queen's Bench Division, on Monday, a saddler, who tripped over a carpet spread on the pavement for the convenience of guests attending a party at a gentleman's house in the West-End, and seriously injured his knee, was awarded £100 damages.

The coronation of the King and Queen of Roumania took place at Bucharest on Sunday. The King and Queen sat on a throne which had been erected in the courtyard on the summit of the hill between the Chamber of Deputies and the Metropolitan Church. The Coronation Hymn having been sung, prayers were read by the Archbishop Primate of Roumania, and then the crowns were brought out of the church, where they had been all night, and were placed before their Majesties. The King's crown is of steel, wrought out of a cannon captured at Plevna; the Queen's is of gold. The ceremony over, their Majesties returned to the town, followed by a long procession. The crowns were taken to the palace and there presented by the Senate and the Chamber.

NEW BOOKS RECEIVED.

ALLEN AND CO.
Luck: and What Came of It. A Tale of Our Times. By Charles Mackay. 2 vols.

BATES, BUXTON.
In the Derbyshire Highlands: Highways, Byeways, and My Ways in the Peake Country. By Edward Bradbury.

"BAZAAR" OFFICE.
Practical Photography. Illustrated. By G. E. Wynne.
The Practical Fisherman. Illustrated. By J. H. Keene.

BENTLEY AND SON.
Polly and Passion. A Novel of Australian Life. By Mrs. Campbell Praed. 3 vols.
An Ocean Free-Lance. From a Privateersman's Log, 1812. By W. C. Russell. 3 vols.

BLACK AND ARMSTRONG.
Epitome of Gardening. By Thomas Shaw. With an Introductory Chapter on the Principles of Horticulture. By Dr. Maxwell T. Masters.

BLACKMORE, AUSTEN, AND CO.
Chikkin Hazard. A Novely, by Charles Rendit and Dion Boucicault. By F. C. Burnand.
Gone Wrong. A New Novel, by Miss Mindy Deudron. By F. C. Burnand.

CASSELL, PETTER, AND GALPIN.
Systems of Land Tenure in Various Countries. A Series of Essays published under the Auspices of the Cobden Club. Edited by J. W. Probyn. New Edition.
The Scottish Covenanters. By Dr. Taylor. Our Own Country: Descriptive, Historical, Pictorial. Vol. X.
Sixties of Longer Works in English Verse and Prose. Selected, Edited, and Arranged by Professor Henry Morley. With Illustrations.

CHATTO AND WINDUS.
From Exile. By James Payn. 3 vols.
Suburban Homes of London. A Residential Guide to Favourite London Localities; their Society, Celebrities, and Associations.
The Agony Column of the Times, 1800—1870. Edited by Alice Clay.
The Black Robe. By Wilkie Collins. 3 vols.
The Chaplain of the Fleet. A Novel. By Walter Besant and James Rice. 3 vols.
From Exile. By James Payn. 3 vols.

"FIELD" OFFICE.
Pheasants: Their Natural History and Practical Management. By W. B. Tegetmeier. Enlarged. Illustrated.

GRIFFITH AND FARRAN.
The Churchman's Altar Manual and Guide for Holy Communion; together with the Collects, Epistles, and Gospels, and a Collection of Appropriate Hymns.

HAMILTON, ADAMS, AND CO.
Tales of the Highlands. By Sir Thomas Dick Lauder, Bart. Illustrations.

HARRISON.
The Colonial Office List for 1881. With Maps. By Edward Fairfield.

HODDER AND STOUGHTON.
Exeter Hall and Its Associations. By F. Morell Holmes.
Men Worth Remembering—Robert Hall. By the Rev. Paxton Hood.

HURST AND BLACKETT.
Catharine of Aragon and the Sources of the English Reformation. By Albert du Boys. Edited from the French, with Notes by Charlotte M. Yonge. 2 vols.

JANSEN AND CO., CHICAGO.
The Student's Dream.

KENT AND CO.
Sunbeams and Shadows. By Edward Capern.

LOW AND CO.
English Philosophers—Hartley and James Mill. By George Spencer Bower.
Bacon. By Thomas Fowler.

Military Maxims and Apophthegms of Commanders. The Soldier's Diary. Compiled by Captain Bartle Teeling.
Seven Years in South Africa: Travels, Researches, and Hunting Adventures, Between the Diamond-Fields and the Zambesi (1872-79). By Dr. Emil Holub. Translated by Ellen E. Frewer. With 200 Illustrations and a Map. 2 vols.
How I Crossed Africa. By Major Serpa Pinto. Translated by A. Elwes. 2 vols. Maps, Facsimiles, and 132 Illustrations.
The Great Explorers of the Nineteenth Century. By Jules Verne. Translated by N. D'Anvers. With numerous Original Illustrations and Facsimiles.
The Steam House. Part II. Tigers and Traitors. By Jules Verne. Translated from the French by Miss Agnes D. Kingston. Illustrated.
Egypt. By Stanley Lane-Poole. With Illustrations.
Australia. By John Foster Vesey Fitzgerald. With Illustrations and Map.
The Twenty Styles of Architectural Illustrated by Plates of the Finest Edifices of the World.

NEWMAN AND CO.
Bible Tragedies. By Richard Hengist Horne.
Christmas Holidays at Maythorpe. By Lady Lamb. Illustrated.
The Story of Our Volunteers. By G Woodhurne.
Myths from the Metamorph oses Told in English by the Rev. G. Lifting.
Ovid. The Pontic Epistles. Book IV. With Notes for Schools. By W. H. Williams.

NICHOLS AND SONS.
The Peerage, Baronetage, and Knightage of the British Empire for 1881. By Joseph Foster. 2 vols.

PAUL AND CO.
Virginibus Puerisque and Other Papers. By Robert Louis Stevenson.
English Odes. Selected by Ed. W. Gosse

REMINGTON AND CO.
On Latinos. A Novel. 2 vols. By Fanny Aiken-Kortright.

SILVER AND CO.
Handbook to Canada. With New Map. Showing the Railway System, &c.

SKEFFINGTON AND SON.
The Modern Circle.

SMITH, ELDER, AND CO.
Miss Williamson's Divagations. By Miss Thackeray (Mrs. Richmond Ritchie). With Four Illustrations.
Shakespeare. Certain Selected Plays Arranged for the Use of the Young. By Samuel Brandram.

STANFORD.
Tourist's Guide Through London. By W. J. Loftie. With Map and Plans.
The Town, Colleges, and Neighbourhood of Marlborough. By T. Edward Hulme.

STOCK.
The Communicant. A Manual of Devotion for Holy Communion. Edited by the Rev. W. O. Purton.

TINSLEY BROTHERS.
Six Months in Mecca. An Account of the Mohammedan Pilgrimage to Meccah. By T. F. Keane.

TRÜBNER AND CO.
Pith: Essays and Sketches, Grave and Gay. By Newton Crosland.

VIZETELLY AND CO.
Popular French Novels:
Blue-Eyed Meta Holdenis and a Stroke on Diplomacy. By Victor Cherbuliez.
The Goddess of a Marquis. By André Theuriet.

WEIR.
The Falls of the Loder. A Romance of Dartmoor. By Rose Mackenzie Kettle.

RIDLEY HALL, CAMBRIDGE, FOR THEOLOGICAL STUDENTS.

RIDLEY HALL, CAMBRIDGE.

At the Universities both of Oxford and Cambridge, special establishments have lately been erected for the training and instruction of theological students, "in the principles of the Reformed Protestant Church," avowedly in opposition to "sacerdotalism" as well as to "scepticism," as is stated in the circular issued by a joint committee of the two Universities. The Earls of Chichester and Harrowby, the Bishop of Ripon, the Bishop of Sodor and Man, Bishops Perry, Ryan, and Anderson, and the Deans of Canterbury, Gloucester, and Ripon are leading members of this committee. The two halls which have been opened bear the names of Wycliffe and Ridley, historic champions of the Protestant Reformation in England, having an obvious significance with regard to the Church principles they are designed to uphold. Wycliffe Hall, Oxford, under the Rev. R. B. Girdlestone as Principal, was opened more than a twelvemonth ago. We now present a View of Ridley Hall, for which a convenient site has been obtained at Newnham, Cambridge; the architect of the building is Mr. C. L. Luck, of Carlton Chambers, Regent-street. Ridley Hall was opened on Jan. 28 this year. These halls are not intended, like Keble College, at Oxford, and Selwyn College, at Cambridge, to be new colleges for the reception of undergraduates; but are meant to be institutions for assisting to educate resident members of the University, who are candidates for holy orders, and to train them to become good ministers. For the accomplishment of this object, the halls will supply for graduates desirous of pursuing their theological studies an economical residence within the University, so that they may be able to attend the various professors' lectures, and avail themselves of all the other facilities for education afforded at Oxford and Cambridge respectively. This arrangement will not disconnect the resident students from their own colleges, and will, it is believed, prove very preferable to their going to a diocesan college previous to their ordination. The principals of the halls will also give lectures to undergraduates, who, having passed the general examination required of all undergraduates, propose to take their degree in theology. These lectures will be supplemental to those of the divinity professors, and supply a void which, according to the testimony of some of the most eminent of these, their lectures cannot fill. Each hall is under the government of a council, composed of members of the University to which it is attached.

THE LATE MAJOR W. M. LAURENCE.

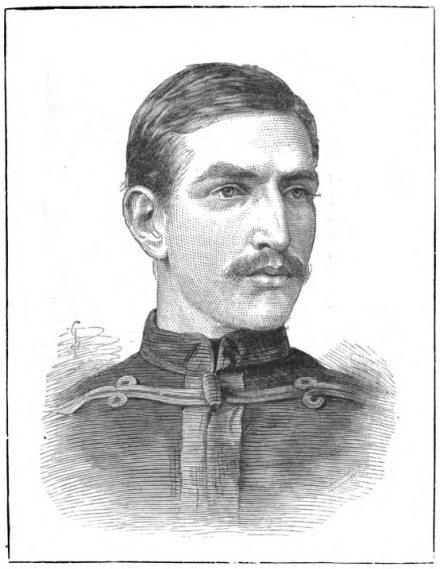
This gallant officer was killed in one of the last actions of the Basuto War, on March 9, at Thlotsi Heights, while commanding the left wing of the Kimberley Horse. He was the second son of the Rev. Perceval Laurence, Rector of Walesby, Lincolnshire, and was born at Woking, Dec. 22, 1855. Major Laurence had served during part of the Zulu War as an officer in the Imperial Forces, and at the close of that war had undertaken the work of a journalist at Kimberley. He was there among the first to respond to a call made last year by the Government of the Cape Colony, for volunteers to serve in Basutoland. His skill in landing troops, his untiring energy

NEW EXAMINATION SCHOOLS, OXFORD.—SEE PAGE 526.



MAJOR W. M. LAURENCE,
KILLED IN THE BASUTO WAR.

MR. EDWARD WHYMPER,
THE MOUNTAIN CLIMBER OF THE ANDES.

in drilling them, and his conspicuous gallantry in action were soon recognised; and he was intrusted with the command of the left wing. On March 11, the anniversary of the day on which, twenty-three years before, his uncle and godfather, a well-known officer on Sir James Outram's staff, fell leading one of the final attacks upon Lucknow, Major Laurence's body, surrounded by his devoted comrades, was borne to his grave, over which they have since erected a stone, "in memory of a very gallant commander and a deeply lamented friend."

MR. EDWARD WHYMPER.

The fame of this dauntless mountain climber was fairly won upon the Alps some years ago; and it will long be remembered that he was one of the survivors of the terrible disaster on the Matterhorn, in July, 1865, when Mr. Hadow, Lord Francis Douglas, and the Rev. C. Hudson, with the guide Michael Croz, were killed by falling down a tremendous precipice. Mr. Edward Whymper, who is just forty-one years of age, is second son of the engraver and water-colour painter. His own reputation, as an artist and author of books of Alpine description, is well known to many of our readers. He has published two interesting volumes, "The Matterhorn," and "Scrambles Among the Alps." In 1867, he explored part of the north-west region of Greenland, and there collected some valuable specimens of fossil plants, which are in the geological collection of the National Museum. He has been elected Vice-President of the Alpine Club, and is a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society, to which he has communicated the scientific results of his Greenland and South American expeditions. The Prince of Wales was one of the audience upon the last of these occasions.

Mr. Edward Whymper has more recently devoted about a twelvemonth to the exploration of the Andes in South America, and has succeeded in reaching their highest summits. In his lecture delivered before Easter to the members of the Alpine Club on the ascents of Chimborazo and Cotopaxi, he stated that he took with him from home two well-known Swiss guides, Jean Antoine Carrel and Louis Carrel, from the Val Tournanche. The height of Chimborazo, which he ascended first, was about 20,000 feet; and up to that time no one, so far as he could learn, had ascended higher than from 17,000 to 18,000 feet. He had to provide his own food, about two tons of the most portable condensed provisions being sent out in tins for the expedition. His ascent of the mountain began on Dec. 23, 1879. The first camp being pitched about 15,000 ft. above the level of the sea, they afterwards ascended to a height of 16,500 ft., where they placed provisions enough for three weeks and fuel enough for several days, water being obtained by melting snow. At that height he became feeble and feverish, and was unable to satisfy the craving for drink, added to which he had a bad headache and much gasping when he was swallowing liquid. Under these circumstances he used with great benefit chlorate of potash, which he had obtained by the advice of Dr. Marcet before starting. The camp was near a rock of trachyte, which rose to about 18,800 ft., there being on the east of the ridge a conspicuous glacier, entirely fed by the ice which fell from above. When they occupied a new camping place, about 17,400 ft. high, his state improved. On Jan. 2, 1880, an attempt was made to reach the summit, but owing to an intensely cold wind they were obliged to hasten back to the camp. Afterwards, encouraged by fine weather and continuous sunshine, they made another attempt. Having at length reached what seemed to be the top, about a quarter to four in the afternoon, they had the mortification of finding that it was lower than another elevation. There was then no help for it but to make for the highest point, and they arrived upon it standing up like men, instead of grovelling as they had been doing for five hours like beasts. The wind was blowing at the rate of fifty miles an hour from the north-east, and driving the snow before it, and they were all cold, wet, and hungry. The temperature was there 21 deg. Fahrenheit, which on being worked out gave a height at the summit of Chimborazo of 20,545 ft. They descended as hastily as they could to the camp before darkness made descent impossible, and they got back at nine p.m., having been out sixteen hours, and on foot the whole time. Altogether, he spent seventeen days on Chimborazo at 15,000 ft. of altitude, 16,500 ft., and 17,300 ft., and went up three times as high as 18,500 ft., and when he quitted the mountain all trace of mountain sickness had disappeared. Mr. Whymper also described the ascent of Cotopaxi, and said that it was impossible to conceive a more amazing spectacle than that vast crater presented, illuminated as it was below with ruddy subterranean fires and above by a brilliant moon. The height of it was 19,550 ft., and the camp was 130 ft. below. They remained there twenty-six consecutive hours. He described a second ascent which he made on Chimborazo nearly five months later, and the height, as tested in the same manner as before, was in this instance found to be 20,489 ft., being 56 ft. less than on the previous occasion, the mean height of the two being 20,517 ft.

NATIVE LOOM AT MANGANYA, EAST CENTRAL AFRICA.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

EXAMINATION SCHOOLS, OXFORD.

The buildings for the New Examination Schools of the University in the High-street of Oxford are now approaching completion. They are to supersede those which occupy the ground floor of the same building in which the Bodleian Library is contained. The rapid growth of the library had made it impossible that it should any longer share the same building with the schools, which were themselves in want of more space. The whole of that building will for the future be devoted to the purposes of the Bodleian; and all the examinations of the University will be conducted in the new schools.

The new building, of which we give an illustration, is designed by Mr. T. G. Jackson, architect, of Devereux Chambers, Temple. It occupies a site between High-street, King-street, and Merton-street. The principal entrance is from High-street, into a large hall with a lofty oak roof and a gallery along one side. Behind the block containing the hall is a large building, forming three sides of a quadrangle, open to the east, in which are the examination rooms proper. The ground floor is occupied by ten schools for viva voce examinations, and several smaller rooms for the use of examiners: all of which face inward to the quadrangle, for the sake of quiet, and are surrounded by a corridor of communication. The upper floor contains two other viva voce schools and some rooms for examiners; but is principally occupied by a suite of spacious halls, 34 ft. wide and 27 ft. high, communicating with one another through two ante-rooms at the head of the two principal staircases. These halls are for the examinations on paper, and will accommodate more than 500 candidates at single tables, with an allowance of 25 square feet of floor space to each. As the building will be used, not only for examinations, but for grand receptions and on other public occasions, these rooms are handsomely finished with oak panelling and carved door cases, and the ceilings are decorated with moulded plaster-work. The principal ante-room and the staircase leading to it will have columns and arches of marble, and the whole of the corridors will be paved with squares of black and white marble.

The style of the building is that earliest form of the English Renaissance in which the spirit of Gothic art still supplied the main motive, though the forms of classic architecture were freely imported into it. The decorative sculpture, however, is based more directly on that of the Italian Renaissance than on that of the corresponding English work, which was often coarsely executed and rudely designed, constituting, in fact, the weak point of the style.

The building has been in progress nearly five years, and will probably be completed before the end of the present year, even if it be not ready in time for the public examinations in November.

A NATIVE AFRICAN LOOM.

Our Illustration of the employment of female weavers at Manganya is from a sketch by Mr. H. B. Thelwall, who accompanied one of the earlier missions from the Lower Zambesi up the Shiré river towards Lake Nyassa, previously to the foundation of the Livingstonia missionary station at the south end of that Lake. The native tribes of this region are considerably more advanced in some of the useful arts than those residing farther to the south and to the west of them; but the industrial occupations, both of agriculture and of manufacture, except that of working in metal, are generally confined to the women. In Dr. Emil Holub's recently-published narrative of "Seven Years in South Africa," he describes the manners and customs of the Marutse and Mapunda people, dwelling north of the Zambesi, whose women are dressed in aprons and petticoats of roughly tanned leather. But he says, "The eastern vassal tribes, who grow cotton, make pieces of calico of all sizes, from handkerchiefs to sheets. The smaller pieces are used for men's aprons, and the larger, which are one or two yards wide, and from one and a half to two and a half yards long, are used for domestic purposes; their narrower ends are all finished off with fringes, varying from four to sixteen inches in length. The Mashonas weave similar articles of clothing, but employ bast for the material, instead of cotton." Again, in another place, he says, "The handkerchiefs and sheets that I have mentioned must rank among the best specimens of the industrial skill of the country; without being in any degree coarse, the texture is substantial, and dark stripes are often woven with very good effect upon a lighter ground."

Permission has again been given to Messrs. John Waterer and Sons, of Bagshot, to hold a display of their rhododendrons in the gardens of Cadogan-place, and we understand the exhibition will be on view throughout the month of June.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

With the exception of the Payne Stakes, which, though only established last season, promises to be a very important race, there was no event of any great interest at the Newmarket Second Spring Meeting last week. Yet the running had an important bearing on the future, and the way seems still further cleared for Peregrine to secure the double event, for which so many winners of the Two Thousand have striven in vain. Tunis broke down hopelessly in the Payne Stakes, and, as his stable companion Brag, who has long been a comparative cripple, was ignominiously beaten in a trial during the week, both have been scratched, and Mr. Rothschild's chance of securing a second Derby is gone for this season. Then Scobell put himself quite out of court, for, though he ran a little better than in the Guineas, it was so plain that he cannot act down hill, that the steep descent from Tattenham Corner must be fatal to him. Tristan also ran very moderately; indeed, what can be the use of entertaining the chances of any animal that finished behind such a moderate pair as Monarch and the colt by Reverberation—Auchinleck. The former, who, by-the-way, is not engaged in the Derby, was well tried before the Craven week, but, after failing to get a place in the Craven Stakes, was well beaten by third-raters like Skipetar and Dougal, and the Auchinleck colt twice failed to win a small handicap with the bottom weight, though it is only fair to say that Covey seemed quite incapable of riding him, and he ran very differently in the hands of Goater. As is invariably the case at this meeting, the two-year-olds played the chief part, and the best of them was undoubtedly Incognita, a beautiful filly by Winslow—Zelle, who ran for the first time, and cut down Convert in rare style. She was certainly in receipt of 8 lb. from him, but appeared to have nearly that amount of weight in hand, and she and Comely are a capital advertisement for Winslow, who is sure of plenty of patronage next season. Belle Lurette once more cut up badly; for, after appearing to have her race in hand, she swerved about and allowed Broseley to get up and beat her by a head. She has sadly belied the promise of her Lincoln performance, and appears unable to stay more than half a mile in anything like good company. Purple and Scarlet, a son of Bills Gown and Cumcon, placed the Breeders' Plate to Mr. Walker's credit, and the highly-bred Marquesa won his first race for the young Duke of Portland; while the uncertain Isabel cut up wretchedly, and could never make Lady Emily gallop. Turning to the older horses, we note that Elf King suddenly recovered his form in the most remarkable manner, and fairly ran away with the Spring Handicap; and Lord Sidmouth, in spite of being fairly run off his legs last year, has grown into a very nice colt, and took a couple of races in the easiest possible style. There was quite a little crowd assembled to see Robert the Devil go through the performance of walking over for the Rosebery Plate, and the great horse received a hearty cheer as he cantered by with Rossiter on his back. He has thickened considerably and improved in every way since last year, so his promised meeting with Bend Or in the Epsom Gold Cup ought to prove a wonderful attraction.

There was a very fair attendance at Lewes at the end of the week, though the racing did not soar beyond the regions of plating; and this week the most important events have taken place at York and Bath. At the former place, a field of seven ran for the Great Northern Handicap, in which Blackthorn (6 st. 9 lb.) was heavily backed, and had every chance of making up for his poor display in the Chester Cup. He ran better than on the Roodee, but was easily beaten by Madame du Barry (9 st.), who seems to have recovered her best form, and won very easily. The Pretender—Minuret filly took a race on each day, and her sire generally has two or three useful representatives, though he cannot claim one of really high class. The racing was fairly interesting at Bath, where there seems to have been a fair amount of rain lately, and the course was consequently in capital order. Geheimniss won the Thirtieth Biennial Stakes for Tom Cannon, and the Lady Rosebery filly had no difficulty in carrying off the Juvenile Stakes, though a 10 lb. pull in the weights enabled the filly by Craig Millar—Gentle Mary filly to beat her by a head for the Weston Stakes. Friar Rush won a Welter Handicap on Tuesday, and the penalty thus incurred did not prevent him from following up this success in the Somersetshire Stakes, Maidment, who does not get much riding nowadays, being in the saddle on each occasion.

We need hardly tell our readers that the Derby will be decided on Wednesday next. The general collapse that has taken place amongst our three-year-olds will render it less interesting than usual, and it is difficult to make up a list of twenty starters. Perhaps, however, the following may not be far from the mark:—Peregrine (Webb), St. Louis (Fordham), Cameliard (Snowden), Geologist (Cannon), Sir Charles (Glover), Iroquois (Archer), Don Fulano (Wood), Fortissimo (Morbey), Great Carle (Morgan), Scobell (Rossiter), Town Moor (Lemaire), Limestone (T. Chaloner), and Tristan. To these may be added Barrett, Passaic, Cumberland, Culloden, Leon, and Ishmael, though two or three of these must be considered as doubtful runners. There can be no question that the Americus have a good chance of success; and, unless Peregrine can do successful battle for us, the greatest prize of the year will probably go across the Atlantic. The field for the Oaks will also be a small one, and the race really looks only a question of health for Thebais.

The cricket season has now fairly begun, and the first county match which has been played in London was that between Middlesex and Surrey, which was begun at Lord's on Monday. The first innings gave promise of a close contest, but in the second the Surrey team entirely collapsed, and were beaten by ten wickets. Mr. A. J. Webbe (57) made the highest score on either side, and Burton and Mr. Ford bowled very well for the winners. Last week Yorkshire beat Cambridge University by eight wickets. The scoring was high on both sides; but there can be no doubt that the University men are weak in bowling, and, as the Oxonians have a very strong batting team, the light blues will not have matters all their own way this year when the two elevens meet at Lord's.

The presidency of the Cambridge University Boating Club has been conferred on Mr. E. Lambert, Pembroke College, in succession to Mr. Watson Taylor, resigned.

The eighth annual gathering of bicyclists took place at Hampton Court on Saturday last. It was computed that something like 2500 riders took part in the procession, and, thanks to the beautiful weather, there was an enormous gathering of spectators. The annual contest between Cambridge University and London was brought off at Cambridge on the same day. The Londoners won the Four Miles; but the One Mile and Fifteen Miles went to representatives of the University, who thus won two events out of three.

L. E. Myers, the famous American amateur runner, sailed from New York on the 21st. inst., and will run for the first time in this country at the June meeting of the London Athletic Club at Stamford-bridge.

NOVELS.

Wholesome sentiments and sound sense, unless, perhaps, when philological matters are discussed, are distinguishing characteristics of Luck, by Charles Mackay (W. H. Allen and Co.), and are sufficient to redeem the three volumes from the charge of flimsiness which is frequently brought by highly superior persons against writers of novels and the novels themselves. Of romance, nevertheless, there is enough to satisfy all reasonable requirements, even if the veil of mystery with which it appears to be considered always expedient to cover up the romantic portion of a story be more than usually transparent. General opinion will probably favour the proposition that the main interest and the chief beauties of the story lie, as is so often the case with the greatest masters of fiction, in what may be called a small tributary stream rather than in the full current of the narrative; that there is more to please the mind and touch the heart in the episodical love-tale concerning the Baronet's son and the farrier's daughter than in the technically more important and more elaborate drama in which the hero and heroine, properly so called, play the leading parts. The author professes to tell "a story of our times;" and, in fact, he gives the date of 1869 for the commencement of his tale, so that the life he describes and the incidents he introduces, as well as the comments he makes, are such as nearly all his readers, save the most juvenile, can estimate by the standard of their own experience, memory, and judgment. And to be able to do so is a great advantage from more than one point of view. In the present instance, it will most likely be generally acknowledged that the portraits drawn, the situations described, the events recorded, the observations made, are, for the most part, lifelike, accurate, and just. Something there may be of a discontented, splenetic manner; but, on the other hand, there is not a little of true humanity and of genuine humour. One trifling error must be noticed, as the author has gone out of his way to deal with the Derby of 1870: Macgregor stood at odds on for that race, not at 9 to 4 against him. This is a very insignificant item, no doubt; but, if you go out of your way to mention a particular fact, you should be the more careful to have it quite right. On another point it may be permissible to hint just a doubt: fashionable ladies, nobody would deny, expect a "quid pro quo" for the services they are able to render to the wealthy unfashionable, but Lady Augusta Pippins is surely described in a style of some exaggeration.

Worshippers of the golden calf will derive immense gratification from the three volumes entitled Ayala's Angel, by Anthony Trollope (Chapman and Hall), for the whole story is positively redolent of money. Income, to judge from the novel, is the be-all and end-all of human existence. And so, perhaps, it is with the majority of us; but there was a time when it seemed to be the province of the novelist to waft us away to a happy land where income was of no consequence. In the novel under consideration, however, pounds, shillings, and pence, or questions involving some consideration of them, crop up at almost every page. We are introduced at the beginning to two pretty penniless girls, who have been suddenly left fatherless and motherless upon the world, and the novelist sets seriously to work to find for each of them an income. That is, of course, a husband with an income. And he performs his task with a perfectly marvellous amount of circumstantiality and minute detail. That he gives us a most truthful representation of life, as it is led by extremely commonplace members of the comfortable classes, scarcely admits of a doubt; whether such a representation, extended through three long volumes, can be regarded as anything more than weariness to the flesh, depends entirely upon the sort of reader who takes up the novel. One will read it with avidity from the first page to the last, another will find half a volume about as much as the patience of Job can bear. Not a noble thought, not a striking incident, not a scrap of plot, worthy of the name, is to be found, if it be not rash to make such an assertion, throughout the story. And yet the story has the singular charm of undeniable reality, as regards the sayings, and doings, and correspondence of the various personages; and the style of writing is pleasant, chatty, sprightly, amusing; though the tone may awaken reminiscences of Houndsditch. So far as the title is concerned, the whole tale may be told in a few words. Ayala, one of the pretty sisters, is sufficiently romantic, though she is particularly susceptible to the beauty of riches, to reject three tolerably wealthy suitors, if not more, because they do not come up to her idea of the "angel" she expects to come some day and claim her hand; but, after a little dancing, and a little hunting, and a great deal of pressure, including three distinct offers made by the same worthy gentleman, she accepts one of the three, that same worthy gentleman, for no earthly reason that did not exist at the time of her second refusal. But then she has "little tricks and graces;" and it is quite true to life that the worthiest gentleman, especially if he have red hair and a large mouth, cannot expect to be accepted under fewer than three offers by a little chit who has "tricks and graces," doesn't know her own mind, and, out of sheer petulance and perversity says "no, never," when she would like to say "yes, for ever." This is really the whole matter, so far as the titular heroine is concerned; and the three volumes are filled, as full as ever egg was of meat, by dragging in several other love-stories, some of which, however excellent in themselves, have about as much connection with Ayala and her "angel" as the isthmus of Panama with the isthmus of Suez. At the same time, each of these supererogatory stories exhibits all those qualities and gifts, especially of minute description and profound regard for what may be termed pecuniarities, which have earned for the author the character of an eminently practical writer of fiction. He certainly allows the two orphan sisters to display a romantic spirit; but they cannot be said to "lose anything by it."

Liveliness and brevity are excellent qualities for a novel to possess, and they are characteristic of the three volumes entitled In Luck's Way: by Byron Webber (Tinsley Brothers), in which the author of "Pigskin and Willow" has intermingled love-making and horse-racing without giving undue preponderance to either. Indeed the "horsey" reader will probably regret that there are not more scenes of horse-racing, training, and the like, with all the accessory cheating, intrigue, and double-dealing, leavened, however, by some lumps of honesty and honour. The conduct of the honest and grateful jockey, who, though an invalid, insists upon riding at the risk of his life and wins a race of importance for his party, is quite heroic; and the circumstances are described with considerable pathos as well as spirit. The best parts of the novel, however, are those in which the dialect of the Channel Islands is most amusingly pressed into service; and those parts are among the least "horsey." No deep study of human nature must be expected in the story, nor has the author laid himself out to concoct an intricate plot or to pile up startling incidents; he has simply devised a straightforward tale, and told it in a straightforward and, at the same time, sprightly manner. And the tale may be briefly summed up as an account of how an American, of English origin, inherited an English estate, kept and ran racehorses in England, became acquainted by experience with the rascalities of the turf, managed to keep his own hands clean, escaped from the trammels of a handsome and "sporting" young woman, and was lucky enough to find himself "landed" in the arms of a very charming wife. That is about all.

Originality, if singularity would not be the more correct term, must be allowed to distinguish the main conception worked out in The Two Dreamers, by John Saunders (Chapman and Hall); and each of the three volumes is fit up in parts by flashes of the author's acknowledged power both of imagination and of literary execution. It is to be feared, however, that neither the characters nor the plot will have much interest for the majority of readers; and, what is more, the story rests upon a foundation of a very shaky description, if the essential strength of a novel be correctly supposed to lie in faithful representation of human nature and in some probable, or at any rate intelligible, if exceptional, theory of life. Such a representation and such a theory cannot be said in the present instance to be presented with any distinctness. The behaviour of the mother, who abandons, rejects, and tries to murder her son, of the son who devises a diabolical plan for ruining and exposing his mother, and of the by no means blameless or estimable lady who adjures the son with her dying breath, so to speak (for she really writes), to take vengeance on his mother for the wrong done both to him and to his dead father, is likely to strike many readers as not only out of keeping with the ways of mankind, but also as incomprehensible from the point of view of utility, and equally revolting to human sentiment and to common sense. Nor is it easy to see how the partly vindictive and partly magnanimous son could have supposed that he was prompted to his course of action not only by friends but "by his own soul, and by God!" It might have been true, as regards "his own soul;" but novelists have a way of making the Almighty, or of representing their characters as making the Almighty, responsible for conduct which there is excellent reason to believe is altogether opposed to His commandments, and there is something so grotesquely repulsive as to be ludicrous, if it were not so shocking, in the picture drawn of the murderous mother and the son who detected her in the very act of murdering him coming together on the most affectionate and confidential terms, and "living happily ever after" under the same roof. There can hardly be any necessity for pointing out how mischievous is this light method of dealing with the most atrocious and unnatural breaches of Divine and human law; nothing can be of much worse tendency than constructive palliation of the foulest crime. Of course the author intended nothing of the kind; and there can be no harm in wishing that he may have hosts of readers who will admire what is admirable in his novel and be wholly unaffected by what is not.

In these days of the Irish Land League and revived Fenian agitation, when there are so many of whom it is to be hoped that they are not Ireland's True Sons, we are glad enough to hear of Ireland's True Daughter. This is a story in three volumes (Remington and Co.) by a lady author who calls herself "Marcellina," and who shows considerable spirit and talent. Marion Burke is the name of the good and generous heroine, who is not a mere girl, but a woman of thirty years, though "she did not look more than four and twenty." The lady described in this refreshing and promising manner proves really one of the most agreeable personages to be met with in recent fiction. She is the only child of the squire of Danesfield Manor, near Galway who is not very rich; but his wealthy neighbour and intimate friend, Sir James Travers, a benevolent and studious old bachelor, has conceived a strong affection for Marion, and we sympathise with this good man's disappointment when she declines to become his wife. Like the ordinary young lady of modern domestic romance, she has a contrasted couple of lovers; the bad one is George Lionel, and much too bad, in our judgment, to be introduced in this story. He is hideously wicked, and his crimes are eventually punished by a ghastly death and ignominious self-exposure. The good and noble lover, Harry Staunton, who won the true heart of Marion in his early boyhood, has been in New Zealand, but has come home to take the modest post of clerk in a London bank. There is an acute crisis of jealousy, spite, and malignant revenge on the part of Lionel, prompting him to commit the enormities just alluded to; but Marion and all the good people at Danesfield keep their friendship for honest Harry, whose character is finally cleared; and the deserving persons are made happy for the rest of their lives. In spite of some highly improbable incidents, this tale is worthy of consideration for its healthy moral tone, and the vivacity of its style, in certain passages, has a gently stimulating effect. It is dedicated, by permission, to Mr. Gladstone, who may perhaps accept such a compliment from Ireland's true daughters, as a set-off against the vituperation he has received from ladies of the Land League persuasion.

Of all honoured names in the domain of wholesome fiction there is scarcely any more honoured than that of Berthold Auerbach; and it is almost sufficient recommendation of the pretty little volume entitled Brigitta (Leipzig: Bernard Tauchnitz; London: Sampson Low and Co.) to say that the tale, translated from the German by Clara Bell, was written by him. It may be added, however, that it is well worth while, and it will take but a very little while, to read how Brigitta thought she had blinded the wicked captain, and how she seemed to her husband to be rightfully called "the Princess of Schlehenhoff." The story is very smoothly translated, so that the reading is as easy as the matter is agreeable and refreshing.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

THE
BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS,
A NEW JOURNAL FOR THE YOUNG.
The Proprietors of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS issued the first Illustrated Weekly Newspaper for Boys, price ONE PENNY, on Wednesday, April 6, 1881. THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS is a Journal full of Entertainment and Information for Youth; and, at the same time, a Paper which Parents can with confidence place in the hands of their Children.

CAPTAIN MAYNE REID'S "LOST MOUNTAIN." A New Romance in the best style of this famous Author, commenced in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS for April 6.

"SQUEE BIFFEN:" The hero of this droll story for Boys is sent adrift on a floating island in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS, for MAY 25.

LIFE AFLOAT OF THE ROYAL MIDDIES.—A series of Original Articles, Illustrated by the Author, and containing several fresh Anecdotes concerning our sailor Princes, is started in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS for MAY 25. Post-free, 1½d.

CADET LIFE ABOARD H.M.S. BRITANNIA is fully described in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS for May 25. Post-free, 1½d.

JULES VERNE'S ROMANCES: Another Ten minutes with Jules Verne in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS for May 25.

H.M.S. BACCHANTE is depicted in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS for May 25; the best of Boys' Journals.

THE SECOND MONTHLY PART of THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS is now being published, containing the four Numbers for May, stitched in a coloured wrapper, the continuation of "THE LOST MOUNTAIN," and "SQUEE BIFFEN," with complete stories of Afghanistan and Arctic-land, by John Latey, Jun., Jottings from a Middy's Journal, and the Sport and News of the Month.
Price Sixpence; Post-free, Eightpence.

SUBSCRIPTION TO THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS.
FOR THE UNITED KINGDOM:
Three Months, 1s. 8d.; Six Months, 3s. 3d.; Twelve Months, 6s. 6d.
ABROAD:
Post-free to any part of Europe, United States of America, Canada, and Egypt, for One Year, 8s. 6d.; to India, Ceylon, China, and Japan, for One Year, 10s. 10d. Elsewhere Abroad, One Year, 8s. 8d.
All subscriptions to be paid in advance direct by Post-office order, payable at the East Strand Post-office, to THOMAS FOX, 10, Milford-lane, Strand, London.

CAPTURE OF ENGLISH SUBJECTS BY GREEK BRIGANDS. Profusely illustrated by Gustave Doré, price 2s.; cloth, 2s. 6d.
THE GREEK BRIGAND. A Romance of Reality. By EDMUND ABOUT, Translated by Sir C. Wrexall, Bart.
London: J. and R. MAXWELL, Milton House, Shoe-lane, E.C.

MESSER'S BRITISH WILD FLOWERS. A New and Rapid Method of Studying Wild Flowers by Analytical Illustrations. "We cordially recommend it."—Journal of Horticulture. Cloth, 10s. 6d.
D. BOGUE, St. Martin's-place, Trafalgar-square, W.C.

"MYRA'S JOURNAL."
EVERY LADY SHOULD READ THE BEST AND CHEAPEST JOURNAL OF FASHION IN THE WORLD.
MYRA'S JOURNAL of Dress and Fashion.
Price 6d., by post, 8d.
Novelties for JUNE:—
1. Coloured Fashion Plate, showing new Models of Costumes for Ladies and Child.
2. Diagram Sheet containing Patterns of the Sawney Coat-Bodice, the Raphael Hat, the Cotogni Mantle, and the Marini Corsage.
3. Cut-out Paper Pattern of the Lady Saghir Bodice.
4. Dress and Fashion in Paris.
5. Spinnings in Town.
6. Myra's Answers, Dress, Fashion in Furniture, Health, and Personal Attention, Furniture and Furnishing, the Cuisine, Books and Authors, Music, Etiquette, Miscellaneous.
7. The Latest from Paris.
8. Illustrations of the newest Modes in Costumes and Toilettes, Indoor, Walking, and Evening Dresses, Mantles, Paletots, Chapeaux, Coiffures, Lingerie, &c.
9. Models of Spring Costumes, Mantles, and Morning Dresses, Models from Les Grands Magasins du Louvre.
10. Needlework: Designs for Embroidered Wall-pocket, Point Lace Valance, Berlin Wool-work, Lamp Mat, Crochet Rosette and Edgings, &c.
Subscriptions: Yearly, 8s.; Half-yearly, 4s.
GOUBAUD and SON,
20 and 40, Bedford-street, Covent-garden.

PRACTICAL LESSONS IN PAINTING ON CHINA, PORCELAIN, EARTHENWARE, &c. By Madame la Baronne DELAMARDELLE; from the French by GUSTAVE A. BOUVIER. 4th Edition. Price 1s.; post-free, 1s. 1d.—London: LECHERTIER, BARBE, and Co., 60, Regent-street.

ANGLO-AMERICAN METHOD; or, A New and Infallible System to LEARN in Three Months how to Read, Write, and Pronounce Correctly the FRENCH LANGUAGE. By J. DE FALLON, B.A., K.L.H. Cloth, 8vo, pp. 791, price 8s.—London: DULAU and Co., 37, Soho-square.

TRADE JOURNAL FOR BUILDERS AND ENGINEERS.
BUILDING AND ENGINEERING TIMES.
Saturday, Twopence. Devoted to the Interests of Architects, Builders, Contractors, and Engineers. Specimen copy, post-free, 2½d. Sold by all Newsagents. Office, 198, Aldersgate-street, London, E.C.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

Now ready, half-roan, 7s. 6d.; half-calf, 10s. 6d.; A COMPANION VOLUME to MRS. BEETON'S BOOK OF HOUSEHOLD MANAGEMENT (of which the 357th Thousand is now on sale), entitled
WARD and LOCK'S HOME BOOK: a Domestic Cyclopædia. With many full-page Coloured and other Plates, and about 350 Engravings in the Text. Among the contents of Ward and Lock's Home Book will be found—The Way to Build, Buy, Rent, and Furnish a House—Taste in the House—Economical Housekeeping—The Management of Children—Home Needlework—Home Dressmaking and Millinery—Fancy and Art Needlework—Toilet—Modern Etiquette—Employment of Leisure Hours.
London: WARD, LOCK, and Co., Salisbury-square, E.C.

"Sylvia's 'Home Journal' is one of the best Magazines of fiction and fashion."—Daily Telegraph.
SYLVIA'S HOME JOURNAL for JUNE, price 6d., contains:—
A Large Coloured Plate of the Latest Fashions.
A Cut-out Paper Pattern of Half-of Mother Hubbard Cape.
Sylvia's Monthly Letter.
London Fashion.
Lady's Parcels Guide.
How to Dine Cheaply and Well.
Pinnafores.
Sylvia's Advice on all Matters connected with Dress and Household Management.
The Newest Parisian Fashions and Needlework Designs, &c.
Subscriptions—Yearly, 6s.; half-yearly, 3s.; quarterly, 2s.
London: WARD, LOCK, and Co., Salisbury-square, E.C.

Now ready, crown 4to, price 15s.,
A METHOD OF TEACHING THE DEAF AND DUMB SPEECH, LIP-READING, AND LANGUAGE, Practically Explained and Illustrated by Examples. By THOMAS ARNOLD.—London: SMITH, ELDER, and Co., 15, Waterloo-place.

NEW NOVEL BY THE AUTHOR OF "MOLLY BAWN."
At all the Libraries, in 3 vols., post 8vo.
MRS. GEOFFREY. By the Author of "Molly Bawn," "Phyllis," "Beauty's Daughter," &c.
London: SMITH, ELDER, and Co., 15, Waterloo-place.

Now ready (One Shilling), No. 258.
THE CORNHILL MAGAZINE for JUNE. With Illustrations by George Du Maurier and W. Small.
CONTENTS.
Love the Debt. (With an Illustration.) Chap. XVI.—Miss Tubbs' Pets. XVII.—George's Confession. XVIII.—Fenton Cook. XIX.—Friends in Council.
Spring Wanderings. Aix-Capri—From Capri to Ischia—La Piccola Sentinella—Ischia and Forio—Monte Epomeo—From Ischia to Naples—Night at Pompeii—San Germano.
Anthony Trollope.
The Romance of a Wayside Weed.
Among the Dictionaries.
Love and Pain. By Una Taylor.
A Grape from a Thorn. By James Payn. (With an Illustration.) Chap. XXIII.—The Widow's Ring. XXIV.—A Change of Views. XXV.—In Quarantine. XXVI.—A Change of Partners.
London: SMITH, ELDER, and Co., 15, Waterloo-place.

BLACKWOOD'S MAGAZINE for JUNE, 1881. No. CCCXXVIII. Price 2s. 6d.
CONTENTS.—The Land of Khemi. Part I. The Arsinoite Nome.—Mattie: The History of an Evening.—The Fountain of Youth.—The Private Secretary. Part VIII.—Norwegian Sonnets. By J. Logie Robertson.—Beoloo and the "Commedia Dell' Arte."—The Cruise of the Coya.—A Talk about Odes.—The Second Stage of the Land Bill.
WILLIAM BLACKWOOD and SONS, Edinburgh and London.

MACMILLAN'S MAGAZINE.
No. 260,
for JUNE.
Price 1s.
CONTENTS OF THE NUMBER.
1. The Portrait of a Lady. By Henry James, Jun. Chaps. XXXV.—XXXVIII.
2. Subscription No More. Another Point of View. By Dr. Vance Smith.
3. The Russian Clergy. By the Rev. Moritz Kaufmann.
4. Timoleon. By the Archbishop of Dublin.
5. The Irish Land Bill. By W. Bence Jones.
6. The Wit and Humour of Lord Beaconsfield. By Walter Sydney Sichel.
7. The Revision of the New Testament. By Theodore Walrond, C.B.
MACMILLAN and Co., London.

Price One Shilling, Illustrated,
BELGRAVIA for JUNE.
CONTENTS.
Joseph's Coat. By D. Christie Murray. Illustrated by Fred. Barnard.
Our Cooling Sphere. By the Rev. William Downes, M.A.
The Countess Felicita's Discovery. Part I. By Julian Hawthorne.
Rambles about Eton: VI. By Alfred Rimmer. With Four Illustrations.
Stanisa (On Reading "I'd be a Butterfly"). By Henry S. Leigh.
Lauzun. By Charles Hervey.
The Strange Story. By James Payn.
Kaylee. By Robert Macgregor.
A Romance of the Nineteenth Century. By W. H. Mallock. (End.)

Price One Shilling,
THE GENTLEMAN'S MAGAZINE for JUNE.
CONTENTS.
The Comet of a Season. By Justin McCarthy, M.P.
The Great Fire of London. By Alex. C. Ewald.
Colonial Animals and their Origin. Part I. By Andrew Wilson, F.R.S.E. Illustrated.
Charles Lamb's Humour. By Alex. H. Japp, LL.D.
The Names of the English Counties. By Henry Bradley.
Charles Dickens in the Editor's Chair.
Science Notes. By W. Mattieu Williams.
Table Talk. By Sylvanus Urban.

IMPORTANT NEW NOVELS AT EVERY LIBRARY.
THE CHAPLAIN OF THE FLEET. By BESANT and RICE. 3 vols.
THE BLACK ROBE. By WILKIE COLLINS. 3 vols.
FROM EXILE. By JAMES PAYN. 3 vols.
MY LOVE. By E. LYNN-LINTON. 3 vols.
A ROMANCE OF THE NINETEENTH CENTURY. By W. H. MALLOCK. 3 vols. [Nearly ready.
CHATTO and WINDUS, Piccadilly, W.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

NEW NOVELS AT ALL LIBRARIES.
THE CAMERONIANS. By JAMES GRANT. 3 vols.
TWO PRETTY GIRLS. By Miss M. A. LEWIS. 3 vols.
AN OCEAN FREE LANCE. By W. CLARK RUSSELL. 3 vols.
POLICY AND PASSION. By Mrs. CAMPBELL PRAED. 3 vols.
RICHARD BENTLEY and SON, New Burlington-street.

THE MAGAZINE OF ART for JUNE, price 1s., contains—
"THE FLOOD," by J. E. MILLAIS, R.A., now for the first time Engraved by the kind permission of C. P. Matthews, Esq.
ARTEMIS (Sculpture), by H. THORNYCROFT, A.R.A., Exhibited at the Royal Academy of 1880; exquisitely Engraved. Forms the Frontispiece.
ORIGINAL SKETCHES OF OXFORD, by G. L. SEYMOUR. Illustrating Picturesque Points in its Architecture, forming a series of beautiful Engravings.
PICTURES OF THE YEAR. With Four Engravings.
PORNIC. With Two Illustrations.
THE PLACE OF PICTURES IN THE DECORATION OF A ROOM. With Four Illustrations.
"THE FIRST TROUBLES OF A YOUNG ARTIST." From the Painting by Edouard Stäpfer.
HINTS FOR A SKETCHING CLUB.
OUR LIVING ARTISTS: HAMO THORNYCROFT, A.R.A. With Portrait and Engraving of "Head of Lot's Wife."
TREASURE-HOUSES OF ART. The Collection of Mr. C. P. MATTHEWS. With Engravings.
AN EXHIBITION OF OLD MASTERS AT THE HAGUE.
PARIS'S EQUESTRIAN STATUES. With Two Illustrations.
THE DUDLEY GALLERY.
OUR ART STUDENTS IN MUNICH. With Engraving.
ART NOTES.
NOTICE.—THE MAGAZINE OF ART for MAY.—The greatly increased demand for this Part (which contains the Engraving and Article descriptive of Mr. Herkomer's large Design for a Pictorial Advertisement) has necessitated the production of several thousand extra copies. This Part, therefore, can still be procured by order from any Bookseller in town or country. The "Illustrated London News" pronounces the May Part "the most striking which has yet been issued."
CASSELL, PETTER, GALPIN, and Co., 596, Ludgate-hill, London.

THE PARIS SALON, 1881.
ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE OF THE PARIS SALON, 1881. Edited by G. F. DUMAS. 8vo, sewed, 4s. Being reproductions in facsimile of over 350 Drawings, after the Original Designs of the Artists.
London: HAMILTON, ADAMS and Co., 32, Paternoster-row, E.C.

Fifteenth Edition, enlarged to 100 pages, post-free 1s.,
HOW TO INVEST. No one should invest either large or small sums without first reading this work. "More valuable than ever."—Vide Public Press. Published by
E. J. BARTLETT, F.R.G.S., 30, Great St. Helen's, London.

FOR FAMILY ARMS (Lincoln's-inn Heraldic Office) send Name and County. Sketch, 3s. 6d.; in colours, 7s. 6d. Arms Painted and Engraved on Seals, Dies, PUGH BROTHERS, Great Turnstile, Lincoln's-inn, W.C.; and 76, Queen Victoria-street, E.C. Prize Medal, Paris, 1878.

WHAT IS YOUR CREST and WHAT IS YOUR MOTTO? Send name and county to CULLETON'S Heraldic Office, Plain Sketch, 3s. 6d.; colours, 7s. The arms of man and wife blended. Crest engraved on seals, rings, books, and steel dies, 5s. 6d. Gold seal, with crest, 20s. Solid Gold Ring, 18-carat, Hall-marked, with crest, 40s. Manual of Heraldry, 850 engravings, 3s. 9d.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

CULLETON'S GUINEA BOX of STATIONERY contains a Ream of the very best Paper and 500 Envelopes, all stamped in the most elegant way with Crest and Monogram, or Address, and Die Sinking of Steel Die included. Sent to any part for P.O. order.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

VISITING CARDS, by CULLETON. Fifty best quality, 2s. 6d., post-free, including the Engraving of Copper-plate. Wedding Cards, 50 each, 50 Embossed Envelopes, with Maiden Name, 13s. 6d.—T. CULLETON, Seal Engraver, 25, Cranbourn-street, St. Martin's-lane, W.C.

CHROMOPHOTOGRAPHY.
(KRAUS' PROCESS.)
The New Art (enabling any person without previous knowledge of either Painting or Drawing) to Colour Photographs on Canvas glasses, in imitation of China and Enamel Painting. Boxes containing every requisite, 30s. and 20s. Particulars post-free. Specimens on application at the Sole Agents, J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, London, W.

NUDA VERITAS.—GREY HAIR restored by this valuable specific to its original shade, in which it grows the natural colour, not grey. Used as a dressing, it causes growth and arrests falling. The most harmless and effectual restorer extant. One trial will convince it has no equal. Price 10s. 6d., of all Chemists and Hairdressers. Testimonials post-free.—R. HOVENDEN and SONS, London.

GOLDEN HAIR.—ROBARE'S AUREOLINE produces the beautiful Golden Colour so much admired. Warranted entirely harmless. Price 5s. 6d., 10s. 6d., of all Perfumers. Wholesale, HOVENDEN and SONS, 5, Great Marlborough-street, W.; and 33 and 35, City-road, E.C.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY for the HAIR. If your hair is turning grey, or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will restore in a few days in every case Grey or White Hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots where the glands are not decayed. "The Mexican Hair Renewer" is sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere, at 3s. 6d. per bottle.

FLORILINE. For the Teeth and Breath. Is the best Liquid Dentifrice in the world; it thoroughly cleanses partially-decayed teeth from all parasites or living "animalculæ," leaving them pearly white, imparting a delightful fragrance to the breath. The Fragrant Floriline removes instantly all odours arising from a foul stomach or tobacco smoke, being partly composed of honey, soda, and extracts of sweet herbs and plants. It is perfectly harmless, and delicious as sherry. Sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere, at 2s. 6d. per Bottle.

JAY'S, Regent-street.

MOURNING.—Messrs. JAY'S Experienced Assistants travel to any part of the kingdom, free of expense to purchasers. They take dresses and millinery with them, besides patterns of materials, all marked in plain figures, and at the same price as if purchased at the Warehouse in Regent-street. Funerals at stated charges conducted in London or country. JAY'S, REGENT-STREET.

EVENING DRESSES, Black Net, Tulle, and Spanish Lace.—Messrs. JAY prepare for the season a variety of black Evening Dresses, which they can confidently recommend both for correctness of fashion and economy in price. Designs and prices postage-free.
JAY'S, Regent-street.

DRESS.—Messrs. JAY respectfully invite their clientèle to the choice Collection of Pattern Costume of the Newest Type of Fashion, which are imported from Paris and Berlin.
JAY'S, Regent-street.

PEAU DE CHAMOIS COSTUMES.—A variet series of COSTUMES, made from Peau de Chamois Satin, are produced weekly during the season. Price 6½ guineas each, including sufficient satin to make a bodice.
JAY'S,
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
REGENT-STREET, W.

FASHION and ECONOMY.
Engravings and Patterns free.
ÆSTHETIC, RECHERCHÉ, and LADYLIKE COSTUMES. The Marvel Guinea Costume, the Rosalind, Olivette, Dudley, and others.
Pompadour, Watteau, Princess, Morning, and Tea Gowns, 12s. 9d. to 3s. 9d.
BAKER and CRISP.

FASHION and ECONOMY.
CLOAKS, JACKETS, ULSTERS.
1000 Newest Dolmans, Mother Hubbard Cloaks, St. Lager Jackets, Jerseys, Jersey Jackets, Lawn Tennis Aprons, Beaded Capes. See Engravings.
BAKER and CRISP, Regent-street.

FASHION and ECONOMY.
RICH SILKS, VELVETS, VELVETEENS.
Patterns free.
Magnificent Black Satin Rhadames Silks, 4s. 6d. to 8s. 6d. yard; 3000 yards Job Lots ditto, 1s. 11½d.; Washing and Pompadour Silks, lowest prices. Patterns free.—198, Regent-street.

FASHION and ECONOMY.
ÆSTHETIC, POMPADOUR, Louis XIII., Queen Anne, Arabesque, Alsatian, and other Costumes, Satteens, and Ginghams, from 8½d. yard. Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP.

FASHION and ECONOMY.
BAKER and CRISP'S FRENCH BEIGES, 8½d.; Ecarté Cloths, 6½d.; Shepherd Checks, 8½d., Foule Cashmeres, Vicunas, and 100 other Fabrics, from 8½d. yard. Also Black Fabrics of every description, from 8d. yard. Patterns free.
198, Regent-street.

PRATT'S LADIES' BELTS
AND ABDOMINAL SUPPORTS
ARE CONFIDENTLY RECOMMENDED AS THE
MOST COMFORTABLE AND EFFICIENT EVER MADE
Apply to the Ladies' Attendant,
J. PRATT,
420, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON, W.

ELECTRICITY IS LIFE.
PULVERMACHER'S "GALVANISM,"
NATURE'S CHIEF RESTORER OF IMPAIRED VITAL ENERGY."
In this Pamphlet the most reliable proofs are given of the vast and wonderful curative powers of Pulvermacher's Patent Galvanic Chain-Bands, Belts, &c., in Rheumatic, Nervous, and Functional Disorders. Sent post-free for three stamps on application to
J. L. PULVERMACHER'S GALVANIC ESTABLISHMENT,
194, Regent-street, London, W.

SULPHOLINE LOTION.—An external Cure for Skin Diseases. There is scarcely any eruption but will yield to SULPHOLINE and fade away in a few days. Brilliancy pimples, redness, blotches, scurf, roughness, vanish as if by magic; while old skin disorders, that have plagued sufferers for years, however deeply rooted, Sulpholine will successfully attack them. It destroys the animalcule which cause these unsightly, irritable affections, and always produces a clear skin. Sulpholine Lotion is sold by Chemists. Bottles, 2s. 9d.

BLAIR'S GOUT PILLS,
THE GREAT
REMEDY FOR GOUT AND RHEUMATISM.
Sold by all Chemists, at 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. per Box.

"I CAN bear testimony to the efficacy of DR. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS in ASTHMA, CONSUMPTION, and PULMONARY COMPLAINTS."—(Signed) J. S. Bowes, M.P.S., 63, Regent-road, Salford. They give instant relief.

THROAT AFFECTIONS and HOARSENESS.—All suffering from Irritation of the Throat and Hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES. These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable Chemists in this country, at 1s. 1½d. per Box. People troubled with a "hacking" cough, a "slight cold," or bronchial affections cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN and SONS, Boston, U.S. European Depôt, 33, Farringdon-road, London.

"FOR THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."
CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE is warranted to cleanse the Blood from all impurities, from whatever cause arising. For Scrofula, Scurvy, Skin and Blood Diseases, its effects are marvellous. In Bottles, 2s. 6d. each, and in cases, containing six times the quantity, 11s. each, of all Chemists. Sent to any address for 30 or 132 stamps, of the Proprietor, F. J. CLARKE, Chemist, Lincoln.

NEW MUSIC.

PATIENCE. An Æsthetic Opera. By W. S. GILBERT and ARTHUR SULLIVAN.
Vocal score .. .. .. .. 5s.
Pianoforte Solo .. .. .. .. 2s. net.
Pianoforte Arrangements by Kuhe, Boyton Smith, Smallwood, &c. Waltz, Lancers, Quadrille, and Polka by Charles D'Albert. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

OLIVETTE. New Comic Opera. Enormous success at the Strand Theatre. Adapted by H. B. Farnie; Music by AUDRAN.
Vocal score .. .. .. .. 8s. net.
Abridged Edition of the Vocal Score, containing the Overture, Songs, &c. .. .. .. .. 4s. „
Pianoforte Solo .. .. .. .. 2s. 6d. „
All the Favourite Airs, arranged for the Violin .. 1s. 6d. „
Lancers, D'Albert .. 2s. net. | Galop, D'Albert .. 2s. net.
Waltz, D'Albert .. 2s. „ | Scottish and Bavarian Waltz, D'Albert .. 2s. „
Quadrille, D'Albert .. 2s. „
Polka, D'Albert .. 2s. „
Boyton Smith's Fantasia .. .. .. 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

A CREOLE LOVE SONG. Words by Theo. Marziais; Music by Mrs. LYNEDOCH MONCRIEFF. Price 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

NEW AND POPULAR SONGS.

WELCOME. Lady ARTHUR HILL. 2s. net.
IN SHADOW. Mrs. RONALDS. 2s. net.
CŒUR DE LION. H. J. STARK. Sung by Mr. Oswald. 2s. net.
AT THE PORTAL. N. FERRI. Sung by Madame Mary Cummings. 2s. net.
WHAT THE FIRELIGHT TOLD. J. L. ROECKEL. 2s. net.
THE CHILDREN IN THE WOOD. ROECKEL. 2s. net.
WHERE THE PURPLE VIOLET GROWS. From "The Turquoise Ring." L. BENSON. 2s. net.
DINNA LEAVE ME. A. M. WAKEFIELD. Composer of "No, Sir." 2s. net.
THOUGHTS AT SUNRISE. Mrs. L. MONCRIEFF. 2s. net.
THE LAST I LOVE. OLIVER CRAMER. 2s. net.
LOVE FOR LOVE. OLIVER CRAMER. 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHARLES D'ALBERT'S NOVELTIES.
PIRATES OF PENZANCE LANCERS, WALTZ, QUADRILLE, POLKA, and GALOP .. each 2s. 6d. net
ADELINA WALTZ. Illustrated with beautiful Portrait of Madame Patti .. .. .. .. 2s. 6d. net
PORTIA WALTZ .. .. .. .. 2s. 6d. net
DRINK, PUPPY, DRINK! POLKA .. .. .. 2s. 6d. net
CONGRESS LANCERS .. .. .. .. 2s. 6d. net
DISTANT SHORE WALTZ .. .. .. .. 2s. 6d. net
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S THREE-YEARS' SYSTEM of HIRE of PIANOFORTES, HARMONIUMS, and AMERICAN ORGANS, by which the Instrument becomes the property of the Hirer at the end of the third year, provided each quarter's hire shall have been regularly paid in advance. Pianofortes, from 2 gs. Harmoniums, from £1 5s.; and American Organs, from £2 10s. a Quarter.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S PIANINOS, from 20 guineas.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S COTTAGES, from 27 guineas.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S GRANDS, from 75 guineas.

CHICKERING PIANOFORTES, from 120 guineas, with American discount.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ALEXANDRE HARMONIUMS, for Church, Schools, or Drawing-Rooms, from 6 to 150 guineas; or, on the Three-Years' System, from £1 5s. per quarter.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S IMPROVED AMERICAN ORGANS, combining Pipes with Reeds, Manufactured by Clough and Warren, Detroit, U.S.A. The immense advantages these instruments possess over the Organs hitherto imported have induced Messrs. Chappell and Co. to undertake the sole Agency of this eminent Manufactory. A large variety on view, from 18 to 250 guineas. Price-Lists on application to CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

CLOUGH and WARREN'S Favourite ORGAN. Compass, five octaves, ten stops, four sets of reeds, two of two and two thirds octaves and two of two and one third octaves, knee swell, elegant carved Canadian walnut case, price 25 guineas. With twelve stops, sub-bass octave coupler, and two knee pedals, 35 guineas. Illustrated Price-List free by post.
Sole Agents, CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

INSTRUMENTS by ALL MAKERS may be HIRED or PURCHASED on the Three-Years' System.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

A LARGE DISCOUNT TO PURCHASERS FOR CASH.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

ERARDS' PIANOS.—Messrs. ERARD, of 18, Great Marlborough-street, London, and 13, Rue de Mail, Paris, Makers to her Majesty and the Prince and Princess of Wales, CAUTION the Public that Pianofortes are being sold bearing the name of "Erard," which are not of their manufacture. For information as to authenticity apply at 18, Great Marlborough-st., where new Pianos can be obtained from 50 guineas.

ERARDS' PIANOS.—COTTAGES, from 50 guineas.
OBLIQUES, from 67 guineas.
GRANDS, from 125 guineas.

"Steinway is to the Pianist what Straduarius is to the Violinist."—Herr Joachim.

THE STEINWAY PIANOFORTES, GRAND AND UPRIGHT.
THE GREATEST PIANOFORTES IN THE WORLD.
The Steinway Pianofortes are the chosen instruments of the educated and wealthy classes in every nation throughout civilisation, and have by far the largest annual sale of any pianofortes in the world.
STEINWAY and SONS,
STEINWAY HALL,
LOWER SEYMOUR-STREET, PORTMAN-SQUARE, W.
(And at Steinway Hall, New York.)

BROADWOOD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System, from £3 12s. 6d. per Quarter.

COLLARD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System; in Black and Gold Cases, at £4 14s. 6d. to £5 5s., £6 6s., £7 7s., and in Special Early English Ebonised Case, £8 8s. per Quarter.

ERARD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System, from £5 5s. per Quarter.

CRAMER'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on their Three-Years' system, from £1 11s. 6d. per Quarter. Detailed Lists post-free on application to 207, Regent-street, W.; Bond-street, W.; Moorgate-street, E.C.; and naw, High-street, Notting-hill.

£20 SCHOOL-ROOM PIANO (Co-operative price for cash). Seven octaves—strong, sound, and substantial. Adapted for hard practice. Carefully packed free, and sent to any part. Drawings gratis.
THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street.

£35.—There is nothing in London—nor, in fact, in all England—to be compared to the elegantly carved DRAWING-ROOM TRICHORD COTTAGE PIANOFORTE, with Cabriole Truss Legs, which is sold for £35 by THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, Portman-sq.

NEW MUSIC.

LA MASCOTTE. Opéra Comique by AUDRAN, Composer of "Olivette." Performed in Paris with the greatest possible success.
THE COMPLETE OPERA, with French Words, price 12s.
THE COMPLETE OPERA, with English Words (in the press).
THE COMPLETE OPERA for Piano Solo, 2s. 6d.
Quadrilles, Waltzes, and other Arrangements in hand.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

RUBINSTEIN'S SHILLING PIANOFORTE ALBUMS in the MUSICAL CABINET.
203, 210, 213. RUBINSTEIN'S THREE ALBUMS. 20 Pieces.
204. RUBINSTEIN'S SIX STUDIES.
207. RUBINSTEIN'S SIX PRELUDES.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

Price 2s. 6d. each, paper; 4s., cloth, gilt edges.
RUBINSTEIN'S 50 SONGS.
RUBINSTEIN'S 18 VOCAL DUETS.
With German and English Words.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

A BASKET OF LOVES. By the Composer of "A Summer Shower." Sung everywhere by Mrs. Osgood. Price 2s.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

THE VIKINGS' SONG. By the Composer of "The Midshipmite." Sung with uninterrupted success by Signor Foli. Price 2s.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

ALL IN ALL. By F. H. COWEN. Sung by Mr. Maas four times at the Ballad Concerts, and encored on each occasion. Price 2s.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

THE BOATSWAIN'S STORY. By MOLLOY. Sung by Mr. Santley. Sixth Thousand. Price 2s.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

THE BEND OF THE RIVER. By BLUMENTHAL. Sung by Madame Marie Rose and Miss Clara Samuell. Tenth Thousand. Price 2s.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

LISTENING ANGELS. By F. H. COWEN. Sung by Madame Antoinette Sterling. Price 2s.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

THE CHILDREN OF THE CITY. By STEPHEN ADAMS. The Words by Weatherly. Sung by Madame Patey at the Ballad Concerts. Price 2s.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

ROCHESTER BELLS. New Ballad by the Composer of "The Three Sailor Boys," and sung by him with the greatest success. Price 2s.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

JOSEPH WILLIAMS'S LIST.
THE LATEST SUCCESS.
BILLEE TAYLOR. Comic Opera. By H. P. STEPHENS and E. SOLOMON.
VOCAL SCORE .. .. .. .. 6s. net.
.. SONGS.
ALL ON ACCOUNT OF ELIZA (Third Edition). 2s. net.
SELF-MADE KNIGHT (Second Edition). 2s. net.
THE VIRTUOUS GARDENER. 2s. net.
FANTASIA FOR PIANO. CH. TOURVILLE. 1s. 6d. net.

PIANO SCORE (Complete). 2s. 6d. net. Now ready.
*QUADRILLES. By CHARLES COOTE. 2s. net.
*LANCERS. By ARTHUR GRENVILLE. 2s. net.
*WALTZES. By CHARLES GODFREY. 2s. net.
DANCE MUSIC, BILLEE TAYLOR, ready. Orchestra, 2s.; Septet, 1s. 6d.
* Beautifully Illustrated.

HENRY FARMER'S PIANOFORTE TUTOR, considerably Enlarged and Fingered by the Author. 180th Edition. 4s.
"Decidedly the best and most useful instruction book we have seen."—Musical Review.

THE LOVE OF OLD. ROECKEL'S charming New Song will be sung by Miss Damian at her forthcoming engagements. Post-free, 24 stamps.

PIANO DUETS.
C. REINECKE. Three Sonatas, Op. 129. Price 2s. each, net.

PIANO SOLOS.
W. KUHE. NEW SACRED TRANSCRIPTIONS.
Eli (Costa), Naaman (Costa).
TH. LACK. NEW PIECES.
Mireille, La Meuette, Bolero. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
H. ROUBIER. NEW PIECES.
Joyeuse Rentrée, Fête à Trianon, Parfait Bonheur. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
FRANZ HITZ. NEW PIECES.
Carrisage (Caprice), Latin Rose, Le Regiment qui passe. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
JOYFUL MOMENTS. Ten Easy Pieces on Popular Subjects. Arranged by CH. TOURVILLE. Price 1s. each net.
OUR FAVOURITES. Ten Moderately Easy Pieces on Popular Subjects. Arranged by CH. TOURVILLE. Price 1s. 3d. each net.

THE PROGRESSIVE MUSIC SCHOOL,
Carefully Edited, Fingered, and Corrected from the Original Manuscripts by J. LEYBACH. First Series (very easy), 15 Numbers. Numbers 1 to 14, price 1s. 3d. each net. Number 15, price 1s. 6d. net.

VIOLIN AND PIANO DUETS.
S. JACOBY. Six Popular Airs (Easy). Price 1s. each net.
CH. TOURVILLE. Twelve Favourite Subjects (Moderate). Price 1s. 6d. each net.

H. FARMER. Popular Violin Solos (Brilliant), with Piano Accompaniment. Nine Numbers. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, Berners-street, W.; and 123, Cheapside, E.C.

SUNG BY ARTHUR ROBERTS.
THE GOOD YOUNG MAN WHO DIED.
An Æsthetic Lay. Words by H. P. Stephens; Music by E. SOLOMON. "He has left this world for a brighter sphere. There's a neat little headstone o'er him. Telling how much we held him dear. And how deeply we deplore him: But that cannot tell how we miss his ways, Our friend, philosopher, and guide; For years to come we shall sing in praise Of the good young man who died." Post-free for 24 stamps.—London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, Berners-street; and 123, Cheapside.

THE MUSICAL TIMES for JUNE contains Clement Marot and the Huguenot Psalter.—The Great Composers: Berlioz—Mr. Pepys the Musician, by F. Hueffer.—Why the Greeks made Music Subservient to Harmony.—"Stella," Lyrical Drama by Auteri-Manzocchi.—The Operas—Richter and Crystal Palace Concerts—Mr. C. Halle's Recitals—Festival Services at St. Paul's, Westminster Abbey, &c.—Wagner's "Nibelungen" at Berlin—Occasional Notes, Foreign and Country News, Reviews, Correspondence, &c. Price 3d.; post-free, 4d.; annual subscription, 4s., including postage.

THE MUSICAL TIMES for JUNE contains "Cradle Song," Part-Song, by OLIVER KING. Price, separately, 1½d.

NOVELLO'S ORIGINAL OCTAVO EDITION OF OPERAS. Edited and Corrected according to the Original Scores by NATALIA MACFARREN and BERTHOLD TOURS. The English Translations by Natalia Macfarren and the Rev. J. Troutbeck, M.A., &c.

| | s. d. | | s. d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Fra Diavolo .. .. .. | 3 6 | Die Zauberflöte .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Masaniello .. .. .. | 3 6 | Il Seraglio .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Fidelio .. .. .. | 3 6 | Il Barbiere .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Norma .. .. .. | 3 6 | Guillaume Tell .. .. .. | 5 0 |
| La Sonnambula .. .. .. | 3 6 | Il Matrimonio .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| I Puritani .. .. .. | 3 6 | Rigoletto .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Lucia di Lammermoor .. .. .. | 3 6 | La Traviata .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Lucrezia Borgia .. .. .. | 3 6 | Il Trovatore .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| La Figlia del Reggimento .. .. .. | 3 6 | Tannhäuser .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Martha .. .. .. | 3 6 | Lohengrin .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Ighigenia in Aulis .. .. .. | 3 6 | Flying Dutchman .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Ighigenia in Tauris .. .. .. | 3 6 | Oberon .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Il Ratto du Nord .. .. .. | 5 0 | Der Freischütz .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Don Giovanni .. .. .. | 3 6 | Preciosa .. .. .. | 1 6 |
| Le Nozze di Figaro .. .. .. | 3 6 | (To be continued.) | |

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners-street, W., and 80 and 81, Queen-street, E.C.

THREE NEW SONGS. By Lord HENRY SOMERSET. ONE MORE (in F and D), 2s.; DAWN, NOON, AND NIGHT (in F), 2s. 6d.; GOOD-BYE (in G minor and E minor); the Words by Major G. J. Whyte-Melville, 2s. 6d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER, and Co.

NEW MUSIC.

WHEN ALL THE WORLD IS YOUNG. New Song. By A. J. CALDICOTT. Post-free for 18 stamps. The music is admirably adapted to Charles Kingsley's fine poem.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

O, SANTA MELODIA. A Transcription of Donizetti's beautiful theme by BRINLEY RICHARDS. Post-free for 18 stamps. "The vast amount of experience gained by Mr. Richards stands him in good stead in the construction of the piece before us."—Orchestra.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

MAY THY PATH BE STREWN WITH ROSES. New Song. By Miss PHILP. The Music is as charming as the Poetry. Post-free for 18 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

NEW SONG, THE BORDERER'S CHALLENGE. By HUMPHREY J. STARK. A capital song for a baritone. Post-free for 18 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

VALLEY ECHOES. Six elegant Morceaux for the Pianoforte. Composed by WILLIAM SMALLWOOD. Effectively and appropriately illustrated.

| | |
|---|---|
| 1. Valley of the Rhine. | 4. Ilhrium. |
| 2. The Tyrol. | 5. Festiniop. |
| 3. Bonna, Naples. | 6. California. |

2s. each; post-free at half price in stamps.
"There is no doubt that the series will be much sought after."—Orchestra.
"They are written in a most happy style, and cannot fail to command a rapid sale."—Birmingham Mail.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

AGAIN TO MEET. Song. By E. PIERACCINI. In two keys, C and E flat. Post-free for 18 stamps each. "A song of human love, lasting to all eternity." "The accompaniment is one of the most charming that we ever remember to have played."—Girls' Own Paper.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

THEO. MARZIALS' New Song, BUTTERCUP QUEEN. Written by Mrs. W. K. Clifford. "Will be particularly appreciated by those who are familiar with the compositions made popular by "Claribel."—Land and Water. "The words are frail, quaint, and sunny, allied to most suitable music."—Life.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

THE BUGLER. In D, F, and G. By THEO. MARZIALS. Words by F. E. Weatherly. This very successful song has now reached the Tenth Edition.

THE CHALLENGE. For Bass and Baritone. By HUMPHREY J. STARK. Words by E. Oxenford. A bold and vigorous composition, and received always by great applause and repeated encores.

THE ROYAL EXCHANGE. ODOARDO BARRI. "A brilliant and effective song for vocalists in which charming music is united to a quaint little story."—Review.

WEIT VON DIR (Far from Thee). Waltz. By OSCAR SEYDEL. "When she went back to the ball-room, Captain Winstanley followed her, and claimed his waltz. The band was just striking up the latest German melody, 'Weit von Dir,' a strain of drawing tenderness."—Vide Miss Braddon's "Vixen." Each of the above 2s. net.
B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster-row.

MADAME CHRISTINE NILSSON'S NEW SONG.
A SONG OF THE NORTH. By LADY LINDSAY (of Balcarras). Price 2s. net.
PATEY and WILLIS, Publishers, 39, Great Marlborough-street, W.

Just published,
L'INSTANT SUPRÊME VALSE. By the Hon. FITZROY HAY. Post-free, 24 stamps.
REID BROTHERS, 139, Oxford-street, London, W.

CHARLES HALLÉ'S PRACTICAL PIANOFORTE SCHOOL.
Section I.—No. 1. PIANOFORTE TUTOR.
Catalogue and all Particulars may be had from
FORSYTH BROTHERS, London, 272a, Regent-circus, Oxford-street; Manchester, Cross-street and South King-street; and all Musicsellers.

SELF-ACTING ORCHESTRAL CABINET, with Twenty Barrels, playing the choicest Overtures, Symphonies, Waltzes, &c. Original cost, between £500 and £600. Cash price, about one half. Particulars may be had of KEITH, PROWSE, and CO., 48, Cheapside, London, E.C.

STRINGS, from Rome, for the Harp, Violin, Violoncello, Guitar; also Zither Strings from Germany. The finest covered Strings for all Instruments. KEITH, PROWSE, and CO., City Royal Musical Repository, 48, Cheapside.

THEATRES.—Telephonic Communication. Subscribers to the Telephone Company can now have their orders for TICKETS executed instantly by Telephoning to KEITH, PROWSE, and CO., 48, Cheapside. Telephone No. 1,21.

ZITHERS.—KEITH, PROWSE, and CO. have a large selection at all prices, from 1 to 20 guineas. Strings, Rings, &c., and Music. A Professor gives Instruction on the Zither at 48, Cheapside, London, E.C.

PIANOFORTES for HIRE or for SALE, from 25 guineas upwards.—JOHN BROADWOOD and SONS, 33, Great Pulteney-street, Golden-square, W. Manufactory, 65, Horseferry-road, Westminster, W.

PLEYEL WOLFF and CO.'S PIANOS. Every description of these celebrated Instruments for SALE or HIRE. Sole Agency, 170, New Bond-street, W.

PARIS. GRAND HOTEL. PARIS.
12—BOULEVARD DES CAPUCINES—12.
Most carefully reorganised under New Management. Seven Hundred Rooms and Salons, from 5 francs.
Reduction in prices: Luncheons, from Eleven to One o'Clock, 5 francs, inclusive wine, coffee, and cognac.
Dinners, with Orchestra, at Half-past Six o'Clock, 8 francs, inclusive wine.
Café and Restaurant opening into the Court of Honour.
Café, Divan, Billiards, Smoking-Room, Newspapers of all countries, Post and Telegraph Offices. Booking to the Theatres, Baths, Lift.
For a prolonged sojourn, reduced terms, as per agreement.

SUN FIRE-OFFICE, Threadneedle-street, E.C.; Charing-cross, S.W.; Oxford-street (corner of Vere-street), W.
Established 171 years.
Home and Foreign Insurances effected.
Sum insured in 1880, £262,765,653.
FRANCIS B. RELTON, Secretary.

BANK OF NEW ZEALAND
(Incorporated by Act of General Assembly, July 29, 1861).
Bankers to the New Zealand Government.
Capital subscribed and paid up, £1,000,000.
Reserve Fund, £550,000.
Head Office—Auckland.

BRANCHES AND AGENCIES.
In Australia—Melbourne, Sydney, and Newcastle.
In Fiji—Levuka.
In New Zealand—Auckland, Blenheim, Christchurch, Dunedin, Invercargill, Jaspier, Nelson, New Plymouth, Picton, Wellington, and Ateighty-two other towns and places throughout the Colony.
The Bank grants Drafts on all their Branches and Agencies, and transacts every description of banking business connected with New Zealand, Australia, and Fiji on the most favourable terms.
The London Office RECEIVES FIXED DEPOSITS of £50 and upwards, rates and particulars of which can be ascertained on application. F. LUSHINGTON, Managing Director.
No. 1, Queen Victoria-street, Mansion House, E.C.

SHIPWRECKED FISHERMEN and MARINERS' ROYAL BENEVOLENT SOCIETY.
Patron—Her Majesty the Queen.
The one NATIONAL AID SOCIETY which provides for the Shipwrecked Fisherman and Mariner; relieves the Widows, Orphans, and Aged Parents of all the Maritime Classes; assists to make good the loss of Boats, Clothes, &c.; and specially helps seafaring men and their families providently to help themselves.
Relieved last year, 13,134; and since formation of Society, 310,931.
The FORTY-SECOND ANNUAL MEETING will be held at the Cannon-street Hotel, London, on WEDNESDAY, JUNE 1, 1881, at Three o'clock—the President, His Grace the DUKE OF MARLBOROUGH, K.G., in the Chair.
All interested in the welfare of Fishermen and Sailors are earnestly invited to attend.
W. R. BUDE, Secretary.
Central Office, Hibernia Chambers, London Bridge, S.E.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—CARPETS.—NOW SELLING, TWO MANUFACTURERS' STOCKS, purchased for Cash under very advantageous circumstances. The Stocks comprise Brussels of the best quality and newest designs; Tapestry, Brussels, Kidderminster, and every description of Carpeting. All New Goods and this Year's Spring Patterns. Quotations would convey no adequate idea of their real cheapness. Q. and Co. therefore respectfully solicit an early visit of inspection.—OETZMANN and CO.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.
SUBSTANTIAL ARTISTIC FURNITURE (Regd.)
OETZMANN & CO.,
HAMPSTEAD-ROAD,
NEAR TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.—OETZMANN and CO., 67, 68, 71, 72, 77 and 79, HAMPSTEAD-ROAD, near Tottenham-court-road, London. CARPETS, Furniture, Bedding, Drapery, Furnishing Ironmongery, China, Glass, Paper Hangings, Pictures, Bronzes, Clocks, Pianos, &c., and every other requisite for completely furnishing a house throughout. Lowest prices consistent with guaranteed quality.
OETZMANN and CO.

DRAWING-ROOM SUITES. OETZMANN and CO.—Elegant Drawing-Room Suite, richly-carved Italian Walnut Wood; upholstered very soft and comfortable, in best Rep or Tapestry, consisting of a Couch, two Easy-Chairs, and six Chairs, price 15 guineas; ditto, very handsome design, upholstered in rich silk Tapestry, made and finished in superior style, 20 guineas; ditto, very elegant design, richly upholstered in finest Satin, and finished in the best possible manner, 33 guineas. Also a variety of other Drawing-Room Suites, in Black and Gold, Early English, and other designs.
OETZMANN and CO.

CARPET DEPARTMENT.—Stout Tapestry Brussels Carpet, 1s. 3d.; handsome pattern ditto, from 1s. 8d. to 2s. 6d. per yard. Good Brussels, new designs, from 2s. 6d. upwards. Good Axminster, from 4s. 9d. per yard. Good Wilton, super quality, from 5s. 11d. per yard. Rich prices are much below value. Kidderminster Carpet, all wool, 1s. 11d. per yard. Patent Rock-Dye Felt Carpeting, handsome designs, double-width, 1s. 9d. per yard. Excellent Stair Carpet, from 6d. per yard; all-wool ditto, 1s. per yard.—OETZMANN and CO.

TIME, TROUBLE, and EXPENSE in HOUSE-HUNTING SAVED.—OETZMANN and CO. have always on their Registry Private Residences, Villas, and Mansions in London and Suburbs, and all parts of the Country. Particulars can be had free, on personal application, or by letter.—OETZMANN and CO.

HANDSOME BED-FURNITURES in Cretonne, Chints, Damask, Reps, and Tapestry, with Palmettes, Valances, &c., in various elegant designs, specially adapted to the present taste in furnishing. Prices from 35s. to 5 guineas.—OETZMANN and CO.

FOR QUALITY and CHEAPNESS nothing can compare with OETZMANN and CO.'s new design "Queen Anne" Fenders, handsome and artistic, bronzed, No. 6d.; and their "Early English" Coal Vase, illiant with brass mountings, handscoop, and strong loose lining, complete, 12s. 9d. An inspection solicited, or Coloured Lithographs sent, post-free, on application.—OETZMANN and CO.

POSTAL ORDER DEPARTMENT. OETZMANN and CO.—Orders sent per post, whether large or small, receive prompt and careful attention. Those residing at a distance, or any to whom a personal visit would be inconvenient, desirous of leaving the selection to the firm, may rely upon a faithful attention to their wishes and interests in the selection. This department is personally superised by a member of the firm, and O. and Co. continually receive numerous letters expressing the greatest satisfaction with the execution of orders so entrusted. For further particulars please see page 370 in Catalogue, sent free on application.—OETZMANN and CO.

DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE, post-free.
OETZMANN & CO.,
HAMPSTEAD-ROAD.

AN OLD RECOMMENDATION.
A LETTER from MRS. THRALE.
(Reprinted by Messrs. MORTLOCK, Oxford-street.)
1880.

Bath,
Thursday, 15th Oct., 1868.
To Sir James Fellowes.
My dear Sir James Fellowes, like his own Western sun, delights to warm and gild the evening of a stormy day; but I have no commissions that I can remember. Divic Robinson has sent the wine and I have sent him the money, so that's all over. When you feel your own purse too heavy, take it to MORTLOCKS', in OXFORD-STREET, and carry Lady Fellowes a beautiful specimen of South Wales China, and tell him I am panting for my ice-pails and large dishes to use this day so mnight.
Yours and all your family's obliged and faithful
H. L. PIOZZI.

GARDNER'S DINNER and TABLE GLASS SERVICES. Free, graceful, and original designs, of unequalled value. Dinner Services, from 21s. Table Glass Services, of the best Crystal, for twelve persons, complete, the Cash discount, 15 per cent. Coloured Photographic Sheets and Illustrated Glass Catalogues post-free.
453 and 454, West Strand, Charing-cross.

ELKINGTON and CO.,
MANUFACTURING SILVERSMITHS.
PATENTEES OF THE ELECTRO-PLATE.

ELKINGTON and CO.
CAUTION PURCHASERS AGAINST CHEAP AND INFERIOR IMITATIONS.
Illustrated Catalogues, post-free.
ELKINGTON and CO., 22, Regent-st.; or 42, Moorgate-st., City.

DIAMONDS. Mr. STREETER,
SAPPHIRES. 18, New Bond-street, W.
CATS'-EYES. INTRODUCER of 18-CARAT GOLD JEWELLERY and ENGLISH LEVER WATCHES, (MACHINE-MADE)
OPALS.
EMERALDS. BRANCH ESTABLISHMENT, COLOMBO, CEYLON.

DENT'S WATCHES, CLOCKS, and CHRONOMETERS.—Illustrated Catalogue sent free.—Apply to 61, Strand, or 34, Royal Exchange, London.

WALKER'S CRYSTAL CASE WATCHES are superseding all others. Prize Medals—London, 1862; Paris, 1867. Silver Watches, from £4 4s.; Gold, from £6 6s. Price-Lists sent free.—77, Cornhill; 220, Regent-street; and 76, Strand.

THE FINEST WATCHES MADE. SEWILL'S KEYLESS WATCHES, Prize Medals, London, Paris, and Philadelphia, Damp and Dust-proof, Jewelled in four holes, adjusted and compensated for all climates, £10 10s., £14 14s., and £25; Ladies', £7 7s., £10 10s., and £18 10s.; in silver cases, for Ladies or Gentlemen, £5 5s., £6 6s., and £8 8s. Forwarded on receipt of remittance.—J. Sewill, 20, Cornhill, London; and 51, South Castle-street, Liverpool.

JEWEL ROBBERIES PREVENTED. J. TANN'S RELIANCE SAFES have never failed to resist the attempts of the most determined burglars. Fire-resisting Safes, £5 5s. Lists free.—11, Newgate-street, E.C.

FOR SOUTH AFRICA.—How to get rid of your left-off clothes, jewels, furniture, antique lace, old gold teeth placed, &c. Why send them to the most respectable purchasers, who pay you ready money let-re taking them away.—Mr. and Mrs. PHILLIPS, Old Curiosity Shop, 31, Thayer-street, Manchester-square, London, W.

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE ST. LEIGHTON, 198, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY, MAY 28, 1881.

PEOPLE I HAVE MET.

BY THE AUTHOR OF "THAT ARTFUL VICAR."

THE CURATE.

I was travelling from London to Brighton; my sole companion in the car was a young gentleman who could at once be recognised as a Ritualist, a Priest, and a member of the "E. C. W.," or some other equally edifying society. He wore a crucifix, suspended from his watch-chain, and his attire consisted of a black suit, which would have sent Brummel into a fit—so long and queerly cut was the coat, so high the waistcoat. In the latter there was no room left for shirt-front, or even for white tie. Honi soit qui mal y pense. The dog-collar which rose above the black cloth was of spotless purity, and the grey gloves which the young ecclesiastic allowed himself—his only deviation from strict black and white—seemed to have been purchased of Jouvin that very morning, so well did they fit and so unclouded was their hue.

The cloth, too, of that hopelessly-made coat was of the finest, and I soon remarked that my companion's boots were patent-leathers. The crucifix was of gold, suspended from the bar of a gold chain of solid and artistic workmanship.

He looked so odd a fish that as soon as we were off I began to think how I could manage to get into conversation with him: but it was he who began. "Do you object to smoking, Sir?"—"Not at all." His was the question, mine the (untruthful) reply. He had already produced a cigar-case in russian leather, with a monogram in gold letters, surmounted by a coronet.

Though I don't like tobacco, I must acknowledge that rarely did a cigar breathe less unfragrant odours than that which was being smoked by the Rev. George Wildair, for such was his name. In fact, everything about his outward appearance and adjuncts—save the cut of the coat, but then he was a parson—spoke the prosperous English gentleman of the last quarter of our century, with a well-filled purse and an empty head.

We were soon fast friends of fifteen minutes' standing, and I learnt all about him. George Wildair was fifth son of a Norfolk Baronet, of limited means and a large family. They were also Counts of the kingdom of Portugal—hence the coronet on the cigar-case. I fancy a former Wildair had earned the gratitude of Dom Pedro XXIV. by consenting to espouse one of that Monarch's wards: nor had his Majesty proved ungrateful.

People who belong to the recognised titular nobility of two countries have generally a good deal to say for themselves. So, naturally, the Wildairs were intensely proud of their honours, especially the Continental: and George had inherited from his Catholic great-grandmother a tendency to the Romish view of things in general. At the same time, as he grew up from being a pretty boy to be a handsome young man, with curling hair and a silky moustache, he became more and more convinced that it could be no true Church which forbade any of its sons to enter upon the holy estate of matrimony. On all other points George agreed with Rome. The pomp of her ceremonial worship appealed at once to the spiritual and sensual elements, which were about equally mingled in his nature. The Ave Maris Stella touched his heart, which was tender and not altogether wanting in lofty impulses; the lighted candles on the altar pleased his somewhat childish fancy; while the perfume of the incense was grateful to his nostrils.

"Do you object to smoking, Sir?"

"Even Mrs. Goodhart, the Vicar's wife, says with a sigh to her thirty-year old daughter, Amy, 'I've no patience with Mr. Wildair; he is such a muff.' And Amy sighs too."

Meanwhile he had taken things easily at Cambridge, had run £800 into debt, and had come out seventeenth Junior Optime in the Tripos. "He had never had a taste for mathematics," he explained, which meant that he had never taken the trouble to learn them. Still he did know something of Shakspeare and Scott, and even of Dante (through Cary's version); nor had his debts been utterly ignoble—the bookseller's bill amounting to £150 of the whole sum. George's worst faults were that he hated trouble, work, cold mutton, dingy rooms, composite candles—in short, that, to be a happy as well as useful member of society, he required a comfortable income. And this he had not. Sir Wilful Wildair, having in his youth committed every sin except those that the law punishes, and having fooled away much of the property not strictly entailed, was doing his best to amend by an old age of thrift and strict severity in all dealings with his own family. While George was at Cambridge he received an allowance of £200 a year; when named curate at £100 a year, the parental allowance to him was reduced by that sum. Had not a kindly aunt intervened, it is difficult to conjecture what would have happened to George, who had no idea of denying himself anything. Probably he would have gone to the bad in one of the usual ways. Lady Rachel Macbairn helped him for a year or two; then died, leaving her nephew an annuity of £500—just enough to enable George to live comfortably as a bachelor. It was an unfortunate bequest—too much for mischief, and too little (in his hands) for good.

Unless another aunt leaves him more, I fear George will scarcely conquer Fortune. Still, he manages to lead an outwardly respectable life, has paid most of his College ticks, and is a favourite of the Vicar under whom he serves. High Church ladies, too, approve of him, though not so much as might be fancied. George is weak; and women soon discover that failing, which is one that they rarely pass over. Even Mrs. Goodhart, the Vicar's wife, says with a sigh to her thirty-year old daughter, Amy, "I've no patience with Mr. Wildair; he is such a muff." And Amy sighs too.

In truth, the man's conscience—perhaps but a fitful, hysteric thing at best—torments him for his backslidings. It is not strong enough to prevent him from muddling away his life; but it is sufficiently restless to make him suffer for doing so. At times, therefore, it will so goad him that he may be seen buckling to his parish work and doing something like his duty for a brief season. He will then walk the rounds all day with high-souled Frank Strongitharm, his fellow-worker in the same vineyard; or seek to do good unostentatiously with the Reverend Septimus Godwin, their colleague in a neighbouring district. He will attend to the Sunday schools and hear flocks of poor children, not too quick-witted, their catechism, in a patient spirit; or he will carry the last and greatest consolation of all to the sick and dying in miserable, overcrowded alleys, and in fever hospitals. But these spasms of benevolence and good works never last long; and really Mr. Wildair's most congenial element can only be found at the tea-tables of select companies of spinsters on the wane, who regard him as an oracle on vestments.

There are minutes, though they are minutes only, when George Wildair rises to the full stature with which the celestial powers endowed him. He does not practise what he preaches, and yet he does believe what he professes. As he reads the Communion Service, you understand that the man's speech quivers with emotion, that he is (for the few minutes) a true priest, ministering in the Holy of Holies. He will argue earnestly, too, with unbelievers; and at one time men who had heard him telling stories more witty than wise, at hours commonly devoted to rest, were wont to chaff George Wildair, and playfully address him as "you old humbug"—words which would make him sulky in company, and melancholy when he thought over them alone. Now, no one chaffs him to his face. He is simply accepted by the society in which he moves as a new example of an old type—Dick Steele in a cassock. Men rather like him, for he is a pleasant fellow, and becomes gentler tempered every year. They know, too, that if he ever had ten pounds to spare, he would willingly lend five to the first comer with a tale of distress. Women are kind to him, with that most cruel of kindness which leaves nothing to hope. And as he can hope nothing from himself, nor from the faith which it is too hard to him to exercise in its essential points of self-denial and active exertion, some find it difficult to understand why George Wildair was created. Not for his own happiness; not for the help of others. For what, then? Possibly to give Amy Goodhart a chance of doing the noblest work that can fall to a woman's lot. Nor, if Amy is wise, will she shrink from the task, difficult as it is. George is grown very humble now, and dreams no longer of young heiresses or other rare birds likest to black swans. He would make a docile husband under an absolute government; and it is said that ladies love to rule their household with a firm hand.

OUT WITH THE YEOMANRY.

The organisation of this respectable branch of the auxiliary military forces has occasionally been criticised, with a view to the improvement and consolidation of the system. But it is generally acknowledged that the class of men from whom it is raised are inferior to none of our citizen soldiery in personal qualities, and that they could render valuable service in the remotely improbable case of a foreign invasion of our country. In many of the English shires, their annual turn-out for field exercise and practical instruction, under the command of officers who are not the least popular and useful of country gentlemen, is an occasion of much local interest. The lively Sketches that fill one of our pages this week represent various incidents of the march, the muster, and the field manœuvres, which are characteristic of this feature in provincial society. The Yeomanry Cavalry, as well as the Infantry Militia, are distributed between the several Military Divisions of the United Kingdom; the Berks Yeomanry, for instance, which has its head-quarters at Hungerford, being attached to the Aldershott Division, where it is associated with six regiments of the Line and three batteries of the Royal Artillery, and with a company of the Royal Engineers. In like manner, the Middlesex Yeomanry, who muster at Uxbridge, form part of the Third Division, at Dorking; while the West Kent Yeomanry belong to the Gravesend Military Division. They would immediately find their allotted place in case of need for the mobilisation of the forces at home, each Division under the command of its own General, with a complete and efficient Staff; and we may feel quite sure that, whenever the threatened "Battle of Dorking" is to be fought in good earnest, the Yeomanry Cavalry will be ready to do their duty, as well as any of the Volunteer Rifle Corps.

Mr. Serjeant Simon, M.P., on Sunday distributed the prizes gained by the successful students attending the Jewish Schools at Stepney-green.

PEEL, ISLE OF MAN.

On the west coast of the Isle of Man, within sight of the mountains of Ireland, is the little fishery town of Peel, which has a population of less than four thousand. They live by herrings, for the capture of which, as was stated in a former notice, two hundred first-class boats, manned by sixteen hundred men and boys, are employed in Peel Bay every season, besides many from other Manx, Welsh, Cornish, and Irish ports. The town, and all the buildings in this neighbourhood, are of a picturesque material, the Old Red Sandstone, a rock which abounds in this district. On a small rocky islet, named after St. Patrick, separated from the shore by a narrow creek, but which is crossed by a solid causeway, forming a breakwater for Peel harbour, stand the extensive ruins of Peel Castle, shown in one of our Artist's Sketches. Within the Castle precincts, which occupy about five acres, are the remains of St. German's Cathedral, which also find place among our Illustrations.

This ancient Cathedral church was dedicated to St. German, first Bishop of Man, a disciple and friend of St. Patrick, the Celtic Apostle of Ireland. It was rebuilt in 1245 by Bishop Simon, who was buried here, as were the succeeding Bishops until 1663. The edifice was not very large, nor of remarkably fine architecture, but this is what might be expected from the comparative poverty of the See. Its shape is cruciform, 110 ft. long, by 70 ft. wide at the transepts, with a tower 68 ft. high, and a belfry above; the roof has long been gone. The small crypt is like a vaulted dungeon, and was, in fact, used as a prison, not only by the ecclesiastical authorities, but likewise by the Governors of the Isle of Man. Thomas, Earl of Warwick, for rebellion against King Richard II., was confined here in 1397; and, in 1446, Eleanor Cobham, Duchess of Gloucester, wife to Duke Humphrey, who was uncle of King Henry VI., and Lord Protector during the minority of his nephew. Dame Eleanor was accused, with one of the Duke's chaplains and the famous witch, Margery Jourdain, of practising sorcery to destroy the life of the young King. Shakspeare introduces this lady, in the "Second Part of King Henry VI.," with her accomplices, Hume, Bolingbroke, Southwell, and the aforesaid Margery, busy at their infernal machinations. She was convicted of the supposed crime, and was, after three days' penance, delivered to the custody of Sir John Stanley in the Isle of Man for imprisonment during the rest of her life, which lasted fourteen years.

Besides St. German's Cathedral, this small islet of Peel contains an Irish Round Tower, and the remains of an extremely ancient chapel, said to have been erected here by St. Patrick himself in the fifth century.

The Castle was built, apparently, in the early part of the fifteenth century, and was finished by Thomas Stanley, first Earl of Derby, in the reign of Henry VII. An embattled wall, 4 ft. thick, with several towers, incloses nearly the whole space of the islet; but it cannot have been a place of great strength, as it is commanded by the neighbouring hill. Sir Walter Scott's romantic story, "Peveril of the Peak," will have made this place interesting to many readers of fiction. Fenella's tower, and the exact part of the Castle walls from which she escaped by a ladder to join the hero of the story, may be identified by the visitor's fancy.

Our Artist's Sketches further include some of the Peel fishing-boats, and portraits of the men and women concerned in that occupation, which yields an average profit of £70,000 yearly to the people of this town.

MOZAMBIQUE AND MADAGASCAR.

We are indebted to Mr. J. N. Stone, Staff-Surgeon R.N., for several sketches of scenes and figures observed during the visit of H.M.S. Ruby, corvette, under the command of Captain C. E. Foot, to the coast of the Mozambique Channel and to the Island of Madagascar, in October last year. Captain Foot, with a party of officers and seamen of the Ruby, landed at Morondova, on the south-western shore of the island, and went up to Mohabo, a town eighty miles inland, the capital of the province of Menabe, to visit the Hova Governor of that province. The Hovas are the ruling nation of Madagascar, and the Sakalave are a subject race, inhabiting the western districts.

The central figure of our three Illustrations is that of an important Hova official, the "Beach Governor" at Morondova. He wore a very tall opera hat, a stiffly starched shirt, with its tails standing out over the trousers, and white linen scarf over the left shoulder. This personage may be taken as a type of the comparatively civilised Hova, one of the governing race, who affects a European tone. The other two are Sakalaves, members of the subject race. They are constables or policemen told off by the chiefs to attend white traders, to protect their goods and establishments. One of them shows a convenient method of carrying the flint musket and assegai, the one weapon balancing the other over the shoulder. There was another member of the force whose sole garment was a sort of plaid kilt. Their hair is made up into curious tufts.

The other Illustration shows the fort of St. Sebastian at Mozambique, an important Portuguese stronghold, about two miles off the East African coast in the Mozambique Channel. The town of that name is built on a small island of coral formation, and the population is about 7000. The fort is at one extremity: it was built in 1508, and, though showing signs of age, is still serviceable, and is garrisoned by about 250 troops. The guns are all old and honeycombed; and inside the fort are to be seen piles of stone shot, symmetrically cut. There are a couple of interesting old brass mortars. This place is now used as a penal settlement.

ROCKHAMPTON, QUEENSLAND.

The opening of the new Fitzroy Bridge, at Rockhampton, on New-Year's Day, is the subject of one of our Illustrations. Rockhampton, on the eastern seacoast of Australia, at the mouth of the river Fitzroy in Port Curtis, is situated nearly under the line of the Tropic of Capricorn, being in latitude 23 deg. south of the Equator. It is 450 miles north of Brisbane, the capital of Queensland, and had, in 1871, a population of 5500, which is likely to have been very much increased, if not doubled, by the present year. A rich mining district lies behind this town, and it has a railway 200 miles long into the interior, towards the Barcoo.

The new suspension bridge at Rockhampton, which has been constructed, so far as we can understand, jointly by the Municipal Council of that town and by the Divisional Board of the Gogango District, on the other side of the river, is a fine work of its kind. It was designed, and the work superintended, by Mr. Frederick Byerley, civil engineer, of Queensland. The length of the bridge is 1101 ft., divided into four river spans of 232 ft. each, and two land spans of 88 ft. each. There are five pairs of iron columns, 86 ft. high from the central bed of the river, but immersed at depths of from 11 ft. to 21 ft. These support the chains of each span, which are of wrought iron in sevenfold links, 6 in. by 1¼ in. thick, having a strength of 13½ tons per square inch; and the strength of the whole chain is equivalent to a weight of 1350 tons. The chains pass over the top of the piers, and are anchored in brickwork 24 ft. underground, on each bank of the river, but 58 ft. from the face of the abutments. The roadway, having a clear width of 20 ft., is of stout wood, laid upon joists, bearers, and transoms hung to the chains by suspension-rods. It is estimated to bear a moving load of 261 tons. Each end of the bridge is finished with wing walls of masonry. The octagonal capitals of the columns terminate in battlements, which have an ornamental effect. Our Illustration is from a photograph by Messrs. Wilder and Bennett, of Rockhampton.

The opening ceremony was attended by the Mayor and Aldermen of Rockhampton, the Chairman and members of the Divisional Board, and several members of the Legislative Assembly. They formed a procession, with several carriages, accompanied by the band of the local Volunteer Corps, and by the Orders of Foresters and Odd Fellows, and other Friendly Societies. Speeches were made by the Mayor, Mr. J. Ferguson, and the Chairman of the Board, Mr. H. Jones, and the bridge was duly "christened;" the approach was also named Fitzroy-avenue. A luncheon at the Criterion Hotel terminated the proceedings.

NEW CHURCH AT AUCKLAND.

The town or city of Auckland, in the North Island of New Zealand, formerly the capital of that colony, is well known to many of our military and naval officers stationed there some years ago, as well as to the colonists. The new church of the Holy Sepulchre, in Kyber Pass Road, of which we give an Illustration, is to supersede a temporary building called by that name, which Bishop Selwyn opened in August, 1857. The population in the neighbourhood has, of course, greatly increased; and the parishioners, having bought the site at a cost of £1300, are making an effort, with the Incumbent, the Rev. B. T. Dudley, formerly a member of the Melanesian Mission, to raise funds to complete this building. Its cost will be £3800, of which they have £1600 in hand, and have borrowed £1300, leaving £900 to be subscribed. The building will be the largest, and one of the handsomest, in Auckland; its foundations are of cemented brick, but the superstructure is of Kauri pine timber, which is very durable. Its length is 131 ft.; width across transepts, 70 ft.; width of nave and aisles, 53 ft.; interior height, 52 ft.; the tower and spire, 125 ft. high. There will be full accommodation for 680 adult persons, but a congregation of 800 can find room if needed. The Incumbent asks friends in England for pecuniary contributions, to be paid to the credit of this church, at the Bank of New Zealand, London.

ROYAL INSTITUTION LECTURES.

RESEARCHES ON THE NON-METALLIC ELEMENTS.

Professor Dewar, M.A., F.R.S., began his fourth lecture on Thursday, the 17th inst., with additional remarks on the action of the electric discharge in the atmospheric air in the production of ozone, nitric acid, and the peroxide of hydrogen, illustrated by experiments. He alluded to the great density of ozone, and the consequent facility of its liquefaction; he also noticed its blue colour, while oxygen is colourless, and commented on the relation of this fact to the spectrum. Experiments followed illustrating the fall in the temperature of gases consequent upon their expansion by exhaustion in the receiver of the air-pump. The Professor then, in continuation of his last lecture, showed how mistiness is produced in air when the temperature is reduced, by means of the air-pump, in the presence of inconceivably small particles of solid matter. A cloud is thus suddenly formed in air previously transparent. These particles it was suggested might be highly volatilised common salt, which is universally diffused in the atmosphere. Some remarks were made in relation to the optical effects of this finely divided state of matter, and the measurement of Newton's rings studied by Young. In conclusion, a description was given of Meyer's experiments upon chlorine in 1879, and his consequent doubts as to its elementary character. It was afterwards discovered that at very high temperatures this gas exists in two similar states, a property termed dissociation, which is also possessed by iodine vapour. Finally, the Professor exhibited and explained an excellent crucial method for determining the densities of vapours at high temperatures.

ELECTRO-MAGNETISM.

Professor Tyndall, in beginning his fourth lecture on Thursday, the 19th instant, explained how Ampère, in his discoveries of 1820, laid the foundation of electro-dynamics. He then showed that when the end of a cylinder of iron is introduced into an electro-magnetical helix, and the Voltaic circuit is completed, a powerful force of suction tends to draw the core into the helix, which force, by means of springs and other appliances, may be so regulated as to produce rotary motion. In an extemporised model of Page's machine, and in a small one by Froment, of Paris, which was used for fine work, the Professor showed how the new force had been early utilised. For these the electric current was supplied by a battery; but successive discoveries have produced much more redundant sources of power; and the Professor described the dynamo-electric machine presented to the institution by Dr. William Siemens, which is worked by an Otto's gas-engine, the gift of the president, the Duke of Northumberland, placed in the basement of the building. By means of a circular saw, driven by this machine, a plank of wood was sawn through, in the presence of the audience. After referring to his discourse and experiments in 1860, on the influence of the magnetic force on the electric discharge from Mr. Gassiot's battery of 400 Grove's cells, Professor Tyndall exhibited the effects of this force upon the luminous discharge from a part of Mr. De La Rue's great battery of 14,400 chloride of silver cells, described in that gentleman's discourse on Jan. 21 of the present year. The discharge was transmitted through a series of vacuum tubes, containing minute residua of gases, and its effect upon the brilliant-coloured strata and striæ was very remarkable. A series of experiments followed, illustrating Farnday's great discovery of induced currents; and the lecture was concluded with the exhibition and explanation of Professor Hughes's very ingenious electric induction balance.

SHAKSPEARE CRITICISM.

Mr. Walter H. Pollock, M.A., who gave the discourse at the Friday evening meeting, on the 20th inst., began by noticing some of the absurd theories respecting Shakspeare's life and works. Hume the historian said that, if the poet had been a man born in a rude age and educated in the lowest manner, he might be regarded as a prodigy; not otherwise. "The Vicar of Wakefield" says, "Can the present age be pleased with that antiquated dialect, that obsolete humour, those over-charged characters?" Gervinus truly says that, after 250 years of commentators' digging, as in a mine, Shakspeare has remained an enigma to the literary world. This is due to a great error. Shakspeare did not write for studious reading in the closet, but for representation on the stage for ordinary understandings. He often wrote carelessly; not at all as if every word and line were to be critically discussed. In fact, his plays were at first surreptitiously printed, which was considered injurious to his reputation. After reading some of Mr. Pepys's amusing comments on the renewed performance of Shakspeare at the Restoration in 1660, Mr. Pollock gave specimens of the sacrilegious manner in which the plays had been dealt with by Davenant, Dryden, and others in the seventeenth century. He then alluded to the Shakspeare revival so warmly promoted by Garrick in the last century; after which he discussed some of the criticisms and comments on "Hamlet," as an example of the way in which the poet had been dealt with by such men as Voltaire (who said that the play was "the dream of a drunken savage with some flashes of beautiful thoughts"). Lessing (who, Gervinus said, was the first to duly appreciate Shakspeare), Johnson, Steevens, Malone, Warburton, and Goethe. Mr. Pollock then read the story on which "Hamlet" is founded, from Saxo-Grammaticus, the Danish historian, to show the way in which Shakspeare's genius ennobled his crude materials. In conclusion, after referring to various foreign translations and critics, he read the eulogy of the elder Dumas on Shakspeare, and his beautiful version of the Willow Song.

POUSHKIN.

Professor C. E. Turner, of the University of St. Petersburg, gave the first of a course of five lectures on the Great Modern Writers of Russia, on Saturday last, the 21st inst. In his introductory remarks he stated that Russian literature, like Russian civilisation, was in its origin of foreign growth, and European rather than national, in thought and style; and it was only with Alexander Poushkin that it ceased to be imitative. In a brief sketch of the poet's life, he dwelt on his early days and his warm and life-long attachment to his old nurse Irene, "the darling of his youth." He was born of a noble family on May 26, 1799; was educated at the Alexander Lyceum; and began his career as a clerk in the Foreign Office. His daring genius exhibited itself at the Lyceum, and he afterwards gave offence to the Government by his epigram on Arakchaeff and his ode to Liberty, which led to his exile and forced sojourn in the south of Russia, during the years 1825 and 1826. When he was permitted to return to St. Petersburg, his frankness and genius gained him the favour of the Czar Nicholas. He married Mdlle. Goutchareff, but his happiness was marred by slander, which led to a fatal duel with Dantes. He died of his wounds Feb. 12, 1837, deeply lamented by the whole nation. His memorial statue at Moscow was uncovered June 18, 1880. After quoting Poushkin's lines, in which he predicts, like Horace, the undying fame of his verse, Professor Turner commented on the peculiar thoroughness with which Poushkin's poetry is identified with his personality, its freedom from the rhetorical style of the classicists, and its close intimacy with the spirit and ideas of his epoch. In a few of his poems we may have the echo of Byron's muse, but though he has been termed the "Byron of Russia," no epithet can be less happily chosen, since he is the artistic creator of types of life, the genuine outcome of Russian history and culture. The influence of Byron began to decline just when Poushkin began to study Shakspeare. Two poems, "Poltava" and "Evjenie Oneguin," were selected for detailed criticism, and several striking passages were quoted. In conclusion, a minute analysis was given of the character of Tatiana, as a typical portrait of a Russian woman drawn with marvellous fulness.

Professor W. G. Adams will give a discourse on Magnetic Disturbance, Auroræ, and Earth Currents, on Friday evening next, June 3.

THE SCOTCH CHURCHES.

The general assemblies of the Established and Free Churches of Scotland were opened at Edinburgh on the 19th inst., the former with the customary state ceremonial. The Earl of Aberdeen, her Majesty's Lord High Commissioner, held a Levée in the Throne-room of Holyrood Palace at eleven o'clock, which was attended by representatives of the different public and legal bodies in Edinburgh and Leith, several noblemen and gentlemen, and the greater portion of the members of the Assembly. He announced to the Assembly her Majesty's annual gift of £2000 for promoting religious improvement among the Highlands and islands. His Grace afterwards, in a state carriage and four, drove in procession to St. Giles's Cathedral, the streets through which the cortége passed being lined with the military. The procession was witnessed by several thousand spectators; and the weather, though somewhat dull and threatening, did not materially interfere with the comfort of the processionists and the enjoyment of the onlookers. The Rev. Dr. Watson, of Dundee, the retiring Moderator, preached in the cathedral, after which the High Commissioner proceeded to the Assembly Hall and formally opened the court. The Rev. Dr. Smith, of Cathcart, was chosen Moderator for the year.

At the Free Church Assembly Dr. Main, the retiring Moderator, preached; and Dr. Laughton, of Greenock, was elected as his successor.

THE ROYAL MINT.

It appears from the annual report of the Deputy Master of the Mint that the coinage of gold received through the customary channel of the Issue Department of the Bank of England amounted last year to four millions sterling only, or one million less than the average. On the other hand, the coinage of silver has exceeded £744,000—a larger amount than that of any year since 1874. The coinage of bronze, on the contrary, has barely exceeded £19,000, as against an average of £42,600 in the preceding five years, a fact doubtless due to the footing which the French bronze pieces have obtained. We have, it seems, twenty-three different coins in all; but these include silver pennies and silver twopenny and fourpenny pieces, which are now only coined as the customary form of the Royal bounty known as "Maundy Money." For Cyprus our Mint now coins bronze "quarter piastres," and for Jamaica pence, halfpence, and farthings in nickel.

The reports of the authorities of the Sydney and Melbourne branches of the Royal Mint show a large increase in the manufacture of Australian sovereigns over previous years, the gold coinage for the year being upwards of 4½ millions sterling, of which only a very trifling proportion was in half-sovereigns.

For the first time this season a review and sham fight of the troops of the regular service in the home district was held yesterday week on Wimbledon-common. Major-General Higginson, C.B., being in command.—A parade of the troops composing the Aldershott division was held in the Long Valley on Tuesday to celebrate her Majesty's birthday. The Field Marshal Commanding in Chief and other distinguished visitors were present. After an inspection of the troops a feu de joie was fired, at noon, after which there were a march and some field operations.

THE CHURCH.

PREFERMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.

Alison, Meyrick Onslow, to be Rector of Penton Mewsey.
Allton, George; Vicar of Coniston.
Atkinson, Miles; Vicar of St. Mary and Rector of St. Benedict, Huntingdon.
Bell, J. A., Chaplain of the General Infirmary, Sheffield; Vicar of Hayling.
Champion, Francis Beresford; Perpetual Curate of Edale.
Clark, William Frederick; Rector of St. Stephen's, Ipswich.
Cobb, John William; Vicar of Felmingham, Norfolk.
Dale, Thomas Pelham; Rector of St. Vedast's, London.
Davenport, George Hontio; Rector of Stanford-on-Soar.
Davies, David; Curate of Llandilo Grabham with Llanstephan, Radnor.
Dicker, Alfred Cecil; Vicar of New Church, Isle of Wight.
Dunne, E. N.; Rector of Hoole, near Preston.
Dunne, Joseph, Vicar of St. Mary's, Wakefield; Vicar of Leake.
Ede, William Moore; Rector of Gateshead.
Evans, David Williams, Curate of Wrexham; Rector of St. George.
Evans, Henry Jones, Curate of St. John's, Juxta Swansea; Rector of Llanllawer with Llanychllwyddog, Pembroke.
Gallie, James; Vicar of Great Horton, Bradford.
Garland, George Vallis; Rector of Binstead, Isle of Wight.
Geldart, Ernest; Rector of Little Braxted.
Heald, J. M., Vicar of St. Philip's, Dewsbury; Curate of Stoke-on-Trent.
Howell, John Aneurin; Vicar of Dwygyfylchi, Carnarvon.
Kirkby, W. B., Chaplain of Stuffynwood Chapel, in Mansfield Woodhouse.
Lea, W., Vicar of St. Peter's, Droitwich; Archdeacon of Worcester.
Myer, H.; Vicar of Christ Church, Clifton.
Mitchell, W., Curate of Kildwick; Vicar of St. Luke's, Bradford.
Molesworth, W. N.; Honorary Canon of Manchester.
Moxon, George Henry; Vicar of Sundom-cum-Steatley.
Northey, Alfred Edward; Vicar of Offley.
Paul, F. B., Curate of St. Austell; Rector of Lanivet.
Quirk, J. N., Curate of Doncaster; Incumbent of St. Thomas's, Douglas.
Salt, W. E., Curate of the Priory Church, Dunstable, Beds; Chaplain of the Guild Chapel, Stratford-on-Avon.
Serjeant, James Sanderson; Vicar of Acton, Suffolk.
Shawcross, W.; Rector of Hewelsfield.
Smith, T., Vicar of Christ Church, Stafford; and Chaplain of the Staffordshire General Infirmary.
Stott, Samuel Walter; Rector of East and West Treswell.
Talford, William Wordsworth; Rector of Thundersley.
Taylor, C. T., Curate of Stanford-on-Soar; Vicar of Strubby.
Turner, G. P., Curate of Cleeton; Perpetual Curate of Knowbery.
Williams, James George; Vicar of German, Isle of Man.
Williams, T. J.; Rector of Waddesdon (1st and 2nd portion), Bucks.

A memorial against Ritualism, signed by more than 24,000 Churchmen, has been sent to the Archbishop of Canterbury.

Lord Dudley has offered to provide a site for and subscribe £1000 towards the expenses of a new church at West Coscley, near Sedgley, where he has collieries.

The Rev. Richard Whittington, Rector of St. Peter's, Cornhill, has been appointed to the prebendal stall of Tottenhall, in St. Paul's Cathedral, in recognition of the valuable services which he has rendered for twenty years as principal of the City of London College.

The Bishop of Truro preached at a special service in St. Paul's Cathedral on Thursday week on behalf of the Incorporated Church Building Society. Spohr's sacred cantata, "God, Thou art great," was sung as the anthem by the cathedral choir.

A special festival service was held in the Abbey in the afternoon on Ascension Day, Thursday, when the Dean of Westminster preached in aid of the Clergy Orphan Schools. The anthem was the late Sir W. Sterndale Bennett's sacred cantata, "The Woman of Samaria."

A meeting of the Board of Management of the Bishop of London's Fund was held on Tuesday. The Bishop of London was in the chair. The balance on Jan. 1, the new money received up to May 21, and the grants cancelled gave a total sum of £10,621. From this had to be deducted the sum allowed for working expenses, leaving a balance of £9121.

A dinner took place yesterday week evening at the Freemasons' Tavern to celebrate the opening of the new church schools in Hanover-street, Clare Market. The Right Hon. W. H. Smith, M.P., presided, and there were present a large number of parishioners of St. Clement Danes. Annual subscriptions and donations for the schools were received by the treasurer to the amount of nearly £200.

A bazaar will be held at Bagshot Park, the residence of the Duke of Connaught, on June 11 and 13 next, under the immediate patronage of the Queen, in aid of the restoration of Bagshot church. Stalls will be held by members of the Royal family. The Prince and Princess of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh, Prince and Princess Christian, Prince Leopold, and the Duke and Duchess of Teck, have promised to attend. An amateur concert will be given on both days.

The Archbishop of Canterbury presided on Monday at the annual meeting of the Society for Promoting the Employment of Additional Curates, and pointed to the fact that churches did not increase to the extent required by the demand through the growth of population. His Grace urged the claims of the Society, which provided additional men for the service of the Church. Sir R. Cross, M.P., also expressed his gratification that steps were being taken for the education of men for the Church of England. Mr. Gladstone also spoke.

In the Lower House of Canterbury Convocation on the 18th inst. a vote of thanks to the New Testament Revisers was carried by a majority of 75 to 8; Archdeacon Denison protesting that the composition of the committee was an abomination in the sight of God, and declaring that he would not perjure his soul by according a single word of thanks to its members. On the 19th a motion made by Canon Norris was assented to, declaring that for certain moral reasons the House had the deepest interest in deprecating any relaxation of the rules governing the admission of representatives to the Lower House of Parliament. Yesterday week the Bishop of Llandaff stated in the Upper House that at a Conference of Welsh Bishops and clergy, held that morning, a committee was appointed to consider and report on the expediency of undertaking a new version in the Welsh language of the New Testament, according to the revised text of the English version. At the close of the sitting Convocation was prorogued until July 19.

The 227th annual festival of the Corporation of the Sons of the Clergy was celebrated on the 18th inst. by a service in St. Paul's Cathedral, at which the music was rendered by a choir of 250 voices, and an orchestra in addition to the organ. Dr. Butler selected the new rendering of the 5th and 6th verses of the thirteenth chapter of the Epistle to the Hebrews, in which the Revisers have deviated from the Authorised Version even more than is their wont. Prince Leopold, the Archbishop of Canterbury, the Bishop of London, and other dignitaries of the Church were present, and the Lord Mayor and Sheriffs attended in state. In the evening the annual dinner was held at Merchant Taylors' Hall, the Lord Mayor in the chair; when the Archbishop of Canterbury made an earnest appeal for aid to the funds of an institution which contributes so much to the comfort of the families of clergymen. His Grace also pointed to the work done of late years by the Church in the erection of new churches, and in all the benevolent enterprises which distinguish her; and expressed his belief that she was firmly established in the affections of the people. It was announced that the collections made that day at St. Paul's and at the dinner amounted to £154 and £1637 respectively: £1100 represented the donations by stewards, £670 the annual subscriptions, and £6519 the legacies bequeathed to the institution.

THE COURT.

The Queen, with Princess Beatrice, accompanied by Princesses Victoria and Elizabeth of Hesse, who are on a visit to her Majesty, arrived at Balmoral last Saturday from Windsor, a guard of honour of the 71st Regiment having received the Queen at Ballater.

Prince Leopold arrived at Balmoral on Monday.

Her Majesty, with the Royal family, has made various excursions on Deeside.

The Queen's sixty-second birthday was generally celebrated on Tuesday; although the official celebration in town takes place to-day (Saturday). The auspicious occasion has been especially marked by the creation of the dukedom of Albany, together with the dignities of Baron Arklow and Earl of Clarence, in Prince Leopold. Albany implies all Scotland north of the Firth of Forth and Clyde. It was first granted by King Robert III. to his brother, Robert Earl of Fife and Menteith, Regent of Scotland during the minority and captivity of James I. Clarence, now first given as an earldom, is historic as a dukedom. Its first possessor was Lionel Plantagenet, Edward the Third's son, the second, Thomas Plantagenet, Henry the Fifth's brother, slain at the battle of Beaugé and the third, George Plantagenet, Edward the Fourth's brother, drowned, says tradition, in a butt of Malmsey. From this Duke's death, in 1477, Clarence was not again revived until 1789, when it was given to George the Third's third son, William, afterwards King William IV. The third title of Prince Leopold, that of Baron of Arklow, was borne by his uncle, the late Duke of Sussex, and is derived from a lovely locality, the county of Wicklow, in Ireland. The birthday Gazette notifies numerous appointments to the higher grades of military honours.

Vice-Chancellor Sir Richard Malins is sworn in a member of the Privy Council.

The Prince of Wales held a Levée on Monday at St. James's Palace on behalf of the Queen, at which were present the Duke of Connaught, the Duke of Cambridge, Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein, and Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar. The presentations numbered upwards of 350.

The first state ball of the season took place on Wednesday, under the auspices of the Princess of Wales; all the Royal personages in town being present.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince of Wales returned to town from Vienna at 8.15 on Monday morning, he having left Paris the previous night at 12.15. The journey was prolonged twenty minutes, owing to a break down on the French side. His Royal Highness held a Levée in the afternoon. Princess Louise of Lorne lunched with the Prince and Princess at Marlborough House. Their Royal Highnesses, with the Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, went to the Royal Italian Opera, Covent-garden, in the evening. On Tuesday afternoon the Prince and Princess and Princesses Louise, Victoria, and Maud went to an amateur performance of "Herne the Hunted" at the Gaiety Theatre, given for the benefit of the Artists' Benevolent Fund. His Royal Highness presided at the annual dinner of the Royal Hospital for Children and Women, Waterloo-bridge-road, at Willis's Rooms, in the evening, and afterwards accompanied the Princess to a ball given by Viscountess Clifden at Dover House.

The Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh arrived at Dover last Saturday by special train from Ashford, and embarked on board the Lively. Their Royal Highnesses arrived at Bournemouth the next morning, and, after attending Divine service at St. Peter's Church, paid a visit to the King and Queen of Sweden. The Lively, with the Duke and Duchess on board, afterwards left Bournemouth, taking a westward course, arriving off Sidmouth on Monday morning, when his Royal Highness inspected the Coastguard station. From Exmouth the Duke and Duchess travelled by railway to Exeter, where they visited the cathedral, and afterwards the Duke inspected the Coastguard stations at Dawlish and at Teignmouth, and then, with the Duchess, went to Torquay. Their Royal Highnesses re-embarked in the Lively the same evening and continued their cruise. The Duke will sail next month for the Baltic, in command of the Royal Naval Reserve Squadron.

The Duke and Duchess of Connaught went to the Royal Italian Opera last Saturday.

Prince Leopold presided yesterday week at the annual festival in aid of the funds of University College Hospital in Willis's Rooms. The Duke of Connaught was present. The donations and subscriptions amounted to £1230. His Royal Highness went on Saturday to Messrs. Dickinson's, New Bond-street, to see their painting of the meet of the Four-in-Hand Driving Club.

Prince Christian of Schleswig-Holstein returned to Cumberland Lodge last Saturday from Germany.

The Duke of Cambridge gave a dinner party at Gloucester House, Park-lane, on Monday. Covers were laid for thirty. His Royal Highness Commanding-in-Chief held a Levée at the Horse Guards yesterday.

The King and Queen of Sweden paid a visit to Osborne on Monday; and the King laid the first stone of the Mont Dore of Bournemouth, now in course of erection in that town, on Wednesday. Their Majesties left Bournemouth on Thursday for town upon their return home.

ROYAL GEOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY.

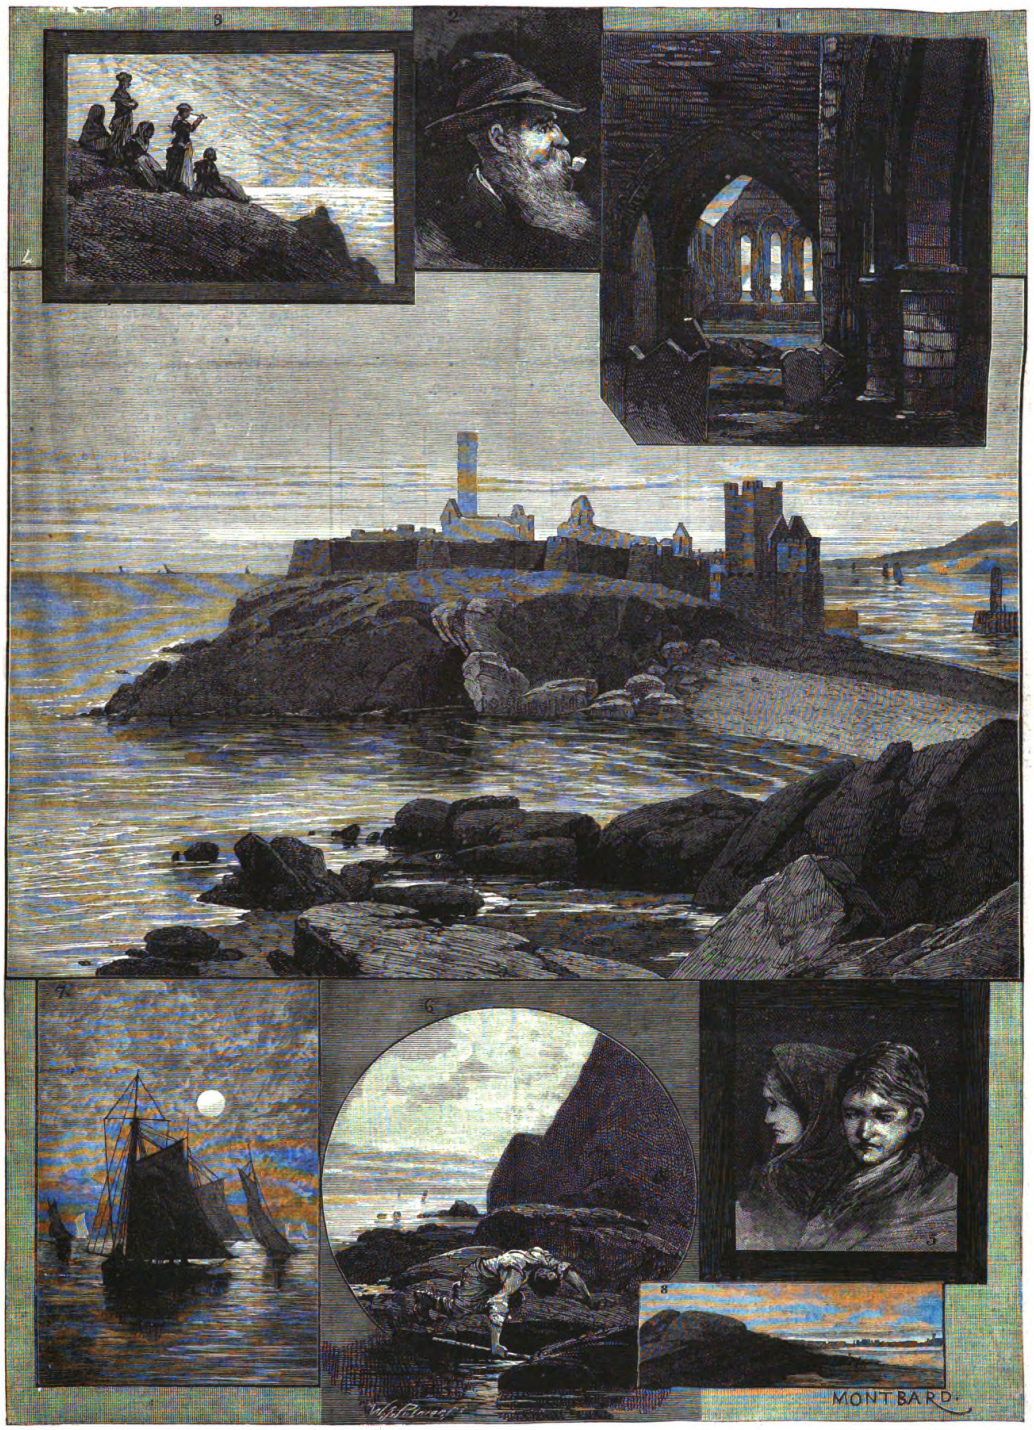
Lord Aberdare presided at the anniversary meeting of this society on Monday in the hall of the University of London, Burlington-gardens. The total net income for last year amounted to £8599; and the net expenditure to £8454, which included two sums of £500 each, contributed to the African Exploration Fund. Lord Aberdare announced that the Royal (Founder's) Medal for the encouragement of geographical science and discovery had been awarded to Major Serpa Pinto for his remarkable journey across Africa, from Benguela to Natal, during which he explored, with simple daring and great courage, a dangerous region, traversing nearly 500 miles of new country, besides patiently making a series of astronomical observations; and the patron's medal to Mr. Benjamin Leigh Smith, for having, in a steamer built and fitted at his own expense, made important discoveries along the ice-bound regions of the south coast of Franz Josef Land; also for previous geographical work. To four boys of the chief public schools a gold or silver medal was presented. Lord Aberdare then gave his presidential address.

The anniversary dinner was held in the evening at Willis's Rooms, Lord Aberdare presiding. There were over 180 guests, amongst whom were Earl Northbrook, Lord Cranbrook, Sir Bartle Frere, Lord Tenterden, Lord Houghton, Sir H. Rawlinson, the German Ambassador, the American Minister, the Italian Ambassador, the Portuguese Minister, and the Belgian Minister.

Mr. Gladstone has been admitted a Fellow of the Royal Society.

1. Carrying despatches "as the crow flies."
2. Ten minutes for refreshment—wet without but dry within.
3. An imposing spectacle!
4. The advance-guards score—"Put it down to the War-Office."
5. "Dressed in a little brief authority."—Shakspeare.
6. The long and the short of it.
7. Skirmishing.

OUT WITH THE BERKSHIRE YEOMANRY,—SEE PAGE 530.



1. Interior of St. German's Cathedral. 2. A Manx Sailor. 3. Fishermen's Wives waiting for their Husbands. 4. Peel Castle.
5. Fishermen's Wives. 6. Crab-Fishing. 7. Herring-Boats out at Night. 8. View of Peel.

PEEL AND PEEL CASTLE, ISLE OF MAN.—SEE PAGE 530.

OBITUARY.

THE RIGHT HON. W. P. ADAM.

The Right Hon. William Patrick Adam, Governor of Madras, died on the 24th inst. He was born in 1823, the son of the late Admiral Sir Charles Adam, K.C.B., Governor of Greenwich Hospital; was called to the Bar at the Inner Temple in 1819, and became private secretary to the Governor of Bombay in 1853. From 1865 to 1866 he was a Lord of the Treasury, and also from 1868 to 1873. From 1873 to 1874, and once more in 1880, he was First Commissioner of Public Works, and Paymaster-General from 1873 to 1874. He represented Clackmannan and Kinross from 1859 to 1880, and acted with great energy as one of the Liberal whips. He succeeded the Duke of Buckingham as Governor of Madras in 1880. His Excellency married, in 1856, Emily, daughter of Lieutenant-General Sir William Wyllie, G.C.B. The family of Adam, of Blair Adam, from which he descended, is one of considerable antiquity. Mr. Adam's portrait was given in this Journal Dec. 11, 1880.

VICE-ADMIRAL SOMERVILLE.

Vice-Admiral Philip Horatio Townsend Somerville died in Dublin on the 12th inst. He was one of the younger sons of Mr. Thomas Townsend Somerville, of Drishane, in the county of Cork, by Elizabeth Becher, his wife, daughter of Mr. John Townsend, M.P., of Shepperton; entered the Royal Navy in 1824, and attained the rank of Vice-Admiral in 1879. At the attack of Canton in 1841 he was prominently employed, and was honourably mentioned in Sir Hugh Gough's despatches for the able manner in which he assisted in landing the troops at the capture of Chusan. He was again similarly employed at the taking of Chapoo. Admiral Somerville married, in 1849, Mary Stuart, daughter of Mr. David Maitland-Makgill-Crichton, of Rankeillor, Fifeshire.

DR. FALCONER.

Randle Wilbraham Falconer, M.D., long the leading doctor of Bath, Senior Physician of the Bath Mineral Water Hospital, and Consulting Physician of the Royal United Hospital, died recently. He belonged to an old and respectable family connected with the great Cheshire house of Wilbraham. His sister was married to the late Right Hon. J. A. Roebuck, M.P. Dr. Falconer, who was for forty years professionally associated with the institutions which we have already named, stood at the head of the medical profession in the city wherein he so long resided, and published works on its thermal springs, which are well known throughout the kingdom. He twice filled the civic chair of Bath.

MR. ALFRED BARRATT.

Mr. Alfred Barratt, Barrister-at-Law of Lincoln's Inn, and Secretary to the Oxford University Commission, died on the 18th inst., aged thirty-six. Originally a Rugby boy, and a Balliol scholar, this distinguished student obtained at Oxford the unprecedented honour of five first classes, two classical, two mathematical, and one in law and modern history. He was subsequently elected Eldon Law Scholar and Fellow of Brasenose. In him the Junior Bar has lost one of its most gifted and learned members.

We have also to record the deaths of—

Mr. Patrick Davidson, of Inchmarlo, Kincardineshire, on the 8th inst., in his seventy-second year.

Lieutenant-General Harry James Barr, Bombay Staff Corps, on the 17th inst., aged sixty-six, at Apsleytown, East Grinstead.

Major Henry Lyster, late of the Portuguese Service, and formerly Major of the British Auxiliary Legion, Knight of the Royal and Military Order of St. Ferdinand, on the 15th inst., aged seventy.

Mr. John Head, of the firm of Ransomes, Head, and Jefferies, of the Orwell Works, Ipswich, on the 19th inst., aged forty-nine. He contributed several valuable papers to the proceedings of the Institution of Civil Engineers, and received the Telford Medal. He was a member of their society.

Lady Georgina Anne Emily Bertie, widow of the Hon. and Rev. Frederic Bertie, M.A., Rector of Albury, in the county of Oxford, and second daughter of Admiral Lord Mark Kerr, by his wife, Charlotte, Countess of Antrim in her own right, on the 20th inst., in her seventy-fifth year.

Lieutenant-General Edward Blagden Hale, C.B., late Colonel 82nd Foot, on the 17th inst., aged sixty-six. He was youngest son of the late Mr. Robert Hale Blagden Hale, of Alderley, in the county of Gloucester, by Lady Theodosia, his wife, daughter of Joseph Deane, third Earl of Mayo, Archbishop of Tuam, and derived descent from the celebrated Chief Justice Sir Matthew Hale.

A YEAR OF LIFE-BOAT WORK.

The need of the National Life-Boat Institution was never more strikingly exemplified than during the past twelve months, especially in the fierce gales and blinding snowstorms of January last on our eastern coast, which witnessed some of the most daring exploits of our life-boatmen that have ever been recorded—exploits which not only testified to their humanity and courage, but to their wonderful physical endurance. In evidence of the same, it will suffice to state that on several occasions during those storms the life-boats' crews were at sea from fifteen to twenty-four hours, and in one instance for twenty-six hours, exposed to the full fury of the storm in the bitterest cold, in some cases without food throughout those long hours, and with their clothes stiffened with ice. Again, the perilous character of the life-boat work is at once realised by the fact that in accomplishing it eighteen noble fellows perished during the storms of last winter from the life-boats. Towards the maintenance of the widows and orphans of these brave men the institution subscribed £1800, to be added to the local contributions raised on their behalf.

Twelve new life-boats were sent to various stations last year; and five other boats are about to be forwarded to Wells, Norfolk; Rye, Sussex; Braunton, North Devon; St. Anne's, Lancashire; and Newcastle, county Down.

The life-boats of the institution were the means of saving 577 lives during the past year from wrecked or endangered vessels, most of them under perilous circumstances, when ordinary boats could not with safety have been employed. In addition to these life-boat services, 120 lives were saved from shipwreck by shore-boats and other means, making a total of 697 lives preserved in 1880, for which honorary or pecuniary rewards were made by the institution. There were voted last year one gold medal, six silver medals and clasps, fifteen votes of thanks inscribed on vellum, and £4287 in cash for saving these lives.

A meeting of the Sir Rowland Hill Memorial Committee was held at the Mansion House yesterday week, when considerable discussion took place upon the fees charged by the Dean and Chapter of Westminster for erecting the last bust in the Abbey. These fees amounted to £200, the bust having cost about £2000. It was resolved to petition the Dean and Chapter asking them to remit the fees.

CHESS.

V A (U S).—You have, probably, ere now, seen the published solution of No. 1940, and have become satisfied of its accuracy.

F J (Coventry).—Your problem shall be carefully examined, but, meanwhile, let us know what purpose the Pawns on the K R file are intended to serve.

S L (Winchester).—The colour of the pieces has nothing whatever to do with determining the first move. In playing over games you should accustom yourself to use Black in the attack as well as in the defence.

A C (Old Broad-street).—Why should you hope for the publication in this column of the problem inclosed in your letter? It is, indeed a fine composition; but it is not your own, and you should not have omitted a statement of that fact when sending it to us.

W G H (Rugby).—It is not usual for a player receiving the odds of Pawn and two moves to play out both Knights at once. The best course is to move the royal Pawns to the fourth squares. Thanks for the information.

W J E (Dewsbury).—We have no doubt of your good faith, but the solution of No. 1940 arrived too late for acknowledgment in the usual place. It is correct.

J P (Fishguard).—In Problem No. 1939 there is no solution by way of 1. Q to Kt 2nd. Black's reply to that move is 1. Kt takes Kt.

D W K (Bright).—The book you dear be is probably Mauvillon's collection of problems for young players, that being the only work we know of in which the Black pieces on the diagram are reversed. It has no special value.

Problems received, with thanks, from Sidmouth, G W Mosley, and F O'Neill Hopkins.

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1936 received from W Pocock (Cape Town) and T M Manickum (Secunderabad).

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1941 received from Pierce Jones, John Perkins, W P K (Clewedon), and Frank E Purchas.

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1942 received from D W (Guernsey), Pierce Jones, Sidmouth, John Perkins, Frank E Purchas, J J Heaton, Espanol, Smutch, G A (Bonchurch), Albert Main, John Tucker, and W J Eggleston.

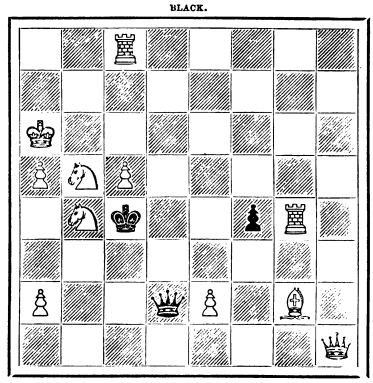
Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1943 received from H B, Smutch, H K Awdry, A C (Staines), M D B, Capt. Joseph Ainsworth, Henry Frau (Lyons), R T Kemp, H Hardcastle, Pierce Jones, R Grey, L Sharswood, E Sharswood, J Alde Schmucke, R H Brooks, S Lowndes, Frank E Purchas, Jupiter Junior, An Old Hand, Shadforth, Hereward, A Harper, E Casella (Paris), Edd, M O'Halloran, James Robson, Dr F St. Nesbit, C Darragh, L Falcin (Antwerp), D Templeton, A Kentish Man, F Ferris, J G Auster, G W Law, F C Parlour, T Greenbank, C S, Cole, W G Harris, Sudbury (Suffolk), Norman Rumbelow, G A (Bonchurch), R R Wood, A M Colborne, W Hillier, E L G, C Oswald, D W Keil, R Tweddell, G Fulder (Ghent), L L Greenaway, G W Mosley, Five Pins, Lulu, Albert Maas, F O N Hopkins, Bosworth, N Wardle, N Cator, R Inversell, Ben Nevis, Sidmouth, Frank Littleboy, E Louden, W J Rudman, R G Vines, H H Noyes, and John Tucker.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1942.

| WHITE. | BLACK. |
|---|---|
| 1. R to Kt 7th | K takes R* |
| 2. B to R 7th | Any move |
| 3. Kt to B 2nd | Any move |
| 4. B mates. | |

* If Black play, 1. Kt to B 7th, White continues with 2. R to Kt 3rd (ch), 3. K takes Kt, and 4. B mates. If 1. R to R 4th, then 2. R to Q B 7th, &c.

PROBLEM No. 1945.
By F. O'N. HOPKINS (Liverpool).
BLACK.



WHITE.
White to play, and mate in two moves.

The seasonable dulness of the metropolitan chess world is to be enlivened by a match between Mr. Blackburne and Herr Zukertort. So far as public play is concerned, these masters of the game have met on four occasions only—in the London simple-game tourney of 1872, when Mr. Blackburne won; in the Divan tourney of 1876, when each won one game of the other; in a match which was commenced in 1877, and broken off after two games had been played, of which each scored one; and, again, in the Paris tournament of 1878, when the result was game and game. This match, which is to commence on June 20 next, will be played partly at the St. George's Chess Club, and partly in a private room at the Divan, for a stake of £100 a side, seven games up, draws not counting, and with a time limit of one hour to each player for every fifteen moves.

We are glad to learn from a correspondent that the Rugby Chess Club is in a flourishing condition. The handicap tourney of the winter session, in which there were fourteen competitors, has resulted in Mr. W. G. Harris winning the first prize with a score of 20½. The second fell to Mr. H. T. Rhodes, whose score was 18.

The handicap tourney which has been in progress for some months past at the Clifton Club resulted in Mr. N. Fedden carrying off the first prize with a score of thirty-two out of a possible thirty-four. Mr. Fedden has also won the silver challenge cup presented for competition by the Rev. J. E. Greene, the president of the club.

We hear that a match has been arranged between Birmingham and Clifton, the opposing players to meet over the board at Cheltenham. As both club can bring forward strong players, a good fight may be expected.

The Oxford City Club played a match with the University Club on the 6th inst., and won it with a score of 11½ to 9½. A return match was arranged to be played, but we have not been advised of the result.

The chief handicap of the season at the City of London Club ended last week, Mr. Heywood winning the first prize and Mr. Gunzberg the second.

Families as we are with the entertaining spirit of American publishers and with the excellence of their work, the new American chess monthly has fairly surpassed our expectations. Brentano's Chess Monthly, as the new exponent of the Royal game is called, is a magazine of fifty pages (in form like Scribner's), printed upon superfine paper and illustrated by artists of reputation. In its contents the first number is a very storehouse of chess, as regards its literature, practical play, and problems; and the vast variety of matter and style in each of these departments here presented, if sustained in future numbers, should ensure the permanent success of this bold and costly attempt to give chessplayers a periodical worthy of the game and of the intelligence and taste of its practitioners. The first number opens with an address from the editors, Messrs. H. C Allen (who has exclusive charge of the literary department), G. E. Carpenter, and A. P. Barnes, in which these gentlemen profess their intention of devoting their time and labour to the work entirely en amateur. The editorial notes that follow refer to incidents in home and foreign chess circles—notably, to European criticisms upon the award of the judges in the late Congress tourney. Among the most important papers are a first instalment of "Sketches from the Chess World," translated from the German of Ernest Falkbeer; and an article on the "Masters of the Café de la Régence," by M. Delannoy. Herr Falkbeer's sketch opens with good promise, though we think the author is altogether conventional in his estimate of the qualities peculiar to English, German, and French players. M. Delannoy's "Masters" are depicted with more fervour of imagination, and less reticence of statement than we are accustomed to receive from his pen. St. Amant, a rather dull and most certainly a slow player, is extolled beyond his merit; and Staunton, one of the most genial, as he was one of the most hot-tempered, of men, is here described as "cold, like a piece of marble or ice." The match between these two, moreover, was not limited to seven games, as M Delannoy has imagined and stated. No fewer than nineteen games were contested in that famous encounter, of which Staunton won eleven, St. Amant six, and two were drawn. Nevertheless, these mistakes and others of less importance notwithstanding, this article, illustrated as it is with portraits of St. Amant, Calvi, and Anderssen, is the most entertaining in the number. The excerpts from exchanges are copious and interesting, ranging with "extensive view" from "Mars" to Melbourne. The game department, under the supervision of Mr. A. P. Barnes, contains ten games, with original notes. We have not had time to review the problems, but shall take an early opportunity of doing so, in justice to one of the most brilliant composers of our time, Mr. G. Carpenter, who conducts that department of the new magazine. We should not omit to state that the subscription price of Brentano's Chess Monthly is two dollars and a half (ten shillings) per annum.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will (dated March 8, 1881) of the Rev. John Thomas Maine, late of Dover Court, Southsea, who died on March 25 last, was proved on the 26th ult. by Miss Caroline Maria Maine, the daughter, the sole executrix, the personal estate being sworn under £120,000. The testator gives legacies to his daughters, including £400 per annum each during the lifetime of their mother, and to two of his servants. The remainder of his real and personal estate is to be held upon trust for his wife for life; at her death he leaves £30,000 to his daughter Mrs. Emily Jane Morgan; and the residue to his daughters Amy Louisa and Caroline Maria.

The will and codicil (both dated March 30, 1881) of Miss Louisa Reid, late of No. 7, Hyde Park-terrace, who died on the 5th ult., were proved on the 9th inst. by James Innes and John Innes, the nephews, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £120,000. The testatrix bequeaths £1000 each to the Windsor Infirmary and the Indigent Blind Visiting Society, Red Lion-square; £500 to the Church Missionary Society; £100 to the School at Gerrard's-cross; such sum as will produce £100 per annum upon trust to pay the income to the Vicar of the church built at Gerrard's-cross in memory of her late brother; a sum not exceeding £800 to be distributed among her servants at Hyde Park-terrace; a sum not exceeding £300 among the servants at Slade Farm, Bucks; and numerous and substantial legacies to or upon trust for nephews and nieces, great nephews and nieces, and others. The residue of her property she gives to the children of certain of her nephews and nieces.

The will (dated March 25, 1876) of Sir Thomas Kirkpatrick, Bart., formerly of No. 6, Royal-terrace, Southend, but late of Grove Villa, New Southgate, who died on June 23 last at Dover Harbour, was proved on the 22nd ult. by Sir James Kirkpatrick, the brother, and John Cole Stogdon, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £70,000. The testator gives to his wife, Dame Sophia Anne Kirkpatrick, all his furniture, plate, pictures, horses and carriages; and, subject thereto, leaves all his real and personal estate upon trust as to £30,000 and one half of the residue of his property—after paying thereout £1000 per annum to his wife for life, to be reduced to £500 per annum in the event of her marrying again—for the person who shall succeed to the baronetcy of Kirkpatrick of Closeburn; and as to the other half of the residue for his brothers and sisters.

The will (dated Jan. 9, 1873) with a codicil (dated Nov. 11, 1875) of Lieutenant-General John Hankey Bainbrigge, late of The Rohais, St. Andrew, Guernsey, who died on March 15 last, was proved on the 27th ult. by Nicholas Carey and Thomas Godfrey Carey, the executors, the personal estate in England being sworn under £40,000. After bequeathing some legacies, the testator leaves the residue of the personalty upon trust for his wife, Mrs. Sophia Dobree Bainbrigge, for life, and then for his grandchildren.

The will (dated Feb. 13, 1874) with five codicils (dated Feb. 1 and June 7, 1876; July 26, 1877; and Jan. 12 and Nov. 18, 1878) of Mr. Richard Padmore, J.P., late of Henwick Hall, Hallow, Worcestershire, who died on Jan. 12 last, has been proved at the Worcester district registry by William Padmore, the nephew, George Edmund Abell and Joseph Parrott Lett, the acting executors, the personal estate being sworn under £35,000. The testator bequeaths £500 to the Worcester Infirmary; £300 each to the London Missionary Society and the British and Foreign Bible Society; £100 each to the Salop Infirmary, the Worcester Dispensary, and the Worcester Ophthalmic Institution; and there are very numerous devises and bequests in favour of nephews, nieces, and other relatives, connections, friends, and servants. The residue of his property he leaves to the children of his brothers and sisters by the whole and by the half blood, and the widows or issue of such as may be dead. The testator was the Liberal M.P. for Worcester from 1860 to 1868, and was Mayor of that town in 1848, and again in 1852.

The will (dated March 2, 1878) with a codicil (dated March 20, 1880) of Mr. Theodore Howard Galton, late of Hadzor House, Worcester, who died on Feb. 28 last, was proved on the 9th inst. by Mrs. Frances Amelia Galton, the widow, William Joseph Fitzherbert Brockholes, and Alfred John Blount, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £30,000. The testator gives to his wife an immediate legacy of £500, his furniture, plate, pictures, effects, horses and carriages, and a rent-charge of £500 per annum; to his sons Howard Douglas Leonard and Charles Sigismund, £6000 each; to his son who succeeds to the settled estates the plate, pictures, and statues bequeathed to him by his late father; to his son Compton Theodore, a rent-charge of £50; and £300 upon trust for the senior priest of the Roman Catholic Church of SS. Richard and Hubert, Hadzor. He devises the mansion Hadzor House and all his real estate to the use of his first and every other son successively, according to seniority in tail male; and the residue of the personalty he gives to his son who shall under this devise succeed to his estates.

The will (dated Oct. 11, 1880) of Sir John Macpherson Macleod, K.C.S.I., late of No. 1, Stanhope-street, who died on March 1 last, was proved on the 25th ult. by William Macpherson and Norman Macpherson, the surviving executors, the personal estate in the United Kingdom being sworn under £30,000. The testator leaves his lands and superiority in the Isle of Skye to his grandnephew, Hugh Alexander Macpherson; £10,000 upon trust for the wife and two sons of his nephew, Alexander and Nurse Macleod; and legacies to his own and his late wife's relatives, servants, and others. The residue of his property he gives to the said Hugh Alexander Macpherson.

The will (dated April 27, 1868) with two codicils (dated June 21, 1875, and April 1, 1878) of Sir George William Denys, Bart., late of Draycott Hall, Fremington, Yorkshire, who died on Feb. 23 last, was proved on the 7th inst. by Dame Catherine Eliza Denys, the widow, and sole executrix, the personal estate being sworn under £10,000. The testator leaves his mansion house, Draycott Hall, with the lawns and plantations, furniture and effects, to his wife for life; and, subject thereto, he devises all his real estate to the use of his son Francis Charles Edward Denys for life, with remainder to his first and every other son severally and successively according to seniority in tail male. The residue of the personalty is to go to his same son.

The will (dated July 6, 1875) of Dame Sara Dinna Hawley, the widow of the late Sir Joseph Hawley, Bart., late of No. 34, Eaton-place, who died on March 13 last, was proved on the 29th ult. by Barrington Bulkeley Douglas Campbell, the sole executor, the personal estate being sworn under £2000. The testatrix bequeaths and appoints all her personal estate to her daughters, Mrs. Mildred Catherine Campbell and Mrs. Morna Georgiana Barker. C. G. C.

It is proposed to hold the fourth annual Army Rifle Meeting at the Cæsar's Camp Ranges, Aldershott, on Monday, June 27, and two succeeding days. The object of the meeting is to encourage and improve rifle-shooting in all branches of her Majesty's service. It will be open to the Army, Navy, Royal Marines, and Auxiliary Forces, with special matches for "all comers."

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

DE LA RUE & CO.'S ANNOUNCEMENTS.
BUNHILL-ROW, LONDON, E.C.

Just out, demy 8vo, cloth, extra gilt, price 21s.,
With a Portrait, and Map of the Country,

COLONEL GORDON IN CENTRAL AFRICA, 1874-1879. From Original Letters and Documents. Edited by GEORGE BIRKBECK HILL, D.C.L., Author of the "Life of Sir Rowland Hill, K.C.B.," &c.

In Two Handsome Volumes, demy 8vo, price 32s., with a Portrait by Paul Rajon, and other Illustrations,

THE LIFE OF SIR ROWLAND HILL, K.C.B., and the HISTORY OF PENNY POSTAGE. By SIR ROWLAND HILL, and his nephew GEORGE BIRKBECK HILL, D.C.L., &c.

With Maps, and numerous Original Etchings on Stone,

THE SHORES AND CITIES OF THE BODEN SEA. By S. J. CAPPER. Demy 8vo, cloth, price 16s.
Forms an excellent guide-book to the district,

Just out, crown 8vo, cloth, price 6s.,

HISTORY OF GERMANY, Political, Social, and Literary, brought down to the present day. By the Rev. Dr. E. COBHAM BREWER, Trinity Hall, Cambridge. Author of "History of France," "Guide to Science," &c.

Just out, 18th Edition, 8vo, cloth, gilt extra, price 5s.,

THE LAWS AND PRINCIPLES OF WHIST. The Standard Work on Whist. By "CAVENDISH." Greatly Enlarged and Revised throughout.

New and Cheaper Edition, crown 8vo, price 10s. 6d.,

BILLIARDS. By J. BENNETT (CHAMPION). Edited by "CAVENDISH." With upwards of 200 Illustrations.

A New and Improved Edition, cap 8vo, cloth, price 3s. 6d.,

LAWS OF SHORT WHIST, and a Treatise on the Game. By JAMES CLAY.

WELDON'S MAGAZINES for JUNE.

1. WELDON'S LADIES' JOURNAL.
50,000 Dress Patterns given away with JUNE Number, containing Sixty Illustrations of Latest Novelties and Thirty-two pages of Letterpress. Price 3d. Monthly; post-free, 4d.

2. WELDON'S PENNY DRESSMAKER contains a Coloured Crewel Supplement, Forty Illustrations and Sixteen pages of Letterpress. Price 1d. Monthly; post-free, 1½d.

3. WELDON'S BAZAAR OF CHILDREN'S FASHIONS.
Fifty Illustrations, and Sixteen pages of Letterpress. Price 1d. Monthly; post-free, 1½d.
The Three Magazines sent post-free, 7d.
WELDON and Co., 8, Southampton-street, Strand.

THE NEW FASHION-BOOK for 1881.
"It is a complete index to the Fashionable Novelties of the day, furnishing Made-up Costumes of all that is choicest and newest."—Morning Post.
"The Manual for the Current Season has just appeared, and will prove useful to those who desire to be an courant with the latest modes. The Illustrations comprise—Travelling, Walking, Evening, Dinner, Reception Dresses, Millinery, Laces, and Children's Fe-tes."—The Queen.
"Contains a vast deal of valuable information to ladies on the important subject of dress; the character of materials and the varied style of dresses adapted for the present season are fully described. The illustrations are numerous and are artistically executed."—Court Circular.
The New Number is now ready. Post-free for 12 stamps.
DERRHAM and FREEBODY, Wigmore-street, and Welbeck-street, London, W.

Second Edition, Illustrated. In paper cover, 2s. 6d.; cloth, 3s. 6d.,

FANCY DRESSES DESCRIBED; or, What to Wear at Fancy Balls. By ARDERN HOLT.
"What to wear at a fancy ball is often a question of momentous interest, and it is answered in every particular by a little book called 'Fancy Dresses Described.'"—Daily Telegraph.
"The descriptions of full-dress are thoroughly practical, and the authoress may be accepted as an authority."—Court Journal.
"This little manual of What to Wear at Fancy Balls will supply a real want."—Vanity Fair.
DERRHAM and FREEBODY, Wigmore-street and Welbeck-street; Wyman and Sons, Great Queen-street; and all Booksellers.

Eighth Edition, cloth, post-free, 33 stamps,

DR. BARR MEADOWS on Skin Disease.
Remarks on the Abuse of Arsenic, and specifics.
London: G. HILL, 154, Westminster-road.

JUST PUBLISHED, post-free, 2 stamps,

DYSPEPSIA and the SEVERER FORMS OF INDIGESTION. A small pamphlet on these distressing complaints and their complete cure. Published by the Author, RICHARD RIDGE, Esq., Staff Surgeon R.N., 23, Warwick-st., Rugby.

Third Edition, price 1s., post-free,

THE New Electrolytic Treatment of Cancer and of Simple Tumours. By G. ELDERTON, M.D.
NELSON and Co., 23, Duke-street, Grosvenor-square, W.

Third Edition, pp. 56, 1s., or 12 stamps,

SUMMER CATARRH or HAY FEVER: its Causes, Symptoms, and Treatment. By GEORGE MOORE, M.D.
JAMES EPPS and Co., 170, Piccadilly, and 48, Threadneedle-street.

ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE of Foreign and Colonial Postage-Stamps sent, post-free, 6d. The Lincoln Stamp Album, Fifth Edition, illustrated, cloth gilt, 2s. 6d.; post-free, 2s. 10d.—W. LINCOLN, 239, High Holborn, London.

100,000 CARTE and CABINET PHOTOGRAPHS, from 2d. each, on Sale, Packets of which are sent to any country, post-free, for selection. A rare opportunity of purchase for Private Collectors, Artists, and Stationers. Statuary, Classical and Mythological Female Figures, Artists' Studies, Actors, Celebrities; English, Scotch, and Irish Views; Celebrities, Actresses, Picture Scraps.
Catalogue, 2d.; Summary, 4d.
ERDMANN and SCHANZ, Photographic Publishers, 114, Saltcott-road, Wandsworth, London.

WEDDING and BIRTHDAY PRESENTS at RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly, London.
SETS FOR TEA WRITING-TABLE AND BOUDOIR, IN POLISHED BRASS, ORMOLU, SEVRES CHINA.
BRONZE, AND OXIDIZED SILVER, from .. 21s. to £10
TRAVELLING DRESSING BAGS .. £3s. to £20
DRESSING CASES .. 21s. to £50
DESPATCH BOXES .. 21s. to £10
TOURISTS' WRITING CASES .. 4s. 6d. to £5
ENVELOPE CASES and BLOTTING BOOKS .. 10s. 6d. to £5
INKSTANDS .. 5s. to £5
CANDLESTICKS (per pair) .. 7s. 6d. to £5
WORK BOXES .. 15s. to £5
THE NEW "TANTALUS" LIQUEUR STAND .. 105s. to £10
THE "TANTALUS" SODA and BRANDY STAND, £5 12s. 6d.
And a large and choice assortment of ENGLISH, VIENNESE, and PARISIAN NOVELTIES, from 6s. to £5.

PORTRAIT ALBUMS at RODRIGUES', with Patent Leather Guards, 4s. 6d. to £5. Floral Albums, Scrap Albums, Presentation and Regimental Albums.
Albums of every description made to order.—42, Piccadilly.

RODRIGUES' MONOGRAMS, ARMS, CORONET, CREST, and ADDRESS DIES Engraved as Gems from Original and Artistic Designs.
NOTE-PAPER AND ENVELOPES, brilliantly Illuminated by hand in Gold, Silver, Bronze, and Colours.
BEST RELIEF STAMPING, any colour, 1s. per 100.
All the New and Fashionable Note-Papers.
A VISITING CARD PLATE, elegantly Engraved, and 100 Superfine Cards printed, for 4s. 6d.
BALL PROGRAMMES, BILLS OF FARE, GUEST CARDS, WEDDING CARDS, and INVITATIONS in every variety.
HENRY RODRIGUES, 42, Piccadilly, London.

"NATIONAL MEMORIAL."—The "Leigh Chronicle" says:—"Macniven and Cameron deserve a national memorial for the boons and blessings they have conferred upon mankind throughout the world."
The New Pens are the "BIG J" PEN and the "BIG WAVERLEY" PEN.
Sold by all Stationers throughout the World.
Patentees of Pens and Penholders, 23, Blair-street, Edinburgh.
Sample Box, by post, 1s. 1d.

JOSEPH GILLOTT'S STEEL PENS.
GOLD MEDAL, PARIS, 1878.

PETER ROBINSON,
103 to 108, OXFORD-STREET.
NEW SPRING GOODS
in all Departments.
ILLUSTRATIONS AND PATTERNS FREE.

FASHION-BOOK and PRICE-LIST now ready.
Sent free by post.

LADIES IN THE COUNTRY
Are requested to write for Patterns of

NEW SPRING SILKS, including

PONGE WASHING SILK, 20 yards for 1 Guinea.

PONGEE GARNITURES, 4½ yards long, Embroidered in Silk, 10s. 6d. the piece.

300 PIECES of GRISAILLE SILKS, 23s. 6d. the Dress.
SPECIAL.

180 PIECES of COLOURED GROS GRAIN, in all the New Shades, 2s. 9½d. per yard.

100 PIECES of NEW BLACK BROCHÉ SATIN, from 2s. 11d. per yard.

BLACK SATINS, soft and bright, from 1s. 6d. per yard.

100 PIECES of extra Rich BLACK SILK MERVEILLEUX, 4s. 6d. per yard, 24 in. wide.

160 SHADES of New DUCHESSE SATINS, extra wide width, 4s. 9d. per yard.

RICH BLACK SATIN GROUND BROCADED VELVET, for Mantles, &c., 7s. 11d. per yard.

ITALIAN SATINS, in every shade of Colour, from 2s. 11d. per yard.

ALL the LATEST NOVELTIES in SHADED and BROCADED SILKS, from 3s. 6d. to 7s. 6d. per yard.

PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON.

LADIES IN THE COUNTRY
are requested to write for Patterns of

NEW SPRING DRESSES, including
ANGOLA BEIGE, 25 in. wide, 10d. to 1s. 6d. per yard.
ANGOLA BEIGE, 45 in. wide, 1s. 9d. to 2s. 6d. per yard.
VIRGINIE CASHMERE, very fine, 36 in. wide, 1s. 6d. per yard.
CACHEMIRE DE L'INDE, 45 in. wide, 2s. 11d. to 3s. 9d. per yard.
CASIMÈRE MERINOS, New Spring Colours, very wide, 1s. 11d. to 2s. 9d.
CACHEMIRE DE PARIS, very fine, 46 in. wide, 1s. 11d. to 3s. 9d. per yard.
VIGOUREUX CLOTH, 26 in. wide, all Wool, 1s. 6d. per yard.
DRAB CASIMIR, 26 in. wide, 1s. to 1s. 9d. per yard.
Rich Wool and Silk MIXED FABRICS, Pompadour and other elegant styles for draping, 1s. 9d. to 3s. 6d. per yard.
All the above in Black and every shade, including the NEW HIGH ART COLOURS.
RICH VELVET VELVETEENS in the New Black, as advertised, very wide, 2s. 6d. to 3s. 6d. per yard. In White and all the New Colours, 2s. 9d. to 4s. 6d. per yard.
SPECIAL SALE of 120 pieces RICH BLACK DAMASSE CASIMIR, at 1s. 9d. per yard; usual price 3s. 6d.
BLACK GRENADINES, Plain, Check, Striped, and Striped.
An enormous Collection of PRINTED SATINES, Percales, Cambrics, Crétonnes, &c., in every variety of design.
Several hundred pieces last year's patterns best French Cambrics, at 8½d. per yard.
OSBORNE LAWNS, a very useful Fabric for MORNING DRESSES, in Plain, Checked, and Striped, all Colours. These goods are very wide, and one uniform price, 7½d. per yard.
PATTERNS POST-FREE.

MADE MATERIAL COSTUMES.
A well-selected assortment of all the leading styles and combinations, including:—

| | |
|---|---|
| Light Fouté Cashmir, trimmed braid .. | £1 9 6 |
| Plain and Fancy Beige .. | 2 12 6 |
| French Cashmere, trimmed rich brocades .. | 3 18 6 |
| Cashmere de l'Inde, trimmed ombré .. | 4 4 0 |
| Plain and Printed Cambrics and Percales .. | 0 14 9 |
| New Printed Satines .. .. .. .. | 1 7 6 |
| Corded and Zephyr Lawns .. .. .. | 1 11 6 |

Patterns and Illustrations of the above Costumes, with Forms for Self-Measurement, post-free.

PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON, W.; and MOURNING WAREHOUSE, 256 to 262, REGENT-STREET.

TEENS that young ladies are in no hurry to get out of—

"LOUIS" VELVET-TEENS.

THE "LOUIS" VELVETEEN
IS SIMPLY UNIQUE.
Do not be induced by persuasion to take any other.

LOUIS
AN EXTRA PROFIT TO YOUR LOSS
may be speciously made if you accept, under whatever name offered, an inferior quality of Velveteen.
"THE LOUIS"
has established its reputation so widely that even a slight inferiority would injure its repute, which constitutes
A TEST OF MERIT,
and guarantee of
UNSURPASSED QUALITY.
Be sure you find the words
THE "LOUIS" VELVETEEN
on every yard,
or you have not the
GENUINE "LOUIS,"
notwithstanding all assertions to the contrary.

LOUIS

NICHOLSON'S
NEW SUMMER SAMPLES.
Patterns post-free.
FRENCH CASHMERES, BEIGES,
SERGES, HERRING-BONE and MILAN STRIPES,
and all the Newest Materials in the most beautiful colours.

NICHOLSON'S
NEW WASHING FABRICS.
Patterns post-free.
FRENCH SATTEENS, CAMBRICS,
OATMEALS, ZEPHYR BRILLIANTS, &c.,
in every new and tasteful design.

NICHOLSON'S
NEW SILKS.
Patterns post-free.
PLUSHES, VELVETS, SATINS,
BROCHÉS, SATIN DE LYONS, and PLAIN LYONS GROS GRAIN,
in every fashionable shade.

D. NICHOLSON and CO.,
50 to 53, ST. PAUL'S-CHURCHYARD, LONDON,
SOLE LESSEES OF THE COSTUME COURT, CRYSTAL PALACE.

PETER ROBINSON'S
COURT and GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
REGENT-STREET.

FAMILY BEREAVEMENTS.
Upon Receipt of Letter or Telegram
PETER ROBINSON'S EXPERIENCED DRESSMAKERS and MILLINERS TRAVEL to ALL PARTS of the COUNTRY no matter the distance FREE OF EXPENSE TO PURCHASERS, with Dresses, Mantles, Millinery, and a full assortment of MADE-UP ARTICLES of the best and most suitable description. Also Materials by the Yard, and supplied at the same VERY REASONABLE PRICES as if Purchased at the Warehouse in "REGENT-STREET."
Mourning for Servants at unexceptionally low rates, at a great saving to large or small families.
Funerals Conducted in Town or Country at Stated Charges.
Address 256 to 262, Regent-street, London.
PETER ROBINSON'S.

THE BEST CRAPES,
THAT WILL NOT SPOT WITH RAIN.
Special qualities finished by the manufacturer in this desirable manner solely to the order of PETER ROBINSON.
Good qualities from 5s. 6d. to 12s. 9d. per yard. Others, not finished by this process, from 1s. 6d. to 4s. 6d.

A SPECIAL PURCHASE.
300 PIECES OF
RICH BLACK BROCADED SILKS, very fashionable now for Costumes and Mantles,
2s. 9d., 3s. 11d., 4s. 3d., 4s. 9d., 5s. 11d., 6s. 6d.

100 PIECES OF
BLACK SATIN IMPERIAL, a New Make of Satin, Rich in appearance, and wears better than any other silk.
5s. 6d., and up to 10s. 3d.

BLACK SATIN MERVEILLEUX, NOW THIS SEASON.
3s. 6d., 4s. 11d., 5s. 9d., 6s. 6d.

BLACK SATIN DE LYON, a good useful Silk, for Hard Wear,
3s. 6d., 4s. 11d., 5s. 11d., 6s. 6d.

BLACK DUCHESS SATIN, at 5s. 6d., 6s. 6d.
Magnificent qualities at 7s. 6d. and 10s. 6d.

BLACK SATINS (Cotton Backs), 1s. 11d., 2s. 6d., 2s. 11d., 3s. 11d.

BLACK BROCADED VELVETS, 5s. 3d., 6s. 11d., 8s. 9d., 10s. 9d.

BLACK TWILLED SILKS, for Summer Wear, at 3s. 6d., and above.

BLACK SURAT SILKS, with White Floral Designs, 2s. 11d., 3s. 6d., 3s. 11d.

COSTUMES in SILK, SATIN, and BROCADE.
Facsimiles of Expensive Paris Models at ¼ of the Cost.
Ready and will be forwarded post-free upon application.
Material for Bodices included.
For Patterns of the above, Please write to

PETER ROBINSON'S, REGENT-STREET, Nos. 256 to 262.

BRANDED SILKS.
The "LOCOMOTIVE" Quality, 23 inches wide, 3s. 11d. per yard.
The "OBELISK" Quality, 24 inches wide, 5s. 9d. per yard.
Every Lady before purchasing Black Silks should see patterns of these standard makes.
Patterns and Parcels carriage paid.
T. VENABLES and SONS, Whitechapel, London, E.

GLOVES AT WHOLESALE PRICES.
The New Detailed Price-List for Spring, 1881, is now ready, and will be forwarded post-free upon application.—THE LONDON GLOVE COMPANY, 45a, Cheapside, E.C.

MRS. S. A. ALLEN'S
WORLD'S HAIR RESTORER
THE ADMIRATION OF THE WORLD. MRS. S. A. Allen's World's Hair Restorer is perfection for its wonderful life-giving properties to faded or falling hair, and quickly changing grey or white hair to its natural youthful colour and beauty. It is not a dye. It requires only a few applications to restore grey hair to its youthful colour and beauty, and to induce luxuriant growth, and its occasional use is all that is needed to preserve it in its highest perfection and beauty. Dandruff is quickly and permanently removed. Sold by all Chemists and Perfumers.

PIESSE and LUBIN.
Opoponax, Jockey Club, Patchouly, Frangipanni, Kiss-Me-Quick, White Rose, and 1000 others, from every flower that breathes a fragrance. 2s. 6d. each, or three Bottles in a Case, 7s. The above sweet Scents in Sachet Powder, 1s. 6d. each, can be forwarded by post. Sold by the fashionable Druggists and Perfumers in all parts of the World.
2, NEW BOND-STREET, LONDON.

TURKISH PASTILS.
"Through all my travels few things astonished me more than seeing the beauties of the harem smoking Narghiles at Stamboul. After smoking a sweet aromatic lozenge or pastil is used by them, which is said to impart an odour of flowers to the breath. I have never seen these breath lozenges but once in Europe, and that was at PIESSE and LUBIN'S shop in Bond-street."—Lady W. Montagu.
In Boxes, 2s.; by post, 2s. 2d.
2, NEW BOND-STREET, LONDON.

BREIDENBACH'S
SACHETS.
Wood Violet, White Rose, Stephanotis, Maréchale, Ess. Bouquet, Musk, Ylang Ylang, Opoponax, Millefleurs, Chypre. In paper envelopes, 1s. each; in silk bags, 1s. each; in satin cushions, 2s. 6d. each. Sold by all Perfumers and Fancy Dealers, or post-free from the Makers, 157a, New Bond-street, London.W.

THE RACES and FÊTES.—Ladies, and all exposed to the Sun and Dust, will find ROWLANDS' KALYDOR most Cooling and Refreshing to the Face. It eradicates all Tan, Sunburn, Freckles, &c., and produces a Beautiful and Delicate Complexion.

ROWLANDS' ODONTO is the purest and most fragrant dentifrice ever made. All dentists will allow that neither washes nor pastes can possibly be a efficacious for polishing the teeth and keeping them sound and white as a pure and non-gritty tooth powder; such Rowlands' Odonto has always proved itself to be. Ask any Dealer in Perfumery for Rowlands' Articles.

THE COURT HAIR DESTROYER.—The newly-discovered, harmless, only effectual remedy for superfluous hair, 3s. 6d.; post, privately packed, 45 stamps, of Inventor, John Leon, 10, Portcoul-road, London, W.; or Chemists.

ALFRED B. PEARCE, 39, Ludgate-hill,
INVITES INSPECTION of all that is new and beautiful in useful and ornamental CHINA and GLASS, including

| | |
|---|---|
| Dinner Services ("Cottage"), 50 pieces .. .. | £2 6 |
| Dinner Services for 12 persons (106 pieces) .. .. | 3 5 |
| China Dessert Services for 12 persons, Gilt, 21s., Ungilt " | 1 0 |
| Gilt China Tea Services, 40 pieces, 12s. .. 70 pieces | 2 6 |
| China Breakfast Sets for 6 persons, 11s. .. for 4 persons | 2 0 |
| Toilet Services (for washstands), 6s. 6d., 5s. 6d., .. and | 2 2 |
| White Stone Jugs, "The Grecian," .. set of three | 1 2 |

All really excellent patterns.

| | |
|---|---|
| Quart Decanters, good cut glass, 5s. per pair .. .. plain | 4 0 |
| Claret Decanters (with handle), 4s. each .. .. and | 3 0 |
| Plain light Claret Glasses, well made, 6s. per doz. .. and | 4 6 |
| Wine Glasses, plain or cut, Ports and sherries, per doz. | 1 3 |
| Engraved Wine Glasses .. do. .. do. | 2 6 |
| Hock Glasses, ruby bowl, 6s. per doz. .. green bowl | 3 0 |
| Tumblers, cut, 3s. 3d.; plain, 2s. 9d., moulded, per doz. | 2 6 |
| Plain light Finger-Glasses, taper shape .. .. per doz. | 6 6 |

Other articles proportionately cheap.
Descriptive Catalogue post-free.
ALFRED B. PEARCE, 39, LUDGATE-HILL. Established 1760.

CHUBB'S SAFES FOR JEWELS, DEEDS, PLATE, BULLION, &c.

CHUBB'S LOCKS AND LATCHES, CHESTS, BOXES, &c.

CHUBB'S ILLUSTRATED PRICE-LISTS POST-FREE.

CHUBB and SON, 128, Queen Victoria-street, E.C.; and 68, St. James's-street, London.

EPPS'S COCOA. GRATEFUL and COMFORTING.
"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operation of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.
JAMES EPPS and CO., HOMŒOPATHIC CHEMISTS.
Also, EPPS'S CHOCOLATE ESSENCE, for Afternoon Use.

TRELOAR and SONS' LUDGATE-HILL.
MATS. FLOORCLOTH.
LINOLEUM. CARPETS.

TRELOAR and SONS, 69, Ludgate-hill, were established 1832. They are the only firm in London who deal exclusively in Floor Coverings. They have been awarded seven Prize Medals, including one at Paris, 1878. The Fine Arts Galleries at the International Exhibitions of 1851, 1862, 1865, 1872, 1873, 1880, and 1878, were covered with matting specially manufactured by them.

GENUINE DUBLIN WHISKY,
THE MOST WHOLESOME OF ALL SPIRITS.
DUBLIN WHISKY, Distilled by Messrs. JOHN JAMESON and SON, GEORGE ROE and CO., WILLIAM JAMESON and CO., and JOHN POWER and SON, can be obtained in Wood by wholesale merchants and dealers, direct from their respective distilleries.

HORNIMAN'S TEA for Forty Years has commanded a large sale, because it can always be relied on for strength, flavour, and cheapness. It is the best tea imported. Sold only in Packets.

ROBERT ROBERTS AND CO.'S CELEBRATED TEAS.
TWELVE POUNDS AND UPWARDS CARRIAGE PAID.
Samples and Price-lists free by post.
Queen Insurance-buildings, Liverpool. ESTABLISHED 1860.
No agents.
All communications and orders direct.

CHOCOLAT MENIER.
Awarded the GRAND DIPLOMA OF HONOUR.

CHOCOLAT MENIER, in ½ lb. and ¼ lb. Packets.
For BREAKFAST and SUPPER.

CHOCOLAT MENIER.—Awarded Twenty Eight PRIZE MEDALS.
Consumption annually exceeds 18,000,000 lbs.

CHOCOLAT MENIER. Paris, London, New York.
Sold Everywhere.

EPPS'S CHOCOLATE ESSENCE.
Cocoa deprived of its over-richness and substantiality. Calculated to supersede tea, its exhilarating principle, theobromine, predominating. Sugarless, and, when made, of the consistence of coffee. Each Packet (6s. or 1s.) or Tin (9s., 1s. 6d., 2s. 6d., 5s., or 7s. 6d.) is labelled "James Epps and Co., Homœopathic Chemists."

SCHWEITZER'S COCOATINA.
Anti-Dyspeptic Cocoa or Chocolate Powder.
Guaranteed Pure Soluble Cocoa, with excess of Fat extracted. Four times the strength of Cocoa Thickened yet Weakened with Arrowroot, Starch, &c.
The faculty pronounce it the most nutritious, perfectly digestive Beverage for "BREAKFAST, LUNCHEON, or SUPPER." Keeps in all Climates. Requries no Cooking. A teaspoonful to Breakfast Cup, costing less than a halfpenny. Samples post-free. In Air-Tight Tins, at 1s. 6d., 3s., &c., by Chemists and Grocers.
H. SCHWEITZER AND CO., 10, Adam-street, London, W.C.

THE ESSEX FLOUR and GRAIN COMPANY, Liverpool-road, London, N., supply the best goods only. Flour: Whites for Pastry, per 56 lb., 9s. 6d.; Households, for Bread making, 8s. 6d.; Whole Wheaten Meal (granulated), for Brown Bread, 8s.; Best Scotch Oatmeal for Porridge, per 14 lb., 3s.; Hominy, 2s.; Barley, Buck Wheat, Maize, and Mixed Corn for Poultry, per bushel, 5s.; Middlings, 3s.; Bran, 1s.; Pearl Split Peas, per peck, 3s.; Split Egyptian Lentils, 3s.; Meal Biscuits, per 14 lb., 2s. 6d.; Barley Meal, per 48 lbs., 5s.; Lentil Flour, per 1 lb. tin, 8d.; per 14 lb., 8s. All other kinds of Grain and Seeds. Price-List on application. Special quotations for large orders. P.O. Orders and Cheques to be made in favour of George Young.

HAY FEVER CURED BY
DR. DUNBAR'S ALKARAM, or Anti-Catarrh Smelling-Bottle.
ALKARAM. HAY FEVER.
ALKARAM. HAY FEVER.
ALKARAM. HAY FEVER.
IF inhaled on the first symptoms, ALKARAM will at once arrest them, and cure severe cases in half an hour. Sold by all Chemists, 4s. 6d., or free, address, Dr. Dunbar, care of Messrs. F. Newbery and sons, 37, Newgate-street.

TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON, For CONSTIPATION, BILE, HEADACHE.

TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON, A LAXATIVE AND REFRESHING FRUIT LOZENGE, UNIVERSALLY PRESCRIBED BY THE FACULTY.

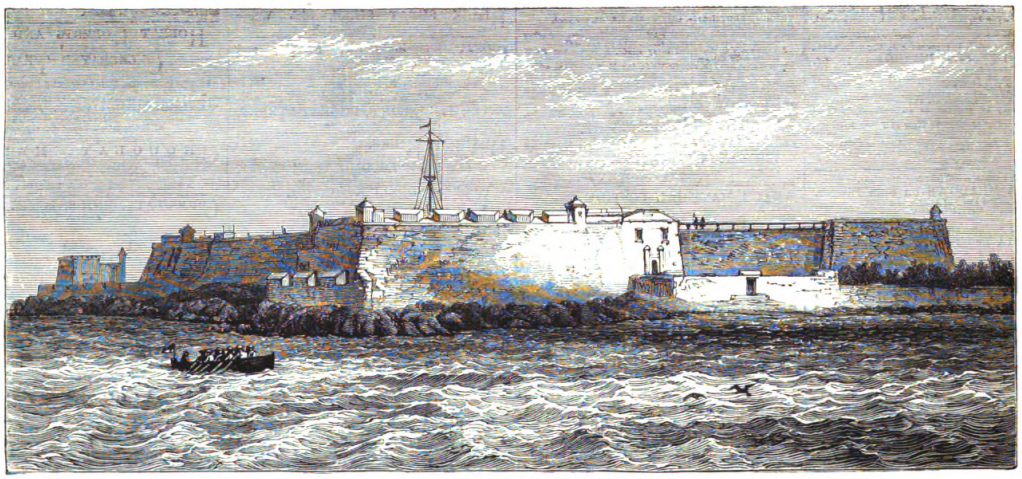
TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON.
2s. 6d. per Box, stamp included.
Sold by all Chemists and Druggists.
Wholesale—E. GRILLON, 49, Queen-street, London, E.C.

"KEATING'S POWDER" kills BUGS, Moths, Fleas, Beetles, and all Insects (perfectly unrivalled). Harmless to everything but Insects. 1s., 6d., and 1s.

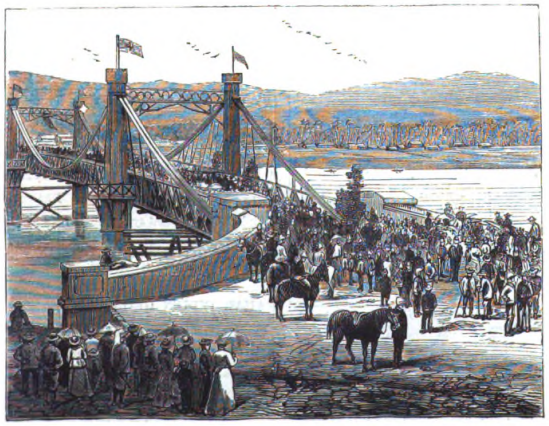
SAKALAVE POLICEMAN.

HOVA BEACH GOVERNOR AT MORONDOVA.

SAKALAVE POLICEMAN, MADAGASCAR.—SEE PAGE 530.



FORT ST. SEBASTIAN, MOZAMBIQUE.—SEE PAGE 530.



OPENING OF FITZROY BRIDGE, ROCKHAMPTON, QUEENSLAND.—SEE PAGE 530.

CHURCH OF THE HOLY SEPULCHRE, AUCKLAND, NEW ZEALAND.—SEE PAGE 530.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

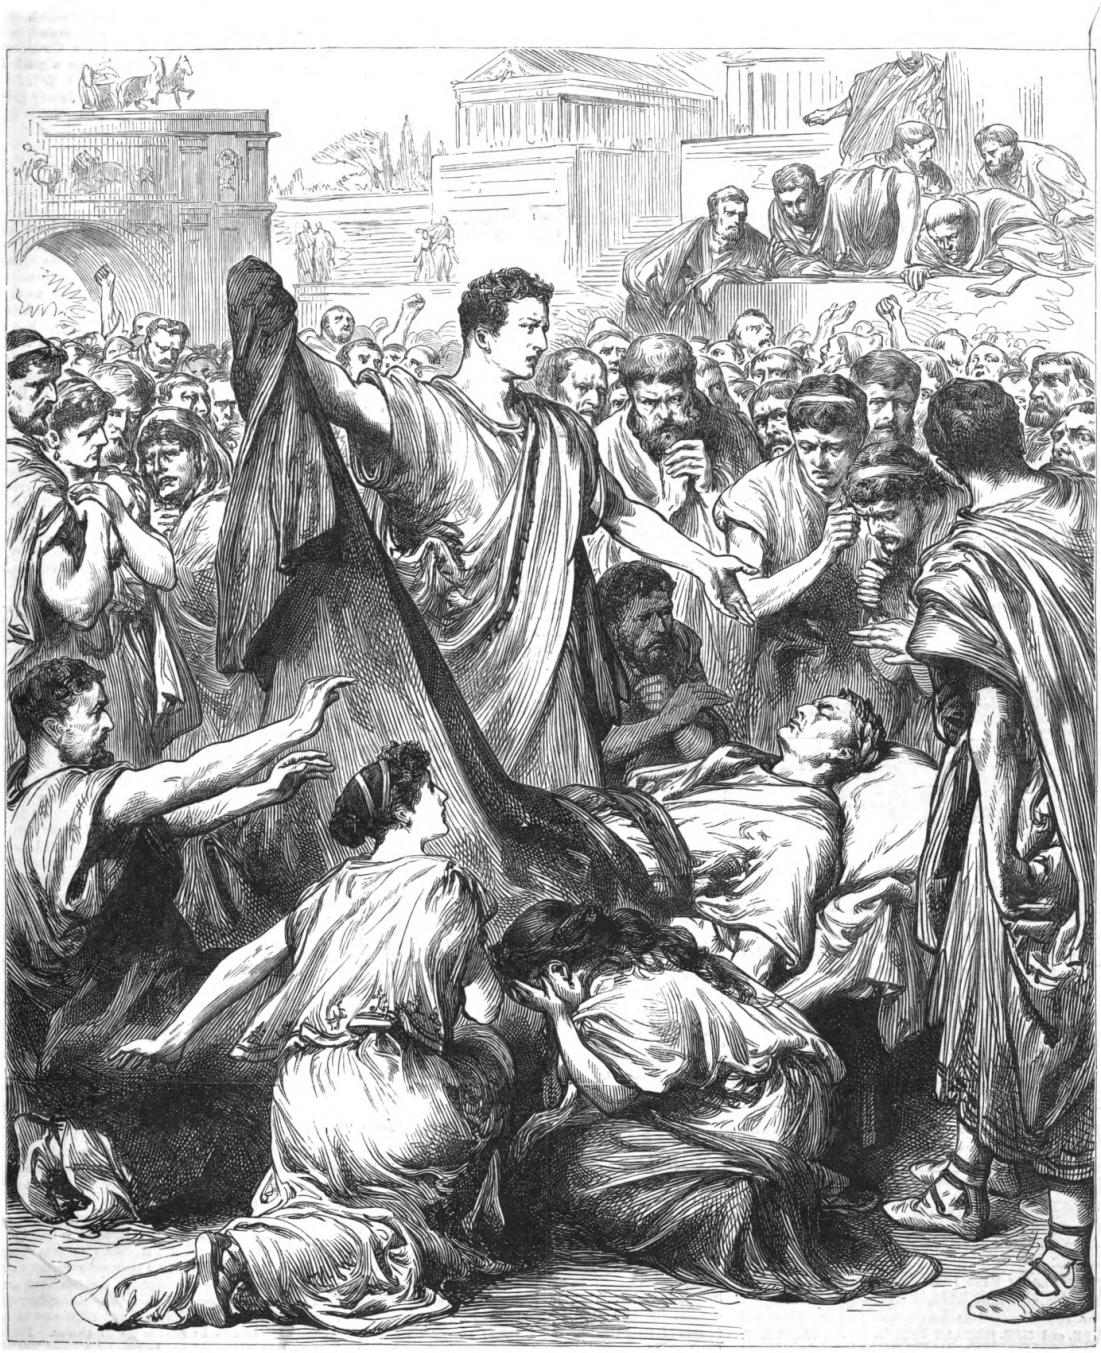
REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 2194.—VOL. LXXVIII. SATURDAY, JUNE 4, 1881. TWO WHOLE SHEETS | SIXPENCE. By Post, 6½p.



SCENE FROM "JULIUS CÆSAR," AS PERFORMED AT DRURY LANE THEATRE BY THE SAXE-MEININGEN COURT COMPANY.—SEE PAGE 542.

BIRTHS.

On May 23, at Dinder, near Wells, Somerset, the wife of Arthur F. Somerville, Barrister-at-Law, of a son.

On April 7, at Buena Vista, Mexico, the wife of Edward W. Jackson, Esq., A.M.I.C.E., General Manager of the Mexican Railway, of a son.

DEATHS.

On April 7, at Limache, near Valparaiso, Chili, Ellen Jane, wife of John Clarke Marshall, of Valparaiso, after a long and painful illness. Very dearly loved.

On May 27, at her residence, at Hampstead, Caroline, Lady Hill, widow of the late Sir Rowland Hill, K.C.B., in her 85th year.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, or Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

WHITSUNTIDE ARRANGEMENTS.—LONDON, BRIGHTON, AND SOUTH COAST RAILWAY.—EXTENSION OF TIME FOR RETURN TICKETS for distances over ten miles.
EXTRA TRAINS (1st, 2nd, and 3rd class) from London on Saturday, June 4; returning the following Monday and Tuesday.

PORTSMOUTH and ISLE OF WIGHT.—CHEAP TRAINS, Saturday, June 4, to Havant and Portsmouth from Victoria 1.0 p.m., and London Bridge 1.40 p.m., returning the following Tuesday.
A CHEAP TRAIN on Whit Sunday, from London Bridge 8.0 a.m., calling at New Cross, Norwood Junction, and Croydon; and from Victoria 7.50 a.m., calling at Clapham Junction, to Arundel, Littlehampton, Bognor, Chichester, Havant, and Portsmouth, returning same day.
A CHEAP TRAIN, Whit Monday, from London Bridge and Victoria 7.30 a.m., to Havant and Portsmouth.
Return fares between London and Portsmouth Town and Havant, 7s. 6d., 5s.; Portsmouth Harbour, 8s., 5s. 6d.

HASTINGS, ST. LEONARD'S, and EASTBOURNE.—CHEAP TRAINS on WHIT SUNDAY and WHIT MONDAY, from London Bridge, calling at New Cross and Croydon; and from Victoria, calling at Clapham Junction.
Fare there and back, 5s.
EVERY SUNDAY, A SPECIAL CHEAP FAST TRAIN from Victoria 9.23 a.m. calling at Clapham Junction; and from London Bridge 9.30 a.m., calling at Croydon. Fare Return Tickets, 10s., 8s., 6s.

BRIGHTON.—EVERY SUNDAY, a CHEAP FIRST-CLASS TRAIN from Victoria 10.45 a.m., calling at Clapham Junction, and from London Bridge, 10.55 a.m., calling at Croydon. Day Return Tickets, 10s.
SPECIAL CHEAP TRAINS on WHIT SUNDAY, Monday, and Tuesday, from London Bridge, calling at New Cross; from Victoria, calling at Clapham Junction and Croydon. Fare, there and back, 4s.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—FREQUENT DIRECT TRAINS DAILY to the crystal Palace from London Bridge and New Cross; also from Victoria, York-road, Kensington, West Brompton, and Chelsea.
For full particulars of Times, Fares &c., see Handbills and Time-books, to be had at all stations; and at 28, Regent-circus, Piccadilly; and 8, Grand Hotel-buildings, Trafalgar-square, where Tickets may be obtained.
J. P. KNIGHT, General Manager.

BATH AND WEST OF ENGLAND SHOW AT TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—JUNE 6, 7, 8, 9, and 10.
On EACH of the ABOVE DAYS a SPECIAL CHEAP FAST TRAIN will run as under:—

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Victoria | 9.40 a.m. | Croydon, East | 10.10 a.m. |
| London Bridge | 9.50 " | Redhill Junction | 10.23 " |

Returning from Tunbridge Wells, 6.0 p.m.
FARES THERE AND BACK:—

| From | 1st Class. | 2nd Class. | 3rd Class. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Victoria, London Bridge, or Croydon | 10s. | 7s. | 5s. 6d. |
| Redhill Junction | 7s. | 5s. | 3s. 6d. |

(By order) J. P. KNIGHT, General Manager.

LONDON AND NORTH-WESTERN RAILWAY.—WHITSUNTIDE HOLIDAYS.
The TICKET-OFFICES at EUSTON, BROAD-STREET, KENSINGTON, and WILLESDEN JUNCTION, will be OPEN throughout the day on FRIDAY, SATURDAY, and MONDAY, JUNE 3, 4, and 6, so that Passengers wishing to obtain Tickets for any destination on the London and North-Western Railway can do so at any time of the day prior to the starting of the Trains. The Tickets will be dated to suit the convenience of Passengers.
Tickets for all the Principal Stations on the London and North-Western System and its connections can be obtained at any time (Sundays and Bank Holidays excepted) at the following Town Booking-offices of the Company:—

| | |
|---|---|
| Swan-with-Two-Necks, Gresham-street, E.C. | George and Blue Boar, Holborn, W.C. |
| Spread Eagle, Gracechurch-street, E.C. | Spread Eagle, Piccadilly-circus, W. |
| Belle-in-the-Office, Fleet-street, E.C. | 35, Albert-gate, Knightsbridge, W. |
| Golden Cross, Charing-cross, W.C. | 210, Oxford-street, W. |
| 59, St. Martin's-lane, W.C. | 3, Aldersgate, Kensington, W. |
| 10, Holborn, W.C. | 138, Newington-causeway, S.E. |

The Tickets obtained at these offices will be available from either Euston or Kensington (Addison-road), and will be issued at the same Fares as are charged at the Station, and will be dated to suit the convenience of Passengers. They can also be obtained at GAZE and SON'S TOURIST OFFICE, 142, Strand.
On SATURDAY, JUNE 4, THE EXPRESS TRAIN leaving London (Euston) at 5.0 p.m., Birmingham (New-street) at 5.35 p.m., Liverpool (Lime-street) at 7.55, and Manchester (Victoria) 7.30 p.m., will be extended to Wolverhampton.
On WHIT-SUNDAY, JUNE 5, an Additional Train, First, Second, and Third Class will leave Euston Station at 10.5 a.m. for Truro, calling at all intermediate Stations.
The Express Trains to and from the City, St. Albans, Watford, and Kensington, will not run on Bank Holiday (Whit-Monday), June 6.
G. FINDLAY, General Manager.
Euston Station, May, 1881.

LONDON AND NORTH-WESTERN RAILWAY.—TOURIST ARRANGEMENTS, 1881.
TOURIST TICKETS will be issued from MAY 2 to OCT. 31, 1881.
For particulars see Time Tables and Programmes issued by the Company.
Euston Station, London, 1881. G. FINDLAY, General Manager.

GREAT EASTERN RAILWAY.—Seaside.—TWO MONTHS RETURN TICKETS are now issued by all trains to YARMOUTH, Lowestoft, Cromer, Hunstanton, Southwold, Aldeburgh, Felixstowe, Harwich, Deerness, Walton-on-the-Naze, and Weeley (for Clacton-on-Sea).
Fortnightly, and Friday or Saturday to Monday, First, Second, and Third Class Return Tickets are also issued at REDUCED FARES to all Stations to Hunstanton, Cromer, Yarmouth, Lowestoft, Walton-on-the-Naze, Weeley (for Clacton-on-Sea), Ipswich, Harwich, Felixstowe, Aldeburgh, or Southwold.
London, June, 1881. WILLIAM BURT, General Manager.

AGRICULTURAL HALL, ISLINGTON.
HORSE SHOW.—OPENS THIS DAY, SATURDAY, JUNE 4, 2s. 6d.
HORSE SHOW.—WHIT-MONDAY, JUNE 6, 1s.
HORSE SHOW.—WHIT-TUESDAY, JUNE 7, 1s.
HORSE SHOW.—WEDNESDAY, JUNE 8, 1s.
HORSE SHOW.—THURSDAY, JUNE 9, 1s.
HORSE SHOW.—LAST DAY, FRIDAY, JUNE 10, 1s.
HORSE SHOW.—Doors Open at Ten o'Clock.
HORSE SHOW.—Parade of PRIZE HORSES Every Day.
HORSE SHOW.—Register of Hunters, Hacks, Harness Horses for Sale. Apply to Secretary.
HORSES UNDER SADDLE and in HARNESS.
HORSE SHOW.—Leaping, extra, MONDAY.
HORSE SHOW.—LEAPING COMPETITION EVERY DAY.
HORSE SHOW.—Reserved Seats, 10s. and 5s.
HORSE SHOW.—Unreserved Seats, 2s. 6d. and 1s.
HORSE SHOW.—Entrance, Islington-green.
HORSE SHOW.—Reserved Seat entrance, Barford-street.
By order, S. SIDNEY, Secretary and Manager, Agricultural Hall.

WHITSUNTIDE HOLIDAYS.
ST. JAMES'S HALL, PICCADILLY.
THE MOORE and BURGESS MINSTRELS will present
AN ENTIRELY NEW AND MOST ATTRACTIVE PROGRAMME
WHIT-MONDAY, JUNE 6, 1881.
New and Beautiful Songs and Choruses.
New Comic Sketches and Novel Dances.
Special Engagement of
Mr. JAMES and Mr. HENRY HICLINE, the Inimitable Musical Mimics,
Their First Appearance in England for three years, after fulfilling brilliantly successful Engagements in Italy and Russia.
TWO PERFORMANCES
will be given during the Whitsun Week in the following order:
MONDAY, TUESDAY, WEDNESDAY, and SATURDAY, commencing each day at Three o'Clock, in addition to the usual Performances,
EVERY NIGHT AT EIGHT.
Fauteuils, 5s.; Sofa Stalls, 3s.; Area, 2s.; Gallery, 1s.
Doors open at 2.30 and 7.30. No Fees.
Tickets and Places can be secured at Austin's Ticket-Office, St. James's Hall.

ON WHIT-TUESDAY AFTERNOON, AT THREE,
THE MOORE and BURGESS MINSTRELS will give an EXTRA GRAND MATINEE,
when the New Programme will be given in its entirety, in which the entire strength of the largest and most magnificent company in England will appear.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Irving. On MONDAY, WEDNESDAY, and FRIDAY, at 7.45, THE CUP (2nd Time) and THE BELLE'S STRATAGEM.—Mr. Irving and Miss Ellen Terry, Messrs. Terriss, Howe, Pinero, Tyars, Beauchamp, Mackintosh, Mead, Mdmes. Pauncefort, Bowman, and Miss Pinero. On TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and SATURDAY, at Eight o'clock, OTHELLO—Othello, Mr. Irving; Iago, Mr. Booth; Desdemona, Miss Ellen Terry. MORNING PERFORMANCE—THE BELLE'S STRATAGEM, TO-DAY (Saturday), at 2.30—Mr. Irving and Miss Ellen Terry; and on WEDNESDAY NEXT, JUNE 8, at Two o'clock, OTHELLO—Othello, Mr. Booth; Iago, Mr. Irving; Desdemona, Miss Ellen Terry. Box Office (Mr. Hurst), open Ten to Five. Seats also booked by Letter or Telegram.

BENEFIT of MISS ELLEN TERRY.—WEDNESDAY, JUNE 15.—Miss ELLEN TERRY begs to announce that OTHELLO will be performed, Mr. Booth having most kindly offered his services on this his last appearance at the Lyceum—Othello, Mr. Booth; Iago, Mr. Irving; Desdemona, Miss Ellen Terry. Private Boxes, £1 11s. 6d. to £4 4s.; Stalls, 10s.; Dress Circle, 5s.—LYCEUM.

MR. and MRS. GERMAN REED'S ENTERTAINMENT.
CHERRY TREE FARM, a New Piece by Arthur Law; Music by Hamilton Clarke; YE FANCIE FAIRE 1881, a New Musical Sketch by Mr. Corney Grain; and A FLIGHT IDEA, by Arthur Law; Music by Arthur Cecil. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday, at Eight; Thursday and Saturday at Three.—ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place. Admission 1s., 2s., Stalls, 3s., 5s. No Fees. Booking-office open from 10 to Six. Twice Whit Monday, at Three and Eight.

CORPORATION OF LIVERPOOL.—AUTUMN EXHIBITION OF MODERN PICTURES IN OIL AND WATER COLOUR, 1881.
NOTICE TO EXHIBITORS.
The above Exhibition will be OPEN in the WALKER ART-GALLERY, on MONDAY, SEPT. 5. The days for receiving Pictures are from Aug. 1 to 13, both inclusive.
Forms, Cards of Particulars, and all information may be obtained on application to Mr. Charles Boyll, Curator, Walker Art-Gallery, Liverpool, to whom all Works of Art intended for exhibition should be addressed.
London Agent, Mr. James Bourlet, 17, Nassau-street, Middlesex Hospital.
JOSEPH RAYNER, Town Clerk, Honorary Secretary.

INSTITUTE OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS.
The FORTY-SEVENTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION is now OPEN from Nine till Seven. Admission, 1s.; Catalogue, 6d.
Gallery, 53, Pall-mall. H. F. PHILLIPS, Secretary.

ROSA BONHEUR'S celebrated PICTURES, ON THE ALERT, and A FORAGING PARTY, which gained for the artist the Cross of the Order of Leopold of Belgium, at the Antwerp Academy, 1878. Also, the complete cycle of works on Rosa Bonheur, including the well-known "Horse Fair," now on Exhibition at L. H. LEFEVRE'S GALLERY, 1a, King-street, St. James's, S.W. Admission, One Shilling. Ten to Five.

DORÉ'S GREAT WORKS.—"ECCE HOMO" ("Full of divine dignity."—The Times) and "THE ASCENSION;" "CHRIST LEAVING THE PRETORIUM;" "CHRIST ENTERING JERUSALEM," with all his other Great Pictures.—DORÉ GALLERY, 35, New Bond-street. Daily, 10 to 6. 1s.

MR. MARTIN COLNAGHI (GUARDI GALLERY, H. Hammerich begs to invite the lovers of art that his FIFTH SUMMER EXHIBITION contains works by the great colourist, Hermann Philips; others by Domingo and Charlemont, and by the young Spanish painter, José Benlliure. Open Daily, Ten till Dusk.

LA SOCIÉTÉ DES AQUARELLISTES FRANÇAIS. Now ON VIEW, an EXHIBITION of WATER-COLOUR DRAWINGS by the Members of the above Society, at GOUPIL and CO.'S GALLERIES, 25, Bedford-street, Covent-garden. Admission, One Shilling. An Illustrated Catalogue has been published.

SWISS EXHIBITION OF SWISS SCENERY AND SWISS SCENES, by Swiss Painters. Instituted by the Cercle de Beaux Arts of Geneva.—166, New Bond-street. Admission, 1s.

WESTMINSTER PANORAMA, YORK-STREET, QUEEN ANNE'S-GATE, S.W. (opposite St. James's Park Station and adjoining Broad Sanctuary).—THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO, by C. Castellani. Covering over 20,000 square feet of canvas. The largest Panorama in England. WILL OPEN WHIT MONDAY, JUNE 6. Admission One Shilling.

ROYAL PANORAMA GALLERIES, Leicester-square.—LE SALON A LONDRES.—EXHIBITION OF PICTURES by MM. Boudry, Bonnat, Bouvin, J. Beninger, A. Breton, Carolus-Duran, De Knyff, Germain Hebert, Henner, Jundet, Jules Lefebvre, Emile Levy, Luminais, Madrazo, Meissonier, Robert-Fleury, E. Isabey, Tissot, Yollon, &c. Sculpture by D'Epinay, Carrier-Belleuse, Gerdin, &c. Open MONDAY, JUNE 6, from Ten a.m. to Seven p.m. Admission, One Shilling; Season Ticket, Five Shillings.

SACRED HARMONIC SOCIETY, St. James's Hall.—Conductor, Sir Michael Costa. FRIDAY next, JUNE 10, at 7.30 (last concert this season), Beethoven's ST. CECILIA (conducted by the Composer); and Rossini's STABAT MATER. Mrs. Osgood, Madame Patey, Mr. Edward Lloyd, and Mr. Santley. Organist, Mr. Willing. Tickets, 10s. 6d., 7s., 5s., and 2s. 6d., at Society's offices, No. 7, John-street, Adelphi; Austin's, St. James's Hall; and Agents'.

MR. GANZ'S ORCHESTRAL CONCERTS, ST. JAMES'S HALL.—Gluck's celebrated Opera ORPHEUS will be performed at the Fourth Concert, SATURDAY AFTER. next, JUNE 11, at Three o'Clock. Solo vocalists, Madame Lablache, Miss Carlotta Elliot, "Lord" Miss Agnes Larkcom; and "Orpheus," Maccabe Patey, Full Chorus. The programme will also include Schubert's unfinished symphony in B minor. Conductor, Mr. Ganz. Tickets, 10s. 6d., 7s., 5s., 3s., and 1s., at the usual Agents', and of Mr. Wilhelm Ganz, 128, Harley-street, W.

MOHAWK MINSTRELS.—MARYLEBONE THEATRE. WHIT MONDAY AFTERNOON at Three, and every evening at Eight for Four Weeks only. Grand Novelty Programme for the Whitsun Holidays. Usual prices.

MOHAWK MINSTRELS.—MARYLEBONE THEATRE. The Best Entertainment in the world.—Vide Public Press.

MADAME SOPHIE MENTER.

MADAME SOPHIE MENTER'S PIANOFORTE RECITAL, THURSDAY AFTERNOON, JUNE 9, ST. JAMES'S HALL. Three o'Clock. Stalls, 10s. 6d., Reserved, 5s.; Balcony, 3s.; Admission, 1s.—Stanley Lucas, Weber, and Co., 84, New Bond-street.

MADAME SOPHIE MENTER will play Bach's Toccata, Beethoven's Sonata (Op. 109), Scarlatti, Schumann's Etudes Symphoniques, Liszt's Schubert and his Pantoia Hungarois; first time, selection from Chopin, and Valse Caprice, Rubinstein. Admission, 1s. Usual Agents'; and Austin's, St. James's Hall.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, JUNE 4, 1881.

It is not the fault of M. Gambetta, any more than of Mr. Gladstone, that wherever he goes his presence extorts homage and enthusiasm. The incidents of his recent journey to Cahors, the scene of his boyhood, in south-western France, were too natural to have been planned beforehand—too striking to escape public criticism. The whole population in this district, which has been one of the strongholds of Imperialism, turned out to greet him as an uncrowned monarch, and in his bearing and speeches the great French statesman showed an affability, flexibility, and elevation of tone which any crowned head might envy. M. Gambetta did not go to the Department of the Lôt to announce a new political departure, but to commend Republican ideas as best suited to the needs of his countrymen, to preach the virtues of Opportunism—that is, of Conservative progress—to a rural democracy that wants to see peace, order, and liberty consolidated, and to protest against a revival in any shape of that Cæsarism which has been the bane of France. In unveiling the monument to the local victims of the Franco-German war, M. Gambetta modestly refrained from any reference to his own Herculean and patriotic services when his country was in the depths of despair, which constitute his earliest and strongest claim upon the gratitude of France; but he skilfully improved the event as a protest against a policy of aggression, adventure, or conquest. And while insisting upon the priceless value of free institutions, and of a Constitution which, whatever its shortcomings, "might be perfected in a Liberal sense," he seized the occasion to render generous homage to the Chief of the State, whose "past was a pledge for his present and a guarantee for his future."

But, however sober his demeanour and guarded his language, the brilliant reception of M. Gambetta at Cahors, and the pervading feeling elsewhere that he has become the embodiment of French political aspirations, has created in Paris a profound impression not unmixed with jealousy. To this growing and uneasy conviction of his personal ascendancy is to be traced the action of the Senate on the Scrutin de Liste question—a change in the mode of elections which was carried, not without difficulty, in the Chamber by the personal influence of its President. The larger proportion of the Committee appointed to report on the project are hostile to the innovation, and they are believed to reflect the views of three fourths of the senators, as well as of President Grévy himself. But, whether or not the favourite plan of M. Gambetta be ultimately carried, the coming general election will, no doubt, result in the return of a large majority of representatives devoted to him, and the voice of the French people will demand that the Republican leader shall assume the responsibilities of office.

Prince Bismarck's celebrated phrase beati possidentes has received fresh illustration in the occupation of Tunis by France. No Power finds it expedient to challenge that fait accompli except the Porte, whose formal vindication of its equivocal claim to suzerainty over the Bey is quite unheeded. The indignation of the Italians at having been overreached by their quick-witted neighbours has evaporated in a change of Ministry not adapted to strengthen the national prestige. In England such irritation as was caused by the invasion of Tunis has almost subsided. Lord Salisbury on Friday last took occasion to rebuke angry feeling on the subject, and to express approval of the course pursued by his successor at the Foreign Office. Although, said the Conservative leader, the French Government had gone a good deal further than merely ensuring or extending their influence over Tunis, he doubted whether "there is any ground in the interests of this country alone for any intervention or remonstrant action;" and he echoed the recent warning of Mr. Gladstone against taking any course that would strain or endanger the friendly relations between France and England. As was suspected, the coup in Tunis is viewed by the German Chancellor with complacency, if not with absolute approval. The veteran diplomatist is reported to have recently stated, in his usual blunt fashion, to M. Saint-Genest, the well-known French critic, that, putting aside the Alsace-Lorraine question as beyond the range of discussion, he was anxious to arrive at an understanding with France, and to be no longer regarded as her enemy. So long as she didn't look to the Rhine, he was willing she should have her way. Not only would he let France take Tunis, but he would find her something else if she would only be sensible. Prince Bismarck's cynical foreign policy has had its advocates nearer home. Himself and other diplomatists of the age illustrate the ease with which the property of others can be given away. This may be adroit statesmanship, but is hardly consistent with international morality.

M. Goschen is on his way home to enjoy well-earned repose, or perhaps to find a new field for his energies in the laborious duties of Chancellor of the Exchequer. Owing mainly to his capacity and earnestness, two phases of the Eastern problem have been amicably arranged. Europe has wellnigh forgotten the Dulcigno perplexities and complications, the novelty of the combined naval demonstration, and the perverse obstinacy of Turkey, which was only overcome by the threat of impounding the revenue of Smyrna. More protracted, but hardly so critical, have been the negotiations for the cession of territory to Greece. The acceptance by the Porte of the Convention embodying the compromise as arranged by the Powers was probably facilitated by the turn of events in Tunis. But, whatever the cause, Mr. Goschen obtained of late great influence over the Sultan; and external pressure has, happily, persuaded the Greeks to accept the award. This week the Convention has been signed by the Greek Minister at Constantinople, and, according to its provisions, the whole of the ceded territory, which comprises nearly all Thessaly, will be surrendered to the Hellenic Government by the end of November. Without firing a shot, Greece will secure a large addition of fertile territory; the contingency of a European war is averted; and, if Hobart Pasha speaks truly, the Porte will now turn its attention to schemes for meeting its pecuniary liabilities.

The Whitsuntide recess gives breathing-time for a calm survey of the political situation. The prospect is disheartening, if not dismal. Ireland is as much England's difficulty in June as she was in January. She monopolises legislative time and absorbs legislative anxieties without the slightest prospect of early relief. Whatever may be the reasons, the Coercion Bills have broken down in action; the Land League more audaciously than ever defies the Irish Executive; and the state of things across St. George's Channel is more menacing than it was four months ago. A handful of bitter partisans, who have their own purposes to serve, vent their spite upon the Land Bill, as though its object were to enslave rather than enfranchise the Irish people—obstructing by the most ingenious devices the business of legislation, and flaunting their bitter personal differences and recriminations in the face of a disgusted House of Commons. Not one single clause of this elaborate measure has yet passed, and many hundreds of amendments will have to be discussed and disposed of ere the bill emerges from Committee. All the coercion that is effective is that brought to bear by a score of rabid Parnellites to extort opportunities of discussing their own personal grievances and to wear out the patience of Parliament and the Government. Remedy there is none, while the present standing orders remain in force; for, unless a great crisis should arise, "urgency" cannot be renewed this season. Probably July will be far spent before the Irish Land Bill leaves the House of Commons, and August on the wane ere the perplexing problem is somehow solved.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

I do not remember that I ever claimed the gift of Prophecy; although in this Journal I once, and quite accidentally, stumbled on a curiously "straight tip" as to the violent end of the late Sultan Abdul Aziz. But this week I really do feel a "call" to vie with "Zadkiel" and emulate the deceased Brothers the Prophet.

He passed up Tott'nham Court Road,
Either by choice or by whim;
And there he saw Brothers the Prophet
And Brothers the Prophet saw him.

So sang Southey, in "The Devil's Walk." But my vaulting ambition goes further than this. I aspire to be a Derby Prophet; and I confidently predict that there will be more Americans on Epsom Downs on the Derby Day than have ever been known to be present at our "Isthmian Games." It is not only that horses of which Mr. Pierre Lorillard and Mr. James Keen are owners are exciting the curiosity of English trainers and sporting men generally; but there is a teeming multitude of our Transatlantic cousins over here just now, and they all appear to have a tremendous amount of ready money to spend. They have discovered that Paris is not the only "city where good Americans go to when they die." More reverently, they confess that London in summer time is the most habitable, the most beautiful, and the gayest capital in the world. Paris is deserted by the upper classes at midsummer. Everybody who can afford it rushes away aux eaux—to the watering-places. The heat of Berlin, Madrid, Milan, and St. Petersburg, between June and August, is simply intolerable; and I pity the man who, for his sins, is condemned to spend a summer in New York.

So the Americans have swooped down upon us in their thousands. Some will back the horses of Mr. Lorillard and Mr. Keen; others are anxious to offer five-thousand-guinea commissions to Mr. Millais; and I sincerely hope that others may be induced to have peacock panels, Japanese butterfly doors, and bird of paradise ceilings, painted by Mr. James Whistler, for the embellishment of their palatial residences in Fifth Avenue, New York; Honest Men's Row, Philadelphia (I think that is the name of a row of splendid mansions in the City of Brotherly Love); and "Nob Hill," San Francisco. And should any Transatlantic millionaire require any five-act tragedies, epic poems Systems of Cosmogony, statistical compilations, or Essays on Organic Remains, let him send to me: and he can have any quantity of perfectly new and original manuscripts at reasonable prices, and for ready money only.

Will some serious student tell me, as seriously, if there is any direct prohibition of or warning against gambling in the Great Book of Warnings and Prohibitions? We all know that there are four allusions to "lots;" but I cannot find any mention of "gambling," "gaming," or "dice." I am concerned with this because, just now, the Lord Mayor and a number of excellent gentlemen, Englishmen as well as foreigners, are renewing the crusade commenced some time ago with a view of pressure being put upon the Prince of Monaco so as to compel him to close the public roulette and rouge-et-noir tables at Monte Carlo. This should be done, it is argued, in the interests of public morality; and I have little doubt that in the end (and ere long, perhaps) public morality will triumph. The Blanc family have made, I should say, quite enough money by this time; and His Highness of Monaco must find some other means of earning a livelihood than those derived from participation in the profits of a gaming-table.

But how about the abstract wickedness of gambling? Is it, even in its concrete form, productive of as much wickedness as horseracing is? Everybody knows that a competition in speed between two fleet horses is a very pretty sight; and that Ascot and the Derby, Goodwood and Doncaster, when you have not a single bet on the race and have the prospect of a very good luncheon before you, are very enjoyable holidays. Yet can there be no doubt that round the Grand Stand on a race-course cluster all the Seven Deadly Sins and a multitude of peccadilloes besides. Gallant young guardsmen are ruined; young squires mortgage their broad acres; shopmen rob the till; husbands beggar their families; A blows his brains out; B elopes to Texas; C forges and goes to penal servitude: all in consequence of horseracing. On that turf so light and springy under the polished hoofs of the satin-skinned racing "cracks" cluster sharpers, welshers, fortune-telling gipsies, pick-pockets, beggars, and tramps. The National Holiday is a National Saturnalia as well. Is horseracing less naughty than roulette and rouge et noir?

More than this. I am old enough to remember when there were public gaming-tables at Baden-Baden, Wiesbaden, Saxon-les-Bains, Aix-la-Chapelle, Geneva, Spa, and Hombourg. I just remember the closing of Frascati's, and the tripots of the Palais Royal in Louis Philippe's time. I remember when Crockford's, in St. James's-street, was a subscription gambling-house; and when the parish of St. James's swarmed with dens where knaves or "Greeks," as they were then styled, fleeced foolish dupes at French hazard. All these places have long since disappeared; and the only public gaming casino of importance left is Monte Carlo. But I do most firmly believe and contend that there has never been a period within the past forty years when private gambling was so prevalent as it is now, and when it produced more ruinous effects than at present. The two great capitals of Europe teem with gambling clubs. "Poker," "euchre," and "faro" are played with insane eagerness all over the United States; I can say, without exaggeration, that I have rarely met a Spaniard or Spanish American, or a Russian, who was not an inveterate gambler; and as for the "gilded youth" of England, it is at baccarat, poker, and especially at "Napoleon," that they are, in the year 1881, busily employed in ruining themselves. Will the vice—if it be a vice—of gambling be extinguished by closing the roulette and rouge-et-noir tables of Monte Carlo? How about Tattersall's? How about the Paris Bourse and the London Stock Exchange? And, finally, how about trade? Here is a gentleman who, in the course of a year or two, makes a million and a half sterling out of speculations in grain. How many thousands of persons have been ruined, I wonder, to enable him to become a millionaire? Am I to regard him as a gentleman who "owing to a long and indefatigable career of industry and probity has been enabled, &c., &c.,"—or as a highly successful gambler?

With the effigy of a pig as a pendant to ladies' portebonheurs Society has been for some time past familiar. The absurd little figment came from Paris. But the image of a pig as a silver pencil is the newest of novelties in the way of jewellery. This I read in the June number of the Ladies' Gazette of Fashion. There is an "owl" pencil, too; a bracelet in the form of a laced cuff; and one representing the combination of a horse-shoe and a serpent. Who shall say that the goldsmith's art in England is dead. Can it be true that several bushels of the Pig Pencils have been purchased by Mr. Burnand as presents for Penitent Æsthetes?

I read in the Intransigeant, which I take daily—not for its politics, which are abominable, but for the sake of M. Henri Rochefort's style, which is admirable—in a telegram from Berlin of May 2 that Earl Granville was expected in the German capital on Saturday, the 28th, for the purpose of conferring with Prince Bismarck. As a matter of fact, on the Saturday evening in question, Lord Granville, after giving a grand diplomatic dinner, was, with the Countess, holding at the Foreign Office, London, a Reception of some fifteen hundred representatives of "Society."

The statement in the Berlin telegram may, to English people, appear a very absurd one; but what blunders do we not ourselves commit in our own newspapers? In one of the great dailies, in an article on the official celebration of the Queen's birthday, it was stated that the ceremonial of trooping the colours on the parade of the Horse Guards would be witnessed by the Duke of Edinburgh and the Duke of Teck. As a matter of fact, on Saturday, the 28th, the Duke of Edinburgh was at Scilly and the Duke of Teck in Austria.

Next to downright blundering, come irritating omissions. H.M. ship Doterel has, as all the world knows, been blown up; and the calamity has been attended with an appalling loss of human life. The Commander of the ill-fated ship, in his official account of the explosion, published in the Times of Monday, writes to the Secretary of the Admiralty:—

P. S. N. Co.'s ship Britannia, Bordeaux, May 27, 1881.

Sir,—It is with very great regret I have to report the melancholy disaster to her Majesty's ship Doterel, under my command, which occurred at 10 a.m., April 26 last, at Sandy Point, and which I telegraphed to you from Monte Video on the 3rd inst. We left Elizabeth Island shortly after six the same morning, steaming sixty revolutions with the starboard wing boiler, and anchored at Sandy Point, about 8.30 a.m., in 8½ fathoms of water.

Where is Elizabeth Island? Where is Sandy Point? The "Illustrated Universal Gazetteer" (London, 1863) mentions Elizabetgrad in Russia, Elizabeth City, New Jersey, Elizabeth City in Virginia, U.S.A., Elizabethpol in Georgia, and Elizabethstadt in Transylvania; but it says never a word about Elizabeth Island. It is equally and aggravatingly silent as to the locality of Sandy Point, which, for aught my friend "the merest school boy" can tell, may be over against Sandy Hook, N.Y. If the late commander of the Doterel had given us the latitude of the island and the point, I and "the merest schoolboy" might have consulted an atlas, and found out things for ourselves.

Mem.: The "Library Dictionary" calls the congener of the plover a "dottrell," and not a doterel. Bailey, in the edition of 1772, edited by Nicol Scott, spells the name of the foolish bird that imitates the fowler until he is caught "dottorel." Bacon writes:—"In catching of dotterels we see the silly bird playeth the ape in gestures." I can find no mention of the bird in Mrs. Cowden Clarke's "Complete Concordance to Shakspeare" (London: Bickers, 1881); but Ben Jonson, in "The Devil is an Ass," names one of his gulls Fabian Fitzdottrel. Ben spells the bird itself with two t's. "We have another leg strained for this dottrell."—"D. I. A. A.," act iv., scene 3. Beaumont and Fletcher use the same orthography. "All other loves are mere catching of dottrels." This is in "Bonduca." But Fuller, in his "Lincolnshire," follows the Baconian spelling, and writes of the "dotterel" as "avis gelopoios, a mirth-making bird.

The astoundingly inflated prices realised last Saturday at the King-street sale-rooms by four pictures of Sir Edwin Landseer's reminds the book-hunter—on the cæteris paribus principle, at least—of the commercial vicissitudes of the famous Valdarfer Boccaccio. On the 17th of June, 1812, was put up for sale at the mansion of a deceased Duke of Roxburghe in St. James's-square a copy of the "Decamerone" of the edition of 1471, printed by Valdarfer, of Venice, and supposed to be the only faultless copy in existence of this particular edition. Dr. Dibdin, of "Bibliomania" celebrity, remembered the "notorious volume" as a sound rather than a fine copy, in a faded yellow morocco binding. The Duke's father had given a hundred guineas for it; and that was precisely the amount of the first bid made for it at the sale in 1812, by "a gentleman from Shropshire."

After a long and fierce fight Earl Spencer bid £2250 for the "notorious volume:" but his Lordship was outbidden to the extent of ten pounds by the Marquis of Blandford. At the sale of the last-named nobleman's library, in 1819, the Valdarfer Boccaccio was knocked down to a representative of the house of Longman for the comparatively trifling sum of £918. It passed at that price from Messrs. Longman to Earl Spencer, who thus became its possessor at less than half the price which he had originally offered for it. The Valdarfer Boccaccio is now in the library at Althorpe.

At the King-street sale just mentioned, something like twenty thousand pounds were eagerly paid for the four Sir Edwin's—and they were certainly not four of the finest productions of the master. The "Stag Pursued by a Deerhound" and the "Digging out the Otter" belong to what I may call the "cruel" class of this otherwise kindly and genial artist's work, who towards the close of his career produced many pictures which, dramatically, did not go beyond the exhibition of the torture of dumb animals. The "Spearing the Otter" (I do not mean the "Digging Out") is in particular an example of cynical indifference for the sake of "sport" to the sufferings of brutes. I never heard that the otter did any harm beyond being fond of the prime parts of fish. And have we not a penchant for Severn salmon and Lochleven trout? The otter is a confirmed poacher; but he is singularly susceptible of human influence; and the Chinese utilise him as a catcher of fish. That is better, I take it, than spearing him.

And Mrs. Butler's magnificent picture of "Quatre Bras," which went at the King-street sale for seven hundred and ten guineas only! A bagatelle—a mere bagatelle. To my mind "Quatre Bras" is one of the most superb pictures that the accomplished lady, who was once Miss Elizabeth Thompson, ever painted. As a study of facial expression it is simply marvellous; and every one of the soldiers who have "formed in square to receive cavalry" is a masterly and finished study. I should have to rob a great many churches, stop (with a cocked pistol) several persons on the highway, and write many more books than I shall ever be able to write before I had a sum of two thousand guineas lying loose at my disposal; but had I such a sum to spare, I would willingly give it for Mrs. Butler's "Quatre Bras." Its present possessor is to be congratulated. There is much more money in it than he gave for it. As for the four Sir Edwins, they may prove perchance a case of the Valdarfer Boccaccio over again.

A most brilliant and influential committee list has been published for the promotion of a National Memorial to the late Earl of Beaconsfield. I notice in the list the names of eleven Dukes, six Marquises, twenty-two Earls, two Viscounts, six Barons, twelve sons of Peers, fifteen Baronets, a host of M.P.'s, and not one single representative of Literature, Science, or Art. It is time for a very plain question to be asked. Have Literature, Science, and Art no share in the Nationality of this country? Do they not, as a rule, much more than do the wearers of coronets and members of Parliament, represent the genius, the intellect, and the spirit of this nation? Lord Beaconsfield was essentially a genius. He was the son of an illustrious man of letters; he was himself a brilliant novelist; yet the name of not one member of a Republic which numbers among its citizens Owen, Huxley, Carpenter, Tennyson, Browning, Freeman, Froude, Lecky, Swinburne, Watts, Leighton, and Millais appears on the roll of a "National" Memorial Committee. Are we ashamed of the men who make England glorious among foreign nations; or do our governing classes despise them; or what is it?

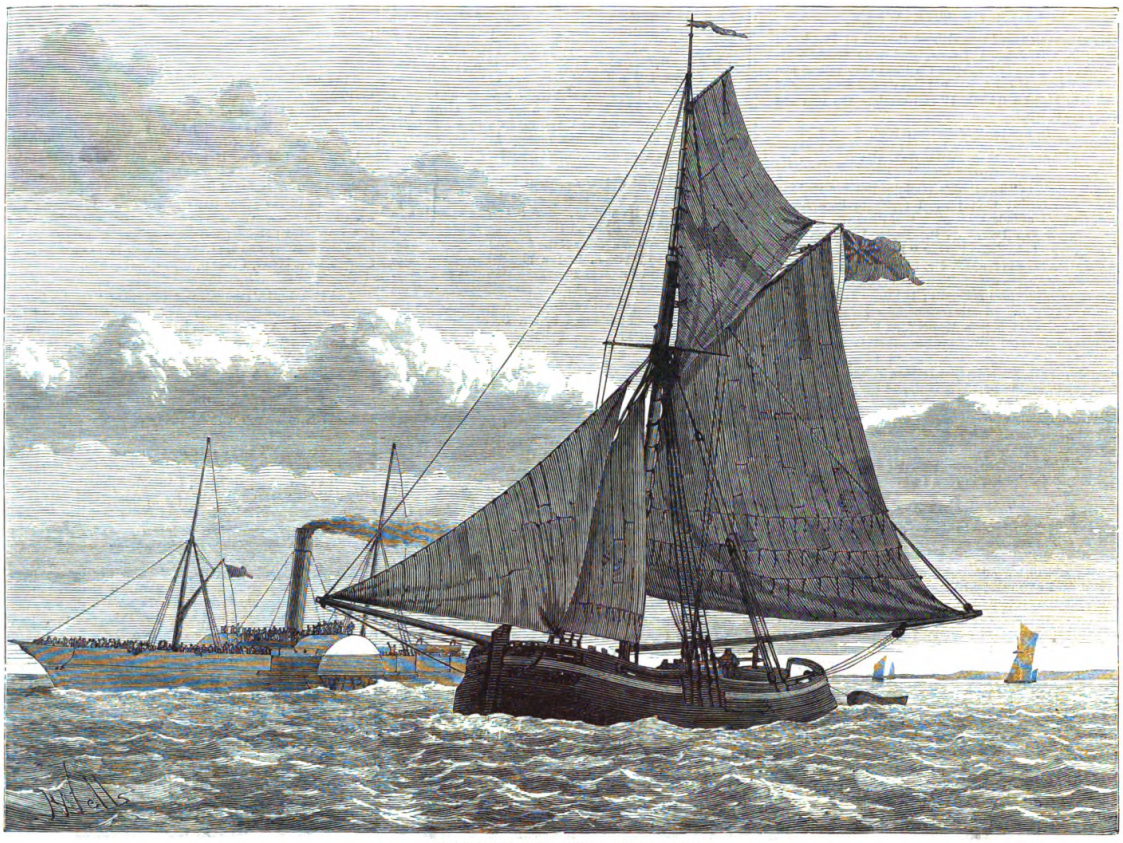
In re "double pony," and for the benefit of my gallant correspondent at Chatham. A gentleman writing from Boulogne-sur-Mer informs me that a "double pony" means a pony of extra size—a "galloway," between a pony and a cob.

With reference to the pronunciation of the Christian name Ralph by the rustic classes down in that very old county of old England called Cornwall, "E. P." says that in the land of Tre, Pol, and Pen, Ralph is pronounced "Raaf," à l'Américaine. This would favour the assumption that the couplet in "Hudibras" should read thus—

A Squire he had whose name was Raaf,
That in that t'adventure went his haaf.

Likewise does "E. P." suggest that the pronunciation of half as "haaf" may have been introduced into America by the vast numbers of Cornish miners who have flocked to the States since the discovery of the wonderful mining fields in the Western States of the Union and in Canada. But it was in the Northern States, where there are no Cornish miners, that, nearly twenty years ago, I heard "half" pronounced as "haaf." I should like some perfectly unprejudiced American with a good ear (it is mainly a matter of ear) to tell me whether I am correct in stating that among the peculiarities of the pronunciation of our cousins are "Amurrican" for American, "advĕrtisement" for advertisement, "deepot" for dépôt, "bokay" for bouquet, and that they invariably (and correctly?) strongly aspirate the h in hotel. I am simply seeking for information, as I do not claim either to speak or to write English correctly, and never received even the most rudimentary training in the science of English grammar.

How are we to pronounce the ducal title which her Majesty has been graciously pleased to revive in favour of Prince Leopold? Is his Royal Highness to be Duke of Albany or Duke of Allbany? I went to breakfast last Saturday in the Albany with one l; but the political capital of the State of New York is pronounced (by the New Yorkers at least) as Allbany with two l's. Please not to tell me that the "merest schoolboy" knows how Albany or many other words which I could cite should be pronounced. The merest schoolboy does not know half so much as you give him credit for. He does not work hard enough. He plays football, lawn tennis, and other games a great deal too much; and he very frequently emerges from school an ungainly and ignorant young cub. I remember some time ago asking a lady, the wife of one of the masters of a great public school, the name of the professor who taught the boys to dance. She replied, with a sweet smile of disdain, that she really did not know. Their sisters, possibly. Or, they "picked it up." Now, dancing, and good dancing, should be, essentially and integrally, quite as much as fencing and drawing, part and parcel of the education of every gentleman. G. A. S.



AN "OLD MARGATE HOY."—SEE PAGE 542.

ST. LEONARD'S HILL, THE RESIDENCE OF THE PRINCE OF WALES DURING THE ASCOT WEEK.—SEE PAGE 542.

SKETCHES FROM "OTHELLO," AT THE LYCEUM THEATRE.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

THE PLAYHOUSES.

Drury Lane was crammed from floor to roof on Monday night last, the occasion being the first appearance in London of the celebrated Meiningen Court Company. The drama selected for the first appearance before an English audience of these notable actors was "Julius Cæsar"—one of the noblest and one of the least interesting of Shakspeare's plays—uninteresting because, although the assassination of Cæsar was the outcome of a very deeply laid conspiracy, the piece has no more plot, dramatically speaking, than has Ben Jonson's equally noble tragedy of "Sejanus, his Fall;" and because the weakest characters are those which should be strongest. I mean the women. Portia is a loving wife; and Calphurnia is above suspicion; and that is pretty nearly all that can be said about them. "Julius Cæsar" with us has long ceased to be a popular play.

I remember as a boy, about the year 1843, being brought up to town from Bolton House, Turnham-green Academy for Young Gentlemen, to Drury-Lane Theatre to see "Julius Cæsar;" Brutus being played by William Charles Macready, and Mark Antony by Mr. James Anderson, whose brilliant assumption of the part made, in a theatrical sense, his fortune. The tragedy was to have been followed by Planché's delightful burlesque of "The White Cat," which I was deliriously anxious to see; but, the object of our visit to Old Drury being purely educational, I, in common with three other companions in misfortune was marched back to Turnham-green as soon as ever the green curtain had fallen on the death of Brutus and the triumph of Octavius Cæsar. We were in time to catch the last omnibus, and baited at a pastrycook's hard by the White Horse Cellar; and it was upon the Bath buns, the sausage-rolls, and the ginger-beer that we avenged ourselves for our disappointment in not beholding "The White Cat." That was close upon eight-and-thirty years ago.

It struck me, at the time, that the oasis of interest in a desert of dreariness was the grand scene in the Capitol where the passions of the Roman multitude are alternately swayed by the rhetoric of Brutus and Mark Antony; and I thought so still on Monday last. The scene of the assassination of the despot and the orations over his corpse was undeniably the most marked success of a most successful evening; nor should I be surprised to find in the long run that "Julius Cæsar," out of the entire répertoire of the Meiningen Court Company, is the play most eminently suited to their capacity, and the one in which they have become most popular. "Julius Cæsar" in every way suits a troupe of Teutonic actors. The dramatis personæ are multitudinous; Cæsar himself, Brutus, Cassius, Casca, and Mark Antony are all fairly leading characters, each with numerous opportunities for indulging in long drawn declamation; and there is a prodigious mob to be managed and drilled and put through certain manœuvres. Finally, the play lends itself to the display in scenery, costumes, and appointments of a great deal of erudition of the Alma Tadema kind; and such erudition is infinitely dear to the German heart. The very highest and the sincerest praise that can be given of "Julius Cæsar" at Drury Lane was that from the first to the last scene it was marked by complete thoroughness. The tiniest parts were played with most commendable zeal and earnestness, and there was something of culture and of artistic appreciation in the gestures and ejaculations of the humblest participants in the action of the play. It was observable that they scarcely ever seemed to look at the audience, and that their whole hearts and souls were in their work. They seemed to believe quite unreservedly that Cæsar was a Saviour of Society, and that he ought to be made King; subsequently that he was a tyrant who deserved to die the death; and finally that he was a martyr cruelly and wickedly murdered by Brutus and his accomplices.

The varying mutations in temper and opinion of an excitable mob of illiterate Southern Italians has been subtly interpreted by the wonderful genius of Shakspeare, and show how thoroughly his spirit was in accordance and sympathy with another illustrious poet, Virgil, who with his own eyes and ears had actually seen and heard the Roman populace—had been a witness of their mad rages and fierce impulses, now for good and now for bad, and had noted their liability to be either excited or curbed by dexterous rhetoric.

> As when in tumults rise th' ignoble crowd
> Mad are their motions, and their tongues are loud,
> And stones and brands in rattling volleys fly,
> And all the rustic arms that fury can supply.
> If then some grave and pious man appear
> They hush their noise and lend a list'ning ear;
> He soothes with sober words their angry mood,
> And quenches their innate desire for blood.—ÆNEID, Book I.

Did one not bear in mind that the crowd in "Julius Cæsar" is a Roman one, as it was remembered by Virgil and intuitively understood by Shakspeare, there might appear, at the first blush, to be a little too much stamping and rushing to and fro—a little too much passionate gesticulation and flinging up of the arms in the great concourse of "supers" so superlatively well drilled by the Hof Intendant and Stage Director of the Meiningen Court Theatre, Herr Ludwig Chronegk. But that gentleman has laid down his scheme of stage management rigidly on the lines of the poet's text; and he has embodied in his "supers" a thoroughly Shakspearean "rabblement," an entirely Roman "common herd," an entirely Italian "tag-rag people," as liable to be moved by Cicero 40 B.C. as they were by Ciceroacchio A.D. 1848. It is only to be wondered at that the conscientious Herr Chronegk did not instruct his army of "supers" to have "chopped hands" to applaud Cæsar withal.

The excessive pains bestowed on the subordinate details detract slightly from the excellence of the art of the leading players. They are somewhat overweighted, and in danger of being overwhelmed by the excellence of the minor characters. As in German scene-painting the drawing is perfect and the chiaroscuro distributed with mathematical correctness, while there is a total absence of transparency and aerial perspective—as for German landscapes, they always look as though they needed a clock in the middle of the sky; so, while the dramatic ensemble of "Julius Cæsar" at Drury Lane is excellent, there is a want of repose, of subordination of the smaller to the great. The background intrudes too much on the middle distance; and that also sometimes thrusts itself forward with undue prominence of the foreground. This was particularly the case in the murder scene, where, but for his scarlet robe and the golden wreath which bound his temples, Cæsar was all but lost among animated groups of minor performers. The whole "business" of the assassination and the subsequent proceedings over the corpse were managed with a completeness of illusion rarely, if ever before, witnessed in this country. Again, the last or "Battle Act," which on the English stage is usually found to be inexpressibly dull, was at Drury Lane made absolutely vivacious, thanks to Herr Ludwig Chronegk's wonderful stage management; but so studiously rapid was the action, and so elaborately complicated, that without following the "book of the play" it was sometimes difficult to discern which of the performers it was who had just fallen on his sword. From beginning to end the performance of the Meiningen Court Company is an exemplary illustration of self-sacrifice on the part of first-class actors, and virtually a protest against the "star" system. The "stars" are absorbed in a whole constellation, and particular planets are not permitted to have a monopoly of brilliance to the depreciation of "the little people of the skies." Whether this salutary system prevailed at the period "when Roscius was an actor in Rome" I do not know; but, for my part, I like to see Roscius.

The dresses and "properties" of the Meiningen Court Company were throughout magnificent and architecturally irreproachable. The architectural portion of the scenery was also splendid, and "built out" with much ingenuity; and the incidental music introduced was classically appropriate. Every lady and gentleman engaged in the performance seemed to be doing his or her very best to conduce to the thoroughness of the entertainment; and, altogether, the Meiningen Court Theatre Company have made an impression on English intelligence of a very remarkable and unusual kind.

Naturally, I shall return to these exceptionally able actors next week. G. A. S.

The Illustration presented by the Engraving on our front page is from the Saxe-Meiningen Court Company's performance of "Julius Cæsar," Act Third, Scene 2, where Antony uncovers the dead body of Cæsar in the sight of the assembled Romans:—

> Look you here!
> Here is himself, marred, as you see, with traitors.

The picturesque composition of figures, and the dramatic variety of their gestures and expressions, in the crowd here surrounding the bier to which Antony has descended after his speech from the pulpit, as he draws off the mantle pierced with daggers and stained with blood, to expose the lifeless corpse, will at once gain the admiration of our readers. In scenic combination of groups, and in the perfect subordination of all their "bye-play" to the main interest of the scene, lies a great part of the acknowledged excellence of this German company of accomplished scientific actors, whose merits have long been known in the principal cities and towns of that country, and will henceforth be appreciated by intelligent judges of the art in England. The reigning Duke George of Saxe-Meiningen, who is first cousin to Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, Lieutenant-General commanding the Portsmouth Military District, is fifty-five years of age, and came to the throne in 1866. He has from that period, being himself a learned connoisseur of the dramatic art, and well acquainted with its history and literature, made it his constant endeavour to create a German classical theatre, under his personal direction, assisted during the past six or seven years by Herr Ludwig Chronegk, as stage manager. It is also well known that the present Duchess of Saxe-Meiningen, his third wife, who was Mademoiselle Helen Franz, a professional actress of high reputation, and whom the Duke married as Baroness von Heldburg in 1873, has zealously and efficiently co-operated with her princely husband in this grand undertaking. The intellectual and moral dignity of their task, derived from a lofty view of the ideal aims of dramatic poetry and its stage representation, will be rightly estimated by students of German literature, who know what was the inspiration of such minds as Lessing, Schiller, and Goethe, in their labours for the same cause. A few may perhaps have followed the latter efforts of those eminent theatrical directors and writers, Schröder, at Hamburg; Iffland, at Berlin; Heinrich Laube, at Vienna; and the great actor Emile Devrient. We would recommend the perusal, upon this subject, of a masterly critical essay, by Hans Herrig, "Die Meininger, ihre Gastspiele und deren Bedeutung für das deutsche Theater," which may be purchased of Mr. Trübner, on Ludgate-hill. It was in 1874, after several years' careful discipline and practice in the little city of Meiningen, whose fame may some day rival that of Weimar, that the Duke's company of actors began to perform in other German towns. Shakspeare's "Julius Cæsar" was the first play they acted at Berlin; and they have played it more than two hundred times in Germany and Austria, with scenery and costumes designed specially by the Duke himself, aided by Visconti, the eminent art critic, from exact Roman studies. Schlegel's German version of Shakspeare is used. The performances at Drury Lane are to include "Twelfth Night," "A Winter's Tale," Schiller's "Wilhelm Tell," "Fiesco," "The Robbers," and "Wallenstein's Camp," Goethe's "Iphigenia at Tauris," and several other German plays.

"OTHELLO" AT THE LYCEUM.

The weekly comments of G. A. S. on the current business of "The Playhouses" have already directed our readers' attention to some striking features of the recent performances of "Othello" at the Lyceum Theatre. It will be remembered that the two leading parts of Othello and Iago have been interchanged reciprocally between Mr. Henry Irving and the American actor, Mr. Edwin Booth, while Miss Ellen Terry has sustained that of "the gentle lady married to the Moor." The scenes delineated in our page of Illustrations are taken from the representation in which Mr. Irving played Iago, which he renders with a subtle perception of the character of that most consummate traitor, not suppressing the tokens of an affectation of jovial, soldierly good-fellowship, and the pretence of rude frankness and bluntness, that Iago uses to disguise his utter villany from those around him. We believe that every thoughtful student of Shakspeare and of human nature will recognise in this feature of Iago's demeanour one of the most truthful exhibitions of an ethical type known to all observant men of the world—that of the peculiar sort of hypocrite, really most dangerous to his easy dupes and victims, who ostentatiously disclaims all obligations of high principle, but who seeks to disarm suspicion by professing to follow his own shrewd self-interest alone, while persuading others that he cannot, as it happens, want to do them any harm. This apparently neutral or merely cynical and coolly egotistical betrayer of mankind, is quite capable of making himself a pleasant companion, and so tempting Cassio, as is shown in one of our Sketches, to inordinate cups of wine. "What, man! 'tis a night of revels; the gallants desire it. Come, lieutenant, I have here a stoup of wine. O, they are our friends; but one cup; I'll drink for you. And let me the canakin clink, clink—and let me the canakin clink! A soldier's a man, and life's but a span—Why then, let a soldier drink!"

In the third scene of the Third Act, that dialogue between Othello and Iago, one moment of which is the subject of our central Illustration, may, perhaps, be regarded as the most powerful dramatic realisation of contrasted characters. Iago is far too cunning, in presence of a man like the General, sincere, passionate, abounding in high and noble sentiments, though a prey to insane fits of rage and fury, to continue his air of pretended levity and humorous indifference. He now puts on the meek demeanour of a candid friend and devoted servant, who is grieved and shocked to find his pains requited by an angry master with violent threats of punishment if he fail to provide "the ocular proof" of his accusations against Desdemona:—

> Oh grace! Oh, Heaven forgive me!
> Are you a man? have you a soul, or sense?
> God be wi' you; take mine office.—O wretched fool,
> That lov'st to make thine honesty a vice!
> O monstrous world! Take note, take note, O world,
> To be direct and honest is not safe—
> I thank you for this profit; and, from hence,
> I'll love no friend, with love breeds such offence.
> Othello. Nay, stay;—Thou should'st be honest.
> Iago. I should be wise; for honesty's a fool,
> And loses that it works for.

An incident of the Fourth Act, where Iago gives instructions to foolish young Roderigo for the killing of Cassio, is shown in the right-hand sketch. Leaving the part of Iago, we would point out, at the top of the page, the scene in the Council Chamber of Venice, with the Duke and Senators hearing Othello's speech in his own defence against the complaint of Desdemona's father. At the bottom of the page are two pathetic scenes in the mournful story of the innocent wife, enacted by Miss Ellen Terry. One scene occurs in the last Act but the final; Desdemona is earnestly talking with Emilia, before going to bed:—

> Dost thou in conscience think—tell me, Emilia—
> That there be women do abuse their husbands
> In such gross kind!

And when Emilia, with her commonplace, worldly notions of expediency and outward respectability, has testified that some wives do fall from virtue, the true-hearted heroine again looks her full in the eyes, with the clear-voiced utterance of womanly purity, "I do not think there is any such woman."

To the left of this, in our page of Engravings, is the scene in which Othello has first charged his wife with her supposed infidelity; and she cries out amazed, "What horrible fancy's this?" They are left alone together.

> Desd. Upon my knee, what doth your speech import?
> I understand a fury in your words,
> But not the words.
> Otello. Why, what art thou?
> Desd. Your wife, my lord; your true and loyal wife.
> Otello. Come, swear it; damn thyself;
> Lest, being like one of heaven, the devils themselves
> Should fear to seize thee; therefore be double-damned;
> Swear thou art honest.
> Desd. Heaven doth truly know it.
> Otello. Heaven truly knows that thou art false as hell.
> Desd. To whom, my lord? with whom? How am I false?

The interest of this tragedy is almost too profoundly painful for the stage; there are many of the truest disciples and worshippers of Shakspeare's poetry who have never been able to endure it but in private reading. A ghastly reminder of the last scene is given by the hand protruding from the bed-curtain, at one side of the page.

AN OLD MARGATE HOY.

The reader of Charles Lamb's "Essays of Elia" will remember his pleasant notice of that queer old sailing-vessel, one of the class then known as "hoys," long before the invention of steam-boats, which was then wont to convey the holiday-making citizens of London, with their families, down the Thames and along the coast of East Kent, to their seaside place of summer recreation in the Isle of Thanet. It is not very long ago that a venerable specimen of "the Margate hoys," after many years' lingering servitude in the meaner traffic of the river, was sent to be broken up and sold for mere firewood, her timbers having, in the lapse of nearly a century, become tolerably rotten. Our Illustration of this antiquated craft has a degree of sentimental interest, derived from reflections upon the variety of past scenes of social enjoyment which have been witnessed on her decks, but which probably were too often mingled with disappointment and weariness, as is the way of most human affairs, and not least in the actual experience of set parties of pleasure, or excursions from home "for a change." The pangs of sea-sickness and the discomforts of wet or stormy weather, must have been felt on board this vessel. Those ancient summer voyagers have, indeed, left the Thames and the Kentish shore very far behind; while the worn-out frame of the Old Margate Hoy, surviving her former customers, at length succumbs to the inevitable decree of dissolution that befals such fabrics when no longer worth preserving.

ST. LEONARD'S HILL, BERKS.

The stately mansion that is shown in our Illustration, from a photograph by Mr. Vernon Heath, has been lent by its owner, Mr. F. T. Barry, to the Prince and Princess of Wales, for their occupation during the Ascot Race week. St. Leonard's Hill is situated not far from the Ascot racecourse, about four miles south-west of the town of Windsor, and stands on the top of a high hill, commanding fine views of the surrounding country in every direction. An old house which formerly belonged to the Duke of Cumberland, was here rebuilt for Mr. F. T. Barry a few years ago, the architect being Mr. C. H. Howell, of Lancaster-place, Strand. The interior decorations, by Messrs. G. Trollope and Sons, of Belgravia, are very magnificent: there is a spacious octagon hall, adorned with wall-paintings of scenes from Homer's "Iliad," and one of the ante-rooms is lined with Mexican onyx, a beautiful material recently introduced by Messrs. Trollope. In the dining-room, among other pictures, is one that belonged to the old house, a portrait of George I., by Allan Ramsay; and some part of the antique furniture also remains in the ante-room, between the dining-room and drawing-room. The mansion affords a vast amount of accommodation, which will be required upon this occasion, for it is said that the suite of their Royal Highness will number about seventy persons, during the week of Ascot Races. Monday, the 13th inst., is the day of their expected arrival.

At the meeting of the Royal Botanic Society, last Saturday, the secretary reported that the wonderful plant Aristolochia Goldieana, from Old Calabar, was just coming into flower for the first time in the Society's garden. It is said to be the largest flower but one of the whole world.

An intimation has been received from the Metropolitan Board of Works that they are prepared to contribute a sum of £1000 to the funds necessary to the carrying out of the improvements in the front of St. Margaret's Church, Westminster. The total sum required is estimated at £3500, of which her Majesty's Board of Works have agreed to give £1500. The balance of £1000 will be covered by private subscriptions.

A return recently issued shows that the total amount of deposits received at Post Office Savings Banks during 1880 was £10,301,152, the balance brought forward from 1879 £32,012,134, and the interest on these sum. £777,985, making a total of £43,091,271. The repayments during the year were £9,347,634, leaving a balance over of £33,744,637. Of this balance the net amount of £26,053,634 was lodged with the Commissioners for the reduction of the National Debt for investment. The charges of management and expenses incurred during 1880 amounted to £188,891. In the whole period from Sept. 16, 1861, to Dec. 31, 1879, these charges and expenses amounted to £1,828,243, making a total incurred down to the end of 1880 of £2,017,134.

MUSIC.

ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA.

"Le Prophète" was given on Thursday week—for the first time this season—with a cast mostly similar to that of last year, including the fine performances of Madame Scalchi and Signor Gayarré, respectively, as Fides and John of Leyden. As before, the co-operation of Mdlle. Valleria as Berta was an important aid to the general effect. M. Dauphin as Count Oberthal confirmed the favourable impression produced by his recent début here; and other characters were efficiently filled by Signori I. Corsi, Scolara, and Silvestri. The stage splendour, in the skating-scene and the coronation ceremonial in the cathedral, was as remarkable as heretofore.

On the following evening "Lohengrin" was repeated; and on Saturday the opera was "La Traviata," with Madame Patti's well-known impersonation of the character of Violetta, in which the great prima donna sang with her usual brilliant vocalisation and dramatic expression. In the scena "Ah! fors' è lui," with its final bravura movement; in the duet with the elder Germont and that with Alfredo, and in the closing death scene Madame Patti's performance was characterised alternately by sentimental expression and passionate earnestness. The occasion brought back Signor Nicolini as Alfredo, another equally familiar feature in the cast having been the Giorgio Germont of Signor Cotogni. On each of these occasions M. Dupont conducted.

On Monday Madame Patti appeared for the third time this season, the opera having been "Il Barbiere di Siviglia," in which the prima donna, as Rosina, sang with her usual excellence. Signor Nicolini was the Count Almaviva; other familiar performances having been Signor Cotogni's Figaro and Signor Ciampi's Bartolo. Signor De Reszké gave special importance to the character of Basilio. Signor Bevignani conducted.

On Tuesday Madame Albani appeared as Mignon, in M. Thomas's opera so named, and repeated a charming performance that has been commented on during past seasons. The cast was otherwise efficient, having included Mdlle. Valleria as Filina, Madame Trebelli as Federico, Signor Tecchi as Guglielmo, M. Gaillard as Lotario, Signor Ciampi as Laerte, Signor Scolara as Giarno, &c. M. Dupont conducted. "Der Freischütz" was announced for yesterday (Friday) evening, with Madame Fürsch-Madier as Agata, and the first appearance of Mdlle. Guercia as Annetta. The next important specialty will be the production of Mozart's "Il Seraglio," announced for Thursday next.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

Saturday's performance derived special importance from the return of Madame Christine Nilsson, who appeared as Margherita in "Faust." The event drew an overflowing audience, and the reception of the prima donna was of the most enthusiastic kind. Her performance was throughout fully equal to that of any previous occasion, both in the poetic idealism and charming grace of the Garden-scene music and in the deeper emotions of the subsequent situations of remorse and penitence in the cathedral, and resignation and hope in the final dying scene in the prison. Mdlle. Nilsson's brilliant vocalisation in the "Jewel-song" produced a special impression, and the last portion had to be repeated. Mr. Maas made his first appearance this season, and sang with his usual good cantabile in Faust's cavatina "Salve dimora," and with much effect in the duel trio, in which his resonant high chest notes were heard to much advantage. Signor Novara, as Mephistopheles, made a successful first appearance. His acting, although perhaps occasionally a little too grotesque, was clever and effective; a touch of humour having been sometimes mingled with the diabolical aspect. He was encored in the aria "Dio del or," and much applauded in the mocking serenade. Mdlle. Tremelli's Siebel and Signor Del Puente's Valentino were repetitions of excellent performances that have frequently been commented on.

Thursday week brought back Mdlle. Lehmann, who appeared as Violetta in "La Traviata," the part in which the lady made her début here last season. Again her performance was characterised by vocal and dramatic qualities of a high degree of merit. She sang, indeed, with enhanced effect throughout the opera, and her reception was such as to promise well for her future here. Not only in vocal brilliancy, but also in dramatic intensity has Mdlle. Lehmann advanced since her last year's performances. Signor Ravelli was a very satisfactory Alfredo, and Signor Galassi sang effectively as the elder Germont.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY.

The sixth and last concert of the sixty-ninth season took place on Thursday week, and included very effective orchestral performances of Mendelssohn's "Isles of Fingal" overture and the third of Beethoven's to "Leonora" and Schumann's symphony in B flat (No. 1). Madame Sophie Menter played Beethoven's pianoforte concerto in E flat (the "Emperor") with admirable execution, and gave Liszt's "Don Giovanni" fantasia in the highest style of bravura playing, its enormous difficulties having been accomplished with rare skill.

Madame Albani sang the prayer from "Tannhäuser" with exquisite purity and refinement of style, and gave the brilliant aria "Souvenir de' miei prim' anni" (from Hérold's "Le Pré aux Clercs") with special effect; the violin obbligato of Herr Straus having been an important feature. Mr. Herbert Reeves sang the air "Dalla sua pace" (from "Don Giovanni") and Abt's lied "Gute Nacht" with smooth vocalisation.

MR. GANZ'S ORCHESTRAL CONCERTS.

At the third concert (at St. James's Hall last Saturday afternoon) Berlioz's "Romeo and Juliet" symphony was performed, ending with the Queen Mab "Scherzo." We recently spoke of this remarkable work in reference to its performance by the Philharmonic Society, for the first time in England, in its complete form. At last Saturday's concert it received an efficient rendering, the incidental vocal solos having been sung by Miss Orridge and Mr. F. Leigh; and the choral portions by a well selected choir.

Herr Ernst Loewenberg made a very successful first appearance, and displayed remarkable executive skill in the performance of the fourth pianoforte concerto (in D minor) of his instructor, Rubinstein; and Liszt's fantasia on themes from Beethoven's "Ruins of Athens" music. Mendelssohn's "Hebrides" overture, and Rossini's to "Guillaume Tell," and vocal solos contributed by Miss Orridge, completed an interesting programme.

The fifth of the Richter concerts took place on Monday evening, and the sixth on Thursday. On the former occasion the programme opened with Mr. C. V. Stanford's setting of the 46th Psalm, "God is our hope and strength," for solo voices, chorus, and orchestra. The work includes a quartet for the solo voices, and a baritone solo; the remaining portions being choral. Without being original, the music is scholarly, and in some instances effective. The vocal solos were well rendered by Mrs. Osgood, Miss Orridge, Mr. Shakspeare, and Mr. F. King. The remainder of the programme included Mr. Dannreuther's brilliant execution of Liszt's Pianoforte Concerto in E flat, and fine orchestral performances of Haydn's symphony in A (No. 30) and the overture to "Tannhäuser." Of the sixth concert we must speak next week.

Mr. J. F. Barnett's new cantata, "The Building of the Ship," was performed for the first time in London, at St. James's Hall, last week, when the work was very favourably received, as on its first production at the Leeds festival last October. The solo vocalists, on the occasion now referred to, were Misses A. Williams, J. Jones, and E. Gibson, Madame Patey, Mr. Lloyd, and Mr. Santley. There was an efficient orchestra and a good chorus, and the performance was conducted by the composer. Several numbers were encored. The second part of the concert, which was miscellaneous, included Miss E. Burnett's clever performance of Beethoven's Pianoforte Concerto in G.

Miss Lillie Albrecht gave her first pianoforte recital last Saturday afternoon at Aberdeen House (Argyll-street). This young lady is not only a skilful pianist, but also knows how to write effectively for her instrument. Her programme accordingly comprised solo performances of pieces chiefly by herself, in addition to which vocal music was contributed by well-known singers.

Mr. Oberthür's concert at St. James's Hall, on Monday afternoon, included a performance of his cantata, "The Red-Cross Knight." The work is written for female voices, and contains some graceful and effective music. The principal singers were Misses C. Penna, Foresta, M. Poole, S. Eirener, Doré-Desvignes, and J. Pelletier. The incidental harp accompaniments were well played by Mr. Oberthür's pupils, Misses K. Dyne and F. Fortescue. The first part of the programme was miscellaneous, and included two harp solos skilfully played by Mr. Oberthür, the clever violoncello playing of M. Hollman, and vocal pieces contributed by Mdlle. V. de Bunsen, Mr. H. Thorndike, and vocalists already named.

The annual meeting in connection with the Tonic Sol-fa College was held on Monday evening at Exeter Hall—Sir H. Cole, K.C.B., presiding. From the report it appears that the college, which has been incorporated six years, is now nearly self-sustaining.

Mr. Santley's concert took place at St. James's Hall on Tuesday evening, the performances having included his own excellent singing and that of his daughter, Miss Edith Santley, besides the co-operation of Mesdames Sherrington and Patey, Mr. E. Lloyd, Mr. H. Reeves, Mr. Maybrick, and the members of the London Vocal Union. Mr. Sims Reeves was prevented by illness from appearing.

The fourth Matinée of the Musical Union took place on Tuesday, when the artistes were the same as at the preceding concert.

The last concert of the Bach Choir—postponed from May 18—took place at St. James's Hall this week, the programme having consisted of Bach's mass in B minor ("Dis Hohe Messe"). The solo singers announced were Mesdames Sherrington and Fassett, Mr. Shakspeare, Mr. Burgon, and Mr. Kempton. Of the performance we must speak next week.

The first of a series of Pianoforte Recitals by Herr Rubinstein was announced for Thursday afternoon at St. James's Hall. The programme consisted of solo pieces by Bach, Mozart, Beethoven, Schumann, Chopin, and Rubinstein.

This (Saturday) afternoon the second concert of the season in the Floral Hall (adjoining the Royal Italian Opera-House) is to take place; and at the same time Mr. John Boosey gives another ballad concert at St. James's Hall.

M. Hlavatch—the eminent organist to the Court of St. Petersburg—announced his first public harmonium recital in this country for yesterday (Friday), at Steinway Hall.

Among the miscellaneous concerts of the week were those of Madame Puzzi, Miss Annie Matthews (vocalists); Mr. W. H. Thomas and Madame Viard-Louis (pianists); and Mr. Aptommas (harpist).

Madame Frickenhaus announces her third concert next Wednesday evening, at the Royal Academy of Music.

Madame Sophie Menter—the eminent Austrian pianist—has announced a Pianoforte Recital to take place at St. James's Hall next Thursday afternoon. Her previous fine performances will attach much interest to this event.

The Sacred Harmonic Society's last concert of the season is announced for Friday evening, June 10, when Sir J. Benedict's "St. Cecilia" (conducted by the composer) and Rossini's "Stabat Mater" are to be performed.

The twentieth triennial Norwich Musical Festival will be held from Oct. 11 to Oct. 14 inclusive. The principal vocalists engaged are Madame Albani, Miss Marie Davies, Mrs. Osgood, Madame Patey, and Madame Mudie Bolingbroke, Mr. E. Lloyd, Mr. Barton M'Guckin, Mr. Santley, Mr. Brockbank, and Mr. F. King. There is to be an additional concert on the evening of the last day of the festival, when a dramatic cantata, composed by Sir Julius Benedict expressly for the festival, will be produced.

The Westminster Panorama will be opened to the public on Whitsun Monday. The first piece presented will be the "Battle of Waterloo," which will be succeeded by other battle-pieces. The picture in question is painted by Mons. C. Castellani and covers over 20,000 square feet of canvas. All the accessories have been well studied and worked out in a realistic manner.

The Standard's Special Correspondent at Salonica telegraphs an account of Mr. Suter's captivity, as narrated by himself. After the ransom had been paid the brigands demanded arms and ammunition. As these were refused, the brigands detained Mr. Suter and the dragoman who conveyed the ransom. At night the brigands left their hiding-place, warning their captives that if they dared to leave before their return in the morning they would, if caught, be shot. As the brigands did not return, Mr. Suter and the dragoman escaped to the shore, and were taken on board the Cygnet. Mr. Suter says the brigands were well informed of all that was passing in Macedonia, and that they took great interest in the rectification of the Greek frontier. Mr. Suter's account of his captivity furnishes a vivid picture of the manners and morals of the brigands, whose character is much the same whether they lurk in the dark defiles of the Abruzzi or prey upon the helpless villagers of Macedonia. The bandits, who appear to have been chiefly of Hellenic descent, were a suspicious, quarrelsome crew, idle, brutal, superstitious, and "much interested in the negotiations about the rectification of the Greek frontier." When not plundering they spent their time in dancing, drinking, playing cards, and recounting their exploits. Like all their class, Mr. Suter's captors made up for their lack of morality by their punctilious performance of ecclesiastical ceremonies. The brigands used most profane and blasphemous language; but they were superstitious, and were strict in their religious observances. They fasted the whole of Lent, and celebrated Easter Day with great solemnity, their salutations including kisses, which were also bestowed upon the captive. They burned incense, chanted an Easter hymn, and always crossed themselves before and after meals.

DERBY DAY SKETCHES.

The finest bright and warm summer weather, befitting the First of June, favoured the people on Wednesday last, making their way by road and rail to Epsom Downs, for the purpose of a general holiday, under the pretext of seeing whether Peregrine, Iroquois, Geologist, or some other horse was going to win the Derby Sweepstakes. Of the race and its "event," or more properly its result, the chronicler of National Sports may be left to report and to comment at his own discretion. One of our Artists has filled two pages of this sheet with Sketches drawn from his frequent observation of diverting scenes on the course, and on the way thither, which may, indeed, be recognised without explanation by thousands of our readers who have often been there.

The proportion of visitors to this year's "Derby" who went by the turnpike road, in a great variety of wheeled carriages, stately or shabby, drawn by various four-footed beasts, harnessed singly, or in pairs, or in the glory of four-in-hand teams, was less than in former years compared with those who accepted the services of the Railway Companies, as did the Prince and Princess of Wales. The ride or drive through the suburban villages, after leaving the Elephant and Castle, Kennington Park, and Clapham-common a few miles in the rear, is full of amusing sights and figures, but it is so very dusty that there is little benefit of fresh country air. Two girls, who have made sad figures of themselves with two hours' exposure to this disagreeable accompaniment of the journey, are shown in the first Sketch, receiving the treacherous attentions of a man and a boy who pretend to brush their dresses. These obsequious practitioners may, perhaps, be familiar with Ovid's sly instructions to the Roman youth who would know how to win a lady's favour by removing the dust from her robe; and even if the garment be free from dust, si nullus, tamen excute nullum.

Passing over the group of a gentleman with two ladies, "not in Mr. Frith's picture," but rather of the Jellaby-Postlethwaite and Maudle persuasion, we come in front of the Post Office Telegraph office, where an artful dodger, professing to sell the correct information, or "straight tip," just received in the shape of a telegram, concerning the state and prospects of horses entered for the race, shouts and waves his bit of paper to delude unwary customers.

There is a melancholy personal interest, as some may think, in the two companion views, one that of a reminiscence from half a century ago, the other a present experience of this year 1881, in which an old lady, musing as she sits in the family carriage, feeling very lonely amidst crowds of the younger generation, contemplates "her First" and "her Last Derby." She does not look likely to come and see another next year.

In two succeeding pictures we behold the scenes invariably to be witnessed on the course; a few minutes before the race, when the police, in close array, march over it to clear the ground for the horses; then, immediately after they have galloped past, urged by their jockeys to the utmost possible speed, that inevitable "rush" of people from both sides, breaking in upon the inclosed strip of turf, with a roaring clamour of tumultuous excitement, like every other English mob, regardless of all but the momentary "event."

At the very "Finish," however, of this great equine contest, when ladies as well as gentlemen are eagerly watching the arrival of the leading horse at the goal, a footboy behind, in company with another greedy youth, is found so depraved as to go on eating and drinking, without even turning his head. The remaining Sketch portrays the incident of two or three frightened betters, or "welshers," running away from their engagements beneath the Grand Stand, before anybody has time to think of kicking or knocking them down.

ROYAL NATIONAL LIFE-BOAT INSTITUTION.

A meeting of this institution was held on Thursday, at its house, John-street, Adelphi. Mr. Richard Lewis, the secretary, having read the minutes of the previous meeting, rewards were granted to the crews of different life-boats for recent services. On the occasion of the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh desiring to land at Sidmouth from H.M.S. Lively, it was found that there was too much sea on the beach for her steam-launch to land in safety, and in rounding to it was struck by a sea and nearly capsized. The Sidmouth life-boat of the institution, which had been got out in readiness for inspection, was thereupon instantly launched, when their Royal Highnesses availed themselves of its help. The Ramsgate Harbour life-boat and steamer, and the North Deal life-boat had helped to save the s.s. Gervaise, of London, having on board a crew of eighteen men and one passenger, which had gone on the Goodwin Sands. The Ramsgate life-boat and steamer also assisted to rescue the schooner Aldebaran, of Lauwig, Norway, and her crew of five men, which was found also stranded on the Goodwin Sands. The Cadgwith life-boat had helped to take the disabled schooner Ellen Vair into Penzance harbour. Rewards were granted to the crews of different shore-boats for saving life from ship-wrecks on the coast, and payments amounting to £2100 were made on the 271 life-boat establishments of the institution. Amongst the contributions recently received were £100 from the Misses Brooke, sisters of the late Mr. John Brooke, Q.C., per John Richardson, Esq., Q.C.; £100 on behalf of the late Mr. Josiah Ruck, King William-street; £20 from "Psalm lx. 13, 14;" and £10 collected on board the s.s. Orient, per Captain Hewison. The late Miss Downie, of Appin, N.B., had left the institution a legacy of £1000 for a life-boat; Mrs. Pratt, of Leamington, £100; and Mrs. Jay, of Yarmouth, nineteen guineas. Reports were read from the chief inspector and the five district inspectors of life-boats to the institution on their visits to different life-boat stations.

UNIVERSITY COLLEGE, NOTTINGHAM.

The committee of management of University College, Nottingham, on Tuesday appointed the following gentlemen to the professorships in this college:—

To the Professorship of Literature—Rev. J. E. Symes, M.A. Mr. Symes graduated in the Mathematical Tripos at Cambridge in 1874, and has been for many years University Extension Lecturer in Nottingham and other towns. He is at present second master at the Grammar School, Newcastle-on-Tyne.

To the Professorship of Mathematics and Mechanics—J. A. Fleming, B.A., D.Sc. Dr. Fleming obtained a first-class in the Natural Science Tripos at Cambridge, 1880, and held a Foundation Scholarship at St. John's College. He is at present Demonstrator in Mechanics and Applied Mechanism, under Professor Stuart, and Assistant-Examiner in Experimental Physics in the University of London.

To the Professorship of Chemistry—F. Clowes, D.Sc., F.C.S. Dr. Clowes is at present Senior Science Master at the High School, Newcastle-under-Lyme, and was for five years assistant to Dr. Frankland.

To the Professorship of Natural Science—The Rev. J. F. Blake, M.A., F.G.S. Mr. Blake graduated in 1862 as fifteenth wrangler, and was first of his year in the Natural Science Tripos at Cambridge. He has held lecturerships at Aberystwith College, at Charing-cross Hospital, and King's College, London; and is the author of several well-known scientific works.

The birthplace of Burns has passed into the hands of the trustees of the Burns Monument, and will henceforth be preserved by them and exhibited to the public.

POST OFFICE TELEGRAPH
No. of Message
E.C. 51
Office
Sellers
The Straight Tip
Her Last
The Finish.
The BLACK (leg) Spot
SWAIN Sc

DERBY DAY

SEE PAGE

PARISIAN SAYINGS AND DOINGS.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Paris, Tuesday, May 31.

It is not an unusual thing for the publication of the list of the Salon medals to excite almost universal dissatisfaction. This year the list has caused unusual discontent, and there seems some ground for the belief that the administration of the Salon by the artists themselves will not be of long duration. Already some persons of authority in the press are proposing the separation of the State and Art and the suppression of the post of Under-Secretary of State for the Fine Arts. The tendency, as I have on several occasions remarked of late, is to abandon the Salon altogether, and to substitute for this immense picture bazaar small exhibitions due to private enterprise. More than ten years ago Ingres conjured the Minister of Public Instruction and of the Fine Arts to abolish the Salon, both in the interest of art and of the artists themselves. The realisation of Ingres's wish is, perhaps, only a question of time. This year more than ever before medals have been the reward, not of merit but of camaraderie, successful intrigue, and calculations of Byzantine subtlety. With my limited space, and to readers unfamiliar with the subject, I cannot enter into details upon this subject, but I am not speaking en l'air. I can only repeat that, with half-a-dozen exceptions, the recompenses awarded at the Salon this year mean nothing at all from the point of view of art. For the sake of record, it may be stated that the medal of honour for painting was awarded to M. Paul Baudry. No first-class medal was awarded, owing to the intrigues amongst the jury. Second-class medals were awarded to MM. Georges Bertrand, Rixens, Comerre, John S. Sargent, Julien Dupré, Nonclercq, Masure, Verhas, Pointelin, Beauverie, Chartran, and Ed. Manet—Manet the irreconcilable, the founder of "impressionism," the incomparable Manet, who has just discovered that the ordinary colour of the atmosphere is violet! A third-class medal was given to Mr. Hawkins, an English artist, whose excellent picture of "Les Orphelins" was worthy of a greater reward. In the department of sculpture the painter Gérôme obtained a first-class medal.

The sale of the famous Double collection of historical furniture, pictures and bibelots, began yesterday. Fashion and chic require people "in society" to pretend at least to have a passion for art and bric-à-brac, so that the audience has a very fair sprinkling of duchesses and members of the aristocracy of the Stock Exchange. The Vicomtesse Greffulhe, a beautiful and wealthy lady, paid 13,200f. for three volumes that came from Marie-Antoinette's library at Trianon, one of which was the Dauphin's grammar book. A very small work by Van Blarenberghe, drawing master to the Royal children, was sold for 27,500f. Van der Meer's "Laughing Girl" was bought by Prince Demidoff for 88,000f. To-day the snuff-boxes and bonbonnières are being sold, and to-morrow the furniture will be sold. It is expected that Marie Antoinette's furniture, of which M. Double had a great quantity, will be sold at immense prices.

Last Sunday there was brilliant company at Chantilly to see the Prix du Jockey Club contended for. This race, known as the French Derby, is supposed to serve to select the horse that is to be the champion of France in the Grand Prix de Paris, which will be run on June 12. The Comte de Lagrange's Albion won by two lengths; the same owner's Pâtre, who was the favourite, came second, and Royaumont, of the Chamant stud, third. Next Sunday, the great international steeplechase, the Grand Prix d'Auteuil, will be run.

M. Gambetta's visit to his native town of Cahors has been the great topic of the week in the newspapers, and his different speeches have been diversely commented upon. The journey, perhaps, has done rather harm than good to its hero. The reactionary journals laugh at it, and try to make out that the dictator was received without enthusiasm. The irreconcilable Radicals compare it to the Imperial progresses of old, and raise the cry: "Down with Gambetta!" It seems to be necessary to the French nature to concentrate their love or their hatred upon some one prominent personality whom they make out to be a god or a demon. As far as the interests of the French Republic are concerned, the conduct of M. Gambetta's friends is more prejudicial than all the silly attacks of his adversaries.

On Sunday M. Anatole de la Forge was elected deputy for the ninth district of Paris, in place of M. de Girardin, by 9198 votes. The Monarchist candidate, M. Hervé, obtained only 4250, and the Radical, Dr. Dubois, 2079.

The Senate has elected a committee to examine the scrutin de liste bill, the majority of whose members are opposed to the measure. This means that there will be probably a long debate on the subject in the Senate.

Yesterday the Chamber of Deputies began the debate on M. Barodet's bill for the revision of the Constitution. The debate was concluded this afternoon; the House refusing, by 254 to 186, to take M. Barodet's proposal into consideration.

Great excitement prevails in certain Parisian circles about the massacre and persecution of the Jews in Southern Russia. A grand fête is being organised for the benefit of the victims.

A new drama, called "Le Prêtre," by M. Buet, has been produced with success at the Porte Saint-Martin Theatre.

Two new volumes of poems by Victor Hugo, called "Les Quatre Vents de l'Esprit," appear to-day (Paris: Hetzel). They contain lyrical, satirical, dramatic, and epic poems, which the great poet's admirers, of course, declare to be incomparable. Amongst the new books of the week I may recommend a new and complete edition of "La Correspondance de l'Abbé Galiani" (Paris, Calmann Lévy), now appearing. Galiani was a lively and witty little Neapolitan Abbé, who was the friend and correspondent of Grimm, d'Alembert, Necker, and d'Epinay, and some of the choicest spirits of the eighteenth century. The same publisher has also issued two volumes of Madame de Rémusat's letters to her husband. After reading them I am of the opinion of one of Madame de Rémusat's lady friends, who told her frankly that conjugal love made her bien ennuyeuse.

T. C.

---

A meeting of the committee to promote a national memorial of Drake and the Armada was held at Plymouth yesterday week. Nine peers, including the Lord Lieutenants of Devon and Cornwall, as well as the Bishop of Exeter, were stated to have intimated their willingness to become members of the General Committee. The memorial that is contemplated will cost from £5000 to £10,000, and to carry it out a national appeal will be made.

With a view to render the productions of their experimental garden at Chiswick more useful, the council of the Horticultural Society have abandoned the system of distributing scions, cuttings, and plants by ballot, experience having shown that in this way rare and valuable plants frequently fell into the hands of those who had not the proper appliances for their cultivation. It is determined henceforth to allow Fellows to select for themselves any which they may desire to cultivate.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

ITALY.

The Cabinet has been finally constituted as follows:—Signor Depretis, President of the Council and Minister of the Interior: Signor Mancini, Minister for Foreign Affairs; Signor Zanardelli, Minister of Justice; Signor Magliani, Minister of Finance; Signor Baccarini, Minister of Public Works; Signor Baccelli, Minister of Public Instruction; Signor Berti, Minister of Agriculture; General Ferrero, Minister of War; Admiral Acton, Minister of Marine. The new Cabinet has inaugurated its administration by abolishing the vexatious regulations requiring foreign holders of Italian Rente to prove their nationality to obtain cash payments for their coupons.

SPAIN.

The Calderon fêtes in Madrid excited much enthusiasm, and the celebration, it is said, "is admitted on all hands to have surpassed any peaceful demonstration ever made in Spain." The festivities on Thursday week consisted of a procession of the rising generation of Spain of both sexes through some of the principal streets. About 8000 students and scholars, with a sprinkling of professors and others connected with education, took part in the ceremony, which lasted three hours. At night there were fireworks in the promenade of Atocha.

The festivities were brought to a close yesterday week by a historical procession, which for splendour and interest is said to have surpassed anything that has for many years been witnessed in Spain. The march of the procession through the principal streets, which were elaborately decorated, occupied five hours. It consisted of deputations from every town council, guild, and literary, commercial, and official corporation in Spain. There were, besides triumphal cars, allegorical statues on platforms drawn by horses, and soldiers in the uniforms of the seventeenth century. Owing to the crowded state of the streets, the soldiers had some trouble in maintaining order. At night the city was illuminated.

PORTUGAL.

The Cortes reassembled on Monday. A bill providing for the Ways and Means was presented, and referred to a Committee. A dissolution of the Cortes is expected shortly, and a general election will take place in September.

In the Chamber of Peers on Tuesday the Minister of Foreign Affairs stated that the Government considered it necessary to defer Parliamentary action upon the Lorenzo-Marques Treaty because the settlement of affairs in the Transvaal might necessitate a modification of its provisions. A complete understanding on the subject existed between England and Portugal.

AUSTRIA-HUNGARY.

The Special Committee of the Reichsrath has accepted the Commercial Treaty with Germany almost unanimously; not one voice being raised in favour of free trade.

The Lower House resolved on Tuesday, by 203 against 57, to begin the discussion of the clauses of the bill for the establishment of a Bohemian University at Prague. The whole bill, with some amendments, was finally agreed to, after a motion of Herr Granitsch, making it compulsory upon every student at the new Czech University, who should intend entering a public profession to have a perfect knowledge of the German language had been rejected.

GERMANY.

Prince Bismarck has submitted to the Reichstag a memorial complaining that in Eastern Asia, Australia, and the South Sea Islands Germany is outstripped by England in trade.

A Berlin telegram says that the Hamburg Senate is stated to have approved, by eight against two votes, the preliminary treaty for the incorporation of Hamburg with the Zollverein.

DENMARK.

The new Folkething assembled yesterday week and re-elected M. Krabbe as provisional president. During the debate on the first reading of the Budget in the Folkething on Monday M. Holstein-Ledreborg, a member of the Left, declared that a more conciliatory attitude on the part of the House towards the Landsthing was impossible in view of the result of the late elections. The President of the Council replied that should the Folkething adhere to the position which it had taken up it was probable that the Landsthing would no less resolutely follow a similar course, a state of affairs involving consequences which, the Premier observed, it was needless to point out. The Premier's observations are regarded as indicating the probability of a fresh dissolution of the Folkething.

TURKEY AND GREECE.

The Convention between Turkey and Greece was on Tuesday signed at Constantinople, and orders have been dispatched for the immediate evacuation of Thessaly.

A decree was signed at Athens on Tuesday transferring to M. de Lesseps and General Turr the concession granted to other parties some years ago for cutting a canal through the Isthmus of Corinth.

AMERICA.

Monday was a general holiday at Philadelphia, being devoted to religious services and decorating the graves of the Union soldiers who fell during the rebellion.

The prolonged negotiations between Mr. Blaine, Secretary of State, and Sir E. Thornton, British Minister at Washington, regarding the Fortune Bay and Aspe Bay fishery disputes, were brought to a conclusion on the 28th ult. It has been agreed that Great Britain shall pay £15,000 in gold, for which amount the United States Government will give a receipt in full, in satisfaction of all demands.

The New York State Legislature voted for United States Senators on Tuesday without any result, no candidate having a sufficient majority. Mr. Conkling received only 35 and Mr. Platt only 30 votes, the return for each of them being less than one third of the Republican vote.

The war-vessel Alliance, stationed at Norfolk, has been ordered to proceed on a cruise in search of the Arctic exploring vessel Jeannette between Greenland, Iceland, and the coast of Norway, and as far as the northern coast of Spitzbergen, it it should be found possible to reach that latitude. The cruise of the Alliance will extend until about Sept. 25.

CANADA.

The arrangements for a tour through Canada, from which Princess Louise has, by advice of her medical attendants, withdrawn, comprised a fortnight's salmon-fishing in the St. Lawrence. After this the Governor-General and his party were to go to Halifax to a grand review, to take place on July 1; and about the middle of July the Governor-General and the Princess were to have started on a trip through the north-west portion of the Dominion.

In Tuesday's sitting of the Quebec Legislative Assembly the Minister of Finance brought forward the Budget, according to which the estimated revenue of the province for the past year exceeded the actual receipts by 700,000 dols. On the other hand, the actual disbursements in the ordinary general business of the province, exclusive of railway expenditure, fell short of the sum appropriated for those purposes by 30,000 dols.

Several severe shocks of earthquake have been felt at Murray Bay, in the province of Quebec, causing considerable landslips.

Further painful details of the terrible disaster to the excursion-steamer Victoria on Tuesday week, near London, Ontario, add to its horrors. It is stated that when the steamer lurched, the boiler on her main deck broke loose, and slid off through her side into the water, carrying away the supports of the upper deck, which fell in, crushing the people beneath, and, as the boat settled, holding them under water, and preventing all chance of their escape. The excitement caused by the catastrophe is described as intense, and the inhabitants of the entire city go into mourning for thirty days. Public indignation against the captain and officers of the Victoria is said to be increasing. Several persons have become insane through the loss of their friends. Resolutions of sympathy with the bereaved persons have been received from all parts of the Dominion, and the Marquis of Lorne, (Governor-General) has sent a message of condolence. She is described as a boat 80ft. long over all, with 23ft. beam, and 4ft. 6in. depth of hold, suitable for carrying about 400 passengers. The inquest on the bodies of the persons, numbering between two hundred and three hundred, who perished has been opened; the evidence given being, it is stated, of a damaging character for the officers of the steamship company to which the Victoria belonged.

The following are the material portions of a statement made by Captain Rankin, the master:—

When we got to the wharf at Spring Bank there was a large crowd waiting, and before I could get some of the passengers out others rushed on the after part, jumping in and climbing over the sides in every direction. I ordered them off, but very few paid any attention, and only about fifteen or twenty went off the boat. After we started a number of people on the lower deck began singing and moving around. Presently I noticed a slightly different action on the boat, and, being unable to leave my post at the wheel, I sent a boy to the engineer to ascertain if there was any danger. She was leaning some to starboard, and as I was getting more anxious I sent the boy down again. He returned with the word from the engineer that unless we could straighten the boat there was danger. I was looking forward to a sandbar about 200 yards ahead, on which I intended to beach the boat. That was my determination, because I was beginning to get anxious. Just then a couple of row-boats came alongside, the occupants of which were raising, and the crowd rushed to the side of our craft to see them. The engineer then sent up word that I should try to get the crowd to go aft, because the water was coming in. Just then the people made a rush to the port side, and as they did so the vessel just took a lurch and went with her port bow down. Then the boiler shifted from its position and went through the side. I believe the vessel would have recovered herself only for the boiler going over. As it went it carried away the main deck, and that let down the upper deck with the crowd on it. Many of the passengers were imprisoned between the water and the top of the deck, which came down above them; but they had breathing space of a foot or so, which would have saved many had not others persisted in climbing on the floating deck, thus crushing it down and smothering those underneath. In a few minutes all who were thus imprisoned were drowned. I then swam ashore. The Victoria was flat-bottomed, scow-shaped at both ends, and registered to carry 400 passengers. I do not think we had more than 450 on board, because there is not standing room on the boat for that number at eight inches space to each person. I attribute the disaster to the fact that the vessel leaked, because when I sent the boy down to the engineer he said there was half an arm's length of water in the hold. I was praying earnestly that we might reach the sand-bar, where I intended to beach her until we could get help. I would have run on shore only the bank was so steep, and I knew it was useless, because she would have turned outward on striking the bank. The boat was manned by myself, an engineer, a fireman, two deck hands, and the purser.

SOUTH AFRICA.

The Standard's special correspondent at Newcastle sends a long telegram respecting the state of the Transvaal of a similar tenor to many of his former despatches. The committee of the loyal inhabitants, it is stated, continue to lay before the Commission affidavits detailing oppressive and illegal acts committed by the Boers since the conclusion of peace; while the Boer leaders, on the other hand, assert "that the same system of lying and misrepresentation which brought about the unjust annexation of the country is now being directed to bring about further bloodshed." From Heidelberg it is reported that the movement of resistance to the restoration of the Boer rule is making rapid progress among the natives throughout the Transvaal.

According to the Daily Telegraph correspondent's special telegram, indications point to a peaceful settlement in the Transvaal. The guns taken at Potchefstroom were restored to the English on Monday. Reports of fighting between the Boers and the natives are contradicted.

INDIA.

Telegrams from India report that the contest between the Ameer and Ayoob Khan has begun. Fighting has taken place in the neighbourhood of Girishk, where a band of Ayoob's partisans, under Seyyid Azim Shah, were attacked and defeated by Gul Muhammed, who is holding Girishk for the Ameer.

The Calcutta correspondent of the Times says that the Indian Government has received peremptory orders from home directing that the evacuation of the Pishin Valley shall be made as early as practicable. Quetta is to be the extreme frontier position. The British force there is to be of the same strength as before the campaign. This order, the correspondent adds, "has been issued in spite of the protests of the Indian Government and of all competent military authorities here."

AUSTRALIA.

Mr. Saul Samuel, Agent-General for New South Wales, has received a telegram stating that the revenue of the colony shows a considerable increase, and that the receipts for the present year up to the end of May exceed the corresponding period of last year by £676,000. The revenue for 1880 was £4,912,000. The Treasurer's estimate for the present year was £5,440,000, an increase of £528,000. The estimate has already been exceeded, and it is confidently anticipated that the year's revenue will reach, if not exceed, £6,000,000. The Census shows a population of 750,000, or an increase during the decade of 250,000.

---

The arrivals of live stock and fresh meat at Liverpool from the United States and Canada last week were, of live stock a large increase and of fresh meat a decrease on the arrivals of the preceding week: making a total of 1426 cattle, 1377 sheep, 5826 quarters of beef, 1159 carcases of mutton, and 197 hogs.

A review of troops at Cape Coast Castle took place on the 3rd ult. before Sir Samuel Rowe, at which the Ashantee Ambassadors and the Fantee chiefs were present. On the 4th inst. Sir Samuel Rowe replied to the King's message, promising to refer his apology to the Queen on payment of the 2000 oz. of gold-dust. On the evening of the 4th her Majesty's ship Wye left for Sierra Leone, with 120 men of the 1st West India Regiment on board. Her Majesty's ship Champion left Elmina on the same day.

---

The arrangements for the forthcoming Summer Circuits of the Judges are at present as follows:—Midland, Mr. Justice Stephen and Mr. Justice Watkin Williams; Northern, Lord Chief Justice Coleridge and Mr. Justice Lopez; North-Eastern, Mr. Justice Hawkins and Mr. Justice Kay; South-Eastern, Lord Justice Bramwell and Mr. Justice Denman; Oxford, Mr. Justice Mathew and Mr. Justice Cave; North Wales, Lord Justice Cotton; South Wales, Mr. Baron Pollock; Western, Lord Justice Lush and Mr. Justice Manisty.

SUNDAY MORNING IN "OLD VIRGINIA."

An American artist, named E. A. Abbey, has in this picture shown us a domestic scene in the life of the old-fashioned planter class of the Southern States, whose manners and habits remain, in some particulars, very little altered from what they were in the last century, notwithstanding the Revolution, the Federal Republic, the Secession War, and Slave Emancipation. The old gentleman, after breakfast on the Sunday morning, is getting himself ready to go to church, attired in buckled shoes and gaiters, knee-breeches and buttoned-up coat, with a thick white neckcloth; while his faithful coloured servant, the mulatto Joseph, is helping him on with the overcoat, and his broad-brimmed white hat, with its respectable black band, lies on the hall table. He has lately married a young wife, who comes lightly and leisurely down stairs, apparently half-inclined to excuse herself, and to tell him, after all, that she "calculates she will not go out this morning;" but she has put on a smart little hat, though otherwise dressed with an easy negligence that scarcely promises more than a stroll to the garden gate. This lady has an air of serene complacency, which may, perhaps, have arisen from the consciousness of always having her own way, but which does not infallibly betoken a sweet temper or resigned disposition. The face of the worthy Squire, as a country gentleman of his class would be called in Old England, is highly characteristic; it is expressive of a life-long patient attention to the routine business of his estate and neighbourhood, with a certain slow shrewdness, and a large share of conscientiousness, which often accompany the care of agricultural property. We do not believe that he was a cruel master in the days of slavery; and he finds willing labourers at the fair wages he will pay in these days of an open market or field-hands of the African race.

THE SILENT MEMBER.

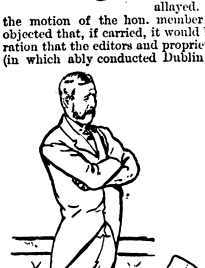
The Derby jocularity of the Lower House was conspicuous by its absence from the usually calm atmosphere of the Lords on the eve of the Derby. In lieu of the quips of Mr. R. Power and Sir Wilfrid Lawson on the congenial subject of adjournment for the great race of the year, there was in the Upper Chamber quite an ebullition of feeling on the part of Lord Ellenborough. The noble Lord had to be called to order by Earl Granville for more forcibly than politely protesting against the administration of the Army and the Navy by civilians, and for a heated allusion to "the system of jobbery" in "another place." This passage of arms, due to an interrogation from the Earl of Galloway concerning Army Reorganisation, may not be without use, however, if it calls the attention of the Government to the public dissatisfaction, speaking mildly, that prevails regarding the chaotic condition of the Army. Whatever influence the sultriness of the weather may have had out of doors on the Marquis of Salisbury, in his place in Parliament the Leader of the Opposition has been singularly suave. After noble Lords (led by the Duke of St. Albans on Griffith's Valuation) had indulged yesterday week in a preliminary canter on the Irish Land problem, Earl Delawarr broke ground on the French Protectorate of Tunis, affording the Marquis of Salisbury the opportunity of appearing in the novel character of a supporter of the noble Earl, the Foreign Secretary, with whom he agreed that there would be no public advantage in "expanding" the question. In fact, the cordiality of the late Foreign Secretary's agreement with the action of France and with the despatches of Lord Granville was something remarkable. No other point calls for remark in the Upper House, save the high promise the Earl of Dalhousie exhibited on Monday in answering Lord Norton's speech on Reformatory Schools, and in securing, apropos of the Brussels scandal, a Select Committee "to inquire into the state of the law relative to the protection of young girls from artifices to induce them to lead a corrupt life, and into the means of amending the same."

The hilarity which is ever ready to burst forth in the House of Commons gives relief now and then to the monotonous debate on the Ministerial Land Bill for the cure of Ireland's ills. Here we have the Prime Minister in his habit as he yielded food for mirth yesterday week, by momentarily balancing on the top of his head a hat several sizes too small for him. Perhaps, the only thing in which Mr. Gladstone resembles the late Earl of Beaconsfield is that he does not wear his hat whilst in the House — a tribute of respect to the assembly which few of his colleagues, and still fewer of the general body of members join in. Did the right hon. gentleman but possess a stronger sense of humour he would have laughed as zestfully as anyone did at the ludicrous position he found himself in when, having to wear a hat to put himself in order, none was forthcoming for a while. The incident arose in this way, Lord E. Fitzmaurice had moved an amendment, supported by Sir Stafford Northcote, to the effect that the consideration of clause 1 of the Land Bill should be postponed until the constitution of the proposed tribunal should be settled. The House having been cleared for a division, Mr. Gladstone rose to address Dr. Lyon Playfair on a point of order, but, being hatless, he was transgressing a rule in doing so; and the Opposition clamoured "Order! order!" until the Solicitor-General came to his rescue with a hat, which proved absurdly small for the Prime Minister. Not till then, amid general laughter, was Mr. Gladstone permitted to put his question of order, which Dr. Playfair decided against him. Loud Ministerial cheers broke out, however, when, on a division being taken, Government obtained the large majority of 83—246 to 163 votes. Later on, Mr. Warton, who is growing quite notorious for his interruptions, was on the brink of being "named" through a misunderstanding. The sitting proved a protracted and tedious one. Mr. Blennerhassett's motion for a Select Committee to inquire into the best systems of electing members was negatived by 102 votes to 40; and Lord Randolph Churchill's endeavour to secure a grant for the Irish Fisheries was fruitless. Thereafter, Mr. Childers sought to obtain a vote for the Army provisions; but the Home Rulers kept up the opposition to the vote till five o'clock on Saturday morning!

Wanted—a little of Lord Palmerston's good-humoured tact to disperse the storm in a teacup which now not unseldom breaks over the devoted heads of hon. members! The Speaker has, it must be admitted, done much to diminish the small personal questions (generally the outcome of vanity, or of that irrepressible egotism which is the chief characteristic of the "Fourth Party"), that threatened to stop business altogether before the right hon. gentleman wisely combined some degree of necessary firmness with the urbanity which is natural to him. An infusion of the genial philosophy of Lord Palmerston is sadly needed by Mr. Gladstone, to enable him, by the use of a few adroit phrases, in place of an unnecessarily earnest and prolonged speech, to reduce these personalities, and the offending persons with them, to their proper proportions. The lack of this requisite quality for directing the storm was made clear on Monday. Mr. Mitchell Henry (hit off as he delights to pose as the polished guardian of the privileges of the House, which I am sure Mr. Trueftt will agree with me in saying he adorns) caused much valuable time to be wasted by exercising his finished elocution and declamatory powers on the contemptible theme of a letter written from Paris by a Mr. Patrick Egan, treasurer to the Land League, and applying certain uncomplimentary epithets to Mr. O'Connor Power, Mr. M'Coan, and The O'Donoghue for voting with the Government on the second reading of the Land Bill. Mr. Mitchell Henry called upon the Speaker to prohibit Mr. Egan from entering the Lobby for this offence. The Milesian storm thus raised was not soon allayed. Mr. M'Coan seconded the motion of the hon. member for Galway. Mr. Parnell objected that, if carried, it would be tantamount to a "declaration that the editors and proprietors of the Freeman's Journal (in which ably conducted Dublin daily the precious missive appeared) had been guilty of a breach of privilege." The marked omission of any mark of disapproval of Mr. Egan's epistle in Mr. Parnell's speech gave Mr. O'Connor Power (sketched in his high, oratorical manner) an opportunity of dealing the Land League a damaging blow. As a speaker Mr. O'Connor Power is infinitely superior to Mr. Parnell, who has, perhaps, the smallest voice and quietest manner ever possessed by a popular Democratic leader. Lifting his resonant voice, then, the hon. member for Mayo dextrously took advantage of the occasion to demonstrate the venality of, at least, one affair of the Land League. Challenged by Mr. Parnell, Mr. O'Connor Power elicited loud cheers by reading a telegram sent from the Land League head-quarters in Dublin, and soliciting Mr. Power to use his influence on behalf of "Mr. Daly, solicitor, Ballinrobe, who seeks the Prosecutorship for Mayo." Not until Mr. Gladstone had poured out the vial of his scorn on the writer of the letter complained of, and Sir Stafford Northcote and other members had spoken, was Mr. Mitchell Henry's motion agreed to; and even after that this personal squabble dragged its slow length along, on the strength of Mr. Parnell's motion for the adjournment. On the Land Bill at last being reconsidered in Committee, Mr. Brand's amendment to clause 1, proposing to limit the operation of tenant right to existing tenancies, was discussed, but withdrawn. But fresh amendments continue to pour in; and, unless the great majority of them can by some means be summarily disposed of, it will be a physical impossibility to pass the Land Bill through the Commons this Session.



The House adjourned over the Derby Day, on the motion of Mr. Richard Power, who clearly had the better of Sir Wilfrid Lawson in humour, if not in argument. A goodly number, however, followed Sir Wilfrid Lawson into the division lobby on Tuesday, no less than 119 voting against the adjournment, whilst 246 voted for the customary Derby holiday.

The Daily Telegraph has authority for stating that the Duke of Cambridge in person will command the volunteer forces on the occasion of the Royal Windsor review.

The annual Summer Exhibition of Plants and Flowers at the Sydenham Palace was held last Saturday. The show was laid out with considerable taste in the Central Transept and the North Nave; and the first feature that attracted the eye on entering the building was a magnificent bank of azaleas of every hue. The show was divided into twenty-seven classes, competing for prizes which ranged from £15 to 10s.

A notice to the public issued by command of the Postmaster-General states that in future the ordinary adhesive penny receipt stamp may be used as a penny postage stamp, and the adhesive penny postage stamp may be used as an ordinary penny receipt stamp. It is to be understood that for purposes of postage the receipt stamps, in common with postage stamps, must have no printing or writing placed on their face by the public.

A society entitled "The Rational Dress Society" has been formed, under the presidency of the Viscountess Hinchcrten, the objects of which are thus described:—"To promote the adoption, according to individual taste and convenience, of a style of dress based upon considerations of health, comfort, and beauty, and to deprecate constant changes of fashion, which cannot be recommended on any of these grounds." Mrs. E. M. King is the secretary.

A Royal Commission (consisting of Sir Charles W. Dilke, Bart., M.P., the Right Hon. W. E. Baxter, M.P., Sir Charles Rivers Wilson, K.C.M.G., C.B., Mr. C. M. Kennedy, C.B., and Mr. J. A. Crowe, Commercial Attaché to her Majesty's Embassies at Berlin and Vienna) having been appointed to confer with the High Commissioners of the French Republic with a view to the negotiation of a new commercial treaty with France, associations and persons who may wish to make representations to the Commission with respect to trade between the United Kingdom and France are requested to communicate with the secretaries of the Commission at the Foreign Office.

DECORATIVE ART EXHIBITION.

This exhibition at the new galleries, 103, New Bond-street, which opened on Monday last, far surpasses what might reasonably be expected from a first attempt to represent the Decorative Arts in this country. It may safely be predicted that this new gallery, in which it is intended to hold one annual exhibition, certainly, and probably two, will have considerable influence on public taste, and aid materially in the present revival of the arts that beautify our homes and render life more pleasant. The exhibition starts under many favourable conditions. The time itself is ripe for it. The lists of patrons and committee are most influential. The private views of the inaugural exhibition last week were visited by the King of Sweden and Norway, the Prince and Princess of Wales, and Princess Louise, and a large number of the aristocracy and other persons of position. The premises themselves are capacious, the wall space being more than half as much again as that of the Grosvenor Gallery, and the rooms are otherwise well adapted for the purpose. The façade, with its marble mosaics and other accessories, gives the keynote of the refined taste that has regulated the whole. The entrance or ground floor front, is a reproduction in Portland stone of the portico common to the Temples of Minerva and Pandrosos, which adjoin those of Erectheus, at Athens; and the delicate carving of the columns, capitals, and mouldings can scarcely be matched in London. The contents of the seven rooms are far too various and interesting to admit of review within our limited space. It must suffice to say that the collection comprises works of monumental, pictorial, or ornamental decoration by Sir John Gilbert, F. Goodall, Alma Tadema, H. S. Marks, J. E. Millais, J. R. Herbert, G. F. Watts, E. Armitage, H. Herkomer, and other Royal Academicians and Associates, together with Messrs. C. Coleman (of Rome), W. Hughes, H. Schaefer, H. Holiday, W. S. Coleman, J. Webb, and others; the decorative designs being by many of the leading artists of the day. The sculpture and bronzes are also from distinguished hands. Ceramics are splendidly illustrated in the productions of Doulton, Minton, the Royal Worcester Works, Wedgewood, Deck, T. W. Moody, Phillips and Pearce, Mortlock, Leonce and Malet, Boulenger, and Schopin. Of art-furniture there are beautiful examples by Gillow, Gueret Freres, Sormani, &c. Silversmiths' work appears to the greatest possible advantage in a choice selection by Messrs. Elkington. Italian goldsmiths' work of great beauty of design and workmanship is largely contributed by Giuliano, Cav. Bizzari, Melilo, Francati, and Santamaria, and others; and there is a wonderful show of hammered repoussée and chased iron by Bergue, of Paris, and Wilhelm, of Vienna. Oriental art is illustrated by Liberty, and in loans by Mr. W. J. Ingram and others. Very beautiful also are the wall-coverings of Jeffries Heaton, Walton ("Linerusta Walton"), and Morton ("Tynecastle Tapestry"). Venetian glass by the Venice and Murano Company and Dr. Salviati, and cut glass by Eisart, are entitled to equal praise. Besides all this there is a profusion of embroidery and other needlework, carvings, lace of lovely design, Limoges enamels by P. Sayer and Madame de Bool, and innumerable other decorative objects. A dark room is, we understand, in preparation to show some novel application of Balmain's luminous paint. Among the few works of ancient art is a silver pax, which bears every indication of being a genuine work by Benvenuto Cellini. Not the least valuable and attractive part of the display is a collection of important foreign works on the decorative arts, which are placed for inspection on stands.

ART NOTES.

The Continental rage for panoramas seems to be becoming contagious here also. Besides the "Battle of Balaclava" in Leicester-square, we have now the "Battle of Waterloo," painted by C. Castellani, at the "Westminster Panorama," York-street, Queen Anne's-gate, and a Panorama, painted by M. Philippoteaux, of the "Siege of Paris," which has just been completed in the gardens of the Crystal Palace, Sydenham. We have not yet seen the latter, but we found Mr. Castellani's performance, when exhibited at Brussels last year, a work of considerable artistic merit, especially as regards the painting of the figures and effect. It contains, however, some anachronisms, and is of not much value historically or as clearly realising the great contest. It will probably be far surpassed by the colossal panorama of the same subject (the Battle of Waterloo) now being painted at Antwerp by Professor Verlat, and in which there are a large number of figures and horses in complete relief to aid the illusion. We may add here that the company in Leicester-square are about to open, in rooms attached to their panorama, an exhibition of pictures. It is announced that the collection is to include examples of many eminent foreign artists; but the title "Le Salon à Londres" seems somewhat pretentious.

Messrs. Goupil are exhibiting at their galleries, Bedford-street, Covent-garden, a collection of drawings by members of the Société des Aquarellistes Français. We recently recorded our high estimate of the productions of the new French Water-Colour Society shown lately at Paris in their second exhibition, and we hope to have an opportunity of returning to the subject.

The new St. Stephen's Art Society (to which we lately drew attention) have opened their first exhibition at their rooms, St. Stephen's Hall, Palace-chambers.

A painting of a Meet of the Four-in-Hand Club at the Magazine, Hyde Park, compiled, so to say, from photographs, and containing 150 portraits, is on view at Messrs. Dickenson's, New Bond-street.

About forty new works have been added to the Exhibition of Pictures by Swiss Artists at the gallery, 168, New Bond-street. The collection is now much more representative than before, and a much stronger claim to consideration is established for the Swiss as possessing a national school.

An exhibition of Scandinavian and other art is opened at Gothenburg, Sweden.

Some pictures sold by Messrs. Christie, Manson, and Woods last Saturday realised extraordinary prices. They were as follows:—The Wood Cutters, by John Linnell, sen., 490 guineas (Agnew); The Music Lesson—Seville, by John Phillip, R.A., 5000 guineas (Penman); The Treat Side, by T. Creswick, R.A., 2000 guineas (Thomas); The Messenger announcing to Job the Eruptions of the Sabeans and the Slaughter of Servants, by F. P. Poole, R.A., 700 guineas (Stogden); Well-bred Sitters, who never say they are bored, by Sir E. Landseer, R.A., 5000 guineas (Agnew); Man Proposes, God Disposes, by the same artist, 6300 guineas (Thomas); A Stag pursued by a Deerhound, by the same artist, 5000 guineas (Saunders); Digging out the Otter in the Valley of the Tay (the figures and the Scotch gillies finished by J. E. Millais, R.A.), by the same artist, 2950 guineas (Saunders); The Battle of Roverdo, by C. Stanfield, R.A., 3300 guineas (Thomas); Pic du Midi D'Ossau, in the Pyrenees, with Smugglers, by the same artist 2550 guineas (Thomas); Quatre Bras (engraved), by Miss Thompson, 710 guineas (Saunders); Worcestershire Meadows, by B. W. Leader, 270 guineas (Arthur Tooth); The Princes in the Tower, by J. E. Millias, R.A., 3800 guineas (Thomas). The day's sale, consisting of 125 pictures, realised £45,798.

SUNDAY MORNING IN "OLD VIRGINIA." BY E. A. ABBEY.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

ILL-TREATMENT OF THE JEWS IN RUSSIA.

SEE NEXT PAGE.

PLUNDERING A BRANDY SHOP AT KIEV.

ASSAULT ON A JEW IN THE PRESENCE OF THE MILITARY, AT KIEV.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

THE DERBY.

Magnificent weather ushered in the Epsom week, and but for the late scarcity of rain, which has made the course very hard, the most inveterate grumbler would have found his occupation gone for the nonce. There was a fair though not particularly strong programme on Tuesday, and Archer began well on his favourite battle-ground by winning the Craven Stakes on Valour, none of his three opponents being able to make the old horse extend himself. The Maiden Plate resulted in a dead-heat between the filly by Wenlock—Black Lily and Spring. The latter is a daughter of Springfield, and carried Mr. Houldsworth's luckless colours, which have rarely, indeed, been seen anywhere near the front during the last two seasons. Some very speedy animals contested the Egmont Plate, and Œnone (8 st. 2 lb.) has performed so brilliantly this season that she was made favourite, in spite of carrying such a heavy weight for a three-year-old. Chevronel (8 st. 10 lb.) had few backers, as it was reported that the filly could beat him at home at level weights: but he seems almost invincible over this course, and, making nearly all the running, won cleverly. There was scarcely such a good field as usual for the rich Woodcote Stakes, which the betting showed to be considered a match between Dunmore and Purple and Scarlet. The latter is by far the better looking of the pair, and appeared to be winning until less than a hundred yards from home. Wood, however, seemed to take matters rather easily; and Archer, riding Dunmore desperately hard, managed to get up and win by a neck. Petronel (8 st. 12 lb.) had not much to beat in the Epsom Stakes; still we scarcely expected to see him stay this mile and a half, and his roaring propensities must have been greatly exaggerated. We were surprised to see Archer, instead of Fordham, sporting the Duke of Beaufort's popular hoops, and this made his fourth victory during the day. After such form as this, of course his mount was favourite for each of the last two races, in both which, however, he could only run second, and the bookmakers thus got back most of their previous losses.

It is a good many years since the Derby has been decided in June, and it was, therefore, appropriate enough that Wednesday last should be one of the most lovely Derby days in point of weather that we can call to mind. There can be no denying the fact that the decision of the race itself was scarcely so interesting as usual, but this was of little consequence to the multitude, who were only intent on a holiday, and the attendance was certainly beyond the average. The opening race on the card, being reduced to a match, attracted even less attention than usual, and many people did not leave the paddock to witness it. It soon became known that Lord Rosebery had scratched Cameliard early in the morning, and though Town Moor seemed to have been sharpened up considerably since the Two Thousand, few people took to him. Fortissimo is a common-looking colt, and though Geologist is neat enough, and has plenty of quality, he lacks the length and size to do much good in high-class company. Iroquois seems to have thriven on all the hard work that he has done during the last month, and Peregrine made plenty of fresh friends, though he seemed nervous and excitable in the paddock, and danced and sidled about a good deal in going down to the post. Culloden led the way out of the paddock after the canter, and Peregrine was the last out, the dozen being joined at the starting-post by St. Louis, Don Fulano, and Marshal Macdonald, who were saddled at Sherwood's, and did not take part in the canter. They got to the post rather late; and at the second attempt the flag fell to a beautiful start, the lot running in a line for the first two hundred yards. Then Marshal Macdonald, who was making running for Don Fulano, went to the front, and was immediately followed by Culloden and Geologist on the far side, next to these being Limestone, St. Louis, and Cumberland, for a quarter of a mile, when St. Louis joined Marshal Macdonald, the pair going on in advance of Fortune's Favourite, Geologist, Don Fulano, and Voluptuary—Peregrine and Iroquois being in the middle of the next division—to the mile post. At this point St. Louis headed Mr. Keene's second string, and went down the hill clear of Tristan, Lord Rosebery's pair, Geologist, and Peregrine—Fortissimo and Iroquois being next until five furlongs from home. Then Voluptuary ran into third place, and Peregrine, Scobell, and Tristan began to improve their positions, Iroquois being in a good place at their heels. St. Louis led into the straight, followed by Marshal Macdonald, Geologist, Voluptuary, and Peregrine, but when fairly in the line for home the two first named were beaten, and Voluptuary momentarily showed in front, though he dropped back directly after, and Town Moor, Tristan, and Peregrine came on in close company with Don Fulano, Scobell, and Iroquois succeeding to the road. Here Tristan was beaten, and Peregrine drew to the front, followed by Town Moor and Iroquois to the Bell, when Iroquois challenged the favourite, and, getting the better of him in a few strides, won rather cleverly by half a length; two lengths between the second and third; Scobell, beaten about half a length from Town Moor, was fourth, and then came Cumberland fifth, Voluptuary sixth, Tristan seventh, Limestone eighth, and Geologist next. The last lot, beaten a long way, being St. Louis, Don Fulano, Fortune's Favourite, Culloden, and Marshal Macdonald. Time, 2 min. 50 sec.

Thus Archer has won his second successive Derby, and backers generally will place more implicit faith in him than ever. It is impossible to grudge the Americans their victory, as they have shown immense enterprise in sending horses over here; and, until Wednesday last, had not been adequately rewarded. The defeat of Peregrine by Iroquois is a terrible blow to the opponents of two-year-old running; as, while the former never appeared in public until last month, the hardy Yankee ran twelve times last season, and has altogether done more work than any other three horses in the race put together. St. Louis showed a very bold front until stopped by want of condition, and Scobell stayed far better than had been generally anticipated.

Captain White has offered to hunt East Kent five days a fortnight with the assistance of annual subscriptions amounting to £1250, kennels and stables to be provided. The offer has been unanimously accepted by the hunt.

The Royal Northern Yacht Club had delightfully bright, sunny weather for their opening cruise and matches. In the first class match the competitors for the Rear-Commodore's Cup were the famous Vandiara, cutter, Mr. S. Clark; Condor, yawl, Mr. J. Clark; Cuckoo, yawl, Mr. Holmes Kerr; Lizette, schooner, Mr. F. Ried; Nixie, yawl, Mr. G. Addie; Amy, schooner, Mr. Heys; and Dione, yawl, Mr. Schaw. It was a tedious match, the breezes being wretchedly partial and light, and, as the Vandiara arrived only 42 sec. ahead of the Cuckoo, the latter won the prize by time. The second class match was won by the Thane, which beat the Sayonara, Moira, and Torpid. The new Verve and Madge sailed a match; the weather was against a fair trial, but the Madge won in good form. The No. 6 Champion Cup, valued, with extra prizes, at £32, was won by the Muriel, a new boat by Watson, designer of the Vandiara; and the contest for the No. 5 Champion Cup, valued at £67, resulted in a disputed match between the Avoset, schooner, and the Lancer, cutter.

Last week Yorkshire defeated Middlesex even more easily than the latter county disposed of Surrey. Emmett (89) batted in grand form, and, in the second innings of Middlesex, Hill took four wickets for only eight runs, the single innings victory being mainly due to the exertions of these two. Thanks to the dashing batting of Mr. Hornby (188), Lancashire has beaten Derbyshire in one innings with 125 runs to spare. Notts proved far too strong for Sussex, and, in spite of the good play of Mr. Lucas (62), the southerners were beaten by an innings and 69 runs; Gunn (74) played exceedingly well for the winners. As is sure to be the case during the continuance of the present fine dry weather, large scores are being made all over the country. The match—unfinished at the time of writing—between the Gentlemen of England and Cambridge University, has been specially prolific in run-getting, and we shall allude to it again next week.

The members of the London Athletic Club held one of their most successful meetings at Stamford-bridge last Saturday. G. M. Neham won the Mile-and-a-Half Handicap from scratch in 7 min. 6 sec., thus beating the best time on record (Sydenham Dixon's 7 min. 8 2-5 sec.). H. D. Thomas carried off the Mile Challenge Cup in the fine time of 4 min. 27 2-5 sec.; and W. P. Phillips secured the Quarter-Mile Challenge Cup in 50 4-5 sec. On the same day W. Snook ran two miles at Birmingham in the grand time of 9 min. 33 2-5 sec., beating the best on record by nearly nine seconds. Altogether, it does not look as if L. E. Myers, who arrived in this country on Monday, will have a succession of bloodless victories.

A very interesting billiard-match, for £100 a side, was played on a championship table on Monday evening. The competitors were D. Richards and W. Mitchell, and, after a most exciting game, the former won by 37 points. He also made the best break, a finely-played 80, which included no less than thirty-two consecutive cannons.

THE JEWS IN RUSSIA.

The deplorable and detestable misconduct of the populace in some towns of Southern Russia, where a fanatical hatred of the Jews has recently broken out in cruel assaults and attacks on their houses, with other acts of violence, was brought under the notice of Lord Granville by a deputation at the Foreign Office, not many days ago. In the town of Kiev alone, the loss and destruction of property from these disorders had been estimated at not less than £140,000. They began at Kiev on the afternoon of April 26, and continued until the following morning, by which time, the troops and police having arrested five hundred of the rioters, peace was for a time restored. The shops and stores of the Jewish tradesmen were sacked, and those who resisted were savagely beaten, while some received mortal wounds. At two o'clock on the afternoon of the 30th the attack was renewed, and the rioters were so violent and determined that the troops fired upon them, killing, according to the official report, one woman, and wounding several men. A Russian paper publishes an account of the scenes there, in which the writer says:—

"Behind the Lavra Gate, in the inclosure that serves as an ammunition store for the arsenal, I beheld a truly heartrending sight. Packed together like ants in an ant-hill were more than 1800 Jews, with their wives and children—many of these mere infants. They were clad in rags and barefooted. Many bore traces of ill-treatment, and a number of them had bandaged heads. All were ghastly pale and terror-stricken. As I approached them I saw a boy of ten dying in terrible agony. His mother sat by him, tearless, as if too deeply afflicted to weep. A little further on I came across another mourning group. Then I penetrated into their midst. What I saw there was like a kind of hell full of troubled souls. It was a sight to unnerve the strongest man. There was hunger and cold, weeping and gnashing of teeth. A heart of stone would have melted, and I confess I could not withhold my tears. I was told that amongst these wretched beings awful scenes had been witnessed. Mothers had lost their children, and there had been fights and struggles for the limited space allotted to them. All this had taken place at night, in bad weather. Many of them told me their tales of woe. One of them said, 'I had twenty thousand roubles and a small farm. Now I have nothing but the rags on my back.' Another addressed me thus, 'My two brothers were killed in the wood last night, and I do not know what fate has befallen my son.' A third said, 'They wanted to hang my mother, but she escaped with the rope round her neck.' A fourth stated his case thus: 'They have robbed us of everything, even our clothes, leaving us naked as you see.' I must tell you that the first day these unhappy people had hardly anything to eat, but to-day they have been provided for. General Drenteln's wife has taken the initiative of affording them relief."

It is stated that Jewish fugitives are hastening from all parts of Russia. Many are emigrating to America. On Monday week a deputation of Russian Jews had an audience of the Emperor at Gatchina. His Majesty received them in the kindest manner, and assured them that the question should receive his best attention. Both the Emperor and Grand Duke Vladimir expressed their belief that race hatred was not the real cause of the recent disorders, but only the pretence. The Emperor has appointed General Count Kutaisoff to institute a special inquiry into the disturbances which have occurred.

ROYAL VISIT TO ST. BARTHOLOMEW'S HOSPITAL.

The Governors and the medical staff of this institution gave a conversazione yesterday week in the new buildings of the medical school, and entertained a company numbering over 1300 ladies and gentlemen. The Prince of Wales, the president, accompanied by the Princess of Wales, arrived shortly before ten o'clock. Their Royal Highnesses, who were accompanied by Colonel Ellis and Lady Suffield, were received by the treasurer, Sir Sydney H. Waterlow, and Sir James Paget, the senior consulting surgeon of the hospital, and conducted through the rooms in which the most interesting objects were to be seen. In the pharmaceutical laboratory their Royal Highnesses were shown some of the processes by which the medicines required at the hospital are prepared. This work is here done to a great extent by machinery, a six-horse power engine working the ponderous millstones with which rhubarb and other drugs are ground. Near by were sifters, also moved by steam power, a mill grinding and mixing zinc ointment, large cauldrons inclosed in steam jackets, in one of which a confection of senna was being prepared with figs and prunes to make it palatable, the stirring being done with a great pestle moved by a mechanism connected with the steam-engine. The library, the museum, the anatomical and physiological class-rooms, the medical and anatomical theatres, the great hall, and the committee-room, had each some special attraction to boast, either in the way of pictures, engravings, busts, and objects of virtù, or of medical, surgical, and general scientific use. During the evening varied selections of music were performed by the London Vocal Union, Sibold's string band, and the band of the Coldstream Guards.

HOME NEWS.

Mr. Francis Gossett has been appointed Assistant-Serjeant of the House of Commons, in the room of Colonel Forester.

Thirty-one members of the Coaching Club entered an appearance on Saturday last at the Magazine.

The Richmond Free Public Library is to be opened on Saturday, the 18th inst., by Countess Russell.

Mr. Charles Hall, who acts as Attorney-General to the Prince of Wales, has been created Queen's Counsel.

Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar has accepted the office of President of the newly-formed Portsmouth centre of the St. John Ambulance Association.

The right of the Earl of Fingall to vote at the election of Representative Peers for Ireland has been established to the Lord Chancellor's satisfaction.

At the regimental dinner of the Queen's Royals, the officers present agreed that a memorial window be erected in memory of the late Sir George Pomeroy Colley by his brother officers.

The Postmaster-General, who, in spite of his blindness, is an expert angler, had an excellent day's sport at Rickmansworth last Saturday.

The Right Hon. J. T. Ball, LL.D., has signified his willingness to accept the office of president of the Jurisprudence Department at the Social Science Congress. Lord Powerscourt has consented to preside over the Art Department.

In London last week 2411 births and 1452 deaths were registered. Allowing for increase of population, the births exceeded by 5, and the deaths by 3, the average numbers in the corresponding week of the last ten years.

The unrevised number of the population of registration London recently enumerated is 3,814,571, showing an increase of 560,311 upon the number enumerated in 1871. The increase in the preceding ten years was 450,271.

The officers of the 17th Lancers, past and present, held their annual regimental dinner at Willis's Rooms, King-street, St. James's, on Thursday week evening—the Duke of Cambridge presiding.

The London School Board has given authority to the statistical committee to apply to the Education Department for power to provide additional school accommodation in various parts of the metropolis.

On Wednesday the Roman Catholic Church of St. Francis, in Glasgow, erected from the designs of Messrs. Pugin and Pugin, of Westminster, was formally opened, Archbishop Eyre singing mass and Cardinal Manning assisting in the ceremonies. About 1500 laymen and 120 priests were present.

Addresses daily pour in upon the Foreign Office from Chambers of Commerce and other important commercial bodies throughout the country, praying that the Commercial Treaty with France may not be renewed unless it embodies the principle of Free Trade.

Mr. G. S. Lefevre, Chief Commissioner of Works has been elected Chairman of the City Lands Committee which was appointed by the House of Commons in order to report upon the desirability of erecting a new Mint on the Victoria Embankment.

A grand fête de nuit is arranged for this (Saturday) evening at the Ranelagh Club. The grounds will be beautifully illuminated and a polo match will take place by electric light. A pyrotechnic display will conclude the entertainment. The full band of the 11th Hussars has been engaged.

The large piece of ground adjoining the Victoria Tower, Westminster, which the Metropolitan Board of Works has at length formed into a public recreation ground, was opened last Saturday to the public. The grounds, which have been tastefully laid out, were crowded throughout the afternoon.

A strong feeling having been expressed in various parts of the country in favour of raising a national memorial to the late Earl of Beaconsfield, it has been resolved to erect a statue of the deceased statesman in the metropolis. An executive committee, including many Peers and members of Parliament, has been formed to carry out the project.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING JUNE 11.

SUNDAY, JUNE 5.

Whit Sunday.
Moon's first quarter, 3.19 a.m.
Accession of George I., King of Greece, 1863.
Morning Lessons: Deut. xvi. 1—18; Rom. viii. 1—18. Evening Lessons: Isaiah xi. or Ezek. xxxvi. 25; Gal. v. 16, or Acts xviii. 24—xix. 21.
Westminster Abbey, 10 a.m., and 3 p.m.
St. Paul's Cathedral, 10.30 a.m., the Dean, Dr. Church; 3.15 p.m., Bishop Piers Claughton; 7 p.m., Rev. W. J. Knox-Little
St. James's, noon, the Rev. Canon E. R. Wilberforce, Sub-Almoner.
Whitehall, 11 a.m., Rev. W. F. Erskine Kuollys; 3 p.m., Rev. W. Hulton.
Savoy, 11.30 a.m., Rev. C. Middleton; 7.30 p.m., Rev. C. J. Martyn.

MONDAY, JUNE 6.

Whitsun Monday. Bank Holiday.
Royal Institution, general monthly meeting, 5 p.m.
Musical Association, 5 p.m. (Mr. F. M. White on Copyright as Affecting Composers of Music).
International Gun and Polo Club, Brighton.
Bath and West of England Agricultural Association Show, Tunbridge Wells (six days).
Mildenhall Poultry Show.
Horticultural Society's Flower Show and Exhibition (two days).
Races: Kempton Park, Redcar, and Enfield.
Athletic Sports: Bournemouth, Leighton Buzzard, Huntingdon, Burton-on-Trent, Newport (Mon.).
Yachting: Thames Valley, Nore, Temple, Medway, and Plymouth Clubs.

TUESDAY, JUNE 7.

Christian Knowledge Society, 3 p.m.
Royal Institution, 3 p.m. (Professor H. Morley on Thomas Carlyle).
Gresham Lectures, 6 p.m. (Dr. H. Wylde on Music; and on June 8, 9, 10).
Zoological Society, 8.30 p.m.
Royal London Yacht Club, matches.
Biblical Archæological Society, 8.30 p.m. (Mr. T. G. Pinches on Mr. Rassam's Recent Discoveries; papers by Dr. Birch, Professor E. L. Lushington, and Mr. H. Howorth.
Ripon Stock, Poultry, and Dog Show.
Birmingham Dairy Show (four days).
Races: Manchester Summer Meeting.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 8.

Ember Day.
Literary Fund, 3 p.m.
Botanic Society, promenade, 3.30 p.m.
Microscopical Society, 8 p.m.
Geological Society, 8 p.m.
Amateur Mechanical Society, 8 p.m.
Sanitary Institute, 8 p.m.
Caistor Horse Show.
Albert Hall, Old English fair and musical fête, for Chelsea Hospital for Women (three days).
Yachting: Royal Thames, Junior Thames, and London Clubs.
Races: Croydon June Meeting.

THURSDAY, JUNE 9.

Royal Institution, 3 p.m. (Professor E. C. Turner on Russian Writers—Tourgenieff).
Inventors' Institute, 8.15 p.m.
Oxford Encænia, or Commemoration of Founders.
Mathematical Society, 8 p.m.

FRIDAY, JUNE 10.

Ember Day.
Botanic Society, lecture, 4 p.m.
Royal Institution, 8 p.m. (Professor Dewar on the Origin and Identity of Spectra, 9 p.m.).
United Service Institution, 3 p.m. (Captain W. H. Jameson Military Education).
Quekett Microscopical Club, 8 p.m.
Astronomical Society, 8 p.m.
Architectural Association, 7.30 p.m. (Mr. R. Corbett on Colour Decoration).
New Shakspeare Society, 8 p.m.
Sacred Harmonic Society, 7.30 p.m. (Benedict's "St. Cecilia," Rossini's "Stabat Mater," &c.).
Races: Sandown Summer Meeting.

SATURDAY, JUNE 11.

St. Barnabas, Apostle and Martyr.
Royal Institution, 3 p.m. (Professor E. C. Turner on Russian Writers—Nekrassoff). Close of season.
Physical Society, 3 p.m.
Botanic Society, 3.45 p.m.
Leeds Athletic Festival.
Civil Service Athletic Sports: Lillie-bridge.

THE STATE OF IRELAND.

"Happy is the country that has no history." At any rate, it would be better for Ireland if it had no such history as that of the present. Well may all law-abiding, right-minded Irishmen, in the presence of atrocities that have recently been committed in their country, say, with Cobbett (changing one word), "Are we in Ireland, or are we in Hell?"

In the Dublin Gazette six more baronies in the county of Tipperary and one in the county of Donegal have been proclaimed under the Coercion Act.

A demonstration of unemployed labourers took place in Dublin yesterday week, when the principal streets were paraded by a crowd. A black flag was carried, with the words, "One thousand men out of work. One thousand families starving. Christianity a mockery."

A large force of military and police accompanied the Sheriff to Mitchelstown, county of Cork, yesterday week to effect a number of evictions. A crowd assembled and stoned the police. The Riot Act was read. The dragoons and police charged. Several soldiers and people were injured.

At Killmallock Sessions the resident magistrate, Mr. Clifford Lloyd, recently transferred from the North of Ireland, in sentencing three men to four months' imprisonment for riot on the occasion of a recent land meeting, said that rowdies were becoming so cowardly that they now sent women to face the batons of the police; but that, if such conduct was persisted in, something else besides batons would be used. The fifty threatening letters he had received since he came there had not in the slightest deterred him from doing his duty. Mr. Lloyd wears a coat of mail, and is guarded by four policemen during his movements through the town.

In Naas, in the county of Kildare, yesterday week, the police were Boycotted. An escort arrived from Cloghan, King's County, with a suspect named Slevin, but no car could be got to convey them from Sullins Station to the gaol, and they had to walk with their prisoner the entire way, a distance of two miles. The carmen refuse to take any more police.

A farmer named Peter Dempsey was shot dead on Sunday morning at Holly Park, within three miles of Athenry, county Galway. He was going to mass with two of his children at the time. He took a farm some time ago on Lord Dunsandle's property, from which another tenant was evicted. Two men have been arrested in connection with his murder. They are Bermingham, the tenant who was evicted from the farm of which Dempsey was in possession, and his nephew, named Glynn. After Bermingham was evicted by Lord Dunsandle's agent last August, Murty Hynes became tenant; but an, indignation meeting being held, Hynes gave up the land which was then taken by Dempsey. Two shots were fired at deceased. The first entered the right side, and, passing through the left shoulder, struck the pillar of a gate close by. The second only took slight effect.

The Sheriff's bailiff at Cork last Saturday attempted to serve writs on properties of George Bond Lowe and Samuel Hutchins, who was some time since fired at near Dromoleague, upon which occasion his driver was killed. On the bailiff's arrival he found the chapel bells tolling, horns sounding, and a large crowd collected. He was pursued and captured, and the writs were taken from him. He was stripped and thrown into the river. On his getting out he was attacked by the women with furze bushes, and had subsequently to make his way to Cork, a distance of ten miles, on foot. A bailiff engaged at the same work near Fermoy was similarly treated.

The Sheriff, on Saturday last sold in Cork three farms, the property of Mr. Bence Jones, which had been seized for non-payment of rent. Representatives of the Land League protested against the tenants' interest being sold, and invited the Sheriff to seize the cattle and growing crops in satisfaction of the debts. The farms were ultimately sold. There was a large force of armed constabulary present, but no disturbance occurred.

Last Saturday night a farmer in Behan, an officer of the Land League, was dragged from his bed by a party of men and severely "carded."

A large number of the tenantry and labourers on the estate of the Marquis of Waterford assembled at Rathcormack, on Saturday last, and built a house for a farmer named Fitzgerald, who was evicted by his Lordship on the previous Monday for non-payment of rent. The house is built on the boundary of the farm from which he was evicted. Fitzgerald was put into his new habitation amidst great enthusiasm.

Mr. A. J. Kettle, one of the principal organisers of the Land League, was arrested in Dublin on Monday evening and conveyed to Naas gaol. Four other arrests were also reported.

The most intense excitement prevailed on Tuesday at Clonmel, where sales of farms were announced to take place. Early in the morning several hundred well-mounted and disciplined horsemen, wearing green sashes, preceded by bands, and followed by an immense procession of people, paraded the town. All the streets leading to the Courthouse were lined with police and military, and all the shops and business places were closed. The sales passed off quietly, and things went well until towards six o'clock, when a cry was raised that a local clergyman had been arrested, and a shout went forth to "rescue the priest." A rush was at once made on the police, but was repelled. The Riot Act was then read, and the Hussars charged and recharged the mob, who hurled volley after volley of stones at the military, inflicting upon many of them severe injuries. Several policemen and civilians were also seriously injured.

Eighty police and a company of the 42nd Regiment went to Rahan on Tuesday for the purpose of assisting in the eviction of an old woman named Byrne, who owed £8, two years' rent. Over 1000 people assembled, and groaned at the bailiff and police. Captain Lestrange, R.M., ordered the mob to disperse, and on their refusal read the Riot Act, which had the desired effect.

At the meeting of the Land League on Tuesday Mr. Quinn, assistant-secretary, announced that £980 had been received since last meeting. Mr. T. D. Sullivan, M.P., presided. Mr. Sexton, M.P., said he had had an opportunity that day of conversing with Mr. Dillon, M.P., in Kilmainham, and he was sorry to observe that imprisonment had undoubtedly told on Mr. Dillon.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

GUIDE-BOOKS and MAPS for TOURISTS, published by EDWARD STANFORD, 55, Charing-cross, London, S.W.

TOURISTS' GUIDES. — STANFORD'S Two-Shilling series of Tourists' Guides. Fcap 8vo, cloth, with Maps, &c.
CHANNEL ISLANDS. By B. CLARKE.
CORNWALL. By W. H. TREGELLAS.
DERBYSHIRE. By J. C. COX.
DEVON, NORTH. By R. N. WORTH, F.G.S.
DEVON, SOUTH. By R. N. WORTH, F.G.S.
The above Guides to North and South Devon are also published in one volume, 3s. 6d.
ENGLISH LAKE DISTRICT. By H. I. JENKINSON, F.R.G.S.
HAMPSHIRE. By G. P. BEVAN, F.G.S.
KENT. By G. P. BEVAN, F.G.S.
LONDON Tourist's Guide Through). By the Rev. W. J. LOFTIE, B.A., F.S.A.
LONDON (Round About). By the Rev. W. J. LOFTIE, B.A., F.S.A.
NORFOLK. By WALTER RYE.
SOMERSETSHIRE. By R. N. WORTH, F.G.S.
SURREY. By G. P. BEVAN, F.G.S.
SUSSEX. By G. F. CHAMBERS, F.R.A.S.
YORKSHIRE, NORTH AND EAST RIDINGS. By G. P. BEVAN, F.G.S.
YORKSHIRE, WEST RIDING. By G. P. BEVAN, F.G.S.
"These County Guides of Mr. Stanford can be carried about in a very small pocket without any feeling of inconvenience, and are thoroughly practical and intelligible in their method, and contain all necessary instructions as to means of locomotion, hotels, &c. . . . Each guide is well provided with useful maps and plans. We should think these portable and carefully written County Guide-books would be welcome not only to those who are compelled to consider the quest'on of expense, but to these—and they are many—who object to the constant irritation of the more bulky guide-books, which are a burden in the hand, and cannot be put into any reasonable pocket."—Times.
London: EDWARD STANFORD, 55, Charing-cross, S.W.

HAMPSHIRE.—TOURISTS' GUIDE TO HAMPSHIRE, including the Isle of Wight. By G. PHILLIPS BEVAN, F.G.S. With Map and a Plan of Winchester Cathedral. Forming a New Volume of Stanford's Two-shilling Tourists' Guides. Fcap 8vo, cloth, 2s.
London: EDWARD STANFORD, 55, Charing-cross, S.W.

SOMERSETSHIRE.—TOURISTS' GUIDE TO SOMERSETSHIRE. By R. N. WORTH, F.G.S., &c. With Map and a Plan of Wells Cathedral. Forming a New Volume of Stanford's Two-shilling Tourists' Guides. Fcap 8vo, cloth, 2s.
London: EDWARD STANFORD, 55, Charing-cross, S.W.

JENKINSON'S PRACTICAL GUIDES. Fcap 8vo, cloth, with Maps and Views.
THE ENGLISH LAKE DISTRICT. 7s.; or in four sections, separately, viz.:—Keswick, Windermere, and Langdale: Coniston, Buttermere, and Wastdale: Grasmere and Ullswater. Paper covers, 1s. 6d. each.
CARLISLE, GILSLAND, THE ROMAN WALL AND NEIGHBOURHOOD. 3s.
NORTH WALES. 6s. 6d.; or in five sections, separately, viz.:—Chester; Llandudno; Bettws-y-Coed and Snowdon; Dolgelly and Bala; Aberystwith and Llangollen. Paper covers, 1s. 6d. each.
THE ISLE OF MAN. 5s.
THE ISLE OF WIGHT. 5s.
"The landmarks are pointed out as we ascend or descend, so that a wayfaring man, though a fool, cannot err in his ramble."—Times.
"Every possible item of information which the tourist or visitor can want is given. He can satisfy himself about all the details of the journey, the accommodation to be found, and the price to be paid, and then may turn to a very full and well executed account of the history, antiquities, and scenery."—Spectator.
London: EDWARD STANFORD, 55, Charing-cross, S.W.

JENKINSON'S SMALLER PRACTICAL GUIDES. Fcap 8vo, with Maps and Views.
THE ENGLISH LAKE DISTRICT. Paper cover, 1s. 6d.
CARLISLE, GILSLAND, the ROMAN WALL and Neighbourhood. Paper cover, 2s.
NORTH WALES. Paper cover, 2s. 6d.; cloth, 3s. 6d.
THE ISLE OF MAN. Paper cover, 2s.; cloth, 2s. 6d.
THE ISLE OF WIGHT. Paper cover, 2s.; cloth, 2s. 6d.
"The special merit of these Handbooks is their trustworthiness. Mr. Jenkinson has visited every place described, and travelled every route suggested, and has throughout viewed things as a practical guide should view them. His directions to the pedestrian are so minute and clear that it is hardly possible to go wrong, and his advice as to what to see and what to avoid is always worth attention."—Academy.
London: EDWARD STANFORD, 55, Charing-cross, S.W.

LONDON MAP and GUIDE for Visitors and Residents.—COLLINS'S STANDARD MAP OF LONDON. Enlarged and Corrected from a recent survey, and delineating the Postal Districts, the Railways, with their latest extensions, the Omnibus and Tramway routes, and the Steamboat Piers, with an alphabetical list of nearly 600 references, and an Illustrated Guide to the principal Places of Interest, &c. Scale, 4 in. to a mile; size, 34½ in. by 36½ in. Price, plain, in case, 3s.; coloured, 4s. 6d.; mounted on linen, in case, 3s. 6d.; on roller, varnished, 5s. 6d.
London: EDWARD STANFORD, 55, Charing-cross, S.W.

ISLE OF WIGHT.—VISITORS' GUIDE AND MAP.—STANFORD'S TOURISTS' MAP OF THE ISLE OF WIGHT, showing the roads, railways, landing-places for boats, &c., and an inset Map, showing the Island, Southampton Water, and adjacent country. Size, 27 inches by 21; scale, 1 inch to a mile. The Map is accompanied by a VISITORS' GUIDE of Thirty-two pages, containing Introduction, Approaches, Means of Locomotion, Hotels and Inns, Lodgings, Outline Tours, Walking Tours, Dictionary of Places, &c. Price, folded in case, plain, 1s.; coloured, 1s. 6d.; coloured and mounted in case, 3s. 6d.
London: EDWARD STANFORD, 55, Charing-cross, S.W.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

ENGLISH LAKES.—STANFORD'S NEW MAP of the ENGLISH LAKE DISTRICT, on the scale of one inch to a mile, including Bassenthwaite Lake on the North, Newby Bridge on the south, and extending from Ravenglass on the west, to Hawes Water on the east; showing the contours of equal altitude, and marking in feet the heights of all the principal mountains, including the Scafells, Helvellyn, &c., and all the roads and paths. Size, 27in. by 32in. Price, folded in cover, plain, 2s. 6d.; coloured, 4s. 6d.; mounted in case, plain, 3s. 6d.; coloured, 7s. 6d.
London: EDWARD STANFORD, 55, Charing-cross, S.W.

BOOKS and MAPS for TOURISTS. STANFORD'S TOURISTS' CATALOGUE, containing a List, irrespective of Publisher, of all the best Guide-books and Maps suitable for the British and Continental Traveller; with Index Maps to the Government Surveys of England, France, and Switzerland. Gratis on application, or per post for penny stamp.
London: EDWARD STANFORD, 55, Charing-cross, S.W.

THE NEW AND POPULAR NOVELS.
Now ready, at all the Libraries,
AMONG THE HILLS. By E. FRANCES POYNTER, Author of "My Little Lady." 2 vols.
SYDNEY. By GEORGIANA CRAIK. 3 vols.
HARRY JOSCELYN. By Mrs. OLIPHANT. 3 vols.
LOVE-KNOTS. By Author of "Ursula's Love Story."
THE FUTURE MARQUIS. By CATHARINE CHILDAR. 2 vols.
LOVE, HONOUR, AND OBEY. By INEZ DUFFUS HARDY. 3 vols. (Next week.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

Now ready (One Shilling), No. 258,
THE CORNHILL MAGAZINE for JUNE. With Illustrations by George Du Maurier and W. Small.
CONTENTS.
Love the Debt. (With an illustration.) Chap. XVI.—Miss Tubbs' Pets. XVII.—Grace's Confession. XVIII.—Fenton Folk. XIX.—Friends in Council.
Spring Wanderings. Anacapri—From Capri to Ischia—La Piccola Sentinella—Ischia and Forio—Monte Epomeo—From Ischia to Naples—Night at Pompeii—San Germano.
Authors for Hire.
The Romance of a Wayside Weed.
Among the Dictionaries.
Love and Pain. By Una Taylor.
A Grape from a Thorn. By James Payn. (With an Illustration.) Chap. XXIII.—The Widow's Ring. XXIV.—A Change of Views. XXV.—In Quarantine. XXVI.—A Change of Patients.
London: SMITH, ELDER, and Co., 15, Waterloo-place.

At all Booksellers', price 1s.,
TEMPLE BAR MAGAZINE for JUNE, in which two New Serial Stories are continued—KITH AND KIN, by JESSIE FOTHERGILL, Author of "The Probation," and "THE FRERES, by Mrs. ALEXANDER, Author of "The Wooing O't."
RICHARD BENTLEY and SON, New Burlington-street.

New and Cheaper Edition of THE WELLFIELDS. By JESSIE FOTHERGILL, Author of "The First Violin," &c. In crown 8vo, 6s.
RICHARD BENTLEY and SON, New Burlington-street.

CENTENARY of GEORGE STEPHENSON. All interested in the Centenary of George Stephenson should read the books by Mr. Michael Reynolds on ENGINE-DRIVING LIFE, price 2s.; LOCOMOTIVE ENGINE-DRIVING, price 4s. 6d.; STATIONARY ENGINE-DRIVING, price 4s. 6d.; and especially THE MODEL LOCOMOTIVE ENGINEER, price 4s. 6d., in the pages of which the life and early exploits of George Stephenson and the other Locomotive Pioneers are most graphically set forth.
Any of these Books will be sent post-free on receipt of the price affixed by the Publishers.
CROSBY LOCKWOOD and Co., 7, Stationers' Hall-court, London, E.C.

Just ready, with Portrait, a New and Cheaper Edition,
LIFE OF GEORGE STEPHENSON. By SAMUEL SMILES, LL.D.
This Edition has been prepared expressly to meet the demand for a Popular Life, on occasion of the celebration, on June 9, of the Centenary of George Stephenson's birth.
JOHN MURRAY, Albemarle-street.

MESSER'S BRITISH WILD FLOWERS. A New and Rapid Method of Studying Wild Flowers by Analytical Illustrations. "We cordially recommend it."—Journal of Horticulture. Cloth, 6s.
D. BOGUE, St. Martin's-place, Trafalgar-square, W.C.

Fifteenth Edition, enlarged to 100 pages, post-free 1s.,
HOW TO INVEST. No one should invest either large or small sums without first reading this work. "More valuable than Cent." Vide Public Press. Published by
E. J. BARTLETT, F.R.G.S., 30, Great St. Helen's, London.

WARD AND LOCK'S PENNY BIOGRAPHICAL SERIES. Stitched in Wrapper, with Portrait, 1d. each.
THE LIFE OF GEORGE STEPHENSON.
Also the same Series of
Beaconsfield, Gladstone, Nelson, Wellington, Luther, Chatham, Clauser, Humboldt, Carlyle, Cowley, Peter the Great, Burns, A'Becket, Scott, Molière, Columbus, Shakespeare, Bunyan, Dante, Goldsmith, Frederick the Great, De Montfort, Johnson, Burke, Sheridan, Raleigh, Napoleon.
London: WARD, LOCK, and Co., Salisbury-square, E.C.

JUST PUBLISHED, post-free, 2 stamps,
DYSPEPSIA and the SEVERER FORMS OF INDIGESTION. Pamphlet on these distressing complaints and their complete cure. Published by the Author,
RICHARD KING, Esq., Staff Surgeon R.N., 23, Warwick-st., Rugby.

Third Edition, pp. 56, 1s., or 12 stamps,
SUMMER CATARRH or HAY FEVER: its Causes, Symptoms, and Treatment. By GEORGE MOORE, M.D., L.R.C.P.L.
JAMES EPPS and Co., 170, Piccadilly; and 48, Threadneedle-street.

Fourth Edition, crown 8vo, cloth, 2s. 6d.,
EPILEPSY, the TONIC TREATMENT OF. By WALTER TYRRELL, M.R.C.S.
London: DAVID BOGUE, 3, St. Martin's-place, W.C.

PROVERBS IN SONGS. By WEATHERLY and BOUCKEL.
No. 1. Two's company .. .. .. 2s. net.
No. 2. A bird in the hand .. .. .. 2s. net.
No. 3. When poverty knocks at the door .. 2s. net.
No. 4. The honest way round .. .. 2s. net.
ENOCH and SONS, 19, Hollis-street, W.

CHROMOPHOTOGRAPHY. (KRAUS' PROCESS.)
The New Art (enabling any person without previous knowledge of either Painting or Drawings to Colour Photographs on convex glass, in imitation of China and Enamel Painting. Boxes containing every requisite, 7s. and 25s. Particulars post free. Specimens shown on application at the Sole Agents, J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, London, W.

VITREMANIE, superseding Diaphanie. An easy and inexpensive method of decorating windows in churches, public buildings, and private houses, by which may be produced the rich colouring and beautiful designs equal in appearance to real stained glass. Handbook of Designs and full instructions, 1s. 1d. Boxes comprising designs, &c., at 21s., 31s. 6d., 42s. Particulars post free. Sole inventors, J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, London, W.

FOR ARMS and CREST send Name and County to T. MORING, Inns of Court Heraldic Offices, 325, High Holborn, W.C. Plain Sketch, 3s. 6d.; Coloured, 7s. 6d. Seals, Dies, and Diplomas. Illustrated Price-Lists post-free.

WHITE WOOD ARTICLES for Painting, Fern Painting, and Decalcomanie, Blotting-Books, Writing Plates, Glass-Cases, Screens, &c. New Patterns. Priced List free WM. BARNARD, 113, Edgware-road, London, W.

JOSEPH GILLOTT'S STEEL PENS. GOLD MEDAL, PARIS, 1878.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN PRINTER. The People's Printing Press for Authors, Amateurs, the Army and Navy, &c. Prospectuses forwarded on application to D. G. BERRI, 36, High Holborn, London, W.C.

FOR the HOT WEATHER use NIAGARA WATER. Most invigorating and refreshing. Possessing all the fragrance of a bunch of Exotics. Invaluable in all hot climates. In Half-Pint Bottles.

NIAGARA WATER for the TOILET and BATH (Registered).—The most agreeable and refreshing preparation known. Most soothing for headache. Sold everywhere. Wholesale of JAMES LEWIS, Perfumer, 6, Hartlett's-buildings, Holborn, London.

EPPS'S COCOA. GRATEFUL and COMFORTING.
"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operation of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack any weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.
JAMES EPPS and CO., HOMŒOPATHIC CHEMISTS.
Also, EPPS'S CHOCOLATE ESSENCE, for Afternoon Use.

TRELOAR and SONS' LUDGATE-HILL MATS. FLOORCLOTH. LINOLEUM. CARPETS.
TRELOAR and SONS, 69, Ludgate-hill, were established 1832. They are the only firm in London who deal exclusively in Floor Coverings. They have been awarded seven Prize Medals, including one at Paris, 1878. The Fine Arts Galleries at the International Exhibitions of 1851, 1853, 1855, 1862, 1865, 1870, and 1878, were covered with matting specially manufactured by them.

CHUBB'S SAFES FOR JEWELS, DEEDS, PLATE, BULLION, &c.
CHUBB'S LOCKS AND LATCHES, CHESTS, BOXES, &c.
CHUBB'S ILLUSTRATED PRICE-LISTS POST-FREE.
CHUBB and SON, 128, Queen Victoria-street, E.C.; and 68, St. James's-street, London.

CARSON'S ANTI-CORROSION PAINT, Patronised by her Majesty, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Edinburgh, and 15 Sons of the Nobility, Gentry, and Clergy, for every description of outdoor work. It has been established upwards of eighty years, and has the reputation over every part of the habitable globe of being the best Preserver of Iron, Wood, Stone, Brick, or Dumps.
It stands any extreme of climate, and seems only to harden with exposure. It is sold in all Colours—Forces, patterns, and full particulars of free delivery, cash discount, with flattering testimonials; also list of Oils, Varnishes, Brushes, &c., can be had upon application to
WALTER CARSON and SONS,
La Belle Sauvage-yard, Ludgate-hill, London; 21, Bachelor's-walk, Dublin.
FOR EXTREMES OF CLIMATE.

CARSON'S ANTI-CORROSION PAINT is used by all the leading horticulturists for their conservatories and hot-houses, and has stood a practical test of upwards of eighty years.

11, 12, and 13, Leicester-street, Leicester-square; and 6, Wardour-street. THURSDAY, JUNE 9, at Twelve o'Clock. The Wardrobe and Personal Effects of a Lady of Title, consisting of Wearing Apparel of the latest fashion, and materials of a costly description.

W. and F. C. BONHAM are instructed to offer for SALE, in the large Upper Auction Galleries, on Thursday, JUNE 9, at Twelve punctually (on account of the large number of lots), the EXPENSIVE WARDROBE, comprising rich silk, satin, velvet, and brocaded silk Dresses; Velvet Dresses, trimmed with lace; Court Trains, Fashionable Costumes, India Shawls, Cloaks, Antique and Modern Lace, Flounces, Trimmings, Furs, Jewellery, Under-clothing, Boots, Shoes, Hats, Bonnets, and miscellaneous valuable property. On view, Wednesday, the day prior, and morning of sale. Catalogues of the Auctioneers, Leicester-street, Leicester-square; and 406 and 410, Oxford-street, who will forward them by post if desired.

JAY'S, Regent-street.

SUMMER SILKS.—Very durable, light, soft, elastic, and will neither crumple nor crush. Black and also select and ardoise colours. Sold at per yard, or made up in the most fashionable costumes of the day, at from 5½ guineas each costume, including silk material for the bodice.
JAY'S, Regent-street.

NEW COSTUMES FOR SUMMER WEAR. Light, but not transparent.
MESSRS. JAY have a variety of charming Costumes prepared for the summer season, adapted from French designs, and suitable either for ladies who are in mourning or for those who wear black dresses from choice.
JAY'S, Regent-street.

MOURNING.—Messrs. JAY'S Experienced Assistants travel to any part of the kingdom, free of expense to purchasers. They take dresses and millinery with them, besides patterns of materials, all marked in plain figures, and at the same price as if purchased at the Warehouse in Regent-street. Funerals at stated charges conducted in London or country.
JAY'S,
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE, REGENT-STREET, W.

PRATT'S WATER PAD TRUSSES are the MOST EFFECTUAL CURE FOR RUPTURES.
PRATT'S ELASTIC STOCKINGS, for VARICOSE VEINS, &c.
J. F. PRATT,
Surgical Mechanician to the late Bartholomew's Hospital, 420, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON.

FOR SOUTH AFRICA.—How to get rid of your left-off clothes, jewels, furniture, antique lace, old gold teeth plates, &c. Why, send them to the most respectable purchasers, who pay you ready money before taking them away.—Mr. and Mrs. PHILLIPS, Old Curiosity Shop, 31, Thayer-street, Manchester-square, London, W.

"AND TEETH LIKE ROWS OF PEARLS."
JEWSBURY and BROWN'S Exquisite Compound,
THE ORIENTAL TOOTH-PASTE.
The celebrated original and only genuine Oriental Tooth-Paste is signed "JEWSBURY and BROWN, Manchester, Established 1770 years." PEARLY WHITE and SOUND TEETH, healthy gums, firm and bright of colour so essential to beauty and fragrant breath, are all secured by the use of this most perfect Dentifrice. Pots, 1s., 0d.; double, 2s. 6d. All Perfumers and Chemists only the ORIGINAL ORIENTAL TOOTH-PASTE is signed JEWSBURY and BROWN, Manchester, and each pot bears their Trade Mark, J. and B. in a double triangle.

NUDA VERITAS.—GREY HAIR restored by this valuable specific to its original shade, after which it grows the natural colour, not grey. Used as a dressing, it causes growth and arrests falling. The most harmless and effectual restorer extant. One trial will convince it has no equal. Price 10s. 6d., of all Chemists and Hairdressers. Testimonials post-free.—R. HOVENDEN and SONS, London.

ROBARE'S AUREOLINE, or GOLDEN HAIR WASH.—For producing the beautiful golden colour so much admired. Warranted perfectly harmless. Price 5s. 6d. and 10s. 6d., of all the principal Perfumers and Chemists throughout the world.
Wholesale Agents, R. HOVENDEN and SONS, London.

THE COURT HAIR DESTROYER.—The newly-discovered, harmless, only effectual remedy for superfluous hair, 3s. 6d., 5s., 10s. 6d., post, privately, of the Inventor, John Leon, 18, Porteous-road, London, W.; or Chemists.

SULPHOLINE LOTION.—An external Cure for Skin Diseases. There is scarcely any eruption but will yield to SULPHOLINE and fade away in a few days. Ordinary pimples, redness, blotches, scurf, roughness, vanish as by magic; while old skin disorders, that have perhaps been sufferers for years, however deeply rooted, Sulpholine will successfully attack them. It destroys the animalcules which cause these unsightly, irritable affections, and always leaves a clear skin. Sulpholine Lotion is sold by Chemists. Bottles, 2s. 9d.

HAY FEVER or SUMMER CATARRH. The most effective remedy for this distressing affection is EPPS'S ANTHOXANTHUM, administered as spray. The seller by Patent Nebulisers, 1s. each; exhalations in almost inhalations. 1s. in Bottles, 2s. 9d. and 4s. 6d. (by post, 36 or 57 stamps), labelled JAMES EPPS and CO., 48, Threadneedle-street; and 170, Piccadilly.

A NEVER-FAILING REMEDY for Bilious and Liver Complaints, Indigestion, Wind, Spasms, Giddiness, Dizziness of the Eyes, &c. DR. SCOTT'S BILIOUS and LIVER PILLS are the most certain remedy, without mercury, having proved effectual in cases of habitual costiveness, loss of appetite, with sensation of fulness at the pit of the stomach, pains between the shoulders, and the distressing feelings arising from indigestion. Prepared only by W. Lambert, 173, Sermour-place, London, W., in Boxes, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. Sold by all Chemists. See you have "DR. SCOTT'S" wrapped in a square green package.

NEW MUSIC.

PATIENCE. An Æsthetic Opera. By W. S. GILBERT and ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Now being performed at the Opera Comique with enormous success.
Vocal Score .. .. .. .. 5s.
Pianoforte Solo .. .. .. .. 2s.
Pianoforte Arrangements by Kuhe, Boyton Smith, Smallwood, &c. Waltz, Lancers, Quadrille, and Polka by Charles D'Albert.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

OLIVETTE. New Comic Opera. Enormous success at the Strand Theatre. Adapted by H. B. Farnie; Music by AUDRAN.
Vocal Score .. .. .. .. 2s. net.
Abridged Edition of the Vocal Score, containing the Overture, Songs, &c. .. .. .. .. 4s. ,,
Pianoforte Solo .. .. .. .. 2s. net.
All the Favourite Airs, arranged for the Violin, Flute, or Cornet .. .. .. each } 1s. 6d. ,,
Lancers. D'Albert .. 2s. net. | Galop. D'Albert .. 2s. net.
Waltz. D'Albert .. 2s. ,, | Newest and Easiest Waltz. D'Albert .. 2s. ,,
Quadrille. D'Albert .. 2s. ,, | Polka. D'Albert .. 2s. ,,
Boyton Smith's Fantasia .. .. .. 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

A CREOLE LOVE SONG. Words by Theo. Marzials; Music by Mrs. LYNEDOCH MONCRIEFF. Price 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

NEW AND POPULAR SONGS.

IN SHADOW. Mrs. RONALDS. 2s. net.
WELCOME. Lady ARTHUR HILL. 2s. net.
COEUR DE LION. H. J. STARK. Sung by Mr. Oswald. 2s. net.
AT THE PORTAL. N. FERRI. Sung by Madame Mary Cummings. 2s. net.
WHAT THE FIRELIGHT TOLD. J. L. ROECKEL. 2s. net.
DINNA LEAVE ME. A. M. WAKEFIELD, Composer of "No, Sir!" 2s. net.
THOUGHTS AT SUNRISE. Mrs. L. MONCRIEFF. 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHARLES D'ALBERT'S NOVELTIES.

| | s. d. | | s. d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Fra Diavolo .. .. | 3 6 | Die Zauberflote .. .. | 3 6 |
| Masaniello .. .. | 3 6 | Il Seraglio .. .. | 3 6 |
| Fidelio .. .. | 3 6 | Il Barbiere .. .. | 3 6 |
| Norma .. .. | 3 6 | Guillaume Tell .. .. | 5 0 |
| La Sonnambula .. .. | 3 6 | Il Trovatore .. .. | 3 6 |
| I Puritani .. .. | 3 6 | Rigoletto .. .. | 3 6 |
| Lucia di Lammermoor .. | 3 6 | La Traviata .. .. | 3 6 |
| Lucrezia Borgia .. .. | 3 6 | Ernani .. .. | 3 6 |
| La Figlia del Reggimento | 3 6 | Tannhauser .. .. | 3 6 |
| Martha .. .. | 3 6 | Lohengrin .. .. | 3 6 |
| Iphigenia in Aulis .. | 3 6 | Flying Dutchman .. | 3 6 |
| Iphigenia in Tauris .. | 3 6 | Tom Jones .. .. | 3 6 |
| L'Etoile du Nord .. | 5 0 | Der Freischütz .. .. | 3 6 |
| Don Giovanni .. .. | 3 6 | Precious .. .. | 1 6 |
| Le Nozze di Figaro .. | 3 6 | (To be continued.) | |

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners-street, W., and 80 and 81, Queen-street, E.C.

THREE NEW SONGS. By Lord HENRY SOMERSET. ONE MORE (in F and D). 2s.; DAWN, NOON, AND NIGHT. 2s. 6d.; GOOD-BYE (in C minor and E minor); the Words by Major G. J. Whyte-Melville. 2s. 6d.
London: NOVELLO, EWER, and Co.

JOSEPH WILLIAMS'S LIST.

THE LATEST SUCCESS.

BILLEE TAYLOR. Comic Opera. By H. P. STEPHENS and E. SOLOMON.
VOCAL SCORE .. .. .. .. 6s. net.
SONGS.
ALL ON ACCOUNT OF ELIZA (Third Edition). 2s. net.
SELF-MADE KNIGHT (Second Edition). 2s. net.
THE VIRTUOUS GARDENER. 2s. net.
FANTASIA FOR PIANO. CH. TOURVILLE. 1s. 6d. net.

PIANO SCORE (Complete). 2s. 6d. net. Now ready.
*QUADRILLES. By CHARLES COOTE. 2s. net.
*DANCERS. By ARTHUR GRENVILLE. 2s. net.
*WALTZES. By CHARLES GODFREY. 2s. net.
DANCE MUSIC. BILLEE TAYLOR. Ready. Orchestra, 2s.; Septet, 1s. 6d.
* Beautifully Illustrated.

HENRY FARMER'S PIANOFORTE TUTOR, considerably Enlarged and Fingered by the Author. Fourth Edition. 4s.
"Decidedly the best and most useful instruction book we have seen."—Musical Review.

THE LOVE OF OLD. ROECKEL'S charming New Song will be sung by Miss Damian at her forthcoming engagements. Post-free, 24 stamps.

PIANO DUETS.
C. REINECKE. Three Sonatas, Op. 129. Price 2s. each, net.

PIANO SOLOS.
W. KUHE. NEW SACRED TRANSCRIPTIONS.
Elf (Costa). Newman (Costa). Price 2s. each net.
TH. LACK. NEW PIECES.
Menuet, La Meunette, Bolero. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
H. ROUBIER. NEW PIECES.
Joyeuse Reunion, Fête à Trianon, Parfait Bonheur. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
FRANZ RITZ. NEW PIECES.
Cavatage (Caprice), Lutin Rose, Le Regiment qui passe.
JOYFUL MOMENTS. Ten Easy Pieces on Popular Subjects. By CH. TOURVILLE. Price 1s. each net.
OUR FAVOURITES. Ten Moderately Easy Pieces on Popular Subjects. Arranged by CH. TOURVILLE. Price 1s. 3d. each net.

THE PROGRESSIVE MUSIC SCHOOL.
Carefully Edited, Fingered, and Corrected from the Original Manuscripts by J. LEYBACH. First Series (very easy), 16 Numbers. Numbers 1 to 14, price 1s. 8d. each net. Number 15, price 1s. 6d. net.

VIOLIN AND PIANO DUETS.
S. JACOBY. Six Popular Airs (Easy). Price 1s. each net.
CH. TOURVILLE. Twelve Favourite Subjects (Moderate). Price 1s. 6d. each net.

H. FARMER. Popular Violin Solos (Brilliant), with Piano Accompaniment. Nine Numbers. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, Berners-street, W.; and 123, Cheapside, E.C.

SUNG BY ARTHUR ROBERTS.

THE GOOD YOUNG MAN WHO DIED. An Æsthetic Lay. Words by H. P. Stephens; Music by E. SOLOMON. "He has left this world for a brighter sphere, There's a neat little headstone o'er him. Telling how much we held him dear, And how deeply we deplore him: But that cannot tell how we miss his ways, Our friend, philosopher, and guide; For years to come we shall sing in praise Of the good young man who died." Post-free for 24 stamps.—London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, Berners-street; and 123, Cheapside.

PERFORMED AT

HER MAJESTY'S STATE BALL at Buckingham Palace.
LA BELLE LURETTE QUADRILLE. (Offenbach.)
DONNA JUANITA QUADRILLE. (Suppé.)
BILLEE TAYLOR QUADRILLE. (Solomon.)
Arranged by CHARLES COOTE, Jun.
Price 2s. each net.
London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS.

Owing to the great success of F. H. COWEN'S New Song,

THE CHILDREN'S HOME,

W. MORLEY, Jun., and CO. have much pleasure in announcing the purchase of Mr. COWEN'S last song

THE WATCHMAN AND THE CHILD,

which must still further enhance his reputation as one of the finest song writers of the present day. Keys for all voices.

IN THE CLOISTERS. ODOARDO BARRI'S New Song.
"A song of uncommon beauty and merit, which will soon be equally popular with the 'Lost Chord.' Of moderate compass, yet thoroughly vocal, its charming phrases must ensure success alike to the professional vocalist or amateur."—Review.
Piano and Harmonium (ad lib.) Accompaniment.
Keys for all voices.

W. Morley, Jun., and Co., have the honour to announce that they have secured J. BLUMENTHAL'S Last Song,

THE CHILD'S DREAM.

The above New Songs, post-free, 24 stamps each.

W. MORLEY, JUN., and COMPANY, 70, UPPER-STREET, LONDON, N.

CHARLES HALLÉ'S PRACTICAL PIANOFORTE SCHOOL.
Section I.—No. 1, PIANOFORTE TUTOR.
Catalogue and all Particulars may be had from FORSYTH BROTHERS, London, 272a, Regent-circus, Oxford-street; Manchester, Cross-street and South King-street; and all Musicsellers.

NEW MUSIC.

W. S. ROCKSTRO.—Author of "A HISTORY OF MUSIC, PRACTICAL HARMONY, and contributor of many highly commended Articles in "Grove's Dictionary of Music and Musicians:" Composer of the following popular pianoforte compositions:—
BANNOCKBURN. 4s.
LAYS OF PRINCE CHARLIE. 4s.
THE BANKS OF ALLAN WATER. 4s.
SONGS OF THE MOORLAND. 4s.
AULD REEKIE. 4s.
A WREATH OF HEATHER. Nos. 1, 2, and 3. Each 2s. 6d.
ALEXIS. 4s.
BELLS AT SUNSET. 4s.
BORDER LEGENDS. 4s.
ECHOES FROM THE GREEN ISLE. 4s.
ECHOES FROM THE HIGHLANDS. 4s.
FLORA MACDONALD'S LAMENT. 4s.
ECHOES OF ZURICH. 4s.
FIGARO. Operatic Fantasia. 4s.
LA CI DAREM. 4s.
GAVOTTE and RONDO (from Bach's Sixth Violin Sonata). 4s.
GEMS FROM THE EMERALD ISLE. 4s.
LYSIS. A Romance. 4s.
NORMA. Operatic Fantasia. 4s.
MOUNTAIN ECHOES. 4s.
MIDLOTHIAN. 4s.
TANNHAUSER. 4s.
THE FLOWER GATHERERS. 4s.
THE GIPSY COUNTESS. 4s.
VOICES FROM THE HILLSIDE. 4s.
VOICES FROM THE BURNSIDE. 4s.
KELVIN GROVE. 4s.
TWEEDSIDE. Fantasia. 4s.
Each of the above post-free for half price in stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

Just published,

GOOD-BYE. Song. By F. P. TOSTI (composer of the popular song "For Ever and for Ever"). 4 keys. Net, 2s.—Ricordi, 265, Regent-street, W.

THE BUGLER. In D, F, and G. By CIRO PINSUTI. Words by F. E. Weatherly.
This very successful song has now reached the Tenth Edition.
B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster-row.

THE CHALLENGE. For Bass and Baritone. By HUMPHREY J. STARK. Words by E. Oxenford. A bold and vigorous composition, and received always by great applause and repeated encores.—WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster-row.

THE ROYAL EXCHANGE. ODOARDO BARRI. "A brilliant and effective song for vocalists in which charming music is united to a quaint little story."—Review.—B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster-row.

WEIT VON DIR (Far from Thee). Waltz. By OSCAR SEYDEL. "When she went back to the ball-room, Captain Winstanley followed her, and claimed his waltz. The band was just striking up the latest German melody, 'Weit von Dir,' a strain of drawing tenderness."—Vide Miss Braddon's "Vixen." Each of the above 2s. net.
B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster-row.

MADAME CHRISTINE NILSSON'S NEW SONG.

A SONG OF THE NORTH. By LADY LINDSAY (of Balcarras). Price 2s. net.
PATEY and WILLIS, Publishers, 30, great Marlborough-street, W.

Just published,

L'INSTANT SUPRÊME VALSE. By the Hon. FITZROY HAY. Post-free, 24 stamps.
Daily Baccarats, 185, Oxford-street, London, W.

JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS' PATENT SOSTENENTE PIANOS have gained the highest awards at all the not int International Exhibitions, including the two First Prizes, Melbourne, 1881; the First Prize, Queensland, 1880; the two First Special Prizes, Sydney, 1880; the Legion of Honour, Paris, 1878, &c. For SALE, Hire, and on the Three Years' System.—18, Wigmore-st., London, W. Illustrated Lists free.
JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS' PIANOS for SALE, Hire, and on the THREE YEARS' SYSTEM.—18, Wigmore-street; and the Brinsmead Works, Grafton-road, N.W. Lists post-free.

"Steinway is to the Pianist what Stradivarius is to the Violinist."—Herr Joachim.

THE STEINWAY PIANOFORTES, GRAND AND UPRIGHT.
THE GREATEST PIANOFORTES IN THE WORLD.
The Steinway Pianofortes are the chosen instruments of the elected and wealth classes in every nation throughout civilisation, and have by far the largest annual sale of any pianofortes in the world.

STEINWAY and SONS,
STEINWAY HALL,
LOWER SEYMOUR-STREET, PORTMAN-SQUARE, W.
(And at Steinway Hall, New York.)

PIANOFORTES for HIRE or for SALE, from 22 guineas upwards.—JOHN BROADWOOD and SONS, 33, Great Pulteney-street, Golden-square, W. Manufactory, 46, Horseferry-road, Westminster, W.

D'ALMAINE'S PIANOS HALF PRICE. In consequence of a change of partnership, the whole of this splendid stock, perfected with all the improvements of the day, by this long-standing firm of 100 years' reputation, and in order to effect early sale, the easiest terms arranged, with seven years' warranty. Trichord Cottages from hire, or taken in exchange, £10 to £12.

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Class 0, £14 | Class 2, £20 | Class 4, £26 |
| Class 1, £17 | Class 3, £23 | Class 5, £30 |
| | | Class 6, £35 |
| | | Class 7, £40 |

American Organs from £5.
91, Finsbury-pavement, Moorgate.

PLEYEL WOLFF and CO.'S PIANOS. Every description of these celebrated Instruments for SALE or HIRE. sole Agency, 170, New Bond-street, W.

BROADWOOD'S PIANOFORTES for HIRE, from £2 12s. 6d. per Quarter.

COLLARD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System. In Black and Gold Cases, at £4, 4s. 6d. to £5 5s.; £6 6s., £7 7s., and in Special Early English Ebonised Case, £8 8s. per Quarter.

ERARD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System, from £5 5s. per Quarter.

CRAMER'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on their Three-Years' System, from £1 11s. 6d. per Quarter. Detailed Lists post-free on application to Regent-street, W.; Moorgate-street, E.C.; and 146, High-street, Notting-hill.

WEDDING and BIRTHDAY PRESENTS at RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly, London.
SETS FOR THE WRITING-TABLE AND BOUDOIR, IN POLISHED BRASS, ORMOLU, SEVRES CHINA.
BRONZE, and OXIDIZED SILVER, from .. .. 21s. to £10
TRAVELLING DRESSING BAGS .. .. 63s. to £50
DRESSING CASES .. .. .. 21s. to £30
DESPATCH BOXES .. .. .. 21s. to £10
TRAVELLING WRITING CASES .. .. 4s. 6d. to £5
ENVELOPE CASES and BLOTTING BOOKS.. 10s. 6d. to £5
INKSTANDS .. .. .. .. 5s. to £5
CANDLESTICKS (per pair) .. .. .. 7s. 6d. to £5
WORK BOXES .. .. .. .. 12s. to £6
THE NEW "TANTALUS" LIQUEUR STAND .. 100s. to £10
THE "TANTALUS" SODA and BRANDY STAND, £5 12s. 6d.
And a large and choice assortment of ENGLISH, VIENNESE, and PARISIAN NOVELTIES, from 5s. to £5.

PORTRAIT ALBUMS at RODRIGUES', with Patent Leather Guards, 4s. 6d. to £5. Floral Albums, Scrap Albums, Presentation and Regimental Albums. Albums of every description made to order.—42, Piccadilly.

RODRIGUES' MONOGRAMS, ARMS, CORONET, CREST, and ADDRESS DIES Engraved as Gems from Original and Artistic Designs.
NOTE-PAPER AND ENVELOPES, brilliantly Illuminated by hand in Gold, Silver, Bronze, and Colours.
BEST RELIEF STAMPING, any colour, 1s. per 100.
All the Fancy and Fashionable Note-Papers.
A VISITING CARD PLATE, elegantly Engraved, and 100 Superfine Cards printed, for 4s. 6d.
BALL PROGRAMMES, BILLS OF FARE, GUEST CARDS, WEDDING CARDS, and INVITATIONS in every variety.
HENRY RODRIGUES, 42, Piccadilly, London.

FOR FAMILY ARMS (Lincoln's-inn Heraldic Office) send Name and County. Sketch, 3s. 6d.; in colours, 7s. 6d. Arms Painted and Engraved on Seals, Dies, &c. PUGH BROTHERS, Great Turnstile, Lincoln's-inn, W.C.; and 76, Queen Victoria-street, E.C. Prize Medal, Paris, 1878.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—CARPETS.—NOW SELLING, TWO MANUFACTURERS' STOCKS, purchased for Cash under very advantageous circumstances. The Stocks comprise Brussels of the best quality and newest designs; Tapestry, Brussels, Kidderminster, and every description of Carpeting. All New Goods and this Year's Spring Patterns. Quotations would convey no adequate idea of their real cheapness. O and Co. therefore respectfully solicit an early visit of inspection.—OETZMANN and CO.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.
SUBSTANTIAL ARTISTIC FURNITURE (Regd.)
OETZMANN & CO.,
HAMPSTEAD-ROAD,
NEAR TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.—OETZMANN and CO., 67, 68, 69, 70, and 71, HAMPSTEAD-ROAD, near Tottenham-court-road, London. CARPETS, Furniture, Bedding, Drapery, Furnishing Ironmongery, China, Glass, Paper Hangings, Pictures, Bronzes, Clocks, Fenders, &c., and every other requisite for completely furnishing a house throughout. Lowest prices consistent with guaranteed quality.
OETZMANN and CO.

ARTISTIC FURNITURE.—OETZMANN and CO. have now on show an immense assortment of ARTISTIC FURNITURE in Early English, Adams, Chippendale, Sheraton, and other styles now much in vogue, with Carpets, Curtains, and every kind of Artistic Furnishing items to harmonize with the same, many of them being facsimiles of those exhibited at the Paris Exhibition.—OETZMANN and CO.

BEDDING DEPARTMENT.—Strong Iron Bedsteads from 6s. 6d. each; superior Iron French ditto, 15s. 9d.; handsome Arabian Bedsteads, from 27s. 9d. upwards; excellent Mattresses, full size, 12s. 9d.; good Feather Beds, full size, 33s.; ditto Bolsters, 2s. 6d.; ditto Pillows, 1s. 9d. each; handsome 3-ft. Mahogany Washstands, with marble top, 18s. 9d.; Mahogany Toilet-glass (best plate glass, size of plate 16 inches by 12 inches), 6s. 6d.—OETZMANN and CO.

OETZMANN'S PATENT PALLIO MATTRESS supersedes the use of the old rigid palliasse; is more cleanly, healthy, and elastic; combines the advantages of a mattress and palliasse at the cost of one article. Price from 18s. 6d. upwards. See page 186 in "Guide to House Furnishing." Sent post-free on application.—OETZMANN and CO.

THE "QUEEN ANNE" BORDERED TAPESTRY CRETONNE CURTAINS.—A handsome Early English design in black and gold, dull red, peacock blue, sage, and other fashionable shades, lined throughout with Twilled Cretonne Lining, and bound with the new Cretonne Binding, 3 yards long by 30 inches wide, 9s. 9d. per pair; 3½ yards long, 10s. 11d.; 4 yards long, 12s. 6d.; 3½ yards long by 42 inches wide, 14s. 9d.; 3½ yards long, 16s. 9d.; 4 yards long, 18s. 9d. Patterns sent post-free on application.—OETZMANN and CO.

THE "PORTLAND" COAL-VASE. OETZMANN and CO.'S New Special Design for the Season; improved shape, much admired, handsomely japanned and gold relieved, with opal handle lined, and strong loose lining—a great convenience and saving in the wear. Price, complete, only 10s. 6d. Illustrations post-free on application.
OETZMANN and CO.

"NEO-CLEOPATRA" TOILET-SERVICE (Registered). Messrs. OETZMANN and CO.'S New Registered Shape and Designs, manufactured exclusively for them, and is of the most artistic design and decoration. Ewer, Basin, &c., complete from 9s. 6d. per set. Illustrated Price-Lists post-free.—OETZMANN and CO.

DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE, post-free.
OETZMANN & CO.,
HAMPSTEAD-ROAD.

HEAL and SON.
BED-ROOM FURNITURE.
DINING-ROOM FURNITURE.
DRAWING-ROOM FURNITURE.
HEAL and SON,
195 to 198, TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD, W.

AN OLD RECOMMENDATION.

A LETTER from MRS. THRALE. (Reprinted by Messrs. MORTLOCK, Oxford-street.) 1880.

Bath,
Thursday, 12th Oct., 1826.

To Sir James Fellowes.
My dear Sir James Fellowes, like his own Western sun, delights to warm and gild the evening of a stormy day; but I have no commission that I can remember. Dillon Robinson has sent the wine and I have sent him the money, so that's all over. When you feel your own purse too heavy, take it to MORTLOCK'S, in OXFORD-STREET, and carry Lady Fellowes a beautiful specimen of South Wales China, and tell him I am panting for my tea-pails and large dishes to use this day se'nnight.
Yours and all your family's obliged and faithful
H. L. PIOZZI.

GARDNER'S DINNER and TABLE GLASS SERVICES. Free, graceful, and original designs, of unequalled value. Dinner Services, from 21s. Table Glass Services, of the best Crystal, for twelve persons, complete, 65s. Cash discount, 15 per cent. Coloured Photographic Sheets and Illustrated Glass Catalogues post-free.
453 and 454, West Strand, Charing-cross.

ELKINGTON and CO.,
MANUFACTURING SILVERSMITHS.
PATENTEES OF THE ELECTRO-PLATE.

ELKINGTON and CO.
SUPPLY THE PUBLIC DIRECT.
PRICES TO SUIT ALL PURCHASERS.
Illustrated Catalogue post-free.
ELKINGTON and CO., 22, Regent-st.; or 42, Moorgate-st., City.

THE FINEST WATCHES MADE. SEWILL'S KEYLESS WATCHES, Prize Medals, London, Paris, and Philadelphia. Damp and Dust-proof, 18-carat cases, adjusted and compensated for all climates, £30 10s., £16 16s., and £25; Ladies', £7 7s., £10 10s., and £18 18s.; in silver cases, for Ladies or Gentlemen, £5 5s., £6 6s., and £8 8s. Forwarded on receipt of remittance.—J. Sewill, 30, Cornhill, London; and 61, South Castle-street, Liverpool.

WALKER'S CRYSTAL CASE WATCHES are superseding all others. Prize Medals—London, 1862; Paris, 1867. Silver Watches, from £4 4s.; Gold, from £6 6s. Price-Lists sent free.—77, Cornhill; 220, Regent-street; and 76, Strand.

DIAMONDS. SAPPHIRES. CATS'-EYES. OPALS. EMERALDS.
Mr. STREETER,
18, New Bond-street, W.
INTRODUCER of 18-CARAT GOLD JEWELLERY
and
ENGLISH LEVER WATCHES,
(MACHINE-MADE.)
BRANCH ESTABLISHMENT,
COLOMBO, CEYLON.

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LESSENTOR, 198, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY JUNE 4, 1881.

The Centenary of George Stephenson

The Father of Railways

GEORGE STEPHENSON, FROM THE PICTURE BY JOHN LUCAS.
COPIED BY PERMISSION OF HENRY GRAVES AND CO.

All that is great and good in the English character found expression in the career of George Stephenson. He will go down to posterity a type of the physical and moral virtues of his race. An athlete, he was a lover of birds. A giant in strength, he exemplified the truth of the poetic line, "Tender is the North." The greatest practical engineer the world has seen, he maintained his supremacy with unaffected modesty. With opportunities to amass a colossal fortune, he put gold aside as dross compared with honour. Offered the distinction of a title, he preferred the name he had rescued from the obscurity of a pit village to make it the sign-manual of Progress throughout the world. Accidentally meeting and conversing with a gentleman and his wife over the dinner-table of a Derbyshire roadside inn, during the latter days of his eventful life, he was asked, at parting, for his name and address. "Why, Madam," he said, "they used once to call me plain George Stephenson; I'm now called George Stephenson, Esquire, of Tapton House, near Chesterfield. And, further, let me say that I have dined with princes, and peers, and commoners—with persons of all classes, from the highest to the humblest; I have made my dinner off a red-herring in a hedge-bottom, and done the meanest drudgery; I have seen mankind in all its phases, and the conclusion I have arrived at is—that if we were all stripped there's not much difference between us." He was fond of referring to his humble origin and work, not with the pride that apes humility, but with a genuine pleasure, rejoicing in his success, and anxious that his rise should be a continual example of the triumph of industry and perseverance. Asked by an author who wished to dedicate a book to him what were his "ornamental initials," in order that they might be set forth on the titlepage, he answered, "I have to state that I have no flourishes to my name either before or after, and I think it will be as well if you merely say 'George Stephenson.'" Sir Robert Peel would have knighted him, but, even had he desired such empty recognition, the Governments of the time passed him over until his last days, when, in spite of them, he had erected his own monument and fixed it deep in the land in tunnel and pile, and high in the air in bridge and buttress. It would have been a gracious kind of apology for their blind and foolish opposition to him if they had offered him a seat in that House of Peers which had scoffed at his railway schemes. Commons and Lords would have honoured themselves by such an act; but they could not have added to the greatness of the famous engineer.

So far as the dignity of his appearance and manner were concerned, the aristocracy would have had no cause to be ashamed of the man who had begun life as a common labourer and without being even taught his letters. The present writer as a boy has a vivid remembrance of the fine white-haired old man, his clear ruddy face, his merry grey eye. He was tall, and I do not call him to mind as of spare figure, which he is reputed to have been; but I see him as a stalwart-looking gentleman, well knit, standing firm on his feet, and having a general air of benevolence and strength. He invariably dressed in black, a frock coat with square pockets behind, and he always wore a white neckcloth, or "stock." He was a distinguished-looking man. His figure and pose are faithfully perpetuated in the statues of him in Euston-square and at his favourite town of Newcastle-on-Tyne. I have seen him standing by the railway at the private crossing which led to his park; I have seen him standing watching the Midland express thundering along the flat gradients which he defended; and it has often occurred to me since to wonder what his thoughts could have been, as he stood with his hands behind his back gazing down the line long after the train had disappeared, and the birds, whose songs it had stilled for the moment, piped again their joyous notes. On one of the Sundays which he spent under the hospitable roof of Tamworth Hall, the residence of Sir Robert Peel, he and Dr. Buckland were loitering in conversation after church on the terrace near the house, when a railway train was seen in the distance, a long white wreath of steam marking its rapid course. "Now," said Stephenson, who had previously been worsted in an argument by Buckland, not losing his case on its merits, but by the Doctor's subtle rhetorical fence. "Now, I have a poser for you. What is the power that is driving yonder train?" One of your big engines, I suppose," answered Buckland. "But what drives the engine?" "Oh, one of your canny Newcastle fellows, no doubt." "What do you say to the light of the sun?" "How can that be?" the Doctor asked. "That's what it is," said the engineer, "it is light bottled up in the earth for tens of thousands of years,—light, absorbed by plants and vegetables, being necessary for the condensation of carbon, during the process of their growth, if it be not carbon in another form—and now, after being buried in the earth for long ages in fields of coal, that latent light is again brought forth and liberated, made to work, as in that locomotive, for great human purposes." Smiles, who narrates the incident, says the idea was striking and original then, and "like a flash of light, it illuminated in an instant an entire field of science." Was this the key to his thoughts when he used to stand in the shadow of the Tapton oaks and elms, his white silky hair stirred by the summer breeze, as I have seen him stand so often in those long-past days when I knew nothing of his greatness, except as the owner of the big house on the hill? Or did he muse there on the wonderful history of the iron road, and count up in imagination its future triumphs when the sundial on his Killingworth cottage should have silently numbered the hours and days of another century? It was a grave, noble face, with a soft, friendly smile; and I had occasion once to remember it well, when disturbed by the great engineer on a bird-nesting expedition in his park. He seemed quite concerned at my alarm, and was quick to reassure me, with a friendly hand on my head, and a kindly, "Don't you take the nests, my lad, it grieves the old birds; come and have a peep at them, now and then, but don't take them. You've no cause to be afraid, I used to do it myself when I was a lad." I see him walking to his house under the elms, where the rooks were cawing over their ragged nests as they swayed to and fro. It seems to me that there was always a certain amount of wind blowing the trees and shrubs about on the hill at Tapton. In those days you looked far away over a green country, and presently down upon a quaint old town with a crooked spire. To-day the land is dotted with pit-hillocks and furnace-fires; the tramp of hundreds of miners is heard on the Chesterfield pavements at night and morning; and new communities have sprung up all along the valley and away on the distant hill-sides. Where there were fields, now there are houses and shops and stores; but rising up among them and challenging your attention as you come down "the forty steps" from Tapton are the gables, turrets, and spires of an educational institute, dedicated to the grand old master of Tapton House, and it is called "The Stephenson Memorial Hall."

STREET HOUSE, WYLAM, THE BIRTHPLACE OF GEORGE STEPHENSON.

However humble the origin of many of England's greatest men, they have invariably had mothers of remarkable character, or of devoted earnestness in promoting the welfare of their sons. The father and mother of George Stephenson were of lowly estate; but Mrs. Stephenson was always spoken of by those who knew her as "a canny body," which in the north means all that is nice and clever and good and reliable. She was Mabel Carr, a native of Ovingham, and the daughter of Robert Carr, a dyer. The Carrs were people of substance, and their family tombstone is seen in the old churchyard close by that of Thomas Bewick, the famous wood engraver. Mabel's husband, Robert, was an ordinary working man, and they lived at Wylam, about eight miles from Newcastle, in a cottage called High-street House, where George was born, on June 9, 1781. The first thing the child probably ever noticed would be the rough corves on wheels, or small coal-waggons of the period, being pushed or drawn past the cottage on a primitive tramway. The crude suggestion of the first railway was continually before him. His father's wages as a fireman at the pit engine-house were twelve shillings a week. If they had been twelve pounds, and George had been sent out of the grime and dust of the locality to be educated at a high-class school, we should probably have heard of him as a naturalist, or a theoretical chemist, or scientist. He would have made his mark in some direction, but not, as he was destined to make it, under the pressure of poverty and the experiences of a hard practical life. These incidents of his early days, which one sorrows over, while reading Smiles's touching narrative of his life, studied from the ultimate standpoint of his success, were absolutely necessary to the building up of the man who was fated to build up our railway system. His very ignorance of books, his utter darkness as to the great world into which he had been born, served to concentrate his thoughts upon the work that lay immediately under his hands and eyes among the toiling community that surrounded his humble home. At the age of eight the boy began to work. His parents were too poor to send him to school. He herded cattle for a widow, who had a little farm near Wylam. His wages were a shilling a week—twopence per day. His life in the open air stimulated his love of birds and domestic animals. In addition to the duties of herdsman, he had to shut the gates of the tramroad when the waggons had passed, to keep the cows from straying upon the track. There were little water streams here and there. Upon their miniature banks he and a companion named Thirlwall erected tiny mills. From this they rose to a higher standard of amusement. They modelled engines out of clay, and converted hemlock stems into imaginary steam-pipes. Then they made corves, or small waggons, out of corks, and drew them about by the mechanism of a miniature winding-machine. Some of the pitmen passing to and fro smashed the whole of the apparatus. Combined with courage and a certain softness of disposition, there is in the lower classes of the pit villages a great deal of brutality and coarse spitefulness towards the young. Just as Canova, when a child, modelled statues, George Stephenson modelled engines and tramways and winding-machines: and many a year later his herculean works were for a time only regarded as toys of little more use than the mechanical playthings of his infancy.

From tending cows he was promoted to hoeing turnips at fourpence a day; from turnips he was advanced to the work he most desired—he was employed at the adjacent pit to drive the "gin" horse. At fourteen, he obtained the position of assistant-fireman, under his father, at a shilling a day. This was at the Black Callerton Colliery, which was in the heart of what was then almost a pastoral district. The little fireman was a born naturalist as well as engineer. He knew every local nest in the district, and had at home several bird pets that lived regularly in the cottage with him, not in cages, but finding their living as they could, with occasional assistance from their friend, and roosting by his bed at night. His ambition all along from the day he made clay engines was to become an engineman. He had several brothers and sisters, and they were all engaged in humble duties about the adjacent pits. From being a fireman on his own account he was advanced to the responsible duty of engineman, and this was a position higher than that of his father, who was still only a fireman. George now considered himself to be "a made man." I remember Sir Josiah Mason, the millionaire philanthropist of the Midlands, telling me that when he owned a donkey and cart of his own and drove them up the Bull-ring at Birmingham, he thought he was "a great swell." When he was promoted to be engineman, George Stephenson was seventeen years of age, and he could neither read nor write; but his perceptive faculties were keen and active, and he was an earnest student of practical mechanics. He used continually to take his engine all to pieces, and examine its parts and action. He mastered it and loved it; spending most of his leisure in studying its powers and keeping it in perfect working order.

At eighteen George Stephenson did not even know his alphabet, though he had learnt the A B C of the Newburn pumping-engine. He had often sat listening to the newspaper wonders divulged at the engine fire by men who could read. It now dawned upon him that the art of reading was necessary to his advancement as a skilled mechanic. To discover what he ought to do was to do it. He went to a night school, kept by a Scotchman, one Andrew Robertson. A grown man in stature and experience, he sat down to make pothooks. An engine-man with a vague ambition to rise still higher, he went to school to learn the infantile mysteries of the first lessons in spelling. He learnt with avidity, for he studied with a hungry desire to learn. When he stood upon the threshold of mathematics, in his first arithmetical sums, he was a young giant in his progress. He conquered "figures" in a daily advance that eclipsed all his competitors. He was "summing" at the night school, "summing" in his engine-house, "summing" at all hours; and yet neither his engine nor his birds were neglected. He made Time bend to his will. The beerhouse and the tavern had no attractions for him. He was not a teetotaler, but he was strictly sober, and he wished to become a well-to-do and skilful workman—to win the confidence of his employers, and have the respect of his neighbours. The coppers paid to Andrew Robertson were an investment in this direction; and although he worked with the ardour of a great ambition, it is pretty evident that at this period his desires did not go beyond local success and a competent livelihood. In order to add to his income he mended shoes. His wages at the Dolly Pit, where he was engine-man, were one pound a week, and the first guinea he saved was out of his amateur shoe work. He could turn his hand to anything. He mended clocks as well as shoes, and "doctored" engines also; and he could "throw the hammer" in the local games further than anybody. Among the shoes that he mended were those of Fanny Henderson, who was the domestic servant in a little farm house where he lodged. He carried the shoes about in his pocket, the talisman of his love. Fanny must have been greatly concerned for him at about this time, for he had had the misfortune to excite the enmity of Ned Nelson, "the bully of the village," a blackguard and a fighting man, of whom everybody went in fear. Ned insulted George grossly at the mouth of the pit, where the latter was brakesman, said he did his work badly, and being met with a protest from George, threatened to kick him. In the quiet sober workman Ned had met more than his match in courage. George Stephenson neither smoked nor swore, and was as tender as a woman to little children and domestic pets. He could drink his glass of ale, take his turn in the local sports, was full of fun, and was generally regarded as a harmless respectable man. Threatened by the bully of the village, he had the manliness to defy him, and, challenged to fight, he accepted the gage of battle. He had never fought before; the necessity had never arisen till now. All Black Callerton was in a state of excitement about the coming encounter. Everybody said George would be killed. It was a common thing in the pit villages for quarrels to be fought out in pitched fights. Ned Nelson had stunned and blinded many a competitor. George's friends were full of wonder and regret at his accepting Ned's challenge. "Art thou really goin' to feight him, lad?" they inquired, coming to him while he was at work. "Aye, I'll feight him!" was the quiet response. The battle was fixed for an evening some days after the quarrel, and was the one topic of the time in Black Callerton and the neighbourhood. "Gie it up, lad; don't feight the bully," some advised; but George had one answer for all of them, "I'll feight him; never fear for me, lads." During several days before the encounter Nelson gave up work and went into training. But George did not allow the affair to make the least change in his business. He worked just the same, worked at his engine, worked at his sums, worked at his shoe-mending, until the very hour of the conflict. His labours ended, he went home and washed, and then appeared in the Dolly Pit Field to meet his enemy. It was moral force against vicious weight, muscle and pluck against vitiated physique and boxing skill. George had a constitution of iron, and was lithe and wiry. Ned was a drunken, brawling, practised fighter, big and brutal. He had never contested before with sobriety and respectability. Time being called, he stripped in thorough prize-fighting fashion; so did George, and the crowd trembled for the young engine-man. George received the pugilistic advances of the enemy with calmness and a steady eye; and when the battle fairly began he hit his adversary such telling, vigorous blows, that Nelson staggered under them with astonishment and pain. His blood fairly up, George "went for him" with unceasing energy, giving him no time to manœuvre and jump about, but banging him right and left, hitting him all the time with a tremendous precision of blows that drove the crowd wild with joy and Nelson mad with rage and pain. The fight was of very short duration. No pugilist had ever been so pummeled in so short a time. Ned was carried home, and George no doubt went back to the little farm to reassure Fanny Henderson of his safety, and receive the congratulations of his landlord.

The victorious novice little dreamed how many other giants, not to say bullies, he was destined to fight in the interest of peace and civilisation; giants of vested interests, bullies of the Bar, giants of jealousy, bullies of ignorance. Christian in his "Progress" had no more monsters in his path than Stephenson. Pride, Avarice, Caste, Superstition; they met him at every turn. They went into training for conflict as Ned Nelson did; and when he encountered them he hit them on their brazen faces as he hit the fighting pitman of Black Callerton. No story is more discreditable to England than the story of George Stephenson's struggles against Authority in the interest of Progress. A few enlightened men stood by him—strong men of the North; but Parliament, Society, the Aristocracy, even Science, all were against him. Pampered landlords sneered at him in Committee of the House of Commons; learned counsel called him lunatic; sucking statesmen, referring to his dialect, asked if he was a "foreigner;" educated engineers laughed his scientific calculations to scorn; Quarterly Reviewers made merry in classic phrases over his simplicity. But he stood in their midst a giant among pigmies. "Ay, I'll feight him!" he said, when his anxious friends in the old days asked if he was in earnest about his forthcoming battle with Ned Nelson; "never fear for me." And, though many a time his great heart was like to burst with emotion (eye-glassed doubters in the Parliamentary Committees gazed at him as at a strange curiosity), standing to be cross-examined and jeered at by professional men whose trade was that "gift of the gab" which he always wondered at with a sort of untutored admiration—in spite of the many-headed hydra of Ignorance and Selfishness that opposed him he fought every opponent, and beat them all at last, as he had beaten the representative of Ignorance, Arrogance, and Stupidity that evening after his day's work was done in the Dolly-Pit Field of Black Callerton.

On Nov. 28, 1802, George Stephenson married Fanny Henderson at Newburn church. After the ceremony, he and his wife went to pay their respects to George's father and mother at Jolly's Close. Old Stephenson was still an engine fireman. From Jolly's Close George took his wife home to Wellington Quay, where he was employed as brakesman. He had saved enough money to furnish a cottage in a very humble manner, and thither he and his bride journeyed in the pretty old fashion of saddle and pillion. Robert Gray and Anne Henderson were their companions on this occasion. George and Fanny were on one horse, Fanny with her arms round George's waist; and Robert and Anne followed, similarly mounted. They rode for fifteen miles. The young married couple lived a quiet, happy, homely life. George spent a good deal of time in experiments on perpetual motion. On Oct. 16, 1803, his son Robert was born. Soon afterwards he removed to West Moor Colliery, Killingworth. Settled down here to his new work, he had the misfortune to lose his wife. In increased work and study he sought relief from his sorrow. He was asked to go to Montrose, in Scotland, and superintend the working of a Boulton and Watt engine at some new spinning-works. Leaving his boy in charge of a friendly neighbour, he went to Scotland on foot, his kit upon his shoulders. At Montrose the water to supply the works was pumped from the sand strata. The pumps used to become choked with the sand, which was drawn in through the "snore" holes. "The barrels," says Smiles, "soon became worn, and the bucket and clock-leathers destroyed, so that it became necessary to devise a remedy, and with this object the engine-man proceeded to adopt the following simple but original expedient. He had a wooden box or boat made, twelve feet high, which he placed in the sump or well, and into this he inserted the lower end of the pump. The result was that the water flowed clear from the outer part of the well over into the boat, and was drawn up without any admixture of sand, and the difficulty was thus conquered." This may be quoted as one of the first instances of his remarkable aptitude of contrivance for which he was afterwards so greatly distinguished. He was in Scotland a year, and went home, having saved £28, to find his father blinded by an accident, and in great distress, his sons being at home, and the whole family in poverty. George paid off his father's debts, which amounted to £15, and removed his parents to a cottage at Killingworth, where he supported them. About this time he was drawn for the militia, for these were the days of our great Continental battles. He paid all his savings in the purchase of a substitute. For some time he was as despondent as to his prospects that he had serious thoughts of trying his fortune in America, and would probably have done so had not the militia substitute taken all his capital. In 1808 he and two other brakesmen, Robert Wedderburn and George Dodds, took a small contract for managing the engines at the West Moor Pit. George lived with great economy, and eked out his regular earnings by all kinds of extra work, in order that he might send his son Robert to school. He mended the local clocks, made shoe-lasts for the shoemakers, mended boots, and even cut out the pitmen's clothes for their wives to make up. He noticed defects in the pit ropes and the construction of the winding apparatus. He suggested certain alterations, and, being allowed to make them, saved thereby for the proprietors both money and labour.

George Stephenson's first great local triumph was at the village of Killingworth, where the High Pit was being pumped by an atmospheric or Newcomen engine. The water could not be kept under. A whole year's pumping had done little or no good, and the engine had come to be regarded as a complete failure. One Saturday afternoon George went to look at the work. He was asked by a man employed at the pit what he made of it. "In a week I could send you to the bottom," said George in reply. Although Stephenson was then only a brakesman, he was regarded as a practical and ingenious man, and the conversation in question was reported to Mr. Ralph Dodds, the head viewer, who hunted George up and told him if he really could pump the pit dry he would "make him a man for life." George undertook the job, on one condition—the workmen, he said, "must either be all Whigs or all Tories." George knew well enough that the regular men employed at the pit who had failed during the last twelve months to make any impression upon the flood would hardly rejoice in his success; he insisted, therefore, upon employing his own labourers and thus securing to himself a fair trial. He took the engine to pieces, enlarged the injection cap, packed the cylinder at the bottom, made other alterations which occupied four days, and within the week the pit was dry and the men at work. This gave the self-taught engineer a wide reputation.

FACSIMILE OF GEORGE STEPHENSON'S HANDWRITING, IN THE PARISH REGISTER, NEWBURN.

In 1814 he had saved one hundred pounds in guineas, and afterwards sold the coins to Jews at twenty-six shillings apiece, and lent out the proceeds at interest; his first coin was saved at Black Callerton, his object in making "a nest-egg" being to further his independence and his opportunities of advancement as a working man. By this time his son Robert was progressing well at school, and their first joint work together was to construct a sun-dial for the West Moor front of their Killingworth cottage. The boy brought home "Ferguson's Astronomy," which his father carefully studied, drawing upon paper a dial fitting the latitude of Killingworth. A proper stone was obtained, and eventually the sun-clock was erected, the date upon it being August XI., M.DCCC.XVI. The boy and his father spent their evenings together in scientific reading and discussion, Robert developing exactly the characteristics which his father desired.

The beginning of railways marked the beginning of the present century. The first tramway was made in 1800, by Benjamin Outram, a native of Derbyshire, who used stone props instead of timber in supporting the junction of the rails. Roads constructed on this fashion were named after him; they were known as "Outram roads," and thus the corruption to the present definition, tramroads. Some speculative applications of steam were made to the propulsion of wheeled carriages; an idea by no means new, even at that time. Nothing, however, of any importance was done until 1802, when Trevethick invented a steam-locomotive to run upon common roads. Although it trundled its way from Cornwall to London, it was some time before the inventor thought of using such a machine upon a railway. He did so, however, later, in Wales; but the thing proved a failure, though it suggested many similar enterprises, as well as the great work which was to come. The mechanical invention of the period seemed to concentrate itself upon steam travelling; one engineer devoting himself to making an engine that was to run upon its legs like a horse. Every now and then extraordinary vehicles would be encountered snorting and puffing upon some dark highway. In every case they were regarded by the country people as the devil in disguise. When Trevethick's road-engine, for example, en route to the metropolis, came to its first toll-gate, the man flung the bar open with trembling hands and chattering teeth; when the driver asked what was to pay, "Oh, nothing, dear Mr. Devil," said the toll-keeper, "go on as fast as you like; there's nothing to pay."

From his earliest infancy George Stephenson had been familiar with tramways, for there was one that passed the cottage in which he was born. Thus his mechanical genius naturally travelled in the general direction of promoting rapid transit. At the same time he had the incentive of a local "Puffing Billy," invented by Mr. William Hedley, a pit-viewer at Newburn. Mr. Stephenson examined this, and also the engine made by Trevethick, and his mind continually brooded over the subject. The locomotive, in a limping and profitless way, may be said already to have existed when George Stephenson made his first drawings, but it only existed in the colliery districts, where it laboriously hauled coals at two or three miles an hour, and at an expense considerably beyond that of horseflesh. "There was still wanting," says Smiles, "the man who should accomplish for the locomotive what James Watt had done for the steam-engine and combine in a complete form the separate plans of others, embodying with them such original inventions and adaptations of his own as to entitle him to the merit of inventing the working locomotive in the same manner as James Watt is regarded as the inventor of the working condensing engine," a work which he afterwards not only accomplished, but coupled with it the conception and carrying out of the first railway and the construction of our great railroad system, with all its wonders of engineering skill in the shape of roads, rails, viaducts, bridges, tunnels, stations, and organisation of systems and management. Once of his greatest discoveries in connection with the locomotive engine was the utilisation of the jets of exhaust steam to create a draught for the furnace, thus doubling the power of his first locomotive and leading him ultimately to the invention of his multitubular boiler. In 1815 he had made an engine which was notable for the following improvements on all other efforts—namely, "simple and direct communication between the cylinder and the wheels rolling upon the rails, joint adhesion of all the wheels attained by the use of horizontal connecting-rods; and, finally, a beautiful method of exhausting the combustion of the fuel by employing the waste steam, which had formerly been allowed uselessly to escape into the air."

It was about this period that he invented the safety-lamp, stimulated thereto by the frequent fatal explosions at the local mines. There is nothing more dramatic in biographical history than the way in which he tested its power at the risk of his life. Accompanied at midnight by his friend Mr. Nicholas Wood and his son Robert, he descended the pit, and, leaving them at a safe distance, entered a heading where there was a blower, and courageously held up his lamp in the midst of the gas. Certain and instant death must have followed had not his invention been complete. It is not necessary to dwell upon the controversy which followed in regard to the first conception and construction of the safety-lamp. Sir Humphrey Davey was almost simultaneously occupied with a similar idea, but it was afterwards sufficiently established by dates and evidence that the two inventions were distinct and separate events, with this difference in favour of George Stephenson, that he had made and tested his prior to the production of the "Davey," and that when this lamp of the great scientist was sent down into the north the local pitmen were already using the "Geordie," which even to this day is regarded in the Stephenson localities as the best and most reliable lamp of the two. During the controversy, Stephenson conducted himself with great dignity and circumspection, although he was denounced by the scientists in London as an impostor, their views being backed by the declaration that it was quite impossible an uneducated operative at a pit could have sufficient chemical knowledge, apart from other considerations, to solve so great a problem as that which was solved by the safety-lamp. It was, however, thoroughly established that he was the first to invent it, although Sir Humphrey Davey had done a similar thing in ignorance of Stephenson's operations. In 181 , George received a testimonial of one thousand pounds at a public dinner, given at Newcastle-on-Tyne, with a piece of plate bearing an inscription, founded upon conclusive evidence taken before the Literary and Philosophical Society, proclaiming that "Mr. George Stephenson having discovered the fact that inflamed fire-damp will not pass through tubes and apertures of small dimensions, and having been the first to apply that principle in the construction of a safety-lamp, calculated for the preservation of human life, this tankard, purchased with a part of a sum of £1000 subscription, raised for his remuneration, was presented to him at a general meeting of the subscribers, under the presidency of Charles John Brandling, Esq."

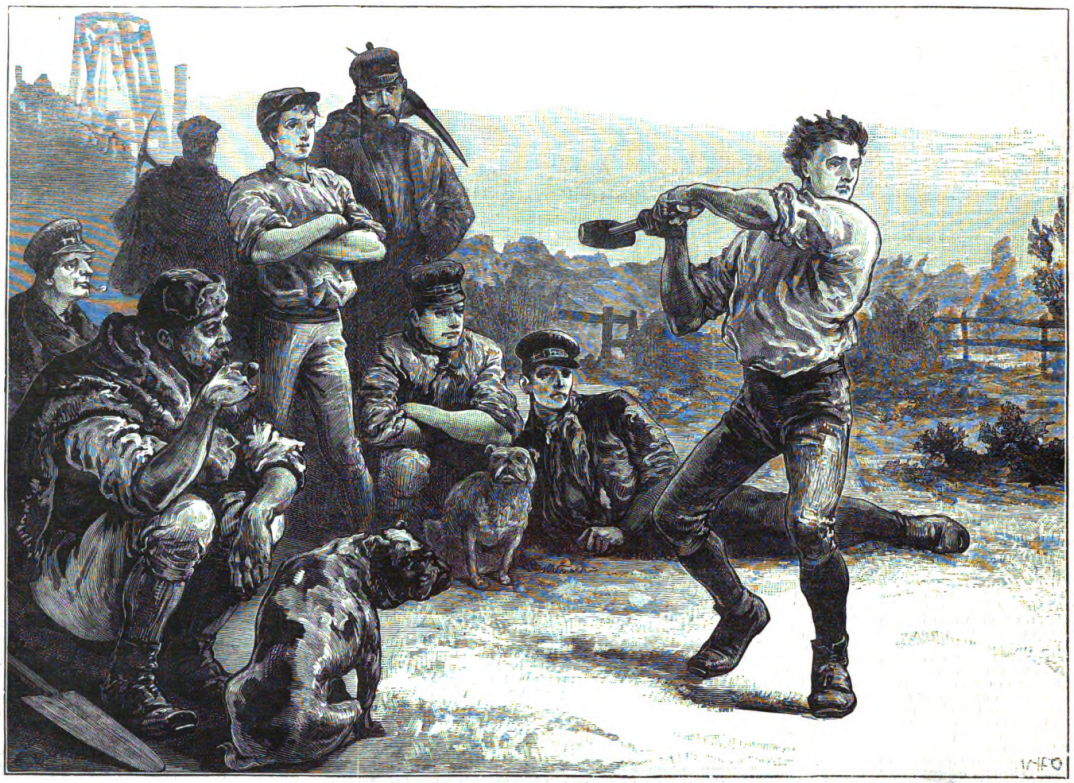
In the meantime, George had been devoting himself to his engine, and more particularly to the improvement of the rails laid down on the Killingworth colliery lines, and he constructed soon afterwards a short railway for the Hetton Colliery Company, upon which his locomotive made a speed of four miles an hour with a weight of sixty-four tons. This railway was opened on Nov. 18, 1822, amidst a large crowd of spectators. Five locomotives were at work under the direction of George Stephenson's brother Robert. About this time Mr. Edward Pease projected a railway from Witton colliery, a few miles above Darlington, to Stockton-on-Tees, and undertook what Smiles calls the "desperate enterprise" of obtaining an Act of Parliament to construct it. It was said of him by an old friend that he was a man who could see a hundred years ahead. The criticism proved to be a just one. In railway affairs he was the first stanch believer in George Stephenson, and they became eventually fast and earnest friends. The Stockton and Darlington Railway Bill was a Parliamentary battle for some years; thrown out at first, but finally accepted. It was originally only intended to be a tramway worked by horse power, and as such it was surveyed, and its construction commenced by Mr. Stephenson. During the progress of the works the engineer suggested frequently that he should be allowed to work the line with locomotives, and finally Mr. Pease and his friends were prevailed upon to consent. The railway was opened for traffic on Sept. 27, 1825, George Stephenson himself driving the first locomotive, the engine drawing thirty-eight vehicles, upon which there were four hundred and fifty passengers, and some ninety tons of merchandise. The highest speed attained was twelve miles an hour; the average four to six. The railway was projected for the purpose of opening up the Stockton and Darlington coal district. During the passing of the bill before Parliament, Mr. Lambton, afterwards Lord Durham, succeeded in having a clause introduced limiting the charge for the haulage of all coals to Stockton-on-Tees for the purpose of shipment to one halfpenny per ton per mile, although fourpence per ton was allowed to be taken for all coals led upon the railway for land sale. The object in enforcing the low rate was to protect Mr. Lambton's coal trade from Sunderland and the northern ports. He thought and was so advised by shrewd north countrymen, that the halfpenny rate would be a practical and sufficient bar against any competition on the part of the Stockton and Darlington Company, the proprietors of which themselves regarded the clause as an almost fatal obstruction to their carrying trade for shipment. They only estimated for about 10,000 tons a year to Stockton, and then the coal would only be used as ballast. They calculated to make their profits almost exclusively by the land sale. In a very short time, however, the low rates forced upon them by Mr. Lambton proved to be a boon, and may be said to have established the success of the railway. Within a few years of Mr. Lambton's Parliamentary "triumph" the annual shipment of coal carried by the Stockton and Darlington Railway to Stockton and Middlesborough exceeded 500,000 tons. What was almost equally surprising to the enterprising constructors of the line, although they had looked for a reasonable passenger traffic, was the rapid increase in the number of persons who consented to risk their lives in the "railway coach" which the directors had authorised Mr. Stephenson to build. This first railway-carriage, very much like a large bathing-machine, was called "The Experiment." It was, however, not permitted at the outset to propel it by a locomotive; it was drawn by one horse, and made a journey daily each way between Stockton and Darlington, the distance of twelve miles being accomplished in about two hours. The fare was a shilling; there was no distinction of class, and each passenger was allowed fourteen pounds of luggage. The coach was not worked by the company, but was let to Messrs. Pickersgill and Harland, railway carriers, under arrangement as to the payment of tolls for using the line, rent of "booking cabins," &c. "The Experiment" proved so great a success that other persons rented coaches and ran them upon the line. It was only a single line with four sidings in the middle, and when the two coaches met there arose the difficult question of which should go back. It had already been understood that light waggons should always give way to loaded ones, and, that as to passenger-coaches, they should have preference over coals; but, in regard to the competition between coaches, the drivers and the passengers had to quarrel that out among themselves. Eventually a compromise was effected by the erection of a post midway between sidings, and the establishment of a rule that the driver who had passed the pillar should go on, and the man coming the other way go back. Mr. Clephan, a north-country writer, quoted by Mr. Smiles, mentions that a man named Dixon, the driver of one of these coaches, was the inventor of carriage-lighting on railways, "On dark winter nights, having compassion on his passengers, he would buy a penny candle and place it, lighted, among them on the table of 'The Experiment;' the first railway-coach (which, by-the-way, ended its days at Shildon as a railway cabin, being also the first coach on the rail, first, second, and third class jammed all into one) that indulged its customers with light in darkness." The Stockton and Darlington Railway, projected by Edward Pease, and carried out by George Stephenson, was a great success; and the engineer, in his later days of prosperity, did not forget his early friend, who was very proud of exhibiting a handsome gold watch bearing the following inscription:—"Esteem and gratitude, from George Stephenson, to Edward Pease."

The success of the Stockton and Darlington Railway and the chronic congestion of transport between Liverpool and Manchester stimulated the manufacturers of South Lancashire to project a tramroad between the famous northern port and Cottonopolis. It took longer to convey cargoes of cotton from Liverpool to Manchester than it had taken to bring them across the Atlantic. During heavy frosts, when the canals were closed, intercommunication was entirely suspended, resulting in disaster to all persons engaged in the production of manufactured cottons and other goods. At first, even to these enterprising men of the north, the tramroad seemed a wild kind of scheme; but at length surveys were made with a view to obtaining an Act of Parliament for the purpose. So inimical to the general welfare was the iron road regarded that the surveyors and their assistants were attacked by mobs of people, and noted bruisers had to be engaged to carry the theodolite, an instrument which appeared to excite the ferocity of the natives to its highest pitch. These obstructions were common and frequent, even before the advent of the locomotive: how serious they were afterwards is a matter of history. The construction of railways was not only opposed by the ignorant people in country districts with pitchforks, with guns and with stones, but they excited the most determined opposition of great landowners, of leading men in cities, of public bodies, and of Parliament itself. No improvement in the social, domestic, or political economy of a people was ever carried against more persistent hostility, or with greater self-denial, energy, and perseverance on the part of the projector and his handful of friends and adherents. Mr. Sandars, an influential Liverpool merchant, was among the first promoters of the Liverpool and Manchester tramway, and he held public meetings upon the subject in various parts of the district, one more particularly in the Exchange at Liverpool, another at the George Hotel at Warrington. Mr. Moss and Mr. James, of West Bromwich, assisted him in the agitation, during which Mr. James went down to Killingworth and saw Mr. Stephenson's locomotive engine, which was steadily and regularly at work drawing its long train of coal-waggons at a speed of six miles an hour. On his first visit he saw Mr. Losh, of Morton-in-the-Marsh, who was a partner in Mr. Stephenson's invention. Mr. James was so deeply impressed with the locomotive that he afterwards went to Killingworth again, having missed Mr. Stephenson on his first visit, and, after fully testing the work in which the north country engineer was engaged, he declared to Mr. Losh that George Stephenson was the greatest practical genius of the age, and that if he succeeded in developing the full powers of his locomotive engine his fame in the world would rank equal to that of Watt. Mr. James, it should be stated, was an engineer, and had received instructions to make the survey for the Liverpool and Manchester road. This was in 1821. He had not, however, accomplished the work in 1822, and, losing also the Sessions of '23 and '24 without having his plans ready for Parliament, it was determined that further engineering advice should be obtained. Finally, the work was handed over to Mr. Stephenson. A Liverpool committee, under his advice, proceeded to form a company of proprietors for the construction of a double line of railway, and in due course of time the plans were prepared. The local Canal Company entered against it an uncompromising hostility; and, indeed, all the navigation companies of the kingdom combined to oppose the projected Liverpool and Manchester line. The journals of the time, with few exceptions, treated the matter with ridicule, and the champions of the existing systems of transport in pamphlets and in public speeches denounced the project of carriage by steam as one of the most damaging and awful character. They declared the locomotive would poison the air, kill the birds as they flew over them, destroy the preservation of pheasants, burn up the farms and homesteads near the lines; that oats and hay would become unsaleable because horses would become extinct; travelling on the roadway would become impossible; country inns would be ruined; boilers would burst and kill hundreds of passengers; and, indeed, there was no peril or evil imaginable that was not predicted to attend the working of a railroad by steam. George Stephenson worked night and day at his survey, at his plans, and at the improvements in his engine, and on March 21, 1825, the Liverpool and Manchester Bill went into Committee of the House of Commons. Its opponents were backed by great wealth, and by all the legal talent that could be got together for money. Among the counsel against the bill were Mr. (afterwards Baron) Alderson, Mr. (afterwards Baron) Parke, and Mr. MacDonnell, Mr. Harrison, Mr. Erle, Mr. Cullen, and others; the case for the railway being conducted by Mr. Adam, Mr. Serjeant Spankie, Mr. William Braham, and Mr. Joy. Mr. George Stephenson, many years afterwards, told his friends that his chief difficulty, during his evidence, was to keep down the rate of speed of his locomotive, for the promoters of the bill had told him that if he talked of going at a greater rate than ten miles an hour he would utterly ruin their case. "It was," said Stephenson, "not an easy task for me to keep the engine down; but it had to be done, and I did it. I was not long in the witness-box before I began to wish for a hole to creep out at. I could not find words to satisfy either the Committee or myself. I was subjected to the cross-examination of eight or ten barristers purposely, as far as possible, to bewilder me. Some member of the Committee asked if I was a foreigner, and another hinted that I was mad; but I put up with every rebuff, and went on with my plans, determined not to be put down." It is not within the compass of this article to give anything like a sketch of the proceedings before the Committee. The characteristic words just quoted are sufficient to indicate the hardships endured by the chief witness and his friends. Once or twice, however, with all his humility, Stephenson broke out. Asked, for example, if something he said was not on the hypothesis that the railroad was perfect, he replied, "Yes, it is; and I mean to make it perfect." It is an old story now, but the subject of the Committee may hardly be passed over without repeating it, that one of the members of the Committee put the following case: "Suppose, now, one of these engines to be going along a railroad at a rate of nine or ten miles an hour, and that a cow were to stray upon the line, and get in the way of the engine, would not that, think you, be a very awkward circumstance?" "Yes," replied Stephenson, with a smile and a twinkle of his merry eye, "very awkward indeed—for the cow." The insolence of the question as to whether he was a foreigner arose from Stephenson's Northumbrian accent, which he retained with very little modification to the end of his life. After many days the Committee divided on the preamble of the bill, which was carried by a majority of one—37 for, 36 against. The clauses were next taken. On a division, the first, which empowered the company to make the railway, was lost by a majority of 19 to 13; the next, which empowered the company to take land, was also lost, whereupon Mr. Adam, on the part of the promoters, withdrew the bill. The defeat was in some measure promoted by the obstacles which the survey had to encounter from landowners and canal companies, thus rendering the plans sufficiently imperfect to be vulnerable under strict legal criticism.

Lord Sefton and Lord Derby were two of the greatest opponents of the bill; and in the next survey for the line the property of the former was avoided, and only a few detached fields of the latter included. The game-preserving localities were carefully ruled out of the plans, and many other objections raised to the first line were considered and avoided in the second; and in their second prospectus the company agreed not to require any clause in the Act empowering them to use the locomotive but to submit to whatever restrictions Parliament might impose upon its use in the interest of

(Continued on page 564.)

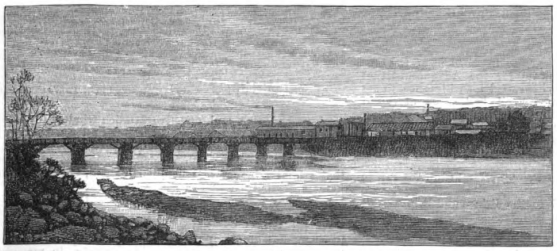
GEORGE STEPHENSON, THE FATHER OF RAILWAYS.



GEORGE STEPHENSON THROWING THE HAMMER.

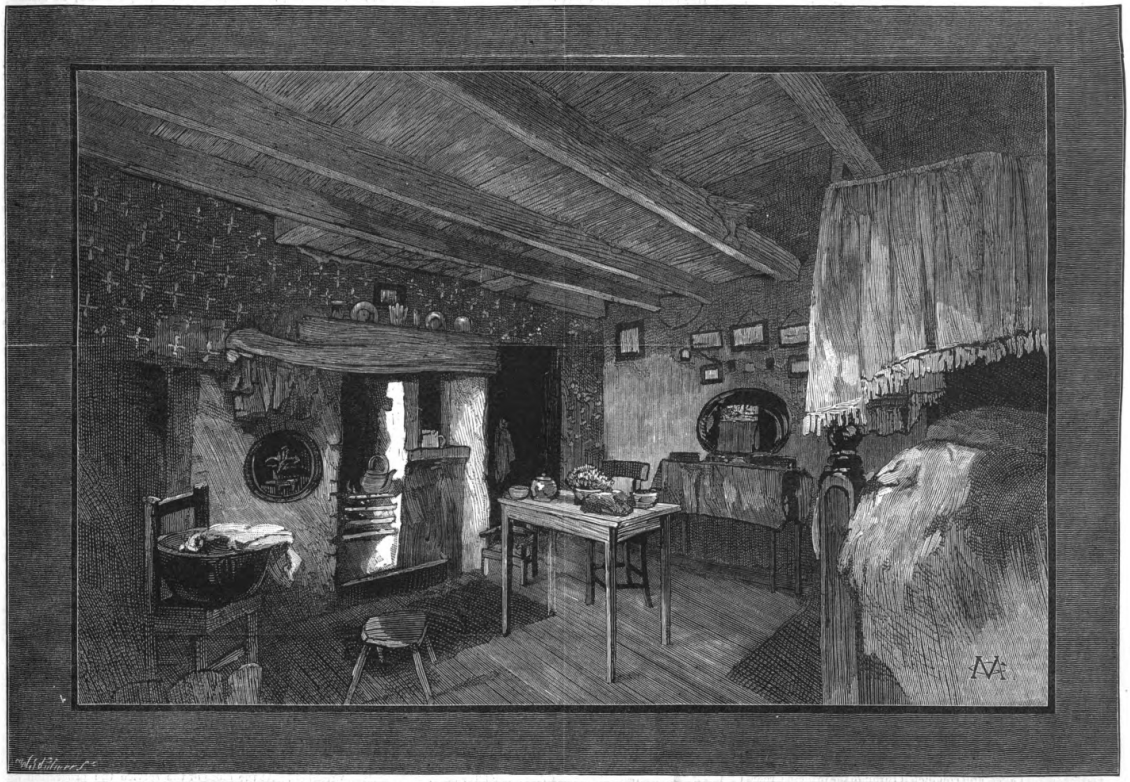
INTERIOR OF NEWBURN CHURCH, WHERE GEORGE STEPHENSON WAS MARRIED.

GEORGE STEPHENSON, THE FATHER OF RAILWAYS.

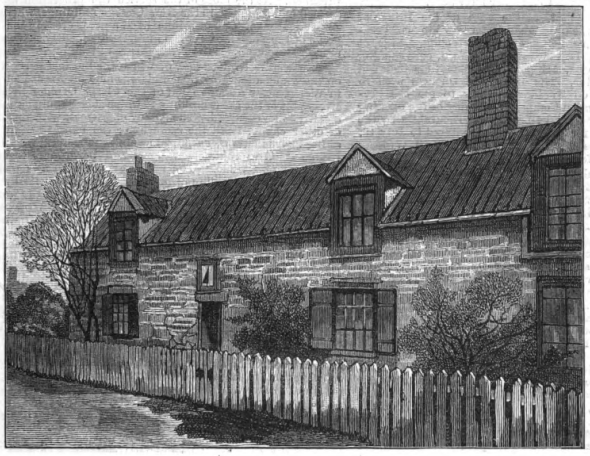


WYLAM-ON-TYNE.

NEWBURN-ON-TYNE.



THE ROOM IN WHICH STEPHENSON WAS BORN, AT STREET HOUSE, WYLAM.



STEPHENSON'S COTTAGE AT KILLINGWORTH.

MONUMENT TO STEPHENSON AT NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.

THE COURT.

The Queen's birthday was celebrated at Balmoral by a ball yesterday week, given by her Majesty to the servants, tenants, and gillies on the Royal estates, at which the Queen, Princess Beatrice, Princesses Victoria and Elizabeth of Hesse, and Prince Leopold were present. The ladies and gentlemen of the household were also present, and the Rev. A. Campbell, of Crathie, and Dr. and Mrs. Profeit were invited. On the birthday morning the Crathie choir serenaded her Majesty. The official celebration in the metropolis last Saturday was marked by the usual demonstration. At the Horse Guards Parade there was a large and distinguished assemblage; the bells of St. Martin's-in-the-Fields were rung, and flags were hoisted from the various public buildings. Two Ministerial dinners were given by Mr. Gladstone—one at the official residence of the First Lord of the Treasury, at which the Prince of Wales was present, and the other at the official residence of the Chancellor of the Exchequer. Banquets were also given by the Lord Chamberlain, Earl Sydney; Lord Alfred Paget, on behalf of the Master of the Horse; Earl Granville,; the Right Hon. Sir William Vernon Harcourt; the Right Hon. Hugh C. E. Childers, M.P., with whom the Duke of Cambridge and the Duke of Connaught dined; Lord Northbrook, the Marquis of Hartington, the Earl of Kimberley, and the Attorney-General. Countess Granville had a reception; and the Duke and Duchess of Bedford had a dinner party, the Mistress of the Robes afterwards receiving a small and early party. Her Majesty's tradespeople dined together, as usual, at the Freemasons' Tavern. The illuminations at the West-End were general.

The Very Rev. Principal Caird arrived at Balmoral on Saturday, and dined with the Royal family.

Divine service was performed at the castle on Sunday by Dr. Caird, who again dined with the Queen.

Her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Beatrice and Princesses Victoria and Elizabeth of Hesse, and Prince Leopold, is daily out driving through the picturesque localities of the district.

The Queen has signified to General Roberts her wish that he should sit to Mr. Frank Holl for a portrait for her own possession.

Her Majesty has transmitted, through the Marquis of Lorne, the expression of her great sorrow for the Victoria disaster in Canada, and her deep sympathy for the bereaved.

By her Majesty's command, large quantities of old linen have been sent to various metropolitan hospitals for the use of the patients.

The Prince of Wales will hold a Levée on behalf of her Majesty at St. James's Palace on the 22nd inst. The second State Ball at Buckingham Palace is fixed for the 24th, and the second State Concert for the 29th inst.

At the State Ball last week the Princess of Wales wore a dress of lila grey satin and crêpe, richly embroidered in pearls and silver, and veiled in silver tulle looped with bunches of silver marguerites and pearl leaves; corsage to correspond. Head-dress, a tiara of diamonds; ornaments, pearls and diamonds. Orders—Victoria and Albert, the Crown of India, and the Danish family order.

Princess Christian wore a dress of white satin duchesse, handsomely trimmed with pearl embroidery and bouquets of white lilac. Ornaments, diamonds. Orders—The Victoria and Albert, the Crown of India, the Saxe-Coburg and Gotha family order, the Prussian for Care of the Sick and Wounded, and the Order of Louise of Prussia.

Under the patronage of her Majesty a grand bazaar in aid of the funds for the restoration of Bagshot church will be held on the 11th and 13th inst. at Bagshot Park, the residence of the Duke and Duchess of Connaught. The Prince and Princess of Wales, the Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, Prince and Princess Christian, and the Duke and Duchess of Teck have promised to attend, and stalls will be kept by several members of the Royal family. Amateur concerts will be given at four p.m. on both days at Bagshot House, and a military band will be in attendance.

Next month a fine-art loan exhibition will be held at the Albert Institute, Windsor, also under the patronage of the Queen, Prince and Princess Christian, and Prince Leopold.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince of Wales visited the King of Sweden and Norway immediately after his arrival from Bournemouth at Claridge's Hotel; his Majesty afterwards visiting the Prince and Princess at Marlborough House. The King lunched with their Royal Highnesses the next day, and afterwards accompanied them to the Decorative Art Exhibition in Bond-street and to the picture galleries of Messrs. Dickinson and Foster and of Mr. Dowdeswell. In the evening their Royal Highnesses, accompanied by the King of Sweden and the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, went to the Royal Italian Opera, Covent Garden, and subsequently the Prince and Princess were present at a conversazione at St. Bartholomew's Hospital, at which 1300 visitors assembled. Their Royal Highnesses were received by the treasurer, Sir Sydney H. Waterlow, and Sir James Paget, and conducted through the principal rooms of the new buildings of the medical school. The Princess had on a close-fitting satin dress of a deep red colour, with pale turquoise blue under the lace of the ruff, and wore also the diamond necklace presented to her on her marriage by the citizens of London. Last Saturday the Prince, with the Duke of Connaught and the Duke of Cambridge, was present at the annual guard-mounting parade at the Horse Guards in celebration of her Majesty's birthday. The Princess, accompanied by the King of Sweden, and Princesses Louise, Victoria, and Maud of Wales, witnessed the parade from the Horse Guards. The Prince and Princess afterwards entertained the King of Sweden, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, the Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, the Duke of Cambridge, and the Duchess of Teck at luncheon at Marlborough House. The Prince dined with the Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone at his residence in Downing-street, and went afterwards to Countess Granville's reception at the Foreign Office. On Sunday their Royal Highnesses, with their daughters, attended Divine service; and the King of Sweden, the Duke and Duchess of Connaught, the Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, the Duke of Cambridge, and Marshal Hobart Pasha and the Hon. Mrs. Hobart Hampden dined with them at Marlborough House. Princess Louise of Lorne lunched with the Prince and Princess on Monday. Their Royal Highnesses visited the Queen of Sweden and Norway at Claridge's Hotel in the afternoon; and the King and her Majesty dined with the Prince and Princess, who afterwards accompanied them to Drury Lane Theatre for the purpose of being present at the first representation of the Meiningen Court Company. On Tuesday morning their Royal Highnesses drove to the Victoria Station and took leave of the King and Queen of Sweden and Norway on their return to Sweden. The Prince dined with the members of the 1st (or Grenadier) Guards' Club at Willis's Rooms. His Royal Highness was at the Epsom race meeting on the Derby Day; after which he entertained the leading members of the Jockey Club at dinner at Marlborough House. On Thursday his Royal Highness was at the 10th Hussars' annual dinner, at Willis's Rooms.

The Prince will visit Tunbridge Wells next week for the purpose of opening the Bath and West of England Agricultural Society's show. His Royal Highness will lunch with the Marchioness of Camden at Bayham Abbey on Monday, and will be present at a garden party afterwards. On Tuesday he will lunch at Eridge Castle with the Marquis of Abergavenny, after which he will open the show.

At the residence of Mr. Francis Tress Barry, at St. Leonard's-hill, Windsor, preparations are being made for the reception of the Prince and Princess, who will stay there during the Ascot week. Their Royal Highnesses are expected to arrive on the 13th inst.

The Princess will be present with his Royal Highness, on the 29th inst., at the ceremony of opening the new parochial infirmary at Notting-hill, which has been erected by the guardians of St. Marylebone.

The Prince has accepted the office of president of the City and Guilds of London Institute for the Advancement of Technical Education, and has expressed his willingness to lay the foundation-stone of the central institution at South Kensington during next month.

The officers of the 1st Life Guards have presented the Rev. Arthur Robins, of Windsor, with a picture of themselves, in the centre of the group being his Royal Highness, Colonel-in-Chief of the Household Cavalry.

At the recent meet of the Four-in-Hand Club the Prince was on Lord Fife's drag.

Mr. Adams has submitted to the Prince and Princess his designs for the medal which is being made for the Corporation of the City of London to commemorate the visit of the King of the Hellenes.

Her Royal Highness has contributed two fine drawings to the Black-and-White Exhibition at the Dudley Gallery.

A telegram received at the Admiralty from the Earl of Clanwilliam, in command of the detached squadron, reports the Cleopatra having been sent to King George's Sound from Cape Otway to assist the Bacchante, which recently met with considerable damage in bad weather. The Inconstant, Carysfort, and Tourmaline were at Melbourne, where the Bacchante was to join them.

---

The Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh, while at Plymouth last week, visited Mount-Edgcumbe, being received by Lady Ernestine Mount-Edgcumbe, with whom they steamed up the Tamar to the weir head, whence they drove to Cotehele House, the residence of the Dowager Countess of Edgcumbe. The Duke inspected the Mount-Edgcumbe industrial school training-ship. Their Royal Highnesses re-embarked in the Lively for the Cornish coast. Landing at Fowey, the Duke made an inspection of the coastguard station at Polruan, and of the men and battery of the Royal Naval Reserve. The Duchess visited the old church. Subsequently their Royal Highnesses went to Place House, the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Treffry, and afterwards steamed to Falmouth, where the Duke inspected the Coastguard. The Lively then went on to Scilly, arriving on Saturday morning. The Duke visited St. Agnes and other islands of the group, and the Duchess landed at St. Margaret's and drove through the district with Mr. and Mrs. Dorrien Smith, returning to dine on board. On Sunday their Royal Highnesses attended Divine service at St. Mary's, and left the next morning for Land's End, where his Royal Highness landed and continued his inspections, afterwards driving to Penzance, the Lively proceeding meanwhile to Mount's Bay with the Duchess. In the afternoon the Royal party paid a visit to St. Michael's Mount and Marazion, returning afterwards to the Lively at Penzance. On Tuesday their Royal Highnesses returned to Falmouth, the Duke landing at Porthleven; after visiting the Lizard, he rejoined the Lively, which left Falmouth on Wednesday.

The Crown Princess of Germany is expected to visit England next month.

Princess Christian and the Duchess of Teck were present on Monday at a recitation of the drama of "The Wife's Secret" by Mr. Brandram at Arlington House, by permission of the Marchioness of Salisbury, in aid of Mrs. Vicar's Home, at Brighton, upon which is a debt of £500. On Tuesday Princess Christian presided over one of the stalls at the sale of art needlework at Kent House, Knightsbridge. Prince Christian dined with the Earl of Wilton at his Derby dinner in Grosvenor-square.

Princess Louise of Lorne dined with Lady Molesworth yesterday week at her residence in Eaton-place. On Saturday evening her Royal Highness went to the Royal Italian Opera. The Princess was one of the contributors to the Amateur Art-Exhibition held on Wednesday and Thursday, at River House, Chelsea Embankment. She has visited the inaugural Decorative Art-Exhibition, New Bond-street. Acting on the advice of Sir William Jenner and Dr. Hermann Weber, who do not consider that her Royal Highness is equal to accompany the Governor-General of Canada on so long a journey as he is about to undertake early in July, the Princess has postponed her departure from England to a rather later date.

The Duke of Connatght, at the wish of the Prince of Wales, was present at the consecration of a new lodge of Freemasons, called the Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar Lodge, at Portsmouth, last week, Lord Charles Beresford, commanding the Royal yacht Osborne, being at the same time installed First Worshipful Master. The Duke and Duchess went to Drury Lane Theatre on Tuesday evening to see the performance of the Meiningen Company. The day of the opening of the new wing of the Royal Hospital for Incurables by the Duke, originally fixed for July 9, has been altered to July 16, in consequence of the Royal Volunteer review at Windsor being ordered for the former day.

Prince Leopold, Duke of Albany, will be the guest of the Duke of St. Albans, at Bestwood Lodge, upon the occasion of the opening of the new University College, at Nottingham, on the 30th inst. His Royal Highness has consented to receive the rank of Past Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of Mark Freemasons.

The King of Sweden and Norway was indefatigable in his exertions during his short stay in town, each day having been occupied in visiting the notable sights of the metropolis and in receiving and returning visits. His Majesty attended Divine service on Sunday at the Swedish Church, Princes-square, St. George's-in-the-East. On Monday his Royal Consort arrived from Bournemouth, their Majesties visiting the Prince and Princess of Wales upon the Queen's arrival. All the Royal personages in town, with numerous other visitors, called upon their Majesties at Claridge's Hotel. The King, after dining with the Queen at Marlborough House, and going to Drury Lane Theatre on Monday evening, went to a reception at Consul-General Richter's. His Majesty during his sojourn dined with Earl and Countess Spencer and with Earl Granville at the Foreign Office, and with Count Piper; he also travelled by the Metropolitan Railway, and visited the works of the Henri Rifle-Barrel Company, and inspected the Nordenfelt machine-guns there being manufactured. Their Majesties left on Tuesday, travelling from Victoria to Dover en route for Brussels. Lord Methuen and General Sir Francis Seymour were, by command of the Queen, in attendance upon their Majesties during their visit in town.

THE CHURCH.

PREFERMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.

Amphlett, Martin, Rector of Church-Lench, Evesham, to be Honorary Canon in Worcester Cathedral.
Arnott, Henry; Vicar of Bussage.
Chapman, Christopher Jackson; Vicar of Norton.
Clements, W. F.; Incumbent of St. Paul's, Colchester.
Dales, John William; Curate of Linthorpe.
Gooch, John, Castle Lodge, Reigate; Rector of Holcott, Northamptonshire.
Grey, Charles F., Curate of Leominster; Rector of Gladestry, Radnor.
Hurst, Canon; Vicar of St. Mark's, Tollington Park.
Mansfield, Hugh McNeil; Vicar of Bourne, Lincolnshire.
Myers, Christopher; Incumbent of St. Bartholomew's, Bolton.
Nisbet, M. A., Vicar of St. Luke's, Gloucester; Rector of Ringwould.
Savage, Francis; Vicar of Woodnesborough, near Sandwich, Kent.
Smith, Arnold Kirke; Curate-in-Charge of Somersham, Hunts.
Thorp, Henry; Curate of Erdington.
Tudor, John Lechmere, Curate (Sole Charge) of Sparsholt-with-Kingston Lisle, Berks; Vicar of Turkdean, Diocese of Gloucester and Bristol.
Whittington, Richard; Prebendary of Tottenhall in St. Paul's Cathedral.

---

A second rich and effective Munich window (by Messrs. Mayer and Co.), representing St. Peter and St. Andrew, has been erected in the parish church of Belgrave, Leicester.

The Bishop of Norwich received intelligence on Monday that a fatal accident had befallen his son, the Rev. Herbert Pelham, while travelling in Switzerland with his brother, the Rev. Sidney Pelham. Mr. Herbert Pelham was curate of St. Philip's, Heigham, Norwich.

A three-light painted window (subject St. Andrew, St. Stephen, and St. Paul) has been presented by the Stationers' Company to Little Bradley church, Suffolk, in memory of John Daye, the printer of "Foxe's Book of Martyrs," and Master of the Company, 1580, who lies buried there. The window is by Messrs. Heaton, Butler, and Bayne, who supplied seven other painted windows for this church.

Speaking on the occasion of the opening of Syston parish church, Leicester, yesterday week, the Bishop of Peterborough referred to the aims of the Liberation Society, and questioned whether the people were prepared to give up their churches. He thought, however, that if the Church was to maintain its position, its bishops and clergy must work harder and better. His Lordship characterised the divisions in the Church as a great evil, and said that the money spent in strife during the last thirty years might with much more advantage have been devoted to spreading the Gospel.

On Ascension Day the Archbishop of Canterbury, assisted by the Bishops of Gloucester and Bristol, St. Asaph, Toronto, Ontario, Victoria, and Bishop M'Dougal and Bishop Claughton, consecrated the Rev. George Frederick Hose, M.A., Archdeacon of Singapore, to be "Bishop of Singapore, Labuan, and Sarawak." The ceremony took place in the private chapel of Lambeth Palace, in the presence of about 200 persons. The Archbishop afterwards entertained the newly-consecrated bishop, his father, and his friends, to the number of about forty, at luncheon.

At a court of assistants of the Sons of the Clergy, held at the Corporation House, Bloomsbury-place, last Saturday—the Earl of Powis, vice-president, in the chair—a large number of applications from the widows and daughters of deceased clergymen was presented to fill the forty-two vacancies among the 712 pensions of the corporation caused by death or resignation during the past year. The applicants comprised eighty-three widows and seventy-six daughters, and to most of those who were not elected to pensions the court made temporary grants amounting in the whole to about £1000. About £200 was also given in educational and outfit grants in favour of clergy children.

The annual meeting of the Church Schoolmasters' and Schoolmistresses' Benevolent Institution was held last Saturday at Lambeth Palace, the Archbishop of Canterbury and Mr. W. H. Smith, M.P., being the principal speakers. Upwards of £7500 has been granted in the relief of numerous cases of temporary distress among teachers and their families. One hundred and eighty-two disabled teachers have been elected to annuities, in which over £11,000 has been paid, and to secure the continuance of which £12,000 has been invested in approved securities. One hundred and six teachers' orphans have likewise been elected to continuous home-allowances, until attaining the age of fourteen years, and twenty more are to be added next month.

The proceedings connected with the opening of the Ely Theological College began on Tuesday morning with the dedication service. In the course of the morning the Bishops of Winchester, Carlisle, and Lincoln were present. The college is situated close to the Cathedral, and contains a chapel, lecture and dining hall, library, principal and vice-principal's studies, and twelve sets of rooms for the students. There was a presentation of a subscription portrait of the Bishop of Ely, painted by Schmidt, for the library. At twelve o'clock there was a service in the cathedral, when the Bishop of Carlisle preached. At the close of the service the procession was reformed and marched to the New College buildings, where the Lord Lieutenant of Cambridge fixed a great cross in the east gable of the chapel. Over 300 guests subsequently sat down at a public luncheon. Fifty students are in training.

A special festival service, of which the musical portion was on the whole admirably rendered, was held on Ascension Day in Westminster Abbey in aid of the Clergy Orphan Schools. Every part of the great building to which access could be gained seemed to be occupied. The Abbey choristers, with members of other choirs, filled the sacrarium; the band of wind and string instruments was grouped around the lectern, where Dr. Bridge stood to conduct. Singers and performers together numbered about 200. The music of the suffrages was by Tallis; that to the Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis by Dr. Bridge. The Dean of Westminister preached from the words, "God is a spirit." For the anthem, "The Woman of Samaria," a sacred cantata by the late Sir W. Sterndale Bennett, was given, the solos being taken by the Abbey choristers. The small organ used in the performance of the cantata was played by Mr. Martin, sub-organist of St. Paul's. Dr. Bridge played the congregation out, using the large organ and performing a concerto by Handel, and subsequently a piece by Sir Sterndale Bennett. The income of the schools fell short by £1221 of the expenditure last year.

A public meeting was held yesterday week, under the presidency of the Bishop of London, to consider the spiritual condition of the residents in the east end of London. It was stated in a circular that was distributed to those attending the meeting that, taking into consideration the enormous aggregation of the working classes in the east end of the metropolis, and the non-existence of wealthy residents, the large owners of property and employers of labour preferring to live at a distance, the proportion of clergy to the population was far below the average. Funds were also needed to carry on the work of the Church. The financial statement showed that the subscriptions for the year were £6000, and liabilities to the amount of £4500 had been incurred. Resolutions were passed to the effect that the work of the Church in the east of London calls for the sympathy and co-operation of the diocese at large; that to sustain the Church in her work in the densely-populated and poor parishes of the east of London a largely-increased supply of clergy is required; and that, in consequence of the paucity of residents able to give personal help in parochial work, a large number of lay helpers are urgently needed. Among the speakers were the Bishop of London, the Archbishop of Canterbury, and the Bishop of Bedford.

THE UNIVERSITIES.

At Oxford the judges have awarded the Stanhope History Prize for this year to Mr. W. H. Hutton, of Magdalen College. Proxime accessit, Mr. C. W. C. Oman, of New College. At New College the following have been elected to Exhibitions in Natural Science:—G. C. Bourne, Eton College, and C. D. Spencer, Clifton College. The Abbott Scholarships have been awarded to E. F. Johns, Exhibitioner of Exeter (three years), and G. W. Lewes, from Brighton College (two years).

At Cambridge the Burney Prize, awarded annually to the Graduate who shall produce the best essay "On some Moral or Metaphysical Subject," has been awarded for the present year to William Bellars, B.A., Scholar of Trinity College. The subject given out was "The Testimony of Conscience to the Truth and Divine Origin of Christian Revelation." The first stone of Selwyn College was laid on Wednesday by the Earl of Powis, High Steward of the University. Sir William Browne's gold medals, one of which is given annually to an undergraduate for each of the following subjects, have been adjudged as under:—For the best Greek Ode in imitation of Sappho, J. C. Moss, St. John's College; for the best Latin Ode in imitation of Horace, J. C. Moss, St. John's College: for the best Greek Epigram after the model of the Anthologia, J. C. Moss, St. John's College; for the best Latin Epigram after the model of Martial, H. C. Clarkson, King's College.

At University College last week, Mr. Justice Fry presiding, Mr. Justice Watkin Williams distributed the medals and prize certificates to the successful students in the medical faculty. The gold medals were awarded, in anatomy, to E. Hudson; in physiology, to W. A. Gosling; in chemistry to P. Mukerji; in medicine, to W. C. Wilkinson; in surgery, to C. Stonham; in zoology and comparative anatomy, to A. E. Tovey; and in clinical medicine to C. Stonham. Afterwards Mr. Justice Watkin Williams addressed the students.

THE VOLUNTEERS.

Immediately after the conclusion of the ceremony of trooping the colours last Saturday, the Duke of Cambridge, Field-Marshal Commanding-in-Chief, left the Horse Guards parade ground and, attended by the majority of the staff, rode to the Wellington Barracks, Birdcage-walk, where he inspected the 24th Middlesex (Post Office). The regiment, nearly 700 strong, was under the command of Colonel Du Plat Taylor, assisted by Majors Thompson and Sturgeon, and Captain and Adjutant Kane. A noticeable fact was that not a single man was absent without leave, and the fine appearance of the regiment called forth general expressions of admiration. The men were in full marching order. On arriving on the ground his Royal Highness was received with the usual salute, and he then made an inspection of the ranks. After this the regiment marched past in column of companies, in quarter column, and at the double. The marching of the various companies was extremely good, and the precision with which the lines were kept was generally remarked upon. Having performed the manual and firing exercises, and also the bayonet exercise, the regiment gave a Royal salute, and was then formed up to be addressed by the Duke of Cambridge. His Royal Highness congratulated all ranks upon the very admirable manner in which the various movements had been executed, and concluded by saying that he had never seen a Volunteer corps, or indeed he might say any corps, in better condition, or so well turned out. He then left the ground. The regiment afterwards advanced in line, gave a Royal salute, and then three cheers for the Queen. It may be mentioned that the body of signallers whose services were brought into requisition at the Brighton review was also on parade.

Five brigade field-days of metropolitan Volunteers, numbering altogether about 10,000 of all ranks, were held last Saturday. At Wimbledon, Colonel Sprot, commanding the Kingston sub-district, had over 2000 officers and men under his command, consisting of the 1st, 3rd, 5th, and 7th Surrey, the recruits of the 1st and 3rd Royal Surrey Militia, now out for training, being, as usual, brigaded with the Volunteers. A heavy storm broke over the common and curtailed the movements, which concluded with a march past and three cheers for the Queen.

In Hyde Park the brigade attached to the Coldstream Guards, under Colonel Fitzroy, was formed as follows:—4th Middlesex (West London), 289, Lieut.-Colonel Somers Lewis; London Irish, 590, Lieut.-Colonel Ward; Bloomsbury (G.G.B.), 545, Lieut.-Colonel Richards; Finsbury, 526, Lieut.-Colonel Radcliffe.

Another brigade was also formed up in Hyde Park, under Colonel, Moncreiff, Scots Guards, as follows:—Tower Hamlets Brigade, Lieut.-Colonel Mapleson, and 2nd Tower Hamlets, Lieut.-Colonel Sir Fowell Buxton. The two regiments had a muster of about 1000 of all ranks.

In Regent's Park, Colonel Logan, C.B., had six battalions for his brigade—viz., the 3rd Middlesex, North Middlesex, 23rd Middlesex (London and Westminster), Central London Rangers, West Middlesex, and Harrow.

Another brigade field-day of Volunteers and Militia was held at Merrow Downs, Guildford. In the case of each regiment the musters were good, and the troops showed more steadiness than has been exhibited on previous occasions.

Yesterday week a man who was acting as marker at Wormwood-scrubbs during the contest of the Middlesex Rifle Association waved his red flag and stepped from the mantlet just as a volunteer had taken his aim and had his finger on the trigger. Before the officer in command could give the order to cease firing the volunteer pulled his trigger, and the ball from the rifle passed through the marker's body, killing him on the spot, in sight of his son, who was in the next mantlet.

The Metropolitan Commanding Officers of Volunteers have issued an address earnestly appealing to the heads of public departments, banks, and employers of labour to give every facility in their power to enable Volunteers to attend the review at Windsor on July 9.

A memorandum issued to commanding officers of Volunteers by Sir Garnet Wolseley, Quartermaster-General of the Forces, states that he is directed by the Field-Marshal Commanding-in-Chief to inform them that an opportunity will be afforded for a certain number of Rifle Volunteers to drill with the regular troops at Aldershott in August. The battalions or detachments will be selected by his Royal Highness from those corps which, in reply to the letter, signify their desire to join the camp. The period in camp for each corps will be for eight or fifteen days, including days of assembly and dismissal. The dates of joining for the volunteers will be—for corps attending for fifteen days, Aug. 6 and 20; and for corps attending for eight days, Aug. 6, 13, 20, and 27. Battalions will consist of not less than 400 rank and file: detachments of corps will be formed into provisional battalions. No corps will be allowed to send less than sixty rank and file. The field and medical officers and the quartermasters of battalions formed from detachments of corps will be appointed by his Royal Highness. Only three officers will be allowed per company. The ordinary commissariat rations will be supplied on the scale fixed for the regular troops. Vegetables, groceries, milk, and butter will not be issued, but may be bought at the expense of the men at markets which will be appointed in the vicinity of the camp. Sir Garnet Wolseley requests that every volunteer wishing to attend should state so in writing, adding the number of days for which he can attend.

THE HIGHLAND REGIMENTS.

It has been decided by the War Office Committee that the regiments which are to wear the kilt after July 1, when the new scheme of Army organisation takes effect, are to be the present 42nd and 73rd (which become the Royal Highlanders, Black Watch)—tartan as at present worn by the 42nd; the 72nd and 78th (Seaforth Highlanders)—tartan, the Mackenzie; the 75th and 92nd (Gordon Highlanders)—tartan, the Gordon; the 79th (Queen's Own Cameron Highlanders)—tartan as at present worn by the regiment; and the 91st and 93rd (Sutherland and Argyll Highlanders)—tartan as at present worn by the 93rd.

The following regiments are to wear the trews—namely, the present 1st Foot (now becoming the Lothian Regiment, the Royal Scots), the 21st (Royal Scots Fusiliers), the 26th and 90th (the Scotch Rifles), and the 71st and 74th (the Highland Light Infantry). The latter regiment will wear the tartan now worn by the 71st; the other three are to have one of special pattern—black, blue, and green.

The 25th Regiment (King's Own Borderers), having been finally told off to York, is not to assume the trews, as at one time proposed, but will retain its present uniform.

On Monday morning eleven regiments of Militia, representing about 9000 officers and men, assembled for their annual training at the following places:—Aldershott, Hounslow, Exeter, Warley, Grantham, Landguard Fort, Warwick, Richmond (Yorkshire), Scarborough, and Dunbar. Fourteen regiments were dismissed last Saturday.

The Royal Bucks, the West Kent, the Lancashire Hussars, the West Somerset, and the Berks regiments of Yeomanry cavalry completed their training last Saturday and were dismissed. The regiments to assemble this week are the Hampshire, at Winchester, on Thursday; and the Denbighshire, at Wrexham, on Saturday.

BENEVOLENT OBJECTS.

The twenty-third annual dinner of the Railway Benevolent Institution took place on Wednesday week at Freemasons' Tavern; Mr. M. W. Thompson, chairman of the Midland Railway Company, in the chair. About 200 gentlemen were present. It appears that the income of the institution for the year ending April 30, 1881, was about £22,000. Out of the general fund, in addition to temporary relief, pensions of from £10 to £25 per annum have been granted since the institution was founded, in 1858, to 254 widows and 48 members; and 121 orphan children have been maintained and educated at the expense of the institution. From the casualty fund the number of persons relieved in the last five years is 9129. The chairman, in proposing the toast of the evening, made an earnest appeal for increased donations and subscriptions, and the result of the appeal connected with the anniversary was a contribution of £4500, the largest amount ever raised.

The forty-fifth annual general meeting of the governors of the Metropolitan Free Hospital, which is situated in Commercial-road, Whitechapel, was held on Wednesday week in the school-room of St. Botolph's Church, Bishopsgate, under the presidency of Mr. Joseph Fry, chairman of the committee. During the year 275 in-patients received treatment at the institution, while the number of out-patients relieved was 46,295. The total income was £3983.

Lord Shaftesbury on Thursday week presided at Grosvenor House at the annual meeting of the Metropolitan and National Nursing Association, which was addressed by the Earl of Dalhousie, Canon Nisbet, Mr. W. Rathbone, M.P., the Rev. Dr. Littledale, Viscount Kilcoursie, Sir Charles Trevelyan, and other speakers.

On the same day Lord Derby presided at the annual court of Governors of the Consumption Hospital. In moving the adoption of the report his Lordship said that he thought, on the whole, that the position of the institution was not unsatisfactory. It was satisfactory to find, considering the bad times generally, that the subscriptions had increased, and that the income had been maintained. They could not, however, ignore the fact that they were in a rather difficult possition as regarded the future, as they needed £10,000 a year more to maintain the new extension building, with its 137 beds. They had thus a great deal more to keep up, and had diminished means with which to do it. They had spent the whole of the large legacy they had received, and quite properly too, for it had been sent them to spend and not to hoard, but they had spent it in such a manner as largely to increase their responsibilities. He was afraid that the delusion referred to in the report was a common one—namely, that the hospital was largely endowed. Every means should be taken to let the public know that this was not the case; but that as the hospital existed for the benefit of the public from them the funds to support it must come. Everything should be done which was possible to increase the amount of the annual subscriptions. Sir Thomas Gladstone seconded the resolution, and said that he could bear testimony to the admirable manner in which the hospital was managed.

The annual meeting of the Infant Orphan Asylum, Wanstead, and the half-yearly election of children, took place on Thursday week at the Cannon-street Hotel; Mr. John Deason (the treasurer) presiding. Last year 626 children had been benefited by the asylum. The annual subscriptions amounted to £7508, the special and election receipts to £692, the life subscriptions to £2296, and the legacies to £3871. The Duke and Duchess of Connaught have promised to be present at the anniversary of the charity, to be held on the 25th of this month.——The Duchess of Connaught will distribute the prizes to the pupils at the British Orphan Asylum, Mackenzie Park, Slough, on Saturday, July 2.

The Lord Mayor presided the same day at the twenty-ninth anniversary festival of the City Orthopædic Hospital, celebrated by a dinner at Freemasons' Tavern. The subscriptions amounted to close upon £350.

Grosvenor House was thrown open on Thursday week, by the kindness of the Duke of Westminster, to the Metropolitan and National Nursing Association for their annual meeting. The Earl of Shaftesbury presided. The society has for its objects to train and provide a body of skilled nurses to nurse the sick poor at their own homes, and to raise the standard of nursing and the social position of nurses. Resolutions were passed recognising the excellent service done by the association, and promising support in carrying on the work, and declaring that it was desirable that the association should make arrangements to work with the provident dispensaries.

A special anniversary dinner of the friends of the Industrial Home for Boys was held yesterday week at Willis's Rooms. The home is in Copenhagen-street, Islington, and is designed for boys who have not been convicted under the Industrial Schools Act, but who are destitute, unmanageable, or in danger of falling into crime. The Earl of Jersey presided. The Countess was also present, and was supported by a considerable number of ladies. The hon. secretary, Mr. T. C. Nicholls, announced that £900 had been promised.

The movement begun last autumn in favour of establishing coffee taverns in garrison towns and near camps, for the special convenience of soldiers, has already resulted in the opening of such places of accommodation in Woolwich and Dublin, and at Shorncliffe and Aldershott; and the Council of the Association, of which the Duke of Connaught is president, on Saturday last opened another new establishment of the kind in Buckingham Palace-road, bearing the appropriate sign of "The Guardsman."——The Bishop of Exeter on Monday opened a coffee tavern in one of the principal streets of Exeter. Among those who took part in the proceedings was the Mayor, who, although a brewer, stated he was very glad to see this tavern established.

At Arlington House, by permission of the Marchioness of Salisbury, Mr. Brandram gave on Monday an effective recitation of the drama of "The Wife's Secret," towards the liquidation of the debt of £500 on Mrs. Vicar's Home, Brighton. Princess Christian and the Duchess of Teck were among the audience.

A fancy fair and bazaar was held in the great hall of the Cannon-street Hotel, on Tuesday and the three following days, in aid of the School for the Daughters of Missionaries, now at Walthamstow, but shortly to be removed to their new house at Sevenoaks. The bazaar was opened by the Earl of Shaftesbury. The great hall was fitted up as a Japanese village, and there was a tea-house, where tea was served in correct Japanese style. At dusk the whole was lighted up by Chinese lanterns.

The annual general meeting of the Shipwrecked Fishermen and Mariners' Royal Benevolent Society was held in the Pillar Hall, Cannon-street Hotel, on Wednesday afternoon—the president of the society, the Duke of Marlborough, in the chair.

An amateur dramatic performance in aid of the funds of the London Orphan Asylum, Watford, was held on Thursday at the Royal India Asylum, Ealing.

The Royal Orthopædic Hospital being greatly in want of funds, some ladies and gentlemen have undertaken to organise on its behalf a musical and theatrical entertainment, to be given this (Saturday) evening at St. George's Hall. There is to be a musical comedietta, a concert, and a one-act comedy.

At the back of Lincoln's-inn-fields, and within a very short distance of the New Law Courts, are large and flourishing Sunday schools connected with St. Giles's Christian Mission, and numbering some 700 little ones. The children are, for the most part, of the poorest class, and are huddled together all the year round in the courts and alleys of Drury-lane and St. Giles's. Once a year it is contrived to give them a day's outing in the green fields and amongst the sweet-smelling flowers. The expense of this summer day's ramble is somewhat considerable, and the kindly help of our readers is solicited. Dongtions may be forwarded to Mr. W. Chapman, honorary superintendent, 1, Featherstone-buildings, Holborn; to the bankers, Messrs. Barclay, Bevan, and Co., 54, Lombard-street, E.C.; or to G. Hatton, superintendent of St. Giles's Christian Mission, 12, Ampton-place, W.C.

Mr. Alderman and Sheriff Fowler, M.P., has consented to preside upon the occasion of the fifty-fourth anniversary festival of the Licensed Victuallers' Asylum, which will take place at the Alexandra Palace next Thursday, the 9th inst. The institution consists of 170 separate houses.

The Company of Grocers has forwarded a donation of £200 to the funds of St. George's Hospital, Hyde Park-corner.

It is intended to open a seaside branch of the Metropolitan Convalescent Institution on July 1 next. The Convalescent Institution has already homes at Walton and Kingston Hill; and last year the committee received from a gentleman who takes a deep interest in the welfare of his follow-men the princely sum of £7000, on conditiou that they would build and maintain a branch by the sea. They at once set themselves to work, and, having succeeded in buying an excellent site at Bexhill, near St. Leonard's, with a commanding sea-view, they have erected, from designs of one of our most eminent architects, a section of a picturesque and convenient building (their seaside fund, though aided by many contributions, not admitting of more being done at present), which, when finished, will be an ornament to the surrounding country. This section, being complete in itself, the committee propose to open for the reception of patients on July 1 next. They are satisfied, however, that the public will never rest content till the designs can be fully carried out; and to this end they appeal for contributions, which will be received by the London Joint-Stock Bank, 69, Pall-mall; Messrs. Drummonds, Charing-cross; Messrs. Hoare, Fleet-street; and by the secretary to the institution, 32, Sackville-street, from whom full particulars as to the privileges of donors and subscribers can be obtained. No payment will be required from patients, whose sole expense will be the reduced fare of 5s. for the railway journey in both directions between London and Bexhill.

THE SCOTCH CHURCHES.

At the General Assembly of the Established Church of Scotland on Monday it was announced that a donation of £1000 to the aged and infirm ministers' fund, and of £500 to the smaller livings scheme of the Church, had been made by Mr. John Walker, of Homelands, Largo, Fife. It was further stated that Mr. Walker is to give £7000 to St. Andrew's University as a memorial of a brother. The Assembly agreed, by 117 to 19 votes, to petition against the Parliamentary Oaths Bill.

At the Free Church General Assembly it was agreed, by a majority of 137 to 45, to petition Parliament that the country is ripe for disestablishment in Scotland, and against any action being taken in connection with the funds until the question is raised whether they ought not to be administered and applied with a view to the good of the community.

The case of Professor Robertson Smith was brought to a close in the Free Church Assembly on Thursday week. Dr. Adam moved that from the 31st inst. Professor Smith's tenure of his chair should cease, allowing his salary to continue, and leaving it to future assemblies, if need be, to regulate that matter. Professor Bruce moved the rejection of this motion. Professor Smith said he would never consent to eat the bread of the Church which did not permit him to serve it. Dr. Adam's motion was carried by 394 to 231.

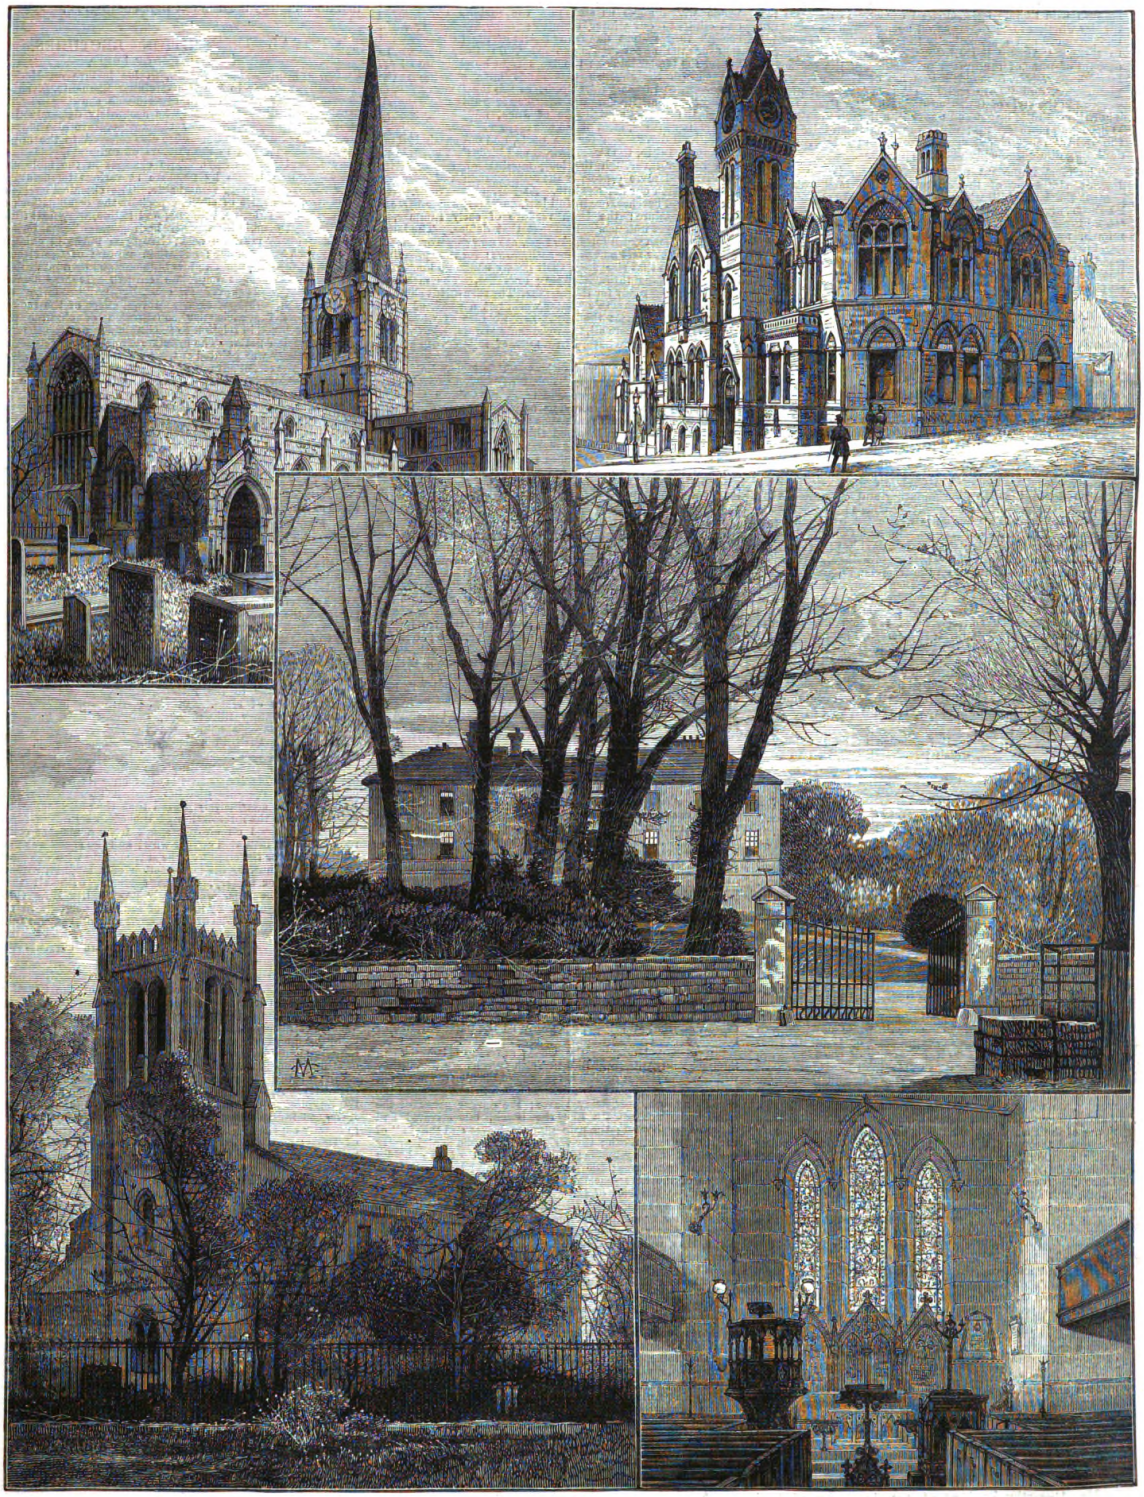
The Rev. Dr. Main, ex-Moderator of the Free Church General Assembly, who officiated at the opening of the present sittings of the Court, died last Saturday morning.

GEORGE STEPHENSON, THE FATHER OF RAILWAYS.

GEORGE STEPHENSON AND HIS WIFE GOING HOME ON THEIR WEDDING DAY.

GEORGE STEPHENSON EXPERIMENTING WITH THE SAFETY LAMP IN A MINE.

GEORGE STEPHENSON, THE FATHER OF RAILWAYS.



CHESTERFIELD OLD CHURCH. TAPTON HALL, CHESTERFIELD, THE RESIDENCE OF GEORGE STEPHENSON. THE STEPHENSON MEMORIAL HALL, CHESTERFIELD.

HOLY TRINITY CHURCH, CHESTERFIELD, WHERE GEORGE STEPHENSON IS BURIED. INTERIOR OF HOLY TRINITY CHURCH, CHESTERFIELD.

THE MAGAZINES FOR JUNE.

The recent discussions on copyright have apparently provoked an anonymous writer in the Cornhill to admonish English authors that "on the whole," as Mr. Carlyle would have said, they are thinking too much of Mammon, and that "they may as well take it for granted at once that they must generally make the choice between aiming at pay and aiming at real excellence." This is true, but may elicit the reply that it would be a waste of pains to aim at what you cannot hit. "The Romance of a Wayside Weed" is an ingenious and entertaining attempt to explain the restricted local occurrence of some English wild flowers by geological causes. It suggests the inquiry whether many others as yet not acclimatised might not be introduced and systematically fostered in districts adapted to them. "Among the Dictionaries" is a very amusing account of some of the quaint productions of the infancy of lexicography. Mr. Symonds's sketches of Italian travel are picturesque, and "Love and Pain" is a successful poetical exercise in the style of Christina Rossetti. "A Grape from a Thorn" continues bright and buoyant, although the situation is becoming more serious; while the companion tale, "Love the Debt," relies chiefly upon the graphic power evinced in depicting disagreeable persons and situations.

The most important paper in Macmillan is Mr. Bence Jones's statement of the improving Irish landlord's case against the Land Bill, which may be profitably studied even by those who are convinced that legislation is a necessity. "The Portrait of a Lady" is more interesting than usual this month, and Archbishop Trench's "Timoleon" is a good specimen of the Tennysonian monologue. Mr. Sichel has a good subject in the "Wit and Humour of Lord Beaconsfield," but he rather overdoes his part, quoting too frequently, emphasising too much, and giving himself the air of an advocate conscious of a weak case when, in fact, he has a strong one.

The Nineteenth Century has numerous interesting contributions, although none of extraordinary mark. Mr. Arnold-Forster criticises Sir Garnet Wolseley's defence of the short-service system, Mr. Romanes collects some of the most remarkable instances of the intelligence of ants, and the Governor of the Bank of England argues in favour of bi-metallism. Mr. F. H. Myers's estimate of M. Renan is favourable to the extent of omitting all notice of that taste for the picturesque and idyllic, the result of whose operation on M. Renan's mind is sometimes hardly to be distinguished from the effects of commonplace credulity. With much grace and appropriateness, Sir Henry Taylor comes forward to pour oil on the troubled waters of the Carlyle controversy, and we have no doubt that his discriminating and charitable view will ultimately prevail, so far as Mr. Carlyle's memory is concerned. Mr. Froude's position is unaffected by anything in his paper. His notes of Wordsworth and Coleridge's conversation are so interesting that it is a double pity that they should be so scanty. Mr. Shaw-Lefevre contributes a powerful reply to the Duke of Argyll on the Irish land question. Mr. Matthew Arnold, writing on the same subject, brings it round with surprising ingenuity to his favourite theme of the educational deficiencies of the English middle class He quotes "David Copperfield" so freely that it is astonishing how the analogy to Mr. Dick and the head of Charles the First escaped him. It is equally surprising that he should imagine Mr. Baring-Gould to be dead. Mr. Vance Smith's article on the Revised New Testament will attract attention as the judgment of one of the revisers themselves, while it is worthy of remark that he raises the same complaint respecting needless meddling in things indifferent which has so generally been heard from the unlearned public.

The "Private Secretary" continues to be the leading attraction of Blackwood, which is, nevertheless, rich in miscellaneous papers, individual in character and subject. The first of a series of papers on Egyptian travel hardly seems at first sight one of this group, but the freshness of the style imparts an air of novelty to a well-worn subject. The subject of the present instalment is "The Arsinoite Nome." Beolco, the typical representative of Italian patois comedy, is a more original subject, very agreeably treated; and "The Cruise of the Coya" is a most picturesque description of a voyage among the Norfolk sounds and broads. "Mattie, the History of an Evening," is a pretty little domestic story. Mr. Logie Robertson has been to Norway, and seen

> A countless herd of hills
> Tossing their shining manes in the sun.

The most remarkable contribution to Temple Bar is a budget of anecdotes of Lord Stratford de Redcliffe at the time of the Crimean War, narrated by one of his attachés, and for the most part highly characteristic of the sagacious and imperious Elchi. There is a good sketch of Richelieu, and an amusing little tale entitled "Mere Chatter."

Scribner commences a promising new fiction by Mr. Howells, "A Fearful Responsibility," while appealing to English readers by a magnificent portrait of Lord Beaconsfield, and to American by an engraving of the New York sculptor Saint Gaudens's statue of Admiral Farragut, one of the rare modern examples which every now and then prove that the secret of portrait-sculpture is not wholly lost. It is worthy, we will not say of Michael Angelo, but of his age. Among the more conspicuous of the other contributions are a notice of the French painter Bastien Le Page, and a copiously illustrated account of the very important industry of catching and "canning" lobsters on the coast of Maine. Harper's Magazine has descriptive papers on the White Mountains and Lisbon, both exquisitely illustrated; a sketch of Mr. Edwin Booth, with a fine portrait; and a narrative poem of singular power and pathos, interspersed with genuine humour, entitled "The First Settler's Story." The best contributions to a somewhat inferior number of the Atlantic Monthly are "A Spring Opening," a beautiful prose idyll by Miss Edith Thomas; a lively description of the Norwegian capital, Bergen; and an investigation, by J. C. Ropes, of the causes of Napoleon's overthrow at Waterloo. Differing from most recent historians, Mr. Ropes throws the blame upon Grouchy. The principal point against him seems to be his concealment of an order received from Napoleon the day before the battle, the authenticity of which seems unquestionable. A good essay on French tragedy, by Mr. Grant White, is disfigured by a host of misprints.

Chief among Messrs. Cassell, Petter, and Galpin's numerous and excellent periodicals are their Magazine of Art, Picturesque America, British Ballads, Family Magazine, Old and New London, Old and New Edinburgh, Technical Educator, Science for All, Familiar Wild Flowers, Cookery, Book of the Dog, and Royal Shakspere.

Other magazines received later will be noticed next week.

---

Mr. Abernethy, President of the Institution of Civil Engineers, and Mrs. Abernethy issued numerous invitations for a conversazione yesterday (Friday) at the South Kensington Museum.

"LEAFY JUNE."

To none of the seasons have the poets so amorously tuned their lyres as to the fresh young Spring, the season of the primrose and the violet, of the swallow and the cuckoo, of the early verdure in our lanes and meadows. And cold and insensate must be the heart that responds not to the song of the poets, whom the birds and flowers and green lanes of Spring thrill not with tenderest emotions. But, in this island home of ours, there is, unhappily, an unpleasant frequency of easterly and north-easterly winds, not only in proverbially breezy March, but in April and even in "flowery" May; winds which make us still pile the fuel on our hearths and cling to our winter clothing; unkindly blasts which, though they cannot daunt the hearts of the little feathered folk or the sweet spring flowers, do their utmost to hinder the tender buds on the trees from bursting into leaf. But though the churlish east winds have sometimes the effrontery, as in the present year, to rob the "merry month of May" of half its charms, they cower guilty and abashed before the warm, genial face of June, and, with sundry maledictory moans, steal off no one cares whither.

With all due respect for the poets, and not unmindful of, nor ungrateful to, the sweet flowers and birds that inspired us with hope all through the long months of spring—it is summer, and more especially the opening month of summer, that calls forth our deepest love. At last, all the trees, even the oaks and beeches, are in full leaf, and everywhere there is brightest verdure: the fresh verdure of early summer, a verdure as yet untouched by aught that defiles. The lanes which have been green for weeks past, are now green overhead, as well as at our feet and in the hedgerows; for the spreading oaks and elms that rise from their grassy banks no longer let in the sunbeams through gaping branches. The meadows are fast getting ready for the mowers. The corn-fields show no trace of the ploughman's winter work, not a speck of earth being visible amongst the bright green blades of wheat and oats and barley. Above all, the woodlands—copse, dell, thicket, park, and forest—are bathed in a mass of foliage with greens of every tint.

Delightful, lovely June!—who would not now be free as the winged choristers that make glad thy leafy bowers!—free to roam beneath the greenwood trees, now down peaceful woodland glades, now straying amongst the undergrowth wherever is the faintest semblance of a pathway, now losing ourselves amid deep imbosomed thickets, and now emerging upon the banks of a rippling stream, or into a lane whence come wafts of sweetest incense from the wild June roses. Ah, and the hedges are scented not only by the sweet wild rose: a delightful fragrance comes stealing down the lanesides from the trailing woodbine and the perfumed snow of the hawthorn. The May-blossom should, of course, have bloomed last month, but the blustering winds which, whistling through half-clad shivering boughs, entertained us all through the spring with their discordant shrieks, have made the "may" this year a June rather than a May blossom.

Very pleasant are the perfumed, fresh green lanes of June; but nowhere is the dawning Summer more charmingly refreshing than in the woodlands. We loved to saunter through the woods in April and in May, when primroses, anemones, and bluebells carpeted the mossy soil, and while the trees were slowly robing themselves in most delicate verdure; but far more do we love them now that warm-hearted June has put on those last finishing touches that make the woodland picture one of unrivalled beauty. We could not be quite satisfied with our sylvan scenery until the ash, beech, and oak had unfolded their leaves, and, by their rich contrasts of form and colour, added the requisite blending to the trees already in leaf, the vast army of elms, chestnuts, birches, maples, sycamores, limes, alders, poplars, and the nutbearless varieties of willow. At last the lordly oak has "spread its amber leaves out in the sunny sheen:" at last! But how long and weary has been the waiting! Weeks after the elms in surrounding woods had put on their summer verdure, that grand old lonely oak in yonder bit of meadow, reflected in that mantling pool branches as bare almost as in icy winter. How we have pitied thee, thou majestic relic of the past!—

> . . . whose wrinkled trunk hath stood
> Age after age, the sovereign of the wood:
> You, who have seen a thousand springs unfold
> Their ravelled buds, and dip their flowers in gold.

However, our pity was uncalled for; for now thou art green and fresh as any of the trees in that forest behind thee. Let us retire to that rising knoll yonder, and—a gently-sloping vale between us and the woods—gaze for a moment on this haunt of the Dryads. Could anything be more fair than that stretch of woodland, as the soft splendour of an afternoon sun bathes its wealth of foliage in a quivering mass of light and shade? How charmingly the bright vivid green of those elms, which have the light beating full upon them, blend with the softened tints upon those beeches behind; indeed, all along that leafy belt of verdure, how exquisite are the contrasts of colour, of light and shade, according as the parts advance or retire from the rest of the woodland.

In distant landscape the woods are always beautiful in Summer and Autumn. But in fresh and balmy June, they will bear the closest scrutiny, for not only every tree but each individual leaf is spotlessly fair. The rich bright green of the beech's smooth, soft, silky leaves; the darker green of the elm-leaves, not smooth like the beech, but serrated and delicately embossed; the pale pinnate leaves and "keys" of the light, graceful ash; the various tinted foliage and pretty catkins of the sycamore; the olive-green of the boldly indented oak-leaves; the gay blossoms and large palmated foliage of the horse-chestnut; the tiny, trembling leaves of the birch—"the lady of the woods"—and the equally light and quivering foliage of "the poplar that with silver lines his leaf." How beautiful and how diversified is the foliage of these eminently English trees, to say nothing of the maple, plane, lime, walnut, hornbeam, Spanish chestnut, and white-beam, or of the willows and the rest of the aquatic species.

In this leafy month Nature does, indeed, her best to compensate us for the deficiencies of our insular climate. There is positive luxury now in walking through the meadows and scented lanes; but in the woodlands—so far as England is concerned—it is the very carnival of Nature. Here it is lightness of foliage, there the poising of a tree, that charms us; now it is the motion of the trees, the waving heads of some, the undulation of others; or again, the impenetrable shade of a beech or sycamore. "No tree in all the grove, but has its charms"—whether it be an ash hanging from the outskirts of a wood, its loose pendant foliage serving as a foil against the general denseness—or some stately chestnut, whose spreading branches feather to the ground—or the elm, which is perhaps best adapted of all the forest trees for receiving grand masses of light—or the birch, with its pensile spray waving to and fro in every little puff of air—or, on some rush-fringed bank, trailing its weeping foliage in a limpid stream, the willow. Even the cedar, with his shadowing shroud, and the dark perennial firs and pines, partake of the prevailing freshness of the month, being now enlivened and enriched by new shoots and cones.

Indeed, wherever there are greenwood trees, Nature smiles upon us in her freshest, tenderest mood—but smiles freshest and greenest of all in those innermost recesses of the Dryads' haunts, where there are no beaten paths, where the wood-nymphs (unless they be an idle myth!) are serenaded by nightingale and blackcap; shady retreats where the tempting rind of the beech's smooth green trunk, betrays no love-sick Orlando or desperate Damon; where that brilliant butterfly, the "purple emperor," above the topmost branches of the hoary oak, soars in unfettered liberty, and where, down below on the mossy soil, lilies of the valley meekly raise their snow-white bells, diffusing through the woodland air a fragrance that should satisfy the daintiest Dryad of them all.

---

ROYAL INSTITUTION LECTURES.

CHEMICAL ACTION OF LIGHT.

Professor Dewar, M.A., F.R.S., in his lecture on Modern Researches relating to the Non-Metallic Elements, given on Tuesday, May 24, began with experiments showing how the density of iodine vapour may be accurately determined at high temperatures, and how the temperature also may be ascertained at the same time. He also referred to the application of this method to the vapours of cadmium, potassium, sodium, and various salts. The changes in the molecular constitution of bodies by pressure at various temperatures were described as very remarkable. The chemical effects of light upon the salts of silver, especially the combinations of the metal with chlorine, bromine, and iodine, were next illustrated. By combination with hydrogen, chlorine formed hydrochloric or muriatic acid; hydrogen burnt in chlorine quietly with a pale flame; but when a beam of the electric light was projected upon a glass bulb containing a mixture of the gases, a violent explosion ensued. It was demonstrated that this power is specially possessed by the violet rays of the spectrum, and the effect of the radiant energy upon the molecular constitution of chlorine was especially noticed in relation to the dissociation of the element into two similar parts. The intimate connection of this action with electricity was pointed out. An account was next given of some of the recent advances in the processes of photography, with elucidatory experiments; and an almost instantaneous photograph was taken of a beautiful spectrum. The very advantageous application of these processes in recording the results of experiments in the laboratory was especially noticed. The latter part of the lecture was devoted to illustrative explanations of the laws relating to the gaseous state of matter, which are invariable under ordinary conditions, but which have been proved to be liable to variations under different pressures at various temperatures, as shown by the researches of Regnault and Faraday, and more recently by those of Andrews, Mendelejeff, and Amagat.

ROTATORY MAGNETISM—MAGNETO-ELECTRICITY.

Professor Tyndall in his fifth lecture, given on Thursday, May 26, resumed his experimental illustrations of the phenomena connected with induced currents, and explained how Faraday, their discoverer, by his study of them, was enabled to solve what had been long a scientific enigma. In 1824 Arago observed that a disk of copper, a non-magnetic metal, possessed the power of bringing to rest a vibrating magnetic needle suspended over it, and of causing it to rotate when the disk was rotated. When both were at rest, there was neither attraction nor repulsion. The same results were produced by the disk and a large suspended magnet. Arago wisely suggested no theory; but Faraday demonstrated that the effects were entirely due to the rotating disk cutting the earth's magnetic lines of force. Professor Tyndall, after giving further explanatory illustrations, described how Faraday's continued researches culminated in the enunciation of a totally new branch of science—magneto-electricity. He placed a bar of iron in a coil of wire, and, lifting the bar in the direction of a magnetic dipping needle, he excited by this action an electric current in the coil: on reversing the bar a current in the opposite direction rushed through the wire. Eventually he conclusively proved that the phenomena were entirely due to the intersection of the earth's lines of force. He soon obtained an electric spark from a magnet coiled round with an insulated copper wire; and the spark was produced whenever the circuit of the surrounding wire was made or broken. Thus, by the mere motion of a magnet, without any machine or battery, electric currents, with all their attendant phenomena, were easily produced. How these results are magnified, by means of induced currents in the powerful induction-coils of Ruhmkorff and others, was fully explained by Professor Tyndall in some detail; and the distinction between the positive and negative currents was beautifully shown by electric light.

INDIGO AND ITS ARTIFICIAL PRODUCTION.

Professor H. E. Roscoe, F.R.S., President of the Chemical Society, gave the Friday evening discourse on May 27. On April 1, 1870, he described and illustrated the artificial production of alizarine, the colouring matter of madder, which had proved a great commercial success, and now the synthesis of indigo had been accomplished by Professor Adolf Baeyer, of Munich, another eminent example of the highly profitable results of the study of the profound problems of organic chemistry. After referring to the use of indigo as a dye by the Egyptians and other ancient nations, he stated that the European indigo plant, the woad (isatis tinctoria) had been gradually superseded by various species of indigofera, natives of India; and alluded to the processes now employed for using it in Bengal as closely resembling those described by Pliny and Dioscorides. Particulars were then given respecting the chemistry of indigo, which is a blue powder, insoluble in water, alkalies, alcohol, and most common liquids, but which, by combination with hydrogen, is transformed into indigo white. This rapidly absorbs oxygen from the atmosphere in dyeing, and thus passes into the blue insoluble indigo, which, being held in the fibre of the cloth, gives it a permanent blue dye, as was shown by experiments. With regard to the origin of indigo in the leaves of the plant, Schunck has proved that they contain neither indigo blue nor white, but a colourless principle termed "indican," which is readily, by chemical agency, transformed into indigo. The Professor then illustrated the analytical processes by which an accurate knowledge of the structure and relations of indigo had been obtained, and afterwards showed by experiments how the dye had been reproduced by building it up from its constituents, existing in toluine, a product of coal tar. For this result we are indebted to the continued laborious researches of Fritsche (1840), Kekulé, Claissen, and Shadwell, but most especially to Baeyer. Dr. Caro, by his invention of a manufacturing process, has brought the production of artificial indigo within a measurable distance of commercial success. The perfect identity of the properties of the two indigoes was conclusively shown by experiments, exhibited by the electric light; in fact, the new product has some peculiar advantages. Improvements upon the present crude modes of preparing the old indigo may be made, which, together with its present superior cheapness, may for a time cause it to maintain its position. In conclusion, Professor Roscoe stated that England largely exports to Germany the cheap raw materials, and imports thence the highly valuable coal tar colours, and thereby loses the immense profit incident to the manufacture. This he attributed partly to the employment in Germany of well-paid scientific chemists to superintend and improve the processes, and partly to our patent laws.

LERMONTOFF.

Professor C. E. Turner began his second lecture on the Great Modern Writers of Russia, on Saturday last, May 28, with a sketch of the poet's life, in the course of which he particularly noticed the important influence of the Caucasus on Russian literature. Mikhail Lermontoff was born on Oct. 3, 1814. His mother, who was of noble birth, and who married beneath her rank, died when he was very young; and he was reared in seclusion from his father. How he felt this separation from his father is shown in his early poetry. Whilst very young he began to study English literature, and soon became an intense admirer of Byron and Scott. Though Byron's influence is manifest in all Lermontoff's works, especially in the "Demon" and "Mtzierie," it is an exaggeration to style him "le singe de Byron," as one critic has done. He was expelled from the University of Moscow in consequence of having taken part in a student demonstration against one of the professors, and was thus forced into a military career. His "Lines on the Death of Pouschkin" also gave great offence at Court, and he was accordingly arrested and exiled to the Caucasus. While there he wrote his glorious pathetic "Ballad of Ivan Vasielwitch the Tsar, his Young Trooper, and the Bold Merchant Kalaschnikoff." Of this ballad the Professor gave a detailed analysis, with numerous extracts, in order to show how completely it expresses the spirit and form of Russian life in the age of Ivan. In 1840 Lermontoff was again exiled for fighting a duel with Barante, a son of the French Ambassador; and soon after his return took up a permanent residence at Piatogorsk, in the Caucasus. His acquaintance with Mdlle. Verzielina caused a quarrel with Major Martienoff, one of the lady's admirers, and led to the fatal encounter on July 15, 1840, in which Lermontoff, only in his thirty-seventh year, was mortally wounded. In reviewing the poem entitled "Mtzierie," a Georgian word signifying a novice, Professor Turner cited a very powerful passage, in which the Circassian youth describes his successful conflict with a wild panther. In conclusion, he briefly referred to Lermontoff's prose story, "A Hero of Our Days," which has been translated into French and English.

Professor Henry Morley will, on Tuesday next, the 7th inst., give a lecture on Thomas Carlyle; on Friday evening next Professor Dewar will give a discourse on the Origin and Identity of Spectra; Professor Turner's two lectures on Thursday and Saturday on the Russian Writers Tourgenieff and Nekrasoff will close the season.

OBITUARY.

MAJOR MALAN.

Major Charles Hamilton Malan died recently at Stanhope-gardens. He was born Aug. 19, 1837, was educated at Sandhurst, and in 1854 entered the 7th Royal Fusiliers, with which regiment he proceeded to the Crimea. In the assault on the Redan he was severely wounded, and shortly after returned home. In India, in 1857, he exchanged to the 75th Regiment, and in 1866 went to Canada as A.D.C. to Sir David Russell. At Singapore he commanded a wing of his regiment, and in 1871, having retired from the Army, devoted himself to mission work in Africa. Major Malan married, first, Miss Marryat, daughter of Lieutenant-Colonel Marryat; and, secondly, a daughter of Mr. Thomas Monck Mason, of Dublin.

MAJOR FERGUSSON-HOME.

John Hutcheson Fergusson-Home, of Bassendean, in the county of Berwick, J.P. and D.L., Major in the Army, late 33rd Regiment B.N.I., died on the 27th ult. He was eldest son of the late Mr. James Fergusson, of Crosshill, Ayrshire, Principal Clerk of Session, and assumed the additional surname and arms of Home in 1866, on succeeding his maternal uncle, Lieutenant-General John Home Home, Lieutenant-Governor and Commander-in-Chief of Nova Scotia. Major Fergusson-Home served in the Cabul and Sutlej campaigns, for which he had medals and clasps. He married, first, 1851, Jane-Anne, daughter of Mr. James Walker, of Dalvy, Advocate; and, secondly, 1861, Dorothea, daughter of Mr. Hugh Veitch, of Stuartfield. The Homes of Bassendean are a branch of the noble family of Home.

We have also to record the deaths of—

Captain J. G. Boileau, R.N., on the 24th ult., at Carnarvon, aged fifty-four.

Count Eugène Gustave Francis Guidoboni Visconti, Commander R.N., on the 25th ult., aged fifty-one.

Mr. Henry Pease, the late M.P. for Durham, from heart disease, at his residence in Finsbury-square, on the 30th ult.

The Hon. Mrs. Pomeroy (Elizabeth), widow of the Hon. Henry Pomeroy (fourth son of John, fourth Viscount Harberton), on the 26th ult., at Lansdown Parade, Cheltenham, aged seventy-one. She was third daughter of the Rev. Robert Holt Trucll, D.D., of Clonmannon, in the county of Wicklow.

Lady Hill, the widow of the late Sir Rowland Hill (whom she survived about two years), on the 27th ult., at her residence, at Hampstead, in her eighty-fifth year. She was the eldest daughter of the late Mr. Joseph Pearson, of Graisley House, near Wolverhampton.

Mr. William Walter Raleigh Kerr, formerly Auditor-General at, and subsequently Treasurer of, the Mauritius, on the 26th ult., at Vale House, Jersey. Born in 1809, the eldest son of Major-General Lord Robert Kerr, and grandson of William John, fifth Marquis of Lothian, K.T., he married, in 1850, Mary Rouet, daughter of James Wilson, Chief Judge at the Mauritius, and leaves four sons and two daughters.

The Rev. William Wheeler Webb-Bowen, on the 24th ult., at the Vicarage, Camrose, Pembrokeshire, in his seventy-eighth year. He was third son of Mr. Hugh Webb-Bowen, of Camrose, by Emma, his wife, daughter of Mr. Thomas Ince, of Stoneydale, Cheshire, was born Nov. 7, 1803, and was twice married; first, to Mary Grace Josephine Von Burr, daughter of the Rev. Joseph Fortune; and, secondly, to Olivia, daughter of Captain Charles Duffin, H.E.I.C.S.

Mr. Henry Limbrey Toll, J.P., on the 20th ult., at Manor House, Strete, Dartmouth, aged fifty-two. He was only son of the late Mr. Henry Limbrey Toll, of Perridge House, Devon, J.P. and D.L., by Anne, his wife, eldest daughter of Mr. Walter Vavasour, of Heath, in the county of York, and married, Oct. 4, 1855, Louisa Frances, only daughter of Captain William Brampton Burne, by whom he leaves a son and heir, Henry Limbrey, and other issue.

The opening of the Bath and West-of-England Agricultural Society show by the Marquis of Abergavenny, the president, will take place on Monday next. The Prince of Wales, as patron of the society, will visit the show on Tuesday.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications relating to this department of the Paper should be addressed to the Editor, and have the word "Chess" written on the envelope.

D S G (Vienna).—We are obliged for the specimen problems from your forthcoming book, and shall take an early opportunity of publishing one of them.

J A S (Stockton).—There was a chess primer in the French language, called the "A B C des Echecs," published some years ago by Prell and Son, 72, Rue St. Saveur, Paris.

ALPHA.—Your prediction that No. 1944 would prove a trap to solvers has been verified by the event. See note at the end of the correspondence.

DR F St (Blandford-square).—You shall have a report on your problems, including the last one, very shortly.

SIDNEYTH.—Look at No. 1944 again. The discovery of the solution will repay the labour of examination.

D S (Brixton).—(1) The London Chess Club, Mouflet's Hotel, Newgate-street. (2) The Chess-players' Chronicle, 23, Great Queen-street; and the British Chess Magazine, Dean and Son, Fleet-street.

INVALID ARCHITECT.—We regret we have not space for the illustration, but we shall direct attention to your suggestion for solitary chess next week.

F J (Coventry).—Thanks for the second problem.

J W (Melbourne).—We have much pleasure in publishing so good a specimen of Australian problem composition as appears below. Your inquiries have been answered through Bernhard.

CORRECT SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEMS Nos. 1940 and 1941 received from Ya (U.S.).

CORRECT SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM No. 1942 received from Alfred Rowley, Birkbeck Chess Class, James Atkinson, and F Johnston.

CORRECT SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM No. 1943 received from W J Eggleston, C Edmundson (North Shields), Birkbeck Chess Class, Espanol, James Atkinson, F W Humphries, H J Grant, A Chapman, Pilgrim, Leslie Lachlan, and F Johnston.

CORRECT SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM No. 1944 received from H B, Dr F St, Sudbury (Suffolk), D W (Guernsey), Birkbeck Chess Class, F Johnston, An Old Hand, R T Kemp, A Lounder, E Sharwood, E Sharwood, H Blacklock, Ben Nevis, E Elsbury, D Templeton, Jupiter Junior, C Oswald, T Greenbank, N S Harris, M O'Halloran, L Fairon (Antwerp), A M Colborne, D W Kell, W Hillier, A Harper, C S Cox, Hereward, R Jessop, Otto Fulder, C Darragh, L L Greenaway, R Tweddell, B L Dyke, W Waites, B Inverne, Lain, F Ferris, Joseph Ainsworth, A Kerberg (Hamburg), Elsie, F G Parslow, W J Rudman, Nerina, Cant, R H Brooks, E Louden, and R Gray.

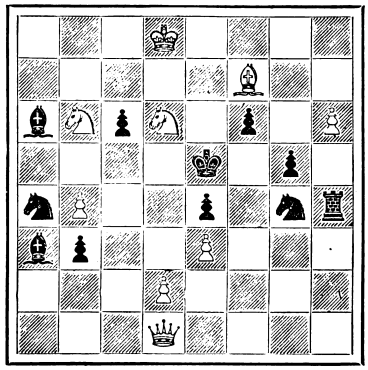
NOTE.—We have received a large number of proposed solutions of this problem commencing 1. R to R 4th and 1. B to K 8th, but no solution can be elected by either of these lines of play. The answer to 1. B to R 4th is 1. P to Kt 4th, and should White then check with the Knight, the Black King escapes by moving to Q B 3rd. 1. B to K 8th is met by 1. P Queens, and should White, in this variation, continue with 2. Q to R 8th (ch), then 2. P to Q Kt 4th, postpones the mate until the fourth move.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1943.

| WHITE. | BLACK. |
|---|---|
| 1. Q to K B 8th | K to Q 4th* |
| 2. Q to B 6th | K to B 4th |
| 3. R to Kt 6th. Mate. | |

*If Black play 1. K to K 4th, then 2. R to Kt 5th (ch), mating next move with Q or B accordingly.

PROBLEM No. 1946.
By F. K. ELLING (Melbourne).
BLACK.



WHITE.

White to play, and mate in three moves.

The following curious Game is extracted from the first number of Brentano's Chess Monthly. It was played, about eight years ago, between Mr. A. P. BARNES, giving the odds of Q R and Q Kt, and Mr. J., of New Jersey. It will be seen that a Pawn is Queened before the player has a lost a piece, and that Black's force at the termination of the game is greater than it was at the beginning.

(Danish Gambit.)

| WHITE (Mr. B.) | BLACK (Mr. J.) | WHITE (Mr. B.) | BLACK (Mr. J.) |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1. P to K 4th | P to K 4th | 12. R to Q sq | P takes B (Queen's). |
| 2. P to Q 4th | P takes P | | |
| 3. P to Q 3rd | P takes P | | |
| 4. B to Q B 4th | Kt to Q B 3rd | | |
| 5. P to Q R 3rd | Q Kt to K 2nd | | |
| 6. Kt to B 3rd | P to Q R 3rd | | |
| 7. Castles | P to Q Kt 4th | | |
| 8. B to R 2nd | P to Q B 3rd | | |
| 9. Kt to Kt 5th | Kt to R 3rd | | |
| 10. Q to Kt 3rd | Q to R 4th | | |
| 11. R to K sq | P takes P | | |

The play of the receiver of R and Kt odds is, of course, not worth comment; but for the benefit of our younger readers we remark that on White's 11th move he required his R on Q sq, but feared to play it there at once, lest, by accident, Black should spoil his plans. By placing it on K sq first, he provides Black with something to play for, which will not interfere with his intentions.

White announced mate in three moves.

Our problem this week, a fair specimen of the skill of Australian composers, has been forwarded to us by Mr. John Wisker, who, before he left us for the Antipodes, was the champion of England. Mr. Wisker is now conducting the chess department of the Australasian in Melbourne.

The return match between the Oxford City and Oxford University Chess Clubs was played on Friday last. There were thirteen players a side, and the citizens again scored a victory, but by no means a hollow one. The score was 12½ to 11½.

In the Melbourne Australasian of April 9 last we observed a notice to a correspondent of that paper advising him to apply to the Illustrated London News for the date of the first problem tourney; and as such a point cannot fail to interest the present generation of chess amateurs, we purpose giving the required information without waiting to be asked for it. The idea of a problem tourney was first broached by the late Mr. Staunton, who, in 1850, proposed that one should be arranged in connection with the London Congress of the following year; but the proposal, like many other good intentions associated with the meeting of 1851, met with but faint support. The project was, however, subsequently adopted and discussed in the chess press from time to time; and at length, early in 1854, a competition open to all nations, was announced. The international character of the tourney was not maintained, owing to the refusal of foreign composers to pay an entrance fee; and it was consequently limited to English problem-makers. Each competitor was required to pay an entrance fee of a guinea, to contribute eight problems, from which the judges were to select the best three, and the composer of the best and second best sets of three were to receive the prizes. These, consisting of a set of ivory chess pieces for the first, and a handsome chess-board for the second, were awarded, in August, 1851, to Mr. W. Grimshaw and Mr. Silas Angas, in the order named. The winner of the first prize is still, as he was twenty-seven years ago, a valued contributor to this column; but Mr. Angas has been dead some years. To complete this brief notice of the first problem tourney, we give here the best problems from the winning sets:—

First prize in the first problem tourney:—

White: K at Q Kt 4th; Q at Q Kt sq; R at Q 8th; Kt's at Q 3rd and 5th; B's at K 5th and 6th; Pawn at K 3rd. (Eight pieces.)
Black: K at K R 2nd; Q at Q R 8th; B's at K R 4th and 7th; Kt at K Kt 6th; R at Q B sq; Pawns at K R 3rd, K Kt 2nd and 4th, Q 2nd, Q Kt 3rd and 7th. (Twelve pieces.)

White to play, and mate in four moves.

Second prize in the first problem tourney:—

White: K at Q Kt 2nd; B's at K 7th and Q Kt 4th; Kt at Q B 5th; B at Q R 3rd; Pawns at Q Kt 6th, Q B 3rd, and K 3rd. (Eight pieces.)
Black: K at Q B 4th; R at Q Kt square; Kt at K 7th; B's at K 4th and Q R 7th; Pawns at Q Kt 2nd, Q B 3rd, and Q 5th. (Eight pieces.)

White to play, and mate in six moves.

We commend these fine chess studies to our readers. They belong to an almost forgotten school of problem composition, and are hard nuts to crack, but they are conceived in the true spirit of chess strategy. Any solutions received will be acknowledged in the usual way.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will (dated Aug. 8, 1872) of Augusta Maria, Countess of Carysfort, widow of Granville Leveson, the fourth Earl, late of No. 13, Grosvenor-crescent, Belgrave-square, who died on March 24 last, was proved on the 9th ult. by the Right Hon. William, Earl of Listowell, the brother, and William John Guthrie Loudon, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £70,000. The testatrix bequeaths upon trust for her sisters-in-law, Lady Claud Hamilton and Lady Theodosia Baillie, £15,000 each; upon trust for her sister, Lady Adela Larking, £8000; to her brother the Hon. Hugh Henry Hare, £7000; to her brothers the Hon. Ralph Hare and the Hon. Richard Hare, £6000 each; and there are other pecuniary legacies to her sisters, nieces, &c., and some specific gifts of jewellery, including her diamond tiara, to Lady Claud Hamilton for life, and then to go as a heirloom with the Carysfort estates. The residue of her property she leaves to her sister, Lady Adela Larking, and her brothers, Hugh Henry, Ralph, and Richard.

The will (dated April 28, 1877) of Mr. Andrew Lamb, late of Southampton, retired superintendent engineer of the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Shipping Company, who died on March 29 last, was proved on April 28 last, at the Winchester district registry, by Mrs. Christian Lamb, the widow, Andrew Simon Lamb, the son, and John James Burnett, the acting executors, the personal estate being sworn under £160,000. The testator leaves to his wife his freehold residence at Southampton, with the household goods and effects, and pecuniary legacies amounting together to £1300; and there are a few other bequests. As to the residue of his real and personal property, after giving the income of one half to his wife for life, he divides it between his three children, Andrew Simon Lamb, Mary Elizabeth Lamb, and Elizabeth Hunter Lamb, in equal shares, as tenants in common.

The will (dated June 27, 1879) with a codicil (dated July 9 following) of Mr. Frederick Cowper, late of Carleton Hall, Penrith, Cumberland, and of No. 10, Montagu-square, who died on March 31 last, was proved on the 6th ult. by Frederick Cowper, the son, and David Burton, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £160,000. The testator bequeaths his furniture, plate, and household stores at Carleton Hall to his son Frederick; and there are numerous bequests to his children, grandchildren, and others. The residue of his estate, real and personal, he leaves upon trust as to one sixth for each of his children, Mrs. Fanny Burton, John Cowper, Mrs. Louisa Barrett, Dame Amelia Donaldson, Mrs. Emily Curzon, and the Baroness Augusta Jane Von Brandt.

The will (dated March 6, 1879) with a codicil (dated July 28 following) of Mr. Barnett Phillips, late of No. 18, Bloomsbury-square, diamond merchant, who died on Feb. 18 last, has been proved by Mrs. Rachel Phillips, the widow, Lawrence Barnett Phillips, the son, and Lewis Schryver, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £120,000. The testator bequeaths an immediate legacy of £250, and all his household furniture, plate, pictures, and effects, to his wife; 10 guineas each to the Jewish Blind Society, the Jewish Hand-in-Hand Society, the Jewish Free School, Bell-lane, Spitalfields, the Jewish Board of Guardians, the Jews' Hospital, Norwood, and the Central Synagogue, Great Portland-street; 10 guineas to the London Hospital; and legacies to his sons, daughter, and others. The residue of his real and personal estate, including his residence, he leaves to his wife for life or widowhood, and then for his sons and daughter in equal shares.

The will (dated Nov. 17, 1877) with two codicils (dated May 22, 1879, and Feb. 18, 1881) of Mr. Samuel Johnson Roberts, late of Chester and of Llandfairfechan, Carnarvonshire, who died on March 25 last, was proved on the 5th ult. by Edmund Russell Roberts and Edward Francis Roberts, the sons, the acting executors, the personal estate being sworn under £90,000. The testator leaves 19 guineas each to the British and Foreign Bible Society, the London City Mission, the Chester City Mission, the London Missionary Society, the Religious Tract Society, and the Evangelisation Society; his freehold residence, with the furniture and effects, and £200 to his wife, Mrs. Martha Clemenia Roberts, together with £500 per annum for life; £13,000 upon trust for his son Alfred; and he makes up the portions of his daughters, Mrs. Clemenia Coulter, Miss Emily Eliza Roberts, and Mrs. Fanny Stuart to £10,000 each, but £2000 thereof is not to be paid until the death of their mother. The residue of his property, real and personal, he gives to his said sons Edmund Russell and Edward Francis.

The will (dated April 7, 1875) with a codicil (dated Sept. 17 following) of Mr. William Baker, late of Margaretting, Essex, who died on March 6 last, was proved on April 29 last by George Baker, the son, Mrs. Charlotte Maria Spight, the daughter, and John Albert Copland, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £30,000. The only persons interested under the will are testator's four children, George Baker, William Baker, Charlotte Maria Spight, and Harriet Esther French.

The will (dated Feb. 18, 1881) of the Rev. William Morley Punshon, LL.D., ex-President of the Wesleyan Conference, late of Tranby, Brixton-rise, who died on April 14 last, was proved on the 12th ult. by the Rev. William Hirst, John Broomcker Ingle, and Clarence Smith, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £14,000. The testator leaves to his wife, Mrs. Mary Punshon, £1000, and his furniture, plate, and household effects, she is also to have for life his residence, Tranby, and the dividends of £4000. To the Wesleyan Missionary Society he leaves £50; and legacies to his sons, Percy Henry, and Morley, to his granddaughter, Fanny Eleanor Rayner, and others. The residue of his property he gives to his wife and his son Percy Henry.

The will (dated June 9, 1877) of Mr. John Vere, J.P., late of Carlton-on-Trent, Notts, who died on March 27 last at Torquay, was proved on the 4th ult. by James Vere, the brother, and Frederick John Blake, the acting executors, the personal estate being sworn under £6000. The testator settles all his real estate in the county of Notts on his niece, the Hon. Mrs. Clementina Margaret Isabella Skeffington; the household goods, china, pictures, works of art, plate, and effects are made heirlooms to go with the estate; his freehold house in Lombard-street he settles on his niece, Miss Eleanor Ann Catherine Dennistoun; and there are legacies to his executors and others. The residue of his property he leaves to his said niece, the Hon. Mrs. Skeffington. The testator earnestly requests, but does not make it a condition, that his said nieces will not marry foreigners.

The will (dated March 12, 1877) of Sir Daniel Brooke Robertson, C.B., formerly H.M. Consul at Canton, late of No. 15, Arlington-street, who died on March 27 last, was proved on the 4th ult. by Russell Brooke Robertson, the son and sole executor, to whom he gives all his personal estate. The personalty is sworn under £2000. C. G. C.

Sir John A. Macdonald, Premier of the Dominion of Canada, and Lady Macdonald arrived at Liverpool on Monday, and left for London.

GEORGE STEPHENSON, THE FATHER OF RAILWAYS.

(Continued from page 555.)

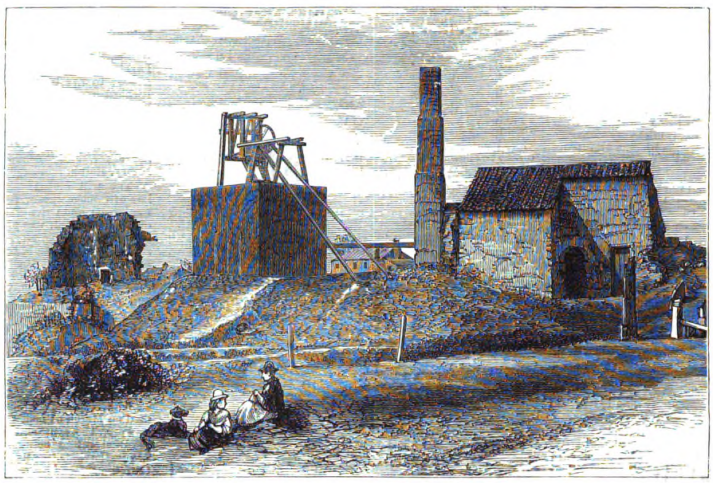
property, and the public at large. After a second hot Parliamentary battle the third reading of the bill was passed by a majority of 88 to 41; and when it went up to the House of Lords it was almost unanimously accepted, the Earl of Derby and his relative the Earl of Sefton being its only opponents. It cost £27,000 to obtain the Act. Mr. George Stephenson was appointed principal engineer. He had still a greater victory to achieve than that which was endorsed by the House of Peers. He had undertaken to carry his road across Chat Moss. The greatest engineers had declared that he had undertaken to do what no man in his senses could have conceived possible—namely, to make a road over a peat bog, "a mass of spongy vegetable pulp, the result of the growth and decay of ages." To quote Mr. Smiles' graphic life of the great engineer, "Mr. Stephenson's idea was that a road might literally be made to float upon the bog simply by means of a sufficient extension of the bearing surface. As a ship or a raft capable of sustaining heavy loads floated in water, so, in his opinion, might a light road be floated on a bog which was of considerably greater consistency than water. Long before the railway was thought of Mr. Roscoe, of Liverpool, had adopted the remarkable expedient of fitting his plough-horses with flat wooden soles or pattens to enable them to walk upon the moss-land which he had brought into cultivation. These shoes were fitted on by means of a screw apparatus which met in front of the foot, and was easily fastened. The mode by which these pattens served to sustain the horses is capable of easy explanation; and it will be observed that the rationale alike explains the floating of a railway train." Upon a similar system Stephenson argued that even so ponderous a thing as a locomotive and railway train could be made to stand safely upon the bog by means of a similar extension of the bearing surface; and upon this principle, in spite of many weary months of disheartening labour, he made his railway across the Moss at an expense of £28,000, as against the estimate of £270,000 made by a rival engineering firm. There were many other great engineering works necessary in the construction of this and the other lines upon which Mr. George Stephenson and his son Robert were afterwards engaged; and from first to last "the father of railways" exhibited the same cool determination, unswerving patience and industry which had characterised his early struggles and his first studies of mechanics. Frugal in his habits, he was an early riser, and his iron constitution, strengthened by wholesome food and a very moderate use of alcohol, enabled him to work long hours and take but little rest. Like all great men, notably Lord Beaconsfield, he took deep interest in youthful labourers striving to advance their position. One of his assistants in the Chat Moss days says:—"The advice he generally gave to his young men was—'Learn for yourselves, think for yourselves; make yourselves masters of principles, persevere, be industrious, and there is no fear for you.'"



KILLINGWORTH HIGH PIT, WHERE STEPHENSON FIRST DISTINGUISHED HIMSELF.

It was in this spirit that he literally forced into use the locomotive engine. When the great works of the Liverpool and Manchester line were completed, the question arose as to how it should be worked—whether by stationary engines, by horses, or by the locomotive. Scores of projects were submitted to the directors, some from France and some from America; schemes for working with water-power, schemes for working with hydrogen, schemes for working with carbonic gas, schemes of atmospheric pressure, and every kind of fixed and locomotive power, including a greased road with copper rails. It was urged against Stephenson's engine that smooth wheels and smooth rails could not possibly work, and the two chief engineers of the day reported in favour of fixed engines. "Not a single professional man of eminence," says Smiles, "could be found to coincide with George Stephenson in his preference for locomotive over fixed-engine power; he had scarcely a supporter, and the locomotive system seemed on the eve of being abandoned. Nevertheless, Stephenson persevered; and finally, under his persistent assurances that the locomotive would do all and more than they could possibly require, they (the directors) determined to offer a prize of five hundred pounds for the best locomotive engine which, on a certain day, should fulfil certain specified conditions in the most satisfactory manner, all they asked for in the way of speed being that ten miles an hour should be maintained." In the meantime Mr. Stephenson had established a locomotive manufactory at Newcastle-on-Tyne, which was under the chief management of his son, and several engines had already been constructed at these works. For the famous trial, and the premium of £500, four engines were entered to compete—namely, Braithwaite and Ericson's "Novelty," Mr

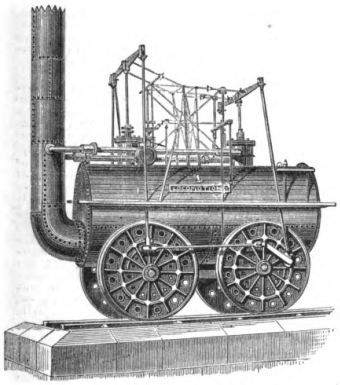
MAKING A RAILWAY.

GEORGE STEPHENSON, THE FATHER OF RAILWAYS.

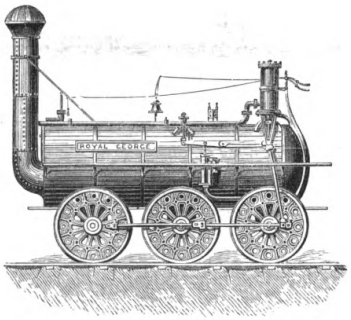
Timothy Harkworth's "Sanspariel," Stephenson and Company's "Rocket," and Mr. Burstall's "Perseverance." On the day fixed, Oct. 6, there was a great and distinguished crowd to see the show. Stephenson's engine stood third on the list for trial, but it was ready first, and made an experimental trip in which it ran twelve miles in fifty-three minutes. The Novelty was next called, and made a brief experiment; so also was the Sanspareil. The contest, however, was postponed until the following day, in the interest of these two latter engines. The special peculiarity of the Novelty was that the air was driven through the fire by means of bellows, which early on the trial-day burst, and prevented the engine from performing. The boiler of the Sanspareil proved defective, and the trial was again postponed till the next day. In the meantime, to satisfy the crowd, however, Mr. Stephenson attached the "Rocket" to a coach containing thirty persons, and ran them about at the rate of twenty-four to thirty miles an hour to their vast delight and astonishment. On the next day the Rocket was duly tested, and it more than satisfied every condition, the maximum velocity which it attained being twenty-nine miles an hour, or, as Mr. Smiles says, "about three times the speed that one of the judges of the competition had declared to be the limit of possibility. The Novelty and the Sanspareil were not ready for trial until the 10th, and they both gave out in one way or another during the work they undertook. The Perseverance could only make a speed of from five to six miles an hour, and was withdrawn from competition. The prize was, therefore, awarded to the "Rocket;" and from this moment many of Mr. Stephenson's bitterest opponents became his best friends. The railway was opened on Sept. 15, 1830, in the presence of the Duke of Wellington, Sir Robert Peel, and Mr. Huskisson. The otherwise great success of the day was marred by the fatal accident which happened to Mr. Huskisson. There had been a coldness between the Duke of Wellington and Mr. Huskisson; but on this occasion his Grace making a sign of recognition; the two hurriedly shook hands amidst a general cry of "Get in, get in;" Mr. Huskisson attempting to go round the open door of the carriage, which projected over the opposite rail, was struck by the engine. He fell with his leg doubled across the rail, and the engine passed over it. "I have met my death," he said, when he was raised up by the bystanders, and he died the same night at Eccles. Connected with this calamity, the fact was blazed throughout the world that Mr. Stephenson's locomotive engine carried the wounded man for succour and treatment a distance of about fifteen miles in twenty-five minutes, or at the rate of thirty-six miles an hour. Within a very short time the new railway carried an average of twelve hundred passengers a day, and within five years it was carrying 500,000 a year. The profits chiefly from the carriage of merchandise were estimated at £62,500 a year, but the net profits realised during the first five years were £25,000 a year beyond that amount.

From this time until a few years before his death George Stephenson, assisted by his son, was occupied in carrying out our great railway system. The London and Birmingham line was in due course projected, with the two Stephensons as joint engineers. The engineering difficulties of the undertaking were enormous, notably the boring of Kilsby tunnel, one of the most remarkable and interesting works in the history of railways. The opposition of the landowners of Northampton forced its construction upon the company. The first contractor, in face of immense falls of sand and inundations of water, abandoned the work. George Stephenson never once wavered or gave way. The tunnel was eventually made; and it is estimated that the water pumped out of it during the progress of the works would be equal to the contents of the Thames at high water between London and Woolwich. In 1835 the North Midland Railway was projected; the Act was obtained in the following year; and the line commenced by Mr. Stephenson, assisted by one of his favourite pupils, Mr. Swanwick, in 1837. Seventy-two miles and a half in length, it had two hundred bridges and seven tunnels; and it was during the construction of this magnificent railway—"far more wonderful," Mr. Smiles thinks, "than Napoleon's vaunted road over the Simplon"—that Mr. Stephenson associated himself with the collieries at Clay Cross, and eventually took up his residence at Tapton House, Chesterfield. In addition to his multifarious work at home, Mr. Stephenson visited the Continent several times on important business. At the request of King Leopold, he assisted the Belgian engineers in their plans for the national lines of that kingdom. The King appointed him by Royal

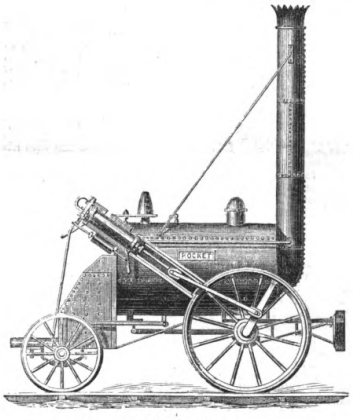
THE STEPHENSON MEMORIAL INSTITUTE, ON THE SITE OF STEPHENSON'S COTTAGE, AT WILLINGTON QUAY.



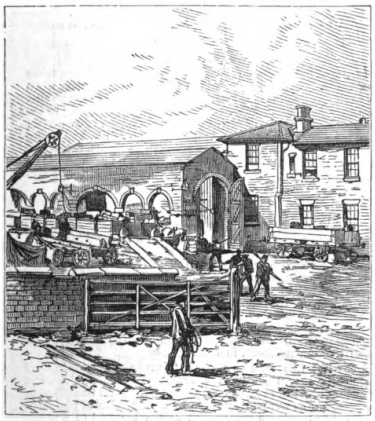
THE FIRST LOCOMOTIVE ENGINE.



THE ROYAL GEORGE.

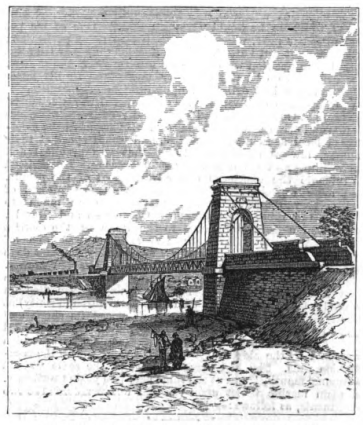


THE ROCKET.

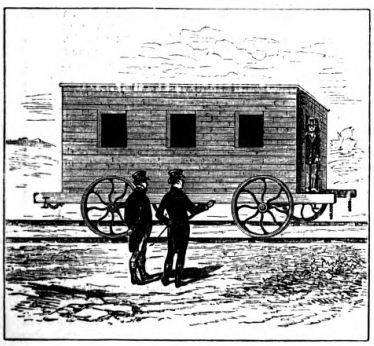


THE FIRST RAILWAY STATION.

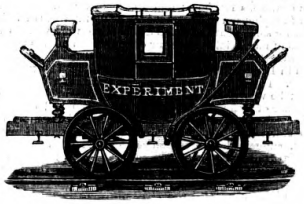
DIAL OVER THE DOOR OF STEPHENSON'S COTTAGE, AT KILLINGWORTH.



THE FIRST RAILWAY SUSPENSION BRIDGE ERECTED OVER THE TEES.



THE EXPERIMENT COACH, COMMON CAR.



THE EXPERIMENT, FIRST RAILWAY PASSENGER COACH, 1825.

ordinance a Knight of the Order of Leopold; and during one of his visits he was invited to dine with the chief Ministers of State, the municipal authorities, and about five hundred inhabitants of the city of Ghent. On the next day he dined with the King and Queen at Brussels. "It is curious," says Smiles, "to contrast the conduct of the English Government with that of Belgium at the same time. The House of Commons was still endeavouring to introduce the steam-carriage on common roads, and the Government was expending large sums of money for the purpose of improving those roads so as to enable them to compete with the railways which were in course of formation. It is a remarkable fact that during the time that the London and Birmingham railway was under construction £130,000 was voted by Parliament to place the road between these two termini in an improved state with this object. The alterations were carried out under the superintendence of Mr. Telford, the Government engineer, and the money was expended just as the new turnpike road was not wanted." In course of time the benefits of railways began to be acknowledged not only by the country people, landowners, and farmers who had opposed them, but by towns and other communities which had forced them outside their boundary limits. The Duke of Wellington for a long time would not, however, trust himself on a railway. He had witnessed the fatal accident to Mr. Huskisson, which helped to prejudice him against locomotive engines; but finally he gave way to the general progress of the time, and made his first journey in 1843 on the South-Western Railway attending upon her Majesty. The late Prince Consort had early in the history of railways been a traveller upon them; the Queen, however, did not make her first trip until 1842. One of the most eccentric opponents to railways was Colonel Sibthorpe, the member for Lincoln, who denounced them in and out of Parliament, and made himself for many years the butt of Punch and other humorous periodicals. He was in the habit of posting from Lincolnshire to London; but at last he was induced to break the journey by making part of it by rail and part by carriage, until finally he accepted the established method which George Stephenson had inaugurated on the Stockton and Darlington line with his first passenger coach, "the Experiment."

The famous engineer's last days were spent in a dignified and pleasant rest. He occupied much of the leisure of his retirement in superintending the cultivation of his garden at Tapton House. Here he grew the first straight cucumber. He delighted to compete in horticultural contests with Sir Joseph Paxton at Chatsworth; and his fruit and vegetables often carried off prizes at local exhibitions. In those days the Duke of Devonshire's head gardener had not yet designed the famous exhibition buildings of 1851, and therefore was plain Mr. Paxton, often plainer Joseph Paxton, though even then he was quite a friend of the Duke, who was a nobleman of great taste and generosity. Stephenson was fond of having long chats with Paxton about gardening, and would take great delight in visiting the beautiful grounds at Chatsworth and inspecting Paxton's hothouses. The engineer was as earnest in regard to his vegetable-growing as he was about his locomotive work. It was characteristic of him to be energetic and persevering in all he undertook; and he probably, at the moment, felt as proud of growing the first straight cucumber as he did at the time of winning the famous race at Manchester with his "Rocket." Finding that no amount of propping and guiding with string would influence the crooked nature of the cucumber, he had a long glass tube made, and placed the young cucumber in it so that it grew just as he wished it; and this feat was one of his triumphs over Paxton, who was the only gardener, he used to say, to whom he would "knock under." One of his pet fruits was the pine, which he cultivated to great perfection; but it was not until after his death that his pines carried off a prize in competition with those of the Duke of Devonshire. His early love of natural history was in his latter days, and he had delightful opportunities of exercising it on the uplands of Tapton. He often visited the Mechanics' Institute at Chesterfield, and occasionally delivered addresses at this and other similar associations. He attended the meetings of local agricultural societies, and would speak at their dinners, always saying something that was practical and interesting, and often novel, about farming. He assisted to promote the education and advancement of the people, and more especially took an interest in the pitmen of the colliery districts, having previously done much to develop the mineral resources of Clay Cross and Stavely, and given a general impetus to the trade of the district all round about him. Sir Robert Peel was one of his most intimate friends, and he spent many pleasant days at the famous Minister's hospitable house, Drayton Manor. He was present at the opening of many of the new railways that were inaugurated in his latter days. He died on Aug. 12, 1848, and was buried in the new church (Trinity) at Chesterfield. The historic old borough closed its shops and tolled its bells on the occasion; and the burgesses, a respectful and sorrowing crowd, followed the great man's remains, which were laid by the side of his wife in a vault within the communion rails. She had preceded him, in the same "sweet autumnal month," and at the same age, two years previously. A plain marble tablet upon the wall above records the two interments, as follows:—

In memory of ELIZABETH,
Wife of GEORGE STEPHENSON,
of Tapton House,
who died Aug. 3rd, 1843,
aged 68 years.

And also of the above-named
GEORGE STEPHENSON,
who died Aug. 12th, 1848,
aged 68 years.

Trinity Church is picturesquely situated on the brow of a hill almost facing that of Tapton. I made a pilgrimage to the spot quite recently. The graveyard is a green oasis of the local street but little tenanted, and there are flowers and shrubs here and there, which give it a happy, rural appearance. An application at the Rectory to see the church meets with a courteous response; and I suspect that henceforth the tomb of Stephenson will attract increasing numbers of visitors.

During some years after his death there were various suggestions of memorials in honour of his work and his memory. At Newcastle, and at the entrance to the Euston-square station in London, monuments were erected. The nation did nothing. Parliament voted no statue to him in Westminster Abbey; he was not a soldier, nor a statesman; he was only the Father of Railways, in which capacity he had done more for his country than its greatest warriors and its most illustrious statesmen. But Mr. Charles Binns, one of his old friends, suggested to Derbyshire the idea of a Stephenson Memorial Hall, which should embody the best features of the Mechanics Institute. The Derbyshire Times took the idea up, and brought it continually before the public. Soon after the idea had been canvassed the Derbyshire Institute of Mining Engineers was established, and the Chesterfield Mechanics Institute found itself requiring extended accommodation for its members. The first-mentioned institute wanted "a local habitation" as well as a name; and, with these two societies willing to help in the erection of a hall where they could have rooms, other societies promised their aid to the scheme, and "The Stephenson Memorial Hall" was launched. After a time it languished for want of funds, and had to be "whipped up" a good deal by the local Times, for Chesterfield is not the "residential" town it was in Stephenson's days; and with increase of population it has become more of a mining centre than an old-fashioned town of rich and old-fashioned people. But in time, enough money was raised to commence work. In October, 1877, Lord Hartington laid the foundation-stone, and on July 14, 1879, the Hall was formally opened by Lord Hartington's father, his present Grace the Duke of Devonshire, Lord Lieutenant of Derbyshire, and the princely owner of Chatsworth House, near Chesterfield. The building is a handsome Gothic edifice. It has a museum, picture-gallery, class-rooms for schools of art and other educational conveniences, chambers for the institute already mentioned, a fine lecture and concert hall, and reading-rooms. Among the works of art appropriate to the place is Lucas's well-known full-length portrait of George Stephenson, Chat Moss depicted as a background. At the ceremonial opening of the hall Mr. Charles Binns closed an interesting speech with a remark which may fittingly conclude this sketch of his friend's remarkable career. He spoke of the assistance such an institution as that they were establishing would have been to George Stephenson in the days of his early struggles for information about the science of mechanics, and how it would have facilitated inquiry and the spread of knowledge in regard to methods of mining and manufacture in course of trial, and of engineering systems which had failed or were successful.

Similar observations will now apply as an indorsement of the modern movement in favour of the establishment of technical colleges. While England has taught other countries to compete with her in the industrial arts, she has been too content with what George Stephenson would have called the "rule of thumb," leaving the foreigner to perfect himself in those details and technicalities which were wont to be regarded as only belonging to the higher studies of the civil engineer and the artist. But it has come to be considered necessary nowadays for the ordinary operative to understand something of the philosophy and æsthetics of the industrial arts in connection with which he is employed. It is good that on all hands we now begin heartily to recognise, with George Stephenson's Derbyshire friend, that "the time has come when, if we let our intelligence rest and be still, England must assuredly fall from her high estate, and that the man who assists all he can in spreading knowledge is, in the best and broadest sense of the word, a patriot." JOSEPH HATTON.

ENGINES AND ENGINE-DRIVERS.

It is a suitable opportunity this week, upon the occasion of the George Stephenson Centenary Festival, to notice a series of instructive and interesting books, published by Messrs. Crosby Lockwood and Co., which treat of the construction and use of engines, and the work and life of the drivers of railway trains. Mr. Michael Reynolds, formerly Inspector of Locomotives of the London, Brighton, and South Coast Railway, is the author of these four volumes, entitled, respectively, "Locomotive Engine-Driving," "Stationary Engine-Driving," "The Model Locomotive Engineer," and "Engine-Driving Life."

The treatise on "Locomotive Engine-Driving," which has reached a fourth edition, is a practical manual for the work of the men in charge, both drivers and firemen, and is mainly of a technical character. It includes a description of the locomotive and its mechanism, in minute detail, and precise directions for every operation belonging to the service, whether ordinary or occasional, with many useful hints and advices. The scientific principles relating to this application of steam, and to the combustion of fuel by which it is generated, are distinctly explained. Particulars are given respecting the examination for certificates of proficiency required by drivers of locomotives, and the statutes and regulations for their conduct. A corresponding course of instruction, with some exceptions, is offered in the practical manual of "Stationary Engine-Driving;" but in this a larger space is devoted to the separate descriptions of different kinds of engines; the condensing beam-engine, the Cornish pumping-engine, the horizontal engine, the semi-portable, and the compound engines of several varieties. The peculiarities of the "Galloway" boiler are especially pointed out. Directions are given for managing the engine and boiler, the fire, and the water to feed the boiler. The causes of failures of engines, and of boiler-explosions, are set forth; and the reader is taught how to use the indicator, and how to make some useful calculations. Both these volumes are furnished with a number of illustrative wood-engravings; and the one last mentioned has a portrait of James Watt, the inventor of the steam-engine.

"The Model Locomotive Engineer, Fireman, and Engine-Boy," which is adorned with a portrait of George Stephenson, is partly historical, relating the early projects and attempts to solve the problem of constructing a locomotive steam-engine. We observe that justice is here done, among others, to Mr. William Hedley, the mining engineer at Wylam Colliery, for his successful experiment, in October, 1812, with a carriage prepared expressly to test the principle that the friction of the wheels upon the rails would suffice to enable it to draw a train of loaded waggons. The remaining portion of this volume is a review of the business and duties of each class of officials employed in the locomotive running department; the general manager and superintendent, the locomotive foreman, the engineer, and the fireman, down to the cleaner and engine-boy, with a scheme for the more perfect organisation of these services, and for securing their complete efficiency by regular examinations and certificates. We recommend this part of Mr. Reynolds's book to all Directors of Railway Companies and other persons in authority, but especially to those connected with the Board of Trade and the Railway Commission.

More popular entertainment will be found in the smaller volume called "Engine-Driving Life," which narrates, in a rather discursive and gossiping style, many characteristic anecdotes of the personal experiences of railway drivers, firemen, and attendants at the engine-sheds. We should all feel a hearty interest in the welfare and behaviour of these brave and worthy public servants, who merit equal esteem with our sailors and soldiers, and whose work is often quite as perilous, certainly quite as laborious, as that of seamen in the Royal Navy. There is no finer example of the English or Scottish working man, highly trained, alert, vigilant, self-reliant, prompt in resource, instant in action, equipped with much exact knowledge as well as experimental skill, than the superior man in the ranks of our railway locomotive engine-drivers. Many such a hero, within our recollection, has performed deeds of gallantry which deserved the Victoria Cross as fairly as any acts of military bravery on the battle-field. Mr. Reynolds's little book should contribute, as it no doubt will, to make the virtues and services of these good fellows better known to the public in general. He follows the rise of an engine-boy, who has a genuine enthusiasm for railway work, loving an engine as the sailor loves his ship, through the grade of fireman to that of driver, which is the height of his honest ambition. The faults, the blunders, the foolish tricks, or the acts of negligence which may sometimes have most disastrous consequences, are impressively set down for strict abstinence therefrom; and there is a chapter on "Punishment and its Administration," which could not have been wisely spared. "Runaway Engines" and "Runaway Trains," "The Death of Driver Nathan Gordon," "The Tay Bridge Accident," and "Last Trips" are chapters that keep the promise of their titles with plenty of exciting adventure. In conclusion, the "Railway Servants' Orphanage" at Derby is strongly recommended to public assistance; and we hope that the funds of that benevolent institution will gain substantially from the appeal here made on its behalf.

THE LOSS OF THE DOTEREL.

Commander Evans, R.N., late of the Doterel, arrived in town last Saturday evening, and at once reported himself at the Admiralty, where he had an interview with Admiral Sir Cooper Key. On Sunday he breakfasted with Lord Northbrook, and personally delivered his report of the disaster.

Commander Evans states that the Doterel left Elizabeth Island at six o'clock on the morning of April 26, and anchored at Sandy Point at 8.30. While in his bath-room, about ten, he heard a report as if a gun had gone off, and he went into the fore-cabin. Looking along the starboard side, he saw that the ship's side was burst open in the starboard gangway, and that the upper deck in that part was forced up, twisted, and wrenched about, and, the water rushing in, the ship at once heeled over to starboard. About twenty or thirty seconds after there was a much more violent explosion, which he is convinced was the fore magazine. Everything then became darkened with smoke and débris, and the ship was rapidly sinking. He jumped out of the embrasure port and seized some wreckage. He was probably sucked down by the ship, as he recollects nothing more till he noticed that the ship had disappeared. He thinks it could not have been three minutes from the time of the first explosion till the ship sunk. He is of opinion that the first explosion may have been caused by the bursting of the boiler, on account of the water being allowed to get too low in it, and the crowns of the furnace exposed when cold water was let in; or it may have been caused by spontaneous combustion in the starboard bunker. Otherwise Commander Evans is at a loss to account for the first explosion, as there was no combustibles in the starboard gangway, and there is little doubt that the shell-room, Nordenfelt, Gatling, and gun-cotton magazines, all of which were abaft the mainmast, did not explode. He thinks the greater number of men must have been killed by the explosion and falling débris, as he did not hear a cry or groan. Commander Evans regrets his inability to give a more satisfactory and definitive explanation of the disaster, and says it is a mystery to him. During the passage home Commander Evans examined all the survivors on board the Britannia to obtain any clue to the origin of the disaster. All the officers and men engaged at the various points perished, and there at present remains no means of ascertaining the facts as to the theories accounting for the explosion suggested in the official report.

The steamer Britannia, with the rest of the survivors (with the exception of Lieutenant Stokes, who remained at Sandy Point), arrived in the Mersey on Sunday night. They landed at Liverpool on Monday morning, and proceeded to Portsmouth, where they will remain on board the Duke of Wellington flag-ship pending the court-martial.

Stamped halfpenny newspaper wrappers of a better quality than those hitherto in use, which will be discontinued when the present stocks are sold off, are issued for sale to the public. They may be bought singly or in any number according to the undermentioned scale of prices—viz., one for ½d., two for 1½d., three for 1½d., four for 2½d., five for 3d. six for 3½d., and so on. The public can also obtain these wrappers uncut in quarter reams, containing 120 sheets of 14 wrappers on each sheet, by making special application for them at the post-office at which they wish to obtain them; the price being £3 18s.

Lord Carnarvon presided on Monday afternoon at a meeting of the members of the London Library. The annual report stated that there had been an increase of twelve members during the year, and a financial gain of £649. The total number of subscribers on the register is now 1668. The number of volumes sent out in the course of the year for circulation amounted to 97,158, while there had been 2700 volumes added to the library. Lord Carnarvon echoed the deep regret of the committee at the loss sustained by the death of the venerable president, Mr. Carlyle, and of Mr. James Spedding, who were both principally concerned in originating the library, and both assisted in its management from its commencement, in 1840.

Does not this read as though taken from some mediæval chronicle rather than from a report of proceedings in a humdrum court of law in this prosaic age? "At this moment the proceedings were interrupted by a procession of two men, respectively bearing a black wand and a bouquet of flowers, and about a dozen boys, with long osier rods, entering the court and beating the City bounds over the Judge's chair, amid loud cheers." The incident occurred on Thursday week in London, in the Queen's Bench Division of the High Court of Justice, in the presence of Baron Pollock. Foreigners, it was hoped by one of the counsel, would not return to their country with the impression that this was the ordinary behaviour in the English courts of justice; and Mr. Baron Pollock remarked that custom sometimes overrode the law.

SUBSCRIPTION TO THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

AT HOME.

| | |
|---|---|
| Twelve months (including Christmas Number), | £1 9s. 3d. |
| Six months, 14s. | Christmas Half-Year, 15s. 3d. |
| Three months, 7s. | Christmas Quarter, 8s. 3d. |

Copies will be supplied direct from the Office to any part of the United Kingdom and the Channel Islands, for any period, at the rate of 6½d. for each Number, paid in advance.

ABROAD.

The yearly subscription abroad is 36s. 4d. (on thin paper, 32s.), with the following exceptions:—

To Aden, Borneo, Ceylon, India, Java, Labuan, Mozambique Penang, Philippine Islands, Sarawak, Singapore, and Zanzibar, 41s. (thin paper, 34s.)

To the Hawaiian Islands, Madagascar (except St. Mary), and Paraguay, 45s. (on thin paper, 36s. 4d.)

Subscribers are specially advised to order the thick paper edition, the appearance of the engravings in the thin paper copies being greatly injured by the print at the back showing through.

Newspapers for foreign parts must be posted within eight days of the time of publication, irrespective of the departure of the mails.

Subscriptions must be paid in advance, direct to the Publishing Office, 198, Strand, in English money; by cheque crossed the Union Bank of London; or by Post-Office Order, payable at the East Strand Post Office, to George C. Leighton, of 198, Strand, London.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

THE

BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS,

A NEW JOURNAL FOR THE YOUNG.

The Proprietors of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS issued the first Illustrated Weekly Newspaper for Boys, price ONE PENNY, on Wednesday, April 6, 1881. THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS is a Journal full of Entertainment and Information for Youth; and, at the same time, a Paper which Parents can with confidence place in the hands of their Children.

CAPTAIN MAYNE REID'S "LOST MOUNTAIN." A New Romance in the best style of this famous Author, commenced in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS for April 6.

"SQUEE BIFFEN": Fine fun is poked at Jules Verne in this humorous serial story, continued in No. 9 for June 1.

PHIL HOLIDAY'S NOTES, published from week to week in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS, give a chatty chronicle of current Sports.

BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS.
Published every Wednesday.
One Penny; post-free, 1½d.

LIFE AFLOAT AT THE ROYAL MIDDIES.—A series of original articles, illustrated by the author, and containing several fresh anecdotes concerning our sailor Princes, was started in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS for May 25, and is continued in the issue for June 1.

CADET LIFE ABOARD H.M.S. BRITANNIA is fully described in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS for May 25 and June 1.

COLONEL PARKER GILLMORE'S "ENCOUNTERS WITH WILD BEASTS." Three Illustrations from this remarkable book for the young will be found in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS for June 1. Post-free, 1½d.

MR. I. D. WALKER, MR. A. J. WEBBE, MR. A. P. LUCAS, C.P.C., and WORLEY, the famous cricketers, are sketched in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS for June 1. Post-free, 1½d.

THE SECOND MONTHLY PART of THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS is now being published, containing the Four Numbers for May, stitched in a coloured wrapper, the continuation of "THE LOST MOUNTAIN," and "SQUEE BIFFEN," with complete Stories of Afghanistan and Arctic-land, by John Latey, Jun., Jottings from a Middy's Journal, and the Sport and News of the Month.
Price Sixpence; Post-free, Eightpence.

SUBSCRIPTION TO THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS.
FOR THE UNITED KINGDOM:
Three Months, 1s. 8d.; Six Months, 3s. 3d.; Twelve Months, 6s. 6d.
ABROAD:
Post-free to any part of Europe, United States of America, Canada, and Egypt, for One Year, 6s. 6d.; to India, Ceylon, China, and Japan, for One Year, 10s. 10d. Elsewhere Abroad, One Year, 8s. 8d.

All subscriptions to be paid in advance direct by Post-office order, payable at the East Strand Post-office, to THOMAS FOX, 10, Milford-lane, Strand, London.

DE LA RUE & CO.'S ANNOUNCEMENTS.
BUNHILL-ROW, LONDON, E.C.

Just out, demy 8vo, cloth, extra gilt, price 21s.,
With a Portrait, and Map of the Country,
COLONEL GORDON IN CENTRAL AFRICA, 1874-1879. From Original Letters and Documents. Edited by GEORGE BIRKBECK HILL, D.C.L., Author of the "Life of Sir Rowland Hill, K.C.B.," &c.

In Two Handsome Volumes, demy 8vo, price 32s., with a Portrait by Paul Rajon, and other Illustrations,
THE LIFE OF SIR ROWLAND HILL, K.C.B., and the HISTORY OF PENNY POSTAGE. By SIR ROWLAND HILL, and his nephew GEORGE BIRKBECK HILL, D.C.L., &c.

With Maps, and numerous Original Etchings on Stone,
THE SHORES AND CITIES OF THE BODEN SEA. By S. J. CAPPER. Demy 8vo, cloth, price 16s.
Forms an excellent guide-book to the district,

Just out, crown 8vo, cloth, price 5s.,
HISTORY OF GERMANY, Political, Social, and Literary, brought down to the present day. By the Rev. Dr. E. CORAM BREWER, Trinity Hall, Cambridge, Author of "History of France," "Guide to Science," &c.

Just out, 13th Edition, 8vo, cloth, gilt extra, price 5s.,
THE LAWS AND PRINCIPLES OF WHIST. The Standard Work on Whist. By "CAVENDISH." Greatly Enlarged and Revised throughout.

New and Cheaper Edition, crown 8vo, price 10s. 6d.,
BILLIARDS. By J. BENNETT CHAMPION. Edited by "CAVENDISH." With upwards of 200 Illustrations.

A New and Improved Edition, cap 8vo, cloth, price 3s. 6d.,
LAWS OF SHORT WHIST, and a Treatise on the Game. By JAMES CLAY.

THE NEW FASHION-BOOK for 1881.
"It is a complete index to the Fashionable Novelties of the day, furnishing Made-up Costumes of all that is choicest and newest."—Morning Post.
"The Manual for the Current Season has just appeared, and will prove useful to those who desire to be au courant with the latest modes. The Illustrations comprise—Travelling, Walking, Evening, Dinner, Reception Dresses, Millinery, Laces, and Children's Frocks."—The Queen.
"Contains a vast deal of valuable information to ladies on the important subject of dress; the character of materials and the varied style of dresses adapted for the present season are fully described. The Illustrations are numerous and are artistically executed."—Court Circular.
The New Number is now ready. Post-free for 12 stamps.
DEBENHAM and FREEBODY, Wigmore-street, and Welbeck-street, London, W.

Second Edition, Illustrated. In paper cover, 2s. 6d.; cloth, 3s. 6d.,
FANCY DRESSES DESCRIBED; or, What to Wear at Fancy Balls. By ARDERN HOLT.
"What to wear at a fancy ball is often a question of momentous interest, and it is answered in every particular by a little book called 'Fancy Dresses Described.'"—Daily Chronicle.
"The descriptions of toilettes are thoroughly practical, and the authoress may be accepted as an authority."—Court Journal.
"This little manual of What to Wear at Fancy Balls will supply a real want."—Vanity Fair.
DEBENHAM and FREEBODY, Wigmore-street and Welbeck-street; Wyman and Sons, Great Queen-street; and all Booksellers.

PRACTICAL LESSONS IN PAINTING ON CHINA, PORCELAIN, EARTHENWARE, &c. By Madame la Baronne DELAMARDELLE; from the French by GUSTAVE A. BOUVIER. 4th Edition. Price 1s.; post-free, 1s. 1d.—London: LECHERTIER, BARBE, and Co., 60, Regent-street.

ANGLO-AMERICAN METHOD; or, A New and Infallible System to LEARN in Three Months how to Read, Write, and Pronounce Correctly the FRENCH LANGUAGE. By J. DE FAILLON, B.A., K.L.H. Cloth, 8vo, pp. 791, price 8s.—London: DULAU and Co., 37, Soho-square.

Eighth Edition, cloth, post-free, 33 stamps,
DR. BARR MEADOWS on Skin Disease.
Remarks on the Abuse of Arsenic, and specifics.
London: G. HILL, 154, Westminster-road.

Third Edition, price 1s., post-free,
THE New Electrolytic Treatment of Cancer and of Simple Tumours, By C. EDGELOW, M.D., NELSON and Co., 21, Duke-street, G., ysenor-square, W.

TRADE JOURNAL FOR BUILDERS AND ENGINEERS.
BUILDING AND ENGINEERING TIMES. Saturday, Twopence. Devoted to the interests of Architects, Builders, Contractors, and Engineers. Specimen copy, post-free, 2½d. Sold by all Newsagents. Office, 1½, Aldersgate-street, London, E.C.

OREGON AND CALIFORNIA RAILROAD COMPANY.

6,000,000 dols. FIRST MORTGAGE SIX PER CENT GOLD BONDS.

SUBSCRIPTION PRICE, £200 PER 1000 dol. BOND.

THE LONDON AND SAN FRANCISCO BANK, LIMITED, are authorised by the Contractors for this Loan to receive subscriptions for the purchase of 2,345,000 dols., part of the above issue of Six Millions of Dollars of First Mortgage Bonds of the Oregon and California Railroad Company.
The remainder of the issue has already been subscribed.
The price per Bond of 1000 dols. is £200, payable as follows:—

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| £10 | 0 | 0 | on Application. |
| £50 | 0 | 0 | on Allotment. |
| £40 | 0 | 0 | on the 15th of July. |
| £40 | 0 | 0 | on the 15th of September. |
| £60 | 0 | 0 | on the 15th of December. |
| £200 | 0 | 0 | |

Interest at the rate of 6 per cent per annum will be allowed upon the above instalments from their respective due dates until January 1st, 1882, amounting to £3 12s. 0d. per bond, and paid on its delivery.
Full payment may be anticipated under discount at the rate of 6 per cent per annum either on allotment or on the fifteenth of any month.
The Loan is made in pursuance of the Plan of Reorganisation of the Company adopted at the Extraordinary General Meeting of the Bondholders' Association on May 5, 1881, and adopted and ratified by the Stockholders of the Company on May 7, 1881.
The Bonds (a copy of the Form of Bond is herewith) will be to Bearer for 1000 dols. each, payable on July 1, 1921, unless sooner drawn and redeemed, and will bear interest from Jan. 1, 1882, at six per Cent per annum, payable half-yearly on Jan. 1 and July 1, both principal and interest being payable in New York in United States gold coin of the present standard, and free from tax.
The Bonds will contain an undertaking by the Company to cancel the Bonds and Interest Coupons in London and Frankfort as they become due, at a fixed rate of exchange—viz., in London of 4s. 2d. per dollar, and in Frankfort of mark 4·25 per dollar.
They will also contain an undertaking for a cumulative Sinking Fund of 1 per cent per annum of the total amount of Bonds issued, will be provided, commencing in Jan., and will be applied in redeeming annually the Bonds drawn by lot for the purpose, at 110 per cent.
The subscribers, at the price offered, will thus obtain a fixed interest of 60 3s. per cent upon the investment, and a bonus of £2 7s. 5d. upon repayment of each Bond.
The Bonds will be secured by a First Mortgage of the Railroads of the Company, constructed, and to be constructed, the lands granted by the United States Government, and all other Real Property and future acquirements.
By the terms of the Mortgage the amount of First Mortgage Bonds to be secured by it will be limited to 20,000 dols. per mile for each mile of road now or hereafter constructed, and the proceeds received from the Contractors after discharging the existing prior lien of 2,000,000 dols. of (certain obligations) will constitute a Construction Fund in the hands of the Mortgage Trustees exclusively applicable to the completion of the Company's lines and the payment of interest, not exceeding Four Coupons per Bond, during construction.
The Mortgage will also provide that no further issue shall be made before Jan. 1, 1883.
The Mortgage will be perfected and recorded in Oregon under the direction of Messrs. Winans, Belknap, and Goddy, the Counsel to the Bank in San Francisco, and in conformity with the provisions of the plan of reorganisation, no part of the subscriptions for the Bonds now issued will be paid over to the contractors until the Bank receives from its Counsel notification that the Mortgage Deeds duly executed and recorded, and all legal formalities complied with, and until the Bonds are received and the prior lien of 2,000,000 dols. before mentioned extinguished.
According to the last Annual Report of the Manager of the Railroad Company, confirmed to date by a telegram of May 28, the property of the Company now consists of 394½ miles of standard gauge Railroad in operation and in good repair, 61 miles being laid with steel rails; twenty Locomotives, twenty-two Passenger, Baggage, and Express Cars, 381 Freight and Caboose Cars, and 6 Pay-rail Boats, the requisite minor Items of equipment and machinery, and lands granted by the United States and already surveyed for the construction of the completed lines, estimated to amount to over one million nine hundred thousand acres.
A Statement, furnished by the Vice-President of the Company, of its position and prospects, accompanies this prospectus.
The bonds are expected to be received in London in August next, and will be issued after arrival to subscribers making full payment, in exchange for their Scrip Receipts, and will be sent to them as soon as possible thereafter.
A similar Subscription is opened in Frankfort.
Allotment will be made as nearly as practicable in proportion to the amounts applied for.
The amount paid on application for bonds beyond the number allotted will be retained and applied in reduction of the amount payable on allotment. Any surplus beyond that amount will be returned to the applicant.
If any instalment of the purchase-money of Bonds allotted is not punctually paid, the amounts previously paid will be liable to forfeiture without further notice.
Copies of the Acts of Congress relating to the Company's Lines, the Plan of Reorganisation of the Company, the Annual Reports from 1875 and the Draft of the Mortgage Deed can be seen at the Office of Messrs. Bircham, Drake, and Co., 26, Austin Friars, London.
Applications for Bonds must be made in the form annexed to the Prospectus to the London and San Francisco Bank (Limited), 22, Old Broad-street, London.
June 2, 1881.

CLIFTON.—FREEHOLD FAMILY MANSION for SALE, situated on the boundary of the celebrated BURDHAM DOWNS, with an uninterrupted view to the Sea Wall, containing entrance-hall, large drawing and dining rooms, morning-room, china pantry, library, housekeeper's-room, &c.; seven good bedrooms, store-rooms, bathroom, kitchens, larders, excellent cellarage, and the usual offices. Gas and hot and cold water are laid on all over the house. It is approached by a half-circle carriage drive, with two entrance gates. The Gardens and Lawns are about two acres in extent, and are beautifully laid out. There is also an extensive Kitchen Garden, Hothouse, Greenhouse, Fernery, and Vinery. Included in the property is a picturesque private Ravine, nearly two acres in extent, and approached by winding steps and terraces from the grounds. The Clifton-down station is within half a mile, and the meets of the Beaufort and Berkeley Hunts are within easy distance. Further particulars, a photographed view and plan, may be obtained from Messrs. TRIBE, CLARKE, and CO., at their offices, 2, Moorgate-street-buildings, London, E.C., Bristol, Cardiff, Swansea, and Newport, Mon.

GENUINE DUBLIN WHISKY.
THE MOST WHOLESOME OF ALL SPIRITS.
DUBLIN WHISKY, Distilled by Messrs. JOHN JAMESON and SON, GEORGE ROE and CO., WILLIAM JAMESON and CO., and JOHN POWER and SON, can be obtained in Wood by wholesale merchants and dealers, direct from their respective distilleries.

SCHWEITZER'S COCOATINA.
Anti-Dyspeptic Cocoa or Chocolate Powder.
Guaranteed Pure Soluble Cocoa, with excess of the extracted. Four times the strength of Cocoa Thickened yet Weakened with Arrowroot, Starch, &c.
The faculty pronounce it the most nutritious, perfectly digestive Beverage for "BREAKFAST, LUNCHEON, or SUPPER." Keeps in all Climates. Requires no Cooking. A teaspoonful to Breakfast Cup, costing less than a halfpenny. Samples gratis.
In Air-Tight Tins, at 1s. 6d., 3s., 5s., 9s., by Chemists and Grocers.
H. SCHWEITZER and CO., 10, Adam-street, London, W.C.

CHOCOLAT MENIER.
Awarded the GRAND
DIPLOMA OF HONOUR.

CHOCOLAT MENIER, in ½lb. and ¼lb. Packets.
For
BREAKFAST and SUPPER.

CHOCOLAT MENIER.—Awarded Twenty Eight
PRIZE MEDALS.
Consumption annually exceeds 18,000,000 lbs.

CHOCOLAT MENIER. Paris, London, New York.
Sold Everywhere.

ROBERT ROBERTS AND CO.'S CELEBRATED TEAS.
TWELVE POUNDS AND UPWARDS CARRIAGE PAID.
Samples and Price-lists free by post.
Queen Insurance-buildings, Liverpool. ESTABLISHED 1860.
No agents.
All communications and orders direct.

DINNEFORD'S MAGNESIA.
The best remedy for Acidity of the Stomach, Heartburn, Headache, Gout, and Indigestion, and safest aperient for delicate constitutions, Ladies and Children. Of all Chemists.

PETER ROBINSON'S
COURT AND GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
REGENT-STREET.

FAMILY BEREAVEMENTS.
Upon Receipt of Letter or Telegram
PETER ROBINSON'S EXPERIENCED DRESSMAKERS and MILLINERS TRAVEL to ALL PARTS of the COUNTRY (no matter the distance) FREE OF EXPENSE for PURCHASERS, with Dresses, Mantles, Millinery, and a full assortment of MADE-UP ARTICLES of the best and most suitable description. Also Materials by the Yard, and supplied at the same VERY REASONABLE PRICES as if Purchased at the Warehouse in "REGENT-STREET."
Mourning for Servants at unexceptionally low rates, at a great saving to large or small families.
Funerals Conducted in Town or Country at Stated Charges.
Address 256 to 262, Regent-street, London.
PETER ROBINSON'S.

THE BEST CRAPES,
THAT WILL NOT SPOT WITH RAIN.
Special qualities finished by the manufacturers in this desirable manner solely to the order of PETER ROBINSON.
Good qualities from 2s. 6d. to 12s. 9d. per yard. Others, not finished by this process, from 1s. 6d. to 4s. 6d.

A SPECIAL PURCHASE.
300 PIECES OF
RICH BLACK BROCADED SILKS, very fashionable now
for Costumes and Mantles.
3s. 9d., 3s. 11d., 4s. 3d., 4s. 9d., 5s. 11d., 6s. 6d.

100 PIECES OF
BLACK SATIN IMPERIAL,
a New Make of Satin,
Rich in appearance,
and wears better than any other silk.
5s. 6d., and up to 10s. 3d.

BLACK SATIN MERVEILLEUX,
new this Season.
3s. 6d., 4s. 11d., 5s. 3d., 6s. 6d.

BLACK SATIN DE LYON,
a good useful Silk, for Hard Wear,
3s. 6d., 4s. 11d., 5s. 11d., 6s. 6d.

BLACK DUCHESS SATIN,
at 5s. 6d., 6s. 6d., 7s. 6d.;
Magnificent qualities at 7s. 6d. and 10s. 6d.

BLACK SATINS (Cotton Backs),
1s. 11d., 2s. 6d., 2s. 11d., 3s. 11d.

BLACK BROCADED VELVETS,
5s. 3d., 6s. 11d., 8s. 9d., 10s. 9d.

BLACK TWILLED SILKS, for Summer Wear, at 3s. 6d., and above.

BLACK SURAT SILKS, with White Floral Designs, 2s. 11d., 3s. 6d., 3s. 11d.

COSTUMES in SILK, SATIN, and BROCADE.
Facsimiles of Expensive Paris Models at 4½ guineas and up to 20 guineas.
Materials for Making Included.
For Patterns of the above, Please write to—
PETER ROBINSON'S, REGENT-STREET,
Nos. 256 to 262.

NICHOLSON'S
NEW SUMMER SAMPLES.
Patterns post-free.
FRENCH CASHMERES, BEIGE
SERGES, HERRING-BONE and MILAN STRIPES,
and all the Newest Materials in the most beautiful colours.

NICHOLSON'S
NEW WASHING FABRICS.
Patterns post-free.
FRENCH SATTEENS, CAMBRICS,
OATMEAL CLOTH, BRILLANETTE, &c.,
in every new and tasteful design.

NICHOLSON'S
NEW SILKS.
Patterns post-free.
PLUSHES, VELVETS, SATINS,
BROCHES, SATIN DE LYONS, and
PLAIN LYONS GROS GRAIN,
in every fashionable shade.

D. NICHOLSON and CO.,
50 to 53, ST. PAUL'S-CHURCHYARD, LONDON.
SOLE LESSEES OF THE COSTUME COURT, CRYSTAL PALACE.

FASHION and ECONOMY.
Engravings and Patterns free.
ÆSTHETIC, RECHERCHÉ, and LADYLIKE COSTUMES.
The Marvel Costume, the Rosalind, Olivette, Dudley, and others.
Pompadour, Watteau, Princess, Morning, and Tea Gowns, 21s. 6d. to 10s. 6d.
All the New Mantles, from 12s. 9d. to 5 guineas.

FASHION and ECONOMY.
RICH SILKS, VELVETS, VELVETEENS.
Magnificent Black Satin Brocade Silks, 4s. 6d. to 6s. 6d. yard; 3 60 yards Job Lots ditto, 1s. 11½d.; Washing and Pompadour Silks, lowest prices. Patterns free.—198, Regent-street.

DRESS and FASHION.
ÆSTHETIC, POMPADOUR, Louis XIII., Queen Anne, Arabesque, Alsatian, and other Cambrics, Sateens, and Ginghams, from 8½d. yard. Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP.

FASHION and ECONOMY.
BAKER and CRISP'S FRENCH BEIGES, 8½d.; Ecarté Cloths, 6½d.; Shepherd Checks, 8½d.; Foule Cashmeres, Vicunas, and 100 other Fabrics, from 8½d. yard. Patterns free.

KID GLOVES.—100 doz. real Alpine Kid, all colours and sizes, two-button, quarter doz., 3s. 6d., free for stamps. 100 doz. two first, six button black Kid, 1s. 8d., free for stamps. Four-button black and tan best Swede and Mosquetaire, 2s. 6d.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

NOVELTIES for LADIES' MORNING DRESSES.—French Sateens, 8½d.; Pompadours, 7½d.; Prints, 6½d.; Linen Lawns, 3½d. Patterns free.
JOHN HOOPER, 32, Oxford-street, W.

NEW SUMMER DRESSES.—New Heather Tweed Beiges, 7½d.; New Granit Merveilleux, 6½d. Patterns free.—JOHN HOOPER, 32, Oxford-street, W.

ELECTRICITY IS LIFE.
PULVERMACHER'S "GALVANISM, NATURE'S CHIEF RESTORER OF IMPAIRED VITAL ENERGY."
In this Pamphlet the most reliable proofs are given of the vast and wonderful curative powers of Pulvermacher's Patent Galvanic Chain-bands, Belts, &c., in Rheumatic, Nervous, and Functional Disorders. Sent post-free for three stamps on application to
J. L. PULVERMACHER'S GALVANIC ESTABLISHMENT,
194, Regent-street, London, W.

WHAT IS YOUR CREST and WHAT IS YOUR MOTTO? Send name and county to CULLETON'S Heraldic Office, Plain Sketch, 3s. 6d.; coloured, 7s. The arms of man and wife blended. Crest engraved on seals, rings, books, and steel dies, 5s. 6d. Gold seal, with crest, 25s. Solid Gold Ring, Dexter, Half-marked, with crest, 42s. Manual of Heraldry, 400 engravings, 3s. 9d.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

CULLETON'S GUINEA BOX of STATIONERY contains a Ream of the very best Paper and 500 Envelopes, all stamped in the most elegant way with Crest and Motto, Monogram, or Address, and the engraving of Steel Die included. Sent to any part for P.O. order.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

VISITING CARDS, by CULLETON.
Fifty best quality, 2s. 6d., post-free, including the Engraving of Copper-plate. Wedding Cards, 50 each, or Plain Sealed Envelopes, with Maiden Name in, 6d.—T. CULLETON, Seal Engraver, 25, Cranbourn-street, St. Martin's-lane, W.C.

THE RACES and FÊTES.—Ladies, and all exposed to Sun and Dust, will find ROWLANDS' KALYDOR most Cooling and Refreshing to the Face. It eradicates all Tan, Sunburn, Freckles, &c., and produces a Beautiful and Delicate Complexion.

ROWLANDS' ODONTO is the purest and most fragrant dentifrice ever made. All dentists will allow that neither soaps nor pastes can possibly be as efficacious for polishing the teeth and keeping them sound and white as a pure and non-gritty tooth powder; such Rowlands' Odonto has always proved itself to be. Ask any Dealer in Perfumery for Rowlands' Articles.

PIESSE and LUBIN.
Oposponax, Jockey Club, Patchouly, Frangipanni, Kiss-Me-Quick, White Rose, and 1000 others, from every flower that breathes a fragrance. 2s. 6d. each, or three Bottles in a Case, 7s. The above Sweet Scents in Sachet Powder, 1s. 6d. each, can be forwarded by post. Sold by the fashionable Druggists and Perfumers in all parts of the world.
2, NEW BOND-STREET, LONDON.

TURKISH PASTILS.
"Through all my travels few things astonished me more than seeing the beauties of the harem smoking Narghilés at Stamboul. After smoking, a sweet aromatic incense or pastil is used by them, which is said to impart an odour of flowers to the breath. I have never seen these breath lozenges but once in Europe, and that was at PIESSE and LUBIN'S shop in Bond-street."—Lady W. Montagu.
In Boxes, 2s.; by post, 2s. 2d.
2, NEW BOND-STREET, LONDON.

BREIDENBACH'S SACHETS.
Wood Violet, White Rose, Stephanotis, Maréchale, Eau Bouquet, Musk, Ylang Ylang, Opoponax, Millefleurs, Chypre. In paper envelopes, 1s. each; in silk bags, 1s. each; in satin cushions, 2s. 6d. each. Sold by all Perfumers and Fancy Dealers, or post-free from the Makers, 157a, New Bond-street, London, W

VALUABLE DISCOVERY for the HAIR.
If your hair is turning grey, or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White Hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots where the glands are not decayed. "The Mexican Hair Renewer" is sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere, at 3s. 6d. per Bottle.

FLORILINE. For the Teeth and Breath.
Is the best Liquid Dentifrice in the world; it thoroughly cleanses partially-decayed teeth from all parasites or living animalculæ, leaving them pearly white, imparting a delightful fragrance to the breath. The Fragrant Floriline removes instantly all odours arising from a foul stomach or tobacco smoke, being partly composed of honey, acids, and extracts of sweet herbs and plants. It is perfectly harmless, and delicious as sherry. Sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere, at 2s. 6d. per Bottle.

SEASONABLE DELICACY.
BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR
AS BLANCMANGE, WITH STEWED FRUIT.

SEASONABLE DELICACY.
BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR
AS A CUSTARD, WITH STEWED FRUIT.

SEASONABLE DELICACY.
BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR
AS BAKED PUDDING, WITH STEWED FRUIT.

THROAT AFFECTIONS and HOARSENESS.—All suffering from Irritation of the Throat and Hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES. These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable Chemists in this country, at 1s. 1½d. per Box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections caused by them too soon, or neglected, frequently find to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN and SONS, Boston, U.S. European Depôt, 23, Farringdon-road, London.

TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON,
For CONSTIPATION, BILE, HEADACHE.
TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON,
A LAXATIVE AND REFRESHING FRUIT LOZENGE.
UNIVERSALLY PRESCRIBED BY THE FACULTY.
TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON.
2s. 6d. per Box, stamp included.
Sold by all Chemists and Druggists.
Wholesale—E. GRILLON, 69, Queen-street, London, E.C.

HAY FEVER CURED BY
DR. DUNBAR'S ALKARAM, or
Anti-Catarrh Smelling-Bottle,
ALKARAM. HAY FEVER.
ALKARAM. HAY FEVER.
ALKARAM. HAY FEVER.
If inhaled on the first symptoms, ALKARAM will at once arrest them, and cure severe cases in half an hour. Sold by all Chemists, 2s. 9d. a Bottle. Address, Dr. Dunbar, care of Messrs. F. Newbery and Sons, 1, King Edward-st., E.C.

"FOR THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."
CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE is warranted to cleanse the Blood from all impurities, from whatever cause arising. For Scrofula, Scurvy, Skin and Blood Diseases, Its effects are marvellous. In Bottles, 2s. 9d. each, and in cases, containing six times the quantity, 11s. each, of all Chemists. Sent by any address for 30 or 132 stamps, of the Proprietor, F. J. CLARKE, Chemist, Lincoln.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and OINTMENT.
The Pills purify the blood, correct all disorders of the liver, stomach, kidneys, and bowels. The Ointment is unrivalled in the cure of bad legs, old wounds, gout, and rheumatism.

BLAIR'S GOUT PILLS,
THE GREAT
REMEDY FOR GOUT AND RHEUMATISM.
Sold by all Chemists, at 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. per Box.

ALLEN AND HANBURYS'
"PERFECTED" COD-LIVER OIL
is free from disagreeable taste and smell, and causes no nausea or after-taste. Of all Chemists, in capsuled bottles only.

"KEATING'S POWDER" kills BUGS, Moths, Fleas, Beetles, and all Insects (perfectly unrivalled). Harmless to everything but Insects. Tins, 6d. and 1s.

WEATHER-LORE OF THE CLOUDS.

The prognostications gathered from the clouds are very extensive, and in many cases may be regarded as fairly reliable indications of the state of the weather. Indeed, our agricultural peasantry, whose employment naturally keeps them much out in the open air, pay special attention to the appearance of the clouds, forming their calculations as to the probable likelihood of its being wet or fine from the various peculiarities which these so-called "weather guides" assume. Thus, according to a maxim contained in our old English almanacks—

> If woolly fleeces spread the heavenly way,
> Be sure no rain disturbs the summer's day:

a piece of weather wisdom which corresponds with the shepherd of Banbury's observations, that if the "clouds are small and round, like a dappley-grey, with a north wind, there will be fair weather for two or three days." In some parts of France, however, it is said that when the sky is dappled, if it does not rain at once, it will not be long in coming. And Virgil, it may be remembered, in his "Georgics" (I., 397), regards it as a sign of rain whenever it happens that

> Tenuis—lanæ per cœlum vellera ferri.

Scattered streaks of clouds, however, in the south-west are generally considered to foretell rain. Thus, in St. Luke's Gospel (xii. 54), our Lord, alluding to this notion says:—"When ye see a cloud rise out of the west, straightway ye say there cometh a shower, and so it is." Mr. Inwards in his little book on "Weather Lore" (1870), says:—"When scattered patches or streaks of nimbus come driving up from the south-west they are called by the sailors 'Prophet Clouds,' and indicate wind." Small light clouds in the south-west are said to foreshow windy, gusty weather; and, according to a well-known saying in Surrey, "a bench or bank of clouds in the west indicates rain." Again, various omens are drawn from the colour and shape of the clouds. Thus, an old proverb informs us that "red clouds in the east, rain the next day;" and another adage reminds us that "Dusky or tarnish silver-coloured clouds indicate hail." It is almost needless, however, to mention that black clouds foretell rain; a graphic allusion to which Shakspeare makes in the "Tempest" (ii. 2):—"And another storm brewing; I hear it sing i' the wind: yond' same black cloud, yond' huge one, looks like a foul bumbard that would shed his liquor . . . yond' same cloud cannot chuse but fall by pailfuls." A small fast-increasing cloud in violent motion seen in the Tropics, is called the "Bull's-eye," and generally precedes the most terrible hurricanes. Fitzroy says that "light delicate tints or colours, with soft, undefined forms of clouds, indicate and accompany fine weather; but unusual or gaudy hues, with hard, definitely outlined clouds, foretell rain and probably strong wind."

Passing on, in the next place, to the shapes of clouds, we are told that—

> When clouds appear like rocks and towers,
> The Earth 's refreshed with frequent showers;

a notion which the Shepherd of Banbury thus explains:—"The reason of this seems to be that the watery vapours are then condensed, or condensing, which gives them this rough and ragged appearance; and as soon as the thin films that retain the water are broke by this pressure, these heavy clouds descend in rain." In "Antony and Cleopatra" (iv. 12) Shakspeare seems to speak of this appearance:—

> Sometime we see a cloud that 's dragonish;
> A vapour, sometime, like a bear, or lion,
> A tower'd citadel, a pendant rock,
> A forked mountain, or blue promontory
> With trees upon 't, that nod unto the world,
> And mock our eyes with air. . . .
> That which is now a horse, even with a thought,
> The rack dislimbs; and makes it indistinct,
> As water is in water.

Some clouds are called "fish-shaped," from their peculiar shape. Thus, small patches of cloud increasing from below are nicknamed "a mackerel sky," and according to a popular rhyme—

> Mackerel sky and mares' tails
> Make lofty ships carry low sails.

A sky of this kind is said to denote fair weather for that day, but rain and wind a day or two after. In Buckinghamshire, says Mr. Inwards, "these clouds are called 'packet bags,' and are said to be packets of rain soon to be opened." Again, when a long stripe of cloud stretches across the sky east and west it is popularly styled a salmon, sometimes "a Noah's Ark," and is supposed to be a certain sign of a storm. In Scotland, says Mr. Chambers in his "Popular Rhymes of Scotland," certain light kinds of clouds are thus denominated—

> Hen-scarts and filly-tails
> Make lofty ships wear low sails;

from their supposed resemblance to the scratches of hens on the ground and the tails of young mares. Sailors have a similar proverb in reference to the same cloud—

> If clouds look as if scratched by a hen,
> Get ready to reef your top sails then.

Numerous odd nicknames have been at different times assigned to the clouds, many of which are curious. Thus, to quote one or two instances:—Certain clouds are termed "Wool-Bags," when "they increase upwards from a horizontal base;" others are styled "Goats' hairs;" and in Yorkshire a cloud, known as the "Helm Cloud," hovering about the hill-tops for a day or two, is said to "presage wind and rain." There are various sayings relating to the clouds prevalent in most mountainous and hilly districts. A well-known couplet tells us that—

> When the clouds are upon the hills,
> They 'll come down by the mills.

Space will, however, only permit us to give one or two illustrations of the rhymes relating to special localities. Thus, in Worcestershire, it is said:—

> When Breedon Hill puts on his hat,
> Ye men of the vale beware of that.

A Lancashire rhyme is much to the same effect:—

> If Rivving Pike do wear a hood,
> Be sure the day will ne'er be good.

And to mention, lastly, a well-known one in Scotland, we are warned how—

> When Cheviot ye see put on his cap
> Of rain ye 'll have a wee bit drap.

Among the very many other items of folklore that have clustered round the clouds, we are told that when they "appear high in the sky in their white trains" wind, and probably rain, will follow. Cloudy mornings are said to produce fine, clear evenings; and if in hot weather the strata of clouds appear to move in different directions, they indicate thunder.

According also to the Shepherd of Banbury "if you see a cloud rise against the wind or side wind, when that cloud comes up to you, the wind will blow the same way that the cloud came;" and, to quote a further illustration of his weather lore, he tells us "that in a summer evening large black clouds are frequently melted into dews."

BOOKS OF TRAVEL.

Miss Isabella Bird, the authoress of well-known pleasant books concerning the Sandwich Islands, the Fiji Islands, and the Rocky Mountains of North America, opens to the gratification of her readers' curiosity some Unbeaten Tracks in Japan (Murray, publisher). The two volumes, which we have before noticed incidentally, are full of quite new descriptive matter; for Miss Bird, whose enterprise and fortitude in laborious travelling puts many of the hardier sex to shame, chose a different route from that of preceding tourists in the Mikado's island realm. From Tokio or Tokiyo, formerly called Yedo, the eastern capital of Japan, she boldly pushed northward, traversing the length of the large island of Nipon, and thence crossing a strait to Yezo, the northern isle, upon which the treaty port of Hakodate is situated. Her description of the famous shrines and sepulchres of Nikko, where she sojourned many days, has been anticipated by other travelling writers; one of the most pleasing of those was Lord George Campbell. Beyond that place, she took up entirely fresh ground of observation; and we are here first made acquainted with the town and district of Wakamatzu, on the lake of Iniwashiro, the beautiful Tsugawa river, the seaport and English Mission Station of Niigata, on the west coast, and the charming plain of Yoneczawa, fertile, populous, and thriving, with Kubota and Aomori, maritime towns of considerable traffic. Miss Bird rode on horseback, accompanied only by a native servant-boy, and few ladies could have attempted such a course of travel; but, from her well-known performances in other parts of the world, the successful accomplishment of this journey cannot excite much surprise. In the second volume, beginning with her account of Yezo and its inhabitants, including the Ainos, a gentle race of aboriginal savages under Japanese rule, the reader will find much curious information not even hinted at in ordinary books on Japan. On Sept. 14, 1879, the authoress returned by sea from Hakodate to Yokohama, and became again the guest of Sir Harry and Lady Parkes at the British Legation. Her remaining days in Japan, and the latter chapters of this volume, furnish us with a good deal of useful and interesting knowledge concerning the present state of that country; the modern aspect of its principal cities, with the remarkable change in social customs of late years, the new institutions of government, and the introduction of European arts and sciences. Precise and authentic statistical details are given upon these subjects, as well upon those of finance and commerce. Miss Bird's work is altogether worthy of being accepted as a supplement to that of Sir E. J. Reed, which was reviewed in this Journal a short time ago.

Another not less accomplished lady traveller and writer is Miss C. F. Gordon-Cumming, whose first beautiful volume on the Himalayas won our admiration when it came out. Her new book, At Home in Fiji, is now published by Messrs. Blackwood. These two volumes are a collection of letters, written to friends during a sojourn in Fiji of about two years. The writer being an artist, the illustrations are facsimiles of her own drawings by one of the new solar processes. The principal feature on the cover of the volumes is a representation of a "cannibal fork," such as is used only for eating human flesh. We are told that meat of this kind was never touched with the fingers, as it is supposed to produce a peculiar skin disease; but why it is produced no disease on the internal organs of those who feasted on it is not explained. The Fijians seem to have esteemed human flesh above all other; and it was their custom to eat all their enemies whom they killed in battle. They had ovens for the purpose of cooking "bokola," the name given to this cannibal food. It required a peculiar kind of vegetable, either the Solanum Anthropophagorum, or the Irophis Anthropophagorum, the botanical names telling of their use. These condiments were deemed as essential by the Fijian gourmand as mint-sauce is to lamb with us. The greater part of the Fijians have now ceased to be anthropophagi, or cannibals, a beneficial change which has resulted from their conversion to Christianity. They have also given up the custom of polygamy; and, according to Miss Gordon Cumming, they are now a very well-behaved people. She seems to have travelled a great deal among them, often alone, and she seems to have done so in the most perfect security. Not only did she run no chance of becoming "bokola" herself, but, although she had many tempting articles about her, nothing was ever stolen. This speaks much for the Fijians. This state of things is due to the Wesleyans, who have nine hundred churches in the islands, regarding which Miss Gordon-Cumming gives a great deal of most interesting information, for she made many excursions with Mr. Langham and his wife when that gentleman visited the various districts to examine the teachers and look after all the interests of the Wesleyan missions. "At Home in Fiji" is full of all sorts of information, and is quite as interesting to the archæologist as to the missionary. Miss Gordon-Cumming has travelled a great deal in other countries, and this makes her an acute observer, and gives her the power of making comparisons, a qualification which does not belong to those who have only visited one country. The descriptions of the beautiful scenery of the Fijian group of islands will be found most delightful reading.

The East Central African Expedition, sent out by the Royal Geographical Society in 1878, was unhappily attended with the loss of Mr. Keith Johnston, son of the well-known geographer of Edinburgh, and a scientific traveller of high promise. Upon his death, at Bebeho-beho, on June 28, 1879, six weeks after starting from the seacoast at Dar-es-Salaam, Mr. Joseph Thomson, the geologist, became leader of the party. Two volumes, To the Central African Lakes and Back, are now published by Messrs. Sampson Low and Co. They give us Mr. Thomson's complete narrative of the entire expedition. It reached Lake Nyassa from the north, proceeded thence north-west to Lake Tanganyika, and passed up the western side of the latter as far as the river Lukuga, described by Captain V.L. Cameron and subsequently by Mr. H. M. Stanley. The Urua country was further explored, and Mr. Thomson's return journey traversed the region east of Lake Tanganyika, visiting also the smaller Lake Leopold, which had not been examined before. On June 10, 1880, after travelling fourteen months, over a distance, inland and back to the coast with many turnings and windings, of not less than five thousand miles, the author of this interesting book arrived at the port of Bagamoyo, opposite Zanzibar, the customary rendezvous of East African travellers. His style and tone of writing are pleasant, and the incidents which he relates are both entertaining, and very characteristic of that kind of experience, already made somewhat familiar to English readers by the examples of Livingstone, Stanley, Elton, and others who have explored the lake region below the Equator. Mr. Thomson had, in general, none but friendly and kindly relations with the natives, owing to his tact and presence of mind, as well as to his frank way of treating them; he went among them unarmed, and showed no suspicion of them, which seems to be the safest course. In one instance, however, while trying to get through Urua to Webb's Lualaba, he encountered much annoyance and extortion, with menaces of violence, from the chief and people of that country, and was obliged to turn back, losing some portion of his goods, but glad to escape an unequal fight. Mr. Thomson's views of the prospects of commercial intercourse and colonisation in the interior of Africa do not agree with the flattering visions that have been displayed by several recent travellers. His testimony, as a scientific geologist and mineralogist, forbids us to reckon upon the opening of rich stores of metallic ore, though copper is known to exist at Katanga; the supply of ivory will not last many years, and there is no other article which it will pay to bring down to the coast. The unsuccessful Belgian Expedition, which he met with on his return journey, is noticed in these volumes, and they furnish the latest authentic particulars of the condition of East Central Africa.

A BIT OF LOWESTOFT CHINA.

I wonder why the Lowestoft shopkeepers deal in such diverse articles in the same establishment! Thus, when I went into the best-looking "Artists' Repository" in High-street, with the intention of purchasing a sketching-block, I found that one half of the shop was devoted to the sale of Ironmongery. Perhaps a descendant of Quintin Matsys presides over the combination of art and ironwork. I went into a Grocer's, and he offered me toys, tobacco, and note-paper. I betook myself to the Fishmonger, and he wanted to sell me oil-paintings and old china. I might have said to the man, "Excellent well! you are a Fishmonger!' What makes you also a vender of pictures and crockery?" As there was more than one Fishmonger who did this, it puzzled me to find any connection between Lowestoft turbot and Lowestoft china. They seemed more desirous to sell the latter than the former; perhaps it was more profitable to do so.

I walked into one of these shops, where the fresh fish were lying on the marble slabs; and on the walls were hung oil-paintings, boldly ascribed to masters who were not quite so fresh as the fish. On a side table and on shelves were ranged numerous tea cups and saucers, plates and dishes, candlesticks and vases, and other articles in china. The proprietor of the shop was at once down upon me. "Any fish this morning, Sir? Fine turbot, soles, salmon, or whiting? Oh, I see as it 's the china your 're a-looking at. You 've got an eye for china, I see, Sir, and know a good specimen when you see it. All these are real Lowestoft, as you 'll know without me telling you; and you won't find such a collection anywhere else in the town. I got 'em straight from the private parties as has had 'em in their own families, till obligated to part with 'em through death or other nat'ral causes, and they 're all as genuine in their way as them turbots. You won't find any Brummagem shams here. Can I sell you a specimen, Sir?"

I had taken one in my hand, and was examining it. The Fishmonger evidently knew something about his business as a vender of china.

"Ah, I see, Sir," he said, "you reckernise the peculiar pink and them roses in festoons. No, Sir; it 's no use your turning it up; you won't find any marks on the Lowestoft china. You knows 'em by their style and their hornamentation; and sometimes there are ciphers on 'em, and coats o' harms, and hinscriptions to the parties as they was given to. Here 's a dessert-plate! That 's a real beauty, that is, and fit for any nobleman's collection. P'raps I'm haddressing a Lordship?"

Whether this was thrown out as a feeler or as a gratuitous compliment I do not know, but no doubt it was all done in the way of trade. I shook my head, as a disclaimer of my being a member of the Upper House.

"No offence, Sir!" said the Fishmonger; "but we get a many Lordships in Lowestoft during the season, and they 're all partial to china. They 're fond of dealing with me, as they know that my specimens are to be depended on. You couldn't get a better 'un than that dessert-plate. Look at its morone trellis-work and its golden diaper! There 's delicacy and finish! It must have taken the hartist weeks to have done it; and you shall have it for a guinea. It 's as cheap as dirt for the money; and if you don't have it, it won't be long before some noble swell will."

I said that I did not wish to deprive the noble swells of its possession, and that my own collection of old china was chiefly of the willow-pattern order.

"Well, then," said the Fishmonger, "if you won't take advantage of the dessert-plate—and it 's such a bargain as you 'll never see again—will this little teacup and saucer tempt you? You can have it for the low figure of fifteen-and-six—or say, fifteen for ready money. Here you get the roses, and the ruby border, and the green leaves. No! Well, then, what do you say to this little vase? No, it aint Horiental, though frequently mistook for it; the moulding there was all done in Lowestoft. It 's hunfortunate that it 's a bit chipped in the lip and handle, and them raised flowers have got a bit damaged, or it 'd be worth a guinea and a half at the very least. But, seeing as there 's that flaw in it, I 'll only ask the odd half-guinea. The flaw 'll never be seen, if you set it up on a bracket. With a bit of red velvet behind it, it 'd look beautiful and quite perfect."

Here he had to "survey mankind from china to" an old gentleman who was desirous to know if the turbot was quite fresh; and, after thinking that a homily on make-believes and pretending-to-be-better-than-you-are might be preached from the Fishmonger's concluding words, I strolled on to the next fish-shop, there to lounge away another ten minutes over more oil paintings and china.

The Lowestoft china, whether the ware is of hard or soft paste, is highly valued by collectors, and is distinguished by great beauty of execution and delicacy of design. It originated in the discovery of some fine clay, or earth, on the estate of Mr. Hewlin Luson, of Gunton Hall, near Lowestoft, who, despite many difficulties, chiefly arising from the jealous animosity of other manufacturers, set up his kiln and furnace in the year 1756; and in the following year it was fully established by Messrs. Walker, Browne, Aldred, and Rickman. The sand is very similar to that used in the Delft ware and the Worcester china. The manufactory was closed in 1802, when some of the best workmen were transferred to Worcester. Among the chief artists of the Lowestoft ware were Powle, Rose (a French refugee), Robert Allen, J. Wager, Brameld, and Thomas Curtis. Admirable specimens of the ware are preserved in the collection of Messrs. Sengo, Norman, Mills, &c.

Lady Smith (widow of the distinguished botanist, Sir James Smith, F.L.S.), died at Lowestoft, in 1876, at the well-attested age of 104, and there is a memorial window to her in the parish church of St. Margaret. She possessed, at the time of her death, some porcelain jars and figures that she had purchased at the factory. A portion of that factory still stands, but it forms part of a maltkiln; and the place (in the Denes) where the clay was prepared may still be seen, together with the fine spring of water.

CUTHBERT BEDE.

The Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress on Thursday week entertained at a luncheon at the Mansion House a number of the representatives of the Society of Friends who are now assembled at their yearly meeting in the City of London.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 2195.—VOL. LXXVIII. SATURDAY, JUNE 11, 1881. WITH SUPPLEMENT | SIXPENCE. By Post, 6½D.

"MORNING." BY L. ROSSI.

AT THE GALLERY OF MESSRS. A. TOOTH AND SONS, HAYMARKET.—SEE PAGE 574

BIRTHS.

On the 4th inst., at Birkenhead, the wife of Alex. Sinclair, of a daughter.

On the 6th inst., at 24, Holland Villas-road, Kensington, the wife of Joseph Miller, of a son.

MARRIAGES.

On the 2nd inst., at the parish church, Himley, Staffordshire (by the Rev. J. H. Churchill Baxter, M.A., brother of the bridegroom, assisted by the Rev. Edward Davies, M.A., Rector of the parish, and the Rev. J. T. Thorn, M.A., Vicar of Stoneleigh), Charles Albert, third son of the late Rev. J. A. Baxter, Vicar of Coseley, to Beatrice Anita, second daughter of Henry Sparrow, Esq., of Himley House, Himley. No cards.

On the 4th inst., at St. George's, Hanover-square, by the Rev. William Walsh, M.A., Rector of Great Tey, Essex, assisted by the Rev. Theobald W. Church, M.A., Lieutenant-Colonel Edward Hawker Helyar, third son of the late Rector of Sutton Bingham, Somersetshire, to Arabella Maria Helyar, of Bridge House, Dawlish, daughter of the Rev. Theobald Walsh, and widow of Edwin Grove Helyar, Esq.

DEATHS.

On the 2nd inst., Montagu Capel, youngest son of John Capel Phillips, of The Heath House, Tean, Staffordshire, aged 5 years.

On May 2, at Dehradum, N.W.P., India, in his 68th year, Louis James Piesse, second son of the late C. A. J. Piesse, Esq., many years of the War Office.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING JUNE 18.

SUNDAY, JUNE 12.

Trinity Sunday.
Full Moon, 6.56 a.m. Total eclipse of the moon, invisible in England.
Morning Lessons: Isaiah vi. 1–11; Rev. i. 1–9. Evening Lessons: Gen. xviii. or i. and ii. 1–4; Eph. iv. 1–17, or Matt. iii.
Whitehall, 11 a.m., Rev. W. F. Erskine Enollys; 3 p.m., Rev. W. Hutton.
St. Paul's Cathedral, 10.30 a.m. (the Bishop of London's Ordination), Rev. Prebendary Burrows; 3.15 p.m., Bishop Piers Claughton; 7 p.m., Dean Goulburn.
Westminster Abbey, 10 a.m., 3 p.m., and 7 p.m.
Savoy, 11.30 a.m., Rev. Henry White, the Chaplain; 7 p.m., Rev. Canon H. M. Birch.

MONDAY, JUNE 13.

Geographical Society, 8.30 p.m.
Society of Engineers, 7.30 p.m.
Royal Harwich Yacht Club, annual regatta (two days).

TUESDAY, JUNE 14.

Horticultural Society, 11 a.m.; promenade, 4 p.m.
Trinity Law Sittings begin.
Musical Union, 3.15 p.m.
Medical and Chirurgical Society, 8.30.
Photographic Society, 8 p.m. (paper by Mr. F. Galton).
Anthropological Society, 8 p.m.
Colonial Institute, 8 p.m.
Ascot Races.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 15.

Meteorological Society, 7 p.m.
Botanic Society, evening fête and exhibition, 8—12 p.m.
Caledonian Asylum, anniversary festival, Freemasons' Tavern (the Earl of Aberdeen in the chair).
Dialectical Society, 8 p.m. (Mr. E. B. Aveling on Evolution).
Thorne Agricultural Show.
Essex Agricultural Society Show, Southend-on-Sea (two days).

THURSDAY, JUNE 16.

Corpus Christi.
Trinity Term ends.
Royal Society, 4.30 p.m.
Historical Society, 8 p.m.
Numismatic Society, anniversary, 7.
Linnean Society, 8 p.m. (Surgeon-Major Aitchison on the Flora of the Kuram Valley, Afghanistan; papers by Mr. H. M'Lachlan and Professor Count Ficalho and Mr. W. P. Hiern).
Ascot Races: Cup day.
Chemical Society, 8 p.m. (papers by Messrs W. H. Perkin, H. E. Armstrong, G. S. Johnson, and S. Pickering).
Antiquaries' Society, 8.30 p.m.
Zoological Society's Gardens, Davis Lecture, 5 p.m. (Professor Flower on Whales).
The Judges entertained by the Lord Mayor.
Yachting: Norfolk and Suffolk, Nore, and Temple Clubs.

FRIDAY, JUNE 17.

Society for Propagation of the Gospel, 3 p.m.
United Service Institution, 3 p.m. (Capt. H. Watkin on Range and Position-finders).
Royal London Yacht Club, extra race.
Botanic Society, lecture, 4 p.m.
Philological Society, 8 p.m. (Mr. Herbert M. Baynes on the Psychological Method in its Application to Language, and Mr. W. R. Browne on Scottish Place-Names).

SATURDAY, JUNE 18.

Moon's last quarter, 9.18 p.m.
Battle of Waterloo, 1815.
Scottish Gathering, Stamford-bridge, 2 p.m. (in aid of the Scottish Charities).
Athletic Sports: Beckenham, Gainsborough.
Newspaper Press Fund, anniversary dinner, Willis's Rooms, 6.30 p.m. (Sir S. Northcote in the chair).
Yachting: Royal Alfred, Erith, Thames Sailing, Cheshire, Portsmouth Corinthian, and Plymouth Corinthian Clubs.

BRIGHTON.—EVERY SUNDAY, a CHEAP FIRST-CLASS TRAIN from Victoria 10.45 a.m., calling at Clapham Junction, and from London Bridge, 10.55 a.m., calling at Croydon. Day Return Tickets, 10s.

BRIGHTON. — PULLMAN DRAWING-ROOM CAR TRAINS leave Victoria for Brighton every WEEKDAY at 10.0 a.m. and 4.30 p.m., and Brighton for Victoria at 9.45 a.m. and 5.55 p.m.; also from Victoria on Sundays at 10.45, and from Brighton at 8.30 p.m.

THE GRAND AQUARIUM AT BRIGHTON.—EVERY SATURDAY, Cheap First-Class Trains from Victoria at 10.55 and 11.50 a.m., and London Bridge at 9.30 a.m. and 12.0 noon, calling at Clapham Junction and Croydon. Day Return Fare—First Class, Half-a-Guinea (including admission to the Aquarium and the Royal Pavilion Picture Gallery, Palace, and Grounds), available to return by any Train the same day, except the 5.45 p.m. Pullman Car Train.
EVERY WEDNESDAY.—Cheap Day Return Tickets to Brighton, including admission to the Aquarium, are issued from Victoria, London Bridge, and nearly all Stations.

FAMILY and TOURISTS' TICKETS are now issued, available for One Month, from London Bridge, Victoria, &c., to Portsmouth (for Southsea), Ryde, Cowes, Newport, Sandown, Shanklin, Ventnor (for Bonchurch and Freshwater), and Hayling Island.

PARIS.—SHORTEST, CHEAPEST ROUTE. Vid NEWHAVEN, DIEPPE, and ROUEN.
Cheap Express Service every Weeknight, First, Second, and Third Class.
From Victoria 7.50 p.m., and London Bridge 8.0 p.m.
Fares—Single, 30s., 24s., 18s.; Return 55s., 39s., 30s.
Powerful Paddle-steamers, with excellent Cabins, &c.
Trains run alongside Steamers at Newhaven and Dieppe.
SOUTH OF FRANCE, ITALY, SWITZERLAND, &c.
Tourists' Tickets are issued, enabling the holder To visit all the principal places of interest.

TICKETS and every information at the Brighton Company's West End General Offices, 28, Regent-circus, Piccadilly, and 8, Grand Hotel-buildings, Trafalgar-square; also at the Victoria and London Bridge Stations.
(By order) J. P. KNIGHT, General Manager.

GREAT EASTERN RAILWAY. — Seaside. TWO MONTHS RETURN TICKETS are now issued by all trains to YARMOUTH, Lowestoft, Cromer, Hunstanton, Southwold, Aldeburgh, Felixstowe, Harwich, Ipswich, Walton-on-the-Naze, and Weeley (for Clacton-on-Sea).
Friday, Saturday, and Friday or Saturday to Monday, First, Second, and Third Class Return Tickets are also issued at REDUCED FARES by all trains to Hunstanton, Cromer, Yarmouth, Lowestoft, Walton-on-the-Naze, Weeley (for Clacton-on-Sea), Ipswich, Harwich, Felixstowe, Aldeburgh, or Southwold.
London, June, 1881. WILLIAM BIRT, General Manager.

ST. JAMES'S HALL, PICCADILLY.
THE SUCCESS OF THE
MOORE and BURGESS MINSTRELS'
WHITSUNTIDE ENTERTAINMENT IS UNMISTAKABLY GREAT.
As every one of the Ten Performances given during the past week
THE HALL HAS BEEN CROWDED TO ITS UTMOST CAPACITY, and many thousands of persons have been turned away half-an-hour prior to the commencement of the performance.
THE HOLIDAY PROGRAMME will be repeated EVERY NIGHT at EIGHT.
MONDAY, WEDNESDAY, and SATURDAY, THREE and EIGHT.
Tickets and Places can be secured at Austin's Office, St. James's Hall, three weeks in advance.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Irving. On MONDAY, TUESDAY, THURSDAY, and FRIDAY, at 7.45, THE CUP; and at 9.30, THE BELLE'S STRATAGEM. Last four nights—Mr. Irving as Syrovis and Dubricourt, and Miss Ellen Terry as Camma and Letitia Hardy; Messrs. Howe, Terriss, Pinero, Elwood, Tyars, Beauvoir, Clifford, Hudson, Hardy; Messrs. Howe, Terriss, Pinero, Elwood, Tyars, Beauvoir, Clifford, Hudson, Carter; Miss Sophie Young, Miss Barnett, &c. On WEDNESDAY, at Eight o'Clock, OTHELLO—Benefit of Miss Ellen Terry—Othello, Mr. Henry Irving; Desdemona, Miss Ellen Terry. On SATURDAY, HAMLET (for Eighteen Performances). Box Office (Mr. Hurst), open Ten to Five. Seats also booked by Letter or Telegram.

MR. and MRS. GERMAN REED'S ENTERTAINMENT. CHERRY TREE FARM, a New Piece by Arthur Law; Music by Hamilton Clarke. FANCIE FAIRE 1881, a New Musical Sketch by Mr. Corney Grain; and A BRIGHT IDEA, by Arthur Law; Music by Arthur Cecil. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday, at Eight; Thursday and Saturday at Three.—ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place. Admission, 1s., 2s.; Stalls, 3s., 5s. No fees. Booking-Office open from 9 till 6.

DECORATIVE ART EXHIBITION at the New Galleries, 103, New Bond-street. Admission, 1s.; Season Tickets, 5s.

GUARDI GALLERY, 11, Haymarket.—FIFTH SUMMER EXHIBITION of PICTURES is NOW OPEN. "Temptation of St. Anthony," "Maidens at the Well," by Hermann Phillips. "Dance Macabre," by Beaillure; "The Challenge," by Domingo; and many other fine Continental Works. Admission, 1s., including Catalogue.

INSTITUTE OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS. The FORTY-SEVENTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION is now OPEN from Nine till Seven. Admission, 1s.; Catalogue, 6d.
Gallery, 53, Pall-mall. H. F. PHILLIPS, Secretary.

ROSA BONHEUR'S celebrated PICTURES, ON THE ALERT, and A FORAGING PARTY, which gained for the artist the Cross of the Order of Leopold of Belgium, at the Antwerp Academy, 1875. Also, the complete engraved works of Rosa Bonheur, including the well-known "Horse Fair," now on Exhibition at L. H. LEFEVRE'S GALLERY, 1a, King-street, St. James's, S.W. Admission, One Shilling. Ten to Five.

MR. MARTIN COLNAGHI (GUARDI GALLERY, 11, Haymarket) begs to inform the lovers of art that his FIFTH SUMMER EXHIBITION contains works by the great colourist, Hermann Philips; others by Domingo and Charlemont, and by the young Spanish painter, José Beaillure. Open Daily, from Ten till Dusk.

LA SOCIÉTÉ DES AQUARELLISTES FRANCAIS. NOW ON VIEW, an EXHIBITION of WATER-COLOUR DRAWINGS by the Members of the above Society, at GOUPIL and CO.'S GALLERIES, 25, Bedford-street, Covent-garden. Admission, One Shilling. An Illustrated Catalogue has been published.

DORÉ'S GREAT WORKS.—"ECCE HOMO" ("Full of divine dignity."—The Times) and "THE ASCENSION;" "CHRIST LEAVING THE PRETORIUM," "CHRIST ENTERING JERUSALEM," with all his other Great Pictures.—DORÉ GALLERY, 35, New Bond-street. Daily, 10 to 6. 1s.

YORKSHIRE FINE-ART and INDUSTRIAL INSTITUTION, YORK.
NOW OPEN,
THE SUMMER EXHIBITION OF PAINTINGS,
and the
PRINCE OF WALES'
MAGNIFICENT COLLECTION OF INDIAN PRESENTS.
Admission One Shilling. Excursionists Sixpence.

ROYAL PANORAMA GALLERIES, Leicester-square. LE SALON A LONDRES.—EXHIBITION OF PICTURES by MM. Baudry, Bonnat, Bouvin, J. Boulanger, J. Breton, Carolus-Duran, De Knyff, Gérome, Hebert, Henner, Jalabert, Jules Lefebvre, Emile Levy, Landelzi, Matrazo, Meissonier, Robert Fleury, Roll, C. Tissot, Vollon, &c. Sculpture by D'Epinay, Carrier-Belleuse, Gerwin, &c. NOW OPEN, from Ten a.m. to seven p.m. Admission, One Shilling; Season Ticket, Five Shillings.

WESTMINSTER PANORAMA, YORK-STREET, QUEEN ANNE'S-GATE, S.W. (opposite St. James's Park Station and adjoining Royal Aquarium).—THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO, by C. Castellani. Covering over 20,000 square feet of canvas. The largest Panorama in England. WILL OPEN WHIT MONDAY, JUNE 6. Admission One Shilling.

LONDON SCHOOL OF MUSIC, 27, Harley-street. MATINEE D'INVITATION, of the Pupils and Friends, on SATURDAY, JUNE 25, from Three to Six o'Clock. For Prospectus, apply as above. Half Term will commence June 11 to 18. HENRY BAUMER, Principal.

GRAND INTERNATIONAL BAZAAR in AID of the FUNDS of the SOCIETY OF FRIENDS OF FOREIGNERS IN DISTRESS, under the patronage of her Majesty the QUEEN and Royal Family, and of most of the Foreign Sovereigns, will be held at the RIDING SCHOOL of his Grace the Duke of Wellington, on TUESDAY, Friday, and Saturday, the 21st, 24th, and 25th inst., from Two to Seven o'Clock p.m. Admission, on Thursday, 10s.; Friday, 5s.; Saturday, 2s. The Royal Artillery Band will perform Daily.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, JUNE 11, 1881.

A spoilt popular holiday is always matter for regret, not only to the multitude who have a practical interest in it, but to those who can regard the event with less personal feelings. At Whitsuntide, the masses of the population have the opportunity, for the first time in the year, of enjoying in common the beauties of nature. The country is then clothed in living green, and is as a blooming bride decked out in soft and delicate attire. As late as Saturday last there was the promise, almost the certainty, of a warm and brilliant Bank Holiday on Whit Monday; and railways and steam-boats, van proprietors and vehicular caterers of every degree, made due preparations for the popular festival. But a falling barometer is beyond the control of the most experienced meteorologist, and the early weather indications of Monday betokened fickle changes, which were too fully justified as the day advanced. To the occasional shower succeeded the persistent downpour, at least in the neighbourhood of the metropolis, which created despair among the visitors to Greenwich, Gravesend, and Epping Forest, Hampstead on the north, and Richmond and Hampton Court on the west. Open-air and river-side enjoyment became impracticable, and the huge palaces north and south of the Thames, and later on the evening places of amusement, reaped the advantage which was denied to the handy railways to distant localities, the steam-boat traffic on the Thames, and the many suburban tea-gardens which, at such seasons, offer their attractions to the crowded population of London. The results of this untoward Whitsuntide holiday will be seen in wofully diminished railway traffic returns, but there will be no statistics of the discomfort and hardships endured by multitudes of people who forgot to reckon upon the fickleness of the English climate.

But the loss to the holiday-maker has been a gain to the agriculturist. Thousands of anxious farmers must have watched the copious showers of Sunday and Monday with a keen sense of relief. To them the bright skies and dry atmosphere of the preceding weeks brought no enjoyment. The parched soil, the stunted herbage, and the lack of fertilising rain, following up the late winter, suggested gloomy forebodings as to the coming harvest. Only during the past week have these unfavourable indications become generally known; and it was natural that, after so many bad seasons—for last year's harvest turned out to be less fruitful than was expected—the prospect for this year should have filled the cultivators of the soil with serious apprehensions. A week ago, before the change in the weather set in, one of our daily contemporaries thus summed up an elaborate report from all parts of the country on the agricultural outlook:—"The growing crops vary much in condition and promise on different soils, but in general are excessively backward. A large proportion of the grain crops is deficient in plant; and the present prospect is that of a late and not very prolific harvest, unless by help of altogether exceptional weather; while we are in for an inferior crop of hay and a moderate grazing season." Thanks to the copious rains that have now fallen—better late than never—we may ere long have a different tale to tell. There is yet time for the grass to grow and the root crops to swell out, and happily the hardy wheat plant needs but little moisture. A "dripping June," however inconvenient in other respects, may be the precursor of a satisfactory, if not of an abundant, harvest, and revive the hopes of our depressed agriculturists.

The rough results of the recent Census are being gradually revealed. From the fragmentary returns that have been made public we gather that there are whole districts, especially in the south of England, which are becoming gradually depopulated by the magnetism of the large towns. Of course the metropolis is foremost in this process of absorption. Greater London, which comprises all the suburban districts, now comprises a population of about five million souls. Lesser London—that is, the districts embraced in the Registrar-General's bills or mortality—has a population of 3,814,571, being an increase in ten years of 560,311, equal to the entire inhabitants of so important a city as Liverpool. The metropolis has now a larger population than the whole of Scotland, and exceeds that of nineteen of the largest towns of the country. It is curious to observe that the increase during the decade has been much the greatest on the south side of the Thames, where the ratio has been nearly 31 per cent, while the increase on the north side has been only at the rate of 12 per cent. Many of the districts of London, such as St. George's, Hanover-square, St. Giles's, Strand, Shoreditch, and Whitechapel, show a considerable falling off; but the greatest decline is in the City of London, which has a resident population of 51,306, against 75,983 in 1871. These facts are highly suggestive. No capital in the civilised world presents so great an anomaly as this vast metropolis, whose chief local government represents only a fraction of the population—the vestries, which bear rule in the districts that comprise the overwhelming majority, being quite subordinate in authority and municipal privileges to the Corporation of the City of London. Some day—though apparently it is yet distant—the metropolis will be governed by one homogeneous municipality, which will have full control of the 1500 miles of streets and roads that are comprised in the registration districts—an area of 122 square miles—and the disposal of the rates of London, which were in April last estimated to be levied upon a total of £27,405,488.

Few men are so well qualified to give sound advice to the working classes as the Earl of Derby, and only one peer of high rank enjoys so large a share of their confidence. While Lord Shaftesbury has had the privilege of having been the instrument of fencing round the artisan class with legal safeguards against the eager selfishness of employers, Lord Derby has found an honourable sphere in arbitrating between the conflicting claims of capital and labour, and evidently feels more at home in this work than in the feverish excitement of political life. On Whit Monday his Lordship presided over the annual congress of delegates from the co-operative societies of the United Kingdom, held at Leeds, and his opening speech on the occasion amply justified the confidence reposed in him by the leaders of the movement. It was marked by his customary good sense, plain speaking, breadth of view, and judicial impartiality. In his candid survey of the problem at issue, Lord Derby did not conceal the difficulties that arise from the growing disparity of position between employer and employed, nor did he flatter the industrial classes by professing to believe that unionism will be able to reconcile conflicting interests; for in the long run capital, having the greater staying power, will gain the day. But co-operation tends to diminish the severity of the conflict. It gives "no motive for fraud, no liability to debt, no room for dispute between employer and employed"—a rather sweeping assertion from an economist of Lord Derby's eminence and coolness, seeing that the country is strewed with co-operative failures, which have been broken up by bad management. His Lordship is, however, quite right in exalting an industrial system, which if fairly carried out, will, as he says, dissipate visionary ideas, and do more for the world than legislation or any other agency by minimising the dangers that beset "our ancient civilisation under the disintegrating influence of new opinions and new ideas." His advice to the hundred and fifty co-operative delegates at Leeds was equally sound and characteristic:—"Cherish," he said, "enthusiasm, and keep clear of tall talk. Encourage all valuable means of bringing and keeping together the supporters of your system—lectures, libraries, clubs, and schools—but don't let us write or speak as if co-operators were all going to love one another like brothers, or as if they were about to banish selfishness out of the world." When we remember that the numerous co-operative and provident societies of Great Britain represent a capital of many millions, it speaks well for the sober intelligence of their managers that they should be ready to sit at the feet of so practical a philanthropist as Lord Derby, and accept his criticisms and guidance.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

You see that I was right in my little prediction last week. There is a universal consensus of opinion among the collectors of racing statistics that there was a larger number of Americans present at the Derby than had ever been known to attend our "Isthmian Games." I do not think that I should have cared about entering a horse at the Isthmian Games: if, indeed, the games comprised any horseracing. The antiquaries are silent on that head. But the victor at the commemorative festival of Melicerta received only a crown of dry and withered parsley as a prize. I think I should have preferred the eleven thousand guineas or so of the Derby Stakes.

Mr. Pierre Lorillard, they wire from New York, was not in the least over-elated by the victory of Iroquois. He smiled sweetly, I hear, when the news of the triumph of the American horse was brought him; and remarked cheerfully that it was all very well; but that he had a much better horse in his stable. The Americans have always a much better horse in their stable. I remember a droll illustration of this in the Conference year, 1876, at Constantinople. By virtue of certain Capitulations with the Sublime Porte the United States, in common with the other Governments of Frangistan, are entitled to keep a gun-boat in the Sea of Marmora for the carrying of despatches, the protection of their citizens domiciled at Pera and Galata, and so forth. In the winter of '76 there arrived at the Dardanelles a magnificent American corvette—we should call her a frigate—called the Vandalia. The Pasha of the Castle of Europe was terribly disconcerted. He went on board the corvette and politely pointed out that under the Capitulations the gun-boats only of foreign Powers were permitted to pass through the Straits. "It's the smallest we've got," calmly replied the gallant commander of the Vandalia, and away steamed the big ship for Constantinople.

Mem.: Peculiarities of pronunciation have been a frequent subject for discussion lately. I wonder through what tradition it happens that members of her Majesty's Diplomatic service, from Ambassadors Extraordinary and Ministers Plenipotentiary to the youngest Secretary, and that indefatigable body of gentlemen the Queen's Messengers, invariably say Constantinōple for "Constăntinople." The popular accentuation of the word is obviously that of the Great MacDermott, of "We don't Want to Fight; but, by Jingo, if we Do" fame:—

"The Russians shall not have Constantinōple," the o very long indeed.

It was a remarkable—a very remarkable Derby Day. On the next drag—Lord Londesborough's, I think—to our own humble shandrydan, was the distinguished American tragedian, Mr. Edwin Booth; on the coach driven by Lord Mandeville was that delightful transatlantic comedian Mr. W. J. Florence. Another American tragedian, Mr. John McCullough, was also "on hand." Mr. J. L. Toole flitted about the Hill in a "Light Fantastic" form, and lunched, I am given to understand, on "Upper Crusts," with a few "Welsh Rabbits" to follow. Mr. Edmund Yates, in a summer suit of light lavender hue, had for once left his Wheel at home, and left the butterflies to disport themselves, unbroken; but Mr. Frank Burnand stood apart, his arms folded, his brow knit, concentrated purpose on his lip, vengeful determination in his eye—a Gloomy Chieftain. Scarcely did he smile when his Smart Young Men brought him the cocoa-nuts which they had won at the Isthmian knock'em-downs, or sportively strove to decorate their Chieftain's Gloomy Hat with Isthmian dolls. There was a lady in one of the carriages, with a long grey "duster" over her dress—a duster reaching to her feet, and which had a hood. She might have been Japhet's wife, or Shem's sister. She looked almost Æsthetic. Mr. Burnand had his eye upon her; and we all trembled.

Yes; it was a very remarkable Derby; and the black mass of humanity which thronged the Grand Stand, the lawn in front thereof, the minor tribunes, and the Hill was by far the largest that I have ever seen. The admirable arrangements made by the London, Brighton, and South Coast, and the South-Western Railway Companies enabled the tremendous army of sightseers to arrive and depart without the slightest inconvenience to themselves or their neighbours. But the Road was a curiously thin one; and in the sparse cavalcade there were only conspicuous three classes of vehicles. First, a few noblemen and gentlemen's four-in-hands, and a rather numerous contingent of regimental drags; next hansoms; and, finally, the carts of small tradesmen, commendably bent on giving "the missis and young'uns" a glorious summer day's outing in the green Surrey lanes. If the girls and children did rifle the hedge-rows of a few boughs of May, who shall blame them? But there was but a sprinkling of barouches—I did not see a single open carriage and four; there were scarcely any broughams; there were very few mail-phaetons, and fewer gentlemen on horseback; and char-à-bancs full of gaily-dressed ladies were almost altogether absent. The Rail has killed the Road so far as the Derby Day is concerned. Of that there can be no doubt. A kind friend was so good as to offer to drive me down on his coach to the Oaks on Friday; but I was obliged to tell him that if I took two holidays in one week I should be in great peril of finding myself in St. Pancras Workhouse, on the ensuing Monday.

The first Derby I ever witnessed was in the year 1850. A horse called Voltigeur won, I think. A dear dead brother of mine, the lamented W. H. Weiss (the celebrated basso), and myself made up the party. We went in a kind of one-horse chaise—self and the lunch were in the dicky—an old-fashioned one-horse chaise, for the hire of which we paid at a livery stable in Camden-town the sum of thirty shillings. We enjoyed ourselves immensely: especially at Ewell, where we witnessed a first-rate pugilistic encounter between a "swell" and a sweep. The "swell" had the best of it; and the sweep was "heavily grassed." Bags of flour were freely flung at us at Hyde Park-corner; and one occupant of the box seat on a drag playfully hurled an orange at me with such good aim as to hit me in the eye. Ah! the good old times. At present you have to pay twelve guineas for the hire of a barouche and pair on the Derby Day, and even a "Royal Hansom" cannot be obtained for less than three pounds ten. As for the one-horse chaises, they seem to have vanished completely. On the other hand, the lively practice of bag of flour throwing has been wisely dropped; fights between gentlemen and sweeps are very rare; and even pea-shooting is on the wane.

Mem.: There was a disgraceful plenitude of roulette and E.O. tables at Epsom; and I heard of thimble-rigging and the three-card trick. The manœuvres of the itinerant gambling-house keepers were wonderfully cunning. By means of "front" and "back stalls" (accomplices on the look out), they were enabled to tell whenever the police were approaching; and so limbered up their gaming apparatus and decamped with surprising celerity. So soon as ever the coast was clear, they unlimbered, and were at their knavish work again. Also was I told that the "welshers," or swindlers who take the money of simpletons for bets, and then change their clothes and run away, literally swarmed on the outskirts of the Course.

An American gentleman "with an ear," and a very cultivated one, writes me a most interesting letter on the pronunciation of certain English words in the United States. I am sorry that I can only give the barest outline of his candid and instructive communication. I entirely agree with him, to begin with, that there are many grades and shades in Transatlantic pronunciation. "For example, the Tennessee dialect differs from that of Connecticut as widely as that of Yorkshire does from the dialect of Cockaigne."

Which reminds me that more than thirty years ago I sojourned for a considerable time in the North and North-West of England (I was in love with a Lancashire Witch, who eventually preferred somebody else to me, and was singularly right in her preference), and I tried to master some of the Northern dialects. In "Tim Bobbin" I made some progress (I have almost forgotten the "hang" of it now); and I also acquired some slight knowledge of the Cumberland speech. I chanced lately to be conversing with some American friends on English varieties in pronunciation and intonation; and from memory I quoted the well-known fragment of conversation (did it not appear in Punch?) between a Lancashire lass and her brother on a "Statty Fair" day. It was something to the following effect:—"Bill, bist thee foughten?" "Nea." "Well, git thee foughten, an' cum whoam. Feyther got his'n (or "hur'n"?) done by fower o'clock." My American friends could make but little of these spoken words. But they were even more desperately puzzled when I recited an even more faintly remembered verse from a ballad popular in Cumberland about 1852.

T' Dell's i' t' lasses o' Peerit,
Fur navvies they 'se a' gangin' mad,
Sin' Sandgate is fu' o' sic fellers
Each lass hes forsa'en her lad.
An' weir it'll end we're a' fearin';
T' winter-wark soummer wull shaw;
Fur quarrymen, measons, an navvies
I' Peerit' is noo a' t' gaw.

Reading this in print, a Southern Englishman might make out, with tolerable ease, that the song began with a complaint that the Deuce was in the girls of Penrith; and that since the arrival of certain quarrymen, masons, and navvies in Sandgate (probably for the construction of a railway) the young ladies had deserted their native sweethearts to smile upon the strangers. But my friends from "the other side" frankly admitted that they could scarcely understand a line of the strange recital. They were especially bewildered at "T' winter-wark soummer." Nor do I quite understand it now. Please not to pull me up with a short rein, Messieurs the professed philologers. This may not be properly archaic Cumberland. I merely quote that which I remember; and my memory may be decaying.

To return to my correspondent, "with an ear," he states that "Amurrican" for American is confined, so far as educated persons are concerned, to a portion of the New England States; that it is common in the West, but (to his thinking) is never heard in the South. "Advĕrtisement" for advertīsement is almost universally used, and "deepot" for dépôt universally so. As for "bokay" for bouquet, most educated Americans pronounce bouquet as French people do. That I know; but I asked the question because I have seen allusions to "bokays" (sic) painted on the sign-board of a florist, I think at Brooklyn. The H in hotel the Americans correctly aspirate; but many Americans have a trick of double emphasis, which overweights the word, and makes it sound like "ho-tell." Thus, also, "Ro-manse," emphasised like "Snow-manse." Into my correspondent's disquisition upon "Ralph" as against "Rafe," "Rarf," and "Raaf," I cannot enter. I have turned off the "Ralph" tap; and will merely remark that the Earl of Darby went to the Derby; that Lady Jarsey has returned from Jersey, and is going to Cissister (Cirencester) to visit Mr. Chumley (Cholmondeley) and Miss Marchbanks (Majoribanks), who has been staying with Mrs. Mannering (Mainwaring) and Miss Sinjin (St. John).

A most interesting evening was that of Whit Tuesday, the Seventh, when, at the Freemasons' Tavern, and on the occasion of the fifteenth annual Festival of the Drovers' Benevolent Association, Mr. W. A. Burdett-Coutts-Bartlett made, as chairman of the banquet, that which was practically his début as a public speaker. Nearly three hundred ladies and gentlemen sate down to dinner; and at the high table there was a very brilliant display of feminine rank and fashion, comprising, of course, the Baroness Burdett-Coutts Bartlett: to say nothing of generals and admirals, aldermen, sheriffs, and a bishop. Numerous and able speeches were made; but, on the whole, there were too many toasts; and as there was a capital military band in the gallery, the subsequent singing was slightly superfluous. Sir Garnet Wolseley spoke, as he always does, with bright and incisive effect; gallant old Sir Harry Keppel was tersely and vigorously to the point; the Right Honourable Mr. Mundella, M.P., was sonorously statesman-like; and the health of the patroness of the institution, the Baroness Burdett-Coutts, was received with rapturous enthusiasm. I only regret that the noble and munificent lady did not return thanks herself. I had the honour to hear her speak at the opening of the bazaar of the Flower Girls' Mission at the Holborn Town-hall some months ago, and very distinct and graceful were her utterances.

Mr. Burdett Coutts-Bartlett had naturally a great deal to say. On the loyal and patriotic toasts his remarks were in perfect good taste, but he gave a little too much amplitude to them. I went purposely to the end of the hall to listen to his delivery of the speech of the evening, and I could hear every word that he said. This was much;—for the dining-room of the Freemasons' is rather a trying one for oratory. Mr. Burdett-Coutts Bartlett's voice is clear and mellow; his action is animated and graceful, his delivery is fluent, and his command of language copious. Finally, he can always find an accusative to his nominative, and that is a "case" which public speakers very frequently fail to find. Having to address so large an audience, Mr. Bartlett pitched his voice a little too high. Otherwise criticism could find no fault either with the matter or the manner of his speeches. He was greeted with a tremendous reception; and his "first appearance in public" must be pronounced a brilliant success.

There are grand doings at the Royal Albert Hall on the day that I am writing these lines; and so soon as I have finished these "Echoes" I shall run down to Kensington and have a peep at the grand doings, and come back again to work. On Wednesday, the eighth, was opened, and on Thursday and Friday, the ninth and tenth of June, was continued, the Grand Fancy Fair and Musical Fête in aid of the funds of the Chelsea Hospital for Women, King's-road, S.W., which requires a large sum of money for the completion of the new building, the first stone of which was laid in July, last year, by H.R.H. the Princess of Wales. Next week I shall have something to say about the transformation of the Royal Albert Hall into "an Olde Englysshe Markette Place," and the holding therein by half the female rank and fashion of the day of an "Olde Englysshe Fayre." The Elizabethan orthography in the lengthy programme of the fair is rather distracting; but the committee have done splendid work, and the financial result will, I earnestly hope, be as splendid. The Chelsea Hospital for Women is one of those charities which should come home to all our hearts; and it is the bounden duty of every man to do his very best to support it—ay, even if in loving memory only of the Mother that bore him.

This has been a fearfully "horsey" week to me. About the Derby I have told you. Then, I have lost my nineteenth consecutive guinea in a club sweepstakes. I always draw a horse that either has been "scratched" or is dead. Whether my horse this year was called Aldeberontophoscophornio, or Chrononhotonthologos, or Richard the Third, or Jim Crow, I really do not know; for somebody else was good enough to dip in the lucky bag for me. The lucky bag! I just looked in at the club, on our way home from the Derby; and ere I had time to open my mouth the club porter said, "Mr. Flukes drew Iroquois." Of course, Mr. Flukes always draws everything. "'T was ever thus; from Childhood's hour—." I don't think the punctuation is correct.

So, to console myself, I went on Saturday to the Agricultural Hall, Islington, to see the Horse Show. I arrived at eleven o'clock; and there were very few people there. Through the politeness of Mr. Samuel Sidney, the Secretary, I obtained a capital place in the gallery, whence I could watch the Marquis of Waterford and Mr. Foljambe, M.P., judging the weight-carrying hunters; the hacks and harness were to be judged by H.E. Count Münster, Lord Aveland, and Lord Norreys: and, altogether, I witnessed that which was to me a very pretty, graceful, and interesting spectacle. "How many things are there here," remarked Socrates in the market-place, "that I do not want!" O wisest son of Sophroniscus! how many things are there which we, who may be apt to fancy that we know a great deal about different things, know nothing whatever about! I am passionately fond of horses. I collect "horsey" books. I have just bought Lawrence's "Farriery," and I intend, when I have some pence, to buy the large edition of "Geoffrey Gambado." I copy the pictures in Mr. Samuel Sidney's "Book of the Horse." I fag, whenever I have a little leisure, at the anatomy of the noble animal in Stubbs and Waterhouse Hawkins, and I know no more about the horse from an equestrian or a sporting point of view than I do about Great Circle Sailing or the chemical production of artificial indigo. I am a shockingly bad rider, and have not been "outside" a horse for eighteen years; and that was in Mexico, where everybody rides. The Indian peon brings home your washing on horseback; and the very beggar (with these eyes I have seen him) begs on horseback.

Mem.: You cannot well fall out of a Mexican saddle, which is a modification of the old Spanish demie-pique, with Moorish slipper-stirrups. Campaigning down at the Potomac, I usually fell off the horses which were lent me. And I used to walk my steed quite cleverly into holes, and even into village shops. The memory of the old days came across me as I sate in the gallery of the Agricultural Hall. Weight-carriers! I scarcely know a weight-carrier from a letter-carrier. I know something about a cob. I bought one many years ago by the advice of my doctor. I never saw that cob; for I had to go to America before I had time to ride him. I had him sold while I was away, and he did not fetch so much as I had given for him; and on my return to England, Home, and Beauty, I had to pay the difference and his bill for many weeks' board and lodging, and fourteen pairs of shoes. What healthful exercise he must have taken, to be sure! I call him, to this day, the Phantom Cob.

G. A. S.

CORONATION OF THE KING AND QUEEN OF ROUMANIA AT BUCHAREST.

THREE LADIES OF FASHION ON THEIR WAY TO "YE OLDE ENGLISH FAYRE," AT THE ALBERT HALL.—SEE PAGE 574.

CORONATION OF THE KING OF ROUMANIA.

The coronation, which took place at Bucharest on May 23, was a most striking ceremony. The Royal cortége, consisting of King Charles I. on horseback, Queen Elizabeth, with Prince Leopold of Hohenzollern, and his two sons, Princes Ferdinand and Charles, seated in a carriage representing a basket of flowers, arrived at one p.m. on the metropolitan hills, which overlook the capital, amid salvoes of artillery, to which a passing cloud added two loud peals of thunder. The weather was splendid. The King and Queen ascended at once to a richly canopied dais erected in the courtyard on the summit of the hill between the Chamber of Deputies and the Metropolitan Church. The Coronation Hymn having been sung, prayers were read by the Archbishop Primate of Roumania, and then the crowns were brought out of the church, where they had been all night, and were placed before their Majesties. The King's crown is of steel, wrought out of a cannon captured at Plevna; the Queen's is of gold; and both are executed with exquisite taste. The ceremony over, their Majesties returned to the town, followed by a long procession. The crowns were taken to the Palace and there presented by the Senate and the Chamber. The King replied with the following speech:—

"This day's solemnity closes a period of fifteen years fraught with great struggles and mighty deeds. Under the shield of her Constitution, Roumania has established and strengthened herself. The nation's perseverance, the army's valour, and the confidence I have always felt in the people's vigour have not deceived our warmest wishes, and have raised this country to the rank of a kingdom, insuring thus its future prosperity. I accept this crown with pride. It is the symbol of Roumania's independence and strength. Wrought out of a captured gun, it is sprinkled with the blood of our bravest soldiers, and sanctified by the Church. It shall be a testimony to future generations of Roumania's valour, and of the perfect unity that reigns between the nation and her King. Nevertheless, the affection and confidence of the people is the most precious crown the Queen and myself possess, and we both have but one wish—its happiness and greatness. In the presence of the flags that have floated on the battle-field; in the presence of this crown, which has also been a witness of your bravery, and around which the nation gathers as soldiers round their colours; in the presence of the representatives of this people, let us utter the cry dear to our hearts, which will resound in these hills, sanctified by so many great events: 'Long live our beloved Roumania, crowned by her civic and military virtues.'"

In the evening there were brilliant illuminations. Next day there was an historical processional pageant. The most striking feature in the procession was that of the peasants in their national costumes, sent by the various districts of Roumania to represent them. Each district marched to the palace headed by its flag and emblem. Among these deputations were to be seen the turbaned representatives of the three Trans-Danubian districts, newly annexed to Roumania.

Our Illustration of the ceremony of the Coronation is from a Sketch by M. Szathmári, the Court artist to their Majesties at Bucharest

THE "OLDE ENGLISH FAYRE."

The Grand Fancy Fair and Musical Fête, which was opened on Wednesday last, in the Royal Albert Hall, by Princess Christian, in presence of several members of the Royal family and a whole galaxy of the beauty, rank, and fashion of the land, has met with all the artistic and financial success which an enterprise so original, picturesque, and benevolent deserved. The proceeds—and eight hundred pounds' worth of tickets were sold before the opening day—will be devoted to the funds for completing the new building for the Chelsea Hospital for Women, the first stone of which was laid by H.R.H. the Princess of Wales in July, 1880.

The arena of the great hall was converted into the semblance of an old English market-place; and Earl Cadogan and his committee, among whom Captain Stopford Claremont was most energetic and serviceable, confided its erection to Messrs. Bernasconi and Langford. This is how these gentlemen describe what they have so ingeniously and with so much archæological knowledge designed:—

On emerging through an archway, one finds oneself in ye midst of a novel and enchanting scene, which carries one's thoughts back to days long gone by—ye traditional days, when "England was merry England." Along each side of ye hall is a row of old-fashioned timbered houses of two storeys, ye lower of which is used for ye shops or stalls. Where one is accustomed to look for ye orchestra, ye miniature street is found to terminate with an Elizabethan mansion, with its out-houses and grounds, backed by lofty trees, from among which, in ye distance, peeps out an old church tower. Ye forepart, representing ye lawn and shrubbery, is appropriately occupied by ye band. Turning round and looking towards ye opposite end of ye hall, ye view is closed by a feudal castle, rising stage upon stage from ye archway entrance on ye ground floor to a considerable height above. Ye upper storeys of ye houses are, to some extent, what in stage parlance would be called "practicable." Ye windows are made to open; some of ye house fronts retreat a little from ye line, giving room for a sort of balcony, in which persons may sit and look upon ye people below, and at ye same time making ye effect additionally realistic by their presence in such a position. Ye centre of ye hall is occupied by ye flower-stall, from ye centre of which a large and gaily-decorated Maypole is erected.

Ye appropriate Old English costumes of ye ladies who preside at ye stalls, gives great effect to ye whole scene, and perfects ye style and character of ye "tout ensemble."

From the description of the houses and the mention of the Maypole our readers will rightly gather that the period chosen for illustration is that of Elizabeth; but this was not strictly adhered to in every case, and anachronisms here and there crept in.

The flower and fruit stalls at the foot of the Maypole were presided over by the Countess of Scarborough, assisted by Lady Zetland, Lady Newport, Lady Lamington, Lady Kilmarnock, and Mrs. Edgar Drummond; while visitors to the refreshment-booth were catered for by Countess Cadogan.

At the stalls in the market-place, and, of course, under their respective signs, the ladies in the following list vended wares "multitudinous in number, useful of purpose, artistic in design, and fair in price."

| At ye sign of | Presided |
|---|---|
| Ye Sherwood Oak (Russet) ... ... | The Countess of Kintore, and Mrs. Newton. |
| Ye Rose and Thistle (Green)... ... | The Countess of Romney, and the Hon. Mrs. Francis Byng. |
| Ye Silver Shield (Light Blue) ... | The Lady Churchill. |
| Ye Anchor (Heliotrope) ... ... | The Lady Constance Howard. |
| Ye Golden Fleece (Gold) ... ... | Lady Forbes, of Newe, Mrs. Arthur Sassoon, and Mrs. Leopold de Rothschild. |
| St. George and ye Dragon (Brown)... | Lady Wiunington, and Mrs. Cecil Samuda. |
| Ye Pestle and Mortar (Grey)... ... | The Hon. Mrs. Charles Eliot. |
| Ye Lion and Unicorn (Crimson) ... | Mrs. Avcling and Mrs. Alexander Ross. |
| Ye Maltese Cross (Purple) ... ... | Mrs. Cavendish Bentinck and Miss Venetia Cavendish Bentinck. |
| Ye Bower ... ... ... ... ... | Miss Chambers. |
| Ye Robin Hood (Olive Green) ... | Mrs. Craigie. |
| Ye Fleur de Lys (Blue) ... ... | Mrs. Charles J. Freake. |
| Ye Old Crown (Red) ... ... ... | Mrs. Lambert Rees and Miss Protheroe. |
| Wheel of Fortune ... ... ... | Lady Howard de Walden and Miss Sinclair. |

The "Three Ladies of Fashion going to the Olde English Fayre," whom we have depicted in one Illustration, are intended to represent Mrs. Samuda, Mrs. George Bolton, and Lady Archibald Campbell. Their dress is plush, and old dead rose-leaf in colour, turned down with the same, only a shade darker. Steel-facet cut buttons, powdered wig, three-cornered hat, boots, spurs, and riding-whip enter into the costume of each. The badge they wear is a fleur-de-lys on the left lapel worked in silver on black velvet. Lady Archibald Campbell, it will be remembered, is the same lady who went to the last Drawing-room wearing the heraldic blazon of the Argylls.

There was quite a little crowd at Lowther Lodge to see these ladies enter their sedan-chairs. Mrs. Samuda's was black, with a picked-out pattern in red and white. The poles were scarlet, and the bearers wore dark blue coats turned up with scarlet. Mrs. George Bolton's sedan was dark green, picked out with buff and gold, and the poles scarlet. The bearers were in dark green, turned up with buff. Lady Archibald Campbell's chair was of Italian build, gold and white in colour, and with white poles. The bearers were clad in brown and canary, and in all three cases they wore three-cornered hats, knee breeches, white stockings and buckled shoes, and bore the livery and colours of their respective mistresses.

Besides the two ladies already mentioned, Mrs. Samuda was assisted in her booth by the Hon. Mrs. Albany Erskine, Mrs. Maxse, Mrs. Plowden, Miss Codrington, Miss Samuda, Lady Monerieff, and Lady Ribblesdale. Among other things for sale at this booth there was a fine Italian dulcimer, or salterio, by Cascanti, dated 1772, with interior painted with Cupids, and decorated with scrolls in silver and gold. This was contributed by Lady Archibald Campbell.

The figures of the following ladies in our two-page Illustration are not intended as portraits, but are given for the sake of showing costumes:—1, Lady Garvagh; 2, Countess Cadogan; 3, Countess of Clarendon; 4, Countess Grey de Wilton; 5, Countess of Coventry; 6, Mrs. Paget; 7, Mrs. Craigie; 8, Countess Romney; 9, Mrs. Cavendish Bentinck; 10, Marchioness of Blandford; 11, Viscountess Castlereagh; 12, Mrs. Thompson; 13, Miss Sinclair; 14, Lady M. Jenkins; 15, Lady Constance Howard. The dresses were made by Messrs. J. Simmons and Sons, of Tavistock-street, Covent-garden, and by Messrs. S. May and Co., Bow-street. A series of photographs of the costumes, taken by Mr. John Edwards, of Park-side, Hyde Park, assisted our Artist in drawing the Illustrations.

The Wheel of Fortune was kept by Lady Garvagh, and Captain Fitzgeorge controlled the May Mummers. There were concerts every day of the Fair, to which Mrs. Godfrey Peard, Lady Folkestone, Mr. Corney Grain, and Mr. George Grossmith lent valuable aid; and the band of the 2nd Life Guards played from time to time. John Hollingshead, Jean Middlemass, A. H. Wall, and the Hon. Lewis Wingfield wrote stories for the occasion, and many of our theatrical celebrities gave their services to the good cause by representations of various kinds from day to day. We cannot conclude our notice without congratulating Mr. J. S. Wood, the indefatigable secretary of the Chelsea Hospital for Women, for having organised a scheme so charmingly novel and so admirably adapted for the charitable object in view.

"MORNING."

This picture, by the talented Italian artist, L. Rossi, has been admired by visitors to Mr. A. Tooth's Art Gallery in the Haymarket, but was engraved for our front page by permission of the owner, Mr. Everard, some time ago. It presents to the reader's view a charming face of girlish childhood, the grace of which is rendered more piquant, as in some of Mr. Millais's pictures of similar subjects, by the quaint oddity of an old-fashioned head-dress, adorned with roses. Such a beaming countenance of youthful feminine loveliness, with such bright eyes full of joyous spirit, brings a delightful salutation in the fresh hour of "Morning," and a blessing for the whole of the day. We hope that the sight of it on our front page this week may cheer the heart of some reader, as a pleasant change from the scenes and figures of stern reality—not to speak of battles, shipwrecks, colliery explosions, and railway collisions, the miseries of Irish peasantry and misdeeds of the Land League, so often delineated by the artists of this Journal. We feel sure that the pretty little girl in this picture will be a welcome visitor wherever this Number is laid on the drawing-room table.

THE STATE OF IRELAND.

A circular has been issued from the Constabulary Department by Colonel Hillier, addressed to the county inspectors throughout Ireland, directing them to communicate to the Sheriffs in their respective districts that it will be necessary in all cases to inform them where processes of law are to be carried out, and where it is likely opposition will be met. They are, if they think it advisable, to swear informations and communicate the fact to the Executive, who will always be ready to grant the necessary assistance.

A proclamation in the Dublin Gazette prohibits a Land League meeting in the county of Westmeath, and rewards are offered for the discovery of the perpetrators of certain outrages in other parts of the country.

Mr. Sexton, M.P., Mr. Healy, M.P., and Mr. T. D. Sullivan, M.P., were among the speakers at the weekly meeting of the Land League on Tuesday in Dublin. The topics touched upon included the proceedings of the flying column in the South of Ireland, the chances of the Land Bill passing, and the latest Police Circular. A letter was read from Mr. Quin, the assistant-secretary to the League, denying that he had ever written a letter or a telegram to Mr. O'Connor Power asking him to use his influence to get persons situations.

A meeting, purporting to be of the "Ladies' Land League," but really a general meeting of Land Leaguers, was held at Tulla on Sunday. Miss Anna Parnell was the chief speaker on the occasion, and in the course of her speech she said it was the object of the Government to induce the people to resist the law, but she asked them to avoid falling into the trap. They should exercise the greatest caution and self-control, but in saying this she did not mean to preach the cowardly doctrine that resistance to the law was wrong. Other land meetings were held, and some serious disturbances are reported.

Further arrests under the Coercion Act continue to be made.

Three fat bullocks, the property of Mr. Thomas Mullock, a magistrate, residing near Ferbane, in King's County, were on Sunday found houghed and their tails cut off.

Whilst protecting bailiffs in the service of writs of ejectment on the 2nd inst. on the property of Colonel O'Callaghan, near Tulla, in the county of Clare, the police were fired upon by armed parties. The constabulary returned the fire, and shot one man dead.

There has been a serious conflict in the neighbourhood of Ennis between the constabulary and peasants armed with rifles and pitchforks. The constables were fired at several times by men who were concealed. They returned the fire and charged the mob, but to what extent the peasantry were injured is unknown. About twenty arrests were made, and the men were brought before a magistrate and remanded.

The house of Mr. W. Higgins, a publican and car-stage owner in Upper William-street, Limerick, was attacked late on Sunday night by a number of roughs, who poured a volley of stones through the windows of his house and threatened to demolish the shutters of his shop. The object of the attack seems to be to obtain liquor. Mr. Higgins, armed with a revolver, which was charged with small shot, fired out of a window at his assailants, and three persons were wounded. Higgins has been arrested.

THE IRISH PRESBYTERIAN CHURCH AND THE LAND LEAGUE.

The meeting of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in Ireland opened in Dublin on Monday night. The Moderator, the Rev. W. F. Stevenson, in his address, said the Presbyterian body were not indifferent to the great issues that now affected the country. Their people were in the main a farming people; their elders were merchants; their ministers were farmers' sons; but they were a law-loving and law-abiding people. They abhorred all violence, and the loose, wild, and infectiously lawless speeches that were dangerously frequent. Loyalty to the Constitution and to the Queen was dear to them. There has been an agitation going on in this country for the past two years. Legitimate agitation was to be commended: but out of this agitation there had come bursts of agrarian crime which were to be deplored by every right-minded man. Some had been going further than others, and uttering sentiments of sedition against the Throne. It seemed, therefore, that it would be becoming that the General Assembly should tell their Sovereign that the Presbyterians of Ireland were loyal. It had not been the custom at meetings of the General Assembly in Ireland to send addresses of loyalty to the Queen; but under the present peculiar circumstances it would not be out of place to put on record their attachment to the Queen and the throne. He moved that a committee be appointed for the purpose of preparing a petition. The Rev. Dr. Kirkpatrick seconded the motion. He thought such an address would be very seasonable at this time, when the population of the country was so much disturbed, and when, to use a favourite phrase, some parts of the country were within measurable distance of civil war. While they were anxious to see people secured in their legitimate rights, they deprecated all participation in deeds of violence. The motion was unanimously adopted.

PARISIAN SAYINGS AND DOINGS.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Paris, Tuesday, June 7.

"Que de bruit pour une cotelette!" What a noise about a cutlet! said Santolius, the Latin hymn-writer, as he threw his breakfast out of the window because it thundered on a Friday. "What a noise about a few drops of water!" we might say, in speaking of the baptism in extremis of Emile Littré, if indeed that ceremony ever was performed. The lexicographer and savant whom Gambetta lately saluted as "the greatest worker of the century," died last Thursday at the age of eighty-one. Littré, I need hardly say, was in philosophy a Positivist and a disciple of Auguste Comte, but his wife and daughter were both devout Catholics. Although Littré himself felt the need of no creed and no formulæ or objects of worship, he never attempted to influence the beliefs and opinions of his wife. If charity, good works, and purity of life suffice to save a man's soul, we need not feel alarmed. Littré was once charmingly defined by a witty lady as "a saint who did not believe in God." However, during the last few months of his life Littré was frequently visited by the Abbé Huvelin, and lately the religious journals began to issue vague bulletins of the progress of his conversion. Meanwhile his most intimate friends were refused access to him, and he died in the presence only of his wife and daughter, the Abbé, and two Sisters of Mercy. It was then announced that he had been baptised and had received the sacraments in extremis;—however, the Abbé Huvelin has avoided making any statement to this effect, and for the present it is not publicly known whether Littré died converted or not. It is very natural that Madame Littré's convictions and her conjugal love together should have prompted her to take the measures which she did take in order to assure her husband's salvation. After all, the piety of Madame Littré will not nullify the great savant's life-work, and neither philology nor positivism will suffer for the few drops of holy water that were sprinkled on his coffin. If the positivists and the freethinkers had comprehended this simple fact they would perhaps have refrained from disturbing the religious funeral, both at the church and at the cemetery, by noisy protestations. As it was, Littré's body was lowered into the grave amidst cries of "Down with the priests! Down with the holy water! Down with the body-snatchers! Vive la libre-pensée!" &c. Toleration does not appear to be a sentiment which the French freethinkers admit.

The Parisians are still waiting for the arrival of the summer. After a few hot days, the weather once more broke up on Sunday night; yesterday hail fell, and the weather was cold; to-day is showery and cool. Let us hope that the Grand Prix will not be converted into an aquatic fête, as it was last year. The Grand Prix has now so thoroughly entered into the habits of the Parisians that a wet day, such as we had last year, is a veritable disaster; for the great international event is perhaps the most popular holiday in the Parisian year. When the prize was founded, in 1863, at the instigation of the Duc de Morny, in order to return the politeness of the English, who had always opened their races to French horses, while French races were all closed to English horses, there was a grave debate as to the choice of a day. If a week-day were chosen, the Parisians could not come to the race; if Sunday were fixed upon, would the English come? Events have shown that a very considerable number of Englishmen emancipate themselves from the rigourism of their native isle pro hâc vice; and if the honour of old England needs to be vindicated on the evening of the race, her stalwart sons are ready for a friendly bousculade at Mabille. For the Parisians, and especially for the Parisiennes, the principal feature of the race is the return from the course. The sight of 30,000 vehicles of all descriptions filing in serried ranks from the beautiful hippodrome of Longchamps, through the Bois de Boulogne, and down the Champs Elysées, is unique for animation and brilliancy. The only thing that the Parisians are praying for is a fine day next Sunday.

Last Sunday at Auteuil Races there was a falling off in the number of English horses that ran for the Grand Steeple-chase de Paris. The first three horses were French, and the winner was the Marquis de Saint-Sauveur's Maubourguet.

The Parisian season ends with the Grand Prix, and the minority, whose doings are recorded in the fashionable gazettes, betake themselves after that event to their country estates or to the seaside and watering-places. Indeed, fashionable Paris is already getting empty, as might have been seen at the Opera last night, when a young American prima donna, Miss Griswold, made a fairly successful début in "Hamlet" as Ophelia. Miss Griswold has a clear and extensive voice and a pleasing exterior. She is the niece of Bret Harte. Apropos of the Opera, on Saturday last a young man belonging to a wealthy family of the Faubourg Saint Germain, M. Gabriel de Labry, tried to kill himself in a private box. He fired four shots, and wounded himself severely, but he is said to be recovering. This young man appears to be of unsound mind. The other day he wrote to Sardou accusing him of having, in the play "Divorçons!" held up to ridicule his (M. de Labry's) domestic misfortunes.

The opening of the French plays in London has now become the signal for the departure of a number of vocal and instrumental artistes, who go to seek success in the salons and concert-rooms of the metropolis. Last year the Londoners made the acquaintance of Lorenzo Pagans and his charming Spanish songs. This year the Chevalier Motta will give a few concerts. He is a very finished artiste, and his singing is highly appreciated in the salons here.

The ball given last night at the Hotel Continental, in aid of the British Charitable Fund, under the patronage of Lord Lyons, was of a most brilliant character; and the amount realised for the charity by the sale of tickets was considerable.

The death of M. Vieuxtemps, the violinist, is announced.

The Double collection, the sale of which I noticed last week, produced a total of 2,610,031f. The highest price given for one lot was 170,000f. paid for two Sèvres vases made for Louis XV., as souvenir of the battle of Fontenoy. Immense sums were paid for the historical furniture which figured in this collection, although the authenticity was in many cases very doubtful indeed. However, the craze for pictures and bibelots is now so great that authenticity is a matter of secondary importance; the Double sale was à la mode—an accident which explains everything.

Politics for the moment are dull. To-day the report of the Budget Committee was distributed to the deputies, and the debate on it will take up at least half the time that the Chamber still has to live, for there is no doubt but that the Chamber will be dissolved before July 14, the date of the National fête.

T. C.

The seventeenth Dog Show of the Kennel Club began at the Crystal Palace yesterday week, and continued open until Thursday last. The entry included nearly 1300 dogs entered by 600 exhibitors. Prizes of the value of £1270 were offered for competition in 150 classes.

THE PLAYHOUSES.

On Monday last Drury Lane was again crowded—the Prince and Princess of Wales, with a distinguished party, occupying the Royal box—by an appreciative audience, eager to witness the third "number," so to speak, of the répertoire of the Meiningen Court Company. They have already given us the German versions of "Julius Cæsar" and "Twelfth Night"—the last chiefly remarkable for the splendour of the dresses and the furniture; and on Monday the play performed was an essentially native one, being the famous tragedy "Die Räuber," by Friedrich von Schiller. In an amusingly naïve synopsis prefixed to the German book of the play, and which bears internal evidence of having been drawn up by a Teutonic schriftschreiber, "Die Rauber" is translated "The Brigands:" the compiler being apparently unaware that Schiller's noble but exaggerated work is quite as familiar to English people of culture as "The Robbers" as it is to the lovers of Italian lyric art as "I Masnadieri." Here is a sample of the Anglo-German synopsis:—"Amalia comes ruhsing in (sic) pursued by the robbers, and, recognising Carl, hurries joyfully to him. He prevents her from (sic) he is the captain of the Banditti, upon which intelligence the old Count dies from grief." The Hof Intendant and Direktor, Herr Ludwig Chronegk, should have asked Mr. Augustus Harris to revise the proofs of his programme for him.

"The Robbers" is the famous play which set literary and to some extent political Germany in a blaze one hundred years ago. It was the first acted, but not the first dramatic production of Schiller. When a very youthful student he had composed two dramas, "The Student of Nassau" and "Cosmo de' Medici," some fragments of which he incorporated in "Die Räuber." This he kept by him for some time after its completion, and it is a curious fact that when he graduated, in 1780, he quoted "The Robbers" in his academical thesis as from an English work, "The Life of Moor," tragedy by Krake, act v. sc. 1. The mythical "Krake" became, however, very much Friedrich Von Schiller when, in 1782, "Die Räuber" was produced at the Mannheim Theatre. The plot may be very briefly summarised. The "reigning" Count Moor, a very wealthy and powerful nobleman, has two sons, Karl and Franz. The latter is an unmitigated villain, and jealous of the love which the Count and his young ward, Amalia von Edelreich, bear to the handsome and generous but dissipated Karl. Franz prejudices his father against him by lies and calumny, and causes a letter disinheriting him to be written to that "fast" young gentleman, who, with other dissolute companions, is drinking Rhine wine, playing cards, and not minding his book at the University of Leipsic. In desperation, Karl flies into the forests of Bohemia, and becomes captain of a band of robbers, who have been, indeed, the profligate companions of his University life, and who thus correspond with "the noblemen who have gone wrong" in Mr. Gilbert's "Pirates of Penzance." Karl afterwards visits his father's castle in disguise, and has a pathetic interview with Amalia. Subsequently the demoniacal Franz locks up his father in an old tower with a view of starving him to death, and the poor old gentleman is only released from captivity by one Hermann, an accomplice of Franz's (the two rogues have fallen out), in time to recognise in his son Karl the chieftain of a band of brigands: "upon which intelligence he dies from grief." The banditti, meanwhile, have taken Count Moor's castle by assault; the villanous Franz "attempts to pray, and finally stabs himself," Amalia takes refuge in the forest, where she is stabbed to death (with the kindest intentions) by her devoted lover Karl; and that enigmatical personage, philosophically remarking that some poor, honest man may be made happy by the thousand louis d'ors offered for his (Karl's) apprehension, takes his departure with the intention of being delivered up to justice. "Er geht ab." That is the end of the Herr Graf Karl Moor. Surely, "Die Räuber" must have made a deep impression on the mind of Sir Walter Scott; for there is a marked similarity between the rival brothers in the "Robbers" and the rival cousins in "Rob Roy"—Frank and Rashleigh Osbaldistone. Franz Moor, for the rest, can scarcely be considered an original character. He is a German Iago; but a coward to boot, who trembles at his own shadow, and cowers when Hermann covers him with his pistol as though he (Franz) was a hound and the weapon a whip. One distinguished critic of the past has called "Die Räuber" "the most stimulant tragedy in German literature." Another, quoting the famous passage in the soliloquy over the pistol which is to send the victim "alone and companionless to some burnt and blasted circle of the universe, where he would have eternity for leisure to examine the perplexed image of universal misery," characterises the play as "a combination of vehement swagger and real grandeur;" and goes on to say that "Die Rauber" "pours forth a thunder of rant," that it brings impossible characters into violent situations, and that it is full of "exaggerated gigantic metaphors." These strictures were written five-and-forty years ago; and they certainly recurred to my mind when, on Monday last, I listened to the turgid streams of bombast from Karl, the never-ending jeremiads of old Count Moor, and the shrill scolding tirades of Amalia. Schiller himself confessed in after life that "to escape from trammels which were a torment to him his heart fled to an ideal world. The fault of 'The Robbers' was presuming to delineate men before he had met one." On the whole, and bearing even the author's own candid admission in mind, it is scarcely just to criticise "Die Räuber" from an English point of view. From such a standpoint it does not rise above the level of a "blood-and-thunder" melodrama of the old Victoria type, mingled with just such sentimentalities as are mercilessly satirised in the "Rovers" of the "Anti-Jacobin;" but looked at through a Teutonic glass, and in a Teutonic frame of mind, it is a grand and noble work.

The acting of the Meiningen Court Company was, as usual, wonderfully equal, capable, and efficient. All were letter perfect; and all, to my humble thinking, shouted too much. I never in my life saw and heard such noisy, restless performers, save at the Chinese Theatre, San Francisco. The mise en scène of the robbers' encampment was superb; and the drilling of the supernumeraries was superlatively excellent; but I noticed that they threw their arms about in precisely the same manner and uttered precisely the same shrill yells as they had done in "Julius Cæsar;" and surely Herr Ludwig Chronegk should remember that there is some physical and intellectual difference between a German mob and an Italian one. I do not say that both are not actuated by the same passions; but they certainly do not express those passions in the same manner. It may be, however, in fairness granted that the excess of noise and gesticulation is strictly in accordance with the vehemence of the dialogue. Truly the word is suited to the action and the action to the word; nor should it be forgotten that "Die Räuber" was, in its inception, as distinct and direct a protest and a revolt against the coldly classical tragedies of the French stage, of which Voltaire was the last illustrious exponent, as the Lady of the Lake and Christabel were direct and distinct protests and revolt against the unbending stateliness of English heroic couplets, of which Dryden and Pope were the fathers, and which expired in the frigid embraces of Hayley and Rogers.

Herr Nesper (the Brutus in "Julius Cæsar") acted Karl Moor very finely, and Herr Kober (the Casca of the Shaksperean tragedy) was equally good in the villanous Franz. All through "The Robbers" there are vigorous shouts of "Freiheit." About the Liberty of the Meiningen Court Company I am not in a position to say anything; but Equality and Fraternity they certainly enjoy. They are all, artistically, equally good; and a true spirit of fraternity leads them not to be jealous of one another. The architectural portion of the scenery in "Die Rauber" is admirable, and all the dresses and decorations are splendid; but the landscape scenes are very bad. A dais of three steps covered with green baize in a forest scene is absurd enough; still such an arrangement may be à l'allemande, and in accordance with German tradition; but no tradition can warrant the scattering about the stage of a number of ridiculous boulders, supposed to represent either rocks or turfy hillocks, but which look like so many lumps of suet-pudding with plums in them. They should be taken away from a stage which has been adorned by the graphic genius of Stanfield, of Telbin, and of William Beverley. G. A. S.

MUSIC.

ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA.

"Il Trovatore" was given on Thursday week, with Madame Adelina Patti as Leonora, for the first and only time this season; the prima donna having sung with fine dramatic feeling. The cast was otherwise also as before, including Madame Trebelli as Azucena, Signor Nicolini as Manrico, and M. Lassalle as the Count di Luna.

On the following evening Weber's "Der Freischütz" was performed, and Madame Fürsch-Madier quite sustained the very favourable impression made by her previous appearances as Valentina in "Les Huguenots." The lady is, indeed, a great acquisition to Mr. Gye's establishment, and seems likely to fill a void that has for some time existed in a certain line of tragic and romantic opera. On the occasion now referred to Madame Fürsch-Madier sang with artistic vocalisation and fine dramatic expression, her delivery of Agata's great scena (known in English as "Softly sighs") having been admirable in both respects.

The occasion brought forward, as Annetta, Mdlle. Guercia, who was favourably received. She has a bright and powerful soprano voice, which, as well as her action and gestures, betrayed some nervousness. She sang, however, especially in the Polacca aria, with much effect, and her performance will, doubtless, improve when less influenced by over-anxiety. M. Gaillard's Caspar has before been noted as an excellent performance, and it has gained, both dramatically and musically. He sang the Drinking-song and the Revenge scena excellently, and his action and by-play in the Incantation scene were impressive, without being untra-melodramatic. Signor Gayarre was again the Max, and sang best in the more declamatory passages, as in the final "Allegro" of the scena in the first act. The subordinate characters were efficiently filled. The introduced ballet action was accompanied by an orchestral arrangement of Weber's pianoforte piece, "Invitation to the Dance," which, beautiful as it is, is hardly in accordance with the musical surroundings of the opera. The clever dancing of Mdlle. Viale was a special feature in this scene. Signor Bevignani conducted on both the occasions referred to.

On Monday there was no performance; on Tuesday "Faust" was announced; and for Thursday the production of Mozart's "Il Seraglio" was promised.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

"Faust" was announced for repetition, with Madame Christine Nilsson again as Margherita, on Thursday week, Mozart's "Il Flauto Magico" having been given on Saturday for the first time this year. The cast included several familiar features, among which was the Pamina of Madame Marie Roze, who appeared for the first time this season, and repeated an artistic performance that has more than once been commented on. Again, in the duet with Papageno, "La dove prende" (encored), in the air "Ah! lo so," and in incidental passages of both the finales of the opera, Madame Marie Roze sang with expressive sentiment and dramatic feeling.

The brilliant bravura music of Astriflammante—the Queen of Night—written by Mozart for a singer gifted with a voice of extreme upper range—was sung by Mdlle. Ilma di Murska with bright vocalisation and a good staccato, but with some want of her former facility in attacking the exceptionally high notes. Signor Lazzarini sang the music of Tamino unaffectedly, and gave the solo "Quel suono" (in the first finale) with good cantabile and a successful display of a high chest range. Signor Novara, as Sarastro, gained great applause for his effective delivery of the fine aria "Qui sdegno." The music for the three genii and the three attendants on the Queen of Night was well rendered by Mdlles. Valerga, Ricci, De Belocca, Dotti, Martini, and Tremelli; Signor Del Puente's Papageno was again a valuable feature in the cast; Signor Rinaldini was, as often before, the representative of Monostatos; and other characters were fairly well filled.

On Tuesday "Mignon" was given for the first time here this season, with a cast mostly similar to that of former occasions - a special feature having been the repetition of Madame Christine Nilsson's representation of the title-character. As in last year's performance of the opera, the part of the volatile actress, Filina, was assigned to Mdlle. Lehmann, who sang the music with brilliant vocalisation, and acted with archness and spirit. Mdlle. De Belocca was a satisfactory representative of Federico; Mr. Maas, as Guglielmo, sang in his usual good cantabile style, but was wanting in animation; Signor Del Puente was impressive as Lotario, the harper; and Signor Rinaldini was lively as Laerte, the actor—other charcters having been efficiently filled. Signor Arditi has continued to conduct with his well-known ability.

Report says that Mr. Mapleson has engaged, for his current season, Mdlle. Emma Juch, a young lady whose soprano voice and executive powers have recently elicited much commendation from the New York press.

The closing performance of this year's series of the Bach Choir concerts, last week, was very appropriately devoted to the composer's great mass in B minor (known as "Die Höhe Messe"), with which the society began its public career in 1876. The mass was again finely rendered, especially in its choral and orchestral details, the vocal solos having been sung by Mesdames Sherrington and Fassett, Mr. Shakspeare, Mr. Burgon, and Mr. Kempton. The occasional orchestral solo passages were finely played by Herr Straus (violin), Mr. Svendsen (flute), Mr. Horton (oboe), Mr. Wendland (horn), and Messrs. Trout and Anderson (bassoons). Mr. Otto Goldschmidt conducted, and Mr. T. Pettit presided at the organ.

The first of Herr Rubinstein's series of pianoforte recitals took place at St. James's Hall last week, when this great virtuoso played a long and varied selection of solo pieces with alternate grandeur and delicacy, and produced a special impression on an audience that filled St. James's Hall. His wondrous executive powers, and his strongly marked individuality, were manifested in Bach's chromatic fantasia and fugue, Mozart's fantasia in C minor, Beethoven's "Waldstein" sonata, Schumann's fantasia (op. 17), and a series of pieces by Chopin and Rubinstein. The reception of the pianist was of the most enthusiastic kind. The second recital takes place next Monday afternoon.

The sixth of the Richter concerts took place on Thursday week, and may be briefly dismissed, as the programme contained no novelty. Wagner's overture to "Die Meistersinger," and Berlioz's to "Les Francs Juges," Mozart's symphony in D (the "Parisian"), and Brahms's first symphony (in C minor), were effectively played by the band, conducted by Herr Richter. The seventh concert (the last but two) takes place next Monday evening.

That sterling artist, Mr. Pollitzer (leading violinist at Her Majesty's Theatre), gave his evening concert during the week, the programme having included his own performances in solo pieces and concertante works.

Herr Carl Heymann (who recently played with much success at the Crystal Palace) gave a pianoforte recital at St. James's Hall, on Wednesday afternoon, when his programme consisted of an interesting selection of classical and brilliant pieces.

Madame Frickenhaus (the eminent pianist) gave the third of her series of chamber concerts at the Royal Academy of Music during the week; her programme having been, as usual, replete with interest and variety.

Madame Sophie Menter—whose brilliant pianoforte playing has recently attracted so much notice—gave a recital at St. James's Hall on Thursday afternoon, when the programme comprised a selection of solo pieces by Bach, Beethoven, Scarlatti, Schumann, Liszt, Chopin, and Rubinstein.

The fourth of Mr. Ganz's orchestral concerts at St. James's Hall takes place this (Saturday) afternoon, when the music of Gluck's opera, "Orfeo," is to be performed.

Mr. John Boosey's last morning ballad concert but one took place at St. James's Hall on Saturday, when the programme was of the usual popular interest, although consisting mostly of familiar pieces. These were very effectively rendered by Misses M. Davies and C. Samuell, Mesdames Patey and Sterling, Mr. E. Lloyd, Mr. Maas, Mr. Santley, Mr. Maybrick, and the South London Choral Association.

The second Floral Hall concert of the season included brilliant vocal performances by most of the principal artists of the Royal Italian Opera. Mesdames Adelina Patti, Trebelli, Sembrich, and Fürsch-Madier were heard in various pieces, too familiar to need specification; and Mdlles. Valleria and Warnots, Signori Mierzwinsky, Nicolini, Cotogni, De Reszké, and M. Dauphin also contributed to a varied programme. As usual, there were several encores.

The Sacred Harmonic Society closed its forty-ninth season (its first at St. James's Hall) yesterday, Friday, evening, when Sir J. Benedict's "St. Cecilia," and Rossini's "Stabat Mater" were announced.

The Rubinstein concert at the Crystal Palace this (Saturday) afternoon will be an event of special interest. The celebrated pianist and composer will play and conduct; and the programme includes the first performance in England of his sacred work, "The Tower of Babel."

The last but two of Mr. Sims Reeves's farewell performances in oratorio, at the Royal Albert Hall, is to take place next Wednesday evening, in the "Messiah."

HOME NEWS.

The Recordership of Nottingham is vacant through the resignation of Mr. R. Wildman.

Fourteen public Acts and sixty local statutes had received to Saturday last the Royal assent in just five months from the commencement of the Session.

The Inner Temple Gardens will be thrown open to the public from six to nine o'clock every evening during the months of June, July, and August.

The well-known ironworks at Cyfarthfa, South Wales, are closed. They are about to be adapted to steel-making, but meantime several hundred men are thrown out of work.

London, according to the report for 1880 issued by the Registrar-General, covered last year an area of 122 square miles, and contained 1500 miles of streets and roads.

The Earl of Jersey, who was accompanied by Lady Jersey, opened yesterday week a coffee tavern which has been erected in conjunction with a large number of improved model dwellings upon the site of the Queen's Bench Prison in Southwark.

At a visitation of the Greenwich Observatory last Saturday the Astronomer Royal took occasion in his report to define what were the proper objects of the Observatory, consistent with its original foundation, for the purposes of navigation.

The annual movable committee of the Manchester Unity of Odd-Fellows held its first sitting on Monday at Southport. The Grand Master presided, and upwards of 450 delegates attended as representatives of districts or groups of lodges.

A list of the regiments and corps which are to bear distinctive words in consideration of their gallantry in the recent campaigns in Afghanistan and South Africa appears in Tuesday night's Gazette.

An entire change of programme at Mr. and Mrs. German Reed's entertainment provides the visitors to St. George's Hall with additional reasons for renewing their acquaintance with that clever company of dramatic vocalists.

The metropolitan members of the Incorporated Law Society entertained a large party of members of provincial law societies at dinner on the 2nd inst. in their hall in Chancery-lane. Mr. John Moxon, the president, was in the chair.

Viscount Sandon, M.P., on Monday opened a fancy fair and bazaar in Stanley Park, Liverpool, to continue through the week. The fair is in aid of a new church and some charities of Kirkdale.

Cardinal Manning will consecrate Monsignor Gonzalo Canilla Vicar Apostolic of Gibraltar at the Pro-Cathedral, Kensington, at eight o'clock, next Sunday morning. The ceremony will probably last about three hours.

Alderman John Jones, the Mayor, opened a public park near the centre of the town of Wolverhampton on Monday. The site, which was formerly occupied as the racecourse, was acquired from the Duke of Cleveland. The ground has been laid out as a park, with an artificial lake of eight acres.

Sir John Kennaway, Bart., one of the members for East Devon, opened on the 1st inst. the Winter Gardens at Torquay, which have been established at a cost of about £12,000. There were several thousands of persons present, and the proceedings proved a great success.

1. Lady Garvagh. 2. Countess Cadogan. 3. Countess of Clarendon. 4. Countess Grey de Wilton. 5. Countess of Coventry. 6. Mrs. Paget. 7. Mrs. Craigie. 8. Countess Romney.
(These figures are not given as portraits, but only

SOME OF THE COSTUMES IN "YE OLDE EN

SEE PAGE

Mrs. Cavendish Bentinck. 10. Marchioness of Blandford. 11. Viscountess Castlereagh. 12. Mrs. Thompson. 13. Miss Sinclair. 14. Lady M. Jenkins. 15. Lady Constance Howard. or the costumes worn by the ladies named.)

LISH FAYRE," AT THE ALBERT HALL.

574.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

ITALY.

The anniversary of the grant of the Charter by Charles Albert was celebrated on Sunday with great rejoicings throughout Italy. In the capital King Humbert held a review of the troops of the garrison, and at night a firework display took place at the Castle of St. Angelo. During the firing of a salute, a gun burst, killing an artilleryman.

The Chamber of Deputies reassembled on the 2nd inst., and Signor Depretis presented his new colleagues to the House. The Premier said that the chief concern of the Government would be to carry out electoral reform. The army likewise claimed attention, and the war Budget would be increased. Respecting foreign affairs, he said Italy, maintaining with foreign countries friendly relations, cemented by justice and mutual respect, would seek to conciliate international with domestic duties. She asked only for "peace with dignity." Nor would they forget that "in moments of passion and mistrust great State interests must be guarded with that serene, long-suffering calmness which accompanies the consciousness of right." The Daily News correspondent says that the reception of the new Cabinet was "most frigid." On Sunday Signor Mancini, Minister for Foreign Affairs, brought forward a bill for prolonging the existing treaties of commerce and navigation between Italy and Great Britain, Germany, France, Belgium, and Switzerland until June 30, 1882. The Chamber of Deputies held two sittings on Monday, when several bills of secondary importance were discussed. The Chamber concluded on Tuesday the discussion of the bill authorising the execution of extraordinary public works. The total amount to be expended is 225,000,000f., of which 96,000,000f. are to be taken from the proceeds of the sale of Church property already in the possession of the Treasury.

The earthquake shocks on Mount Vesuvius were followed on the 1st inst. by a strong eruption. Broad and active streams of lava ran down the north-east side of the mountain.

PORTUGAL.

The Ministers, finding the Cortes impracticable, advised the King to sanction a dissolution. The decree was promulgated on the 4th inst. The new Parliament will meet on Jan. 2.

SWITZERLAND.

M. Vessaz (Radical), of Lausanne, has been elected President, and M. Zyro (Radical), of Thun, Vice-President of the National Council.

The Council of State has elected M. Kappeler (Liberal), of Zurich, as President, and M. Cornaz (Radical), of Neufchatel, as Vice-President.

HOLLAND.

The Second Chamber has adopted the bill granting copyright to authors during fifty years, exclusive of the right of performance of dramatic and musical works for ten years.

GERMANY.

The German Reichstag on the 2nd inst. debated the Accidental Insurance Bill, and struck out the provisions, upon the enactment of which Prince Bismarck had determined to the effect that the Government should contribute to the Workmen's Insurance fund. The resolution of the Parliament is that the fund shall be provided by contributions from the employers and the workmen themselves.

AUSTRIA-HUNGARY.

The Crown Prince and Princess left Vienna for Prague by special train at nine o'clock on Wednesday morning. Their Imperial Highnesses were most enthusiastically cheered by a large concourse of people assembled to witness their departure.

The Hungarian Diet was closed and dissolved on the 2nd inst. In his speech from the throne, the Emperor expressed his gratification at the realisation of his hopes by the patriotic support given to the Government proposals by the Reichstag. He dwelt upon the satisfactory progress made in financial affairs, and said that the state of foreign relations was such as "to warrant a well-founded hope that our people will continue to enjoy the blessings of peace, inasmuch as the good intentions of all the Powers enable every question, as it arises between them from time to time, to be brought to a pacific solution." The speech was loudly cheered, more especially the remarks referring to the marriage of the Crown Prince, which the Emperor read with apparent emotion.

An Imperial decree has been issued convoking the Hungarian Diet for Sept. 24. The Minister of the Interior has ordered that the new elections shall be held between the 24th inst. and July 3 inclusive.

RUSSIA.

The Emperor and Empress visited the capital yesterday week in order to attend the anniversary funeral mass for the late Empress. Troops were stationed along the route taken by the Imperial party, but the usual Cossack escort was dispensed with.

The Czar has received the five Tekke chieftains who have come as a deputation to Russia. He conversed with each of his visitors, conferred a military rank on the principal man, and gave valuable presents to all. The deputation have declared that the reception surpassed their wildest dreams.

His Majesty the Czar has promised his personal aid in improving the condition of the army; but he has declared to the Minister for War that it was necessary to economise.

General Scobeleff left St. Petersburg on Sunday for abroad on a four months' leave of absence, to recruit his health, after the arduous labours of the campaign and subsequent fever.

The Russian Imperial yacht Livadia arrived at Constantinople on Sunday, with Admiral Popoff on board. She sailed for Sebastopol next day.

Sentences, varying in degree, have been passed upon the ringleaders of the anti-Jewish riots in Kieff. One of the prisoners who took a leading part in the riots is sentenced to twenty years' penal servitude, and two of his companions to terms of ten and six years respectively. Two of the accused are exiled to Siberia; while three others, receiving the benefit of extenuating circumstances, are sentenced to short terms of imprisonment.

TURKEY.

The Government has appointed a Special Commission to draw up a scheme of reforms for the Asiatic Provinces of the Empire. When the scheme has received the sanction of the Sultan, it will be submitted to the Powers for their approval.

AMERICA.

Sir Edward Thornton on the 2nd inst. handed to Mr. Blaine, Secretary of State, a draught on London for £15,000, the amount agreed to be paid by England as compensation for the damages suffered by American fishermen in the Fortune Bay and Aspe Bay fishery disputes. The settlement has been effected with the best feeling on both sides, neither Government, however, surrendering to the other its construction of the fishery articles of the Treaty of Washington.

Iroquois's victory at Epsom caused great enthusiasm throughout the States.

The death of George Washington Marrison Nutt, better known as Commodore Nutt, is announced. He was born at Manchester, Newhaven, in 1844, and in 1859, when fifteen years of age, he was engaged by P. T. Barnum, in whose museum at New York he made his first appearance before the public in 1860.

CANADA.

A statue erected in memory of Colonel Salaberry was unveiled at Montreal on Tuesday by the Marquis of Lorne, who, in his speech on the occasion, eulogised the loyalty of the Canadians.

It is reported at Ottawa that the Marquis of Lorne will visit England for a short time in the autumn.

At a meeting of the directors of the Canada Central Railway, held at Brockville, Ontario, on the 2nd inst., a resolution was adopted affirming the desirability of amalgamating that line with the Canada Pacific Railway.

---

It is stated that the governorship of Madras has been offered to the Earl of Camperdown.

A Daily News telegram from Alexandria says that the Egyptian Budget shows a surplus of about a million sterling, arising from improved revenue and decreased expenditure.

Resolutions were adopted at a meeting held in Madrid last week demanding the immediate liberation of all the slaves in the Spanish Antilles.

A conflict has taken place at Copenhagen between a body of Socialists and the police, many of the latter having been wounded.

After some severe fighting, an entire band of Turkish brigands has been broken up by the troops of the Sultan, near Salonica—only one man being taken alive.

During artillery practice on the 2nd inst. at Graudenz, in West Prussia, a shell dropped in the midst of a marking party, killing three officers and two gunners, and wounding a colonel, two artillerymen, and a civil engineer.

Communications have been made by the New York Postmaster to the General Post Office in London drawing attention to the damage effected by rats to the mails whilst in transit from England to the United States.

The Liszt Festival in Antwerp has been repeated with even more brilliant success in Brussels, where the concert was given under the direction of Franz Servais, the professors of the Conservatoire taking their places in the great orchestra. Liszt was present at this celebration, as in Antwerp.

The King of the Sandwich Islands has been on a visit to Calcutta. By his own wish, he was received without public ceremony, and probably the great majority of the inhabitants were ignorant of the presence of a Royal visitor. After staying two days, he left for Agra and Delhi, but, finding the heat oppressive, he changed his plans at Allahabad, and proceeded direct to Bombay, where he embarked for Europe.

---

THE SILENT MEMBER.

When our legislators do agree, their unanimity is wonderful. If the Irish Land Bill has conspicuously shown how irreconcilable—save by the healing influence of time—are the views of Conservatives and Liberals, there are plenty of measures to prove how rapidly Acts of Parliament can be made, even in what is generally looked upon as a dilatory and profitless Session. Quite a budget of private bills, for example, in addition to the Customs and Inland Revenue Bill, received the Royal Assent in the House of Lords on Friday, the 3rd inst., prior to the adjournment of their Lordships till Monday next. As Lord Chancellor, Lord Selborne was chief of the trio of Royal Commissioners. The method of signifying Royal Assent by Commission is as quaintly old-fashioned as the ceremonial robes of scarlet and the three-cornered hats the Royal Commissioners wear as they sit with becoming dignity on the woolsack in front of the Throne. The Courtly functionary known, for short, as "Black Rod," having with stately slowness marched along the corridor leading straight from the Upper to the Lower House, and having, with a profusion of obeisances, invited the Commons to attend the House of Lords, the right hon. gentleman who holds, and worthily holds, the position of first Commoner, promptly responds to the invitation, and leads such members who care to follow, ordinarily but a small contingent, to the bar of the Chamber of Peers. There, behold him, as he makes a series of profound bows to the scarlet Commissioners. The Speaker in his official capacity and Mr. Brand in private are two totally different beings—especially since the right hon. gentleman has been driven by unruly members to firmly assert his authority. Bland, genial, his fresh-coloured face not infrequently wreathed in smiles, Mr. Brand might be very well be taken in the country for a squire "of the olden time." Whilst in the Chair, urbanity is still his distinguishing characteristic, but the flagrant misbehaviour of a small knot of Irish members has called for a seasonable tempering of his natural suavity with a little indispensable strictness.

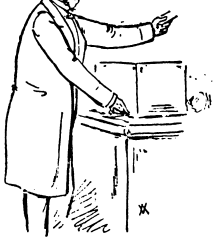
Much speculation exists as to whether Mr. Brand, after being wellnigh engulfed in the oceans of talk which have deluged the vexed question of Ireland, will at the close of the Session have the satisfaction of standing at the bar of the Lords to hear "La reyne le veult" pronounced as Royal Assent is intimated to the principal Ministerial measures of the year.

If the Irish Land Bill is to reach this haven at last, it is absolutely essential either that the majority of the thousand and more amendments which block the way should be withdrawn, or that a summary mode of dealing with those which are virtually duplicates should be hit upon. Practically, no progress had been made in Committee when the Commons adjourned for the Whitsuntide recess. Take the 2nd inst. for an instance of the way in which time is consumed. After the usually mild Mr. Howard had indulged in an outbreak of wrath against the management of the Crown estates in Bedfordshire, and Mr. Gladstone had delivered a mollifying reply, Dr. Lyon Playfair took the chair in Committee; but the discussion of the amendments of Sir Richard Cross, Captain Aylmer, Sir W. Barttelot, and Mr. O'Sullivan, the first and second having been only debated to be postponed, and the others negatived by large majorities, stopped the passing of clause 1. The bill stood exactly in the same position after the consideration of Mr. Givan's amendment, rejected the following evening. But it would have been utterly distasteful to the extreme Home-Rule section to separate without a Donnybrook scene. This was forthcoming, accordingly, near the commencement of Friday week's sitting; subsequent to The O'Donoghue's motion for the adjournment in order to animadvert on Lord Kenmare's treatment of his tenants. Colonel Tottenham had asked whether the report was true that a son of Lord Dunsandle had been shot at and wounded, and whether three murders had not been committed in the same locality, "attributable to the action of the Land League?" Whereupon Mr. T. P. O'Connor briskly rose to ask the Speaker if it was in order to "mendaciously" attribute such action to the Land League. Called upon to withdraw the expression "mendacious," Mr. O'Connor substituted the word "inaccurate." The Speaker's remark that Colonel Tottenham's question would not have been allowed to appear on the paper in the form in which he had put it did not satisfy the fiery O'Kelly. Was there no protection, he asked, in that House against gentlemen making statements calumnious and lying?"

Mr. J. O'Kelly was at once "named" by the Speaker; Mr. Gladstone moved that Mr. O'Kelly should be suspended for the sitting; and the hon. member for Roscommon County is sketched as he withdrew, in obedience to the vote of the House supporting the Prime Minister's motion by 138 to 14 votes.

This peculiarly Hibernian incident did not end there. Mr. Justin M'Carthy neatly sought to exculpate Mr. O'Kelly by reference to Lord Palmerston's use of the expressions "calumnious and mendacious," but was corrected on this point by Mr. Gladstone. In the end, Colonel Tottenham got an answer in the negative to his query. But the hornet's nest had been roused. The so-called siege of Quinlan's Castle gave rise to fresh recrimination. And the Prime Minister's motion that the House should adjourn till Thursday elicited a chorus of protests from Mr. Gorst, Lord Randolph Churchill, and even Sir Stafford Northcote against the notion of separating without hearing a reassuring statement with regard to the condition of Ireland and the Transvaal. Mr. Gladstone's too-serious answer to these party interruptions was hardly of a nature to discourage such tactics. Sir William Harcourt, therefore, took it upon himself pungently to retort upon the Leader of the Opposition that the present Government were not likely to do as the late Ministry did, and one day say nothing of importance was likely to occur, whilst on the morrow they announced the dispatch of Indian troops to Malta. The Home Secretary is represented in his heavy Parliamentary manner, delivering a home-thrust as a kind of champion of the heavy weights. Sir Stafford Northcote, when he had recovered breath, made a weak reply. Thereafter, hours were wasted in the conclusion of the debate on Mr. Justin McCarthy's vain resolution against the arrests of Land Leaguers in Ireland. Yet Sir William Harcourt had, after all, a satisfactory last word when he exercised his elocutionary powers on this telegram from Ireland:—"No resistance to the force at New Pallas. Report of Lord Dunsandle's son having been fired at untrue. No report of importance from the provinces to-day."



---

The Home Secretary has drawn the attention of the City Corporation to the statement in Mr. Walpole's report as to the inadequate accommodation at Billingsgate Market, and Sir W. Harcourt urged the importance of steps being taken to increase the facilities for the supply of fish to the public. The Court of Common Council, after receiving the letter, discussed a motion, adjourned from the previous meeting, for the appointment of a committee to consider the present unsatisfactory state of the fish supply of the metropolis, and this was carried by 62 to 36, a committee being appointed to conduct the inquiry.

The 318th anniversary of the birth of George Heriot, the founder of Heriot's Hospital, Edinburgh, was celebrated on Monday, at Edinburgh, in the usual manner. In the forenoon a sermon was preached in new Grey Friars church by the Rev. Dr. Lees, of St. Giles's Cathedral. Immediately afterwards the hospital boys and the children of the outdoor schools, to the number of about 5000, who receive a free education, assembled in the hospital grounds, where they were addressed by Lord Provost Boyd. The entire assemblage united in singing an anniversary song in commemoration of Heriot's birth, and the proceedings closed with the National Anthem.

The anniversary dinner of the supporters of the Newspaper Press Fund, which is fixed to take place at Willis's Rooms on Saturday, the 18th inst., under the presidency of the Right Hon. Sir Stafford Northcote, M.P., promises to equal in its attractions and results the most successful of the previous festivals. The list of stewards, containing about 220 names, includes distinguished members of the Corps Diplomatique, members of both Houses of Parliament, and other gentlemen eminent in art, literature, science, and the liberal professions. Mr. Sims Reeves hopes to be able to assist in the musical programme; which, it is anticipated, will, as heretofore, be under the direction of Sir Julius Benedict.

ROYAL ACADEMY EXHIBITION.

CONCLUDING NOTICE.

With one exception, the best-known landscape-painters repeat themselves so exactly this season that a detailed review of their works is superfluous, assuming our readers to have visited Burlington House in recent years. Mr. Vicat Cole's views at "Wargrave" (203) and elsewhere are pleasing, as usual, but slighter than last year. From Mr. Davis we have had pictures resembling in all their elements his noontide on the French coast, with a couple of cows (263), and his twilight, named "The Evening Star" (1416). The same must be said of Mr. Oakes and Mr. C. E. Johnson; moreover, the large picture by the latter, "The Land of Streams" (85), strikes us as less effective than recent works, owing to the heavy equality of the handling. Frank Walton's autumnal scenes we have also virtually seen before. As for Peter Graham's Highland subjects, they seem to be turned out by recipe—so much blue and white sky slashed on, or so much silver mist; here a patch of brighter green in sunlight, there a patch of slatey shadow, with so many shaggy cattle in the foreground that acquire more and more the transparency of stained glass. K. Halswelle has two or three more flooded river views; very taking at first sight, from their vigorous execution and strong scenic contrasts of white light and blackish shadows, but obviously much exaggerated and artificial on further inspection. Then, in "The Silvery Thames" (154), it is equally evident that he has resorted too freely to the expedient, easy to the oil-painter, of imparting glassy smoothness to water: the Thames may be ever so "silvery," but to the observant, conscientious artist its silver will be found "frosted" here and there by a current, or a cat's-paw of wind, by insects, fish, fowl, or other accidents. W. Linnell, on the other hand, is pushing strong colouring and almost portentous effect further than ever, to the inevitable loss of aerial truth and delicacy. Miss Clara Montalba's large view of St. Mark's rising above the flooded Piazza in which it is reflected (453) affords an imposing composition, and testifies to a fine perception of beauty and grandeur; yet it must not be concealed that the tone of colouring is utterly conventional. The painter took this peculiar yellow glow (so familiar in her works wherever the scene, and artistic in itself regarded arbitrarily) to Venice; she did not find it there. We say nothing of the suppression or fusion of the lovely details of the matchless pile; that might be allowable and even commendable under certain conditions of treatment; but artistic license carried to the point of untruth to the general aspect is fatal.

The one popular landscape-painter who seems to us to have surpassed himself is Mr. Leader, particularly in his aptly-named "February Fill-Dyke" (42). The rain has ceased; only a few flakes of cloud remain overhead; lowly cottages peep between, and the village church spire hardly rises much higher beside the still leafless trees, that rear their tall stems in the translucent air, while pools and puddles along both sides of the road reflect the primrose hues of the sky just after sundown. A striking, charming picture. Another picture that will yield and suggest much pleasure is J. Brett's "Golden Prospects" (445), a view from the Land's End in the fairest of weather, with only a few rounded waifs of cumulus to checquer the tender sky, and fleck with faint purple the golden radiance that twinkles on the nearer azure of the sea, or fades into the remoter mist, or falls with opalescent splendour on the foreground rocks, and their splashes, and bosses and fret-work of lichens. But there is something that offends the critical sense in the too mechanical technique of this painter; the intention seems to be—and it is the critic's unpleasant duty to note apparent intentions—to produce an illusion, or a trompe l'œil, as the French say—which is certainly not one of the higher aims of art. Something of the same remark applies to two pictures of rough sea, by W. J. Shaw (530 and 536). They look, if we may be permitted a sort of compendious Hibernicism, more true than they are. We confess we prefer the kind of move-ment to be found in E. Hayes's "A Fair Wind from the Harbour" (268), though the waves here (being in-shore) are opaque, and their action is not analysed so carefully. But for fidelity to wave action few of our painters equal Henry Moore—see his tumbling sea in "Mid-Channel" (968); the colour of the sea here, however, strikes us as too blue. Allowing fully for the deep water of "mid-channel," we should see in nature more of the grey sky reflected on the receding surfaces.

Returning to the landscapes, we have yet to note some meritorious works. M. C. W. Flower's "Winter's Ending" (251) is excellent. The following also are good:—"The Road to the Farm" (301), by A. Parsons; "In Lofoden" (435), by E. T. Crompton; and "In the Green Heart of the Wood" (348), by R. Catterson Smith. A quaint view in Holland of "A Dead City of the Zuyder Zee" (374), by Mr. Boughton, has a charming aspect of quiet truth, and places the artist in quite a new light. "The First Arrival" (379), by "Alice Havers;" "Not of the Fold," by F. Morgan; and "Milk for the Calves" (20), by Tom Lloyd, are all faithful, bright, full-coloured landscapes with figures from nature, and quite innocent of any recondite "æsthetic" meaning. And a similar remark applies to Otto Weber's sound but prosaic "Mid-day Meal in the Open" (429). Hardly so, however, as regards C. Lawson's "The Pool" (19) and "Bardon Moors" (167). Despite old-masterish affectation and dirty opaque or blackish brown colouring, there is in this artist's works (the latter especially) something very rare in our school—a sense of grandeur in lines and masses, and a consciousness that a landscape should, as a harmonious whole, fill the mind with some idea or sentiment. Alfred Hunt has the same elevated conception of landscape art; but his two works this year are not fortunate—more than ever the idea is lost in a sullied or incomprehensible tangle of broken hues. The Scotch painters are not in force this year. Besides the works already noticed, there is little of mark, if we except J. Farquharson's "Twilight Lingers Still" (307), and J. MacWhirter's "Sunday in the Highlands" (483), and two coast-scenes by Colin Hunter, which, however, are loaded with paint so heavily as to repel the spectator to the farthest side of the room in which they are placed.

Of the portraits not yet reviewed, we have already spoken of those of Mr. Holl in general terms. Mr. Oulless's master-piece of the year is the bust of Mrs. Butterworth (347). This has a subtlety in the rendering of minute lineaments and characteristics that is scarcely to be found in the portraits by Mr. Holl, forcible, broad, dramatic, and masterly as these are; with a little more spontaneity, or a touch of genius this portrait by Mr. Oulless would be worthy of Mr. Millais. The half-length of a little girl à la Reynolds, numbered 181, is a favourable example of Mr. J. Sant. Mr. Orchardson's appa-rently colossal half-length of Mrs. Winchester Clowes (142) shows a harmonious disposition of tints, but is as thin, flat, and empty as a design for stained glass. H. Fantin's half-length of Mdlle. L. R. (24) is thoroughly modelled and life-like—as this artist's portraits always are. Among several good portrait hunting-pieces that of Captain P. A. Watson Carnegy (914), by S. Carter, is one of the most vigorous.

The water-colours are generally unimportant; but the following have novel interest, or otherwise merit attention:—"The Jester" (613), by R. Giannetti; "Italian Lace-Makers," (640), by S. G. Rotta; "A Quiet Spot" (656), by O. Rickatson; "Market Place, Verona" (662), a distemper painting on canvas by J. O'Connor; "The Holy Rock, Jerusalem" (680), by Carl Haag; "Bankside, with Birds: Early Spring" (691), by M. Snape; "The History of a Crime" (708), by A. W. Strutt; "Suspense" (725), by A. Burchett; and "Decorative Treat-ment of Modern Subject: Labour" (765), by E. Buckman. The following are noteworthy engravings, &c.:—"The Cathedral of Chartres" (1181), etching by A. H. Haig; Mr. Gladstone (1188) and "A Jersey Lily" (1201), both after Millais, engravings by Mr. Barlow; "Atalanta's Race" (1194), after Poynter, engraving by F. Joubert; "Sympathy" (1205), after B. Riviere, engraving by F. Stackpoole; and two enamels by Madame de Cool.

The unnoticed sculpture need not detain us long. We have already reviewed Mr. Hamo Thornycroft's "Teucer" and the works by Messrs. Brock and Calder Marshall purchased from the Chantrey Fund. We have also men-tioned Mr. Tinworth's elaborate alto-relievo of "Christ's Entry into Jerusalem," and we regret we have not space to enlarge on its wealth of character and incident. Mr. Thornycroft also exhibits a bust of Professor Owen (1487), boldly blocked out and left with the chisel marks, but essentially a good likeness, though requiring much to com-plete it. Mr. Calder Marshall's "Sabrina thrown into the Severn" (1489) is an energetic well-modelled group, but want-ing in poetical or romantic feeling. The colossal statue of the Maharajah of Bulrampore (1500), by Mr. Birch, stands with firmness and dignity—a point seldom attained by our sculptors—and, though not a very favourable subject, is the best work of its kind here. The bust of the late Lord Mayor, Sir Francis W. Truscott (1479), is an admirable likeness; and Mr. Birch is equally at home in dealing with delicate feminine traits, as in the bust of Miss A. M. Bruce (1466). Mr. Holiday's recumbent statue, "Sleep" (1539), is a great surprise as from a painter. Had the artist been a sculptor simply he might have rendered (his perceptions being of form alone) the couch more yielding; he might have adjusted the legs somewhat differently, and chosen a less risqué position for the figure, yet the conception is nobly frank and pure, the forms recall those of the Phidian time; the torso, head, and arms are very beautiful (though the surface might be more delicately varied); and the drapery is exquisitely dis-posed and modelled. Signor S. Albano, the eminent sculptor of Florence, sends a bronzed statue of an old man, crouching under his infirmities, called "Old Age." This is a marvel of realism—the head is instinct with life; but why reproduce the pitiful signs of age in a nude figure, which are even more painful in bronze than in the original version, which, if we remember rightly, we saw in marble or plaster three years back at Florence? The sculptor's almost equal mastery of female beauty is shown in the statue of "Marguerite" (1492) and the bust called "Remembrance" (1499); but even in this last there is in the rendering of the breasts (which are flesh itself) something of the same almost offensive naturalism and imitation of minute accidents that degrade so much Italian sculpture. Charlotte Besnard's bronze statue of "Judith Showing the Head of Holofernes to the People of Bethulia" is a very clever but very theatrical work.

Mr. Armstead's Aphrodite (1448), his "diploma work," and "The Obedience of Joshua" (1469), for the Guards' Chapel, are so-called "flat reliefs;" and, notwithstanding the plea of "decorative" treatment, are, we think, wrong in principle—the scale of the relief being purposely sacrificed in what should be the highest and lowest passages. Moreover, the defective modelling of Venus's face, and portions of the other panel is amazing from an artist of reputation. Among the portrait busts we have to specially commend Mr. Boehm's Gladstone in marble (1497) and Carlyle (1481) in terra-cotta—in both instances the essential though latent character being well got at; Count Gleichen's very characteristic head of Mr. Bancroft, and the works of this class by T. Brock, J. A. Raemackers, G. B. Amendola, Miss Henrietta Montalba, C. Argenta, M. Raggi, W. White, R. C. Belt, Lord Ronald Gower, a small terra-cotta of Victor Hugo (1543), Georgiana E. Bulley, and E. Ford Onslow. Also, should be noticed Mr. Lawson's grandiose sketch of "Cleopatra" (1478); "Shielding the Helpless" (1484), by E. B. Stephens; a pretty statuette, "Love's Messenger" (1533), by W. R. Ingram; "Pensierosa" (1505), by A. Fontana; a "German Wild Boar" (1516), capitally modelled by Julius Haehnel; and a snarling panther's head (1522), by G. Lawes.

---

A number of works by the eminent German artist Pro-fessor Adolf Menzel, who has lately been elected an honorary member of the Old Society of Painters in Water Colours, has been added to the Society's Exhibition; but we must postpone a notice of these remarkable works till next week.

Mr. George Aitchison, the architect, has been elected an Associate of the Royal Academy.

---

The Metropolitan Railway Company have been proceeded against in the Queen's Bench Division by the Attorney-General to recover passenger duty of 5 per cent upon all persons who travelled at fares exceeding a penny a mile. It was the practice of the company to charge for a certain pro-portion of their third-class tickets a higher rate than the Parliamentary fare of a penny a mile. Baron Huddleston and Mr. Justice Hawkins held that the company were liable for the duty, and gave judgment accordingly.

The Earl of Derby presided and gave an address at the thirteenth annual congress of delegates from the Co-operative Societies of Great Britain and Ireland, opened in Leeds on Monday. He stated that he regarded co-operation as a more important matter for the future of England than nine tenths of those discussed in Parliament. He believed co-operative work was sure to be honest work, and was opposed to the system of credit, which was the universal plague of this country. His Lordship then treated the subject under three heads of inquiry—co-operation as regards quantity and quality of production, as it affected the happiness and comfort of those engaged in it, and as it bore on the relations between capital and labour. From each point of view he regarded co-operation as beneficial. The three substantial gains of the co-operative movement he considers to be—no motive for fraud, no liability to debt, and no room for disputes between employers and employed. The proceedings extended over three days; among the heads of subjects for discussion, organisation and education occupying the leading places. In connection with the congress an exhibition of the manu-factures of co-operative productive societies was opened. Mr. Thomas Hughes, Q.C., who presided on Tuesday, described the co-operative movement which he had established at Rugby, in Tennessee. He said that the application of the surplus of English co-operative societies to production would be wise, and said there was some truth in the charge of a breach of the fundamental principles of co-operation. Its true object was to make England the happiest place for good men to live in. Trades deputations were received and papers read, and there was a banquet in the evening.

AGRICULTURAL SHOW AT TUNBRIDGE WELLS.

The Prince of Wales visited Tunbridge Wells on Tuesday, being the guest of the Marquis of Abergavenny at Eridge Castle, upon the occasion of the "Bath and West of England and Southern Counties Agricultural Association" holding its exhibition at Tunbridge Wells. The present compound name of that society appears rather too cumbrous and dif-ficult of comprehension. The old Bath and West of England Society was founded a hundred years ago; but it came in 1869 to Southampton, in another year to Guildford, and amal-gamated itself with the Southern Counties Association; it has also visited Brighton and Croydon. Lord Abergavenny is pre-sident for this year. The arrangements at Tunbridge Wells have been made by a committee, of which Mr. J. D. Cramer Roberts is chairman, and Mr. E. Durrant is honorary secretary. The show, which opened at ten o'clock on Tuesday, and continued to Friday, took place on elevated ground a little way on the Frant road, commanding a fine view of the pretty town, which has an air of rural elegance and dignified tranquillity, and of all the pleasant country around.

The opening day was rather spoilt by the rainy weather, but there were several thousand visitors to the show. His Royal Highness arrived at Tunbridge Wells, with Earl Sydney, the Marquis of Hamilton, Lord Falmouth, and other gentlemen, about one o'clock, when he was met by Lord Abergavenny, and went to luncheon at Eridge Castle. Before leaving the station, he received an address from the Tunbridge Wells Local Board, presented by Mr. J. Stone Wigg, the chairman. At Eridge Castle his Highness met the Earl of Cork, the Earl of Coventry, the Earl of Sefton, Earl and Countess Delaware, Earl and Countess Romney, and other ladies and gentlemen of rank. At four o'clock this distinguished party, with the Prince, went to inspect the Agricultural Show, after which his Royal Highness returned to London. The live-stock department was very large, comprising 767 entries; the Sussex cattle, the Jersey and Guernsey cows, and the South Down and Romney Marsh sheep, were especially admired. There was a large exhibition of implements, and of machinery in motion; a working dairy, organised by the Aylesbury Dairy Company, and an attractive horticultural show, besides an interesting collection of works of art and antiquities.

Our Illustrations represent, in addition to the show-yard, several places of note in the neighbourhood of Tunbridge Wells. Eridge Castle, though not an ancient building, is situated in a demesne that has belonged to Lord Abergavenny's family (the Beauchamp Nevilles, great personages in the Plantagenet reigns) nearly five hundred years. Queen Elizabeth sojourned six days at the old Castle, in 1578. The park is vast and grandly wooded: the fir plantations are remarkably fine. The mansion of Bayham Abbey is the seat of the Marchioness of Camden, who has also been visited by the Prince of Wales. The ruins of the old Abbey, which was destroyed by Henry VIII., are of some architectural interest. At Tunbridge, on the Medway, six miles distant from Tun-bridge Wells, still remain the strongly-built gate tower, with an archway opening to the river, and other portions of the ancient feudal castle, which was held by the De Clares, the Audleys, and the Staffords, in succession, as a fief of the Arch-bishop of Canterbury. It was besieged in the Barons' War by King Henry III. The Lords of Tunbridge were hereditary chief butlers to his Grace the Archbishop.

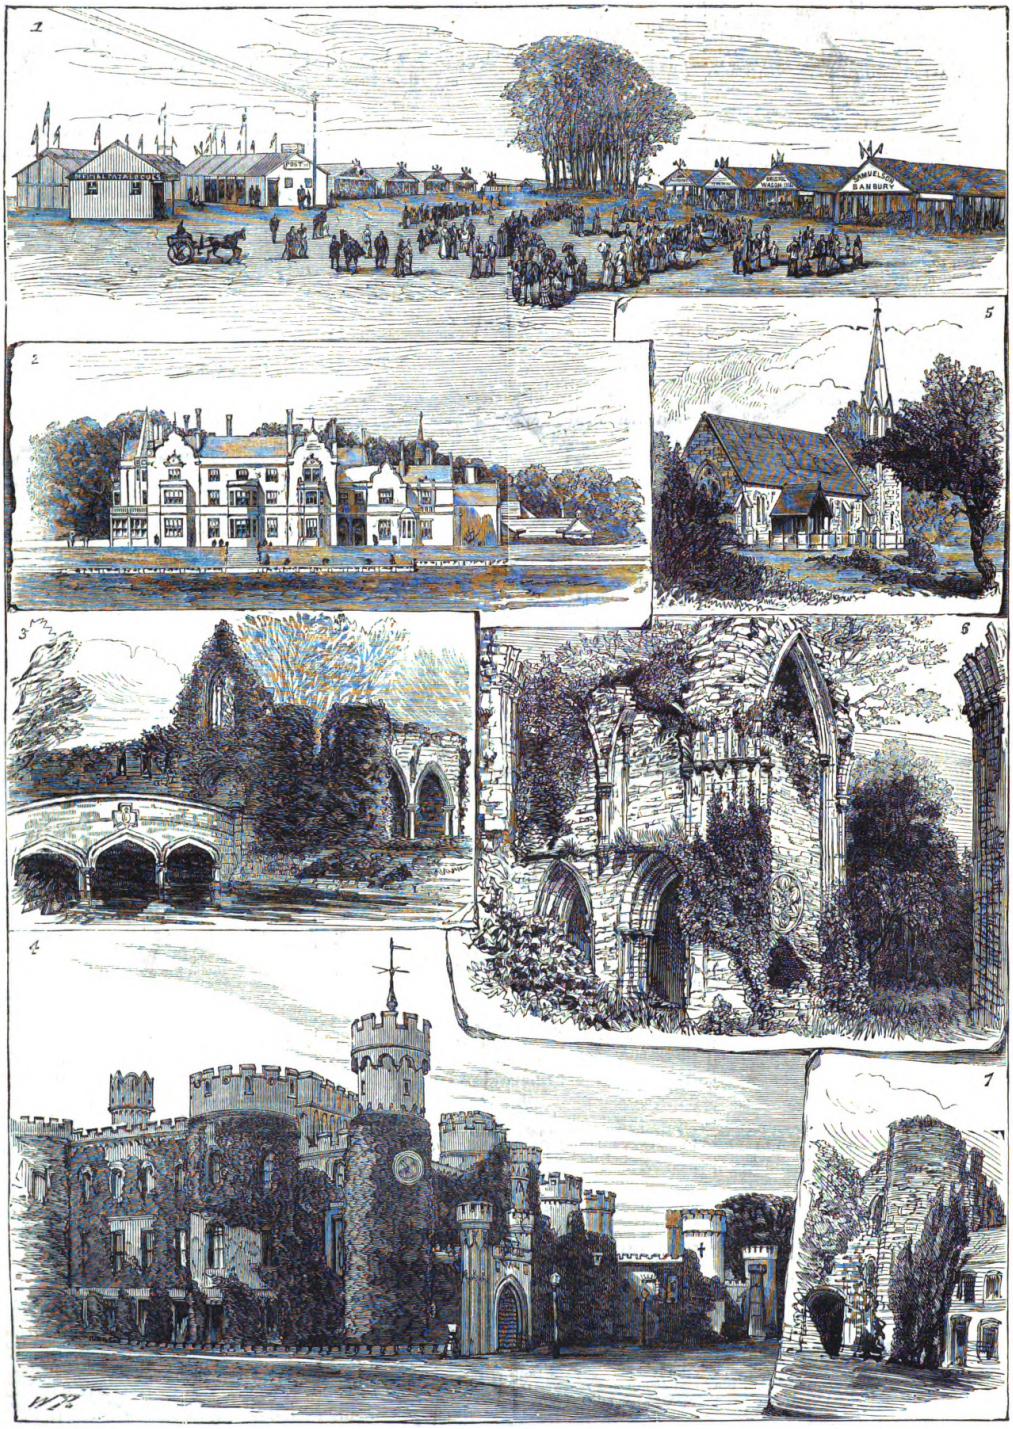
---

The Central Chamber of Agriculture lately communicated with the University commissions, pointing out the advantage of establishing one or more chairs of agriculture in connection with the Universities, or in other ways promoting the special education of the agricultural classes. From the University of Oxford commission a reply has been received, stating that the appropriation of College funds to University purposes having been already settled, the commissioners cannot now propose to divert any part of the funds to the purposes mentioned.

It has been arranged that the Royal Counties Agricultural Society's show shall take place on the 21st and the three fol-lowing days, and the Earl of Pembroke, the president of the society for this year, has intimated that probably Prince Leopold will attend the opening ceremony. The Town Council of Salisbury have agreed to attend in state. The entries, as far as the sheep—an especial feature—and the cattle are concerned, are good, and a high class Hampshire and Southdown, Oxfordshire, and other shorter-woolled sheep, will be established. Shorthorn, Hereford, Devon, Sussex, and Channel Island cattle, Berkshire and other breeds of pigs, poultry, pigeons, and rabbits will be shown, and, in addition, agricultural implements and machinery, £1200 in prizes being competed for. The Society has usually confined its shows to Hants and Berks; this year it has fixed upon twenty acres of meadow land, known as The Butts. There will be a flower-show and an exhibition of fine cut specimens in connection with the event.

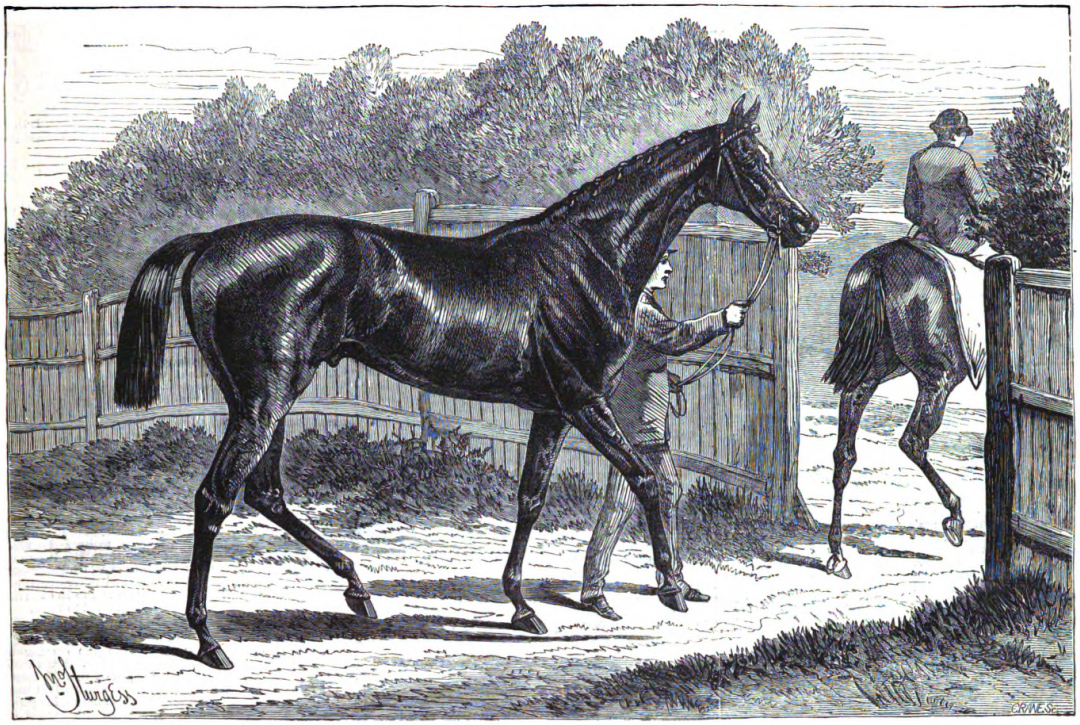
At a meeting of the council of the Royal Agricultural Society, held on the 1st inst., the Marquis of Londonderry was elected a governor of the society, and sixty-nine new members were elected. The Education Committee brought up a long report, and letters were read from Canon Girdlestone, and Mr. Wilkinson, of Harrow; the first on teaching the knowledge of common things in agriculture, and the second on teaching the elements of gardening in primary schools. The committee concurred in the views of Canon Girdlestone that it is very desirable that reading-books on the common things connected with farm labour should be used in rural schools, and that a knowledge of these should be added to the special subjects for which a grant may be obtained. The com-mittee, however, saw more difficulty in providing gardens to be attached to schools, but they believe that there are cases where a master, having a special love or knowledge of such subjects, might make the garden a valuable addition to the school teaching. The report was adopted after some dis-cussion. The reports of several other committees were also received and adopted.

The Council of the Society of Arts have placed six new memorial tablets on houses which are of historic interest as having been occupied by celebrated men. The residence of an Emperor, two statesmen, a philosopher, and two artists have been thus distinguished. These china plaques will now be found on the front of 15, Buckingham-street, Strand, where Peter the Great lived for a short time; on 25, Arlington-street, for many years the residence of the famous Prime Minister, Sir Robert Walpole; on 14, Savile-row, where Sheridan lived; on 35, St. Martin's-street, Leicester-square, for some time Sir Isaac Newton's home; on 36, Castle-street, Oxford-street, where James Barry, the painter, received the statesman Burke, and on 30, Leicester-square, a new build-ing, occupied by Archbishop Tenison's School, which stands on the site of Hogarth's home. In former years the Society of Arts marked with their memorial tablets the houses inhabited by Burke, Byron, Canning, Dryden, Faraday, Flaxman, Franklin, Garrick, Handel, Johnson, Napoleon III., Nelson, Reynolds, and Mrs. Siddons.



1. Entrance to Show-Yard. 2. Bayham Abbey. 3. Old Bridge at Bayham. 4. Eridge Castle. 5. Church at Bayham. 6. Old Abbey, Bayham. 7. Tunbridge Castle.

THE BATH AND WEST OF ENGLAND AGRICULTURAL SHOW AT TUNBRIDGE WELLS.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.



IROQUOIS, THE WINNER OF THE DERBY.

THE WINNER OF THE DERBY.

Iroquois, who has at length succeeded in winning their first Derby for the Americans, is the property of Mr. P. Lorillard, one of the largest owners of racehorses on the other side of the Atlantic. He is by Leamington from Maggie B. B., and his sire, who has already been more than creditably represented in this country by old Parole, was himself a racehorse of very high character, and was imported from England when he was twelve years old. Iroquois, who is rather on the small side, standing a shade under 15 hands 3 inches, is a brown colt, with a narrow blaze on the face, and a little white on the near fore heel. He has a good head, and his neck, though a trifle light, is well set on. Perhaps his strongest point is his shoulders, which are unusually deep and well placed. On the other hand, he is undoubtedly light in the flank, and his quarters, though very muscular, are by no means of the massive order. His feet are as good as they can be; and his legs, which are thoroughly well shaped, sound, and free from blemish, must be made of iron to stand the "heroic" style of training practised by Pincus, who prepared him for all his engagements this season. His two-year-old career was of a very chequered description. He came out with a great reputation at the Newmarket Second Spring Meeting, and won the Two-Year-Old Plate very easily from Herman, Kühleborn, and three others. In his next three essays, however, he was only once successful, and on that occasion he only had a solitary, and very moderate, opponent. At the Newmarket July Meeting he fairly astonished everyone by running the peerless Bal Gal to a head in the July Stakes, and cantering away with the Chesterfield Stakes on the following day. These two fine performances were followed by a wretched exhibition at Sandown Park. His next appearance was at Goodwood, where he won the Lavant Stakes from Isola Madre and others; but Wandering Nun cut him down without an effort in the Findon Stakes, and he could not even gain a place in any of his 'ast three races. This year he has been out three times, running second for the Two Thousand Guineas, cutting down Lennoxlove for the Newmarket Stakes, and walking over for the Burwell Stakes. While admitting that Iroquois met a moderate field in the Derby, we do not at all wish to deprive him of any of the credit of his victory, as he must be one of the hardiest and soundest horses ever foaled, and might have been "made to order" for the peculiar Epsom course. He has many valuable engagements, including one in the St. Leger, in which race we hope to see him play the third and deciding game of the rubber with Peregrine.

SWARM OF BEES IN WELLINGTON-STREET, STRAND.

A SWARM OF BEES IN THE STRAND.

A good deal of amusement was caused among the people who chanced to be near the corner of Upper Wellington-street, Strand, on the Tuesday afternoon of last week, by the unexpected visitation of a swarm of bees in that central part of London. The Field office is close by there, and it was at first supposed they might have arrived from the country as a deputation to inform the editor of some matter in the department of rural natural history. But Mr. W. B. Tegetmeier had not been prepared to receive them, and was quietly sitting and writing in his editorial study, when a brother naturalist came in to tell him that the bees were assembled just round the corner. He went out and found them besieging the stage door of the Gaiety Theatre, and greatly alarming some of the lady members of Mr. Hollingshead's theatrical company, who wanted to go in for a rehearsal at that hour. The stage manager, Mr. R. Soutar, was at the door in much consternation, and begged Mr. Tegetmeier, by all his science and skill in the way of insects and other winged creatures, to disperse the buzzing mob as quickly as he could. Mr. Tegetmeier at once sent for a ladder, as the bees had swarmed high up the front of the Army and Navy Gazette office; then, having armed himself with a short broom, and with a cylindrical cheese-box and a dish-cloth from the Restaurant, he boldly ascended, and cleverly, with one sweep, brushed all the insects into the box, clapped the cloth over them, and had them fast prisoners, to the admiration of all spectators in the street below. He then placed a hive, with the queen bee, in the balcony, and set the box there beside it, allowing the whole swarm to pass into the hive and rally round their queen; "which they did," he says in the Field, "as loyally as if they had been Britons, and she had been Queen Victoria." They are now doing well in a frame hive, and he hopes the queen bee will be the parent of many stocks, to be called "the Strand bees." In explanation of this odd little incident of London life, it is stated that Mr. Neighbour, a hive manufacturer, in Holborn, had that morning got from the country several swarms of bees, which he had ordered to be sent to him, to stock some hives for his customers; and one swarm had made its escape and flown as far as the Strand.

THE CHURCH.

Last Saturday the foundation-stone of the new church for St. Matthew's, Bayswater, was laid by Mrs. Allcroft, the wife of the patron of the living.

A stained-glass window (the work of Mayer and Co.), representing the Good and Faithful Servant, has been placed in the parish church of Stretford, to the memory of J. Hampson, fifty-four years clerk of the church.

On the 1st inst. the Archbishop of Canterbury laid two memorial-stones in the Church of St. Michael, Battersea, which is being erected in memory of the Rev. H. B. Verdon, M.A., for many years Curate-in-charge of the district, and Mr. Philip Cazenove, a late churchwarden of Battersea.

A meeting to promote the formation of a bishopric of Newcastle was held on the 2nd inst. in that town, the Bishop of Durham presiding. His Lordship said there only remained a sum of £15,000 to be raised before the bishopric could be established, and he should like to announce that this had been done before the Church Congress met in Newcastle in October.

On the motion of the Bishop of Llandaff, seconded by the Bishop of St. David's, it has been resolved, at a representative meeting of Welsh Churchmen, to take steps with a view of having a revised Welsh edition of the New Testament. The basis adopted will be the text used by the translators of the revised English text.

The nave of St. Andrew's, Wickhambreux, Kent, has recently been rescated; this, as well as other improvements, having been carried out under Mr. Ralph Nevill, F.S.A., of Gray's Inn. The funds for this, as for previous work at the church, have been mainly raised through the efforts of the well-known singers, the Messrs. Robertson.

A special service, and the first of its description, for the young was held on Monday in the nave of York Cathedral, when the Dean (the Rev. A. P. Purey-Cust) delivered an address on "The Duty of Kindness to Animals." There was a numerous attendance, including children from several of the charitable institutions of the city.

A special choral service was held in St. Sepulchre's Church, Holborn Viaduct, on the evening of Ascension Day, a choir of upwards of fifty voices rendering the music in an excellent manner. For the anthem was performed a sacred cantata, composed by Mr. J. Loaring, F.C.O., the words being taken from Psalm xlvii. The congregation consisted of about two thousand persons.

The Rev. W. M. Whittemore, D.D., Rector of the united parish St. Katherine Cree and St. James, Aldgate, delivered his twenty-ninth annual flower sermon at the first-named church, Leadenhall-street, on Tuesday evening. The ancient edifice, which has lately been renovated, was crowded, the majority of the congregation being children, each of whom carried a handsome bouquet of flowers.

A fancy fête and bazaar has, by permission of the Hon. Mrs. Meynell Ingram, been held in Temple Newsam Park, near Leeds. The object is to raise funds to finish the building of St. Hilda's Church, Knowsthorpe. The total cost of the building will be £8000, the existing deficiency amounting to £3000. The bazaar was opened by Lord Houghton; who was accompanied by the Earl of Derby, Lord and Lady Halifax, Earl and Lady Auckland, the Hon. Mrs. Meynell Ingram, the Countess of Zetland, the Hon. R. O. A. Milnes, the Hon. J. C. and Mrs. Dundas, and the Hon. A. R. D. Elliot, M.P.

The question whether the Revised New Testament can be legally used in the Lessons of the Church of England is not entirely answered in the Lord Chancellor's published letter to the Bishop of Lincoln. Lord Selborne lays it down that "if any clergyman reads in his church the Lessons appointed for the Sunday and other services from the 'Revised' Version before it has been recommended or authorised by some sufficient public authority, he will incur a serious risk of being held to be an offender against the law. His Lordship contends that there must have been some authority for the use of the words "appointed to be read in churches" in the title-page of the Authorised Version, and that the usage of more than two hundred years must originally have had some legal origin. Nevertheless, it is well known that other versions of the Bible were in use at the time, and even after the Authorised Version had received the sanction of James I.; and one ecclesiastical critic suggests that there might have been an Order in Council, which was burnt in the year 1618; though it is hardly conceivable that such an order could have been passed without some record of its existence. Possibly in this state of uncertainty an attempt may be made to obtain a legal decision from the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, of which Lord Selborne is a member. The alternative is an Act of Parliament to settle the difficulty; but such a remedy no representative of the Established Church would venture to propose without clear evidence that the bill would pass both Houses, and would not raise larger questions than it set at rest.

The Illustrations of places and buildings at Chesterfield associated with the life of George Stephenson, which appeared in our Special Supplement last week, were from photographs by Mr. Harry W. Weller, of that town, who is publishing a photographic album containing both Chesterfield and Newcastle views connected with this subject.

Messrs. Cassell, Petter, and Galpin have most opportunely issued a "Companion to the Revised Version of the English New Testament." It is written by Professor Alexander Roberts, D.D., a member of the New Testament Revision Company, and will be found a most valuable aid in comparing the Authorized and Revised versions. Part I. is devoted to a consideration of changes arising from an amended text, and Part II. to the changes arising from an amended translation.

A Dairy Show on rather a large scale was opened on Tuesday at Bingley Hall, Birmingham, and prizes to the amount of one thousand pounds were awarded. The entries comprised cattle, goats, cheese, butter, cream, honey, and poultry, together with poultry-yard and bee-hive appliances. The Mayor observed that the exhibition was an experiment, which he hoped would be successful. They could not see English agriculture languishing without making an effort to improve its position.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

The death of Joseph Hayhoe—about the last of the old school of trainers—which occurred on Sunday last, has occasioned great regret, but little surprise, as his recovery had been considered hopeless for many weeks past. He was born in 1815, and, very early in life, was placed in "Tiny" Edwards's stables at Newmarket. After remaining there for several years he went to Whitewall, where he assumed the responsible position of head lad to John Scott. Like all the pupils of the famous "Wizard of the North," he soon became a perfect master of his profession, and, from his great veterinary skill, was always specially famous for his success with unsound and delicate horses. In 1854 Hayhoe began business on his own account as private trainer to the late Baron Rothschild, and from that time to the day of his death was always associated with the famous "blue and yellow" of Mentmore. It would occupy too much space to give even a bare list of all the famous animals that he prepared for their engagements; but, of course, his great year was 1871, when Favonius, Hannah, and Corisande swept off the Derby, One Thousand, Oaks, Leger, and Cesarewitch between them, and "Follow the Baron" became the watchword of many an enthusiastic backer. Two other Derby winners—Kisber and Sir Bevys—were also trained by him, and, during the last season or two, he has done well for Mr. Leopold Rothschild, though that gentleman has not possessed any really high-class representative except Fashion.

The idea of establishing an Epsom Grand Prize was a capital one; and now, if there is an "off" day during the week, it is the Tuesday, and not the Thursday. There were twelve runners for the great event—only three less than for the Derby—and the race was worth upwards of £4500. Curiously enough, Scobell and Voluptuary were the only Derby horses that took part in it, and, though the former was heavily backed, Ishmael, a north-country colt, who received 14 lb. from Prince Soltykoff's representative, was made favourite. It was generally considered that he would have won had Osborne made his effort a little earlier; but, as it was, Scobell just managed to keep in front past the judge's chair, and gained a half-length verdict. The colt by Reverberation—Auchinleck run exceedingly badly, as he also was in receipt of a stone from the winner, and thus the form shown by the pair in the Payne Stakes was completely reversed. Scobell moved wonderfully well over the terribly hard ground, and has evidently improved so much of late that he has a fair chance of beating Foxhall for the Grand Prix de Paris on Sunday next. The other races of the day were not of great importance, though the clever victory of Retreat in the Royal Stakes drew renewed attention to the claims of his stable companion, Cylinder, for the Manchester Cup. Lord Stamford carried off the Chetwynd Plate with his filly by Pero Gomez—Lady Rosebery, and she has fairly earned the pretty and appropriate name of Rosebud that was bestowed on her after this success.

One of the hottest Derby weeks on record ended with a sultry Oaks day. The course had become so hard as to be positively dangerous, and the dust flew about in very unpleasant clouds. Still the last-named infliction was the only drawback to a very pleasant holiday, and the attendance of spectators was decidedly above the average. The presence of Incognita frightened away nearly all opposition for the Acorn Stakes, and long odds were laid upon her. It is clear, however, that she by no means relishes galloping upon a macadamised road, and Cannon had to call upon her in earnest to stall off a resolute challenge from Conrad. Chevronel (9 st. 7 lb.) got off badly in the Glasgow Plate, and just failed to throw his third main, as he could not quite reach the useful little Spurs (6 st. 4 lb.). Contrary to general expectation, a field of twelve was mustered for the Oaks; but the more one looked at them the more certain did it seem that Thebais would add this race to her One Thousand victory. Thora did not appear in the paddock, and when it transpired that she had unfortunately gone amiss, odds of 10 to 1 "bar one" were offered all over the ring. The French representative, Perplexité, made no friends; and, in spite of having run second in the Prix de Diane, scarcely had a price in the quotations; while it was only the presence of Archer in the saddle that found backers for the very moderate Queen's Message, whose name was not on the card. Nothing except the favourite could compare with Myra, who was far fitter than when she ran so badly at Newmarket. Traveller's Joy was started to make the running for Thebais; but, as she could not go fast enough, the favourite went to the front before much more than half the distance had been traversed. Even at this point seven or eight of the field were hopelessly out of it; and, when they were fairly in the straight, the race was a mere match between Lucy Glitters and Thebais, the former of whom held a lead of about a couple of lengths. It was plain, however, that Fordham had the race in his own hands; and, gradually closing with the north country filly, he came away opposite the Royal Stand, and won in the commonest of canters by three lengths. Myra was a very bad third; and the others straggled in at intervals. The time was 2 min. 46 sec., four seconds quicker than Iroquois took to run the same course on the Wednesday; and, without attaching any importance to this fact, we think it is very lucky for the owners of the placed horses in the Derby that Thebais is not engaged in the Leger. This was her twelfth successive victory; and she is about the best stayer that Hermit has yet produced. Fordham thus scored his fifth Oaks, having previously won the race on Summerside, Formosa, Gamos, and Reine. There is no getting over the fact that the Derby and Oaks combined did not engender half the excitement that was felt as to the result of the Epsom Gold Cup, which was reduced to a match between Bend Or and Robert the Devil, and in which they fought their great Derby battle over again. When they appeared on the course, it was plain that Bend Or was the fitter of the two, and he settled down to his preliminary canter in the more business-like style, as "Robert" was a little fretful and fidgetty, and appeared above himself. He laboured, moreover, under the disadvantage of having to make his own running. However, he did this in rare style, and held a lead that varied from two to three lengths until they were fairly in the straight. Then Bend Or gradually drew up to him, and, getting him in trouble at the Bell, won very easily by a neck. On returning to weigh in, Archer was received with even more enthusiasm than on the Wednesday, and the victory appeared to be a wonderfully popular one, though Cannon and the defeated cruck came in for almost as much cheering as the victors. After such a race as this, the two remaining events on the card felt very flat.

Owing to the unfortunate rupture between the committee of the Notts County Club and seven of the professionals, in which the sympathy of every unprejudiced person must be with the former, Notts could only send out a weak team against Lancashire, and was defeated by ten wickets. Messrs. Wood (50) and Hornby (41) did most of the scoring for the winners, and Watson was in rare form with the ball, taking no less than eleven wickets for 86 runs. On the other side, Gunn (49) batted exceedingly well. Yorkshire v. Surrey resulted in the disastrous defeat of the latter by an innings and 217 runs. Mr. Lucas (62) played a fine innings, but he received no support, as none of the others could make anything of Peate's bowling, which proved fatal to no less than fourteen of them, at the small expense of 77 runs. Ullyett (112), Lockwood (109), and Bates (55) were the chief contributors to the Yorkshire score of 388. The match between Oxford University and the Gentlemen of England resulted in some heavy scoring, and was left drawn at a very interesting stage, the University having four wickets to fall, and wanting 59 runs. Leslie (36 and 93), Whiting (80), Wilson (51), and Thornton (54), all scored freely for Oxford; and, on the other side, I. D. Walker (20 and 88), A. J. Webbe (30 and 112), and Vernon (119) did most of the run-getting.

BENEVOLENT OBJECTS.

The annual meeting of the Indigent Blind Visiting Society, 27, Red Lion-square, will be held, by the permission of Lord and Lady Leigh, at 37, Portman-square, next Wednesday afternoon—Lord Shaftesbury, president of the society, in the chair.

Earl Cairns presided at the annual meeting of the East-End Juvenile Mission (Dr. Barnardo's Homes), and said he looked upon such institutions as the salt of London, that saved the metropolis from the destruction which always attended upon evil. The meeting was held on the 1st inst. at Exeter Hall, which was densely crowded.

On the same day, the forty-second annual meeting of the members and supporters of the Shipwrecked Fishermen and Mariners' Royal Benevolent Society was held at the City Terminus Hotel, the Duke of Marlborough presiding. The total number of persons relieved last year was 13,134. The chairman said he was glad to find that the funds of the society were in a fairly flourishing condition, although the late year had been of a most disastrous character to mariners.

Baron Pollock presided on the 2nd inst. at the forty-ninth annual festival of the United Law Clerks' Society, which was held in the Middle Temple Hall, when subscriptions amounting to about £400 were announced. During the past year the receipts were rather more than £4700, against an expenditure of less than £3400. The balance is added to the investments of the society, which now amount to over £64,200. The number of applications for assistance in the twelve months was sixty-three, the great majority of which have been from non-members or their widows, who had never contributed to the funds. Of these, fifty had been found to be deserving and in need, and relief was accordingly granted to them.

The half-yearly general meeting of the subscribers and members of the friends of the London General Porters' Benevolent Association was held in the evening at the Guildhall Tavern, Mr. F. T. Isitt presiding. From the report of the board of management it appeared that the income for the past half year had been £2134, of which £1281 was from donations. During the past six months ninety-nine pensioners had been upon the funds. The fourteenth annual dinner, held on April 8, at which the newly-elected president, Mr. S. Morley, M.P., presided, resulted in the collection of £1789. The half-yearly election of pensioners was held in the evening at the Guildhall Tavern, when six additional pensioners were elected from a list of fifteen candidates, making 105 upon the funds, the payments to whom amount to £2000 per annum.

The ceremony of laying the memorial-stone of the new hall of the Orphan Working School, situated at Haverstock-hill, was performed on the 2nd inst. by Mr. Charles Tyler, chairman of the estates committee, in the presence of a large number of friends of the institution. The hall thus founded owes its origin to the munificence of Sir James Tyler, a member of the committee, and will be a most useful and valuable addition to the establishment, made at a cost to the donor of £2500. The new hall will contain about 900 persons, and the intention is that it should be used for religious services and for lectures and public gatherings connected with the school. Some idea of the magnitude and wide beneficence, and at the same time of the pressing needs, of the institution may be formed from the fact that £300 a week is required for the maintenance of the boys and girls.

Mr. W. A. Burdett-Coutts Bartlett presided on Tuesday night at the annual dinner of the Drovers' Benevolent Institution, at which Baroness Burdett-Coutts, Sir Francis and Lady Burdett, Mr. Mundella, M.P., Sir Garnet Wolseley, Admiral Sir H. Keppel, Mr. Sheriff Waterlow, Sir L. Henderson, and Mr. Geo. Augustus Sala were among the celebrities present. In answer to the toast "The Press," Mr. Sala made one of his racy speeches, concluding thus:—"I am very glad and proud to be here and able personally to tell you how much the press, in its social aspect, has the interests at heart of the charity of which the noble and illustrious lady who sits at her gifted husband's side and has been the auditor—the delighted auditor—of his polished and graceful oratory is the revered patroness. All that touches drovers and drivers and shepherds—all that touches cattle and sheep and horses and mules—aye, and dogs and cats, and indeed the whole brute creation, is the province of the social journalist. They enter into the great scheme for the prevention, not only by prosecution and punishment, but by precept, expostulation, and example, of the abominably degrading and brutal vice of cruelty to animals. For years and years my brethren and I in the social columns of journalism have done our very best to further the efforts of the admirable society which systematically calls on the law—the too often laggard and lethargic law—to protect dumb animals, and to exercise its rigour towards the wretches who torture them. We may be sneered at as sentimentalists, sensationalists, and humanitarians; but, so far as I am concerned, I do not intend to cease being sentimental and sensational on the subject of cruelty to animals until decaying eyesight altogether fails me, until my hand loses its cunning and my brain its capacity, and the night comes 'when no man can work.'" Many other toasts were given. The drover's work must often make him thirsty, one would think, and yet, according to the unimpeachable testimony of the police, he is a sober man. Colonel Henderson, speaking at the annual dinner, said he had asked one of his superintendents what was the general character of the men, and his reply was that he had never seen a drunken drover, and the public-houses built round the cattle market were all failures. The subscriptions and donations amounted to £520.

A Scottish gathering in aid of the Scottish charities in London will be held at Stamford-bridge Grounds next Saturday, June 18. The Duke of Athole is the president of the gathering.

We are asked to announce that at the annual grand fancy-dress ball, on the 27th inst., for the benefit of the Royal Caledonian Asylum and the Royal Scottish Hospital, the Highland Quadrille will be taken by the Countess of Lindsay and Mrs. Campbell Munro, and that the fancy-dress quadrille will be formed by Lady Catherine Bannerman and Lady Kilmarnock.

A DAY IN THE COUNTRY.

Appeals are made for funds to give a day in the country to the children and others connected with the following schools and institutions:—

The Rev. R. S. Jukes, 20, Rosoman-street, Clerkenwell, earnestly pleads for assistance to enable him to give the children and poor of his mission a day in the country. The district has a population of 6000, all poor, and is very far from any park or open space.

Assistance is requested for four hundred poor children in the Ben Jonson Mission School, Harford-street, Stepney. Donations may be sent to Mr. George H. Phillips, hon. secretary, 13, Plimsoll-street, East India-road, Poplar.

Donations on behalf of the London-street Sunday school, Bethnal-green, will be acknowledged by the superintendent, Mr. C. Ward, 42, Finnis-street, Bethnal-green.

The Rev. S. Robinson, St. Andrew's Vicarage, New Kent-road, solicits help to take 500 children and 150 mothers for a day in the country. Population 9500, including a part of Kent-street, all poor.

For three hundred extremely poor children in the South London Ragged Schools and Mission, Collingwood-street, Blackfriars, by the secretary, Mr. M. E. Watson, 3, Jessamine-villas, Heber-road, Dulwich.

It is desired to give the children of the Sunday schools and the poor women belonging to the mothers' meeting at the Clare Market Mission their annual excursion into the country. Donations will be acknowledged by the Rev. T. J. Scott, Mission Curate, Clare Market Mission House, Strand.

Serious sickness has prevailed in the district of St. Andrew's, Hoxton, and a day in the country is much needed by the children. Address the Vicar, the Rev. Henry Hayman, 24, De Beauvoir-road, Kingsland.

Donations will be most thankfully received on behalf of seven hundred poor Sunday school children of Christ Church, Southwark, by the treasurer of the schools, Mr. G. Tooley, 69, Bankside, or by the Rev. A. H. De Fontaine, Rector of Christ Church, Southwark.

Mr. T. Spink, 102, Crawford-street, or Mr. Montagu Holmes, 26, Warwick-road, Maida-vale, will be glad to receive contributions on behalf of two hundred poor children in the Little Earl-street and Lintonplace (Lisson-grove) School.

For three hundred poor children at St. Agatha's Mission, Shoreditch, donations will be received by the Vicar, the Rev. F. C. Wills.

At St. Mark's Sunday school, Old Ford, where there are three hundred children, any donation, however small, will be acknowledged by the superintendent, Mr. C. Haynes, 66, Hassett-road, Homerton.

Last, and certainly not least in importance, Lord Shaftesbury makes his annual appeal on behalf of a treat in the country to the children taught in the Ragged School Union. Contributions to renew this treat will be thankfully acknowledged by John Kirk, secretary, Ragged School Union, Exeter Hall.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

THE

BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS,

A NEW JOURNAL FOR THE YOUNG.

The Proprietors of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS issued the first Illustrated Weekly Newspaper for Boys, price One Penny, on Wednesday, April 6, 1881. THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS is a Journal full of Entertainment and Information for Youth; and, at the same time, a Paper which Parents can with confidence place in the hands of their Children.

CAPTAIN MAYNE REID'S "LOST MOUNTAIN." A New Romance in the best style of this famous Author, is continued in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS.

"SQUEE BIFFEN" dives for Treasure in this humorous serial story, continued in No. 10 for June 8.

GEORGE STEPHENSON: A CENTENARY PORTRAIT and LIFE of "THE FATHER OF RAILWAYS" appear in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS for June 3. Post-free, 1½d.

WESTMINSTER BOYS, King's College Boys, and Christ's College Boys will see themselves as others see them—at Stamford-bridge—in the BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS for June 3. Post-free, 1½d.

LIFE AFLOAT OF THE ROYAL MIDDIES.—A series of original articles, illustrated by the author, and containing several fresh anecdotes concerning our sailor Princes, was started in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS for May 25, and is concluded in the issue for June 8.

THE SECOND MONTHLY PART of THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS is now being published, containing the four Numbers for May, stitched in a coloured wrapper, the continuation of "THE LOST MOUNTAIN," and "SQUEE BIFFEN," with complete Stories of Afghanistan and Arctic-land, by John Latey, Jun., Jottings from a Middy's Journal, and the Sport and News of the Month. Price Sixpence; Post-free, Eightpence.

SUBSCRIPTION TO THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS.
FOR THE UNITED KINGDOM:
Three Months, 1s. 8d.; Six Months, 3s. 3d.; Twelve Months, 6s. 6d.
ABROAD:
Post-free to any part of Europe, United States of America, Canada, and Egypt, for One Year, 6s. 8d.; to India, Ceylon, China, and Japan, for One Year, 10s. 10d. Elsewhere Abroad, One Year, 8s. 8d.

All subscriptions to be paid in advance direct by Post-office order, payable at the East Strand Post-office, to THOMAS FOX, 10, Milford-lane, Strand, London.

Third Edition, pp. 96, 1s., or 12 stamps,

SUMMER CATARRH or HAY FEVER: its Causes, Symptoms, and Treatment. By GEORGE MOORE, M.D., L.R.C.P.L.
JAMES EPPS and Co., 170, Piccadilly; and 48, Threadneedle-street.

Eighth Edition, cloth, post-free, 32 stamps,

DR. BARR MEADOWS on Skin Disease.
Remarks on the Abuse of Arsenic, and specifics.
London: G. HILL, 154, Westminster-road.

Fourth Edition, crown 8vo, cloth, 2s. 6d.,

EPILEPSY, THE TONIC TREATMENT OF. By WALTER TYRRELL, M.R.C.S.
London: DAVID BOGUE, 3, St. Martin's-place, W.C.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

AT ALL LIBRARIES.

Just Out,

LETTERS OF PROSPER MERRIMÉE TO PANIZZI.

EDITED BY LOUIS FAGAN,
Author of
"The Life of Sir Anthony Panizzi."
Two Vols., demy, handsomely bound, 25s.

CAPT. MAYNE REID'S NEW NOVEL.

THE FREE LANCES.

A ROMANCE OF THE MEXICAN VALLEY.

By Capt. MAYNE REID.

3 Vols., 31s. 6d.

"There is an ardent love story underrunning the narrative. The fair Ysabel and her friend the Condesa being as charming and quick witted in wiles for their friends' behoof as we remember the Senoritas of old."—Athenæum.

REMINGTON and Co., 136, New Bond-street, W.

NEW NOVELS AT ALL LIBRARIES.

LIEUTENANT BARNABAS. By FRANK BARRETT. 3 vols.

THE CAMERONIANS. By JAMES GRANT. 3 vols.

TWO PRETTY GIRLS. By Miss M. A. LEWIS. 3 vols.

AN OCEAN FREE LANCE. By W. CLARK RUSSELL. 3 vols.
RICHARD BENTLEY and SON, New Burlington-street.

Now ready, crown 4to, price 12s.,

A METHOD OF TEACHING THE DEAF AND DUMB SPEECH, LIP-READING, and LANGUAGE. With Illustrations and Exercises. By THOMAS ARNOLD.
London: SMITH, ELDER, and Co., 15, Waterloo-place.

NEW NOVEL BY THE AUTHOR OF "MOLLY BAWN."
At all the Libraries, in 3 vols., post 8vo,

MRS. GEOFFREY. By the Author of "Molly Bawn," "Phyllis," "Beauty's Daughters," &c.
London: SMITH, ELDER, and Co., 15, Waterloo-place.

Now ready, in 2 vols., with Illustrations, 21s.,

LIFE IN WESTERN INDIA. By Mrs. GUTHRIE, Author of "Through Russia," &c.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

MESSER'S BRITISH WILD FLOWERS. A New and Rapid Method of Studying Wild Flowers by Analytical Illustrations. "We cordially recommend it."—Journal of Horticulture. Cloth, 4to, 6d.
D. BOGUE, St. Martin's-place, Trafalgar-square, W.C.

ANGLO-AMERICAN METHOD; or, A New and Infallible System to LEARN in Three Months, how to Read, Write, and Pronounce correctly the FRENCH LANGUAGE. By J. DE FALLON, B.A.; K.L.H. Cloth, 8vo, pp. 791, price 8s.—London: DULAU and Co., 37, Soho-square.

PRACTICAL LESSONS IN PAINTING ON CHINA, PORCELAIN, EARTHENWARE, &c. By Madame LA BARONNE DE MAUDET. From the French by GUSTAVE A. BOUVIER. 4th Edition. Price 1s.; post-free, 1s. 1d.—London: LECHERTIER, BARBE, and Co., 60, Regent-street.

THE NEW FASHION-BOOK for 1881.

"It is a complete index to the Fashionable Novelties of the day, furnishing Make-up Costumes of all kind is choicest and newest."—Morning Post.

"The Manual for the Current Season has just appeared, and will prove useful to those who desire to be au courant with the latest modes. The Illustrations comprise—Travelling, Walking, Evening, Dinner, Reception Dresses, Millinery, Laces, and Children's Frocks."—The Queen.

"Contains a vast deal of valuable information to ladies on the important subject of dress; the character of materials and the tailor's art are always adapted for the present season are fully described. The illustrations are numerous and are artistically executed."—Court Circular.

"The New Number is now ready. Post-free for 12 stamps.
DEBENHAM and FREEBODY, Wigmore-street, and Welbeck-street, London, W.

Second Edition, Illustrated. In paper cover, 2s. 6d.; cloth, 3s. 6d.,

FANCY DRESSES DESCRIBED; or, What to Wear at Fancy Balls. By AHDERN HOLT.

"What to wear at a fancy ball is often a question of momentous interest, and it is answered in every particular by a little book called 'Fancy Dresses Described.'"—Daily Telegraph.

"The descriptions are practical, and the costumes are fully described. The illustrations are numerous and are artistically executed."—Court Circular.

"This little manual of What to Wear at Fancy Balls will supply a real want."—Vanity Fair.

DEBENHAM and FREEBODY, Wigmore-street and Welbeck-street; Wyman and SONS, Great Queen-street; and all Booksellers.

JUST PUBLISHED, post-free, 2 stamps,

DYSPEPSIA and the SEVERER FORMS OF INDIGESTION. A small pamphlet on these distressing complaints and their complete cure. Published by the Author, RICHARD KING, Esq., late Surgeon R.N., 22, Warwick-st., Rugby.

Third Edition, price 1s., post-free,

THE New Electrolytic Treatment of Cancer and of Simple Tumours. By G. EDGELOW, M.D.
NELSON and Co., 23, Duke-street, Grosvenor-square, W.

TRADE JOURNAL FOR BUILDERS AND ENGINEERS.

BUILDING AND ENGINEERING TIMES. Saturday, Twopence. Devoted to the interests of Architects, Builders, Contractors, and Engineers. Specimen copy, post-free, 2½d. Sold by all Newsagents. Office, 154, Aldersgate-street.—London, E.C.

COLLECTIONS of PHOTOGRAPHS, PRINTS, DRAWINGS, SKETCHES, &c., Mounted, Remounte., Framed, Titled, and put into order, and bound into convenient Volumes, Portfolioed, and Framed.
Agents for Rome and shipped, of India: Stillfried and Andersen, of Japan; Laurent, of Spain; and others.
Portraits Celebrities, large and small, plain and coloured. Photographs Enlarged, Coloured, and Framed.
Amateurs' Negatives Printed.
MARION and CO., 22 and 23, Soho-square, London.

SCRAPS for SCREENS and SCRAP-BOOKS (Coloured).—Immense variety of Flowers, Figures, Birds, and Landscapes, from 1s. per sheet; 1 doz. assorted, 10s. 6d. London: WM. BARNARD, 119, Edgware-road.

WHAT IS YOUR CREST and WHAT IS YOUR MOTTO? Send name and county to CULLETON'S Heraldic Office. Plain sketch, 3s. 6d.; coloured, 7s. 6d. The arms of man and wife blended. Crest engraved on seals, rings, books, and steel dies, 8s. 6d. Gold seal, with crest, 20s. Solid Gold Ring, 18-carat, Hall-marked, with crest, 42s. Manual of Heraldry, 400 engravings, post-free.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

CULLETON'S GUINEA BOX of STATIONERY contains a Ream of the very best Paper and 500 Envelopes, all stamped in the most elegant way with Crest and Motto, Monogram, or Address, and the engraving of Steel Die included. Sent to any part for P.O. order.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

VISITING CARDS, by CULLETON. Fifty best quality, 2s. 6d., post-free, including the Engraving of Copper-plate. Wedding Cards, 50 each, 5s. Embossed Envelopes, with Maiden Name, 12s. 6d.—T. CULLETON, Seal Engraver, 25, Cranbourn-street, St. Martin's-lane, W.C.

VITREMANIE, superseding Diaphanie. An easy and inexpensive method of decorating windows in churches, public buildings, and private houses, by which may be produced the rich colouring and beautiful designs equal in appearance to real stained glass. Handbook of Designs and full instructions, 1s. 1d. Boxes, comprising designs, &c., at 2s., 3s. 6d., 42s. Particulars post-free. Sole inventors, J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, London. W.

The List of Applications for both Town and Country will close on or before TUESDAY, JUNE 14.

THE LOMBARDY ROAD RAILWAYS COMPANY, LIMITED.

Capital £175,000, in 17,500 Shares of £10 each,

Upon which Shares the Tramways and General Works Company guarantee a Dividend at the rate of Six per cent per annum upon the amount of Capital for the time being paid up, for two years from July 1, 1881, payable half-yearly.

| | PAYABLE— | |
|---|---|---|
| £1 per Share | .. .. .. | on Application. |
| 4 ,, | .. .. .. | on Allotment. |
| 5 ,, | .. .. .. | on Aug. 2, 1881. |

DIRECTORS.
BRACKSTONE BAKER, Esq., Belmont Park, Lee, Kent.
EDWARD J. HALSEY, Esq., 77, Cornhill, E.C., Director Midland Railway of Canada.
JOHN TAYLOR, Esq. (late of Buenos Ayres), 1, Clanricarde-gardens, W.
CYRIL J. WILSON, Esq., 9, Manson-place, Queen's-gate, S.W., Director of the Anglo-Universal Bank.
BANKERS.
LONDON AND WESTMINSTER BANK.
ENGINEER.
JAMES LEVY, Esq., M.I.C.E.
SOLICITORS.
Messrs. ASHURST, MORRIS, CRISP, and CO.
SECRETARY (PRO TEM.).
RICHARD FENNELLY, Esq.
OFFICES,
10, TOKENHOUSE-YARD, LONDON, E.C.

PROSPECTUS.

The object of this Company is to acquire two lines of light railway in Lombardy (1) from Milan to Gitisano, 134 miles in length, and (2) from Soncino to St. Angelo, passing through Crema and Lodi, 24½ miles in length, for both of which lines concessions have been granted by the Provincial Authorities.

The lines are shown on the accompanying map, and attention is especially directed to the annexed report of the Company's Engineer.

The latter of these lines is completed (with the exception of a short length at the St. Angelo end), and is already in operation. The line from Milan to Gitisano is being constructed, and will shortly be ready for opening.

Owing to the want of adequate railway communication of the ordinary character in this and other districts of Italy, concessions are granted by the Provincial Authorities for the right of constructing those light Railways along the sides of the broad military roads which intersect the country, where they do not interfere with the ordinary traffic, and practically therefore an exclusive use of the line for the purposes of the Railway is secured.

These lines have this special advantage over ordinary railways, that the great cost of purchasing land and carrying out heavy earthworks is avoided, thereby enabling larger profits to be realised upon the smaller amount of capital embarked.

Some hundreds of miles of these Road Railways have been and are being constructed, with both Italian and foreign capital, and some of the lines already in operation are earning large dividends.

The fares and rates are fixed by the Government, and are on a uniform and liberal scale. The lines are of the ordinary English gauge, and are worked by small locomotives. They can be managed very economically, as there are stations only in the principal towns, the cars stopping in the villages and along the country roads where required. The rate of wages current in the country is moreover very moderate, and it is the opinion of the Company's Engineer that the working expenses will not exceed 50 per cent of the gross receipts.

The "Plains of Lombardy" form a rich and promising field for this mode of communication, which is almost unknown in England. The country is exceptionally level. Large towns and villages—all busy centres of agriculture and industry—succeed each other every few miles on the Government and Communal roads, and the country on either side is thickly studded with farms and homesteads.

The agricultural produce of the district is very large. On the irrigated plains, which yield several grass crops in a year, vast numbers of cattle are reared, and flax, hemp, rice, maize, fruit, cheese, wines, and silk are produced and exported.

The passenger traffic is not less remarkable. Owing to the numerous markets and fairs, some of which last for many days, and the constant recurrence of fête-days and holidays, the population is in constant movement; and the traffic on the roads is almost ceaseless.

THE TRAMWAYS AND GENERAL WORKS COMPANY, to whom the concessions for the lines have been granted, and by whom they are constructed, have agreed to sell the same (which are for a period of fifty years from 1878), and the line already completed, and also to finish and deliver that now in course of construction, with the necessary engines, rolling stock, depots, and equipments complete for the sum of £162,000, being at the rate of £200 per mile.

The vendors are so satisfied with the results of working a portion of the Soncino-St. Angelo line for a short period, and with the prospects of the Milan-Gitisano line, that they have agreed to guarantee a dividend of Six per cent per annum on the paid up capital for two years from the July 1 next.

The vendors are now actively pushing forward the works on the remainder of the line from St. Angelo to Soncino, which will be ready and fully equipped, upon the same favourable terms as those stated above, by the present lines have been obtained. This extension will give continuous communication between the important manufacturing Town of Brescia and the University Town of Pavia.

The Soncino-St. Angelo line is to be transferred on June 30, and the Milan-Gitisano line is to be handed over completed and fully equipped ready for traffic on or before Aug. 15 next.

The agreement for giving effect to this arrangement is dated May 31, 1881, and is made between the Tramways and General Works Company and Richard Pumelly, as a Trustee, on behalf of this Company. Copies of this Agreement and of the Contract and Memorandum and Articles of Association, may be seen at the Offices of the Solicitors, Messrs. Ashurst, Morris, Crisp, and Co., 6, Old Jewry, London, E.C.

The vendors undertake to defray all the preliminary expenses of the Company up to the first allotment of shares.

If no allotment is made the deposit will be returned in full.

Applications for Shares must be made on the accompanying Form to the Bankers, at the Head Office, Ludgate-hill, E.C.

Prospectuses and Forms of Application for Shares can be obtained of the Bankers, and at the Offices of the Company, 10, Tokenhouse-yard, E.C.

June 3, 1881.

BANK OF NEW ZEALAND
(Incorporated by Act of General Assembly, July 20, 1861).
Bankers to the New Zealand Government.
Capital subscribed and paid up, £1,000,000.
Reserve Fund, £350,000.
Head Office—Auckland.

BRANCHES AND AGENCIES.
In Australia—Melbourne, Sydney, and Newcastle.
In Fiji—Levuka.
In New Zealand—Auckland, Blenheim, Christchurch, Dunedin, Invercargill, Napier, Nelson, New Plymouth, Picton, Wellington, and at eighty-two other towns and places throughout the Colony.
The Bank grants Drafts on all the principal Towns and Seaports, and transacts every description of banking business connected with New Zealand, Australia, and Fiji on the most favourable terms.
The London Office RECEIVES FIXED DEPOSITS of £20 and upwards, rates and particulars of which can be ascertained on application. F. LARKWORTHY, Managing Director.
No. 1, Queen Victoria-street, Mansion House, E.C.

SUN FIRE-OFFICE, Threadneedle-street, E.C.; Charing-cross, S.W.; Oxford-street (corner of Vere-street), W.
Established 1710.
Home and Foreign Insurances effected.
Sum Insured in 1880, £262,745,653.
FRANCIS B. ORMSTON, Secretary.

PARIS. GRAND HOTEL. PARIS.
12—BOULEVARD DES CAPUCINS—12.
Most carefully reorganised under New Management. Seven Hundred Rooms and Saloons, from £1 per day.
Reduction in prices: Luncheons, from Eleven to One o'Clock, 5 francs, inclusive wine, coffee, and cognac.
Dinners, with Orchestra, at 5. Half-past Six o'Clock, 8 francs, inclusive wine.
Café and Restaurant opening into the Court of Honour.
Café, Divan, Billiards, Smoking-Room, Newspapers of all countries. Post and Telegraph Offices and Booking to the Theatres, Baths, Lift.
For a prolonged sojourn, reduced terms, as per agreement.

SMART'S WRITING INSTITUTION, 97B, Quadrant, Regent-street (entrance in Swallow-street). Open Three Hours Singularly. Every style of writing taught, learnt, and taught at any time suiting their own convenience. Lessons one hour each. Six Lessons, 10s. 6d. extras. Improvement guaranteed in eight to twelve easy lessons. Separate room for ladies. Apply to Mr. Smart, as above.

METROPOLITAN HOSPITAL SUNDAY FUND. Patron—Her Majesty the QUEEN. HOSPITAL SUNDAY (JUNE 26) next. Contributions received at England and Post-office Orders made payable to the Secretary, Mr. Henry N. Custance, should be sent to the Mansion House.

THROAT AFFECTIONS and HOARSENESS.—All suffering from Irritation of the Throat and Hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES. These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable Chemists in this country, at 1s. 1½d. per Box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN and SONS, Boston, U.S. European Depôt, 39, Farringdon-road, London.

ALFRED B. PEARCE, 39, Ludgate-hill, INVITES INSPECTION of all that is new and beautiful in useful and ornamental CHINA and GLASS, including

| | s. | d. |
|---|---|---|
| Dinner Services (Cottage); 50 pieces | 13 | 6 |
| Dinner Services for 12 persons (108 pieces) | 35 | 0 |
| China Dessert Services for 12 persons, Gilt, 17s.; Ungilt | 14 | 0 |
| Gilt China Tea services, 40 pieces, 12s. .. .. 28 pieces | 8 | 6 |
| China Breakfast Sets for 6 persons, 11s. .. for 8 persons | 7 | 0 |
| Toilet Services (for washstands), 4s. 6d., 5s. 6d., and | 3 | 9 |
| White Stone Jugs, "The direction" .. .. .. set of three | 1 | 3 |

All really excellent patterns.

| | | |
|---|---|---|
| Quart Decanters, good cut glass, 5s. per pair .. .. plain | 4 | 0 |
| Claret Decanters (with handle), 4s. each .. .. and | 3 | 0 |
| Plain light Claret Glasses, well made, 8s. per doz. .. and | 4 | 6 |
| Wine Glasses, plain or cut, Ports and sherries, per doz. | 1 | 9 |
| Engraved Wine Glasses do. do. | 3 | 6 |
| Hock Glasses, ruby bowl, 6s. per doz. .. .. green bowl | 3 | 0 |
| Tumblers, cut, 3s. 3d.; plain, 2s. 9d. moulded, per doz. | 1 | 6 |
| Plain light Finger-Glasses, taper shape .. .. per doz. | 6 | 6 |

Other articles proportionately cheap.
Descriptive Catalogue post-free.
ALFRED B. PEARCE, 39, LUDGATE-HILL. Established 1760.

JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS' PATENT SOSTENENTE PIANOS have gained the highest awards at all the recent International Exhibitions, including the two First Prizes, Melbourne, 1881; the First Prize, Queensland, 1880; the two First Special Prizes, Sydney, 1880; the Legion of Honour, Paris, 1878, &c. For SALE, Hire, and on the Three-Years' System.—18, 20, Wigmore-st., London, W. Illustrated Lists free.
JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS' PIANOS for SALE, Hire, and on the Three-Years' System.—18, 20, Wigmore-street; and the Brinsmead Works, Grafton-road, N.W. Lists post-free.

TRELOAR and SONS' LUDGATE-HILL.

MATS. FLOORCLOTH.

LINOLEUM. CARPETS.

TRELOAR and SONS, 69, Ludgate-hill, were established 1832. They are the only firm in London who deal exclusively in Floor Coverings. They have been awarded seven Prize Medals, including one at Paris, 1878. The Fine Arts Galleries at the International Exhibitions of 1851, 1855, 1862, 1867, 1871, and 1878, were covered with matting specially manufactured by them.

CHUBB'S SAFES FOR JEWELS, DEEDS, PLATE, BULLION, &c.

CHUBB'S LOCKS AND LATCHES, CHESTS, BOXES, &c.

CHUBB'S ILLUSTRATED PRICE-LISTS POST-FREE.

CHUBB and SON, 128, Queen Victoria-street, E.C.; and 68, St. James's-street, London.

EPPS'S COCOA.
GRATEFUL and COMFORTING.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operation of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.
JAMES EPPS and CO., HOMŒOPATHIC CHEMISTS.
Also, EPPS'S CHOCOLATE ESSENCE, for Afternoon Use.

JAY'S, Regent-street.

SUMMER SILKS.—Very durable, light, soft, elastic, and will neither crumple nor crush. Black and also ecker and ardoise colours. Sold as per yard, or made up in the most fashionable costumes of the season, at from 2½ guineas each costume, including silk material for the bodice.
JAY'S, Regent-street.

NEW COSTUMES FOR SUMMER WEAR.
Light, but not transparent.

MESSRS. JAY have a variety of charming Costumes prepared for the Summer season, adapted from French designs, and suitable either for ladies who are in mourning or for those who wear black dresses from choice.
JAY'S, Regent-street.

MOURNING.—Messrs. JAY'S Experienced Assistants travel to any part of the kingdom, free of expense to purchasers. They take dresses and millinery with them, besides patterns of materials, all marked in plain figures, and at the same price as if purchased at the Warehouse in Regent-street. Funerals at stated charges conducted in London or country.
JAY'S,
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
REGENT-STREET, W.

SHIRTS.—FORD'S EUREKA SHIRT. Perfect fit. Pattern of the new French Negatives and Oxford Mat Shirts, with collars attached, or two collars attached, sent by post to select from on receipt of two stamps. Prices from 27s. to 40s. the half-dozen.—R. FORD and CO., 41, Poultry, London.

PRATT'S LADIES' BELTS AND ABDOMINAL SUPPORTS
ARE CONFIDENTLY RECOMMENDED AS THE
MOST COMFORTABLE AND EFFICIENT EVER MADE
Apply to the Ladies' Attendant,
J. C. PRATT,
420, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON, W.

NUDA VERITAS.—GREY HAIR restored by this valuable specific to its original shade, after which it grows the natural colour, not grey. Used as a dressing, it causes growth and arrests falling. The most harmless and effectual restorer extant. One trial will convince it has no equal. Price 10s. 6d., of all chemists and Hairdressers. Testimonials post-free.—R. HOVENDEN and SONS, London.

ROBARE'S AUREOLINE, or GOLDEN HAIR WASH.—For producing the beautiful golden colour so much admired. Warranted perfectly harmless. Price 5s. 6d. and 10s. 6d., of all principal Perfumers and Chemists throughout the world.—Agents, R. HOVENDEN and SONS, London.

THE COURT HAIR DESTROYER.—The only safe-covered, harmless, only effectual remedy for superfluous hair. 3s. 6d.; post, privately-packed, 4s. stamps, of the inventor, John Leon, 19, Portcous-road, London, W.; or Chemists.

TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON, For CONSTIPATION, BILE, HEADACHE.

TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON, A LAXATIVE AND REFRESHING FRUIT LOZENGE, UNIVERSALLY PRESCRIBED BY THE FACULTY.

TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON.
2s. 6d. per Box, stamp included.
Sold by all Chemists and Druggists.
Wholesale—E. GRILLON, 69, Queen-street, London, E.C.

"I CAN bear testimony to the efficacy of DR. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS in ASTHMA, Contumption, and Pulmonary Complaints."—J. S. Bruzaud, M.P.S., 65, Regent-road, Salford. They taste pleasantly.

HAY FEVER or SUMMER CATARRH. The most effective remedy for this distressing affection is EPPS'S ANTHOXANTHUM, administered as spray. The relief to the irritated membrane is almost instantaneous. In Bottles, 2s. 9d. and 4s. 6d. (by post, 36 or 57 stamps), labelled JAMES EPPS and CO., 48, Threadneedle-st.; and 170, Piccadilly.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and OINTMENT. The Pills purify the blood, correct all disorders of the liver, stomach, kidneys, and bowels. The Ointment is unrivalled in the cure of bad legs, old wounds, gout, and rheumatism.

"KEATING'S POWDER" kills BUGS, Moths, Fleas, Beetles, and all Insects (perfectly unrivalled). Harmless to everything but Insects. 1½d., 6d. and 1s.

NEW MUSIC.

PATIENCE. An Æsthetic Opera. By W. S. GILBERT and ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Now being performed at the Opera Comique with enormous success.
Vocal Score .. .. .. .. 5s.
Pianoforte Solo .. .. .. .. 3s.
All the following sent post-free for half price.
DANCE MUSIC BY CHARLES D'ALBERT.

| | | | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Patience Waltz .. | .. | .. | .. | .. | Solo or Duet | 4 | 0 |
| Patience Lancers .. | .. | .. | .. | .. | .. | 4 | 0 |
| Patience Quadrille .. | .. | .. | .. | .. | .. | 4 | 0 |
| Patience Polka .. | .. | .. | .. | .. | .. | 4 | 0 |

VOCAL MUSIC.

| | | | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Hey Willow Waly O! .. | .. | .. | .. | Song or Duet, each | 4 | 0 |
| A most Intense Young Man .. | .. | .. | .. | .. | .. | 4 | 0 |
| Silver'd is the Raven Hair .. | .. | .. | .. | .. | .. | 4 | 0 |
| When I first put this Uniform on .. | .. | .. | .. | .. | .. | 4 | 0 |
| The Silver Churn .. | .. | .. | .. | .. | .. | 4 | 0 |
| Love is a Plaintive Song .. | .. | .. | .. | .. | .. | 4 | 0 |

PIANOFORTE ARRANGEMENTS.

| | | | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Boyton Smith's Fantasia .. | .. | .. | .. | .. | .. | 4 | 0 |
| Kuhe's Fantasia .. | .. | .. | .. | .. | .. | 4 | 0 |
| Smallwood's Easy Fantasias, 1, 2, 3 .. | .. | .. | .. | .. | each | 3 | 0 |
| Fred. Godfrey's Grand Selection. (As played by all the Military Bands) .. | .. | .. | .. | .. | .. | 4 | 0 |

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street, W., and 15, Poultry, E.C.

OLIVETTE. New Comic Opera. Enormous success at the Strand Theatre. Adapted by H. B. Farnie; Music by AUDRAN.
Vocal Score .. .. .. .. 8s. net.
Abridged Edition of the Vocal Score, containing the Overture, Songs, &c. .. .. .. 4s. "
Pianoforte Solo .. .. .. .. 2s. 6d. "
All the Favourite Airs, arranged for the Violin, Flute, or Cornet .. .. .. each 1s. 6d. "

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Lancers. D'Albert .. 2s. net. | Galop. D'Albert .. | 2s. net. |
| Waltz. D'Albert .. 2s. " | Nearest and Dearest | |
| Quadrille. D'Albert.. 2s. " | Waltz. D'Albert .. 2s. " | |
| Polka. D'Albert .. 2s. " | | |

Boyton Smith's Fantasia .. .. .. 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

A CREOLE LOVE SONG. Words by Theo. Marsials; Music by Mrs. LYNEDOCH MONCRIEFF. Price 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

NEW AND POPULAR SONGS.

IN SHADOW. Mrs. RONALDS. 2s. net.
WELCOME. Lady ARTHUR HILL. 2s. net.
CŒUR DE LION. H. J. STARK. Sung by Mr. Oswald. 2s. net.
AT THE PORTAL. N. FERRI. Sung by Madame Mary Cummings. 2s. net.
WHAT THE FIREFLIGHT TOLD. J. L. ROECKEL. 2s. net.
DELNA, LEAVE ME. A. M. WAKEFIELD, Composer of "No, Sir." 2s. net.
THOUGHTS AT SUNRISE. Mrs. L. MONCRIEFF. 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHARLES D'ALBERT'S NOVELTIES.
PIRATES OF PENZANCE LANCERS, WALTZ, QUADRILLE, POLKA, and GALOP .. each, 2s. 6d. net
ADELINA WALTZ. Illustrated with beautiful Portrait of Madame Patti .. .. .. .. 2s. 6d. net
PORTIA WALTZ .. .. .. .. .. 2s. 6d. net
DRINK, PUPPY, DRINK! POLKA .. .. .. 2s. 6d. net
CONGRESS LANCERS .. .. .. .. 2s. 6d. net
DISTANT SHORE WALTZ .. .. .. .. 2s. 6d. net
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S THREE-YEARS' SYSTEM of HIRE of PIANOFORTES, HARMONIUMS, and AMERICAN ORGANS, by which the Instrument becomes the property of the Hirer at the end of the third year, provided each quarter's hire shall have been regularly paid in advance. Pianofortes, from 2 gs. Harmoniums, from £1 5s.; and American Organs, from £2 10s. a Quarter.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S PIANINOS, from 20 guineas.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S COTTAGES, from 27 guineas.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S GRANDS, from 75 guineas.

CHICKERING PIANOFORTES, from 120 guineas, with American discount.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ALEXANDRE HARMONIUMS, for Church, Schools, or Drawing-Rooms, from 6 to 150 guineas; or, on the Three-Years' System, from £1 5s. per quarter.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S IMPROVED AMERICAN ORGANS, combining Pipe and Reed Tone. Manufactured by Clough and Warren, Detroit, U.S.A. The immense advantages these Instruments possess over the Organs hitherto imported have induced Messrs. Chappell and Co. to undertake the sole Agency of this eminent Manufactory. A large variety on view, from 18 to 250 guineas. Price-Lists on application to CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

CLOUGH and WARREN'S Favourite ORGAN. Compass, five octaves, ten stops, four sets of reeds, two of two and two thirds octaves and two of two and one third octaves, knee swell, elegant carved Canadian walnut case, price 25 guineas. With twelve stops, sub-bass octave coupler, and two knee pedals, 35 guineas. Illustrated Price-List free by post.
Sole Agents, CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

INSTRUMENTS by ALL MAKERS may be HIRED or PURCHASED on the Three-Years' System.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

A LARGE DISCOUNT TO PURCHASERS FOR CASH.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

"Steinway is to the Pianist what Stradivarius is to the Violinist."—Herr Joachim.

THE STEINWAY PIANOFORTES, GRAND AND UPRIGHT.
THE GREATEST PIANOFORTES IN THE WORLD.
The Steinway Pianofortes are the chosen instruments of the educated and wealthy classes in every nation throughout civilisation, and have by far the largest annual sale of any pianofortes in the world.
STEINWAY and SONS,
STEINWAY HALL,
LOWER SEYMOUR-STREET, PORTMAN-SQUARE, W.
(And at Steinway Hall, New York.)

BROADWOOD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System, from £3 12s. 6d. per Quarter.

COLLARD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System; in Rich and Gold Cases, at £4 14s. 6d. to £5 5s., £6 6s., £7 7s., and in Special Early English Ebonised Case, £8 8s. per Quarter.

ERARD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System, from £5 5s. per Quarter.

CRAMER'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on their Three-Years' System, from £1 11s. 6d. per Quarter. Detailed Lists post-free on application to Regent-street, W.; Bond-street, W.; Moorgate-street, E.C.; and 145, High-street, Notting-hill.

£20 SCHOOL-ROOM PIANO (Co-operative price for cash). Seven octaves—strong sound, and substantial. Adapted for hard practice. Carefully packed free, and sent to any part. Drawings gratis.
THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street.

£35.—There is nothing in London—nor, in fact, in all England—to be compared to the elegantly carved DRAWING-ROOM TRICHORD COTTAGE PIANOFORTE, with Cabriole Truss Legs, which is sold for £35 by THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, Portman-sq.

NEW MUSIC.

LA MASCOTTE. Opéra Comique by AUDRAN, Composer of "Olivette." Performed in Paris with the greatest possible success.
THE COMPLETE OPERA, with French Words, price 12s.
THE COMPLETE OPERA, with English Words (in the press).
THE COMPLETE OPERA for Piano Solo, 2s. 6d.
Quadrilles, Waltzes, and other Arrangements in hand.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

RUBINSTEIN'S SHILLING PIANOFORTE ALBUMS in the MUSICAL CABINET. 203, 210, 213. RUBINSTEIN'S THREE ALBUMS. 26 Pieces.
236. RUBINSTEIN'S SIX ETUDES.
207. RUBINSTEIN'S SIX PRELUDES.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

Price 2s. 6d. each, paper; 4s., cloth, gilt edges,
RUBINSTEIN'S 50 SONGS.
RUBINSTEIN'S 18 VOCAL DUETS.
With German and English Words.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

THE ROYAL EDITION OF OPERAS, for Voice and Pianoforte, in the most perfect form ever published. Edited by ARTHUR SULLIVAN and J. PITTMAN.
ITALIAN AND ENGLISH WORDS.

| | s. d. | | s. d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Salle in Maschera (Un) .. | 3 6 | Huguenots (Les) .. .. | 5 0 |
| Barbiere di Siviglia (Il) .. | 3 6 | Lucia di Lammermoor .. | 3 6 |
| Crown Diamonds (The).. | 3 6 | Lucrezia Borgia .. .. | 3 6 |
| Dinorah .. .. | 3 6 | Martha .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Domino Noir (Le).. .. | 3 6 | Masaniello .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Don Giovanni .. .. | 3 6 | Mireille .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Don Pasquale .. .. | 3 6 | Norma.. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Elisir d'Amore (L') .. | 3 6 | Porter of Havre (The) .. | 3 6 |
| Faust .. .. .. | 3 6 | Puritani (I)... .. | 3 6 |
| Favorita (La) .. .. | 3 6 | Rigoletto .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Fidelio.. .. .. | 3 6 | Robert le Diable .. .. | 3 6 |
| Figaro .. .. .. | 3 6 | Semiramide .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Figlia del Reggimento (La) | 3 6 | Sonnambula (La) .. .. | 3 6 |
| Flauto Magico (Il) .. | 3 6 | Traviata (La) .. .. | 3 6 |
| Fra Diavolo .. .. | 3 6 | Trovatore (Il) .. .. | 3 6 |
| Guillaume Tell .. .. | 5 0 | Vascello Fantasma (Il) .. | 3 6 |

A List of the Complete Series, containing English Operas, and Operas with German and French Words, gratis on application.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

STEPHEN ADAM'S NEW SONGS.
THE CHILDREN OF THE CITY.
THE VIKING'S SONG.
2s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

F. H. COWEN'S NEW SONGS.
LISTENING ANGELS. Sung by Antoinette Sterling.
ALL IN ALL. Sung by Mr. Maas.
2s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

EDWARD LLOYD'S NEW SONGS.
MIGNONETTE. By SUCHET CHAMPION.
THE LOVE OF LONG AGO. By W. H. CUMMINGS.
2s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

MARZIAL'S NEW SONGS.
A BASKET OF LOVE. Sung by Mrs. Osgood.
A SUMMER SHOWER. Sung by Miss Mary Davies.
ROCHESTER BELLS. Sung by the Composer.
THE SWEET STORY OF OLD. Sacred Song.
2s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

MOLLOY'S NEW SONGS.
THE BOATSWAIN'S STORY. Sung by Mr. Santley.
THE FIRST LETTER. Sung by Miss Mary Davies.
TWENTY-ONE. Sung by Antoinette Sterling.
2s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

BUDS AND FLOWERS. New Ballad. By KUHE. Sung by Miss Mary Davies.
"The song is a well-written and pleasant thing, recommended by agreeable music not less than by a pretty subject."—Daily Telegraph.
Price 2s. net.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

EVENTIDE. New Contralto or Mezzo-Soprano Song. By A. H. BEHREND; Words by F. E. Weatherly. Post-free, 24 stamps. This composition is second to none of his many good songs.—London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

TO AN ABSENTEE. Song. Just published. Composed by A. P. TALBOT. Post-free for 24 stamps. "A very high-class and finished composition."
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

O HAPPY CHILDREN. New Song. By SUCHET CHAMPION. Post-free for 24 stamps. "There is a simplicity and tenderness in this song which will captivate both singer and audience."
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

THE FERRYMAN. Descriptive Fantasia for the Pianoforte. By J. PRIDHAM. The interest of the music rivals the remarkably pretty lithrage that adorns it. Post-free for 24 stamps.—London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

TO THE FRONT. A Military Sketch for Piano. By CLOTSFORD DICK. The title is worthy of a frame, and the music will follow the sentiment of the title in coming "To the Front." Post-free for 18 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

TARRY, TARRY, ERE YE MARRY. Words by Gordon Campbell; the Music by A. S. GATTY. A highly-successful setting to a most telling melody in true Scotch rhythm. Post-free for 18 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

ALL SHEET MUSIC promptly COLLECTED and SENT post-free at half price to any part of the kingdom. Messrs. ROBERT COCKS and CO. possess great facilities in this branch, and are in constant communication with all the leading publishers.
London: 6, New Burlington-street.

THE BUGLER. In D, F, and G. By CIRO PINSUTI. Words by F. E. Weatherly.
This very successful song has now reached the Tenth Edition.
B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster-row.

THE CHALLENGE. For Bass and Baritone. By HUMPHREY J. STARK. Words by E. Oxenford. A bold and vigorous composition, and sure always to greet applause and repeated encores.—WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster-row.

A ROYAL EXCHANGE. ODOARDO BARRI. "A brilliant and effective song for vocalists in which charming music is united to a quaint little story."—Review.—B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster-row.

WEIT VON DIR (Far from Thee). Waltz. By Captain SEYDEL. "When she went back to the ball-room, Captain Winterfey followed her, and claimed his waltz. The band was just striking up the latest German melody, 'Weit von Dir,' a strain of drawing tenderness."—Vide Miss Braddon's "Vixen." Each of the above 2s. net.
B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster-row.

NOVELLO'S ORIGINAL OCTAVO EDITION of OPERAS. Edited and Corrected according to the Original Scores by NATALIA MACFARREN and BERTHOLD TOURS. The English Translations by Natalia Macfarren and the Rev. J. Troutbeck, M.A., &c.

| | s. d. | | s. d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Fra Diavolo .. .. | 3 6 | Die Zauberflöte .. .. | 3 6 |
| Masaniello .. .. | 3 6 | Il Seraglio .. .. | 3 6 |
| Fidelio .. .. | 3 6 | Il Barbiere .. .. | 3 6 |
| Norma .. .. | 3 6 | Guillaume Tell .. .. | 5 0 |
| La Sonnambula .. | 3 6 | Il Trovatore .. .. | 3 6 |
| I Puritani .. .. | 3 6 | Rigoletto .. .. | 3 6 |
| Lucia di Lammermoor .. | 3 6 | La Traviata .. .. | 3 6 |
| Lucrezia Borgia .. | 3 6 | Ernani .. .. | 3 6 |
| La Figlia del Reggimento | 3 6 | Tannhauser .. .. | 3 6 |
| Martha .. .. | 3 6 | Lohengrin .. .. | 3 6 |
| Iphigenia in Aulis .. | 3 6 | Flying Dutchman .. | 3 6 |
| Iphigenia in Tauris .. | 3 6 | Oberon .. .. | 3 6 |
| L'Ecolie du Nord .. | 3 6 | Der Freischütz .. .. | 3 6 |
| Don Giovanni .. .. | 3 6 | Preciosa .. .. | 1 6 |
| Le Nozze di Figaro .. | 3 6 | (To be continued.) | |

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners-street, W., and 80 and 81, Queen-street, E.C.

PROVERBS IN SONGS. By WEATHERLY and ROECKEL.
No. 1. Two's Company .. .. .. 2s. net.
No. 2. A bird in the hand.. .. .. 2s. net.
No. 3. When poverty knocks at the door .. 2s. net.
No. 4. The longest way round .. .. 2s. net.
ENOCH and Sons, 19, Holles-street, W.

CHARLES HALLÉ'S PRACTICAL PIANOFORTE SCHOOL.
Section I.—No. 1. PIANOFORTE TUTOR.
Catalogue and all Particulars may be had from FORSYTH BROTHERS, London, 272a, Regent-circus, Oxford-street; Manchester, Cross-street and South King-street; and all Musicsellers.

NEW MUSIC.

JOSEPH WILLIAMS'S LIST.
THE LATEST SUCCESSES.
BILLEE TAYLOR. Comic Opera. By H. P. STEPHENS and E. SOLOMON.
VOCAL SCORE .. .. SONGS .. .. .. 6s. net.
ALL ON ACCOUNT OF ELIZA (Third Edition). 2s. net.
SELF-MADE KNIGHT (Second Edition). 2s. net.
THE VIRTUOUS GARDENER. 2s. net.
FANTASIA FOR PIANO. CH. TOURVILLE. 1s. 6d. net.

PIANO SCORE (Complete). 2s. 6d. net. Now ready.
*QUADRILLES. By CHARLES COOTE. 2s. net.
*LANCERS. By ARTHUR GRENVILLE. 2s. net.
*WALTZES. By CHARLES GODFREY. 2s. net.
DANCE MUSIC, BILLEE TAYLOR, ready. Orchestra, 2s.; Septet, 1s. 6d.
* Beautifully Illustrated.

HENRY FARMER'S PIANOFORTE TUTOR, considerably Enlarged and Fingered by the Author. 1000th Edition. 4s.
"Decidedly the best and most useful instruction book we have seen."—Musical Review.

THE LOVE OF OLD. ROECKEL'S charming New Song will be sung by Miss Damian at her forthcoming engagements. Post-free, 24 stamps.

PIANO DUETS.
C. REINECKE. Three Sonatas, Op. 139. Price 2s. each, net.

PIANO SOLOS.
W. KUHE. NEW SACRED TRANSCRIPTIONS.
Eli (Costa); Naaman (Costa). Price 2s. each net.
TH. LACK. NEW PIECES.
Menuet, La Meunette, Rondeau. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
H. ROUBIER. NEW PIECES.
Joyeuse Reunion, Fete à Trianon, Parfait Bonheur. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
FRANZ HITZ. NEW PIECES.
Cavatetage (Caprice). Lutin Rose, Le Regiment qui passe. Price 4s. 6d. each net.
JOYFUL MOMENTS. Ten Easy Pieces on Popular Subjects. Arranged by CH. TOURVILLE. Price 1s. each net.
OUR FAVOURITES. Ten Moderately Easy Pieces on Popular Subjects. Arranged by CH. TOURVILLE. Price 1s. 3d. each net.

THE PROGRESSIVE MUSIC SCHOOL.
Carefully Edited, Fingered, and Corrected from the Original Manuscripts by J. LEYBACH. First Series (very easy), 15 Numbers. Numbers 1 to 14, price 1s. 3d. each net. Number 15, price 1s. 6d. net.

VIOLIN AND PIANO DUETS.
S. JACOBY. Six Popular Airs (Easy). Price 1s. each net.
CH. TOURVILLE. Twelve Favourite Subjects (Moderate). Price 1s. 6d. each net.

H. FARMER. Popular Violin Solos (Brilliant), with Piano Accompaniment. Nine Numbers. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, Berners-street, W.; and 123, Cheapside, E.C.

SUNG BY ARTHUR ROBERTS.
THE GOOD YOUNG MAN WHO DIED. An Æsthetic Lay. Words by H. P. Stephens; Music by E. SOLOMON. "He has left this world for a brighter sphere, There's a neat little headstone o'er him. Telling how much we held him dear, And how deeply we deplore him. But that cannot tell how we miss his ways, Our friend, philosopher, and guide; For years to come we shall sing in praise Of the good young man who died." Post-free for 24 stamps.—London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, Berners-street; and 123, Cheapside.

PERFORMED AT
HER MAJESTY'S STATE BALL at Buckingham Palace.
LA BELLE LURETTE QUADRILLE. (Offenbach.)
DONNA JUANITA QUADRILLE. (Suppé.)
BILLEE TAYLOR QUADRILLE. (Solomon.)
Arranged by CHARLES COOTE, jun.
Price 2s. each net.
Septets, 1s. 6d. net; Full Orchestra, 2s. net.
London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS.

MADAME CHRISTINE NILSSON'S NEW SONG.
A SONG OF THE NORTH. By LADY LINDSAY (of Balcarras). Price 2s. net.
FATEY and WILLIS, Publishers, 39, Great Marlborough-street, W

Just published,
GOOD-BYE. Song. By F. P. TOSTI (composer of the popular song "For Ever and for Ever"). 4 keys. Net, 2s.—RICORDI, 265, Regent-street, W.

HAYDN'S KATZEN-BOURRÉE. For the Pianoforte. "The prettiest novelty of the season, and a perfect gem of musical composition." Post-free, 18 stamps.
CZERNY, 365, Oxford-street.

PLEYEL WOLFF and CO.'S PIANOS.
Every description of these celebrated Instruments for SALE or HIRE. Sole Agency, 170, New Bond-street, W.

SELF-ACTING ORCHESTRAL CABINET, with Twenty Barrels, playing the choicest Overtures, Symphonies, Waltzes, &c. Original cost, between £500 and £600. Cash price, about one half. Particulars may be had of KEITH, PROWSE, and CO., 48, Cheapside, London, E.C.

STRINGS, from Rome, for the Harp, Violin, Violoncello, Guitar; also Zither Strings from Germany. The best covered Strings for all Instruments. KEITH, PROWSE, and CO., City Royal Musical Repository, 48, Cheapside.

THEATRES.—Telephonic Communication.
Subscribers to the Telephone Company can now have their orders for TICKETS executed instantly by Telephone.—KEITH, PROWSE, and CO., 48, Cheapside. Telephone No. 121.

ZITHERS.—KEITH, PROWSE, and CO. have a large selection at all prices, from 1 to 20 guineas. Strings, Rings, &c., and Music. A Professor gives Instruction on the Zither at 48, Cheapside, London, E.C.

PIANOFORTES for HIRE or for SALE, from 20 guineas upwards.—JOHN BROADWOOD and SONS, 33, Great Pulteney-street, Golden-square, W. Manufactory, 45, Horseferry-road, Westminster, W.

WEDDING AND BIRTHDAY PRESENTS at RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly, London.
SETS FOR THE WRITING-TABLE AND BOUDOIR, IN POLISHED BRASS, ORMOLU, SEVRES CHINA.

| | |
|---|---|
| BRONZE, and ORMOLU and SILVER, from | 21s. to £10 |
| TRAVELLING DRESSING BAGS .. .. | 63s. to £20 |
| DRESSING CASES .. .. .. | 21s. to £20 |
| DESPATCH BOXES .. .. .. | 21s. to £10 |
| TOURISTS' WRITING CASES .. .. | 4s. 6d. to £5 |
| ENVELOPE CASES and BLOTTING BOOKS.. | 10s. 6d. to £5 |
| INKSTANDS .. .. .. .. | 5s. to £5 |
| CANDLESTICKS (per pair) .. .. .. | 7s. 6d. to £5 |
| WORK BOXES .. .. .. .. | 15s. to £5 |
| THE NEW "TANTALUS" LIQUEUR STAND | 105s. to £10 |
| THE "TANTALUS" SODA and BRANDY STAND, £5 12s. 6d. | |

And a large and choice assortment of ENGLISH, VIENNESE, and PARISIAN NOVELTIES, from 3s. to £5.

PORTRAIT ALBUMS at RODRIGUES', with Patent Leather Guards, 4s. 6d. to £5. Floral Albums, Scrap Albums, Presentation and Regimental Albums.
Albums of every description made to order.—42, Piccadilly.

RODRIGUES' MONOGRAMS, ARMS, CORONET, CREST, and ADDRESS DIES
Engraved and Gems from Original and Artistic Designs.
NOTE-PAPER AND ENVELOPES, brilliantly Illuminated by hand in Gold, Silver, Bronze, and Colours.
BEST RELIEF STAMPING, any Colour, 1s. per 100.
All the New and Fashionable Note-Papers.
A VISITING CARD PLATE, elegantly Engraved, and 100 Superfine Cards printed, for 4s. 6d.
BALL PROGRAMMES, BILLS OF FARE, GUEST CARDS, WEDDING CARDS, and INVITATIONS in every variety.
HENRY RODRIGUES, 42, Piccadilly, London.

FOR FAMILY ARMS (Lincoln's-inn Heraldic Office) send Name and County. Sketch, 3s. 6d.; in colours, 7s. 6d. Arms Painted and Engraved on Seals, Dies, &c. PUGH BROTHERS, Great Turnstile, Lincoln's-inn, W.C.; and 76, Queen Victoria-street, E.C. Prize Medal, Paris, 1878.

JOSEPH GILLOTT'S STEEL PENS.
GOLD MEDAL,
PARIS,
1878.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.
SUBSTANTIAL ARTISTIC FURNITURE (Registered).
OETZMANN and CO.,
HAMPSTEAD-ROAD,
NEAR TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD.
CARPETS, OETZMANN and CO.
FLOOR-CLOTHS, LINOLEUMS,
DINING-ROOM FURNITURE,
DRAWING-ROOM FURNITURE,
BED-ROOM FURNITURE.
BEDSTEADS, BEDDING,
DRAPERY, LINENS, &c.
FURNISHING IRONMONGERY,
ELECTRO-PLATE and CUTLERY,
KITCHEN REQUISITES,
CHINA, GLASS, OETZMANN and CO.
PICTURES, BRONZES, &c.,
CLOCKS, LAMPS, &c.
PIANOS, OETZMANN and CO.
ARTISTIC PAPERHANGINGS,
PAINTING, DECORATING, &c.,
GAS-FITTINGS, &c.
HOUSES TO BE LET OR SOLD.
REMOVALS by ROAD, RAIL, or SEA.
POSTAL ORDER DEPARTMENT.
SHIPPING DEPARTMENT.
DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE,
THE BEST FURNISHING GUIDE EXTANT.
GRATIS and POST-FREE,
OETZMANN and CO.,
67, 69, 71, 73, 77 and 79, OETZMANN and CO.,
HAMPSTEAD-ROAD, LONDON.

AN OLD RECOMMENDATION.
A LETTER from MRS. THRALE. (Reprinted by Messrs. MORTLOCK, Oxford-street.) 1806.

Bath,
Thursday, 13th Oct., 1806.

To Sir James Fellowes.
My dear Sir James Fellowes, like his own Western sun, delights to warm and gild the evening of a stormy day; but I have no commissions that I can remember. Divic Robinson has sent the wine and I have sent him the money, so that 'call even.' When you feel your own purse too heavy, take it to Mortlock's, in OXFORD-STREET, and carry Lady Fellowes a beautiful specimen of South Wales China, and tell him I am painting for my ice-pails and large dishes to use this day se'nnight.
Yours and all your family's obliged and faithful
H. L. PIOZZI.

GARDNER'S DINNER and TABLE GLASS SERVICES. Free, graceful, and original designs, of unequalled value. Dinner Services, from 21s. Table Glass Services, of the best Crystal, for twelve persons, complete, 65s. Cash discount, 15 per cent. Coloured Photographic Sheets and Illustrated Glass Catalogues post-free.
453 and 454, West Strand, Charing-cross.

ELKINGTON and CO.
ELECTRO PLATE.
SILVER PLATE.
CLOCKS and BRONZES.

ELKINGTON and CO.
TESTIMONIAL PLATE.
CUTLERY, &c.
Illustrated Catalogues post-free.
ELKINGTON and CO., 22, Regent-st.; or 42, Moorgate-st., City

JEWEL ROBBERIES PREVENTED.
J. TANN'S RELIANCE SAFES have never failed to resist the attempts of the most determined burglars. Fire-Resisting Safes, £5 5s. Lists free.—11, Newgate-street, E.C.

THE FINEST WATCHES MADE. SEWILL'S KEYLESS WATCHES, Prize Medals, London, Paris, and Philadelphia. Damp and Dust-proof, 18-carat cases, adjusted and compensated for all climates, £10 10s., £14 14s., and £25; Ladies', £7 7s., £10 10s., and £18 10s.; in silver cases, for Ladies or Gentlemen, £5 5s., £6 6s., and £8 8s. Forwarded on receipt of remittance.—J. Sewill, 20, Cornhill, London; and 61, South Castle-street, Liverpool.

DENT'S WATCHES, CLOCKS, and CHRONOMETERS.—Illustrated Catalogue sent free.—Apply to 61, Strand, or 34, Royal Exchange, London.

WALKER'S CRYSTAL CASE WATCHES are superseding all others. Prize Medals—London, 1862; Paris, 1867. Silver Watches, from £4 4s.; Gold, from £9 9s. Price-Lists sent free.—77, Cornhill; 220, Regent-street; and 76, Strand.

DIAMONDS. Mr. STREETER,
SAPPHIRES. 18, New Bond-street, W.
CATS'-EYES. INTRODUCER of 18-CARAT GOLD JEWELLERY
OPALS. ENGLISH LEVER WATCHES, (MACHINE-MADE.)
EMERALDS. BRANCH ESTABLISHMENT, COLOMBO, CEYLON.

FOR SOUTH AFRICA.—How to get rid of your left-off clothes, jewels, furniture, antique lace, old gold teeth plates, &c. Why, send them to the most respectable purchasers, who pay you ready money before taking them away.—Mr. and Mrs. PHILLIPS, Old Curiosity Shop, 31, Thayer-street, Manchester-square, London, W.

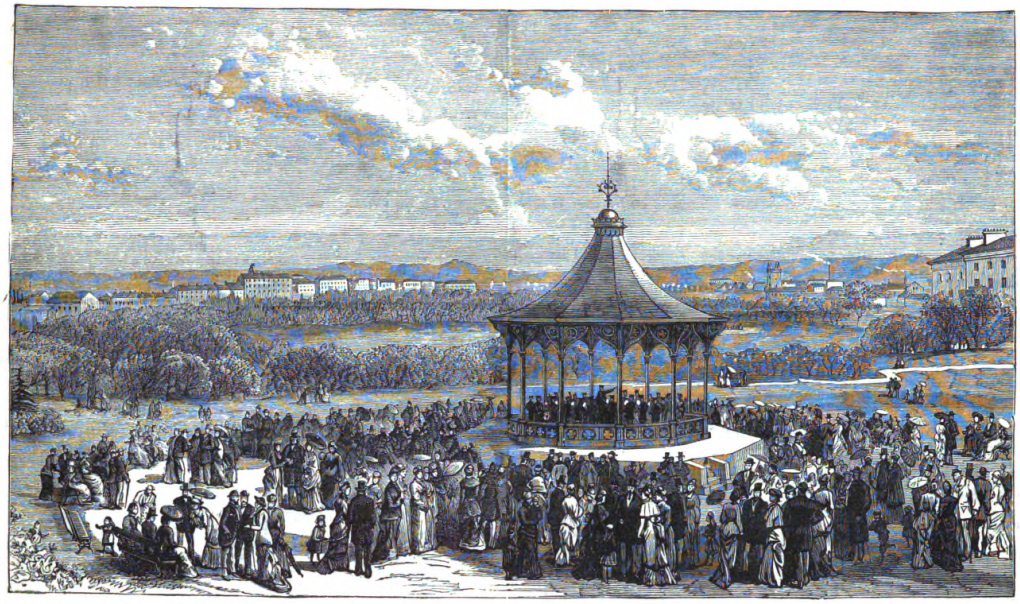
LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LEIGHTON, 198, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY, JUNE 11, 1881.

THE GEORGE STEPHENSON CENTENARY AT NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.



VIEW IN THE LEAZES PARK, NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.

We shall continue next week our Illustrations of the subjects connected with the celebration of George Stephenson's hundredth birthday anniversary at Newcastle-on-Tyne, which was celebrated on Thursday, the 9th inst., with proceedings of more than local interest. The scene in the Leazes public park, and the arrival of guests for the festive banquet, which took place at the Assembly Hall in Westgate-street, are represented in two of the Engravings now published.

The High Level Bridge over the Tyne, of which we also give an Illustration, is one of the grand engineering works of the Stephensons; but it was by Robert Stephenson, the eminent son and successor of the great author of the railway system, that this bridge was designed and constructed. George Stephenson, the father, was associated, however, with this undertaking, as one of the committee or board of directors for its execution.

The deep ravine which separates Newcastle and the Northumberland side of the Tyne from Gateshead and the county of Durham, and at the bottom of which flows the river, here nine miles from its outlet to the sea, but having a breadth of 514 ft., is boldly spanned, at an elevation of 130 ft. above the river-bed, by this wonderful structure, crossing the whole width of the valley. The entire length of the bridge is 1337 ft., carrying a double railway above and a road for ordinary carriage traffic, with two footpaths, at a lower elevation. The bridge is formed by six arches, each of 125-ft. span; the railroad is laid over the tops of these arches, while the carriage-road and footpaths are suspended from the arches by a series of wrought-iron vertical rods; so that the twofold fabric combines the principle of a bridge on arches with that of a suspension-bridge. Each of the arches consists of four main ribs, disposed in pairs, with a clear interval of 26 ft. 4 in. between the two inner ones, leaving this space between the suspension rods for the width of the lower roadway, besides 6 ft. on each side, for the footpaths, between the rods descending from the inner and outer ribs of the arch. The arches are made so to bear upon the piers that the weight of each presses quite separately and independently of the others. The approaches to the bridge over the land on each side of the river are supported by massive cast-iron pillars or piers; the south end is at Pipewell Gate Bank, in Gateshead, and the north end is at Castle Garth, nearly confronted by the fine old Norman keep of the ancient castle, which was called "the New Castle," when it was built, nearly eight hundred years ago, and which then gave its name to the town. Very near the ruins of this old feudal stronghold is the venerable Gothic Church of St. Nicholas, with its graceful spire held up by four flying buttresses on the summit of the church tower.

BANQUET AT THE ASSEMBLY ROOMS, WESTGATE-ROAD: ARRIVAL OF GUESTS.

The project of erecting the High Level Bridge was first proposed, in 1841, by Mr. R. W. Brandling, and a company for this purpose was formed in 1843, when George Stephenson joined the committee of management. It was soon afterwards taken up by the Newcastle and Darlington Railway Company; and, an Act of Parliament to authorise the work having been passed in 1845, the first pier was driven in October of the next year. Her Majesty the Queen opened the finished bridge on Aug. 15, 1849, passing over it in the Royal special train on her journey to Scotland. The bridge over the Tweed, at Berwick-on-Tweed, was completed a few months later; and every passenger by the Great Northern line from London to Edinburgh will see cause to admire these great works of modern constructive science and skill.

The George Stephenson Centenary of this year is to be permanently commemorated, if funds to the amount of £20,000 can be raised, by erecting, at Newcastle, a "Stephenson College of Physical Science," to which object Sir William Armstrong has promised £1000, and other friends £2000 more. There is a Newcastle College of Physical Science already, connected with the University of Durham.

By an inadvertent mistake, in the Memoir of George Stephenson which appeared last week, the credit of having effectually supported the project of the Stephenson Memorial Hall, at Chesterfield, in 1876, was ascribed to the Derbyshire Times. It should have been stated that the Derbyshire Courier rendered that public service, which was distinctly acknowledged at the time by an official communication from the Memorial Hall Committee.

THE MERSEY RAILWAY TUNNEL.

The Illustrations which we present on another page show the design and preliminary constructive operations of a remarkable engineering work, intended shortly to join the great commercial city of Liverpool and South-West Lancashire with the opposite shore of the Mersey estuary, the town and docks of Birkenhead, and the Chester and Birkenhead Railway, giving access to all parts of Cheshire and North Wales, as well as to the Great Western Railway system.

The Mersey, where it flows between Liverpool and Birkenhead, forms a noble river harbour, three-quarters of a mile wide, affording ample accommodation to the great Atlantic mail steam-ships of the Cunard Company, the White Star, and other lines; but its shores on both sides, north and south, are indented with a series of docks, far surpassing, as a whole, those of any other port in the world. The Birkenhead docks alone have cost about six millions sterling; but those on the Liverpool side, which extend a total length of nearly seven miles, have cost probably twice that sum. The docks of Liverpool and of Birkenhead are now jointly managed by a powerful trust corporation, the Mersey Harbour and Docks Board; and these magnificent basins, with their vast piles of warehouses, constitute a depôt for maritime trade that is nowhere equalled. The population of Liverpool and its suburbs now amounts to nearly 500,000, and it has become a matter of urgent importance to provide easy means of conveying both passengers and goods across the river.

The local authorities have done what they could by the erection of landing-stages, at Prince's Dock and St. George's Dock, on the Liverpool side, and at Woodside, Birkenhead; and by instituting a service, between these points, of large and commodious steam ferry-boats, one class of them for passenger traffic, the others for vehicles of all descriptions. These ferry-boats, which are shown in two of our Illustrations, run at intervals of a few minutes during the day, and less frequently through the night; but, well arranged and well conducted as they are, must necessarily be liable to delays and interruptions, especially in winter and rough weather. Another serious inconvenience and cause of loss is that the conveyance of merchandise across the river, by means of barges, involves great waste of time, heavy expense, and often serious risks.

Several proposals have from time to time been made for bridging over or tunnelling under the river; and in the year 1868 the Mersey Railway Company was incorporated by Act of Parliament for this latter purpose, Mr. Robertson Gladstone and Mr. Harold Littledale being among its first directors. After many delays and difficulties this enterprise, which is of really national importance, assumed a practical shape in the autumn of 1879; and early in 1880 the works were commenced by the sinking of shafts of large diameter at Woodside, Birkenhead, and St. George's Dock, Liverpool. Carried through the solid sandstone rock to a depth of 180 feet, these shafts are intended to drain the tunnel, which will, for a distance of 1300 yards pass under the bed of the river. Powerful pumps, with engines and boilers of the most improved design, are fixed in these shafts, and are capable of delivering from five to six thousand gallons per minute on each side of the river. From the bottom of the shafts, trial headings have been driven to prove the rock, which has been found to be solid sandstone, sound enough for building purposes. In no place will there be less than 25 ft. of this rock between the crown of the tunnel and the bed of the river.

In our Illustrations we have shown the pumping arrangements at one of the shafts; a number of workmen descending the shaft in the bucket; and the miners at work with drill and dynamite in the headings. These will be pushed forward with all speed from both sides until they meet under the river.

Referring to the map or plan, and to the sectional views of the proposed railway tunnel, with the driftway beneath, from one shaft to the other, the reader will comprehend the nature of the works that are now in progress. Mr. John Waddell, of Edinburgh, is the contractor, and the company's engineers are Mr. James Brunlees and Mr. Charles Douglas Fox. The extreme depth of water in the river overhead at high tide is 90 ft., and about 70 ft. at low tide. The average thickness of solid rock between the bed of the river and the crown of the tunnel roof will be 30 ft., and nowhere less than 25 ft. The width of the river here is nearly 1300 yards. The shape of the tunnel will be oval, 21 ft. high from the formation level, and 26 ft. wide, these dimensions being fully sufficient for a double line of railway. It will be completely lined, so as to be thoroughly waterproof. The length of the Mersey Railway, from Church-street, in Liverpool, to Tranmere and its junction with the Birkenhead and Chester Railway, will be two miles and a half, two miles of it being through tunnel; and it is intended to employ smokeless locomotive engines for the traffic. The works of construction, according to estimate, may be completed at a cost within the authorised capital of the Company, which is £866,000, and August, 1883, is the expected date of their completion. There are further designs of extension lines through Liverpool, communicating with the London and North-Western and the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railways, and with the southern docks; there would then be a central station in Dale-street. On the Birkenhead side, there will be a station close to Hamilton-square, for the convenience of residents in that neighbourhood, who will be enabled to pass in five minutes to their places of business in Liverpool. Those living at New Brighton and other seaside places of the Cheshire coast will likewise find the Mersey Railway a great daily accommodation.

A project for the construction of a subway between Birkenhead and Liverpool, for ordinary road traffic, has lately been entertained, originating with a committee formed in February of last year, and an Act of Parliament was obtained for the purpose. But at a meeting on the 5th ult., of the Mersey Harbour and Docks Board, when the whole subject was fully debated, it was resolved "that, considering the progress made by the Mersey Railway Company with their preliminary works, it is undesirable that the Board should at present enter into any engagement with regard to the construction of a subway."

THE BANK HOLIDAY.

The weather on Whitsun Monday was of the most uncomfortable character for a holiday, and as a consequence the numbers of those who left the metropolis by rail or other conveyances were not nearly so large as usual. The places of public resort in and near London were of course thronged. The total number of visitors to the Zoological Society's Gardens was 23,550; to the South Kensington Museum, 26,290; to the Tower about 10,000 were admitted free; while a large number of persons went to the British Museum, the National Gallery, the Houses of Parliament, and Westminster Abbey. The new Victoria Garden, near the Abbey, was thrown open to the public in the course of the morning. The Whitsuntide programme at the Polytechnic comprised some exceptionally interesting and amusing entertainments. The Exhibition of the Incorporated Society of British Artists in Suffolk-street, Pall-mall, and that of the "United Arts Gallery" in New Bond-street were open free to the public. The Great Flower Show of the Royal Horticultural Society, which opened on Friday, and continued during the Whitsuntide holidays, was one of the largest and most varied exhibitions of horticulture that has been held in London for some years.

The Crystal Palace and the Alexandra Palace retained all their old popularity, more than 64,000 persons passing the turnstiles at the former, while over 70,000 gathered at the latter. The Horse Show at the Agricultural Hall attracted many thousands of visitors. Hampstead-heath, in spite of the drenching showers, was much resorted to, forty or fifty thousand persons probably finding amusement upon it. About an equal number are said to have been on Blackheath; while the number at Epping Forest showed no perceptible diminution. Windsor Castle was visited by more than 6830 excursionists, while numerous other places of resort within an easy run of London, both on the Great Western and South-Western Railways, witnessed the arrival of considerable numbers of holiday-makers. Most of the railway companies adopted the excellent plan of issuing tickets in advance. Crowds of excursionists thronged the several piers, and booked themselves for trips to their favourite resorts up and down the river. Special arrangements had been made for their accommodation by the Thames and Channel Steam-Ship Company and the General Steam Navigation Company. There were sixteen boats running between London Bridge and Woolwich, and twenty-eight between London Bridge and Kew. It is estimated that the Thames and Channel Steam-Ship Company alone conveyed over 50,000 persons.

The usual Whitsun-Monday Tichborne demonstration took place in Hyde Park, the proceedings being brief and orderly.

A grand demonstration and procession of the Catholic Total Abstinence League of the Cross was held in Hyde Park.

The Whitsuntide holidays are being utilised in a thoroughly practical manner so far as the Volunteers are concerned. Although there are no large field-days or reviews as at Easter, thousands of men were either on the march, in camp, or in garrison.

The annual Sunday School gathering took place at Sheffield, in brilliant weather. The largest gathering was in Norfolk Park, where 12,000 scholars, 1500 teachers, and 60,000 spectators assembled. The Wesleyan schools met at Wesley College, numbering 6000 scholars, 1000 teachers, and 10,000 spectators. The Church of England schools had several gatherings in different quarters.

The Metropolitan Board of Works yesterday week resolved to contribute £1500 towards the cost of a new bridge over the Lee. The board also decided to continue for three years to contract for lighting the Victoria Embankment with the electric light. The resignation of Mr. Alderman Figgins as a member of the board was accepted.

The London School Board on the 2nd inst. discussed a proposal that the Government should be asked to defray the cost of elementary education out of the Imperial Exchequer. The resolution, and several amendments to it which were moved, were negatived by large majorities. The board resolved to memorialise the Education Department in favour of object lessons being constituted an essential part of the instruction in infant schools. A large majority of the members approved of a motion instructing their solicitor to apply for an injunction against the Metropolitan Asylums Board with reference to the smallpox hospital about to be established in Holloway.

The annual conversazione of the Society of Arts was given on the 2nd inst. in South Kensington Museum, the guests, numbering about 2700, being received by Mr. F. J. Bramwell, F.R.S., chairman of the council, in the eastern architectural court. To the attractions offered by the picture-galleries and the contents of most of the courts of the museum there were added several special entertainments. Madame Frickenhaus gave a pianoforte recital; Mr. Corney Grain diverted large audiences in the lecture theatre by recounting his adventures at a village school feast, and giving musical illustrations of the events of the day; and the string band of the Royal Engineers played in the North Court.

MAGAZINES FOR JUNE.

SECOND NOTICE.

The Duke of Argyll's thoughtful investigations into the origin of religion are concluded in the Contemporary Review, most of the other contributions being also of more than average interest. None will be read with more attention and sympathy than Mr. Bence Jones's account of the Boycotting to which he has been subjected for conduct which would have gained him general respect in England. It is difficult to resist the impression, however, that Mr. Jones has played into the hands of the Land League by standing too strictly upon his rights, and aiming at a high standard with too little condescension to the humours, weaknesses, and prejudices of the undoubtedly very trying people among whom his lot was cast. Mr. Rae's account of Ferdinand Lassalle is rather interesting than novel, and "the principles of '89" have been frequently assailed with more vigour than they now are by Mr. W. S. Lilly. Mr. Malcolm Maccoll's Pharisaic depreciation of Lord Beaconsfield is oddly sandwiched between Shirley's panegyric and Mr. Alfred Austin's eloquent and sonorous memorial verse. Shirley's essay is good, but would have carried more weight if the writer had been above the petty vanity of showing that the deceased statesman corresponded with him. Mr. Maccoll overflows with the most edifying charity, and deems it great matter for thankfulness that so bad a man as Lord Beaconsfield should have been no worse. Dr. Knighton's reminiscences of Carlyle's conversation are among the most racy as yet recorded. They paint the man to the life with his insight, genius, passion for veracity, half humorous half tragic pessimism, and frequent unreason. There is an unconscious comedy worthy of Molière in such a scrap of dialogue as this:—"The magazines and reviews have been very busy with you lately." "Have they? I never read them. I have the most utter contempt and abhorrence for the literary canaille of the day. What have they been saying?" On being certified what they have said, Carlyle breaks out, "How shall they understand me with their devotion to the devil?

The articles in the Fortnightly Review are, for the most part, either too heavy or too light. "Comte's Definition of Life" belongs decidedly to the first category, and even the interesting subjects of the relations of the sexes and the policy of commercial treaties, although they have fallen into the hands of writers no less accomplished than Mrs. Grey and Mr. John Morley, fall short of the requisite animation of treatment. Mrs. Grey does little beyond retailing truisms, and if Mr. Morley escapes this charge, it is only because even the truth of his commonplaces is contestable. On the other hand, English Horses is a slight subject; and the Royal Academy has been long since exhausted by the daily and weekly press. The most satisfactory paper is Mr. F. Galtin's on "The Visions of Sane Persons," which contains much curious observation.

Fraser has one or two contributions of note. That which will probably attract most attention is an article on the revised version of the New Testament by one of the revisers, Dr. A. Roberts, who seems better satisfied with the labours of self and partners than his colleague, Dr. Vance Smith. He generally ignores the numerous trivial alterations by which, nevertheless, the popular estimate of the translation will for a long time be mainly determined, and concentrates his criticism on the few important ones for which the arguments are overwhelming, and which must, willingly or unwillingly, be accepted as improvements. Vernon Lee's "In Umbria" is as fascinating as any of the essays of this brilliant writer. The subject is Pietro Perugino, confessedly one of the most exquisite of religious painters, but represented by his biographer, Vasari, as worldly and avaricious. Vernon Lee admits the apparent contradiction, and ingeniously endeavours to solve it by pointing out that religious painting was in that age the only way in which the sentiment of the beautiful could find expression. It seems to us, however, that Vasari's statements should be received with a good deal of qualification. He would probably have written in much the same way of Turner; and yet, although Turner's habits would have lent countenance to a charge of sordid avarice, the charge would have been unjust. "A Japanese Bride," by Miss Betham-Edwards, is a short story containing a powerful sketch of an undeveloped nature, half childish, half animal, possessed of acute perception, but unable to estimate the quality or calculate the consequences of its actions.

The second number of Our Times is even better than the first, and thoroughly vindicates its existence by experimentally demonstrating the opening which, with all the large number of existing magazines, remained for one conducted with spirit and originality. Its especial mission seems, in the editor's quaint language, "to stir to mutiny against all priggisms, idleness, and general sinning." "Provincialism," "The Condition of the People," and "The Work of the Government" are examples of articles with this special moral mission. Among lighter contributions may be mentioned Mr. R. Black's excellent story "The Boy Bishop," a good account of the Meiningen performers, and "The Golden Opportunity of the Great Sea Devil Sakhra," another version of an Oriental legend of King Solomon, already told somewhat differently in Croly's "Traditions of the Rabbins," which has found its way by mistake into the American edition of De Quincey's works.

"Sophy" and "The Senior Partner" continue to be the leading features of Time and London Society respectively.

The Supreme Court of New York has granted the order to change the name of the corporation of Scribner and Co. to "The Century Co."—the order to take effect on June 21. The July issues of Scribner's Monthly and St. Nicholas will have the new corporate imprint.

La Saison, Le Follet, World of Fashion, Ladies' Gazette of Fashion, Myra's Journal, Myra's Mid-Monthly, Weldon's Ladies' Journal, and Household Journal are the principal Fashion Books.

Other magazines and serial publications received are the Antiquary, Home, Theatre, Argosy, Science Gossip, the Squire, Portfolio, The Gentleman's Magazine, Belgravia, Good Words, Leisure Hour, Welcome, Month and Catholic Review, Universal Instructor, Tinsley's, St. James's, Churchman, Modern Thought, Burlington, Churchman's Shilling Magazine, Art Journal, the Rosebud (a charming monthly magazine of nursery nurture and amusement); and Monthly Parts of All the Year Round, Household Words, Social Notes, House and Home, Sunday at Home, Sunday Magazine, Gardeners' Magazine, Gardening Illustrated, Day of Rest, Boy's Own Paper, Girl's Own Paper, Young England, and Union Jack.

Under the patronage of the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Connaught, and the Duke of Cambridge, a military tournament, similar to that which was so ably managed last year, is to take place in the Agricultural Hall, Islington, during the two weeks beginning on the 20th inst. and ending July 2. The first week will be devoted to the officers and men of the regular army, the second to those of the auxiliary forces.

THE COURT.

The sojourn of her Majesty in the Highlands has been unmarked by incident, save in the exercise of the general pleasure of country amusement, that of visiting the numerous picturesque localities within reach of Balmoral. The Queen, accompanied by Princess Beatrice and Prince Leopold, with her granddaughters Princesses Victoria and Elizabeth of Hesse, is out every day, and during her drives pays frequent visits to her old dependents on the Royal demesne and those ladies in the district who have the honour of her Majesty's friendship.

The Queen and the members of the Royal family, with the household, attended Divine service on Whit-Sunday at Crathie church, the Rev. James Barclay, of St. Cuthbert's, Edinburgh, officiating.

Lord Carlingford, who is Minister in attendance, has generally joined the Royal dinner circle; and the Rev. Archibald Campbell has also dined with her Majesty.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince of Wales with Prince Christian was at Epsom on the Oaks day. The Princess accompanied his Royal Highness to the Derby; and at the Prince's dinner at Marlborough House afterwards covers were laid for fifty, the Duke of Connaught and the Duke of Cambridge being guests; the Hungarian band playing during the evening. The Duke of Edinburgh visited the Prince and Princess yesterday week, and their Royal Highnesses dined with the Earl of Fife at his residence in Cavendish-square. The Duke of Edinburgh lunched at Marlborough House the next day; and the Prince presided at the annual regimental dinner of the 1st Life Guards, at Willis's Rooms. On Monday his Royal Highness visited the Marchioness of Camden and Captain Green at Bayham Abbey, and remained to luncheon, returning afterwards to London. The Prince has since had a busy week with his engagements. He was at Tunbridge Wells on Tuesday, when he opened the Bath and West of England Agricultural Society's Show; after lunching with the president, the Marquis of Abergavenny, at Eridge Castle. The most loyal reception was accorded his Royal Highness from the country people assembled to do him honour; and the town was en fête. On Thursday the Prince visited Great Yarmouth for the purpose of inspecting the Norfolk Artillery Militia, which took place on the Denes. His Royal Highness was enthusiastically received by the townspeople and the fishery population, and he was the guest of Mr. Nightingale at Shadingfield Lodge, where the Duke of Edinburgh was last year entertained when upon his tour of inspection of the eastern coast. The Prince, with a large party, went to the Yarmouth Aquarium in the evening, where the Gaiety company from London gave a special performance under his patronage.

Mr. Charles Hall, one of her Majesty's counsel learned in the law, is appointed Attorney-General to his Royal Highness.

Lady Emily Kingscote has succeeded Lady Suffield as Lady in Waiting on the Princess; and Lieutenant-Colonel Clarke has succeeded Colonel A. Ellis as Equerry in Waiting to the Prince.

Prince George of Wales attained his sixteenth year on the 3rd inst.

The Duke and Duchess of Edinburgh on their way up Channel, returning from their western cruise, stopped at the new Eddystone Lighthouse, and the Duke laid the last stone of the eighty-eighth course. Their Royal Highnesses also inspected Smeaton's old lighthouse. The Duke and Duchess afterwards continued their cruise in the Lively to Dover, landing at the Admiralty Pier on the 2nd inst., when they proceeded to Eastwell Park. The Duke came to town the next day.

Princess Louise of Lorne dined with the Countess of Yarborough on Thursday week at her residence in Arlington-street; Saturday visited Lord and Lady Sackville at Knole; and on Tuesday last visited Miss Rye's Emigration Home at Peckham-rye.

The Duke and Duchess of Connaught visited the Crystal Palace on the 2nd, to inaugurate the International Exhibition of Wool and Woollen Manufactures. The Duchess at the entrance of the court accepted a bouquet of flowers from two little daughters of Major Page. After witnessing a display of the great fountains, the band of the Scots Guards performing meanwhile, their Royal Highnesses paid a private visit to the new panorama painted for the palace by M. Philippoteaux. The Duke and Duchess subsequently dined with the directors and the principal visitors in one of the apartments appropriated to the newly-established Fine Arts Club, covers being laid for about fifty guests. At dusk the Royal visitors witnessed a display of fireworks from a balcony, and afterwards returned to town. Chevalier L. Desanges is painting for the Studholm Chapter Rose Croix a full-length portrait of the Duchess, which is intended as a gift from the Chapter to the Royal Masonic Institution for Girls.

Princess Christian, president, took the chair at the meeting of the Ladies' General Committee of the Domestic Economy Congress, which was held a few days since at the Society of Arts. Her Royal Highness also inspected the needlework of a public elementary school, and examined the details of the opening of the conversazione on the 20th inst. at the Royal Albert Hall.

The Duchess of Teck presided at the second annual meeting of the Association for Promoting Trained Nursing in Workhouse Infirmaries, which was held on Tuesday at the board-room of the Kensington guardians. Her Royal Highness and family have given Mr. John Edwards sittings for their photographs at his studio.

Prince Georges Eristoff has arrived at Thomas's Hotel.

His Excellency the Earl of Dufferin, accompanied by Lady Dufferin, left town on Saturday for Paris, en route to Constantinople, to assume his new duties as Ambassador. The Right Hon. G. J. Goschen has arrived from Constantinople.

His Excellency Sir John Drummond Hay and Lady and Miss Hay have left for Denmark. His Excellency and family return here at the end of the month before he departs for Morocco to resume his diplomatic functions.

FASHIONABLE MARRIAGES.

At St. Paul's Church, Knightsbridge, on the 2nd inst., the Very Rev. Dr. Charles Lake, Dean of Durham, was married to Miss Katherine Gladstone, eldest daughter of the late Captain John Neilson Gladstone, R.N., and niece of Sir Thomas Gladstone and the Prime Minister. The bridesmaids were Miss Constance Gladstone, sister of the bride; Miss Lake, niece of the bridegroom; Lady Theresa and Lady Frances Lowry Corry, and Miss Agnes Dumaresq, nieces of the bride; and Mr. Lake (59th Regiment) was best man. The bride wore a dress of ivory brocade trimmed with old Mechlin lace; a wreath of natural orange-flowers, and a Brussels lace veil; with ornaments of pearls and diamonds. In the bridal procession her train was borne by her nephew, Master Bertram Hardy. The bridesmaids were dressed alike in cream-coloured costumes, trimmed with lace and satin de Lyon, and straw bonnets ornamented with volyanthus. The ceremony was performed by the Archbishop of Canterbury, assisted by the Dean of St. Paul's and the Hon. and Rev. Robert Liddell, the Vicar. The bride was given away by Sir Thomas Gladstone, Bart. The wedding breakfast was at Herbert House, Chesham-place, where Sir Thomas and Lady Gladstone welcomed their guests. The Dean and his bride left for Stonehouse, the Archbishop of Canterbury's residence in the Isle of Thanet. The bride's travelling dress was of dark blue cashmere and satin de Lyon, and trimmed with steel, with bonnet to match.

The marriage of Mr. Edward Stanley Hope, fourth son of the Hon. Mrs. Hope and the late Mr. George Hope, of Luffness, with Miss Constance Christina Leslie, second daughter of Sir John Leslie, Bart., and Lady Leslie, was solemnised the same afternoon at St. Mark's Church, North Audley-street. The wedding party assembled at three o'clock. The bridesmaids were Misses Mary, Theodosia, and Olive Leslie, her sisters, the Hon. Lilah Agar-Ellis, Miss Venetia Bentinck, and Miss Hicks Beach, her cousins; Miss Lucy Hope, sister, and Miss Minna Hope, cousin of the bridegroom. Mr. Hope's best man was the Hon. Almarus Digby. The bride wore a dress of white satin, with Raffaelle transparent bodice and sleeves; over a wreath of orange-blossoms a long tulle veil; and round her neck a single string of pearls. The bridesmaids were attired in costumes of white nun's cloth, trimmed with lace, and white lace bonnets, with pale pink aigrettes. Each wore a gold bangle, with the initials of the bride and bridegroom, and carried a bouquet of pale pink peonies. The ceremony was performed by the Archbishop of Armagh, assisted by the Rev. Augustus Bink, Rector of North Church, Herts, and the Rev. Joseph Watson Ayre, Incumbent. The service was choral. The wedding party met at Sir John and Lady Leslie's mansion in Stratford-place for tea, after which Mr and Mrs. Edward Hope took their departure for Ditton Park, the seat of the Duke of Buccleuch, near Slough, for the honeymoon, the bride's travelling-dress being of white and blue sprigged muslin, with cape of the same, trimmed with lace, dark blue sash, and straw bonnet trimmed with blue. The bride and bridegroom received wedding gifts from the tenantry and others, both on Sir John Leslie and the Hon. Mrs. Hope's estates, and from the inhabitants of Aberfeldy.

The marriage of the Hon. Mary Olivia Monsell, daughter of Lord Emly, to Count Edward De la Poer, took place at Ballybrown, Limerick, last week, the Bishop of Limerick officiating.

The Earl of Kilmorey and Miss Nellie Baldock's marriage is fixed for the 23rd inst. at St. Peter's Church, Eaton-square. The marriage of Lord Colin Campbell, M.P., and Miss Blood is fixed to take place on Thursday, July 21; and that of Lord Camoys and Miss Carew will take place in September.

Marriages are arranged between Mr. A. Forbes, second son of Colonel Forbes (late Coldstream Guards), and Miss Home Drummond Moray, only daughter of Mr. and Lady Anne Home Drummond Moray. Between Herr von Yagwitz, Kioniglı Grenadière, and the Hon. Blanche Murray, sister of the present and youngest daughter of the late Lord Elibank, and between the Rev. John Stafford Northcote, third son of Sir Stafford Northcote, and Miss Hilda Farrar, second daughter of the Rev. Canon Farrar.

ROYAL INSTITUTION LECTURES.

RESEARCHES IN CHEMICAL PHYSICS.

Professor Dewar, F.R.S., in his sixth and concluding lecture on Researches connected with the Non-Metallic Elements, given on Tuesday, May 31, resumed his experimental illustrations of the deviations from the law of Boyle or Mariotte respecting the elasticity of gases—viz., that the volume of an aeriform body is inversely as the pressure to which it is exposed; consequently, by doubling the pressure, the volume is halved. The elasticity is increased in proportion with the pressure. This law the researches of Regnault and others have shown to be limited at great pressures; and by reasoning on the results of experiments of Pictet and Cailletet, the Professor explained that there is a certain state of matter in which the atoms will not yield to any pressure whatever, while the interstices (the hypothetical ether) between them are subject to Mariotte's law. The Professor then explained and illustrated what Andrews termed "the critical point," who, while engaged in liquefying carbonic acid gas, came upon a point of temperature at which no amount of pressure could retain the gas in the liquid form. Other gases are found to give analogous results. This "critical point" is well termed "the absolute boiling point," since it does not, like the ordinary boiling point, vary with the pressure. Among the most remarkable experiments, exhibited by the electric light, was the apparent solution of solid camphor in liquid carbonic acid gas, by great pressure, and its return to the solid state when the pressure was diminished. The phenomena attendant on the solution of oxygen, nitrogen, and hydrogen gases in the liquid carbonic acid gas, were very remarkable. The Professor also explained the way in which the density of carbonic acid gas, in the form of snow, may be determined by a very delicate process. After some remarks on the measurement of the compressibility of glass and other bodies, he explained Mendelejeff's system of grouping the elements according to their atomic numbers, which has been productive in discoveries of new elements. He finally commented on the great advances which have been made during the last ten years through the agency of thermo-chemistry.

DIAMAGNETISM—FARADAY'S RESEARCHES.

Professor Tyndall's sixth and concluding lecture, given on Thursday, the 2nd inst., began with remarks on Faraday's system of unwearied experimenting, utterly independent of opposing theories, even when regarded as invincible; never accepting a negative, till he had exhausted all the resources at his command. This eminently appeared in his elaborate memoir on the magnetic condition of all matter, given to the Royal Society on Dec. 18, 1845, in which he records his researches on Diamagnetism. These Professor Tyndall amply illustrated by a series of experiments. A pellet of bismuth placed between the poles of an electro-magnet was repelled, while a magnetic pellet was attracted. A small cylinder of carbon set axially (that is, in the direction of the lines of force proceeding from the magnetic poles), while a cylinder of bismuth was repelled and set equatorially. Faraday operated on all kinds of matter—solid, liquid, and gaseous—and found them all to be affected by the magnetic force, which he now distinguished into two kinds. The action of ordinary magnetism he termed paramagnetic, since the object sets parallel to the lines of force; the other kind he termed diamagnetic, because the object sets across the magnetic field. Among his illustrations Professor Tyndall showed water to be diamagnetic, and a solution of muriate of nickel to be paramagnetic. He stated that Wilhelm Weber had calculated the paramagnetic force to be 1,470,000 times more powerful than the diamagnetic. In accordance with Faraday's researches, the action of magnetism upon gases was demonstrated in the case of oxygen, and the probable influence of its magnetic character upon the diurnal variation of the needle was adverted to. Professor Tyndall then referred to the magnetism of flame, as established by Brancalini and verified and supplemented by Faraday, and illustrated the fact by means of a candle flame, which was lowered by a magnetic current. The magnetisation of a ray of light was beautifully shown, and illustrations were given of the very remarkable phenomena of the magne-crystallic force. A brief account was given of the scientific controversy respecting the polarity of diamagnetism, as advocated by Weber, Tyndall, and others, which resulted in its admission by Faraday himself, and other opponents. Finally, remarks were made on the modern theories respecting the nature of the ether, the hypothetical medium in which the movements of the atoms take place, which give rise to all kinds of physical phenomena.

EARTH CURRENTS, MAGNETIC DISTURBANCES, AND AURORÆ.

Professor W. G. Adams, M.A., F.R.S., of King's College, London, who gave the discourse at the Friday evening meeting on the 3rd. inst., began by describing the apparatus employed at our magnetic observatories to determine the direction and magnitude of the earth's magnetic force. There are regular daily and also yearly changes, which must be due to the sun. The point to which the total earth current is directed follows the sun and lags two or three hours behind. These currents have been variously ascribed to electric force emanating from the sun (Lamont); to evaporation (De Saussure); to solar heat (Dr. Lloyd); to chemical actions in the earth (De la Rue); and to electricity transported to the atmosphere by evaporation. There seems to be also a period of twenty-five or twenty-six days in the horizontal force, which is the time of the sun's rotation on his axis. The regular magnetic changes also depend partly on the moon, and corresponding with these are also lunar earth currents, which cannot be due to heat or thermo-electric currents. All these phenomena were explained and illustrated by experiments and diagrams. The Professor next considered magnetic disturbances, giving details of those which occurred in various years, with the observations of Lloyd, Weber, Lamont, and other observers in various parts of the globe; and he showed how these disturbances may be imitated in the lecture-room by altering the strength of an electro-magnet and studying the effects of these changes upon various needles. The great magnetic storms of August and January last were considered in detail. The aurora is an electric discharge in the upper regions of the atmosphere, which frequently accompanies magnetic disturbances and earth currents. Auroræ were seen in England, Russia, and Siberia during the August and January storms. How aurorae may be studied by means of electric discharges in vacuum tubes was well shown by means of some of Mr. De La Rue's tubes charged by his great battery, the principles involved being clearly explained. The agreement of the eleven-year period of magnetic disturbances, sun spots, and aurorae shows that the sun plays a very important part in causing or regulating both the regular and irregular magnetic changes.

GOGOL—THE RUSSIAN DICKENS.

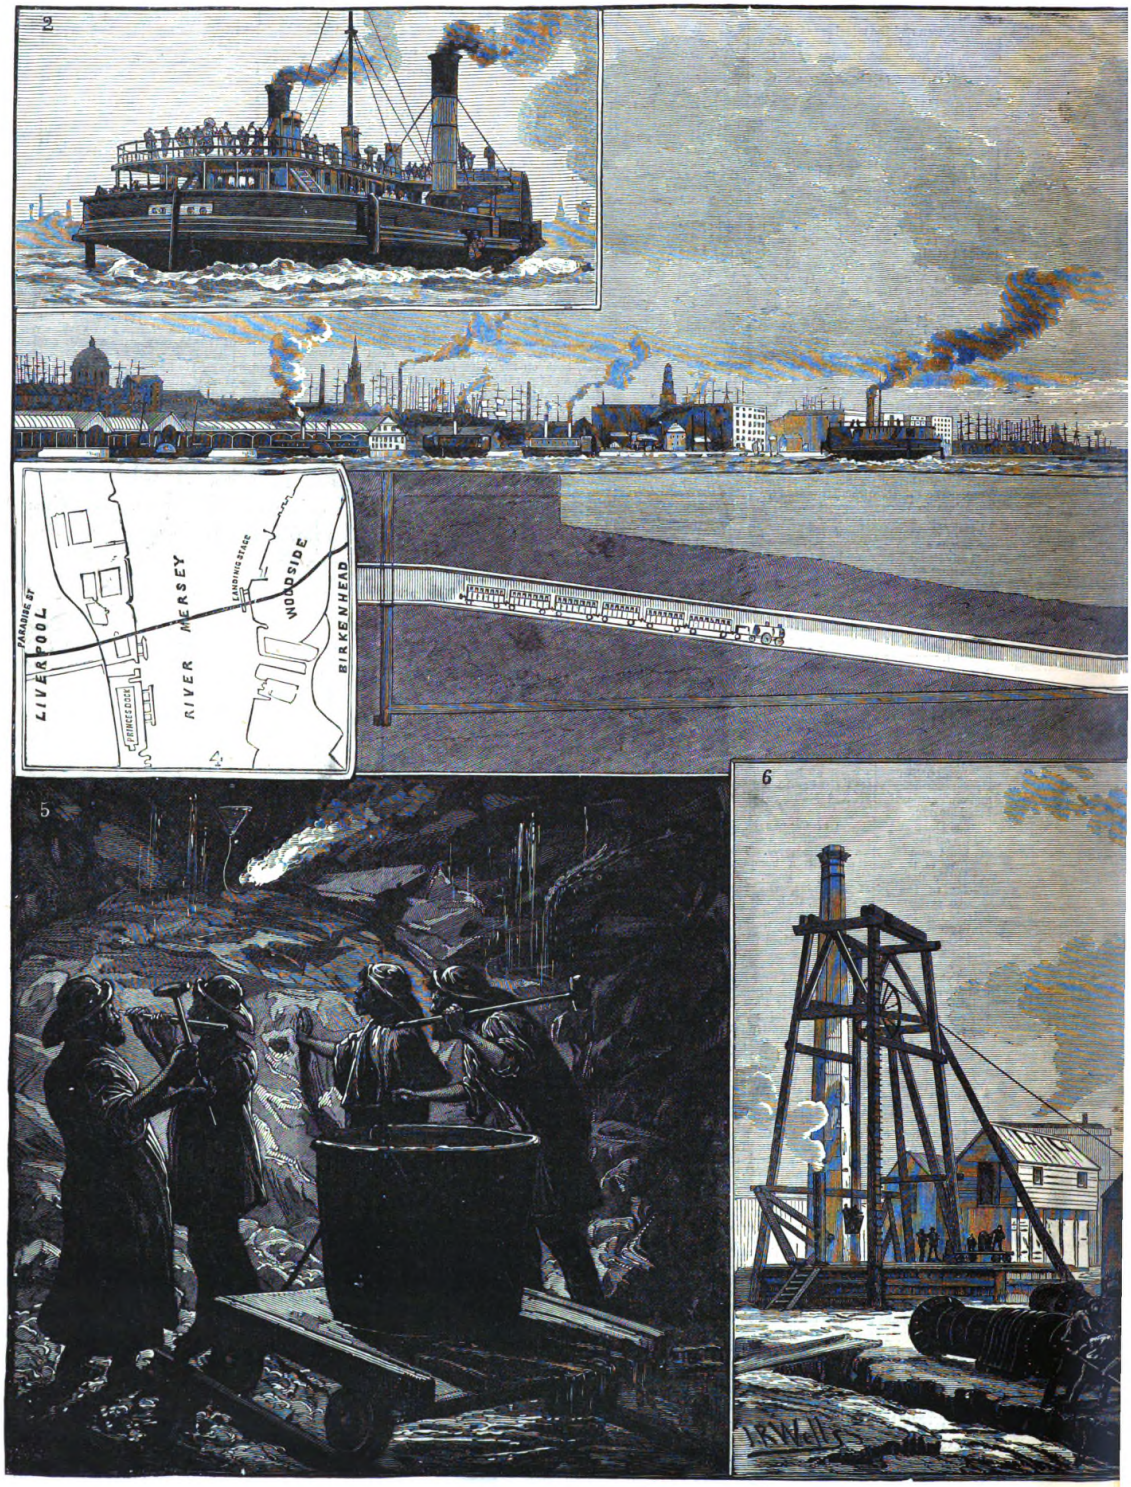
Professor C. E. Turner, of the University of St. Petersburg, began his third lecture on Saturday last, the 4th inst., with a biographical sketch, in which he stated that Nicholas Vasiclovitch Gogol was born on March 19, 1801, at Sorochintzi, in the Ukraine; that his first years were passed in extreme poverty, and that during his education he had a bare subsistence. His earliest attempts at composition were unsuccessful; but the publication of his "Evenings in a Farmhouse near Dikankha," secured for him the friendship of Foukovski and Poushkin. The production of his great comedy, "The Revisor," in 1835, notwithstanding its unsparing exposure of administrative and official corruption, won him the special favour and protection of the Emperor Nicholas. Throughout his whole life, Gogol was a prey to religious melancholy, and practised ascetic severities of such a rigorous kind that his health completely broke down, and his death, which took place in February, 1852, was attributed to excessive fasting. The last act of his life was to burn the manuscript of the concluding portion of his romance, "The Dead Souls," and to write a few sad lines, in which he prays that all his works may be forgotten, as the products of a pitiable vanity, composed at a time when he was still ignorant of the true interests and duties of man. Yet his whole life was characterised by self-denial and kindness for others. In many respects Gogol may be compared with Dickens. His novels are remarkable for extreme simplicity of plot, an absence of exaggeration in the portrayal of his personages, interesting photographic details, and a humour that is marked by a wide sympathy and genial kindness. They are, moreover, essentially Russian. In his prosperity Gogol travelled, but preferred the bare lanes of his own country to Italy. As examples of his peculiar style, Professor Turner commented on the "Old Fashioned Farmer," "Ivan Ivanovitch's Quarrel with Ivanovitch Nikievorovitch" "Nevsky Prospect," and "The Revisor"—the last mentioned being, without doubt, the greatest comedy of Russia. Yet the impression they produce is a saddening and painful one, like that which extorted from Poushkin, when Gogol read to him the first chapters of his "Dead Souls," the cry, "How miserable our life is in our Russia!" Besides his humorous stories, Gogol wrote a tragic romance, "Tarass Bulba," in which we have the portrait of one of those colossal heroes, whose exploits form the theme of many a national Cossack song.

Professor Turner's lecture on Nekrasoff this day (Saturday) will conclude the season.

The arrivals of live stock and fresh meat at Liverpool from the United States and Canada last week show a very large increase, being the largest arrivals for many months past; making a total of 3512 cattle, 656 sheep, 110 hogs, 10,724 qrs. of beef, 852 carcases of mutton, and 110 dead hogs.

At the Cheltenham Winter Gardens on Monday the Mayor and the late borough member, with other influential local gentlemen, opened the first industrial exhibition that has been held in the town, to be continued during the week. The exhibition is for the district, is a varied and successful one, and does credit to the local tradesmen and artisans. Among the objects of particular interest were models of pontoons, earthworks, defences, &c., by the sergeant instructor and several members of the Cheltenham Volunteer Engineers.

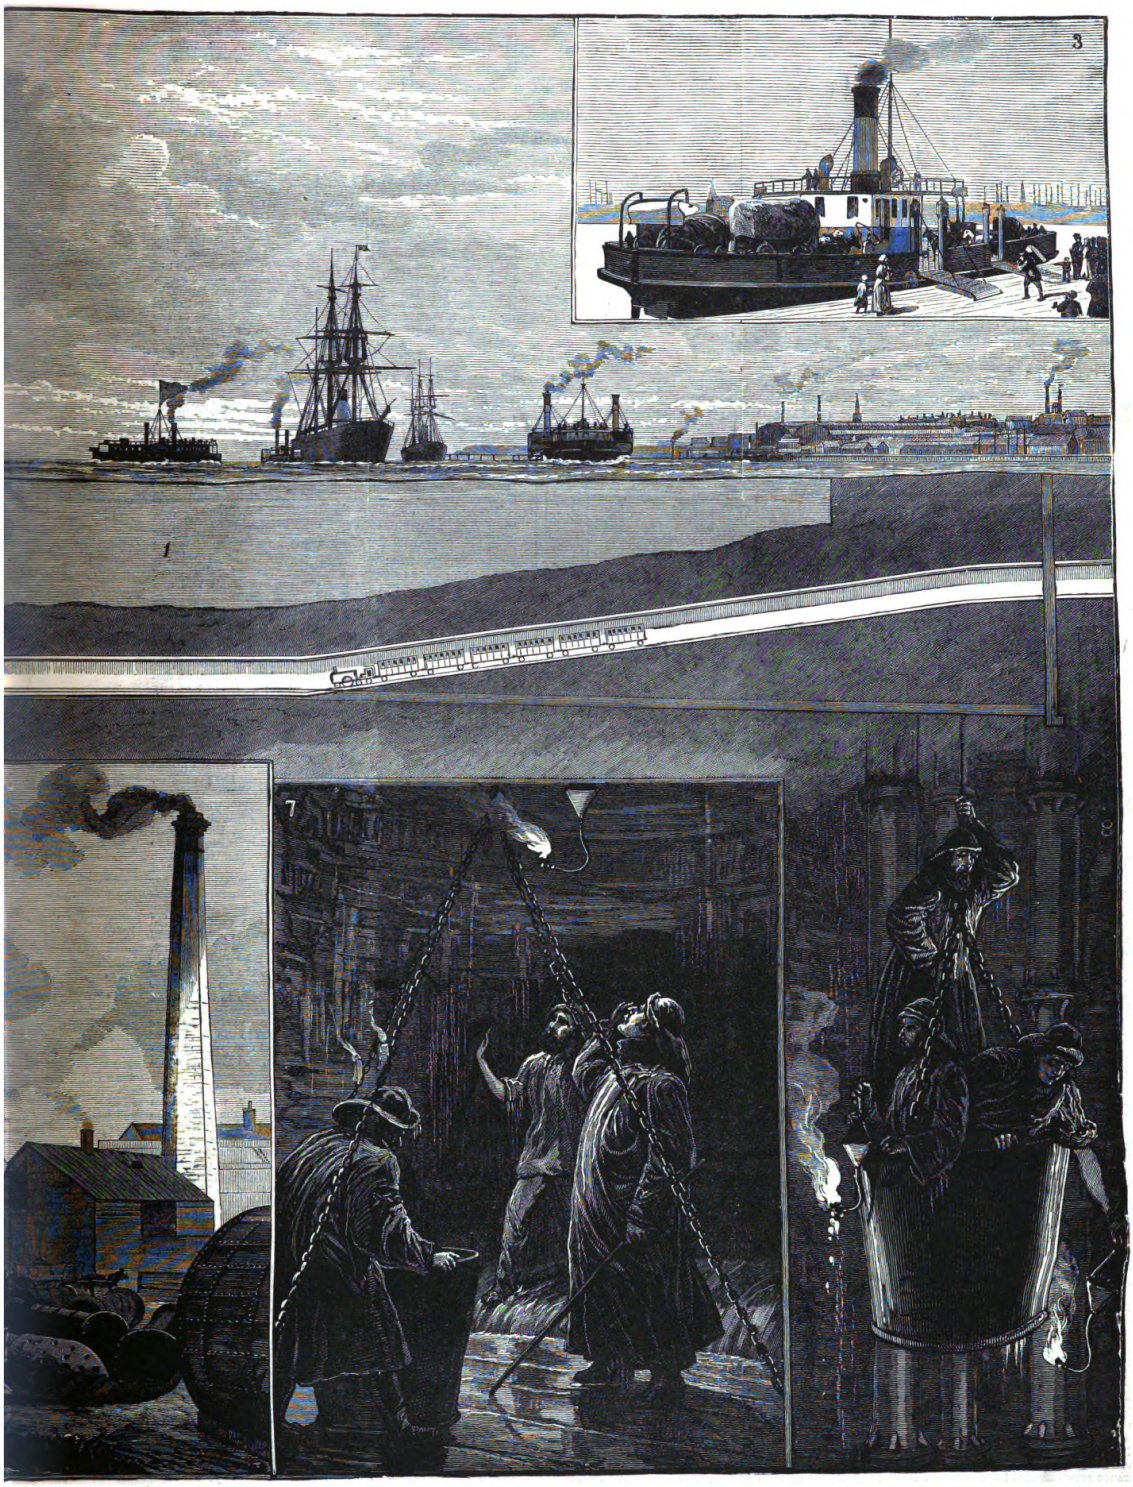
The arrangements for the fifty-first annual meeting of the British Association, which is fixed to commence on the last day of August, are progressing rapidly under the management of the local secretaries—the Rev. Thomas Adams and Dr. Tempest Anderson, of York. The first general meeting is fixed for Wednesday evening, Aug. 31, when Sir John Lubbock, M.P., will assume the presidency and deliver an address. On Thursday evening a soirée will be held; and on Friday and the following Monday evenings addresses will be delivered by Professor Huxley and Dr. Spottiswoode, the president of the Royal Society. On Tuesday another soirée will take place, and the concluding general meeting will be held on the Wednesday after. The sections will be presided over by gentlemen eminent in the respective branches of science.



1. The Mersey, showing Section of Tunnel, Driftway, and Shafts. 2. Passenger Ferry (present means of crossing).
5. Working at the Face of Heading. 6. View of Birkenhead Works, showing Headgear, Engin

THE MERSEY RAILWAY TUNNEL: PLAN

SEE PA



3. Ferry for Vehicles (present means of crossing).
4. Map showing Position of Tunnel.
-house, &c.
7. Working at the Bottom of Shaft, showing Entrance to Heading.
8. Going down in the Bucket.

AND SECTION, AND WORKS IN PROGRESS.

AGE 586.

OBITUARY.

MR. HANKEY OF BALCOMBE PLACE.

Mr. John Alexander Hankey, of Balcombe Place, Sussex, J.P., Commissioner of Lieutenancy for London and High Sheriff of Sussex in 1866, died on the 29th ult. at Dijon, aged seventy-seven. He was eldest son of the late Mr. John Peter Hankey, of Balcombe, by Isabella, his wife, sister of Sir William Alexander of Airdrie, Lord Chief Baron of the Exchequer, and was great-grandson of Alderman Sir Thomas Hankey, by Sarah, his wife, daughter of the famous Sir John Barnard, member in six successive Parliaments for the city of London. Mr. Hankey married, Aug. 30, 1825, Ellen, daughter of Mr. William Blake, of Danesbury, Herts, and leaves two sons and five daughters.

MR. H. H. LINDSAY.

Mr. Hugh Hamilton Lindsay, M.P. for Sandwich in the Conservative interest from 1841 to 1847, died on the 29th ult., at 14, Wyndham-place, Bryanston-square, in his seventy-ninth year. He was only son of the Hon. Hugh Lindsay, Director H.E.I.C., and Marshal of the Court of Admiralty, by Jane, his wife, daughter of the Hon. Alexander Gordon, Lord Rockville, of the Court of Session. His grandfather the Hon. Hugh Lindsay, was eighth son of James, fifth Earl of Balcarres, and his grandmother, Anne, daughter of Sir Robert Dalrymple, of Castleton. Mr. Hugh Hamilton Lindsay married, in 1852, Anna, widow of Mr. Charles Basil Lindsay, and daughter of Eneas Randall MacDonnell, Madras Civil Service, but leaves no issue. His only sister, Anne, was married in 1817 to the late Sir Edmund Antrobus, Bart.

MR. HENRY PEASE.

Mr. Henry Pease, of Pierremont and Stanhope Castle, county Durham, M.P. for the Southern Division of that county from 1857 to 1865, died on the 30th ult., in his seventy-fifth year. He was youngest son of Edward Pease, styled "The father of Railways," and of Rachel, his wife, daughter of Mr. John Whitwell, and, at the time of his decease, was the oldest Railway Director in the world. He was besides a colliery proprietor, a politician, a member of the Peace Society, a traveller, and a horticulturist. Representing the Society of Friends, together with Joseph Sturge and Robert Charlton, he journeyed in 1853 to St. Petersburg to endeavour to avert the war threatening to break out between England and Russia, and not long after visited the Emperor of the French on the same fruitless mission. In 1857 he was elected in the Liberal interest M.P. for South Durham, in 1867 filled the Civic Chair at Darlington, and in 1872 succeeded his brother Joseph (the first Quaker M.P.), as President of the Peace Society. He married, first, in 1835, Anna, daughter of Richard Fell; and secondly, in 1859, Mary, daughter of Mr. S. Lloyd, and leaves issue. The eldest son of his first marriage, Henry Fell Pease, of Brinkburn, is a J.P. for the county of Durham.

We have also to record the deaths of—

Lord Justice James on Tuesday. His memoir will be given next week.

The Rev. Dr. Thomas Main, ex-Moderator of the Free Church General Assembly, Minister of Free St. Mary's, Edinburgh, and Convener of the Education Scheme of the Free Church, at his residence in Edinburgh, aged sixty-five.

The Rev. Charles St. Denys Moxon, B.C.L., of Dunsland Court, Devon, formerly Vicar of Hempton, Norfolk, on the 23th ult. He was eldest son of the late Mr. Thomas Moxon, of Leyton, Essex, by Elizabeth, his wife, daughter of the Rev. John Henry Browne, LL.B., of Hingham.

The Hon. Mrs. McLaughlin (Frederica), wife of the Rev. Hubert McLaughlin, Rector of Burford, in the county of Salop, and sister of Edward Lord Crofton, on the 28th ult., aged sixty-five. This lady was twelfth in descent from King Henry VII. and his Queen, Elizabeth of York.

Mary Wybergh, sister of the late Sir Wilfrid Lawson, Bart., and last surviving child of Mr. Thomas Wybergh, of Clifton Hall, Westmorland, whose family has possessed, in unbroken male descent, that manor since the thirty-eighth year of King Edward III. In Cromwell's time, the Wyberghs appear in Oliver's list of delinquents, and in the next century the head of the house was taken prisoner by the Pretender's forces. The late Mr. Thomas Wybergh attained to some political celebrity in the northern counties as a staunch and enthusiastic supporter of Lord Brougham in the great struggle of the first Reform Bill.

Miss Elizabeth Maconochie-Welwood, second daughter of the late Alexander Maconochie-Welwood, of Meadowbank and Garvock, one of the Senators of the College of Justice, under the title of Lord Meadowbank, on the 28th ult., at Pitliver House, Fifeshire.

The Rev. Thomas John Blofeld, M.A., of Hoveton House, Norfolk, J.P. and D.L., on the 29th ult., aged seventy-four, for upwards of fifty years an acting magistrate for the county in which he resided. He was only son of the Rev. Thomas Calthorpe Blofeld, of Hoveton House, J.P. and D.L., by Mary Caroline, his wife, last surviving child of Francis Grosse, F.A.S., the antiquary. The Blofelds are an old Norfolk family.

Mr. Henry Alexander Starkie Bence, of Thorington Hall, Suffolk, J.P. and D.L., High Sheriff in 1872, on the 30th ult., at his seat near Saxmundham, aged sixty-five. He was eldest son of the late Colonel Bence Bence, of Thorington Hall, by Elizabeth Susanna, his wife, daughter and coheir of Mr. Nicholas Starkie, of Frenchwood, Lancashire, and grandson of the Rev. Bence Sparrow, who took the name and arms of Bence on succeeding to the estates of his maternal ancestors. The heiress of the senior line, Millicent Sparrow, married, in 1822, George, sixth Duke of Manchester.

Mr. Henry Woolcott, who for twenty-five years has been secretary to the Charing-cross Hospital, has been presented with an address on vellum and a purse of £150, subscribed by the friends of the institution as a token of esteem and in grateful remembrance of the best part of his life spent most successfully in its interests.

The late Mr. Joseph Jackson, of High-street, Shoreditch, bequeathed £10,000 for the establishment of a cottage hospital and soup kitchen in Shoreditch, with a further sum for providing a chapel at little Asby, in Westmorland. Objection was raised to these bequests before Vice-Chancellor Hall, on the ground that they necessarily involved the purchase of land, which was prohibited by the Mortmain Act. Sir C. Hall, however, decided in favour of their validity, except as regards the bequest for establishing a chapel.

The members of the City Police Force have been furnished with a helmet of new construction, which for lightness and general neatness of appearance seems a great improvement on the one previously in use. The new helmet is made of blue cloth, stretched over a cork body, with a lengthened peak at the back, which effectually protects the nape of the neck from the sun, and in wet weather will carry off the rain on to the centre of the cape, instead of, as was the case in the old pattern, allowing it to drip down its wearer's neck.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

A C (Old Broad-street).—Your explanation is satisfactory. The problem you sent is the composition of Mr. S. Loyd, of New York, and has been frequently published.

W R (Stratford).—Your problems shall have our best attention, but please to remember that there are a large number waiting examination.

Pitcairn (Peebles).—The notation you suggest is identical with the German system, and a change from that in common use in England is undesirable, even if it was practicable. The telegram explaining your letter was received.

F J (Coventry).—The amendment of your problem, by the removal of the unnecessary Pawns, is noted. Please send an amended diagram.

F J (Broadmoor).—Your amended problem is still inaccurate. It can be solved, if we mistake not, by 1. Q to R 3rd, 2. B to B 7th, 3. Kt to Q B 4th, and 4. Q to K 3rd, no matter how the Black pieces may be played. Why waste your time on such a position, Q, kt, and B mop against a solitary King, with a commonplace solution at the best? There is nothing problematical in such problems.

W P B (Oxford).—Many thanks for the information. It appears to have been a close encounter, and promises victory in the future.

A L S (Clevedon).—Both problems shall be examined. Thanks.

H W S (Jamaica).—The only conditions our contributors are required to observe are that problems intended for publication must be original and clearly described upon diagrams, and that the proposed solutions accompany them.

East Marden.—We accept, regretfully, your announcement that other calls upon your time oblige you to relinquish our correspondence. It has extended over many years, and has been as pleasant to us as you are good enough to say it has been to yourself.

Correct solutions of Problem No. 1939 received from H W Smith (Jamaica).

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1943 received from Emile Frau, Th South Jugg, Indagator, and J J Heaton.

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1944 received from Henry Frau (Lyons), Anna and Mimi, Ellis Pigg, Alpha, and J Tucker.

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1945 received from H B, Emile Frau, A Chapman, Silmouth, Cant, Herewardi, R H Brooks, Aaron Harper, G W Law, A M Colberg, L Sharpe, Ernest Sharswood, J G Anderson, An Old Hand, Otto Fuhler (Ghent), C Oswald, Jupiter Junior, S Farrant, R Ingersoll, A Scottish Man, D W Kell, D Templeton, R H A, L L Greenaway, H H Nokes, W Hillier, J Ainsworth, T Greenbank, C Darragh, M O'Halloran, Nerina, Ben Nevis, R T Kemp, F Ferris, W J Rudman, Stuart Berkeley, Smitch, Dr F St. Pilgrim, J Percy Ventnor, W Biddle, D L A (Harrogate), John O Mills, H W Richardson, G A (Hounchurch), W P K (Greenhill), Annie Moore, Norman Rumbelow, James Dobson, J Alois Schmucke, Leslie Lachlan, E Casella (Paris), R Jessop, R J Vines, Esse, B R Wood, T H Holdren, A C Staines, East Marden, Quair, Fire Fly, J Tucker, J J Heaton, G Michal, E Louden, E L G, H J Grant, J B, F W Humphries, Lulu, J Haigh, Birkie, Chess Class, Pops, Frank Littleboy, J W W, and Eastbach.

Solution of Problem No. 1944.

| WHITE. | BLACK. |
|---|---|
| 1. B to Q 7th | K to Q 4th* |
| 2. Kt to K 4th | Any move. |
| 3. Q to K Kt 8th. | Mate. |

* If Black play 1. K takes Kt, White continues 2. B to B 4th (dis. ch); and if 1. Kt to B 2nd or 1. Kt to Kt 3rd, then 2. Q to B 7th (ch), mating in each case on the third move.

PROBLEM No. 1947.

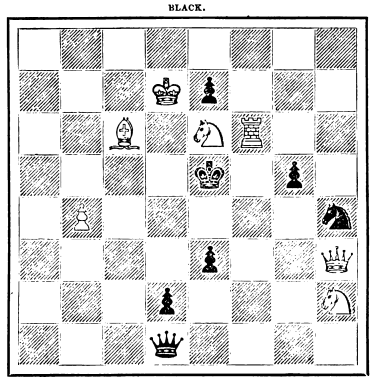
By Dr. S. Gold.

(From his forthcoming Collection of Problems.)

BLACK.



WHITE.

White to play, and mate in two moves.

Played at the Divan, between Mr. J. H. Blackburne and Mr. Steele.

(King's Gambit declined.)

| WHITE (Mr. B.) | BLACK (Mr. S.) |
|---|---|
| 1. P to K 4th | P to K 4th |
| 2. P to K B 4th | P to Q 4th |
| 3. Kt to K B 3rd | Kt to K B 3rd |
| A weak defence, inferior alike to 3. P takes K P and 4. B to K Kt 5th. | |
| 4. P takes K P | Kt takes P |
| 5. P to Q 4th | Kt to B 4th |
| 6. P to Q 4th | Kt to K 3rd |
| 6. Kt to K 5th seems preferable to thus shutting in the Queen's Bishop. | |
| 7. B to Q 3rd | P to Q B 4th |
| 8. P to Q B 3rd | Kt to B 3rd |
| 9. B to K 3rd | B to Q 2nd |
| 10. Castles | B to K 2nd |
| 11. B to Q B 2nd | Castles |
| 11. P takes P would have been safer; but Black, in all likelihood, would upon Q to Kt 3rd, at the right time, to require him for the Pawn now threatened, should White capture it. In the calculation he erred, as the event proves. | |
| 12. P takes P | B takes P |
| 13. B takes B | Kt takes B |
| 14. P to Q Kt 4th | |
| Better than taking the Pawn at once, to which Black could have replied with 14. Q to Kt 3rd. | |
| 14. | Kt to K 6th |
| 15. Q takes P | |
| A bold and perfectly sound manœuvre. | |

| WHITE (Mr. B.) | BLACK (Mr. S.) |
|---|---|
| 15. | Q to Kt 3rd (ch) |
| 16. K to R sq | |
| If he had interposed the Kt at Q 4th, Black had a reply to order in 16. Kt takes Q B P. As it is, the sacrifice of the exchange is a "Greek gift" to the adversary. | |
| 16. | Kt to B 7th (ch) |
| 17. R takes Kt | Q takes R |
| 18. Q Kt to Q 2nd | Q R to Q sq |
| 18. B to K 3rd is a better move than this; but even in that case, White, with the adverse Queen out of play, maintains a winning advantage. | |
| 19. Q to Q 3rd | P to K Kt 3rd |
| 20. Kt to K 4th | |
| Black's loss of time winning the exchange now become apparent. This move attacking the Queen wins, at the least, a Rook for the one lost, besides the minor piece already in hand. | |
| 20. | Q to Kt 3rd |
| 21. Kt to B 6th (ch) | K to Kt 2nd |
| 22. Kt takes B | Q to B 2nd |
| 23. P to K 6th | |
| A fine coup, to which there is no satisfactory reply. | |
| 23. | P takes P |
| 24. Kt takes R | R takes Q |
| 25. Kt takes P (ch) | Resigns. |

An invalid architect sends us a sketch showing how a solitary individual may play a game of chess. In front of the board a mirror is to be placed, tilted slightly so as to fully reflect the board and pieces. The player then moves the White pieces, looking at the board, and when it is Black's turn to play looks into the mirror, playing the reflected game to the best of his ability. We have not attempted the operation ourselves, but if any of our readers should do so we shall be glad to hear, and record, with due regard to space, the result of the experiment.

The Spirit of the Times, of New York, announces that a match has been arranged, in St. Louis, between Captain Mackenzie and a picked team of amateurs of that city. The Captain is to play two games with each of his adversaries, giving the odds of the Knight. The names of the amateurs selected to oppose the champion are Messrs. Aarensberg, Daughherty, Foster, Hooker, Koerper, Merrill, Moody, Nelson, Rinkel, Symonds, Wash, and "Amateur." The first game was played on the 19th ult., and was won by Captain Mackenzie against Mr. Symonds. Since that date he has won nine and drawn one.

At the monthly supper of the City of London Club last week, the president, Mr. Lovelock, distributed the prizes in the club handicap, and congratulated the winners—Messrs. Heywood, Gunzberg, Chappell, and Chitty—on their achievements.

The Croydon Guardian announces a problem tourney for prizes amounting to £10. Mr. A. E. Studd, the well-known problem-composer, has been invited to act as judge, and has accepted the office.

We have received from Herr Albert Cohn, of Berlin, a very interesting catalogue of rare chess books which he has for sale. Some of these are so scarce that the titles were omitted from the first edition of Herr V. Linde's exhaustive work "The First Thousand Years of Chess Literature." Among the curiosa we notice the chess column of the Illustrated London News from 1842 to 1875. The price affixed is two hundred marks.

We gladly comply with the request of Mr. Aylmer Maude, of Moscow, to state that the drawn game published in our Issue of the 21st ult., between that gentleman and Herr Zukertort, was one of three off-hand games, and that the other two were won by the latter.

The British Chess Magazine for the current month contains a review of Pendarves's Chess Monthly, in which the writer deals with some of Mr. Delannoy's facts and fancies very cleverly. Chess news, games, and problems, make up an excellent number.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will, as contained in eleven different papers, of His Holiness the late Pope Pius IX., who died on Feb. 7, 1878, at the Palace of the Vatican, Rome, has within the last few days been proved in London by William Walker, the attorney of Raphael, Cardinal Monaco, John, Cardinal Simeoni, and Theodolphus, Cardinal Mertel, the universal heirs appointed in the will, the personal estate in England been sworn under £800. The full text of the principal document was published at the time of the death in the Italian papers, and under this, after making various bequests, the testator gives one third of the remainder of his property to Luigi Mastai, one third to Ercole Mastai, and one third to Anna Arsili, daughter of Virginia Mastai. By the subsidiary papers or codicils, there are legacies, principally of relics, pictures, and crucifixes, to the King of Naples, the Duchess Dowager of Modena, the Grand Duke of Tuscany, the Duke of Parma, Don Alfonso di Bourbon, Count di Chiambo, the Princess of Thurn and Taxis, Queen Isabella of Spain, and others; and to several churches and charitable institutions.

The will (dated Aug. 7, 1879) of the Right Hon. John, Baron Hanmer, late of Bettisfield Park, Flintshire, who died on March 8 last at Knotley Hall, Leigh, Kent, was proved on the 13th ult. by the Hon. George Thomas Kenyon, and the Rev. Henry Hanmer, the brother, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £35,000. The testator, in addition to all other provision made for her by settlement or otherwise, leaves to his wife £1000, and his house in Eaton-place, with the furniture and effects, and an annuity of £1000 for life; at her death he gives his books, pictures, furniture, peer's robes, journals of the House of Lords, and his patent as a Baron to the person who succeeds to the mansion house of Bettisfield Park; to his executors, £500 each; and the residue of the personalty to his brother Wyndham Edward Hanmer; all his real estate in the parish of St. Giles he devises to his brother the said Rev. Henry Hanmer; and the residue of his real estate is directed to be settled so that it is entailed on the lineal issue of his late father, Lieutenant-Colonel Thomas Hanmer.

The will (dated Oct. 20, 1880) of Mr. Henry William Eyres, late of No. 41, Upper Grosvenor-street, who died on April 6 last, at Naples, was proved on the 20th ult. by James Shuter, the acting executor, the personal estate being sworn under £300,000. The testator gives to his wife, Mrs. Caroline Isabel Eyres, his residence No. 41, Upper Grosvenor-street, all his furniture, plate, pictures, and household effects (except such articles as may be selected by two or three of his relatives in remembrance of him), his horses and carriages, and an annuity of £500, in addition to the provision made for her by marriage settlement; and he appoints her guardian of his infant children; £250 each to the Leeds Infirmary, the Newport Market Refuge, Soho; the Church Fund, Armley, Yorkshire, and to the Vicar and churchwardens of Armley for the benefit of the poor of that parish; and the residue of his real and personal estate upon trust for all his children.

The will (dated May 26, 1873) of Mr. Charles Wheeler Townsend Webb Bowen, late of Camrose, Pembrokeshire, who died on April 13 last, was proved on the 11th ult. by William Davies, the surviving executor, the personal estate being sworn under £70,000. The testator devises all his real estate to his sister, Mrs. Augusta Ince Howell (since deceased) for life, and then as she shall by deed or will appoint; in default of any such appointment, he settles the same upon his nephew James Marks Philipps Child. There are legacies to servants and workmen; and the residue of the personalty he bequeaths to his said sister, but, she having predeceased him, it will go to his next of kin.

The will (dated Feb. 28, 1878) with three codicils (dated Nov. 28, 1878; Aug. 6, 1879; and Jan. 4, 1880) of Mrs. Georgeanna Linklater, formerly of No. 61, Onslow-gardens, but late of No. 91, Lexham-gardens, Kensington, who died on March 20 last, was proved on the 10th ult. by John Edmund Linklater and Joseph Addison, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £60,000. The testatrix bequeaths to Mrs. Ann Hosgood, £100; to her daughter, Mrs. Georgeanna Parry, some jewellery, and upon trust for her £5000; and there are some special gifts to her sons. The residue of her property she leaves to her three sons, John Edmund, Frederick Robert, and Francis Evelyn.

The will (dated July 7, 1876) with two codicils (dated July 21, 1880, and April 8, 1881) of Mr. James Farrar, late of Horton-street, Halifax, Yorkshire, who died on April 12 last, was proved on the 24th ult. by William Berry, Wrathale Riley Hanson, and John William Watson, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £50,000. The testator gives £200 to each of his executors; £500 each to the Halifax Infirmary and Dispensary, the Halifax Tradesmen's Benevolent Institution, and the Crossley Orphanage; £2000 to the children of Thomas Heap Flemmg; £2000 to the children of Joseph Farrar; and the residue of his real and personal property he bids to three sisters, Elizabeth, Sarah, and Mary, in equal shares.

The will (dated Dec. 10, 1880) of the Hon. and Rev. Frederick de Grey, late of Copdock, Suffolk, who died on March 30 last, was proved on the 11th ult. by the Hon. John Augustus de Grey and the Hon. Edward Frederick Kenyon, the nephews, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £35,000. The testator, after making gifts to nephews and servants, leaves one third of the residue of his personalty to the children of his late brother, Lord Walsingham, except the son who succeeded to the title; one third to his sister, Mrs. Henrietta Maria Garner; and one third to the children of his sister, Lady Kenyon, except her son, who succeeds to the title of Baron Kenyon.

The will (dated Feb. 25, 1869) with four codicils (dated Feb. 25, 1871; Dec. 11, 1877; Dec. 25, 1879; and Sept. 24, 1880) of Mrs. Frances Martha Fearnley, late of Bournemouth, who died on April 10 last, was proved on the 4th ult. by Christopher Richard Buckle, the brother, and Walter Justice, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £30,000. The testatrix leaves her freehold residence, Taviton Lodge, with the furniture, plate, pictures, and household effects, to her said brother; and legacies to relatives, friends, and servants. As to the residue of her property, real and personal, she gives five eighths to her said brother, two eighths to her sister Mrs. Eleanor Tinling, and one eighth to her sister Miss Mary Elizabeth Buckle.

The will (dated April 8, 1880) of Dame Annie Johanna Honyman, late of No. 68, Cambridge-terrace, Hyde Park, who died on Jan. 13 last at Edinburgh, was proved on the 12th ult. by Herbert Riversdale Mansel Jones and Henry John Coventry, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £10,000. The testatrix, after giving numerous specific and pecuniary legacies, leaves the residue of her property to her three brothers, John, Eden Edward, and Thomas James Thirkettle. C. G. C.

Alderman Scott, J.P., an ex-Mayor of Burnley, who died recently, has left £10,000 for a public park.

SOUND INVESTMENTS.

GRAND TRUNK RAILWAY OF CANADA.

A marked improvement in the value of the Securities of this Company has taken place during the past month, large investment purchases having been made on the highly satisfactory traffic position and statement of receipts recently published. There is every reason to expect that the profits for the current six months (the most favourable half-year) will be sufficient to provide the full interest on the Second Preference and to leave a surplus, so that the position of the Third Preference are more favourable than at any previous period.

A merely superficial examination of the position of the Grand Trunk Railway at the present time must convince the most sceptical that it possesses all the elements of great success, one of the principal features being the astounding growth of emigration traffic, the arrivals in Canada during this year being beyond all precedent. From the Port of Liverpool alone the exodus from Jan. 1 to May 28 to Canada and the United States has reached the enormous total of 92011 emigrants. For the week ending May 14 no fewer than 12,708 embarked. This tide of emigration must inevitably tend to the steady enrichment of the Grand Trunk Railway.

The Company's Balance-Sheet recently issued shows that the financial position is exceptionally strong. Apart from the large amount of cash in hand and on loan, the securities are locked up at over half a million sterling, but this is without regard to the improved values of the Bonds held in the Chicago Extension, the ordinary stock of which is also now attaining a substantial position, so that the Grand Trunk perpetual charge of four 5,000,000 dols. nominal must be rapidly developing into a valuable asset. With such facts before them, it is scarcely surprising that the Directors should recently have refused to entertain an offer for the call of the unissued Ordinary stock at the price of £20.

With the present dearth of Investments yielding 7 per cent dividend, it is surprising the First and second Preferences should be at such low prices. An equal purchase at 96 and 86 respectively, or an average of 102, including five months of accrued dividend, would return to a present buyer over 5 per cent per annum. The Third Preference and Ordinary shares must steadily improve in value, on currently with the growing prosperity of the Railway. Both are well worth buying.

MEXICAN RAILWAY.

A further considerable rise in the shares of this Company has taken place during the past month, the improvement being attributable to the issue of the Report and Accounts for the half-year ending Dec. 31 last, and the subsequent meeting of the Proprietors, when most favourable statements were made by the Chairman as to the future. The resolution authorising the expenditure of a further £1000 per annum from the revenue account for the equipment of the line to provide for the new traffic expected is very commendable, as the increase of traffic for the twenty-nine weeks of the present year amounts to the handsome total of £100,000.

PHILADELPHIA AND READING RAILWAY.

I have every confidence that before long a reduction of all outstanding difficulties will be arrived at, which will leave the Railway free to return to a position of credit and credit. Meanwhile the traffic returns show a satisfactory increase even over the excellent takings of last year. The continuous applications for these securities in America is very significant.

NEW YORK, PENNSYLVANIA, AND OHIO (LATE ATLANTIC AND GREAT WESTERN).

The negotiations for a consolidation, in which this property is to be included, are still progressing, but are not yet matured. The continued absorption of minor lines into larger systems in America is chiefly owing to the prospective value of this property as a connecting link between the East and the W. t. The First Mortgage Bonds at 80 are well worth the attention of Investors, as they may become later participate in the general improvement in all American Railways.

HAMILTON AND NORTH-WESTERN RAILWAY.

Since the directing attention to these Bonds their value has steadily improved. They are still well worth buying, as they pay nearly 7½ per cent at present quotations, and are undoubtedly a perfectly safe investment.

GREAT EASTERN RAILWAY.

A variety of disparaging reports affecting this property have been industriously circulated during the past month, but they all appear to have been conceived from the imaginations of mischievous speculators, whose purposes are practically very transparent, and their needs are most pressing. As anticipated in my last month's Circular, the proposition of the Harwich Docks has been issued. The Great Eastern Railway will be materially benefited by this new enterprise, while the impending opening of the Great Northern Extension, the great expansion of suburban and continental traffic, the improved agricultural prospects upon which this line at present so much depends, and the increasing value of the company's property in Liverpool-street, must all open a great future for the undertaking. The joint guarantee of the Brighton and South Eastern Companies of 3½ per cent on £200,000 to the East London Company will enable the latter to pay off its heavy debt of charges to the Great Eastern Company. Under such circumstances the Ordinary Stock at 71½ is one of the most promising English Railway investments in the market.

NORTH STAFFORDSHIRE RAILWAY.

Owing to the revival of reports as to this Railway being absorbed by one of its three powerful neighbours, the Ordinary Stock has advanced 4 per cent during the past month. So sooner or later, this desirable change must be brought about.

ISLE OF MAN RAILWAY.

It is yet too early in the season to note any material increase in the receipts, but there are indications that the pleasure traffic this year, owing to the improved facilities for communication with Liverpool, Barrow, Glasgow, Dublin, and Belfast, will be the largest on record. I continue to have great confidence in the future prosperity of this compact little Railway.

CORNWALL MINERALS RAILWAY.

Considerable dealings have taken place in the various stocks of this Railway during the past month, at one time very high prices were reached, rendering purchases somewhat difficult. The healthy reaction which has since taken place affords a favourable opportunity for new investors. Having visited Cornwall a fortnight since, with a view to a personal inspection of the property of this Company, I was much impressed with the condition of the line, and the preparations which are being made in anticipation of the great development which is so confidently expected. On all sides are distinct signs of increased activity in the various Cornish industries. At the same time, the prospects of pleasure traffic this summer to New Quay (by far the most charming watering-place on the Atlantic coast) are most favourable. The stocks of this railway can now be much more freely dealt in upon the London, Liverpool, and Manchester Exchanges. Judged by the light of the improving prospects, and the mutual existing agreements with the Great Western (to which I referred last month), I think the Preference and Ordinary Stocks are well worth buying for the future. It would seem that at the present moment those events are only now on the road to realisation which were anticipated at the formation of the Company in 1873, and in expectation of which alone the line was constructed.

EAST ARGENTINE RAILWAY.

Thanks to the firm and united action of the Shareholders of this Railway in opposing the introduction of the new Argentine Loan on all European Bourses, so long as that Government's guarantee to them remained in abeyance, there is now a very fair prospect of a full settlement being made. It appears much unfair to me that those who, years ago, lent their money on the strength of my advice, and on the faith of the Government guarantee, have now, after long and patient waiting, the opportunity to do a good profit, even after providing for 7 per cent interest on their original investments.

LOMBARDY ROAD RAILWAYS.

The success which has attended the introduction of light road railways into Italy under French and Belgian auspices has for a long time past been watched with interest by capitalists in this country, and the outcome is now apparent in the introduction of an English Company, entitled "The Lombardy Road Railways Company, Limited," a prospectus of which accompanies this circular. As indicated in its title, the system is situated in the fertile plains of Lombardy, connecting numerous populous villages and manufacturing towns. Established lines of a similar character in the same district are now earning dividends ranging from 6 to 20 per cent. This new Railway has been constructed and equipped by the Tramways and General Works Company, who have recently carried out similar works for the Bordeaux Tramways Company, the shares of which are now at 10 per cent premium. The contracts in this instance have shown their confidence by guaranteeing a 6 per cent dividend for two years. The Company will be controlled by a highly efficient Board of Directors, all of whom are gentlemen of long and practical business experience. In recommending investments in these shares I may mention that I do so in consequence of the favourable impression which I formed when recently travelling over and examining the various lines. Early application for the Shares should be made, as the List will close on or before Thursday, the 16th inst.

BORDEAUX TRAMWAYS AND TRAMWAYS OF GERMANY.

I continue to recommend investments in both these companies, their traffic receipts showing great activity. Both are now quoted at the par issued price of £10 per share, or 10 per cent premium. In view of the improved dividend prospects for this year, they are likely to advance still further.

TRAMWAYS AND GENERAL WORKS COMPANY.

The successful progress of this company's works in Bordeaux and London has occasioned a revival in the demand for the shares. I would suggest to all proprietors in this company to take an interest in the new London and Road Railways, and that in sending forward their applications they should state the fact, as they are clearly entitled to some prior consideration.

ANGLO ARGENTINE TRAMWAYS.

This system of tramways is largely sharing in the improved position of Argentine affairs, being at once benefited by the recent reduction in the premium on gold, through which a 7 per cent of dividend has formerly been lost) and the consequent growth in the traffics.

ELECTRIC LIGHT COMPANY.

In accordance with the terms of the contract with the Corporation of the City of London for lighting various leading thoroughfares, the works of this company are now employed in the Holborn, Southwark Bridge, and in Queen-street, Thames Queen Victoria-street will be ready in a few days, and the lighting of the Queen section will commence in about a week. Already the system is in operation at the Aldersgate-street Station, the Times City Office, and at Her Majesty's Theatre. The works at Brixton, Southwark, are rapidly approaching completion. The shares have been in demand at 1 premium, and in my opinion are well worth buying.

TELEPHONE CONSTRUCTION AND MAINTENANCE.

The use of the Telephone is so rapidly extending that a very large and profitable field is opening out for the operations of this Company. A valuable contract has been concluded to supply all European countries, and when the particulars are made public there will, no doubt, be a very brisk demand for the shares.

INDIAN GOLD-MINES.

The recent decline in the quotations for these Shares is attributable to the circulation of a variety of rumours clearly emanating from those speculators who, having sold at higher prices, now wish to buy back at a profit. From reliable sources I learn, for instance, that there is no truth whatever in the report that the Kolar Company's machinery had broken down. It is equally untrue that any imperfection exists in the title of that portion of the South Ivanhoe property for which the Prince's Company paid, and that the payment of the 4s. per share dividend by the South Indian Company was consequently delayed. The only difficulty in completing the transfer is due to the pressure of work in the District Registration Office in India. The latest intelligence, which has reached London more than justifies the most favourable opinion I have ever expressed as to the results to be expected; but those who desire to participate in the full benefits must continue to exercise patience and utterly disregard interested rumours. At the reduced quotations the shares of the South Indian, Glenrock, Phœnix, and Trevelyan are well worth buying.

CANADIAN COPPER AND SULPHUR.

This Company has now commenced smelting its own ores, instead of the work being done by others, as formerly. It is expected that much benefit will result from this change. Recent advices from Canada are extremely favourable.

RHYMNEY IRON.

The new Bessemer pit has recently been started, so that the capacity for manufacture of steel rails will be considerably increased. The property may now be considered the most compact in South Wales, and this, with the improved prospects of the iron trade, should afford investors further secure securities. The 7 per cent Debenture can now be bought at £108.

NEWFOUNDLAND LAND COMPANY.

It must be a matter for congratulation to those Shareholders who supported me in subscribing for shares, to appear for the liquidation of this Company, that the Shares which were then quoted at 1 premium are now worth £2. The delay has been due to the rumour that the long projected Railway through the Island was about to be proceeded with.

I beg to notify my change of Address from No. 10 to No. 16, Tokenhouse-yard.

From Mr. WILLIAM ABBOTT'S Circular for June.

16, Tokenhouse-yard, London, E.C.

GENUINE DUBLIN WHISKY.
THE MOST WHOLESOME OF ALL SPIRITS.
DUBLIN WHISKY, Distilled by Messrs. JOHN JAMESON and SON, GEORGE ROE and Co., WILLIAM JAMESON and Co., and JOHN POWER and SON, can be obtained of the Wine & Spirit merchants and dealers direct from their respective distilleries.

FOR the HOT WEATHER use NIAGARA WATER. Most invigorating and refreshing. Possesses all the fragrance of a bunch of Exotics. Invaluable in all hot climates. In Half-Pint Bottles.

NIAGARA WATER for the TOILET and BATH delicately.—The most agreeable and refreshing perfumation known. Most exhilarating after the fatigue of shaving. Wholesale of JAMES LEWIS, Perfumer, 6, Battle's-buildings, Hedsern, London.

| | Gold Medal, Paris Exhibition, 1878. | Prize Award, Paris, 1878. |
|---|---|---|
| FRY'S | FRY'S CARACAS COCOA. "A most delicious and valuable article."—Standard. | |
| COCOA. | PURE COCOA ONLY. FRY'S COCOA EXTRACT. F.R.C.S., F.C.S., City Analyst, Bristol. Thirteen Exhibition Medals. | |

CHOCOLAT MENIER. Awarded the GRAND DIPLOMA OF HONOUR.

CHOCOLAT MENIER, in ½ lb. and ¼ lb. Packets. For BREAKFAST and SUPPER.

CHOCOLAT MENIER.—Awarded Twenty Eight PRIZE MEDALS. Consumption annually exceeds 18,000,000 lbs.

CHOCOLAT MENIER. Paris, London, New York. Sold Everywhere.

SCHWEITZER'S COCOATINA. Four times the strength of Cocoas Thickened yet Weakened with Starch, Arrowroot, Sugar, &c.

The faculty pronounce it the most nutritious, perfectly digestive Beverage for "BREAKFAST, LUNCHEON, or SUPPER." Keeps in all Climates. Requires no Cooking. A teaspoonful to Breakfast Cup, costing less than a halfpenny. Samples gratis. In Air-Tight Tins, at 1s. 6d., 3s., &c., by Chemists and Grocers. H. SCHWEITZER and CO., 10, Adam-street, London, W.C.

HORNIMAN'S TEA for Forty Years has commanded a large sale, because it can always be relied on for strength, flavour, and cheapness. It is the best tea imported. Sold only in Packets.

ROBERT ROBERTS AND CO.'S CELEBRATED TEAS.
TWELVE POUNDS AND UPWARDS CARRIAGE PAID.
Samples and Price-lists free by post.
Queen Insurance-buildings, Liverpool. ESTABLISHED 1840.
No agents.
All communications and orders direct.

BLAIR'S GOUT PILLS, THE GREAT REMEDY FOR GOUT AND RHEUMATISM. Sold by all Chemists, at 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. per Box.

PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 105, OXFORD-STREET. NEW SPRING GOODS in all Departments. ILLUSTRATIONS AND PATTERNS FREE.

FASHION-BOOK and PRICE-LIST now ready. Sent free by post.

LADIES IN THE COUNTRY Are requested to write for Patterns of

NEW SILKS, including

PONGE WASHING SILK, 20 yards for 1 Guinea.

PONGEE GARNITURES, 4½ yards long, Embroidered in Silk, 1s. 6d. the piece.

300 PIECES of GRISAILLE SILKS, 2s. 6d. the Dress.

SPECIAL.
180 PIECES of COLOURED GROS GRAIN, in all the New Shades, 2s. 9½d. per yard.

100 PIECES of NEW BLACK BROCHÉ SATIN, from 2s. 11d. per yard.

BLACK SATINS, soft and bright, from 1s. 6d. per yard.

100 PIECES of extra Rich BLACK SILK MERVEILLEUX, 4s. 6d. per yard, 21 in. wide.

160 SHADES of NEW DUCHESSE SATINS, extra wide width, 1s. 9d. per yard.

RICH BLACK SATIN GROUND BROCADED VELVET, for Mantles, &c., 7s. 11d. per yard.

ITALIAN SATINS, in every shade of Colour, from 2s. 11d. per yard.

ALL the LATEST NOVELTIES in SHADED and BROCADED SILKS, from 3s. 6d. to 7s. 6d. per yard.

PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON.

LADIES IN THE COUNTRY are requested to write for Patterns of

NEW SUMMER DRESSES, including
ANGOLA BEIGE, 25in. wide, 1s. 6d. to 1s. 6½d. per yard.
ANGOLA BEIGE, 45in. wide, 1s. 9½d. to 2s. 6d. per yard.
VIGOGNE CASHMERE, very fine, 26in. wide, 1s. 6d. per yard.
CACHEMIRE DE L'INDE, 45in. wide, 2s. 11d. to 3s. 9d. per yard.
CASHMERE MERINOS, New Spring Colours, very wide, 1s. 11d. to 2s. 9d.
CACHEMIRE DE PARIS, very fine, 46in. wide, 1s. 11d. to 3s. 3d. per yard.
VIRGINIE CLOTH, 26in. wide, all Wool, 1s. 6d. per yard.
DRAB CASIMIR, 26in. wide, 1s. to 1s. 9d. per yard.
Rich Wool and Silk MIXED FABRICS, in every colour and other elegant styles for draping, 1s. 9d. to 3s. 6d. per yard.
All the above in Black and every New Shade of the NEW HIGH ART COLOURS.
RICH VELVET VELVETEENS in the New Black, as advertised, very wide, 2s. 6d. to 3s. 9d. per yard. In White and all the New Colours, 2s. 9d. to 4s. 6d. per yard.
SPECIAL SALE of 120 PIECES RICH BLACK DAMASSE CASIMIR, at 1s. 9d. per yard; usual price 3s. 6d.
BLACK GRENADINES, Plain, Brocade, and striped.
An enormous collection of PRINTED SATINES, Percales, Cambrics, Zephyrs, &c., in every variety of design.
Several hundred pieces last year's patterns best French Cambrics, at 4½d. per yard.
OSBORNE LAWNS, a very useful Fabric for MORNING DRESSES, in Plain, Checked, and Striped, all Colours. These goods are very wide, and are unusually pretty, 9½d. per yard.
PATTERNS POST-FREE.

MADE MATERIAL COSTUMES.
A well-selected assortment of all the leading Styles and Combinations, including:—

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Light Fawn Cashmir, trimmed braid | ... | £2 | 2 6 |
| Plain and Fancy Beiges | ... | 2 | 18 6 |
| French Cashmir, trimmed rich brocades | ... | 3 | 18 6 |
| Cashmere or Tweed, trimmed ombré | ... | 4 | 4 0 |
| Plain and Fancy Cashmirs and Persales | ... | 0 | 15 9 |
| New Printed Sateens | ... | 1 | 7 6 |
| Corded and Zephyr Lawns | ... | 1 | 11 6 |

Patterns and Illustrations of the above Costumes, with Rules for Self-Measurement, post-free.

PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON, W.; and MOURNING WAREHOUSE, 256 to 262, REGENT-STREET.

NICHOLSON'S NEW SUMMER SAMPLES. Patterns post-free. FRENCH SERGES, BEIGE, SERGES, HERRING-BONE and MILAN STRIPES, and all the Newest Materials in the most beautiful colours.

NICHOLSON'S NEW WASHING FABRICS. Patterns post-free. FRENCH SATTEENS, CAMBRICS, OATMEAL CLOTH, GINGHAMS, &c., in every new and tasteful design.

NICHOLSON'S NEW SILKS. Patterns post-free. PEKINES, VELVETS, SATINS, BROCHÉS, SATIN DE LYONS, and PLAIN LYONS GROS GRAIN, in every fashionable shade.

D. NICHOLSON and CO., 50 to 53, ST. PAUL'S-CHURCHYARD, LONDON, SOLE LESSEES OF THE COSTUME COURT, CRYSTAL PALACE.

MADAME ELLIOT makes up DRESSES stylishly and its elegantly. 8, Great Portland-street, Oxford-street.

MADAME ELLIOTT'S CORSETS. Splendid Shape. French and English make, 5s. 6d., 7s. 6d., 10s. 6d., 21s., 30s., 42s. To avoid delay, send size. Waist and P.O.O. for the amount. Corsets changed if not approved. Corsets made to order.—8, Great Portland-street, Oxford-street.

NOVELTIES for LADIES' MORNING DRESSES.—French Satteens, 8½d.; Pompadours, 7½d.; Prints, 5½d.; Linen Lawns, 9½d. Patterns free. JOHN HOOPER, 32, Oxford-street, W.

NEW SUMMER DRESSES.—New Heather Tweed Delaine, 6½d.; New Grault Merveilleux, 6½d. Patterns free.—JOHN HOOPER, 32, Oxford-street, W.

ELECTRICITY IS LIFE.
PULVERMACHER'S "GALVANISM, NATURE'S CHIEF RESTORER OF IMPAIRED VITAL ENERGY."
In this Pamphlet the most reliable proofs are given of the vast and wonderful curative powers of Pulvermacher's Patent Galvanic Chain-Bands, Belts, &c., in Rheumatic, Nervous, and Functional Disorders. Sent post-free for three stamps on application to
J. L. PULVERMACHER'S GALVANIC ESTABLISHMENT, 194, Regent-street, London, W.

PETER ROBINSON'S COURT AND GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE, REGENT-STREET.

FAMILY BEREAVEMENTS.
Upon Receipt of Letter or Telegram
PETER ROBINSON'S EXPERIENCED DRESSMAKERS and MILLINERS TRAVEL to ALL PARTS of the COUNTRY, no matter the distance FREE OF EXPENSE TO PURCHASERS, with Dresses, Mantles, Millinery, and a full assortment of MADE-UP ARTICLES of the best and most suitable description. Also Materials by the Yard, and supplied at the same VERY REASONABLE PRICES as if Purchased at the Warehouse in "REGENT-STREET."
Mourning for Servants at unexceptionally low rates, at a great saving to large or small families.
Funerals Conducted in Town or Country at Stated Charges.
Address 256 to 262, Regent-street, London.
PETER ROBINSON'S.

THE BEST CRAPES, THAT WILL NOT SPOT WITH RAIN.
Special qualities finished by the manufacturer in this desirable manner ready to the order of PETER ROBINSON.
Good qualities from 3s. 6d. to 12s. 9d. per yard. Others, not finished by this process, from 1s. 6d. to 4s. 6d.

A SPECIAL PURCHASE.
200 PIECES OF
RICH BLACK BROCADED SILKS, very fashionable now for Costumes and Mantles, 3s. 9d., 3s. 11d., 4s. 9d., 5s. 9d., 5s. 11d., 6s. 6d.

100 PIECES OF
BLACK SATIN IMPERIAL, a New Make of Satin, rich in appearance, and wears better than any other silk. 5s. 6d., and up to 10s. 6d.

BLACK SATIN MERVEILLEUX, new this Season, 3s. 6d., 4s. 11d., 5s. 9d., 7s. 6d.

BLACK SATIN DE LYON, a good useful Silk, for Hard Wear, 3s. 6d., 3s. 11d., 5s. 11d., 6s. 6d.

BLACK DUCHESS SATIN, at 5s. 11d., 6s. 6d., Magnificent qualities at 7s. 6d. and 8s. 6d.

BLACK SATINS (Cotton Backs), 1s. 11d., 2s. 6d., 2s. 11d., 3s. 11d.

BLACK BROCADED VELVETS, 5s. 9d., 6s. 11d., 8s. 9d., 10s. 9d.

BLACK TWILLED SILKS, for Summer Wear, at 2s. 6d., and above.

BLACK SURAT SILKS, with White Floral Designs, 2s. 11d., 3s. 11d.

COSTUMES in SILK, SATIN, and BROCADE.
Facsimiles of Expensive Paris Models in all Fabrics and Input Expenses.
Materials by the Yard or Dress.
For Tabulated Illustrations, Please write to
PETER ROBINSON'S, REGENT-STREET, Nos. 256 to 262.

THE RACES and FÊTES.—Ladies, and all exposed to the Sun and Dust, will find ROWLANDS' KALYDOR most Cooling and Refreshing to the Face. It eradicates all Tan, Sunburn, Freckles, &c., and produces a Beautiful and Delicate Complexion.

ROWLANDS' ODONTO is the purest and most fragrant dentifrice ever made. All dentists will allow that neither washes nor pastes can possibly be a efficacious for polishing the teeth and keeping them sound and white as a pure and non-gritty tooth powder; such Rowlands' Odonto has always proved itself to be. An only Leader in Perfumery for Rowlands' Articles.

PIESSE and LUBIN.
Opoponax, Jockey Club, Patchouly, Frangipanni, Kiss-Me-Quick, White Rose, and 100 others, from every Tower Cut Bouquet Handkerchief, 2s. 6d. each, of three Bottles in a Case. The above sweet Scents in Sachet Powder, 1s. 6d. each, can be forwarded by post. Sold by the fashionable Perfumers and Perfumers in all parts of the world.
2, NEW BOND-STREET, LONDON.

TURKISH PASTILS.
"Through all my travels few things astonished me more than seeing the beauties of the harem smoking Pastilles at Stamboul. After smoking, a sweet aromatic incense or pastille is used by them, which is said to impart an odour of flowers to the breath. I have never seen these breath lozenges but once in Europe, and that was at PIESSE and LUBIN'S shop in Bond-street."—Lady W. Montagu.
In Boxes, 2s.; by post, 2s. 2d.
2, NEW BOND-STREET, LONDON.

BREIDENBACH'S SACHETS.
Wood Violet, White Rose, Stephanotis, Marechale, Fes, Bouquet, Musk, Ylang Ylang, Opoponax, Millefleurs, Chypre, in paper envelopes, 1s. each; in silk bags, 1s. each; in satin cushions, 2s. 6d. each. Sold by all Perfumers and Fancy Dealers, or post-free from the Makers, 157, New Bond-street, London, W.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY for the HAIR.
If your hair is turning grey, or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White Hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair lie charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots where the glands are not decayed. "The Mexican Hair Renewer" is sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere, at 3s. 6d. per Bottle.

FLORILINE. For the Teeth and Breath. Is the best Liquid Dentifrice in the world; it thoroughly cleanses partially-decayed teeth from all parasites or living animalcules, imparting them pearly white, imparting a delightful fragrance to the breath. The Fragrant Floriline possesses instantly all odours arising from a foul stomach or tainted smoke, being partly composed of honey, soda, and extracts of sweet herbs and plants. It is perfectly harmless and delicious as sherry. Sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere, at 2s. 6d. per Bottle.

HAY FEVER CURED BY DR. DUNBAR'S ALKARAM, or Anti-Catarrh Snuffing.

| | |
|---|---|
| ALKARAM. | HAY FEVER. |
| ALKARAM. | HAY FEVER. |
| ALKARAM. | HAY FEVER. |

IF inhaled on the first symptoms, ALKARAM will at once arrest them, and cure severe cases in half an hour. Sold by all Chemists, 2s. 6d. a Bottle. Address, Dr. DUNBAR, care of Messrs. F. Newbery and Sons, 1, King Edward-st., E.C.

"FOR THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."
CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE is warranted to cleanse the Blood from all Impurities, from whatever cause arising. For Scrofula, Scurvy, Skin and Blood Diseases, its effects are marvellous. In Bottles, 2s. 9d. each, and in cases, containing six times the quantity, 11s. each, of all Chemists. Send for any address for 30 or 132 stamps, of the Proprietor, F. J. CLARKE, Chemist, Lincoln.

THE GEORGE STEPHENSON CENTENARY AT NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE: THE HIGH LEVEL BRIDGE.—SEE PAGE 595.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 2196.—VOL. LXXVIII. SATURDAY, JUNE 18, 1881. WITH TWO SUPPLEMENTS | SIXPENCE. By Post, 6½d.

BIRTHS.

On the 14th inst., at Ruishton Lodge, near Taunton, the wife of James W. Davson, of a son.

On the 8th inst., at St. Leonards-on-Sea, the wife of W. Sharpley, of a son.

On the 26th ult., at Bank House, The Cliff, Higher Broughton, Manchester, the wife of G. H. Berry, Esq., of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

On April 12, at the Church of England, Brookside, by the Rev. Walter Harper, Frank, eldest son of George Jackson, Esq., of Woolshots, Ramsden Wood House, Billericay, Essex, to Kate Laura, eldest daughter of Henry Dent Gardiner, Esq., of Woodlands, Irwell, Ellesmere and Purau, Rhodes Bay, Lyttelton, New Zealand, and formerly of Belchamp, St. Paul's, Essex, England.

On the 9th inst., at St. Mary's, Bexley, by the Rev. W. Knox Marshall, B.D., Prebendary of Hereford Cathedral, and Rector of Panton with Wragby, grandfather of the bride, assisted by the Rev. A Washington, Rector of Saxmundham, Suffolk, Samuel Henry Gladstone, third son of the late Robert Gladstone, of Manchester, to Katherine Maud, second daughter of William Hulbert Wathen, of Bexley.

DEATHS.

On the 2nd inst., at Quendon Hall, Essex, Henry Byng, Esq., Captain R.N., eldest son of the late Admiral the Hon. Henry D. Byng, in his 76th year.

On April 19, at South Yarra, Melbourne, Australia, Isabella, widow of the late Colin Brown, Esq., and last surviving child of the late John Bell, Esq., M.D. Staff-Surgeon R.N., of Houghton-le-Spring, in the county of Durham, aged 75 years.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

BRIGHTON.—EVERY SUNDAY, a CHEAP FIRST-CLASS TRAIN from Victoria 10.45 a.m., calling at Clapham Junction, and from London Bridge, 10.55 a.m., calling at Croydon. Day Return Tickets, 10s.

BRIGHTON. — PULLMAN DRAWING-ROOM CAR TRAINS leave Victoria for Brighton every WEEKDAY at 10.0 a.m. and 4.30 p.m., and Brighton for Victoria at 9.45 a.m. and 5.45 p.m.; also from Victoria on Sundays at 10.45, and from Brighton at 8.30 p.m.

THE GRAND AQUARIUM AT BRIGHTON.—EVERY SATURDAY, Cheap First-Class Trains from Victoria at 10.55 and 11.30 a.m., and London Bridge at 9.30 a.m. and 12.0 noon, calling at Clapham Junction and Croydon. Day Return Fare—First Class, Half-a-Guinea including admission to the Aquarium and the Royal Pavilion Picture Gallery, Palace, and Grounds), available to return by any Train the same day, except the 5.45 p.m. Pullman Car Train. EVERY WEDNESDAY.—Cheap Day Return Tickets to Brighton, including admission to the Aquarium, are issued from Victoria, London Bridge, and nearly all stations.

FAMILY and TOURISTS' TICKETS are now issued, available for One Month, from London Bridge, Victoria, &c., to Portsmouth (for Southsea, Ryde, Cowes, Newport, Sandown, Shanklin, Ventnor (for Bonchurch and Freshwater), and Hayling Island.

PARIS.—SHORTEST, CHEAPEST ROUTE. Vid NEWHAVEN, DIEPPE, and ROUEN. Cheap Express Service every Weeknight, First, Second, and Third Class. From Victoria 7.50 p.m., and London Bridge 8.0 p.m. Fares—Single, 35s., 26s., 17s.; Return 55s., 37s., 30s. Powerful Paddle-steamers, with excellent Cuisine, &c. Trains run alongside Steamers at Newhaven and Dieppe. SOUTH OF FRANCE, ITALY, SWITZERLAND, &c. Tourists' Tickets are issued enabling the holder To visit all the principal places of interest.

TICKETS and every information at the Brighton Company's West End General Offices, 28, Regent-circus, Piccadilly, and 8, Grand Hotel-buildings, Trafalgar-square; also at the Victoria and London Bridge Stations. (By order) J. P. KNIGHT, General Manager.

GREAT EASTERN RAILWAY.—Seaside. TWO MONTHS RETURN TICKETS are now issued by all trains to YARMOUTH, Lowestoft, Cromer, Hunstanton, Southwold, Aldeburgh, Felixstowe, Harwich, Bovercourt, Walton-on-the-Naze, and Weeley (for Clacton-on-Sea, Frinstchley, and Friday or Saturday to Monday, First, Second, and Third Class Return Tickets are also issued at REDUCED FARES to all Stations to Hunstanton, Cromer, Yarmouth, Lowestoft, Walton-on-the-Naze, Weeley (for Clacton-on-Sea), Bovercourt, Harwich, Felixstowe, Aldeburgh, or Southwold. London, June, 1881. WILLIAM BURT, General Manager.

MDLLE. SARAH HEARTBURNE, LA GRANDE TRAGEDIENNE, Engaged at a fabulous salary to appear with the MOORE and BURGESS MINSTRELS, ST. JAMES'S HALL, PICCADILLY, will make her debut ON MONDAY NIGHT, JUNE 20. Tickets and places may be secured at Austin's Office, St. James's Hall, daily, from 9.30 till 6.30.

ST. JAMES'S HALL, PICCADILLY. MOST IMPORTANT ENGAGEMENT. MESSRS. MOORE and BURGESS have the honour to announce that they have entered into an engagement, FOR A LIMITED NUMBER OF NIGHTS, with the great American burlesque lyric and dramatic artist, WILLIAM HENRY RICE, who recently created such a sensation at Philadelphia by his really admirable burlesque impersonation entitled, SARAH HEARTBURNE, which, for more than three months, attracted THE LARGEST AUDIENCES THAT WERE EVER ASSEMBLED WITHIN THE WALLS OF THE ARCH-STREET THEATRE.

The Great Tragedienne, MDLLE. SARAH BERNHARDT, who was fulfilling an Engagement at Philadelphia during the same period, made a special point of witnessing Mr. W. H. Rice's remarkably clever burlesque imitation of herself, and at the termination of the performance expressed her delight in terms of the highest eulogy, and afterwards sent Mr. Rice a special invitation to witness the performance of herself and company at the Chestnut-street Theatre.

ST. JAMES'S HALL, PICCADILLY, SARAH HEARTBURNE for a LIMITED NUMBER of REPRESENTATIONS ONLY, commencing MONDAY NIGHT, JUNE 20. Mr. William Henry Rice being under an engagement to appear at Paris early in July, it will be utterly impossible to extend the engagement. Stalls and places may be secured (for three weeks only) in advance, at Austin's Office, St. James's Hall.

HERR ALEXANDER KUMMER (late Professor at the Leipsic Conservatoire).—EVENING CONCERT, ROYAL ACADEMY OF MUSIC, WEDNESDAY NEXT, JUNE 22, at Eight o'Clock. Miss Rosenthal, Pianoforte; Mr. William Cummings, Violoncello; M. Joseph Hollmann, Violin; Herr Kummer; and other distinguished Artists. Stalls, 10s. 6d.; Balcony, 5s.; Admission, 1s. Stanley Lucas, Weber, and Co., 84, New Bond-street; Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and at the Royal Academy of Music.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Irving. EVERY EVENING, at a Quarter to Eight, Shakespeare's Tragedy of HAMLET.—Hamlet, Mr. Irving; Ophelia, Miss Ellen Terry; Messrs. Terriss, Howe, Tharp, Beaumont, Archer, Stuart, Hudson, Carter, Johnson, Mead, and Miss Pauncefort. Box office (Mr. Hurst), open Ten to Five. Seats also booked by letter or telegram.

MR. and MRS. GERMAN REED'S ENTERTAINMENT. CHERRY TREE FARM, a New Piece by Arthur Law; Music by Hamilton Clarke; YE FANCIE FAIRE 1881, a New Musical Sketch by Mr. Corney Grain; and A CHILDHOOD IDEA, by Arthur Law; Music by Arthur Cecil. (Last Week but one). Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday, at Eight; Thursday and Saturday at Three.—ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place. Admission, 1s., 2s.; Stalls, 3s., 5s. Notes. Box-office open from 10 to 6.

WESTMINSTER PANORAMA, YORK-STREET, QUEEN ANNE'S-GATE, S.W. (opposite St. James's Park Station and adjoining Royal Aquarium).—THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO, by C. Castellani, Covering over 20,000 square feet of canvas. The largest Panorama in England. WILL OPEN WHIT MONDAY, JUNE 6. Admission One Shilling.

ROYAL PANORAMA GALLERIES, Leicester-square. LE SALON A LONDRES.—EXHIBITION OF PICTURES by MM. Bailly, Bonnat, Bourdin, J. Bonlanger, J. Breton, Carolus Duran, De Knyff, Gervaise, Hebert, Henner, Jalabert, Jules Lefebvre, Emile Levy, Lunninais, Madrazo, Meissonier, Robert-Fleury, Rousseau, Tissot, Vollon, &c. Sculpture by M. Dalou, Carrier-Belleuse, Gerome, &c. NOW OPEN, from Eleven a.m. to Seven p.m. Admission, One Shilling; Season Ticket, Five Shillings.

THE DOMESTIC ECONOMY CONGRESS, John-street, Adelphi, will be OPENED on JUNE 20, and continued during the week, as announced daily in the "Times."
1. Conversazione at the Royal Albert Hall on Monday Evening.
2. Military Bands; Singing by Tonic Sol-Fa Schools, by Choir of St. Mark's Training College; Vocal and Instrumental Performances by the Students of National Training School for Music, under the direction of Dr. Stainer, the Principal.
3. Meetings daily from Eleven to Five.
Tickets of Admission to the Royal Albert Hall and Royal Horticultural Society's Conservatory and all meetings of the Congress, 10s. 6d.; if obtained through a member of the Congress or of the Society of Arts, 5s.; Tickets admitting to the Picture Gallery, Balcony of the Hall, and all Meetings, 2s. 6d.
The above Tickets may be had at the Society of Arts Office and at the Royal Albert Hall, Kensington Gore.
By order of the Executive Committee, FRANCES AUBREY WEBB, Secretary of the Congress.

OUR HOLIDAY NUMBER.

That Beautiful Wretch!

a Brighton Story by William Black

PROFUSELY ILLUSTRATED.

THREE WHOLE SHEETS, IN AN ELEGANT WRAPPER, WITH

LARGE COLOURED SUPPLEMENT.

Price One Shilling; Postage, Threepence-halfpenny.

Will be published on Monday next, apart from the ordinary weekly issue, at the Office, 198, Strand, W.C.

DECORATIVE ART EXHIBITION at the New Galleries, 135, New Bond-street. Admission, 1s.; Season Tickets, 5s.

INSTITUTE OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS. The FORTY-SEVENTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION is now OPEN from Nine till Seven. Admission, 1s.; Catalogue, 6d. Gallery, 53, Pall-mall. H. F. PHILLIPS, Secretary.

LA SOCIÉTÉ DES AQUARELLISTES FRANCAIS. Now ON VIEW, an EXHIBITION of WATER-COLOUR DRAWINGS by the Members of the above Society, at GOUPIL and CO.'S GALLERIES, 26, Bedford-street, Covent-garden. Admission, One Shilling. An Illustrated Catalogue has been published.

DORÉ'S GREAT WORKS.—"ECCE HOMO" ("Full of divine dignity."—The Times) and "THE ASCENSION;" "CHRIST LEAVING THE PRÆTORIUM," "CHRIST ENTERING JERUSALEM," with all his other Great Pictures.—DORÉ GALLERY, 35, New Bond-street. Daily, 10 to 6. 1s.

GRAND INTERNATIONAL BAZAAR in AID of the FUNDS of the SOCIETY OF FRIENDS OF FOREIGNERS IN DISTRESS, under the patronage of her Majesty the QUEEN and Royal Family, and of most of the Foreign Sovereigns, will be held at the RIDING SCHOOL of his Grace the Duke of Wellington, on THURSDAY, 23rd, FRIDAY, 24th, and SATURDAY, 25th inst., from Two to seven o'clock p.m. Admission, on Thursday, 10s.; Friday, 5s.; Saturday, 2s. The Royal Artillery Band will perform Daily.

LONDON SCHOOL OF MUSIC, 27, Harley-street. MATINÉE D'INVITATION, of the Pupils and Friends, on SATURDAY, JUNE 25, from Three to Six o'Clock. For Prospectus, apply as above. Half Term will commence June 14 to 18. HENRY BAUMER, Principal.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, JUNE 18, 1881.

France does not want a Dictator, and is certainly not yet prepared to welcome another "Saviour of Society." Such is the reasonable conclusion to be drawn from the action of the Senate, which a few days ago threw out the Scrutin de Liste proposal by a decisive majority; still more from the decision of the several Republican groups of the Chamber which, by an aggregate vote of 248 to 71, have informally signified their disapproval of a speedy dissolution as advocated by M. Gambetta and his organ. To the ambition of that statesman these incidents are a check—and a very wholesome check. After the significant proceedings at Cahors it became necessary, even in M. Gambetta's personal interests, to put on the drag-chain. If the French Republican Constitution is what he described it during that south-western tour, then the independent action of the Senate ought not to have been immediately followed by a threat of reform. As it is, the business of the Legislature will proceed in due course, the Budget will be discussed and voted, and in October next the constituencies will have a suitable opportunity of deciding—if they desire it, which is doubtful—whether they wish the mode of electing their representatives to be altered. M. Gambetta is too eminent a man to be extinguished by the rebuffs he has encountered; too sagacious to offer inflexible resistance to the prevailing sentiment of the Republican party; too wary to place himself in direct antagonism to President Grévy, who, far more than himself, is the guardian of the constitutional institutions of the country, and has the credit of being a disinterested patriot of the antique type. The events of the past week are of good omen for France, because they indicate the existence of those wholesome influences which will prevent our neighbours from being hurried into sudden changes that might pave the way for another revolution.

The anxiety shown in the House of Commons on Monday night to ascertain our exact relations to the Bey of Tunis is quite excusable. That unfortunate Sovereign, having lost his independence by a skilfully-executed coup de main, has been obliged to accept a French Grand Vizier, who cashiers the Bey's officials as he pleases, and the omnipotent M. Roustan has now been constituted "sole representative" of the Regency in the "relations of Tunis with other Powers." To the running fire of questions discharged at him on Monday, Sir Charles Dilke replied that the treaty rights of British subjects in Tunis had been fully recognised by the French Government; that the relations of that country to the Porte were much the same as those of Bosnia on the one hand, and of Cyprus on the other, to their suzerain at Constantinople; and that as to the policy of her Majesty's Ministers in Tunis, it was explained in the Parliamentary papers before the House. The Government, as Lord Salisbury candidly admits, are obliged to make the best of an embarrassing situation. There are considerable British interests to be protected in Tunis, and, under present circumstances, the French Government will be chary of infringing them. But Germany, for her own purposes, and, following in her wake, Austria, have recognised the prerogatives claimed for M. Roustan; leaving Italy, which has received a new affront by the cancelling of the Rubattino concession, to nurse her wrongs in bitter silence. It will ere long be seen whether Tunis can be made a more profitable dependency than Algeria, which is little better than a recruiting-ground for France. The Sultan has, however, been roused from his usual apathy. Suspecting that Tripoli may be the next object of European cupidity, he has hastily sent a new Governor and a Turkish military force to that little Barbary State. This action is within his rights, but his Highness is semi-officially warned by the authorities at Tunis that "Tripoli must not become a hotbed of agitation for neighbouring territories."

It has been said with some truth that of all public men, next to the Emperor of Russia, Mr. Forster is most deserving of general sympathy in the trying position he occupies. It may certainly be averred that the Chief Secretary has daily to perform duties alien to his liberal and philanthropic tendencies. When not engaged at Dublin in preserving order, he is being baited in the House of Commons, and in both spheres he maintains a wonderful serenity. That his self-denying labours are beginning to be appreciated may be inferred from his cordial reception on his return to Westminster. The Home Rulers, if they understand, cannot appreciate, a man of this lofty stamp, and on Monday night they buzzed about the overwrought statesman as much as ever. The substance of Mr. Forster's several isolated statements was of considerable importance. He declared that the reports of outrages and riots in Ireland had been greatly exaggerated, especially the affray at Cork, which was a kind of Donnybrook Fair scrimmage, and had no reference to agrarian grievances. Next, the Chief Secretary was able to give the assurance that a large proportion of the evicted were tenants who could pay their rents, but, following the advice of the Land League, did not; that the landlords were not, to any great extent, trying "to force the Government to support them in the exercise of injustice;" and that sterner measures would be adopted to put down riotous assemblages—for the law is to be enforced at any cost. From other sources of information, it appears that the priests, following the emphatic advice of the Archbishop of Cashel, are zealously striving to prevent incendiary appeals and disorder, and that a still more sedative influence is at work in Ireland—the hope arising from the prospect of abundant crops.

The public weariness of the Irish question has been changed into a deeper feeling by the dastardly attempt to blow up the Liverpool Townhall. Though Mr. Forster says he has no legal proof that the Land League is affiliated with the Ribbon and Fenian conspiracies, they draw pecuniary aid from the same American source. What was attempted at the London Mansion House more nearly succeeded at Liverpool. The explosive bomb laid upon the doorstep of the Townhall of that city might, but for the intrepidity of a policeman who hurled it into the roadway, have shattered that building and killed many innocent people. Happily, the two miscreants concerned in the attempt did not escape, and it is probable that their arrest may lead to disclosures as to the scope and extent of these Fenian outrages, which seem to have as much in view the replenishing of the "Skirmishing Fund" in the hands of New York desperadoes like O'Donovan Rossa, as wreaking blind revenge upon England for the wrongs of her Irish sister. One is hardly less appalled at the terrible recklessness which these crimes reveal than astounded at their fatuity. The bitter indignation everywhere excited by outrages which savages would repudiate is not the kind of atmosphere in which is generated the desire to redress Irish grievances.

It is a relief to turn from the contemplation of deeds that degrade human nature to its lowest depths to the festival which so recently honoured the memory of a man whose beneficent career ennobled humanity, and whose achievements have found a permanent record in pencil and pen in these pages. The celebration of the birth of George Stephenson, the "Father of Railways," at Newcastle and elsewhere—Rome included—was not only worthy of the occasion, but is an event of more than ephemeral interest. Prodigious as is the revolution which has been effected in locomotion, and, by its agency, in the whole fabric of social life at home and abroad, by his master mind, the man is greater than his work. Stephenson's endowments were unique, though not brilliant. His career is a romance in the bright page of industrial enterprise, from his entrance on life as a pit engine-boy to the period when he vanquished prejudice and silenced experienced statesmen in Committees of the House of Commons. His capacity for utilising his own inventions and those of others was unrivalled; his perseverance never flagged during a long career; his masculine good sense and simplicity of character were as conspicuous when he was "the observed of all observers" as when he plodded on with shrewd observation in a humble sphere. His memory will be fitly enshrined in "The Stephenson College" originated last week at Newcastle; his life and all the noble qualities that cluster around it will, we doubt not, be reproduced in more or less perfection by numbers who have been or will be fascinated by its story and stimulated by its example.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

I am sincerely glad to hear that the recent "Olde Englyshe Fayre" at the Royal Albert Hall was, in a financial sense, a very brilliant success. The entrance-money during four days amounted to £4300, and the sales at the stalls realised £3240. Looking at the extravagant prices willingly paid (for an admirable Charity's sake) for articles which were neither rich nor rare, the aggregate "takings" by the beauteous stall-holders does not seem a very large one. Altogether, the receipts reached a total of £7540; so that after payment of the expenses (which must have been heavy) a very handsome balance will remain in hand towards the building fund of the Chelsea Hospital for Women.

To my thinking, however, the earnings of the stall-keepers might have been increased by at least another two thousand pounds had the bazaar been properly conducted. I went there on the first day, between three and four o'clock in the afternoon, and witnessed one of the most disgraceful scenes of confusion and disorder it is possible to imagine. If the spectacle was like any "fair" at all, it was like that very old Irish one, Donnybrook. The whole mise en scène was structurally wrong to begin with. Instead of little booths or cabins (which could have been very easily constructed), open for counters at all the four sides, being scattered about the arena of the Albert Hall, thus giving the crowd facilities of unimpeded circulation, a kind of circus with canvas walls had been built up in the middle of the hall into which the audience had to descend, as into a pit. There were only two narrow portals of ingress and egress to this inclosure; and the consequence was that some hundreds of ladies and gentlemen were wedged and pent up in the inclosure, while some thousands more were pushing and struggling to obtain admission to an already overcrowded space. The arrangements for entering and quitting the Royal Albert Hall itself were equally clumsy; there were not enough police; the amateur stewards lost their heads; and altogether the opening day of "Ye Olde Englyshe Fayre" was a marvel of muddle, mistakes, and mismanagement. On the subsequent days, I am told, things went on a little better.

The next time that it is intended to convert the Albert Hall into a Charity Bazaar, I should advise the committee to secure the services of a skilful scene-painter, say Mr. William Beverley or Mr. John O'Connor;—and of an experienced stage-manager, say Mr. Augustus Harris or Mr. Howard Paul. These gentlemen know their business. The people who organised the "Fayre" did not; and it was as absurd as irritating to look at thousands of people who had paid their money to be amused sitting in the stalls and galleries staring, with an expression of resigned stupefaction, at the bare canvas and timber backing of the sham Elizabethan houses. Of the stalls and their contents, they could see absolutely nothing, unless they chose to incur the chance of being half-suffocated in a pen, on which, by way of a variation on the Black Hole at Calcutta, might have been bestowed the epithet of the "Parti-coloured Hole at Kensington."

"Scrouging"—that is about the word—through the panting and almost fainting mob of fashionables, were numbers of handsome ladies attired in fancy costumes as handsome, who importuned the male visitors to purchase all kinds of wares—from kittens to Japanese screens, from anti-macassars to tickets for tombolas. Personally, I have not the slightest objection to being fleeced at a fancy fair. I go there ready and willing to be pleasantly plundered; and if I give half-a-guinea for a "button-hole" rose, or five shillings for a four-penny cigar, or half-a-crown for a penny pincushion, that is my business, and the funds of the charity will benefit by the Brigandage of Beauty. But that Brigandage, I take it, is growing too bold at our modern bazaars. The lady stall-keepers should keep behind the counters of their shops. To pretty pedlaresses in masquerade dresses roving about in a miscellaneous mob I most distinctly object; and I think that ladies of position derogate and unsex themselves by such practices. I know that if I had any sisters (they are all dead, cheu!) I should not like to see them dressed up in broad daylight in ruffs and farthingales, or "Directory" tail coats, playing itinerant Autolycas or pinning bouquets in the button-holes of Toms, Dicks, and Harries wholly unknown to them. There was, it is true, just the shadow of an excuse for the wandering pedlaresses at the Albert Hall. The inclosure was so excessively crowded that it was next door to the impossible to get near the stalls; and if the itinerant vendors had not been sent forth, very little would have been sold at all.

But Long Life to Fashion—I mean, rather, the Fashions—nevertheless! Scarcely a month passes without my being able to hail the appearance of a new magazine devoted to the Paris modes; and, in particular, have I found a sweet boon in the catalogue of the dresses worn by some of the ladies at the race for the Grand Prix, as enumerated by the Paris Figaro. To be rolled as a sweet morsel under the tongue are such toilettes as that of the Marquise d'Abdella, consort of a grandee of Spain: "Chapeau Vandyck in straw and steel-grey feathers;" Madame Torres-Caïcedo: "Costume of peacock satin, Gainsborough hat and feathers;" Madame Gautherau: "Costume of black damask, with bouquet of old copper (!);" Madame Basilovich, "Graceful half-mourning in honour of the late Tsar, hat, Kitty Bell (?) with tufts of lilac;" Madame Negroponte, "Polonaise of heartsease velvet, chapeau Reynolds with black plumes."

Thus it would appear that our kindly and at present Anglomaniacal neighbours find "Gainsborough" and "Reynolds" to be convertible terms for our "Devonshire" hat. But why not the "Romney" or the "Copley" hat for that which, in the strictness of milliners' nomenclature, is only a chapeau Louis Seize? But there were large hats before the days of Reynolds and Gainsborough. Are you old enough to remember Douglas Jerrold's comedy of "Nell Gwynne" (why does not some manager revive it?), and the lamented Mr. Keeley's "Orange Moll"? His hat—his never-to-be-forgotten hat. I wait for the resuscitation of the "Orange Moll" or "Coach-wheel" hat.

Mem.: To a tolerably large Criminal Portrait Gallery which I am forming I lately added a mezzo-tint half-length of Elizabeth Brownrigge, in a remarkably pretty hat. The horrible murderess is otherwise represented as a very comely personage, who has scarcely attained middle age. Fancy "Mother" Brownrigge having been good-looking! In dramatic fitness, she should have been as hideous as Sycorax.

I have been reading with much interest and pleasure Mr. H. Sutherland Edwards's "Lyrical Drama" (London: W. H. Allen), two handsome volumes of essays on the subjects, composers, and executants of modern Opera. The work is, indeed, practically a history of the Opera, told in an eminently readable manner, and replete with piquant anecdotes, mingled with subtle analytical criticism, and displaying much recondite but by no means ostentatious erudition.

On the various legends of Don Juan Mr. Sutherland Edwards is especially exhaustive; and I am glad to perceive that he does not fall into the common error of assuming that the real Don Juan was a certain Don Miguel de Mañara Vicentelo de Lara, who had been, indeed, a "Libertine of Seville;" but who repented of his evil ways and rebuilt, at his own expense, the Hospital of La Caridad at Seville. The penitent Don Miguel lies buried in the Capilla Mayor of La Caridad, with this epitaph, Cenizas del peor hombre que ha habido en el mundo;—the ashes of the worst man that ever lived on earth. The guide books and the valets de place persist in telling you that Don Miguel was the veritable Don Juan with whom the statue of the Commendatore did not sup, and who was not (as some imagine) murdered by the monks, who afterwards invented a convenient fable of the wicked profligate having been "fetched" to sulphurous regions; but who was, on the contrary, permitted to make his peace with Mother Church, and to die in the odour of sanctity.

Now, it was not until 1661 that Don Miguel de Mañara re-edified the Caridad; whereas it is incontrovertibly shown by Mr. Sutherland Edwards that a drama embodying the principal features in the legend of Don Juan was publicly performed in Spain so early as 1622, and that religious mysteries on the same subject had been previously acted in the Spanish monasteries. The blunder associating Don Juan Tenorios with Don Miguel de Mañara may be quite a modern one, and may have arisen either from the life of the remorseful roué of Seville having been written by Don Juan de Cardenas; or from Ford, in his "Handbook of Spain," having incidentally alluded to Don Miguel as "a Don Juan of Seville redivivus."

So much for Don Juan, or Don Giovanni; but in another of his essays—"Operatic Origins"—Mr. Sutherland Edwards fairly astonishes me. He writes:—"The so-called opera of 'The Siege of Rhodes,' produced by Sir William Davenant, in the dark days—dark, at least, in an artistic sense—of the Commonwealth seems to have been merely a play with a good number of songs and choruses introduced. These songs were composed by Henry Lawes, of whom I know nothing, except that his name is to be seen on the Albert Memorial in Hyde Park, at the head of a number of obscure musicians, to whom England is fancifully supposed to owe such musical reputation as actually belongs to her.

Oh, Mr. Sutherland Edwards! Deary, deary me, Mr. Sutherland Edwards! Henry Lawes an obscure musician! Why, he composed the original music to the masque of "Comus." He lived long enough to compose the Coronation Anthem for Charles II.; and among famous musicians he was the immediate precursor of Purcell. Moreover, he was the affectionately-intimate and enthusiastically-admired friend of John Milton, who surely knew something about music, and who dedicated to him the exquisite Sixteenth Sonnet, "To Mr. H. Lawes on the publishing his Airs."

> Harry, whose tuneful and well-measured song
> First taught our English music how to span
> Words with just note and accent, not to scan
> With Midas ears committing short and long
> Thy worth and skill exempt thee from the throng
> With praise enough for Envy to look wan:
> To after age thou shalt be writ the man
> That with smooth air could'st humour best our tongue.

I lack the space to quote the sonnet in its entirety. Harry Lawes, I learn elsewhere, "set the story of Ariadne to musick," and, in conjunction with his brother William, harmonised some of the Psalms. "How soon we are forgot," says Mr. Jefferson in "Rip Van Winkle." And to be forgotten, too, in spite of Milton's magnificent eulogy!

Fearful perturbation may arise in commercial circles owing to the publication in a daily newspaper of a communication from an eminent "Scientist" in which it is pointed out that the adoption of the system of making penny receipt and postage stamps interchangable will afford "immense facilities for fraud." I prudently refrain from describing the process by which old stamps rescued by unscrupulous persons from the waste-paper basket can be converted into new ones to be used as receipts, or gummed on Post-office paper and handed in to the Post-Office Savings Banks, or used on envelopes as new stamps. The modus operandi seems to be pretty nearly as easy as lying; and, looking at the potentiality of the existence of that sneaking malefactor known by Americans as "the Mean Cuss," I think it unwise to give further publicity to a method by means of which the revenue by be cheated with impunity.

But surely there is a short, simple, and practical way of baffling the stamp-scourers, as regards postage stamps, at least. Let them be perforated when they pass through the post office, even as paid cheques are perforated; but in the case of the receipt stamps I fail to see any remedy against fraud. It would be much better to rescind an otherwise sensible order. It may be urged that the perforation would injure the manuscript within the letter; but I do not think that such an argument should be allowed to have any weight. A perforation simply marking an equilateral triangle would be quite sufficient; and the leverage might be calculated so as to perforate the stamp, but not utterly pierce the envelope and its contents through and through. I can remember when all letters coming from the Levant were ploughed in two or three places right through with some sharp instrument, to avoid the transmission within the envelopes of possible infection of the Plague.

A lady correspondent writes from "Fernhill" for the proper pronunciation of the Buckinghamshire town whence the late Earl of Beaconsfield derived his title. Ladies and gentles, by your leave, I am resolved, in pugilistic parlance, to "throw up the sponge" in the matter of pronunciation. Weighty evidence continues to accumulate that the proper Italian pronunciation of the name which we call Desdēmōna is Desdēmōna. Well, we say Bābylŏn; but the Latin races and the Greeks say Babylōn, with an omega. The most that (in sheer desperation) I can do for the lady at Fernhill is respectfully to tell her that Society speaks of Lord Beaconsfield as Lord "Beconsfield," but that in the "Topographical Dictionary of England," by Samuel Lewis (4 vols., London, 1831), it is stated, under the name of Beaconsfield, that the "town is situated on a hill, and is supposed to derive its name from a Beacon formerly erected there." Thus, whether beacon anciently rhymed with beckon or reckon with archdeacon I do not know; and, entre nous, I do not care. I wait for Spelling Reform, the Millennium, and the Greek Kalends.

A correspondent whose name I am unable to decipher, but who writes from Rockholme, Hastings, sends me a newspaper cutting in which is involved a curious coincidence. The extract is from an article in a daily paper commenting on the recent fatal duel at Autun, in France, between M. Asselin and M. de St. Victor. The latter was a retired cavalry officer; the choice of weapons fell to him, and he naturally chose the sabre: whereas M. Asselin was totally inexperienced in the broadsword exercise. He contrived nevertheless to slay the retired dragoon officer. "He was slightly wounded in the first pass, "but quickly recovered himself, and, in the sheer desperation of inexperience, went full butt at M. St. Victor, charging home with his sabre, and running it right through the body of his antagonist."

My Hastings correspondent, in forwarding the printed slip, asks whether it is worth a note that the late Captain Marryatt in one of his novels describes an exactly similar incident. My correspondent read this description some forty years ago; but, not having a set of Marryatt's novels by him, he is unable to refer to the particular book in which the account of the duel appeared. Surely it was in the delightful "Peter Simple;" and it is Peter's friend, Lieutenant O'Brien, who, when a prisoner of war at Verdun, quarrels with, and is permitted by the authorities to fight a duel with, a French officer. O'Brien is totally unacquainted with the art of fencing; but "in the sheer desperation of inexperience" he makes a sudden rush at his antagonist, runs him through, and kills him on the spot.

Now for the curious coincidence. It happens that I myself wrote anonymously the article about the duel sent to me by my unknown correspondent; and it happens, moreover, that I remembered the duelling incident in "Peter Simple," and duly quoted it; but that "the able editor," in the exercise of his discretion, cut out my reference to Lieutenant O'Brien and the French officer.

Wanted, by a gentleman at Liverpool, the meaning or derivation of his wife's Christian name, "Gesana." I cannot find it in any Spanish or Italian dictionary; and I search for it in vain in the Concordance of Scriptural Proper Names in Cruden, in Lemprière (where there is a Gesandor), and in Bayle's "Critical Dictionary," the last perhaps the most wonderful repertory of names in the whole of literature. If none of my correspondents can help me in the matter of "Gesana," I should advise the gentleman at Liverpool to address himself to Notes and Queries.

A gentleman, writing from a château in the department of Calvados, France, favours me, in English, with a long and interesting letter about homœopathy, which I decline to touch upon, simply because I am afraid of entering into a medical controversy. I am extremely fond, personally, of the Faculty, from the most eminent members of which I have experienced, these many years past, innumerable acts of kindness; still, I do not mind admitting that I have a maximum of faith in the surgeon who can cut off my leg, if such an operation be necessary, and a minimum of faith in the speculative physician who makes my vile body the object of his experiments. So I will leave Drs. Sangrado, Purgon, and Thomas Diafoirus alone, if you please.

"I know a Bank whereon the Wild Thyme Blows," says Oberon in the "Midsummer Night's Dream." In Howard Staunton's text the "on" is omitted; but the latest edition of the text of Shakspeare, as revised by the Rev. Alexander Dyce (London, Bickers, 1880), I find "whereon," with a note, however, admitting that the old editions have "where," which Malone supposed to be used here as a dissyllable. It may be permissible, however, to say "whereon the Wild Thyme Blows," in remembrance of having heard it sung thus in unsurpassed melodiousness by the incomparable Eliza Vestris. But here is a lady who writes to me from the Alegra mountains of Madeira, and reminds me that England's banks will soon be stocked "with the lovely Wild Thyme." Her reference to the herb has nothing whatever to do with "sweet musk roses or with eglantine," or with Titania, Queen of the Fairies. My correspondent only mentions wild thyme as one of the ingredients of a certain dish called "Garlic pork," much affected by the epicures of Madeira. She says that she sent me the recipe for "Garlic pork"—did not Charles Lamb brand garlic as "rank and guilty?"—but, alas! of that recipe I have no remembrance.

By another odd coincidence, the very next letter I opened after I had dispatched the "wild thyme" was from the son of the well-known English composer Charles Horn, who wrote the beautiful music to "Cherry Ripe" and "I Know a Bank."

G. A. S.

"YE OLDE ENGLISH FAYRE," AT THE ROYAL ALBERT HALL.—SEE PAGE 604.

SKETCHES FROM "PATIENCE," AT THE OPÉRA COMIQUE.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

PARISIAN SAYINGS AND DOINGS.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Paris, Tuesday, June 14.

The past week has been a continuous series of fêtes, in which, according to the Parisian fashion, charity and pleasure have gone hand in hand. On Friday and Sunday the terrace of the Tuileries gardens was transformed into a vast "Foire aux Plaisirs," at which the booths and stalls were kept by the fine flower of the ladies of the Faubourg Saint-Germain and of the Faubourg Saint-Honoré, assisted by Théo, Judic, and other fashionable members of the dramatic profession. This fête was for the benefit of the victims of the earthquake in Chios, and the receipts amounted to considerably over two hundred thousand francs. To-day there is a grand musical and dramatic fete at the Trocadéro, organised by the Jewish bankers of Paris for the benefit of the victims of the persecution in Southern Russia. The charity of the Parisians is proverbially inexhaustible—as inexhaustible as their vanity; and, while rejoicing in the results obtained, one cannot help remarking that the fashionable ladies whose names are always to be found in connection with fêtes of this kind have been endowed with an unusually large dose of vanity. Of their physical charms I will say nothing; for an account of them we should have to turn back to the records of the palmy days of the Empire; and to mention dates in presence of ladies is often cruel and always imprudent. I will content myself with remarking that the "Foire aux Plaisirs" was an admirable opportunity for the display of that quality which the French call cabotinage, and that the ladies who took part in it amply availed themselves of the chances offered.

The Grand Prix was favoured on Sunday last by fine weather. There was neither sun, wind, dust, nor rain, and if the company had been less numerous and more select the day would have been altogether enjoyable. Indeed, never before had so many people been seen at the Grand Prix, although that race has been gaining in popularity every year. At least half a million people were present, including immense numbers of foreigners and provincials. The company, however, was not brilliant; there were few fine toilets, and only here and there a handsome turn-out, quite lost in the ocean of democratic cabs and plebeian carts and vans—in short, Longchamps presented a most un-Parisian and inelegant aspect. The race was a fine one; that is to say, it was very nearly a dead-heat. Foxhall, the American horse, kept the lead until the last turn, when Tristan got ahead. Then Foxhall made a dash and ran in a straight line along the ropes with Tristan galloping at his side, and finally Fordham landed his horse at the winning-post a short head in advance of Tristan, who was splendidly ridden by Archer. Ten horses started: Count Lagrange's Albion, Dublin, and Léon; Chamant Stud's Tristan and Royaumont; Baron Rothschild's Forum; MM. Ephrussi's Casimir; the Duke of Hamilton's Fiddler; Prince Soltykoff's Scobell; Mr. James R. Keene's Foxhall. The victory of the American colt was not unexpected. Fordham was loudly cheered and the American flag was immediately hoisted on a number of carriages on the racecourse. Albion came in third, three lengths behind, and Fiddler fourth. This is the third time that Fordham has ridden the winner of the Grand Prix, which, since its foundation, has fallen to the lot of the French eight times, of the English seven, of the Austrians one, and of the Americans one. On the evening of the race all Paris was en fête at the "Foire aux Plaisirs," at the Cirque d'été, at Mabille, and a dozen other places.

In the political world the great event of the week has been the rejection of the scrutin de liste in the Senate last Thursday by 148 votes against 114. This result was obtained, thanks chiefly to the manœuvring of the Duc de Broglie, with a view to profound and mysterious electioneering schemes. It is very generally considered that the Senate has made a grave error in thwarting the Chamber of Deputies in its legitimate and laudable desire to purify and improve its composition. The rejection of the scrutin de liste will also have the effect of making the elections turn upon the maintenance or non-maintenance of the Senate—that is to say, upon the revision of the Constitution—an issue which will render the contest very agitated. The vote of the Senate caused great excitement in the political world, and many thought that the best way to get out of the difficulty would be to dissolve the Chamber at once, and so appeal to the country. A proposition of M. Bardoux to this effect was submitted to the majority of the Chamber yesterday, but each group rejected it by important majorities. This being the case, M. Bardoux did not present his proposition to the Chamber. Matters, therefore, remain in a state of aggravated tension; and the Chamber, considering its dignity to be a matter of little importance, will continue to exist for a few weeks longer. Yesterday the Bill for a grant of 14,226,000 francs to defray the cost of the Tunisian Expedition was, after a short discussion, voted unanimously. On Thursday the discussion of the Budget will begin.

The first volume has appeared of the library edition of the complete works of Alphonse Daudet, with illustrations by Dagnan-Bouveret (Paris: Dentu and Charpentier, publishers). The present volume contains "Fromont Jeune et Risler aîné," preceded by a charming preface, in which the author gives the history of the novel, and, at the same time, replies to the charges which some English critics have made against him of imitating Dickens. "An author," says M. Daudet, "who writes according to his eyes and his conscience, has nothing to reply to that, except that there are certain affinities of mind for which we are not ourselves responsible, and that on the day of the grand fabrication of men and novelists, nature, in a moment of distraction, must have mixed the pastes." I need only add that this edition is very handsomely got up, and issued at a price which amounts in English money to the sum of "just a lawyer's fee," according to the old pounds, shillings, and pence table.

The Prix du Salon this year has been awarded to M. Boucher for his group of sculpture, "L'Amour Filial." Travelling scholarships—bourses de voyage—were awarded to MM. Lucas, Bertrand, and Rosset-Granger for painting, to MM. Etcheto and Carlier for sculpture, to M. Chancel for architecture, and to M. Rapine for engraving.

M. Pasteur, the celebrated savant and chemist, is a candidate for the seat in the French Academy vacant by the death of Littré. His rivals will be Paul de Saint-Victor, the critic, and Sully-Prudhomme, the poet. T. C.

---

Spain contemplates holding an Exhibition of Home and Colonial Products and Manufactures in 1883, and plans of the requisite buildings are to be prepared forthwith.

A tablet bearing an inscription in memory of George Stephenson was unveiled on Thursday week at the railway station, Rome, in presence of Sir Augustus Paget, the British Ambassador, the Mayor of Rome, and the director and chief officials of the Roman Railway Company.

It is announced by the Gazette de Lausanne that the International Socialist Congress which was to have been held at Zurich in September next has been prohibited by the authorities of that city.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

ITALY.

The steel cruiser Flavio Gioja was launched at Castellamare on Sunday, in presence of the Queen and the Crown Prince, who sailed thither from Naples on board the despatch-boat Stafetta, escorted by three ironclads. The Queen on landing was received by the civil authorities and the Bishop of Castellamare. The weather was very fine, and the spectacle attracted thousands from all parts of the Gulf.

In the Chamber on Tuesday Signor Forti's amendment to the Electoral Reform Bill, proposing universal suffrage in the full extension of the term, was negatived by 314 votes against 39. Female suffrage, proposed by Signor Fabris, was negatived by a show of hands, Signor Fabri's own hand being the only one raised in support of his motion.

Intelligence has been received in Rome confirming the reported massacre of an Italian exploring party in Africa. The Italian Government has telegraphed to Cairo demanding a strict inquiry into the circumstances of the massacre and punishment of the murderers.

GERMANY.

The Emperor William arrived on Sunday at Ems, where he will remain three weeks. Before leaving Berlin he visited Prince Bismarck, who is still confined to his room. The Chancellor suffers, it is stated, from inflammation of the veins.

The German Parliament yesterday week rejected, by 153 against 102 votes, the credit demanded by Prince Bismarck for the establishment of a German Economic Council. The House subsequently passed, without amendment, the second reading of the bill relating to the increase of customs duties on printed and unprinted stuffs. At an evening sitting of the Reichstag on the 11th the commercial treaties with Austria-Hungary, Switzerland, and Belgium were read the first and second time. The Reichstag held an evening sitting on Monday, at which the proposed duties on meal and grapes were unanimously adopted. The duty on woollen goods was subsequently agreed to. In Tuesday's sitting the commercial treaties with Austria-Hungary, Switzerland, Belgium, and Roumania were read the third time and passed without debate. At the close of the Session of the Reichstag on Saturday it is anticipated that there will be a dissolution and a subsequent general election.

A banquet was given on the 8th by the King, in the Wilhelma Hall, Stuttgardt, in celebration of the Wurtemburg Industrial Exhibition. His Majesty, who was present, proposed as a toast, "The Successful Exhibition of our beloved Wurtemburg and Germany, upon whom may God's richest blessings descend."

GREECE

M. Sotiropoulos has resigned the Ministry of Finance.

M. Gennadius, who has been reappointed Hellenic Minister in London, in the place of M. Contostavlos, left Athens for England on Sunday.

TURKEY.

The formality of exchanging the ratifications of the Greek Convention regulating the cession of the territory was duly accomplished at the Porte on Tuesday afternoon.

Lord Dufferin, the new British Ambassador to Turkey, arrived at Constantinople on Wednesday.

Midhat Pasha is said to have written to the Sultan to the effect that while he had nothing to do with the murder he was a party to the deposition of Sultan Abdul Aziz. His reason was that the Sultan was plotting to change the succession to the Throne, and with a view to that object was arranging with General Ignatieff to bring a Russian army of occupation to Constantinople.

The Persian Ambassador at Constantinople has caused the city to be placarded with instructions to the subjects of the Shah not to pay any taxes on tobacco or spirituous liquors. The police were ordered to remove the documents, and an energetic remonstrance was addressed to the Ambassador.

AMERICA.

At a meeting of the Ohio Republican Convention held at Cleveland, under the presidency of Senator Sherman, the Governor of the State, Mr. Charles Foster, was nominated for re-election. Resolutions were adopted endorsing President Garfield's administration, and claiming full protection for American labour, and discrimination in favour of home production. Mr. Sherman made a speech eulogising the financial policy pursued by Mr. Windom, Secretary of the Treasury.

The New York State Legislature continues to vote for United States senators without obtaining any result, no candidate having up to the present obtained a sufficient majority.

The American victory at Longchamps has not created so much excitement as was caused by that at Epsom. All the morning papers comment on the event. The Tribune says that to have produced and sent abroad in a single year two such colts as Iroquois and Foxhall is a thing to be proud of, and that the American turf is certain to benefit largely by it.

The United States steamer Rodgers sailed from San Francisco on Wednesday in search of the Arctic exploring-vessel Jeannette.

A severe storm has visited the States. It has damaged the railways, injured the crops, broken up the timber-rafts on the rivers, and strewn the seacoast with wrecks, and several persons have been killed by lightning. Considerable damage has been done in the neighbourhood of Pittsburg and elsewhere by the overflow of the rivers in Ohio. Great destruction of crops has been caused by violent hailstorms in central Iowa. Several lives were lost and many houses were thrown down. From several districts in the Western States considerable damage from cyclones is reported.

The demand in the States for mechanics and labourers of all kinds still exceeds the supply.

CANADA.

It is stated that Mr. Cornwall, a member of the Dominion Senate, is to be Lieutenant-Governor of British Columbia.

The hull of the Victoria has been pumped dry, and a large hole discovered in the bottom of the vessel, as though she had struck upon a snag or sunken rock.

One fourth of the ancient and picturesque city of Quebec is in ashes. On Wednesday night last week a fire broke out in one of the most populous districts of the town, and in the conflagration, which lasted seven hours, eight hundred houses fell a prey to the flames. The fire seems to have originated in a small house in St. Ollivier-street, in the central part of the French quarter. The Governor-General has subscribed 500 dollars, and the Legislative Assembly has voted 10,000 dollars to the fund for the relief of the sufferers.

SOUTH AFRICA.

We learn from Cape Town that the House of Assembly has negatived a resolution to transfer the control of the native territories to the Home Government. The House has voted in favour of a scheme for the extension of the South African railways involving an outlay of £5,000,000.

The Transvaal Commission was expected to begin its sittings at Pretoria on the 14th inst. Sir H. De Villiers, President Brand, and the Boer representatives had arrived.

The Boers accused of the murder of Mr. Malcolm have been surrendered; and those implicated in the murders of Dr. Barber and Captain Elliot will also, it is stated, be surrendered.

Masupha has announced his intention of paying his share of the fine imposed upon the Basutos by the Cape Government.

INDIA.

The Viceroy of India has issued a minute thanking several political and other officers for their services during the war. Among those mentioned are Sir Richard Temple, the Lieutenant-Governor of the Punjaub, Sir Alfred Lyall, Sir Lepel Griffin, Sir Robert Sandeman, and Colonel St. John.

Ayoub Khan's defeat with heavy loss by the Ameer's troops, near Girishk, in Afghanistan, is now confirmed by the Governor of Candahar.

The Bombay Government has reduced the sentences passed on several of the Kolapore conspirators to one year's rigorous imprisonment.

AUSTRALIA.

A telegram from Melbourne, dated June 10, states that there is no present prospect of a favourable issue out of the difficulty caused by the disagreement between the Legislative Council and the Legislative Assembly of Victoria upon the bill for the reform of the Constitution. The Government refused to accept the Council's amendments mentioned in the telegram of the 12th ult., and introduced others, which were agreed to by the Legislative Assembly. All these latter amendments, however, have now been rejected by the Legislative Council.

A further notice has been issued from the office of the Agent-General for Victoria, stating that, in consequence of the prevalence of foot and mouth disease in England, the introduction of stock from this country into Victoria remains strictly prohibited in the terms of Section V. of the Order in Council, July 7, 1879.

---

Reports have reached Aden of the massacre of an Italian exploring party from Assah.

According to intelligence from San Domingo, President Merino has been proclaimed Dictator.

Great damage has been done by a fire at the Swedish Arsenal of Carlskrona, many shells having exploded.

It has been resolved that columns of French troops shall traverse the whole country occupied by hostile tribes in Tunis.

Further earthquake shocks have occurred at Chios. An earthquake has occurred at Tiphon, in Armenia. One hundred persons are reported to have perished, while about sixty have been injured and a number of houses destroyed. Great suffering exists among the survivors.

The Roman correspondent of the Standard says that it is within his knowledge that the Pope is "very painfully impressed by the conduct of the Roman Catholic clergy in Ireland, and his Holiness has ordered letters to be written to the Bishops, drawing their special attention to the subject."

---

PATIENCE; OR, BUNTHORNE'S BRIDE.

This is at once the most subtle and incisive of all the contributions to the exhaustive satire of æstheticism. The evil, if it be an evil, grows by what it feeds upon, and the affectation that is so universally ridiculed will increase as the plays and the papers get into the provinces and over the threshold of quiet domestic life. For stage purposes, the opera of "Patience," so cleverly written by Mr. W. S. Gilbert, and exquisitely sung to by Mr. Arthur Sullivan, was probably first—the very first—to be designed. It preceded the popular "Colonel" in intention if not in date, and it was intended as a surprise for the public before they were getting a little weary of the banter. By this time the stage is thickly sown all over with a crop of lilies and sunflowers. The scene is gaudy with the peacock's feather, and the Lazenby-Liberty silk dress. There are æsthetes in every burlesque and comic opera produced. Even Mr. Toole poses with a sunflower when he emerges from a Margate bathing-machine, and says that "it does make him so Wilde." Much of the satire is clearly on the surface, but the opera of "Patience" goes deeper than the rest into the mystery of æstheticism. It gives, with considerable success, a travesty not only on the mere decorative craze, but upon the form of literature that is supposed to be held in high esteem by the ardent lovers of the beautiful in art. Mr. Gilbert's stanzas and rhymes, his madrigals and roundelays, and his daring exposition of woman's advance to the capture of the retiring man, have, indeed, a far deeper significance than the mere assumption of an obsolete form of dress or the soul-sighing of a worshipper of wild flowers. It may not be forgotten that long before Mr. Du Maurier invented Maudie and Postlethwaite and pointed his lance at the Cimabue Browns, he had satirised the Morris school with great cleverness but much severity. Years ago he published in Punch "The Legend of Camelot," with its wild and weird refrain, "O Misérie," which affected to turn the laugh at the poems of Rossetti and Morris, particularly "The Defence of Guinevere," one of the earliest of the poem-books of the poet-decorator. Mr. Gilbert, with his fleshly and idyllic poets, his Bunthornes and Grosvenors, his rapturous maidens and village milkmaids, goes nearest to Mr. Du Maurier's earlier spirit of ridicule, mixing his satire of course with that inimitable power of comical invention that is peculiarly Mr. Gilbert's own. To say ridiculous things with a grave face is but half Mr. Gilbert's method. That belongs to many American humourists who could be mentioned. The key-note of his pleasantness will be found in his comical irreverence. He says precisely those things which many people think, but very few people say. He unbares the maiden's heart and exposes upon the stage warm and quivering the fibre of man's selfishness and vanity. He respects no one, and he shows ourselves not as "others see us," but as we see ourselves. In all the "Bab Ballads," beyond their original quaintness and eccentricity of daring, there is an undercurrent of tremendous truth. We feel as we read them that, laugh or not, here present is the sharp knife of the dissector, and that he waits behind the chair with his apron on. "Patience" is a case in point. It is amusing; but it is terribly true. It is a satire of a human weakness, more than of a society craze. It will live in literature when the other plays and poems are long ago forgotten. And Patience, that bright and coquettish dairy-maid—how she reminds one in our picture of a maiden limned by Mr. Luke Fildes—be it remembered, is vastly improved by her musical accompaniment. The officers of the Dragoon Guards, the portentous Lady Jane with her muscular development, the half-starved Bunthorne, the massive Grosvenor, the maidens with their lyres and mandolins who crown their devoted poet with roses, all the modern revivalists of a form of obsolete pagan worship, even the "steady and stolidy, jolly bank-holiday, everyday young man" would not be nearly so amusing were it not for those strains by Arthur Sullivan that grow upon the ear and become more popular by repetition. Such ditties as "Willy Waley Oh!" relieve the satirical composition from weariness and sameness, and make the audience wonder and regret why the name of this gifted composer is not identified with some great work that will defy the humour of the time and the fashion of the hour.

THE PLAYHOUSES.

The Schauspielers of the Meiningen Court Company have certainly no reason to complain of lukewarmness of public appreciation as they proceed in the development of their voluminous répertoire. They have now been seen and heard in "Julius Cæsar," in "Twelfth Night," in "The Robbers," in "William Tell," and in "The Winter's Tale;" and each successive impersonation has been the means of creating a new focus of interest in their performances and of still further illustrating the artistic thoroughness and completeness of their work. In "Die Räuber" a British audience were introduced to Schiller in his wildest and crudest aspect; but in "Wilhelm Tell," which, in the order of the poet's dramas, followed the "Jungfrau von Orleans" and the "Braut von Messina," the last a play constructed on purely classical principles, English playgoers became acquainted with Schiller at his maturest and his finest. The "Tell" was produced in 1801. It has been pronounced by Mr. Carlyle to be "one of Schiller's very finest dramas," and "to exhibit some of the highest triumphs which his genius, combined with his art, ever realised." But A. W. Schlegel has gone further than this—the last and best of Schiller's works is "Tell," wrote the illustrious German critic. Here the dramatist has wholly returned to the poetry of history. As for the hypercritics, they, too, have had their say upon this magnificent production, and are, perhaps, entitled to a hearing. They contend that the episodes of Bertha and Rudenz are superfluous; and that the conception of the character of Tell himself is altogether erroneous. Tell, as drawn by Schiller, is not a patriot, but a simple, sturdy, brave, open, resolute peasant. As a portraiture, the design is exquisite; but two serious consequences result from the mistaken conception. First, Tell has nothing intrinsically to do with the struggle of the Switzers for independence; he is not, beyond any other of his peasant friends, agitated by the hopes and fears engendered by a most exciting revolutionary contest; and in that contest he has no more visible share than that which consists in the killing of Gessler. Secondly, Tell, not being a patriot, can only be considered as a murderer. This vital æsthetic fault is inseparable from the conception. Tell has been wronged by the Austrian Landvogt; and in the end the wronged one slays the oppressor. Bacon's pithy remark, that "Revenge is a wild kind of Justice," may, indeed, be pleaded in favour of the heroic Swiss marksman; and, as in the celebrated case of Harmodius and Aristogeiton, it is sometimes difficult to discriminate where patriotism ends and where murder begins. There is no getting over the ugly stumbling-block, however, that Tell does not kill the Landvogt with any intent of serving his country; and that in shooting him he is actuated simply by motives of personal vengeance. Possibly, one way of extrication from the æsthetic difficulty might be to urge that there is no historic evidence of such a personage as William Tell ever having existed; and that, the character being a wholly imaginary one, Schiller had the right to adopt any conception of it that he chose to evolve from his inner consciousness.

The principal features of the performance at Drury Lane was the impersonation of the hero by Herr Barnay; the part of Gessler, who has been defined by the German critics as "a mere stage fiend and swaggering tyrant," being sustained by Herr Teller. The outlaw, Johannes Parricida, was played by Herr Nesper; Gertrude (the Mathilde of the opera of "Guglielmo Tell") fell to the share of Frau Haverland, and the somewhat uninteresting lover Rudenz to Herr Arndt. The whole performance could not, from the character of the play, be of such level excellence as characterised the representation of "Julius Cæsar." In Shakspeare's tragedy Cæsar himself, Brutus, Cassius, Mark Antony, and Casca are nearly all equally good parts; but in "William Tell" the hero dominates far away from measurable height the rest of the characters; and it is to most intents and purposes a case of "Eclipse first, and all the rest nowhere."

At the Haymarket was witnessed on Saturday last the most interesting and brilliantly successful revival of two old and deservedly favourite pieces—the late Mr. Buckstone's farce (from the French) of "Good for Nothing," Mrs. Bancroft playing Nan; and the late Mr. Robertson's sprightly comedy of "Society," in which the scene of the "Owls' Roost" and the episode of trying to borrow the five shillings excited the usual amount of merriment. I have seen in more than one journal hints to the effect that, as a comedy of manners, "Society" is rather out of date; and that the journalistic Bohemianism depicted in Mr. Robertson's lively production has altogether passed away. Of that I am not qualified to judge. The vast majority of the old friends of Bohemia whom I loved and cherished are dead; and as I am forced to stay at home and mind my book, in view of the Dark Days that may be coming, I can frankly avow that I have not the least idea of the locality of the Bohemia of the present time. But I most firmly believe that a literary, artistic, and dramatic Bohemia exists, somewhere. Mr. Thackeray said, late in life, that he had lost his way to Bohemia; but that he still held Prague to be the most picturesque city in the world. But the great author of "Vanity Fair" had scarcely known the Bohemia, which is not only picturesque but ragged, and not too well provided with body linen, and which is often in want, not of five shillings, but of one—yea, even of sixpence. I have a vivid remembrance of such a Bohemia; and there I passed some of the happiest days of my life. It flourishes now, somewhere or another, the real Bohemia; for there must surely always be a Camp, a Cave, a Den in which young, clever, struggling, ambitious, half-starving men foregather together, to console each other with mutual (and quite honest) praise; to share with each other the lowly bread-and-cheese, the humble pint of "cooper," and the unpretending "screw" of bird's-eye; to gird at wealth, and make light of rank, and demolish snobs, and to enjoy generally the "omagra" existence—that which Mr. Carlyle has called "the desolate freedom of the wild ass." Were I younger, and stronger, and had I fewer claims upon me, I would go back to Bohemia now and again, and revisit the cari luoghi. Great men have done so; why not a humble scribbler? When Matthew Prior was Under-Secretary of State and "Lord Commissioner of Trade," and Minister Designate to the Hague, he was wont, from time to time, unaccountably to disappear. It was discovered that his Excellency used to go down to a low little ale-house in Long-acre, and drink 'mum" and smoke a pipe with a common soldier and his wife. Ah! le besoin de s'encanailler—as Sophie Arnould put it. Do you remember George Borrow's story of the Spanish Archbishop who was of Gipsy birth, and who once a year used to go furtively among the Romanies, and sit on the floor, and curse? No; "Society" is not out of date; and Mr. Bancroft's Tom Stylus is as extant a character as Mr. Arthur Cecil's Lord Ptarmigant.

The Grande Mademoiselle has made her re appearance at the Gaiety Theatre, in "La Dame aux Camellias," from which the official taboo has, after ever so many years, been removed by the Lord Chamberlain and his licenser. I have always thought "La Dame aux Camellias" to be as rubbishing a production as the novel by M. Alexandre Dumas, fils, from which it has been dramatised. Its cast, however, contains one undeniably real, powerful, and sympathetic character, the heroine, Marguérite Gauthier; but all those familiar with French literature are aware that Marguérite Gauthier is a direct plagiarism from the character of an actress whose name I forget—is it Coralie? the conflicting "Coralies" at present disporting themselves on the London stage confuse me—in the "Grand Homme de Provence à Paris" of Honoré de Balzac. Apart from the heroine, the characters in the "Dame aux Camellias" a recomparatively insignificant; and the whole piece is a sickly, morbid, *un*moral rather than *im*moral performance. To witness it cannot do anybody any good; but, on the other hand, I don't think it would do anybody much harm. It presents, however, ample scope and verge for the display of the splendid dramatic genius of Madame Sarah Bernhardt; and it was simply ridiculous and preposterous to place it, because its ethics were somewhat weak-kneed, under the ban of the dramatic censorship. G. A. S.

MUSIC.

ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA.

The specialty of last week—the production of Mozart's "Il Seraglio"—occurred too late for notice until now. The opera was first brought out at Vienna in 1782, with German text, and dialogue, as "Die Entführung aus dem Serail." There is no need to dwell at length on the plot, which turns on the captivity of Costanza, and her attendant, Bionda, in the harem of Selim Pasha, and the attempt at their rescue by their lovers, Belmont, and his companion, Pedrillo—the discovery of the plot by the fussy Osmin, the Pasha's gardener, and the ultimate generosity of the Turkish despot, who pardons and releases the lovers. The opera was given in a garbled English version at the old Covent-Garden Theatre fifty odd years ago, and was performed in London in its original shape by a German company in 1841, and subsequently; having been brought out, in Italian, by Mr. Mapleson at Her Majesty's Theatre (the old building) in 1866, when the dialogues were replaced by recitatives written by Mr. (now Sir) J. Benedict. In those performances, the part of Costanza was sustained by Mdlle. Titiens. It is a similar version that has just been produced by Mr. Gye, a chief inducement having doubtless been the presence of Madame Sembrich, whose brilliant soprano voice and exceptionally high compass peculiarly fit her for the execution of the music of Costanza, which was originally written for a singer (Mdlle. Cavalieri) possessed of similar rare gifts. The success of Madame Sembrich was great, even beyond that which she had previously obtained. The elaborate bravura air in the second act, "Martern aller Arten" (to follow the German titles) was sung with such brilliancy, certainty, and finish as to elicit an enthusiastic demonstration and a repetition of the latter portion. In other instances also, including the air "Ach, ich liebte," the excellent Dresden prima donna proved her exceptional merits. The character of Bionda was so excellently sustained by Mdlle. Valleria as almost to raise it to an equality with that of Costanza. The airs, "Durch Zärtlichkeit," and "Welche wonne," were charmingly sung; and the co-operation of the two ladies in the beautiful quartet which ends the second act tended greatly to the effect of the movement. Next mention is due to M. Gailhard, whose performance as Osmin was of special excellence, both vocal and dramatic. His principal air, "Ha! wie will ich triumphiren," was finely sung, and his acting and singing in the duet with Pedrillo, "Vivat Bacchus," were special features in the performance. The representation of cunning, stupidity, and intoxication was admirable for its truthfulness and freedom from vulgarity. M. Soulacroix, as Pedrillo, proved himself an accomplished vocalist and a finished comedian. Not only in the duet just mentioned, but also in his song "Frische zum Kampfe," and in the romance in the last act, M. Soulacroix sang with artistic taste. As Belmont, M. Verguet was heard to special advantage, particularly in the airs "O, wie ängstlich" and "Wenn der Freude Thränen," and in his share of the love duet with Costanza in the last act. The cast was completed by Signor Scolara as the Pasha.

The scenery, costumes, and interpolated ballet action are excellent—an appropriate feature in the last being the introduction of an orchestral arrangement of the movement "Alla Turca," in A minor, from Mozart's pianoforte sonata in A major. The band gave full effect to the charming instrumental details, and the chorus sang well the little music there is of that description. M. Dupont conducted with great skill. Mozart's exquisite music—too little known hitherto—should prove greatly attractive in its present efficient rendering. "Il Seraglio" was announced for repetition on Tuesday.

"Don Giovanni" was performed on Monday, when M. Bouhy was to have made his début in the title-character; but, in consequence of his indisposition, the part was sustained, as often before, by Signor Cotogni. Madame Fürsch-Madier, as Donna Anna, and Mdlle. Valleria, as Elvira, sang with fine dramatic feeling; Madame Patti's Zerlina was the same charming performance as heretofore; and the cast was efficiently completed by Signor Marini, M. Gailhard, and Signor Scolara, and M. Dauphin, respectively, as Don Ottavio, Leporello, Masetto, and Il Commendatore. The general rendering of the opera was far above the average.

The next specialty will be the production of "Il Demonio," an Italian version of Herr Anton Rubinstein's Russian opera, his latest stage work. This is announced for Tuesday next.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

Since our last record of this establishment, operas cast as recently noticed have been repeated; until Tuesday, when "Mignon" was given again, with the transference of the title-character to Madame Marie Roze, and the first appearance, as Filina, of Mdlle. Emma Juch. The former sang and acted finely, as on previous occasions in the same part, and the débutante achieved a decided success by the display of a bright soprano voice, fluent execution, and much liveliness of manner. We shall doubtless soon have further opportunity of speaking of this young lady's merits. The cast of "Mignon" was otherwise the same as that of last week. "Carmen" was promised for Thursday, with the first appearance this season of Mdlle. Minnie Hauk in her well-known performance in the title-character: and Boïto's "Mefistofele" for this (Saturday) evening. Of these we must speak next week.

THE RUBINSTEIN CONCERT.

This took place at the Crystal Palace last Saturday afternoon, and was an interesting event, as it displayed that eminent musician in the triple capacity of composer, pianist, and conductor. The specialty of the programme was his sacred drama, "The Tower of Babel," which was heard for the first time in London. The work contains some very effective music, some portions, however, being characterised by that straining after originality which is observable in all the composer's more important productions. The orchestral details are skilfully written; and the principal effects were in the movements of combination, such as the Trio of Angels, the melodious chorus, "Where the bright stars are gleaming," the choral and orchestral music descriptive of the destruction of the tower, the choruses illustrative of the dispersion of the three races, and the climax of adoration for choruses of celestials, mortals, and demons. The solo music for Abraham, Nimrod, and the Overseer was well sung respectively by Mr. B. McGuckin, Signor Foli, and Mr. H. Cross. Another work by Herr Rubinstein hitherto unheard in England was his Violin Concerto, op. 46, the extreme difficulties of which were skilfully executed by Herr Auer. Herr Rubinstein played, with his well-known force and individuality, Schumann's Pianoforte Concerto in A minor. This, and Beethoven's overture to "Coriolan," were conducted by Mr. Manns, the other performances having been directed by Herr Rubinstein.

Herr Rubinstein gave the second of his series of recitals at St. James's Hall on Monday afternoon, when he played with transcendant effect, particularly in Beethoven's solo sonata in E minor (op. 90), Schumann's "Etudes Symphoniques," and Weber's sonata in A flat. Mendelssohn's "Variations Sérieuses," and pieces by Chopin and Rubinstein, completed a long programme, the whole of which—according to Herr Rubinstein's custom—was played from memory.

The Sacred Harmonic Society's forty-ninth season closed yesterday (Friday) week, at St. James's Hall, to which the concerts were removed from Exeter Hall at the beginning of the series just terminated. The closing performances consisted of very fine renderings of Sir J. Benedict's "Legend of St. Cecilia" (conducted by the composer), and Rossini's "Stabat Mater," directed by Sir M. Costa, conductor of the society—the solo vocalists in each work having been Mrs. Osgood, Madame Patey, Mr. E. Lloyd, and Mr. Santley. Sir J. Benedict and Sir M. Costa, the permanent conductor of the society, were both warmly received.

The fourth and last but one of Mr. Ganz's excellent orchestral concerts at St. James's Hall took place last Saturday afternoon, when the music of Gluck's opera "Orfeo" was given, with English text, and with a few judicious omissions. This fine work by the regenerator of opera is still interesting, after the lapse of more than a century. It was very effectively rendered on Saturday in its orchestral, choral, and solo details; the principal vocalists having been Madame Patey (Orpheus), Miss C. Elliott (Eurydice), and Miss A. Larkcom (Love).

The last Richter concert but two took place on Monday evening, when the orchestral pieces were Beethoven's overture to "Egmont" and his seventh symphony (in A)—each finely rendered. The "Allegretto" of the symphony had to be recommenced, owing to the interruption caused by the blowing of a horn outside the hall. The scene from Wagner's "Die Walküre"—"Wotan's Abschied," and "Feuerzauber"—was finely declaimed by Herr Henschel; and Mr. G. F. Hatton (son of the well-known composer) was favourably received in his execution of Weber's "Concertstück" for pianoforte (with orchestra). The eighth concert takes place next Monday evening.

The fifth of this year's Matinées of the Musical Union took place on Tuesday; the string quartet party was led by Herr Auer; the pianist having been Herr Carl Heymann.

The second public concert of the St. Cecilia choir—directed by Mr. Malcolm Lawson—took place at the Royal Academy of Music on Tuesday evening.

The continuance of Mr. Sims Reeves' indisposition prevented his appearance at the Albert Hall in Wednesday evening's performance of "The Messiah."

The first of two pianoforte recitals by Herr Joseph Wieniawski was announced for last Wednesday afternoon at St. James's Hall; Herr Bonawitz's pianoforte recital having taken place on the evening of that day at Steinway Hall.

The third of Messrs. Ludwig and Daubert's interesting Chamber Concerts was given at the Royal Academy of Music on Thursday evening, with a programme of sterling interest.

Mr. Gabriel Thorp gave a concert at Steinway Hall last Saturday afternoon; and Mr. Marcel Herwegh gave a concert at the same place in the evening. Miss Helen Hopekirk (pianist) gave a morning concert on Wednesday at 22, Park-square East, by permission of the Misses Gerstenberg. During the week, Miss Helen Meason gave a matinée musicale at Steinway Hall; and Mr. C. Gardner (pianist) announced one at the Marlborough Rooms.

Mr. Kuhe's annual concert—always one of the specialties of the season—takes place at the Albert Hall this (Saturday) afternoon. At the same time, Mr. John Boosey gives the last morning ballad concert of the series at St. James's Hall; and, in the evening, a series of promenade concerts is to begin at Hengler's Cirque (Argyll-street), under the able direction of Mr. Weist Hill—a full band and some eminent solo singers being engaged.

Mr. Barnett's cantata, "The Building of the Ship," which was produced last year at the Leeds Festival, and given at St. James's Hall on May 25, will be performed at the forthcoming Worcester Musical Festival on the Thursday evening, under the composer's direction.

LAUNCHES.

The Inman steamer City of Rome, 8826 tons burden, was successfully launched on Tuesday from the yard of the Barrow Shipbuilding Company, in the presence of from 50,000 to 60,000 persons. Lady Constance Stanley named the vessel. An accident occurred which marred the proceedings of the day. A donkey-engine on the deck of the ship exploded shortly before she was launched, killing three men and injuring ten others.

Another addition to the Royal Navy was made on Wednesday by the launching at Chatham of the powerful ship the Polyphemus, double-screw steel armour-plated torpedo ram, 2610 tons, 5500-horse power. Mrs. Trevelyan, the wife of Mr. Trevelyan, Secretary of the Admiralty, named the ship.

The steel corvette Almirante Brown, which was recently built for the Government of the Argentine Republic by Messrs. Samuda Brothers, made a successful trial-trip on Tuesday. The party on board included his Excellency Señor Manuel Garcia, the Argentin Minister. Proceeding from Sheerness to the Government measured mile on the Maplin Sands, the corvette made six experimental trips, with and against the tide, the average speed attained being 14·058 knots. Mr. J. D'A. Samuda, in presiding at the luncheon on board, said the corvette was the pioneer of a class, being the first vessel ever built entirely of steel and at the same time having a coating of steel-faced armour.

Yesterday week a new drinking-fountain and a cattle-trough of polished granite were opened on the Chelsea Embankment, near the old church. Mr. John Lee, secretary of the Metropolitan Drinking-Fountain and Cattle-Trough Association, said the structure was the gift of a lady, who has defrayed its entire cost, in memory of her late husband, Mr. George Sparks, formerly Judge at Madras, in the East Indie Company's Civil Service.

"HAPPY BE THY DREAMS!" BY F. DADD.

FROM THE GENERAL EXHIBITION OF WATER-COLOUR DRAWINGS AT THE DUDLEY GALLERY.—SEE PAGE 602.

"THE TURN OF THE TIDE." BY DAVIDSON KNOWLES.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

FINE ART.

GROSVENOR GALLERY EXHIBITION.

CONCLUDING NOTICE.

We may conveniently notice the works in this gallery not hitherto reviewed in the order (approximately) of the catalogue. No. 2, then, a portrait of Mr. W. Lindsay, shows, in the finely-cut profile, the best draughtsmanship we remember to have seen by Sir Coutts Lindsay. J. Collier's "Daughter of Eve" (4) is an absurdly improbable but very well painted small picture of a lady dragging herself at full-length along a narrow garden wall, at imminent peril of a fatal "fall," to pluck an apple. "A Lovers' Meeting" (10), the trysting-place being within the veiled light of a wood, is a little gem, by Heywood Hardy. "The Purple Vine" (18) and "The Golden Vine" (25), by W. Hughes—clusters of red and white grapes hanging among their native leaves, relieved against gold grounds, are very able applications of realistic painting to a decorative purpose. Quite masterly is their richness of colouring and free, broad execution. A little further on is a group of "Still Life" (32), consisting of fruit, flowers, metal vessels, and a grès de Flanders jug, by R. Barrett Browning, which, though harder, has much merit. There are also several groups of flowers and fruit, by W. J. Muckley, harder still in effect, particularly the "Oranges" of No. 114, but pure and bright in colour. A panel by this artist, "Water Lilies and Herons" (115), part only painted, the rest rendered in gilt gesso relief, on the gold ground, is a very pretty decorative treatment.

Mr. Boughton's "Rose Standish" (24), in hood and "sad-hued gown," walking through the Plymouth woods, has the artist's unfailing, homely, old-fashioned grace of feeling, and is his best figure of the year. J. J. Christie's "Rose Among Thorns" (31), a little girl in a blackberry bush, sucking her wounded fingers, is a pleasing picture, but in nature the sky reflexes on the hair would have detached the head more from the background. Charming to the eye is the delicate tinting—rendered "precious" by the scintillant granulation of the thick underpainting—in Albert Moore's small classical female figure in blue drapery and yellow head-dress, called "Forget-me-Nots" (46)—inaptly enough, seeing that the flowers form but a pattern on some of the drapery and play an unimportant part even in the chromatic arrangement, while otherwise unmeaning. A larger female figure (283) by this artist is inferior, and reminds one too much of previous works. Mr. Poynter's "Judith" (53) is still more disappointing than his "Helen" in the Academy. It is hard to guess what expression is intended; the effect on face and figure is that of daylight, while the background is the sky of night, star-sprinkled; the head is far too large for the bust and hand, the distance from the forehead to the foramen of the ear is far too wide. There is much promise in J. H. S. Partington's portrait of Mr. George Faulkener (81). A word of praise is due to A. E. Emslie's "Autumn Work" (92). A view of "Oporto" (104), by C. Napier Hemy, with the yellow light of sunset falling full on the higher portions of the city; while the blue water below is enveloped in the rising shadow of the earth is a striking, powerful arrangement of strong contrast but open to the charge of exaggeration; at all events, a little more vagueness here and there would have been more accordant with the impression possible to the human eye at a single glance—and our mental impressions are based largely upon that. "The Last Look: Scene at the Foundling Hospital, in Rome" (109), is a pathetic picture by R. Lehmann; and the portrait, by the same artist, of Sir Arthur Kennedy (127) is highly characteristic and lifelike.

Special canons of criticism must be applied to Walter Crane's "Laidley Worm of Spindleton Hugh—a Legend of Bamboro' Castle" (120). The work should be judged as a "decorative" exercise in the treatment of an old legendary romance, and the further license taken by the mediæval painters in representing successive incidents of a story in the same picture, must also be accorded to the artist. For we have here the witches' incantation that transformed the lady into a "worm;" then the knight liberating her (in the picture, however, the serpent or dragon that is being strangled and the nude lady are two distinct entities), and in the distance the knight making off with his prize. The picture, by the same artist, of "Europa" (133) borne into the sea by the white bull is much more coherent, and the group of Apollo driving his horses over the horizon is finely conceived. After allowing the painter the license he may not unfairly claim, we must recognise his skill in composition, his wealth of invention, readiness of resource, and other qualities of the designer. And, although obviously not well trained in technicalities, the nude figure in the first picture and the bull in the second are better as painting per se than anything we had seen by him. Mr. Herkomer's "Gloom of Idwal" (149) presents a space of blue sky and cloud flushed with the roseate tint of sunset, seen above a dark, jagged mountain spine, the valley below being a mass of little descriptive or suggestive brown paint. The effect, so far as it is carried out, is true and impressive; but all that the picture tells us might have been told on a canvas one twentieth part of the actual dimensions. "The Roman Acrobat" (159) by J. R. Weguelin, is a work of considerable merit. A nearly nude girl balances herself on a rope à la Blondin under a Pantheon-like dome (without the bronze additions originally attached to that part of the edifice) and above the heads of spectators ranged on the benches of a theatre, as at Pompeii. W. E. Lockhart's picture of the Cid presenting "Five Moorish Kings" to his mother (162), in illustration of Lockhart's Spanish ballads, is a clever, effective picture, in the demonstrative Scotch manner. In the water-colour room it must suffice to note R. Doyle's naïve comicalities, "The Sailor and the Monkeys: a Story of Imitation" (244), and "The Triumphal Entry of the Queen, 'Now She's Coming'" (251); E. F. Blommers' "Landing Fish" (294); and J. T. White's "Ghosts of the Past Glinted at Dawn" (302). Among the sculpture that deserves remark is the Earl of Beaconsfield (319), by Count Gleichen, "exhibited by desire of the Queen:" and Mr. Boehm's very admirable bust of Mr. Ruskin, for the Ruskin Drawing School at Oxford.

DRAWINGS BY PROFESSOR MENZEL.

The election of Professor Adolf Menzel as an honorary member of the Society of Painters in Water Colours, and the addition of a few of his drawings to the present exhibition of the society in Pall-mall, evince a liberal feeling of international courtesy which other close artistic corporations would do well to follow. The part taken by the worthy president of the society to procure this result is especially honourable. The two artists present some analogy to each other; both have very largely illustrated the history and literature of their respective countries, the one in lithography, the other in wood engraving: both have worked in all materials, but shown a predilection for water colours. There was a large and fine oil picture by Professor Menzel in our '62 International Exhibition, and several drawings by him at the last great Paris Exhibition; but he is not well known out of Germany, and the reason is not far to seek. The mass of his works illustrate the era of Frederick the Great, the Prussian army, and other subjects of primarily local interest. The eleven drawings now shown convey a very inadequate idea of the painter's ability, nor do they afford even a hint of his dramatic energy and invention. Moreover, two of them are early small sketchy portraits in pastels of Frederick the Great and his sister, which present little indication of the artist's future excellence. Among the best of the series are three small male portraits, perfectly individualised, and a small drawing of a lady at a spinet, her face admirably rendered under effect of reflected light. In accuracy of draughtsmanship and modelling, and truth of characterisation, these drawings are perfect. Equally fine in chiaroscuro are the "Interior of an Inn, at Gastein," with a couple of figures lit up by the ruddy glow of the kitchen fire from an inner room; and an "Interior of a Smithy." The drawback of the whole series is the blackness of the shadows—a fault prevalent in all the North German schools. In the last-named subject there is, of course, a reason for the blackness; but it is also much too apparent in the "View from the Balcony of Hof Gastein." Colour, "quality of colour," in the painter's sense, is wanting, and for this reason Prof. Menzel does not take the highest rank among artists of European reputation. We miss the subtle, changeful play of local hues, according to the effects of light, direct or reflected texture, half-light and shadow. His art is one of keen intellectual or logical observation of form and light and shade; but, as regards colour, it is not æsthetic, using the word in its legitimate signification, irrespective of the cant of the day; and in this last respect it is far inferior to that of Frederick Walker, or William Hunt (in his own narrow sphere), and many others.

---

The Black-and-White Exhibition opened at the Dudley Gallery on Monday last; but our notice must be deferred till next week.

An exhibition of Spanish and Portuguese art at the South Kensington Museum will be noticed next week.

The Library, Museum, and Arts Committee of the Liverpool Corporation has unanimously approved of plans for enlarging the Walker Art Gallery at a cost of £11,000. The intention is to provide commodious exhibition-rooms without interfering with the arrangement of the permanent art-collection, and the plans are recommended for the adoption of the City Council.

---

"THE TURN OF THE TIDE."

A fisherman's young wife, who has come out of the humble cottage home delineated in a subordinate compartment, appears in this picture, one by Mr. Davidson Knowles, standing upon the rocky seashore, and eagerly watching for the return of her husband's boat. It is, we may suppose, at early morning dawn, when the in-coming tide is likely to bring back those out all night at their toil in the wide and deep waters of the distant offing. This is a subject which artists have often before treated, but which has a perpetual interest, as it may be deemed a typical example of the pathetic truth, so plaintively expressed in Kingsley's well-known ballad, "The Harbour Bar," and in a not less touching Scottish ditty, "Caller Herrin'." It is well to remind us that the common industry of some classes of the poor, as here along the British coasts, is attended with frequent peril to life, and that our sympathy is due to their wives and families upon many sad occasions of disaster at sea. There are not wanting, in the course of each year's season, opportunities for the exercise of active compassion in particular cases of this nature, as well as for rendering assistance to such excellent public institutions as the "Royal National Life-Boat."

---

"HAPPY BE THY DREAMS!"

The quiet drollery of this picture, in which an elderly gentleman of a past generation, who has come to the river's bank intent on the gentle pastime of Isaac Walton, is fairly caught napping by a party of presumptuous little pigs, will afford the reader some little amusement. There is every appearance that the sleeper, fatigued with his labours of the fishing-rod, and with the heat of a summer afternoon, has involuntarily fallen into a brief state of blessed oblivion, leaving his fishing-basket, with the proceeds of his skill, to the rapacious attack of those unconscionable four-footed gluttons. He will be considerably surprised at waking, roused by the parting grunt of the nearest porker, to find that he has been so impudently robbed of the fine roach which he had intended to carry home as trophies of his dexterity in the angler's art. The situation is decidedly laughable, and its humour is well expressed in this pleasant work of Mr. F. Dadd's, which was in the Dudley Gallery exhibition of water-colour drawings.

---

Mr. William Urquhart has been elected a member of the Metropolitan Board, as representive of the borough of Marylebone, in the room of Mr. Roche, whose term had expired.

The grand jury at the Dublin Assizes has found a true bill against Sir Walter Nugent, Bart., on a charge of forgery at the prosecution of the Royal Bank of Ireland. An indictment was handed in, to be sent before the grand jury, charging Lady Nugent, who has left the country, with forgery in connection with her husband.

At a meeting of the Council of the British Dairy Farmers' Association on Tuesday—Lieutenant-General Burnaby, M.P., in the chair—it was decided to hold the dairy show of the society at the Agricultural Hall on Sept. 15 to 20. A guarantee fund of £1000 was started, towards which the members present subscribed £150.

About 2000 ball-cartridges have been discovered in a reservoir connected with the Springfield Paper Works, Bolton. They are all of the latest Government regulation pattern adapted for Snider rifles. None of them were spent, and from the perfect condition in which the majority of them were found it was evident they had only been immersed for a short time.

A return recently issued, showing the results of the examination of candidates for school certificates in the Army at home, indicates that the total number of men examined for certificates of the first, second, and third classes was 11,044, of whom 7356 were successful; 7827 men were examined for fourth-class certificates, of whom 6062 were successful. The total for the four classes was 18,871, of whom 4709 failed.

Last month the officers of the Fishmongers' Company seized, as unfit for human food, 82 tons and three quarters of fish which had been consigned to Billingsgate Market for sale. Of this 61 tons arrived by rail, and 22 tons by water. The fish numbered 46,657, and included 201 cod, 416 eels, 10,250 conger eels, 4000 flounders, 20,335 haddocks, 5337 plaice, 1856 whiting, 1152 lobsters, 132 mackerel, 73 roach, 4 salmon, 16 shads, 1542 skate, 1290 smelts, and 53 trout; and in addition 5 bags of cockles, 11 of scollops, 467 of mussels, 108 of periwinkles, and 28 of whelks, 13 barrels of crabs, 27 of herrings, and 5 of oysters, 66 kits of pickled salmon, 4665 gallons of shrimps, and 27 quarts of whitebait. It was all destroyed.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

In spite of the addition of something like £8000 to the various stakes, it cannot be said that the late Manchester Meeting was altogether a success. The Cup certainly turned out better than had been anticipated when the wretched acceptance was declared, and there were very fair fields in point of number for most of the events, but quality was not well represented, and few of the aristocratic patrons of racing favoured the fixture with their presence. Charibert (10 st. 8 lb.) ran a wonderfully good horse in the Salford Borough Handicap, but his roaring propensities made the seven furlongs just a little too far for him, and the very useful Strathblane (8 st. 8 lb.) beat him cleverly at the finish. Still, the performance of Lord Falmouth's cast-off was a marvellous one, as he had eighteen horses, to whom he was conceding any amount of weight, behind him. Fernandez (9 st.) did such a splendid exercise gallop on the Wednesday morning that he became all the rage for the Manchester Cup, and eventually started a very hot favourite. It cannot be said that he ever gave his numerous backers any real prospect of success, as he ran as badly as all Mr. Gretton's horses have done this season, and was hopelessly out of it quite half a mile from the finish. Peter (8 st. 13 lb.), on the other hand, ran exceedingly well, and looked like securing an easy victory until Archer suddenly appeared on the scene with the little-thought-of Valour (8 st. 9 lb.), and beat Sir John Astley's recent purchase very cleverly. Any reasonable price from 25 to 40 to 1 could be obtained about Valour at the start; the stable did not fancy him in the least, and no one can have profited by his success except a few persistent followers of the popular jockey. There was a very large attendance at Sandown Park on the last two days of the week. Charibert just managed to concede 27 lb. to Lincolnshire in the Stewards' Cup, but only after a tremendous struggle which he may not forget for some time to come. The British Dominion Two-Year-Old Stakes brought out a good field of thirteen, of whom Kingdom, on the strength of a high trial, was made favourite. He ran prominently, but had no chance at the finish with the colt by See-Saw—Peine de Cœur, who came in almost alone.

The best week's racing in the whole season began on Sunday with the Grand Prix de Paris. It happened that none of the placed horses in the Derby were engaged in it; but the Americans had a trustworthy substitute of Iroquois in Foxhall, the French were well represented by Albion and Tristan, and England can almost claim Scobell, as Prince Soltykoff has become so thoroughly identified with this country. It was generally thought that the struggle lay between Foxhall, Albion, and Scobell, and as the course proved too long for the last-named, and the winner of the French Derby was hopelessly beaten at the distance, the American representative, who made nearly all the running, appeared to have things all his own way. Just at the critical point, however, the irrepressible Archer bore down on him with Tristan, and one of the most desperate finishes ever seen was fought out to the last stride. First one and then the other seemed to have a stride the better of it, and it was not until the numbers were hoisted that anyone but the judge knew that Fordham had just squeezed Foxhall home by the shortest of heads. The Americans, who were present in large numbers, were wonderfully elated over their second great victory within the space of ten days, and the "star-spangled banner" waved from many a carriage almost before the winner had returned to weigh in. This is the third time Fordham has won the Grand Prize, as he steered Fervacques in 1867, and the Earl in the following year.

In several respects the Ascot Meeting has never begun under more favourable auspices than it did on Tuesday. The weather was all that could be wished, the Royal procession as brilliant as ever, and the attendance about the best on record. On the other hand, the sport was by no means up to the Ascot standard, and the absence of Peregrine from the Prince of Wales's Stakes spoilt the event of the day. Passing over the first and second races, which were of little importance, we come to the Gold Vase, the withdrawal of Chippendale from which left Peter with nothing but Monarch and Ambassadress to beat. This appeared a very easy task, but the son of Hermit has always possessed a queer temper, and evidently does not relish being suddenly asked to gallop about twice the distance to which he has been accustomed. After going about half a mile, therefore, he suddenly stopped dead, and began to kick and plunge furiously, nor could either persuasion or force induce him to go a stride further. This contretemps reduced the race to a match, in which Ambassadress proved too much for Monarch, and Fordham thus scored a win in Lord Falmouth's colours, in which he very seldom appears. As neither Peregrine nor Town Moor came out for the Prince of Wales's Stakes, Iroquois had really nothing to beat. Archer rode him again, and, though Geologist improved a little on the poor figure he cut in the Derby, the American colt had little trouble in conceding him 9 lb., and thus shares with Wheel of Fortune the credit of having carried the full penalty successfully, and can also claim to be the first Derby winner that has secured this race. There were ten runners for the Ascot Stakes; and, with all its weight, Exeter (9 st. 4 lb.) had the call of everything at the finish. He ran fairly well, but never looked like winning, and, when Teviotdale (8 st. 2 lb.) appeared to be getting the better of Retreat (8 st.) the latter swerved on to him, knocked him out of his stride, and, going on, beat him by a length. An objection was inevitable, and, after a full investigation by the stewards, Retreat was disqualified, and the race awarded to Teviotdale, a decision that was endorsed by every impartial observer. Zealot had no trouble in beating Master Waller in the Twenty-seventh Triennial Stakes; and the programme ended with a match between a couple of two-year-olds belonging to Lord Alington and Mr. Cameron, which resulted in a dead-heat.

Notwithstanding the fit of bad temper displayed by Peter in the running for the Gold Vase, he found plenty of supporters on the Wednesday for the Royal Hunt Cup, and actually started a warm favourite, the comparatively short price of 3½ to 1 finding ready takers. After a deal of time had been cut to waste, owing to the son of Hermit renewing his capers of the day previous, a fairly good start was effected. At the distance, Peter (9 st. 3 lb.), who got off the last of all in consequence of his stopping to indulge in a kick soon after the flag fell, began gradually to close with the leaders, and heading Sword Dance (6 st. 9 lb.) fifty yards from the finish, Archer kept him at work, and won cleverly by three-quarters of a length; the Duke of Beaufort's Petronel (7 st. 12 lb.) finished third, three lengths in the rear.

The experiment of selling the Marden Deer Park yearlings in the paddock at Sandown Park proved thoroughly satisfactory. Every one of the twenty sent into the ring found a purchaser, and the average of nearly 300 gs. must have fulfilled Mr. Hume Webster's most sanguine expectations. A colt by Cathedral from Princess of Wales, the dam of Albert Victor, George Frederick, Louise Victoria, &c., made 1050 gs., the top price of the afternoon; and a half brother to Beauchamp II., by Dutch Skater—Berçûre, and an own brother to John Day, by John Davis—Breakwater, were next, at 500 gs. each. The young Craig Millar's were generally liked, and nearly all of them realised remunerative, though not extravagant, prices.

Pressure on our space compels us to treat cricketers with scant courtesy this week. Middlesex has beaten Notts by 51 runs; no large scores were made on either side, and Mr. Robertson's bowling—eight wickets for 48 runs in the second innings of Notts—was the feature of the match. Thanks mainly to Messrs. E. M. Grace (77) and W. G. Grace (not out, 50), Gloucestershire defeated Surrey by eight wickets; and Lancashire beat Kent in one innings with 46 runs to spare, Mr. Hornby (102), whose batting has been extraordinarily good this season, and Mr. Robinson (90) did most of the serving for the winners. This week Middlesex has succumbed to Gloucestershire by six wickets, in spite of the grand hitting of Mr. Vernon (88), who put his runs together in exactly an hour; Messrs. W. G. Grace (64) and E. M. Grace (47 and 35) did nearly all the serving for the western county. Cambridge University v. Lancashire resulted in the downfall of the county team by seven wickets; but the result might have been different had not Mr. G. B. Studd (106) gone in first, and carried out his bat for a splendidly-played innings.

The final games for the lawn-tennis champion cup, presented by Prince's Club, were played on Saturday last between Messrs. A. W. Renshaw and A. J. Mulholland, and resulted in the victory of the former by three setts to one.

The committee of Henley Regatta have wisely given way to the strong public feeling that has been expressed in the matter, and has accepted the entry of the Cornell University crew.

To-day (Saturday) the Scottish Gathering will take place at Stamford-bridge, when there will be pipe music, dancing, tossing the caber, and other national sports of Scotland.

On Saturday last W. Beckwith attempted to give Captain Webb, the hero of the Channel swim, a start of two miles in a sixteen-mile race. The contest took place at the Royal Aquarium, Westminster; and, though Beckwith swam exceedingly well, he never had the smallest chance of catching his much-improved opponent.

THE SILENT MEMBER.

On the reassembling of the House of Lords last Monday, there were not wanting signs of the growing interest our younger Peers are taking in public affairs. The Earl of Rosebery, to wit, put to the Foreign Secretary a question which led Earl Granville to acknowledge that papers of an important character concerning the negotiations between Turkey and Greece were forthcoming. Lord Stratheden and Campbell thereupon postponed his motion on the question. A noteworthy conversation, in originating which the Earl of Fife suggested the appointment of a Minister of State for Scotland with a seat in the Cabinet, gave Lord Rosebery the opportunity of mildly intimating that the cry of "Home Rule!" was being raised across the Tweed. The Duke of Argyll placed the blame on the Commons for the block in Scotch business. But a bland promise by Earl Granville that the Government would take the matter into serious consideration soothed the ruffled sensibilities of the Scottish peers. On Tuesday, the Earl of Dalhousie presented a satisfactory list of peers to sit on the Committee which is to consider how young girls can be better protected. The faith Lord Northbrook seemed to place in the stability of the Atalanta will hardly be generally shared. At the same sitting, the engrossing nature of the Irish land question received fresh illustration at the instigation of Lord Waveney, in reply to whose philanthropic query regarding the comfortable housing of Irish cottiers Lord Carlingford stated that the Irish Land Bill would proffer all the relief the Government could propose.

The House of Commons bestowed little more than a passing recognition, hearty enough, though, in its way, on Mr. Goschen as he looked in before Whitsuntide on his return as a not unsuccessful Ambassador Extraordinary from the Sublime Porte. Mr. Goschen certainly did not court applause either on his first reappearance or in his subsequent flittings since his visit to her Majesty at Balmoral. His modest, unobtrusive mien is as subdued as ever; his stoop a little accentuated, perhaps. Now he has come back, bearing his blushing honours with habitual meekness, how long will he have to wait before taking his natural seat on the Treasury Bench as Mr. Gladstone's Chancellor of the Exchequer?

Simultaneously with the return of Mr. Forster from Dublin, there was, happily, a break in the storm-laden cloud which not only darkened Ireland, but cast a gloom over the prospects of the Land Bill. Whether the grave rioting of last week brought Mr. Parnell to his senses, or whether the ingenious framers of the numberless amendments to the chief Ministerial measure of the year suddenly saw good reason to abate their obstructive zeal, the Government had the satisfaction of seeing some progress made with the bill on Monday. Mr. Forster, in replying to the questions he was industriously plied with, may be said to have presented a front calculated to allay the alarm occasioned by the reported rioting near Cork. The Secretary for Ireland, who looked none the worse for his holiday in Dublin, was able to satisfy Lord Randolph Churchill that the excitement at Skull had subsided, and to show Mr. T. P. O'Connor that the law must be enforced in Ireland, however deplorable it might be for the troops to have to fire upon an opposing crowd. In Committee on the Irish Land Bill, a singular incident happened at the outset. With characteristic confidence and coolness, Mr. Biggar rose from the Home-Rule camp below the gangway on the Opposition side, and moved an amendment to clause 1, which Mr. Gladstone could not for a moment accept, as the principle at issue had been debated and rejected on a previous night. In the totally novel character of a peacemaker, Mr. Parnell then rose, quietly but firmly appealed to Mr. Biggar to withdraw the needless amendment, and even avowed his desire to aid Mr. Gladstone in his gigantic task, or at any rate not to offer obstruction. This amendment having, in accordance with the unexpected help of the Home Rule leader, been dropped, others were negatived by large majorities, varying from 63 to 152; but the Prime Minister yet found it necessary, in replying on Mr. Chaplin's amendment, to hint at the imminence of a Ministerial motion to expedite the progress of the bill in Committee. That this warning was not unseasonable will be allowed when it is stated that, albeit several amendments have been disposed of, clause 1 was still being considered when the debate was adjourned on Tuesday.

Sir Wilfrid Lawson secured another victory on Tuesday, Mr. Bright making an admirably moderate speech on the side of the genial apostle of temperance, and a majority of 42—196 to 154—sanctioning the motion of the hon. Baronet:—

That, in the opinion of this House, it is desirable to give legislative effect to the resolution passed on June 18, 1880, which affirms the justice of local communities being intrusted with the power to protect themselves from the operation of the liquor traffic.

The need of an amendment of the Patent Laws in the direction of encouraging inventors having been pretty generally agreed to on Wednesday, Mr. Anderson's Patents Bill was read the second time, with marks of approval. Some cheering also followed the passing through Committee of the Welsh Sunday Closing Bill.

THE COURT.

Her Majesty, with Princess Beatrice and her granddaughters the Princesses of Hesse, has continued to make frequent excursions on Deeside. Prince Leopold left at the end of last week for London. Lord Carlingford also returned south. The Right Hon. G. T. Goschen has paid a short visit to the Queen. The Royal family attended Divine service, performed at Balmoral Castle on Sunday by the Rev. A. Campbell.

Next week a Levée and a State Ball will take place, and the following week a State Concert will be given, which entertainments will generally close the Court festivities of the season in town.

The Right Hon. Sir Edward Thornton, late her Majesty's Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the United States of America, is to be the Queen's Ambassador Extraordinary and Plenipotentiary to the Emperor of Russia.

Captain Crombie, of the Aberdeen Artillery Volunteers, has received from Balmoral Castle a silver punch-bowl, from the Queen, to be competed for at the approaching wapinschaw. The bowl weighs about 30 oz. Her Majesty has also promised to lend from the Royal galleries at Windsor one of the pictures of the late John Philip, to be shown at the coming art exhibition at Aberdeen.

The Queen, through Lord Northbrook, has desired the expression of her sympathy to be conveyed to the relatives of those who perished in her Majesty's ship Doterel. Her Majesty was also constant in her inquiries for the late Hon. Harold Gathorne Hardy.

There was recently published a terrible story of the shipwreck of the Normanton, of London, and the sad death of fifteen out of the crew of sixteen hands. The only survivor is George Kidgeon, who was landed at Liverpool on the 2nd inst., and who is now living at Devonport. The Queen, seeing the account of his fearful sufferings, directed inquiry to be made, and has sent a sum of money for his relief to Mr. H. D. Grey, principal officer of the Board of Trade at Plymouth. Mr. Grey presented the money to Kidgeon, and the recipient strongly and feelingly expressed his thanks, whilst he was surprised that the Queen "should be so gracious as to think of such a poor fellow."

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

Upon the occasion of the yawl-match of the Thames Yacht Club the Prince witnessed the race from Mr. Pearce's steam-yacht Torfrida, on which he embarked at Gravesend, returning to town in the afternoon, when his Royal Highness went with the Princess and Princesses Louise, Victoria, and Maud of Wales to a bazaar (Ye Olde English Fayre) at the Royal Albert Hall, in aid of the funds for completing the new building for the Chelsea Hospital for Women, the Prince including among his purchases two Persian kittens, for which he gave ten guineas. His Royal Highness and the Princess dined with the Right Hon. Sir William Vernon and Lady Harcourt. The Princess and her daughters visited the Horse Show at the Agricultural Hall.

During the Prince's visit to Great Yarmouth his military duties occupied the greater portion of his time. On the day of his arrival, after lunching with the officers of the Norfolk Artillery Militia at the Assembly Rooms, his Royal Highness inspected some 800 of the regiment, which had mustered at the Barrack Square, under the command of Lord Suffield; and was afterwards present at big gun practice. The Prince met the Duke of Cambridge at the Southdown station in the evening, and accompanied him to Shadingfield Lodge, where the Duke remained, with the Prince, the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Nightingale. Their Royal Highnesses joined the officers' mess at the Assembly Rooms, and afterwards went to the Gaiety Company's performance at the Aquarium. The next day some four hundred of the 1st Norfolk Artillery Volunteers were inspected by their Royal Highnesses on the South Denes; after which came the review of the Norfolk Artillery Militia, of which the Prince is honorary Colonel. Lieutenant-Colonel Lord Suffield was in command; and the manœuvres were witnessed by a large assemblage of spectators. The Duke of Cambridge addressed the regiment at the close of the review, and left the ground with the Prince, attended by his staff, the bands playing the National Anthem. The Prince afterwards attended gun practice at the south battery; the Duke going on board Lord Lonsdale's steam-yacht Northumbria, which was lying in harbour. The Royal guests and a large party lunched at Shadingfield, after which the Duke of Cambridge left for town, presiding in the evening as Colonel at the annual dinner of the officers of the Royal Regiment of Artillery. The Prince passed the afternoon afloat on Lord Lonsdale's yacht; and messed with the military officers at the Assembly Rooms, going afterwards to the Aquarium. His Royal Highness inspected the ancient parish church of St. Nicholas on Saturday, being conducted over the edifice by the Rev. E. Venables, son of the Vicar, who was unavoidably from home. His Royal Highness subsequently left for London. Great Yarmouth during his stay was gaily decorated with bunting, and Friday was generally made a holiday. Numerous county families were in the town during the Royal visit.

On Monday, the Prince and Princess, with their daughters, accompanied by the Duke of Cambridge, went to Bagshot Park, and were present at the bazaar in aid of the fund for the restoration of St. Anne's Church, Bagshot. Their Royal Highnesses afterwards proceeded to St. Leonard's, Windsor, for the Ascot week; a large party being entertained for the occasion. The usual semi-Royal state has been carried out on each visit to the course.

The Prince of Wales has sent £50 and the Princess £25 towards the extension of the building of the Railway Servants' Orphanage, Derby.

A Reuter's telegram announces that Prince Albert Victor and Prince George of Wales arrived at Adelaide on the 13th inst. on board the Peninsular and Oriental Company's steamship Cathay, and met with an enthusiastic reception from the people of Adelaide. Their Royal Highnesses are the guests of Major-General Sir W. F. Jervois, the Governor of South Australia.

The Duke of Edinburgh has sat for his photograph in uniform to Messrs. Maull and Fox, Piccadilly. Lady Emma Osborne has returned from Rome, and has entered on her duties as Lady in Waiting upon the Duchess of Edinburgh; and Captain Poore has succeeded Captain J. Clerk as Equerry in Waiting on the Duke. His Royal Highness, Admiral Superintendent of Reserves, hoisted his flag on board her Majesty's ship Hercules, in the Downs, on Monday. The Duchess embarked at Dover on Tuesday morning on the steam-tender Lively, and paid a visit to the fleet in the Downs. Her Royal Highness returned in the afternoon, and was received by a guard of honour, and a Royal salute was fired from the castle. The Duke left the Downs on Wednesday in the Hercules—accompanied by the Warrior, Penelope, Lord Warden, Hector, Defence, Repulse, Valiant, and Lively—for Heligoland.

The Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz and the Duke of Cambridge went to see the Midgets last Saturday.

Prince Leopold, Duke of Albany, K.G., who has presided over the committee for the Spanish and Portuguese Loan Exhibition, South Kensington Museum, inspected the collection yesterday week, previous to its being opened to the public. His Royal Highness will take his seat in the House of Lords as a Peer of the United Kingdom on Monday next.

The Duke and Duchess of Teck are among the visitors entertained by Prince and Princess Christian at Cumberland Lodge during the Ascot week.

For the bazaar at Bagshot Park, in aid of the fund for the restoration of St. Anne's Church, the Queen gave, with her special patronage, £100. Princess Christian presided over a flower and fruit stall, and also performed at the concert. Princess Louise of Lorne and Princess Beatrice contributed various paintings; Prince Leopold constituted himself auctioneer, and the Duke and Duchess of Connaught were untiringly active in their several rôles. The Duchess of Connaught wore a chintz dress trimmed with mauve silk, and hat with white feathers; Princess Louise had a costume of white Holland, embroidered in crewels, with an apron of navy blue, and Rubens hat with white feather; Princess Christian was in dark blue, with apron of lace and muslin, white bonnet with amber-coloured feathers.

The Empress Eugénie a few days since went to Windsor and inspected the memorial to the late Prince Imperial which has been erected in St. George's Chapel. The Empress afterwards returned to Coombe Cottage, Malden.

FASHIONABLE MARRIAGES.

At half-past three last Saturday was celebrated, at St. Peter's Church, Eaton-square, the marriage of Mr. Gerald Fitzgerald, Director-General of Public Accounts to the Khédive of Egypt, and the Hon. Amicia Henrietta Milnes, eldest daughter of Lord Houghton. Her bridesmaids were the Hon. Florence Milnes, sister of the bride; Miss Mary Thornhill, cousin of the bride; Lady Ruth Baillie Hamilton, the Hon. Mary Baring, the Hon. Mildred Manners, Miss Doyle, Miss Thomson (daughter of the Archbishop of York), and Miss Eleanor Bland. Mr. Edward Malet, Minister Plenipotentiary at Cairo, acted as best man. The bride wore a white satin dress trimmed with old point d'Alençon and orange-blossoms, and over her wreath a veil of old Brussels lace. Her jewels were a necklace of diamonds and pearls, the gift of the bridegroom, and diamond ear-rings, presented by her father. The bridesmaids were dressed in costumes of cardinal-coloured satin merveilleux trimmed with lace and muslin, and cream-coloured bonnets with wreaths of crimson carnations, and each wore a silver necklace and ear-rings of Egyptian workmanship, and carried a bouquet of cream-coloured roses, the gifts of the bridegroom. The marriage was solemnised by the Hon. and Rev. John R. O. Bridgeman, Rector of Weston-under-Lizard, Staffordshire, assisted by the Very Rev. Dean Butcher, Chaplain at Cairo.

On Tuesday the Rev. J. S. Northcote, Rector of Upton Pyne, third son of Sir Stafford Northcote, M.P., was married at St. Margaret's, Westminster, to Miss Hilda Farrar, second daughter of the Rev. Canon Farrar, D.D. The ceremony was performed by the Bishop of Durham, assisted by the Rev. Dr Plumptre and the Rev. A. S. Northcote. The Dean of Westminster pronounced the final blessing. Among the guests were Sir Stafford and Lady Northcote, the Prime Minister and Mrs. Gladstone, the Earl and Countess of Lytton, the Right Hon. the Speaker and Mrs. Brand, Baroness Burdett-Coutts, Mr. and Mrs. Matthew Arnold, and Mr. Robert Browning. At the wedding breakfast, the health of the bride and bridegroom was proposed by Lord Lytton, and the health of Canon and Mrs. Farrar by Sir Stafford Northcote.

THE GEORGE STEPHENSON CENTENARY AT NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.

SEE PAGE 610.

PROCESSION PASSING ST. NICHOLAS CHURCH.

THE "OLDE ENGLISH FAYRE.'

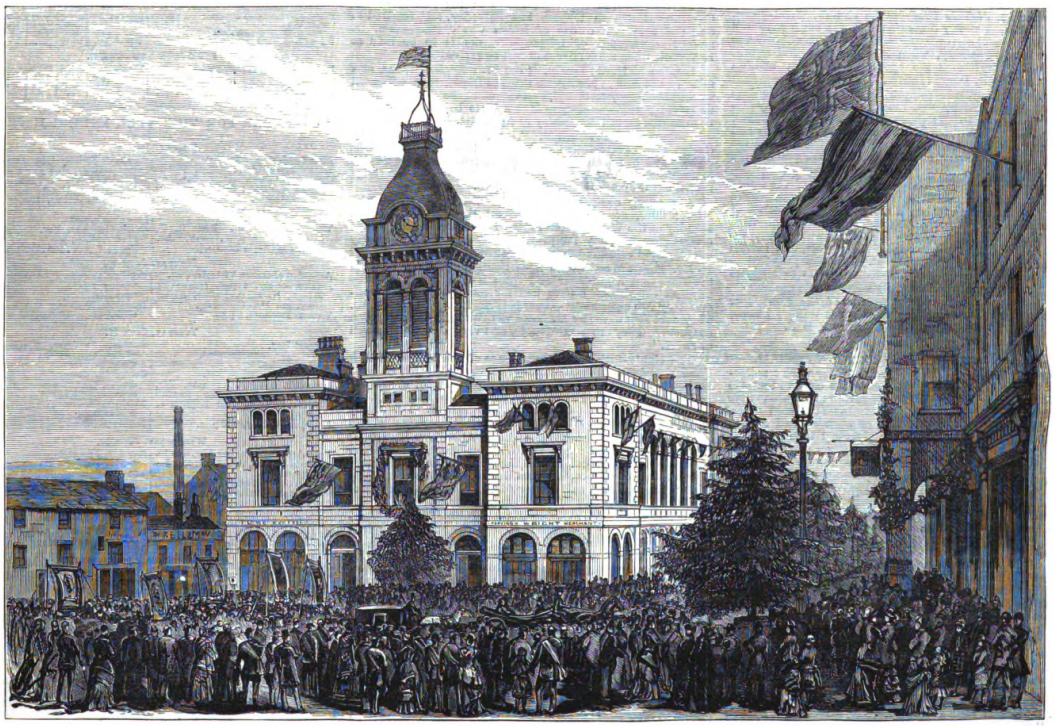
This picturesque and quaint exhibition of antiquarian curiosities, held in the Royal Albert Hall during four days of last week, produced not less than £7540, of which £4300 was from the charges for admission, while £3240 was the proceeds of the sale of fancy articles, to the profit of the Chelsea Hospital for Women. The "Olde English Fayre," of which we gave a description in our last, with Illustrations of some of the ladies' old-fashioned costumes, thus proved a great success at Kensington; and it is this week removed to the grounds of the Bolingbroke House Pay Hospital, on Wandsworth-common, where it is kept up three days, from Wednesday to this present Saturday inclusive, for the benefit of that institution. The patronesses are Maria, Marchioness of Ailesbury, the Countesses of Egmont, Elgin, and Southesk, and other ladies of rank. Our front-page Engraving shows the interior of the Royal Albert Hall, with the central area surrounded by the imitative antique house-fronts, which we have described, representing the street market-place of an old English town; the shops, distinguished by diverse fantastic signs, being occupied by the lady saleswomen, who did a very brisk trade. The display of coloured pennons and other flags overhead made this gay and festive scene of pleasant bustle all the more attractive. A page of incidental Sketches, also presented in this Number, sets before the reader such figures as that of the showman, loudly inviting spectators to see "the fun of the fair;" the two ministering priestesses of Fortune at her oracular wheel; the dames du comptoir dealing in tea and cakes and other light refreshments; the purchasers of toys, floral bouquets, and other trifles, which some of them are hardly able to carry away; and the scene at the back of the mimic market-place houses, where many people were fain to stay a long time for want of room. It was, on the whole, an entertainment cleverly arranged, and managed with entire success.

The committee of the Chelsea Hospital for Women hope when all liabilities are discharged to add a sum of nearly £6000 to the building fund for their new hospital. Among the special attractions of Saturday may be mentioned a short scene from Shakspeare's "King John," by Miss Ellen Terry and Captain Claremont, when the little temporary theatre was crowded with visitors. Several ladies and gentlemen who had not previously shared in the labours of the "Olde English Fayre" now volunteered their services, and the last hour presented an unusually busy scene through the energy of numerous amateur auctioneers, who did their best to dispose of the remaining articles at the various stalls.

THE GEORGE STEPHENSON CENTENARY FESTIVAL.

SEE PAGE 610.

FIREWORK DISPLAY IN LEAZES PARK, NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE.



PROCESSION OF BENEFIT SOCIETIES PASSING THE MARKET-HALL, CHESTERFIELD.

BENEVOLENT OBJECTS.

The fifty-fourth anniversary festival of the Licensed Victuallers' Asylum, situated in Asylum-road, Old Kent-road, took place on Thursday, the 9th inst., at Alexandra Palace. Mr. Alderman and Sheriff Fowler, M.P., presided at the dinner, which was attended by a very numerous company. The Asylum, which consists of 170 houses, with official residences, &c., at present maintains 210 inmates, at an annual cost of £8000. The subscriptions amounted to £4100.

The anniversary festival of the Friend of the Clergy Corporation, which has for its object allowing pensions not exceeding £40 per annum to the widows and orphan unmarried daughters of clergymen of the Established Church, and for affording temporary assistance to necessitious clergymen and their families throughout England and Wales, was held yesterday week at the Freemasons' Tavern. The Lord Mayor presided, supported by Lord Sidmouth, Bishop Claughton, the Sheriffs and some hundred friends and supporters of the Corporation, the large majority being clergymen. In the course of a speech in the interests of the corporation, the Lord Mayor cited the mortifying facts that there are 400 beneficed clergy in England and Wales with incomes under £60, 3360 whose incomes do not exceed £150, and 7000 whose means barely suffice to maintain their families, and who can do nothing in the way of provision for survivors. His Lordship's appeal was received with great applause, and, in response, subscriptions recording an aggregate of £940 were announced.

Yesterday week was the great Whitsuntide demonstration for the Oldham Sunday-school scholars. About 15,000 scholars were in procession.——A demonstration of the Church of England Sunday-schools in Liverpool took place last Saturday. After marching in procession through the leading thoroughfares, the children assembled on the Exchange flags, where they sang a selection of hymns, and were afterwards addressed by the Mayor (Mr. W. B. Forwood) and the Bishop of Liverpool.

At the annual meeting of the Working Men's Club and Institute Union last Saturday it was stated in the report that during the year eleven had been added to the Union list of applications in the metropolis, and eighteen new provincial clubs were affiliated within the twelve months.

Last Saturday afternoon the Lord Mayor presented the prizes at the second Industrial Exhibition in connection with St. John the Divine, Kennington, in the school-rooms, Camberwell New-road. It was divided into two sections. The first, containing nineteen classes, was open to men, women, and children residing in, working in, or connected with the parish; and the second, containing thirteen classes, was open to children receiving education from any school in the parish.

On Monday the annual court of guardians of the Female Orphan Asylum, which is situated at Beddington, Surrey, was held at the City Terminus Hotel, Cannon-street, Mr. C. Mortimer, J.P., presiding. The report submitted by the managing committee stated that there are now 159 girls in the institution, and two are at the Margate Infirmary for the benefit of their health. The report having been adopted, the committee and officers for the ensuing year were elected, after which a special general court was held for the purpose of electing ten children to the institution. There were twenty-three candidates.

The Lord Mayor presided on Monday at a meeting of the Mansion House Committee of the Scio Earthquake Fund. It was stated that the fund amounted to over £23,000, of which £20,800, exclusive of £2000 paid in the purchase of blankets, &c., has been remitted to Constantinople for distribution to the sufferers. It was decided to send out the balance of £945. It was resolved to close the fund, and a hearty vote of thanks to the Lord Mayor for opening the fund was passed.

A bazaar was opened on Tuesday at the Holborn Townhall, by the Earl and Countess of Aberdeen, in aid of the building fund for the St. James's Presbyterian church, Wood-green. The hall had been neatly decorated, and the stalls were well supplied with useful and ornamental articles. The bazaar was kept open on Wednesday, when Mr. Alderman and Sheriff Fowler, M.P., performed the opening ceremony; and on Thursday, when Mr. Donald Currie, M.P., presided.

Before a large audience, comprising many leading members of the Jewish persuasion, Mrs. Lionel Lucas on Tuesday distributed the prizes to the pupils of the work-rooms, 130, Bishopsgate-street Without, which are under the care and superintendence of the board of guardians for the relief of the Jewish poor in London. The distribution took place in the board-room, 13, Devonshire-square.

The forty-fourth anniversary dinner in aid of the Coffee and Eating-House Keepers' Association, which was established for the permanent relief of aged and indigent members and their widows, was held on Tuesday night at the Cannon-street Hotel, Mr. Polydore de Keyser in the chair. Male pensioners are paid £20, and female pensioners £18 a year, and in this way about £6500 has been disbursed. It is now proposed to extend the operations of the association, so as to alleviate suffering caused by misfortune or by excessive competition.

The anniversary dinner of the friends of the Newspaper Press Fund will be held to-day (Saturday) at Willis's Rooms, under the presidency of Sir Stafford Northcote, M.P.

ATTEMPT TO DESTROY THE LIVERPOOL TOWNHALL.

About four o'clock in the morning of yesterday week a police-constable on duty discovered a lighted fuse close to the side door of the Townhall, Liverpool. Perceiving at the same time two men apparently watching, the constable followed them, giving the alarm to a brother officer of what he had seen at the Townhall. The second officer proceeded to the Townhall, and saw a package having the appearance of a sailor's bag, with something making a fizzing noise inside. He began to open the outside cover, but, finding it smoking and very heavy, he dragged it into the centre of the roadway, and, becoming alarmed, he left it. He had not got more than ten yards when it exploded with a loud report, breaking the windows of the Townhall and the windows opposite, and destroying a piece of the iron palisade, some pieces of the bomb passing over the buildings and breaking the windows in the adjoining streets. Pieces of iron picked up showed that the bomb was of the same material as was used in the attempt made lately on the police station. The first policeman followed the two men, and with assistance captured them. They were armed with loaded revolvers, both are Irishmen, and one has recently arrived from America.

The Mayor of Liverpool has received an official intimation from the Treasury that the Government will undertake the prosecution of William M'Grath and James M'Kevitt, the two men charged with the attempt to blow up the Townhall.

Mr. Brandram read Shakespeare's "Midsummer Night's Dream" in the ancient hall of the Middle Temple yesterday week night. Among the company present were the Lord Chief Justice, Lord and Lady Chelmsford, Lord and Lady Bathurst, Baroness Burdett-Coutts and Mr. Ashmead-Burdett-Coutts-Bartlett, Sir Montague Smith, and the Dean of Westminster.

HOME NEWS.

Sir W. Fenwick Williams has resigned the office of Constable of the Tower.

Lieutenant-General C. H. Morris, C.B., has been awarded the distinguished-service pension of £100 a year.

The Theatre Royal, Belfast, which was rebuilt ten years ago, was last week destroyed by fire.

Lieutenant-General Sir Donald M. Stewart and Major-General Sir Frederick S. Roberts are gazetted as baronets.

A short line of railway between Dover and Deal was opened on Tuesday, in presence of Sir Edward Watkin and a large company.

The summoning officers of the Birmingham police force have been allowed the use of tricycles for the purpose of expediting their work.

Rear-Admiral the Hon. H. Carr Glyn, C.B., C.S.I., has been selected to succeed Rear-Admiral Leveson E. H. Somerset as second in command of the Channel Squadron.

Mr. John Corrie Carter, of the Midland Circuit, has been appointed to the recordership of Stamford, vacant by the transfer of the Hon. Chandos Leigh, Q.C., to the recordership of Nottingham.

Mr. Burt, M.P., was on Tuesday fined 20s. and costs, at the Newcastle-on-Tyne Police Court, for not having complied with a magistrate's order to have his child vaccinated.

At Tuesday's meeting of the City Commissioners of Sewers the Medical Officer of Health reported that during the week 112 tons 5 cwt. of meat had been seized at the meat market as unfit for human food.

A Coroner's jury has returned a verdict of manslaughter against the manager of the Whitfield Colliery, North Staffordshire, where recently twenty-four men were killed by an explosion in the pit.

Towards the Liverpool memorial to Lord Beaconsfield more than £2400 has been contributed. It is expected that the memorial will take the form of a statue to be placed in one of the public thoroughfares.

A meeting of the citizens of Dublin has been held in the Mansion House, the Lord Mayor presiding, to make arrangements for the meeting of the Social Science Congress to be held in Dublin in October next.

Yesterday week the beautiful mansion of Inverardoch, Perthshire, belonging to Mr. John Campbell, was almost destroyed by fire, causing damage, exclusive of the value of pictures and family relics, of £12,000.

On Tuesday the distribution of prizes to the pupils of the London main centre who were successful at the Cambridge local examinations took place at the University of London, the presentations being made by Canon Barry.

The recordership of Nottingham, which has been vacated by the resignation of Mr. Richard Wildman, has been filled up by the appointment of the Hon. Edward Chandos Leigh, M.A., Q.C., the Recorder of Stamford.

On Monday afternoon the inaugural ceremony, in connection with the monument in memory of those who perished in the Grosser Kurfürst, took place at Folkestone, in presence of 150 officers and men of the German man-of-war Niobe.

The Great Eastern Railway Company have decided to take steps for developing the commercial resources of the port of Harwich. Extensive docks, covering seventy acres, are to be formed at Dovercourt, with warehouses and other appliance.

The monthly returns of emigration made up by the Government officials at Liverpool show that during May, 38,263 persons left the Mersey, of whom 11,441 were English, 265 Scotch, 4299 Irish, and 22,097 foreign, 161 not being distinguished as to nationality.

Twelve hundred telegraph clerks in the service of the Government met in London last Saturday, and resolved to strike if a certain course of action was decided upon. A national conference of telegraph clerks is to be held at Liverpool, when a final decision will be arrived at.

Lieutenant H. W. Lowry, of the 97th Regiment, has, at a full-dress parade at Maidstone Brigade Dépôt, been presented with the honorary testimonial on vellum of the Royal Humane Society, for endeavouring to save a little boy named Russell from drowning in the Medway in April last.

Professor John Marshall, F.R.S., F.R.C.S., has been elected the representative of the Royal College of Surgeons of England in the General Council of Medical Education and Registration, to supply the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Sir James Paget, Bart., F.R.S.

A meeting composed chiefly of ladies, presided over by Miss Muller, of the London School Board, was held on Monday at the Westminster Palace Hotel, for the purpose of establishing a society for promoting the return of properly qualified and suitable women as guardians of the poor.

Mr. Basset Wood writes from Southampton:—"I see in the Times that a gardener at Naples is endeavouring to raise fragrant camellias. I have had for some years in my conservatory two quite sweet-scented—Tricolor and Donkelaarii. They were sent to me by M. Louis van Houth, from his garden at Ghent. They are semi-double, and very beautiful as well as sweet."

The eighty-fifth annual conference of the Methodist New Connexion was opened on Monday in Hanover Chapel, Halifax. In consequence of the death of Mr. Mark Firth, a vacancy had occurred in the guardian representatives, and the Conference elected Mr. George Saville, of Sheffield. Dr. Stacey was elected President of the Conference.

A plot of land, formerly the site of Allhallows Church, at the corner of Bread street and Watling-street, and having an area of 3270 ft., together with the reversion to the buildings thereon in seventy-eight years hence, has been sold by Messrs. Jones, Lang, and Co. for £43,200—over £13 per square foot, or at the rate of half a million per acre.

At last Saturday's meeting of the managers of the Metropolitan Asylums it was decided to accept the offer made by the Admiralty of an additional frigate, the Endymion, and a steam tender, the former as an administrative ship, and the latter for the purpose of conveying patients, provisions, &c., to the Atlas frigate, which has been allotted as a smallpox hospital ship.

The arrivals of live stock and fresh meat from the United States and Canada, landed at Liverpool last week, show a marked decrease, there being only half the number of steamers arrived which convey live stock and fresh meat; making a total of 1693 cattle, 1673 sheep, 5818 quarters of beef, 531 carcases of mutton, and 99 dead hogs.

In London 2358 births and 1346 deaths were registered last week. Allowing for increase of population, the births were 108 and the deaths 107 below the average numbers in the corresponding week of the last ten years. There were 59 deaths from smallpox, a smaller number than in any week since March last; and 64 from measles, which malady appears to be causing many deaths in Bristol, Sheffield, and Liverpool; whilst scarlet fever is more prevalent in Norwich, Oldham, and Birmingham.

THE CHURCH.

In a pastoral letter devoted to the subject of spiritual destitution in his diocese, the Bishop of Liverpool says that district after district could easily be named in which ten, twelve, fifteen, and even twenty thousand souls are nominally under the care of a solitary incumbent.

A meeting of parochial choirs associated with the Canterbury Diocesan Choral Union took place on Tuesday at the Cathedral at Canterbury. About 800 selected voices took part in the proceedings of the day. The service was choral throughout, and the cathedral was filled in every part.

The Archbishop of Canterbury paid a visit to the Isle of Sheppey on the 9th inst. to reopen the ancient Abbey Church of Minster, near Sheerness, which had become very dilapidated, and which has now been restored at a cost of upwards of £4000. His Grace preached the sermon at the service. Minster Abbey Church is one of the oldest in England. It is a Gothic structure, and was originally built in the year 670.

The Archbishop of York, speaking last Saturday at a gathering of Church school teachers and managers at York, said the Board School system, with its free access to the ratepayer's pocket, had got together a body of children not very much greater than the increment in the Church schools during the same period. It seemed that the more Church people had been taxed for a national system of secular education the more freely they had given to the system of religious education which they preferred. He rejoiced, for his part, that hereafter the boast might be accomplished that no untaught child should be found in the land. "All thy children shall be taught," was a goodly promise; but he preferred it with an old addition—"All thy children shall be taught of the Lord."

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE KEW OBSERVATORY OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY.

Lat. 51° 28′ 6″ N.; Long. 0° 18′ 47″ W.; Height above Sea, 34 feet.

| | Day. | Daily means of Barometer Corrected. | Daily means of Temperature of the Air. | Daily means of Dew Point. | Daily means of Relative Humidity. | Daily means of Amount of Cloud. | Thermometer. Maximum, read at 10 P.M. | Thermometer. Minimum, read at 10 P.M. | Wind. General Direction. | Wind. Movement in miles in 24 hours, from 10 A.M. to 10 A.M. next morning. | Rain in 24 hours, read at 10 A.M. next morning. |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| | | Inches. | ° | ° | ° | 0-10 | ° | ° | | Miles. | In. |
| May | 22 | 30·368 | 56·4 | 39·1 | 55 | 1 | 68·3 | 40·9 | W. E. | 358 | 0·000 |
| | 23 | 30·188 | 60·5 | 40·2 | 50 | 0 | 70·3 | 49·0 | ENE. NE. | 363 | 0·000 |
| | 24 | 30·018 | 53·1 | 41·0 | 68 | 2 | 63·1 | 51·1 | ENE. E. | 478 | 0·000 |
| | 25 | 29·783 | 58·9 | 47·6 | 68 | 8 | 72·9 | 48·8 | ENE. ESE. | 131 | 0·105 |
| | 26 | 29·758 | 58·2 | 34·1 | 35 | 9 | 66·9 | 50·2 | ESE. NNE. NW. | 109 | 0·000 |
| | 27 | 29·826 | 60·3 | 54·8 | 83 | 10 | 66·9 | 56·4 | NW. WNW. | 138 | 0·005 |
| | 28 | 29·899 | 60·7 | 54·2 | 80 | 8 | 72·2 | 54·3 | WNW. N. NNE. | 184 | 0·330 |
| | 29 | 30·038 | 56·2 | 49·3 | 80 | 9 | 64·9 | 53·0 | ENE. | 259 | 0·005 |
| | 30 | 30·274 | 61·8 | 44·5 | 56 | 0 | 70·9 | 46·0 | ENE. E. | 304 | 0·000 |
| | 31 | 30·300 | 62·5 | 42·7 | 56 | 0 | 75·9 | 46·0 | E. ENE. | 95 | 0·000 |
| June | 1 | 30·162 | 63·6 | 44·7 | 58 | 2 | 78·3 | 48·0 | NNW. NE. | 112 | 0·000 |
| | 2 | 30·108 | 62·9 | 51·4 | 68 | 5 | 76·9 | 50·5 | ENE. NE. | 187 | 0·000 |
| | 3 | 30·101 | 64·0 | 46·8 | 52 | 2 | 77·9 | 52·5 | E. NNW. | 105 | 0·000 |
| | 4 | 29·913 | 65·2 | 44·5 | 50 | 4 | 78·6 | 54·8 | W. SW. | 284 | 0·000 |
| | 5 | 29·627 | 54·7 | 52·3 | 90 | 10 | 63·7 | 52·1 | SW. N. | 391 | 0·560 |
| | 6 | 29·482 | 50·5 | 41·7 | 74 | 9 | 59·6 | 46·5 | NNW. W. | 191 | 0·330 |
| | 7 | 29·633 | 47·1 | 39·5 | 87 | 9 | 55·1 | 44·9 | WNW. NNW. NNE. | 214 | 0·045 |
| | 8 | 29·951 | 47·0 | 36·4 | 69 | 6 | 55·9 | 41·5 | NNE. | 294 | 0·000 |
| | 9 | 30·183 | 46·7 | 39·1 | 80 | 8 | 54·8 | 38·2 | N. NNW. NE. | 252 | 0·000 |
| | 10 | 30·123 | 51·4 | 33·0 | 63 | 7 | 60·0 | 48·3 | NE. NW. SW. | 129 | 0·000 |
| | 11 | 29·923 | 53·9 | 45·0 | 74 | 9 | 64·7 | 46·8 | SW. SSW. | 106 | 0·070 |

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at ten o'clock, a.m.:—

FROM MAY 22 TO MAY 28.

| | | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Barometer (in inches) corrected .. | 30·416 | 30·222 | 30·063 | 29·807 | 29·779 | 29·896 | 29·893 |
| Temperature of Air .. .. | 62·10 | 65·3 | 61·6 | 63·6 | 61·3 | 60·7 | 62·9 |
| Temperature of Evaporation .. | 53·8 | 54·6 | 52·9 | 55·2 | 57·2 | 57·0 | 56·7 |
| Direction of Wind .. .. | E. | E. | ENE. | ENE. | NNE. | NW. | NW. |

FROM MAY 29 TO JUNE 4.

| | | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Barometer (in inches) corrected .. | 29·892 | 30·247 | 30·330 | 30·306 | 30·121 | 30·137 | 30·072 |
| Temperature of Air .. .. | 59·4 | 63·3 | 66·6 | 68·4 | 67·2 | 67·2 | 66·5 |
| Temperature of Evaporation .. | 57·6 | 55·7 | 57·4 | 60·7 | 57·6 | 57·6 | 57·8 |
| Direction of Wind .. .. | ENE. | ENE. | NE. | NNW. | NE. | NW. | SW. |

FROM JUNE 5 TO JUNE 11.

| | | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Barometer (in inches) corrected .. | 29·610 | 29·457 | 29·384 | 29·678 | 30·172 | 30·176 | 29·997 |
| Temperature of Air .. .. | 60·0 | 53·4 | 50·4 | 51·2 | 49·8 | 51·9 | 52·5 |
| Temperature of Evaporation .. | 56·4 | 48·1 | 45·3 | 44·7 | 42·8 | 44·9 | 51·0 |
| Direction of Wind .. .. | SW. | N. | N. | N. | E. | NW. | SW. |

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING JUNE 25.

SUNDAY, JUNE 19.

First Sunday after Trinity.
Hospital Sunday in London.
Cambridge Commencement Sunday.
Morning Lessons: Joshua iii. 7—iv. 15; Acts iii. Evening Lessons: Joshua v. 13—vi. 21, or xxiv.; 1 Pet. iv. 7.
Whitehall, 11 a.m., Rev. R. T. Davidson; 3 p.m., Rev. Dr. Thornton (Boyle Lecture).
St. Paul's Cathedral, 10.30 a.m., Rev Prebendary Moore; 3.15 p.m., Bishop Piers Claughton; 7 p.m., Rev. N. T. Gurty.
Westminster Abbey, 10 a.m., 3 and 7 p.m.
St. James's, noon.
Savoy, 11.30 a.m., Rev. Henry White, the Chaplain; 4 p.m., Rev. George Body; 7 p.m., Rev. G. H. Connor.

MONDAY, JUNE 20.

Accession of Queen Victoria, 1837.
Asiatic Society, 4 p.m. (papers by Messrs. N. B. E. Baillie, Albert Grey, and Dela Couperie).
Victoria Institute, 8 p.m.
Printers' Pension Corporation, anniversary festival (Earl Spencer in the chair).
Domestic Economy Congress, conversazione at Albert Hall, 8.30 p.m.

TUESDAY, JUNE 21.

Longest Day.
Cambridge Commencement.
Musical Union, 3.15 p.m.
Humane Society, 3.30 p.m.
Statistical Society, 7.45 p.m. (Mr. Hyde Clarke on the English Stations in the Hill Regions of India).
Zoological Society, 8.30 p.m.
Sanitary Institute, 8 p.m. (Prof. W. H. Corfield on the Sewage Question.)
Caldrivers' Benevolent Association, dinner, Willis's Rooms (the Duke of Cambridge in the chair).
Domestic Economy Congress: meetings at Society of Arts (two days).
Races: Windsor June Meeting.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 22.

Botanic Society, evening fête, 8 to 12.
Oxford Encœnia, or Commemoration of Founders.
Normal College for the Blind, concert, St. James's Hall, 3 p.m.
Society of Arts, conversazione, 8 p.m.
Royal Society of Literature, 8 p.m.
Geological Society, 8 p.m.
The Archbishops and Bishops enter Lambeth by the Lord Mayor.
Burton-on-Trent Dog Show.
Newton Races.

THURSDAY, JUNE 23.

Zoological Society's Gardens, Davis Lecture, 5 p.m. (Professor Flower on Dolphins).
Antiquaries' Society, 8.30 p.m.
International Bazaar in aid of Society for Relief of Foreigners, Duke of Wellington's Riding School (three days).
National Orphan House, amateur concert; Grosvenor Gallery, 3.30.
Royal Cambridge Asylum for Soldiers' Widows, triennial festival, Willis's Rooms, 6.30 p.m. (the Prince of Wales in the chair).
Royal Cinque Ports Club matches Hampton Races. (four days).

FRIDAY, JUNE 24.

Nativity of St. John the Baptist.
Midsummer Day.
Cambridge Easter Term ends.
Botanic Society, lecture, 4 p.m.
Quekett Microscopical Club, 8 p.m.
United Service Institution, 3 p.m. (Captain J. R. Lumley on Officers in the Prussian Service).
Philological Society, 8 p.m. (Mr. J. Marshall, jun., on the Morphology of the Indo-Germanic Root).
Wiltshire Society ball, Willis's Rooms.
Her Majesty's State Ball, Buckingham Palace.
Alexandra Palace Horse Show.

SATURDAY, JUNE 25.

Accession of Charles I., King of Wurtemburg, 1864.
Botanic Society, 3.45 p.m.
Physical Society, 3 p.m.
Lord Northbrook's reception at the Admiralty.
Wanstead Infant Orphan Asylum, anniversary, 2 p.m. (the Duke of Connaught in the chair).
The Lord Mayor's dinner to representatives of literature.
Athletic Sports: Ealing, Huddersfield

OUR HOLIDAY NUMBER.

"THE BEAUTIFUL WRETCH."

The great charm of Mr. William Black's literary style—the art of describing Englishwomen and Englishmen as they are—is as noticeable as ever in his latest novel, which forms the Holiday Number of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS. It is too soon to say whether Miss Anne Beresford, the attractive young lady whose family sobriquet "The Beautiful Wretch," gives the title to the story, will be coupled by the general reader with the fascinating and wilful "Madcap Violet" of Mr. Black. But somewhat of a resemblance to that popular heroine may be detected in the opening lines of "The Beautiful Wretch," which draw a bright picture of "a young girl of about seventeen or so who was walking over the downs that undulate, wave on wave, from Newhaven all along the coast to Brighton." That the tale thus pleasantly opened abounds in scenes and adventures of deep interest may be judged by a glance over the numerous Illustrations which adorn the pages of "The Beautiful Wretch." It is, indeed, a special feature of this Holiday Number that the complete novel here published for one shilling is enriched with a profusion of pictures which conclusively show that English Artists and English Engravers can equal, if not surpass, those American designs that have been deservedly lauded for their dainty elegance and soft beauty of outline and tint. Thus it will be seen that the various drawings of "The Beautiful Wretch" by Messrs. R. Caton Woodville, Montbard, W. H. Overend, Harry Furniss, and Davidson Knowles—here bold and vigorous, there tenderly poetical, and having the most strongly contrasted interiors and landscapes for backgrounds—are engraved with singular excellence by Messrs. R. Loudan, W. J. Palmer, J. Greenaway, Joseph Swain, W. I. Mosses, R. and E. Taylor, and other artists. The allied arts have, in a word, been united with such good effect in this Holiday Number that the result is a work of rare interest. The admirers of Mr. William Black will be furthermore gratified with a faithful portrait of him, engraved by Mr. W. B. Gardner from the well-known painting of Mr. John Pettie, R.A.

What may appear at first sight a replica of a classic drawing by Alma Tadema is presented as a Supplement to "The Beautiful Wretch;" but this masterly picture of the audience "At a Greek Play" is really the work of Mr. J. W. Waterhouse, finely printed by Messrs. Leighton Brothers.

ROYAL INSTITUTION LECTURES.

TOURGENIEFF THE RUSSIAN NOVELIST.

Professor C. E. Turner, of the University of St. Petersburg, devoted his fourth lecture to the novels of John Sergiewitz Tourgénieff, who was born at Orel, Nov. 9, 1818, educated at Moscow, St. Petersburg, and Berlin, and for a time attached to the Ministry of the Interior. Since 1847 he has resided much in Germany and France. His works afford rich materials for the student of the social and political movements that have successively agitated Russia during the last thirty years. Each of his principal novels treats of the particular question occupying the intelligent class of his countrymen at the time of its composition. In his first work of any importance, "Stories from a Sportsman's Notebook," we remark how the serf is painted as a man, and we are made to feel that beneath his rough sheepskin there beats a human heart, and that centuries of slavery have not been able to efface altogether the warm and kindly instincts common to our nature. The political life of modern Russia may be divided into two periods. The first is marked by a general awakening to a consciousness of the latent force it possesses in the untried and unpractised energies of its people. The second coincides with the practical employment of those energies under the leadership of wise guides competent to give a healthy direction to the aspirations of the nation. It is with the first of these stages that the novels of Tourgénieff, beginning with "Roudine" and ending with "Virgin Soil," are concerned. In "Roudine," and to a less extent in Lavretski, the hero of "A Nobleman's Retreat," we have sketches of progress-ranters, "minikin Hamlets," as the novelist calls them, who talked eloquently of liberty and brotherhood, but remained aristocratically ignorant of the wants of the peasantry, and did nothing to redress the wrongs from which they suffered. In Russia, as elsewhere, the age of talkers precedes the age of practical reformers. Accordingly, in the novels "On the Eve" and "Fathers and Children," we observe an advancing change in the life of the nation. In place of mere theorists we have Insaroff, the devoted patriot, Ellen, with her longings to do good, and not merely to be good, and Bazaroff, with his calm, unselfish, passionless devotion to truth. Though a professed Nihilist, we must not confound him with those who have of late usurped the title to themselves; and, by rendering it a synonym for "assassin," made it an offence to every honest man. We must regard him rather as a positivist; the scorner of red-tapeism, and the sworn foe of all shams and hypocrisies. The great lesson we have learnt from the story of his life is that it is in the people, rather than in the artificial refinements of the upper classes, we should look for the strength that will enable their country to play a dominant and worthy part in the new phase of civilisation on which we are now only entering.

THOMAS CARLYLE.

Professor Henry Morley began his fourth and concluding lecture on Scotland's Part in English Literature, given on Tuesday, the 7th inst., by describing Thomas Carlyle as a man of the true Scandinavian type, in many points resembling John Knox, and like him in believing that it was his mission to prophesy sternly against the vices and follies of his age. He was trained in a severe school, his father being a mason and his mother a domestic servant. He was born Dec. 4, 1795, when his parents were in deep poverty. His uncles are characterised as "pithy, bitter-speaking bodies, and awfu' fichters," and very coherent to each other; traits which appeared in their nephew, who was frequently harsh and repulsive to strangers, and tenderly affectionate to those near him. When his deeply-religious father prospered by great industry and frugality he designed Thomas for the ministry, and sent him to Annan grammar-school (the "Hinterschlag Gymasium" of "Sartor Resartus," a book which is full of Carlyle's early life and training). Here he endured the severe discipline of the time, which he and his friend Edward Irving themselves practised when schoolmasters at Kirkaldy. At the University of Edinburgh Carlyle was rather a voracious reader than an assiduous student. In a graphic sketch, Professor Morley described how Irving became an earnest minister, and how Carlyle, after wrestling with himself, renounced the office, devoting himself to the pen for his livelihood. Many details, with comments, were given of his engagement with Brewster to write biography for the "Edinburgh Encyclopædia;" of his acting as tutor to the gifted Charles Buller; of his gaining the genuine friendship of Jeffreys, which greatly conduced to his prosperity; of his marriage to Jane Walsh, who had been a child pupil of Edward Irving; and of the publication of his various great works, "The Life of Schiller," the translation of "Wilhelm Meister," "Past and Present," &c. Professor Morley protested against recent adverse criticisms of Carlyle, as based upon mere inferences. In his egotism he only resembled other men of genius, such as Wordsworth, Browning, Tennyson, and Ruskin. In his efforts to regenerate society, he proposed to deal specially with the individual rather than with the community, which was aimed at by Mazzini; and both were carried into extremes by their ardent enthusiasm. In concluding, Professor Morley read some passages from "Sartor Resartus," as the leading principles of Carlyle's moral philosophy. "Most true is it, as a wise man teaches us, that Doubt of any sort cannot be removed except by Action. . . . Do the Duty which lies nearest thee, which thou knowest to be a Duty. Thy second Duty will already have become clearer. . . . The situation that has not its Duty, its Ideal, was never yet occupied by man. Yes, here, in this poor, miserable, hampered, despicable, Actual, wherein thou even now standest, here or nowhere, is thy Ideal. Work it out therefrom; and, working, believe, live, be free."

SPECTROSCOPIC INVESTIGATIONS.

Professor Dewar, M.A., F.R.S., at the Friday evening meeting on the 10th inst., gave a summary account of the profound experimental researches of Professor Liveing and himself, carried on in the laboratory of the Royal Institution, where the indispensable resources needed for such investigations are amply provided. The intensely hot and bright arc of light required was obtained from the dynamo-electric machines of Siemens and De Meritens; and crucibles of lime and afterwards of compressed magnesia were employed to contain the gases, vapours, and other substances to be spectroscopically examined. Immense pains were taken to eliminate impurities, but absolute purity could not be obtained. By these means the beautiful spectra of various metals, gases, hydrocarbons, and even of water, were procured and studied. The various distinct brilliant coloured rays were exhibited, and their reversals—that is, bright rays were replaced by black lines by certain modifications. The remarkable influence of variations of pressure and temperature were also shown. The modifications of some metallic spectra by the introduction of hydrogen or nitrogen into the crucible were very remarkable. The spectra of hydrocarbons, such as a candle-flame, coal gas, &c., were exhibited, and an intensely white light was produced by introducing oxygen gas into the flame of cyanogen, which contains very little carbon. Among other results, it was stated that all the rays that have been proved to be broken up in the chromosphere of the sun have been broken up by Messrs. Liveing and Dewar in their crucibles. The identity of the character of the iron vapour in the solar atmosphere with that obtained from our iron has been confirmed, and the supposition that the different elements may be resolved into simple constituents, or into a single one, long a favourite speculation with chemists, and recently revived, has received scanty support from the most powerful method of investigation yet devised. In addition to the numerous spectra exhibited, photographs of others were shown, some taken by Professor Liveing during the discourse.

NEKRASOFF—THE POET OF THE PEOPLE.

Professor Turner began his fifth and concluding lecture on Saturday, the 11th inst., with a biographical sketch, in which he stated that Nicholas Alexeivitch Nekrasoff was born Nov. 22, 1821, in the government of Kamenetz-Podolski, at a small town where the regiment in which his father served happened to be quartered. His mother, a good, brave woman, died whilst he was still young, and many of his poems are dedicated to her memory. Shortly after her death, the father quitted the army with the rank of Major, and was appointed Commissioner of the Country Police at Yaroslaff. The duties of this office were fulfilled with a harshness characteristic of Russian police administration, and the boy, who often accompanied his father in his official journeys, was witness of many a cruel extortion practised on the poor peasantry. These scenes left on his mind an indelible impression, and inspired him with those liberal opinions of which his poetry is so faithful an exponent. His determination to devote himself to literature gave great offence to his father, who at once disinherited him, and Nekrasoff was reduced to a state of absolute penury. He himself has given a most interesting record of these years of suffering and hunger. But he possessed a brave heart. "I swore to myself," are his own proud words, "that I would never die in a garret." He was for the rest of his life a hard worker. He edited two of the chief Liberal monthly journals of St. Petersburg; and though, as he boasts in one of his poems, he "set out for the far-distant capital with just fifteen-pence in his pocket," after forty years' constant toil, he won to himself high fame as a poet, and a by no means inconsiderable fortune. He died in 1878. He is essentially the poet of the people—the representative of the new generation; and enjoys a popularity far greater than any of his contemporaries ever succeeded in attaining. The most characteristic of his poems are "Red-Nosed Frost," "To Whom is Life in Russia Worth Living," and "Russian Women." In the last we have the story of how the Princess Volkouski and the Princess Trubetskoi followed their husbands into exile in Siberia, and bravely shared all their sufferings and privations. The lecture was illustrated by analyses and extracts. Some of these lectures will appear in the Fortnightly Review.

The Royal Institution season is now concluded.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

TWO NEW NOVELS.

MRS. GEOFFREY. By the Author of "Molly Bawn," "Phyllis," "Beauty's Daughters," &c., 3 vols., post 8vo.
"We are glad to find that the author of 'Phyllis' and of 'Molly Bawn' has lost none of her former cunning. There is a freshness and vigour about her style which is peculiarly fascinating, and amidst so much that is dull and flaccid in recent fiction it is pleasant to meet with so bright and attractive a story as 'Mrs. Geoffrey.'"—John Bull.

FOUR CROTCHETS TO A BAR. By the Author of "The Gwillims." 3 vols., post 8vo. Ready this day.
London: SMITH, ELDER, and Co., 15, Waterloo-place.

POPULAR NOVELS AT ALL LIBRARIES.

LIEUTENANT BARNABAS. By FRANK BARRETT. 3 vols.
THE CAMERONIANS. By JAMES GRANT. 3 vols.
TWO PRETTY GIRLS. By Miss M. A. LEWIS. 3 vols.
AN OCEAN FREE LANCE. By W. CLARK RUSSELL. 3 vols.
Also immediately,
KING LAZARUS. A New Novel in 3 vols.
RICHARD BENTLEY and SON, New Burlington-street.

Now ready, everywhere, 1s.,
CECIL BROOKS'S SPRING TIDE ANNUAL,
GOLDEN EGGS, Laid by

| | |
|---|---|
| Mrs. J. H. Riddell. | Richard Dowling. |
| Frank Barrett. | J. A. O'Shea. |
| Mrs. Parr. | Arthur Peck. |
| F. E. Weatherly. | Matt Stretch, &c. |

And Hatched by
CECIL BROOKS and Co., Catherine-street, Strand.

ALL MOTHERS SHOULD READ
MYRA'S MID-MONTHLY JOURNAL and CHILDREN'S DRESS. Price 6d.; by post, 8d.
(Published on the 15th of each Month.)

MYRA'S MID-MONTHLY JOURNAL contains information upon all the Newest Modes for Children, from infants to fourteen years of age.

MYRA'S MID-MONTHLY JOURNAL.
The Novelties for JUNE are:—
1. Coloured Fashion Plate.
2. Diagram sheet, containing Patterns of the Katrina Cassque, the Rosel Pelisse, the Perez Costume, and Granny Bonnet.
3. Cut-out Paper Pattern of a Princess Petticoat for a Child of two.
4. The Silkworm's Gift, Design for a Collar and Cuffs in Vermicelli Lace.
5. La Mode in Paris: Our Children; Notes on Novelties.
6. Myra's Answers: London Modes, Dress, Health, and Personal Attention, Play-time, the Cuisine, Books and Authors, Music, Etiquette, Miscellaneous, Last News from Paris.
7. Illustrations of the Newest Styles in Costumes and Toilettes for Children; Indoor, Walking, and Evening Dresses; Mantles, Jaletots, Chapeaux, Coiffures, Lingerie, &c., Models of Mantles, Dressing-Gowns, and Children's Costumes and Hats from Les Grands Magasins du Louvre.
8. Needlework: Designs for Embroidered Work Basket; Berlin Wool Work, and Crochet Edging and Insertion.

Subscriptions—Yearly, 8s.; Half-Yearly, 4s.
GOUBAUD and SON,
39 and 40, Bedford-street, London, W.C.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

THE NEW AND POPULAR NOVELS.
Now ready, at all the Libraries,

LOVE, HONOUR, AND OBEY. By IZA DUFFUS HARDY.
AMONG THE HILLS. By E. FRANCES POYNTER. Author of "My Little Lady." 2 vols.
THE FUTURE MARQUIS. By CATHARINE CHILDAR.
SYDNEY. By GEORGIANA M. CRAIK.
HARRY JOSCELYN. By Mrs. OLIPHANT.
RESEDA. By Mrs. RANDOLPH. (Next week.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

THE DUTCH AND ENGLISH IN SOUTH AFRICA. By One who has Lived Nineteen Years Among Them. Price One Shilling.
London: E. MARLOW, BOUSH and Co., 51, Old Bailey.

SECONDHAND BOOKS—Write for a CATALOGUE of—comprising Modern, Curious, Old, and Facetious, Topographical, Popular, Antiquarian, Standard, and Scarce Works. Post-free of S. H. ARUNDELL, 11, Boden's-court, Oxford-street, London. Libraries purchased for cash.

WHAT IS YOUR CREST and WHAT IS YOUR MOTTO? Send name and county to CULLETON'S Heraldic Office, Plain Sketch, 3s. 6d.; coloured, 7s. The arms of man and wife blended. Crest engraved on seals, rings, books, and steel die, 8s. 6d. Gold seal, with crest, 25s. Solid Gold Ring, 18-carat, Hall-marked, with crest, 42s. Manual of Heraldry, 400 engravings, 3s. 9d.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

CULLETON'S GUINEA BOX of STATIONERY contains a Ream of the very best Paper and 500 Envelopes, all stamped in the most elegant way with Crest and Motto, Monogram, or Address, and the engraving of steel Die included. Sent to any part for P.O.O. order.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

VISITING CARDS, by CULLETON. Fifty best quality, 2s. 8d., post-free, including the Engraving of Copper-plate. Wedding Cards, 50 each, 5s. Embossed Envelopes, with Maiden Name, 6d.—T. CULLETON, Seal Engraver, 25, Cranbourn-street, St. Martin's-lane, W.C.

FOR ARMS and CREST send Name and County to T. MORING, Inns of Court Heraldic Offices, 323, High Holborn, W.C. Plain Sketch, 3s. 6d.; Coloured, 7s. 6d. Seals, Dies, and Diplomas. Illustrated Price-Lists post-free.

CHROMOPHOTOGRAPHY.
(KRAUS' PROCESS.)
The New Art (enabling any person without previous knowledge of either Painting or Drawing) to Colour Photographs on convex glasses, in imitation of China and Enamel Paintings. Boxes containing everything requisite, 20s. and 42s. Particulars post-free. Specimens shown on application at the Sole Agents, J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, London, W.

VITREMANIE, superseding Diaphanie. An easy and inexpensive method of decorating windows in churches, public buildings, and private houses, by which may be produced the rich colouring and beautiful designs equal in appearance to real stained glass. Handbook of Designs and full Instructions, 1s. 1d. Boxes, comprising designs, &c., at 21s., 31s. 6d., 42s. Particulars post-free. Sole inventors, J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, London, W.

METROPOLITAN HOSPITAL SUNDAY FUND. Patron—Her Majesty the QUEEN. HOSPITAL SUNDAY, JUNE 19, 1881. Cheques crossed Bank of England and Post-office Orders made payable to the Secretary, Mr. Henry N. Custance, should be sent to the Mansion House.

A CHARMING RESIDENCE, containing seven bed-rooms, bath-room, and four reception-rooms, standing in nearly 1½ acres of ground, well laid out for beans, and well-stocked kitchen garden. TO BE LET, well FURNISHED, for six or twelve months, close to a railway station, with easy access to the City, &c. Mr. WILLIAM J. MURIE, Architect, North Kensington Estate Office, Ladbroke-grove-road W.

SOOLBATH NAUHEIM (near Frankfort-on-Maine), Station of the Main-Weser Railway.—NATURAL WARM SOOLBATHS, rich in Carbonic Acid. Chalybeate Springs and Alkaline Chalybeate Springs; Inhalation Salon. Queen; graduated Atmosphere; Goat Whey Cure. Season from May 1 to Sept. 30. Baths may be obtained before and after above dates.
For the Hesse Grand Ducal Nauheim Bath Direction,
JÄGER.

MALVERN COLLEGE. EXAMINATION for SCHOLARSHIPS and EXHIBITIONS, Dec. 22 and 23. Apply to the Secretary.

JOSEPH GILLOTT'S STEEL PENS.
GOLD MEDAL,
PARIS,
1878.

JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS' PATENT SOSTENENTE PIANOS have gained the highest awards at all the recent International Exhibitions, including the two First Prizes, Melbourne, 1881; the First Prize, Queensland, 1880; the two First Special Prizes, Sydney, 1880; the Legion of Honour, Paris, 1878, &c. For SALE, Hire, and on the Three Years' System.—18-20, Wigmore-st., London, W. Illustrated Lists free. JOHN BRINSMEAD and SONS' PIANOS for SALE, Hire, and on the Three Years' System.—18, 20, Wigmore-street; and the Brinsmead Works, Grafton-road, N.W. Lists post-free.

PRATT'S WATER PAD TRUSSES are the
MOST EFFECTUAL CURE FOR RUPTURES.
PRATT'S ELASTIC STOCKINGS,
for VARICOSE VEINS, &c.
J. F. PRATT,
Surgical Mechanician to St. Bartholomew's Hospital,
420, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON.

"FOR THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."
CLARKE'S WORLD-FAMED BLOOD MIXTURE is warranted to cleanse the Blood from all impurities, from whatever cause arising. For Scrofula, Scurvy, Skin and Blood Diseases, its effects are marvellous. In Bottles, 2s. 6d. each, and in cases, containing six times the quantity, 11s. each, of all Chemists. Sent to any address for 30 or 132 stamps, of the Proprietor, F. J. CLARKE, Chemist, Lincoln.

ALLEN AND HANBURYS'
"PERFECTED" COD-LIVER OIL
is free from disagreeable taste and smell, and causes no nausea or after-taste. Of all Chemists, in capsuled bottles only.

DINNEFORD'S MAGNESIA.
The best remedy for Acidity of the stomach, Heartburn, Headache, Gout, and Indigestion, and safest aperient for delicate constitutions, Ladies and Children. Of all Chemists.

CHUBB'S SAFES FOR JEWELS, DEEDS, PLATE, BULLION, &c.

CHUBB'S LOCKS AND LATCHES, CHESTS, BOXES, &c.

CHUBB'S ILLUSTRATED PRICE-LISTS POST-FREE.

CHUBB and SON, 128, Queen Victoria-street, E.C.; and 68, St. James's-street, London.

EPPS'S COCOA.
GRATEFUL and COMFORTING.
"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operation of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.
JAMES EPPS and CO., HOMŒOPATHIC CHEMISTS.
Also, EPPS'S CHOCOLATE ESSENCE, for Afternoon Use.

CARSON'S ANTI-CORROSION PAINT, Patronised by her Majesty, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of Edinburgh, and 15,000 of the Nobility, Gentry, and Clergy, for every description of outdoor work, has been established upwards of eighty years, and has the reputation over every part of the habitable globe of being the best Preserver of Iron, Wood, Stone, Brick, or Canvas.
It stands any extreme of climate, and seems only to harden with exposure. It is sold in all Colours.—Prices, patterns, and full particulars of free delivery, cash discount, with flattering testimonials; also Bids of Oils, Varnishes, Brushes, &c., can be had upon application to
WALTER CARSON and SONS,
La Belle Sauvage-yard, Ludgate-hill, London
21, Bachelor's-walk, Dublin.

CARSON'S ANTI-CORROSION PAINT is used by all the leading horticulturists for their conservatories and hot-houses, and has stood a practical test of upwards of eighty years.

TRELOAR and SONS' LUDGATE-HILL.

MATS. FLOORCLOTH.

LINOLEUM. CARPETS.

TRELOAR and SONS, 69, Ludgate-hill, were established 1832. They are the only firm in London who deal exclusively in Floor Coverings. They have been awarded seven Prize Medals, including one at Paris, 1878. The Fine Arts Galleries at the International Exhibitions of 1851, 1855, 1862, 1865, 1869, and 1878, were covered with mattings specially manufactured by them.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS and OINTMENT.
The Pills purify the blood, correct all disorders of the liver, stomach, kidneys, and bowels. The Ointment is unrivalled in the cure of bad legs, old wounds, gout, and rheumatism.

NEW MUSIC.

PATIENCE. An Æsthetic Opera. By W. S. GILBERT and ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Now being performed at the Opera Comique with enormous success.
Vocal Score ... ... ... ... ... ... ... 5s.
Pianoforte Solo ... ... ... ... ... ... ... 2s.
All the dancing sent post-free for half price.

DANCE MUSIC BY CHARLES D'ALBERT.

| | Solo or Duet |
|---|---|
| Patience Waltz .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | 4 0 |
| Patience Lancers .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | 4 0 |
| Patience Quadrille .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | 4 0 |
| Patience Polka .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | 4 0 |

VOCAL MUSIC.

| | Song or Duet, each |
|---|---|
| Hey Willow Waly O! .. .. .. | 4 0 |
| A most Intense Young Man .. .. .. | 4 0 |
| When I first put this Uniform on .. .. .. | 4 0 |
| The Silver Churn .. .. .. .. .. .. | 4 0 |
| Love is a Plaintive Song .. .. .. .. .. | 4 0 |

PIANOFORTE ARRANGEMENTS.

| | |
|---|---|
| Boyton Smith's Fantasia .. .. .. .. .. .. | 4 0 |
| Kuhe's Fantasia .. .. .. .. .. .. .. | 4 0 |
| Smallwood's Easy Fantasias, 1, 2, 3 .. .. .. | each 3 0 |
| Fred. Godfrey's Grand Selection. (As played by all the Military Bands) .. .. .. .. .. .. | 4 0 |

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street, W., and 15, Poultry, E.C.

OLIVETTE. New Comic Opera. Enormous success at the Strand Theatre. Adapted by H. B. FARNIE; Music by AUDRAN.
Vocal Score .. .. .. .. .. .. .. .. 8s. net.
Abridged Edition of the Vocal Score, containing the Overture, Songs, &c. .. .. .. .. .. 4s. „
Pianoforte Solo .. .. .. .. .. .. .. 2s. 6d. „
All the Favourite Airs, arranged for the Violin, Flute, or Cornet .. .. .. .. each 1s. 6d. net.

| | |
|---|---|
| Lancers. D'Albert .. 2s. net. | Galop. D'Albert .. 2s. net. |
| Waltz. D'Albert .. 2s. „ | Nearest and Dearest |
| Quadrille. D'Albert .. 2s. „ | Waltz. D'Albert .. 2s. „ |
| Polka. D'Albert .. 2s. „ | |

Boyton Smith's Fantasia .. .. .. .. 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

A CREOLE LOVE SONG. Words by Theo. Marzials; Music by Mrs. LYNEDOCH MONCRIEFF. Price 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

NEW AND POPULAR SONGS.

IN SHADOW. Mrs. RONALDS. 2s. net.
WELCOME. Lady ARTHUR HILL. 2s. net.
CŒUR DE LION. H. J. STARK. Sung by Mr. Oswald. 2s. net.
AT THE PORTAL. N. FERRI. Sung by Madame Mary Cummings. 2s. net.
WHAT THE FIRELIGHT TOLD. J. L. ROECKEL. 2s. net.
DINNA LEAVE ME. A. M. WAKEFIELD. Composer of "No, sir." 2s. net.
THOUGHTS AT SUNRISE. Mrs. L. MONCRIEFF. 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHARLES D'ALBERT'S NOVELTIES.

PIRATES OF PENZANCE LANCERS, WALTZ, QUADRILLE, POLKA, and GALOP .. each 2s. 0d. net
ADELINA WALTZ. Illustrated with beautiful Portrait of Madame Patti .. .. .. .. 2s. 0d. net
PORTIA WALTZ .. .. .. .. .. .. 2s. 0d. net
DRINK, PUPPY, DRINK! POLKA .. .. .. 2s. 0d. net
CONGRESS LANCERS .. .. .. .. .. 2s. 0d. net
DISTANT SHORE WALTZ .. .. .. .. 2s. 0d. net
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S THREE-YEARS' SYSTEM of HIRE of PIANOFORTES, HARMONIUMS, and AMERICAN ORGANS, by which the Instrument becomes the property of the Hirer at the end of the third year, provided each quarter's hire shall have been regularly paid in advance. Pianofortes, from 2gs. Harmoniums, from £1 5s.; and American Organs, from £2 10s. a Quarter.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S PIANINOS, from 20 guineas.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S COTTAGES, from 27 guineas.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S GRANDS, from 75 guineas.

CHICKERING PIANOFORTES, from 1ag guineas, with American discount.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ALEXANDRE HARMONIUMS, for Church, Schools, or Drawing-Rooms, from 6 to 1'o guineas; or, on the Three-Years' System, from £1 5s. per quarter.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S IMPROVED AMERICAN ORGANS, combining Pipes with Reeds, Manufactured by Clough and Warren, Detroit, U.S.A. The immense advantage these instruments possess over the Organs hitherto imported have induced Messrs. Chappell and Co. to undertake the sole Agency of this eminent Manufactory, of large variety on view, from 18 to 250 guineas. Price-Lists on application to CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

CLOUGH and WARREN'S Favourite ORGAN. Compass, five octaves, ten stops, four sets of reeds, two of two and two thirds octaves and two of two and one third octaves, knee swell, elegant carved Canadian walnut case, 25 guineas. With twelve stops, sub-bass octave coupler, and two knee pedals, 36 guineas. Illustrated Price-List free by post.
Sole Agents, CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

INSTRUMENTS by ALL MAKERS may be HIRED or PURCHASED on the Three-Years' System.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

A LARGE DISCOUNT TO PURCHASERS FOR CASH.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

ERARDS' PIANOS.—Messrs. ERARD, of 18, Great Marlborough-street, London, and 13, Rue de Mail, Paris, Makers to her Majesty and the Prince and Princess of Wales, PATRON and the Pianofortes are being and wearing the name of "Erard" which are not of their manufacture. For information as to authenticity apply at 18, Great Marlborough-st., where new Pianos can be obtained from 50 guineas.

ERARDS' PIANOS.—COTTAGES, from 50 guineas.
OBLIQUES, from 85 guineas.
GRANDS, from 125 guineas.

"Steinway is to the Pianist what Stradaurius is to the Violinist."—Herr Joachim.

THE STEINWAY PIANOFORTES, GRAND AND UPRIGHT.
THE GREATEST PIANOFORTES IN THE WORLD.
The Steinway Pianofortes are the chosen instruments of the educated and wealthy classes in every nation throughout civilisation, and have by far the largest annual sale of any pianofortes in the world.
STEINWAY and SONS,
STEINWAY HALL,
LOWER SEYMOUR-STREET, PORTMAN-SQUARE, W.
(And at Steinway Hall, New York.)

BROADWOOD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System, from £2 12s. 6d. per Quarter.

COLLARD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System; in Black and Gold Cases, at £1 11s. 6d. to £3 7s., £5 5s., £7 7s., and in Special Early English Ebonised Case, £8 8s. per Quarter.

ERARD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System, from £3 5s. per Quarter.

CRAMER'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on their Three-Years' System, from £1 11s. 6d. per Quarter. Detailed Lists post-free on application to Regent-street, W., Bond-street, W., Moorgate-street, E.C.; and 145, High-street, Notting-hill.

NEW MUSIC.

LA MASCOTTE. Opéra Comique by AUDRAN, Composer of "Olivette." Performed in Paris with the greatest possible success.
THE COMPLETE OPERA, with French Words, price 12s.
THE COMPLETE OPERA for Pianoforte Solo, 2s. 6d.
Quadrilles, Waltzes, and other Arrangements in hand.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

THE ROYAL EDITION OF OPERAS, for Voice and Pianoforte, in the most perfect form ever published. Edited by ARTHUR SULLIVAN and J. PITTMAN.
ITALIAN AND ENGLISH WORDS.

| | s. d. | | s. d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Ballo in Maschera (Un) .. | 3 6 | Huguenots (Les) .. | 5 0 |
| Barbiere di Siviglia (Il) | 3 6 | Lucia di Lammermoor | 3 6 |
| Crown Diamonds (The) | 3 6 | Traviata (La) | 3 6 |
| Dinorah | 3 6 | Martha | 3 6 |
| Domino Noir (Le) | 3 6 | Mountebanks | 3 6 |
| Don Giovanni | 3 6 | Mireille | 3 6 |
| Don Pasquale | 3 6 | Norma | 3 6 |
| Elisir d'Amore (L') | 3 6 | Porter of Havre (The) | 3 6 |
| Faust | 3 6 | Puritani (I) | 3 6 |
| Favorita (La) | 3 6 | Rigoletto | 3 6 |
| Fidelio | 3 6 | Robert le Diable | 5 0 |
| Figaro | 3 6 | Semiramide | 3 6 |
| Figlia del Reggimento (La) | 3 6 | Sonnambula (La) | 3 6 |
| Flauto Magico (Il) | 3 6 | Traviata (La) | 3 6 |
| Fra Diavolo | 3 6 | Trovatore (Il) | 3 6 |
| Guillaume Tell | 5 0 | Zauberflöte Fantasma (Il) | 3 6 |

A List of the Complete Series, containing English Operas, and Operas with German and French Words, gratis on application.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

NEW SONGS by MOLLOY.
THE ROSARY'S STORY. Sung by Mr. Santley.
THE FIRST LETTER. Sung by Miss Mary Davies.
TWENTY-ONE. Sung by Antoinette Sterling.
2s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

NEW SONGS by MARZIAL.
A BASKET OF LOVES. Sung by Mrs. Osgood.
A SUMMER SHOWER. Sung by Miss Mary Davies.
ROCHESTER BELLS. Sung by the Composer.
THAT SWEET STORY OF OLD. Sung by Santley.
2s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

NEW SONGS by STEPHEN ADAMS.
THE CHILDREN OF THE CITY.
THE VIRGIN'S SONG.
2s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

NEW SONGS by COWEN.
LISTENING ANGELS. Sung by Antoinette Sterling.
NEVER AGAIN. New Edith n.
ALL IN ALL. Sung by Mr. Maas.
2s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

BUDS AND FLOWERS. By KUHE. Sung by Miss Mary Davies.
"Well-written and pleasant; recommended by agreeable music not less than by a pretty subject."—Daily Telegraph.
Price 2s. net.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

GREAT-GRANDMOTHER. By MOLLOY.
In consequence of the very favourable reception of this new ballad, it will be sung by Madame Sherrington at all the concerts at which she appears during the present year. 2s. net.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

POPULAR BALLADS.
TIME WAS. By Lady ARTHUR HILL.
THE LITTLE ROSEBUD MAID. By Miss WAKEFIELD.
THE BEND OF THE RIVER. By BLUMENTHAL.
FAIREST CAUGHT. By LOUIS DIEHL.
MIGNONETTE. By SUCHET CHAMPION.
2s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

HOME THEY BROUGHT HER WARRIOR DEAD. Song. In E flat and G. By Miss M. LINDSAY. Post-free for 24 stamps, each key. Also arranged as a Pianoforte Solo, by J. W. Kuhe, for 24 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

RESIGNATION. Sacred Song. By Miss LINDSAY. In B flat and E flat. Post-free for 24 stamps, each key. Also arranged as a Pianoforte Solo, by Brinley Richards, for 18 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

TOO LATE. Sacred Song. By Miss M. LINDSAY. In E flat and F. Post-free for 24 stamps. Also as a Vocal Duet, 24 stamps; and as a Pianoforte Solo, by Brinley Richards, for 18 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

DON'T FORGET ME. Song. By CIRO PINSUTI. Post-free for 24 stamps. The popularity of this song continues unabated, and it justly ranks with his most successful compositions. Also arranged as a Pianoforte Solo, by Brinley Richards, for 18 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

THE WISHING CAP. Song. By W. F. WRIGHTON. "There is a charm about this song that will always carry an audience with it." Post-free for 24 stamps. Also arranged as a Pianoforte Solo, by Brinley Richards, for 18 stamps.—London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

FADING AWAY. Song. By ANNE FRICKER. Post-free for 24 stamps. "An evergreen among songs." Also as a Vocal Duet, 24 stamps; and as a Pianoforte Solo, for 18 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co.

THE BRIDGE. Song. By Miss LINDSAY. Post-free for 24 stamps. "A gem of the first water."—Vide "London Journal." Also as a Vocal Duet, for 24 stamps; and arranged for the Pianoforte, by Brinley Richards, post-free, 18 stamps.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

THE BUGLER. In D, F, and G. By CIRO PINSUTI. Words by F. E. Weatherly.
This very successful song has now reached the Tenth Edition.
B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster-row.

THE CHALLENGE. For Bass and Baritone. By HUMPHREY J. STARK. Words by E. Oxenford. A bold and vigorous composition, and received always by great applause and repeated encores.—WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster row.

A ROYAL EXCHANGE. ODOARDO BARRI. "A brilliant and effective song for vocalists in which charming music is united to a manly little story."—Review.—B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster-row.

WEIT VON DIR (Far from Thee). Waltz. By OSCAR SEYDEL. "When she went back to the ball-room, Captain Winstanley followed her, and claimed his waltz. The band was just striking up the latest German melody, 'Weit von Dir,' a strain of drawing tenderness."—Vide Miss Braddon's "Vixen." Each of the above 2s. net.
B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster-row.

PROVERBS IN SONGS. By WEATHERLY and ROECKEL.
No. 1. Two's Company .. .. .. .. 2s. net.
No. 2. A Bird in the hand .. .. .. 2s. net.
No. 3. When poverty knocks at the door .. 2s. net.
No. 4. The longest way round .. .. 2s. net.
ENOCH and SONS, 19, Holles-street, W.

MADAME CHRISTINE NILSSON'S NEW SONG.
A SONG OF THE NORTH. By LADY LINDSAY of Balcarras. Price 2s. net.
PATEY and WILLIS, Publishers, 20, Great Marlborough-street, W.

Just published,
L'INSTANT SUPRÊME VALSE. By the Hon. FITZROY HAY. Post-free, 24 stamps.
REID BROTHERS, 180, Oxford-street, London, W.

Just published,
GOOD-BYE. Song. By F. P. TOSTI (Composer of the popular song "For Ever and for Ever"). 4 keys. Net, 2s.—RICORDI, 265, Regent-street, W.

HAYDN'S KATZEN-BOURRÉE. For the Pianoforte. "The prettiest novelty of the season, and a perfect gem of musical composition."—Post-free, 18 stamps.
CERRY, 289, Oxford-street.

NEW MUSIC.

JOSEPH WILLIAMS'S LIST.
THE LATEST SUCCESS.
BILLEE TAYLOR. Comic Opera. By H. P. STEPHENS and E. SOLOMON.
VOCAL SCORE .. .. .. .. .. 6s. net.
SONGS.
ALL ON ACCOUNT OF ELIZA (Third Edition). 2s. net.
SELF-MADE KNIGHT (Second Edition). 2s. net.
THE VIRTUOUS GARDENER. 2s. net.
FANTASIA FOR PIANO. CH. TOURVILLE. 1s. 6d. net.

PIANO SCORE (Complete). 2s. 6d. net. Now ready.
*QUADRILLES. By CHARLES COOTE. 2s. net.
*LANCERS. By ARTHUR GRENVILLE. 2s. net.
*WALTZES. By CHARLES GODFREY. 2s. net.
DANCE MUSIC, BILLEE TAYLOR, ready. Orchestra, 2s.; septet, 1s. 6d.
* Beautifully Illustrated.

HENRY FARMER'S PIANOFORTE TUTOR, considerably Enlarged and Fingered by the Author. Fourth Edition. 4s.
"Including the best and most useful instruction book we have seen."—Musical Review.

THE LOVE OF OLD. ROECKEL'S charming New Song will be sung by Miss Damian at her forthcoming engagements. Post-free, 24 stamps.

PIANO DUETS.
C. REINECKE. Three Sonatas, Op. 150. Price 2s. each, net.

PIANO SOLOS.
W. KUHE. NEW SACRED TRANSCRIPTIONS.
Elt Costa; Nazman (Il Salta). Price 2s. each net.
TH. LACH. NEW PIECES.
Menuet. La Menuette. Bolero. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
H. FARMER. NEW DANCE PIECES.
Joyeuse Reunion, Fête à Trianon, Parfait Bonheur. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
FRANZ HITZ. NEW PIECES.
Caviteno (Caprice). Gain Rose, Le Regiment qui passe. Price 2s. 6d. each net.
JOYFUL MOMENTS. Ten Easy Pieces on Popular Subjects. Arranged by CH. TOURVILLE. Price 1s. each net.
OUR FAVOURITES. Ten Moderately Easy Pieces on Popular Subjects. Arranged by CH. TOURVILLE. Price 1s. 6d. each net.

THE PROGRESSIVE MUSIC SCHOOL.
Carefully Edited, Fingered, and Corrected from the Original Manuscripts by CH. TOURVILLE. First Series (very easy), 15 Numbers. Numbers 1 to 14, price 1s. 6d. each net. Number 15, price 1s. 6d. net.

VIOLIN AND PIANO DUETS.
S. JACOBY. Six Popular Airs (Easy). Price 1s. each net.
CH. TOURVILLE. Twelve Favourite Subjects (Moderate). Price 1s. 6d. each net.
H. FARMER. Popular Violin Solos (Brilliant), with Piano Accompaniment. Nine Numbers. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, Berners-street, W.; and 123, Cheapside, E.C.

SUNG BY ARTHUR ROBERTS.
THE GOOD YOUNG MAN WHO DIED.
An Æsthetic Lay. Words by H. P. Stephens; Music by E. SOLOMON. "If he has left this world for a brighter sphere, There's a neat little headstone o'er him. Telling how much we hold him dear; And he sleeps we deplore him; But that cannot tell how we miss his ways, Our friend, philosopher, and guide; For years to come we shall sing in praise Of the good young man who died." Post-free for 24 stamps.—London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, Berners-street; and 123, Cheapside.

PERFORMED AT
HER MAJESTY'S STATE BALL at Buckingham Palace.
LA BELLE LURETTE QUADRILLE. (Offenbach.)
DONNA JUANITA QUADRILLE. (Suppé.)
BILLEE TAYLOR QUADRILLE. (Solomon.)
Arranged by CHARLES COOTE, jun.
Price 2s. each net.
Septets, 1s. 6d. net; Full Orchestra, 2s. net.
London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS

NOVELLO'S ORIGINAL OCTAVO EDITION of OPERAS. Edited and Corrected according to the Original Scores by NATALIA MACFARREN and BERTHOLD TOURS. The English Translations by Natalia Macfarren and the Rev. J. Troutbeck, M.A., &c.

| | s. d. | | s. d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Fra Diavolo .. | 3 6 | Die Zauberflöte | 3 6 |
| Masaniello .. | 3 6 | Il Seraglio | 3 6 |
| Fidelio .. | 3 6 | Il Barbiere .. | 3 6 |
| Norma .. | 3 6 | Guillaume Tell .. | 5 0 |
| La Sonnambula .. | 3 6 | Il Trovatore .. | 3 6 |
| I Puritani .. | 3 6 | Rigoletto .. | 3 6 |
| Lucia di Lammermoor .. | 3 6 | La Traviata .. | 3 6 |
| Lucrezia Borgia .. | 3 6 | Ernani .. | 3 6 |
| La Figlia del Reggimento | 3 6 | Bohemian Maiden .. | 3 6 |
| Martha .. | 3 6 | Lohengrin .. | 3 6 |
| Barbiere di Siviglia .. | 3 6 | Flying Dutchman .. | 3 6 |
| Ifigenia in Tauris .. | 3 6 | Oberon .. | 3 6 |
| L'Ecole du Nord .. | 3 6 | Der Freischütz .. | 3 6 |
| Don Giovanni .. | 3 6 | Tannhäuser .. | 3 6 |
| Le Nozze di Figaro .. | 3 6 | (To be continued.) | |

London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners-street, W., and 80 and 81, Queen-street, E.C.

CHARLES HALLÉ'S PRACTICAL PIANOFORTE SCHOOL.
Section I.—No. 1, PIANOFORTE TUTOR.
Catalogue and all Particulars may be had from
FORSYTH BROTHERS, London, 272a, Regent-circus, Oxford-street; Manchester, Cross-street and South King-street; and all Musicsellers.

£20 SCHOOL-ROOM PIANO (Co-operative price for cash). Seven octaves—strong, sound, and substantial. Adapted for hard practice. Carefully packed free, and sent to any part. Drawings gratis.
THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street.

£35.—There is nothing in London—nor, in fact, in all England—to be compared to the elegantly carved DRAWING-ROOM TRICHORD COTTAGE PIANOFORTE, with Cabriole Truss Legs, which is sold for £35 by
THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, Portman-sq.

PLEYEL WOLFF and CO.'S PIANOS.
Every description of these celebrated Instruments for SALE or HIRE. Sole Agency, 170, New Bond-street, W.

PIANOFORTES for HIRE or for SALE, from 25 guineas upwards.—JOHN BROADWOOD and SONS, 33, Great Pulteney-street, Golden-square, W. Manufactory, 63, Horseferry-road, Westminster, W.

WEDDING and BIRTHDAY PRESENTS at RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly, London.
SETS FOR THE WRITING-TABLE AND BOUDOIR, IN POLISHED BRASS, ORMOLU, SEVRES CHINA, BRONZE, and OXIDIZED SILVER, from .. 21s. to £10
TRAVELLING DRESSING BAGS .. .. .. 63s. to £50
DRESSING CASES .. .. .. .. .. 21s. to £50
DESPATCH BOXES .. .. .. .. .. 21s. to £5
STATIONERS' WRITING CASES .. .. .. 42s. to £5
ENVELOPE CASES and BLOTTING BOOKS .. 10s. 6d. to £5
INKSTANDS .. .. .. .. .. .. 10s. 6d. to £5
CANDLESTICKS (per pair) .. .. .. .. 7s. 6d. to £5
WORK BOXES .. .. .. .. .. .. 15s. to £5
THE NEW "TANTALUS" LIQUEUR STAND .. 10s. to £10
THE "TANTALUS" SODA and BRANDY STAND, £2 12s. 6d.
And a large and choice assortment of ENGLISH, VIENNESE, and PARISIAN NOVELTIES, from 5s. to £5.

PORTRAIT ALBUMS at RODRIGUES', with Patent Leather Guards, 4s. 6d. to £5. Floral Albums, Scrap Albums, Presentation and Portraiture Albums.
Albums of every description made to order.—42, Piccadilly.

RODRIGUES' MONOGRAMS, ARMS, CORONET, CREST, and ADDRESS DIES
Engraved as Gems from Original and Artistic Designs.
NOTE-PAPER AND ENVELOPES, brilliantly Illuminated by hand in Gold, Silver, Bronze, and Colours.
BEST RELIEF STAMPING, any colour, 1s. per 100.
All the New and Fashionable Note Papers.
A VISITING CARD PLATE, elegantly Engraved, and 100 Superfine Cards printed, for 4s. 6d.
BALL PROGRAMMES, BILLS OF FARE, GUEST CARDS, WEDDING CARDS, and INVITATIONS in every variety.
HENRY RODRIGUES, 42, Piccadilly, London.

FOR FAMILY ARMS (Lincoln's-inn Heraldic Office) send Name and County. Sketch, 3s. 6d.; in colours, 7s. 6d. Arms Painted and Engraved on Seals, Dies, &c. PUGH BROTHERS, Great Turnstile, Lincoln's-inn, W.C.; and 76, Queen Victoria-street, E.C. Prize Medal, Paris, 1878.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—CARPETS.—NOW SELLING, TWO MANUFACTURERS' STOCKS, purchased for Cash under very advantageous circumstances. The Stocks comprise Brussels of the best quality and newest designs; Tapestry, Brussels, Kidderminster, and every description of Carpeting. All New Goods and this Year's Spring Patterns. Quotations would convey no adequate idea of their real cheapness. O. and Co. therefore respectfully solicit an early visit of inspection.—OETZMANN and CO.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.
SUBSTANTIAL ARTISTIC FURNITURE (Regd.)
OETZMANN & CO.,
HAMPSTEAD-ROAD,
NEAR TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.—OETZMANN and CO., 67, 69, 71, 73, 77 and 79, HAMPSTEAD-ROAD, near Tottenham-court-road, and Convent Factory, Alfred Mews, Drummond-street; Bedding Factory, Eagle-place, London, N.W. CARPETS, Furniture, Bedding, Drapery, Furnishing Ironmongery, China, Glass, Paper Hangings, Pictures, Bronzes, Clocks, Pianos, &c., and every other requisite for completely furnishing a house throughout. Lowest prices consistent with guaranteed quality.—OETZMANN and CO.

THE "CANTERBURY" EBONIZED CHIPPENDALE DRAWING-ROOM SUITE, SIXTEEN GUINEAS, consisting of a handsome Cabinet, with two bevelled plates in backs, and decorated panel on door; an Octagon Centre Table; Six Chairs and Two Arm-Chairs, with circular cushioned seats, covered in Silk Plush, Roman Satin, or Tapestry. Illustrations of this suite post-free on application.
OETZMANN and CO.

EARLY ENGLISH BRACKETS in BLACK and GOLD, or Walnut and Gold, with Decorated Panels, no. 9s.; Ebonised Chippendale Hanging Corner Whatnots, with four bevelled plates, 28s. 6d.; Richly Decorated Early English Bracket Grandole, 3ft. high, with plate-glass back, 37s. 6d.; and a large variety of Decorative Furnishing Items on view in the Show-Rooms. Illustrations post-free.—OETZMANN and CO.

THE NEW "CYPRUS" CURTAINS, 3 yards long by 50 inches wide, 15s. per pair; 3½ yards, 17s. 6d.; 4 yards, 20s.; best Woollen Damask Curtains, in green, crimson, or any self colour plaited top, bordered with best embroidered silk lace, 3 yards long by 61 inches wide, 25s. per pair; 3½ yards, 30s.; 4 yards, 35s.; best rep ditto, 3 yards by 56 inches wide, 25s.; 3½ yards 30s.; 4 yards, 35s. 6d. Forwarded same day on receipt of order. One trial will ensure recommendation. No common damasks or rep used, sold, or advised. Descriptive Lists post-free.—OETZMANN and CO.

TABLE LAMPS.—OETZMANN and CO. A large assortment of Table, Reading, and other Lamps for the present Season, in Bronze, Brass, Ormolu, Terra-Cotta, Royal Dresden, and other China, of the newest designs, in great variety, fitted with the improved Duplex Silber, Student, and other burners. Patent Duplex Lamp complete, 10s. 6d.; handsome ditto, from 18s. 6d. to 9 guineas.—OETZMANN and CO.

POSTAL ORDER DEPARTMENT. OETZMANN and CO.—Orders sent per post, whether large or small, receive prompt and careful attention. Those residing at a distance, or any to whom a personal visit would be inconvenient, desirous of leaving the selection to the firm, may rely upon a faithful attention to their wishes and interests in the selection. This department is personally supervised by a member of the firm, and O. and Co. continually receive numerous letters expressing the greatest satisfaction with the execution of orders so entrusted. Parties residing in Foreign Countries and the Colonies will find great advantages by entrusting their orders to O. and CO. For further particulars, please see page 379 in Catalogue, sent free on application.—OETZMANN and CO.

DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE, post-free.
OETZMANN & CO.,
HAMPSTEAD-ROAD.

HEAL and SON
have added
SITTING-ROOM FURNITURE
to their very large Stock of
BED-ROOM FURNITURE.
A Catalogue of Bed-Room Furniture, with 600 Designs, sent free by post.
HEAL and SON,
196 to 198, TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD, LONDON, W.

GARDNER'S DINNER and TABLE GLASS SERVICES. Fine, graceful, and original designs, of unequalled value. Dinner Services, from 72s. Table Glass Services, of the best Crystal, for twelve persons, complete, 65s. Cash discount, 5 per cent. Coloured Photographic Sheets and Illustrated Glass Catalogues post-free
453 and 456, West Strand, Charing-cross.

ELKINGTON and CO.,
MANUFACTURING SILVERSMITHS,
PATENTEES OF THE ELECTRO-PLATE.

ELKINGTON and CO.
CAUTION PURCHASERS AGAINST CHEAP AND INFERIOR IMITATIONS.
Illustrated Catalogues, post-free.
ELKINGTON and CO., 22, Regent-st., or 42, Moorgate-st., City.

D. HULETT.—GASELIERS in CRYSTAL GLASS and ORMOLU or BRONZE. Medieval Fittings. A large Stock always on View. Every article marked with plain figures.—Manufactory, 55 and 56, High Holborn.

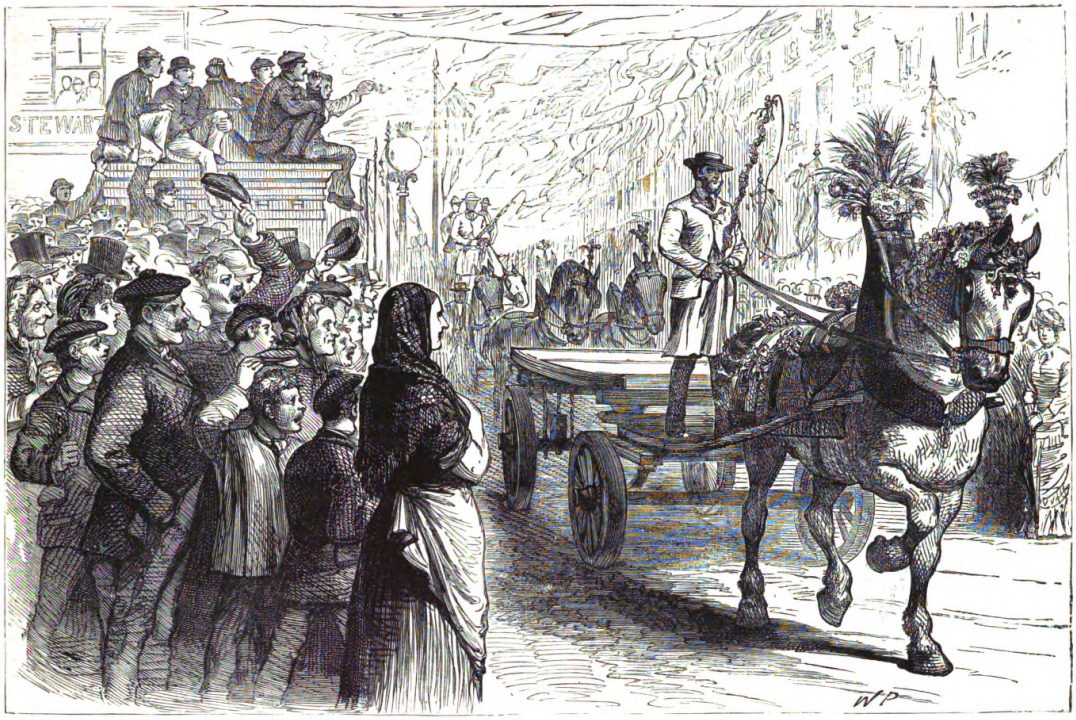
THE FINEST WATCHES MADE. SEWILL'S KEYLESS WATCHES, Prize Medals, London, Paris, and Philadelphia. Damp and Dust-proof, in Crystal cases, adjusted and compensated for all climates, £6 10s., £14 14s., and £25; Ladies', £7 7s., £10 10s., and £18 18s.; in silver cases, for Ladies or Gentlemen, £5 5s., £6 6s., and £8 8s. Forwarded on receipt of remittance.—J. Sewill, 20, Cornhill, London; and 91, South Castle-street, Liverpool. Illustrated Catalogue free.

WALKER'S CRYSTAL CASE WATCHES are superseding all others. Prize Medals—London, 1862; Paris, 1867. Silver Watches, from £4 4s.; Gold, from £6 6s. Price Lists sent free.—7, Cornhill; 220, Regent-street; and 76, Strand.

FOR SOUTH AFRICA.—How to get rid of your Bric-a-brac, clothes, jewels, furniture, antique lace, old gold teeth plates, &c. Why send them by the most respectable purchasers, who pay you ready money 14 days after taking them away.—Mr. and Mrs. PHILLIPS, Old Curiosity Shop, 31, Thayer-street, Manchester-square, London, W.

DIAMONDS. SAPPHIRES. CATS'-EYES. OPALS. EMERALDS.
Mr. STREETER, 18, New Bond-street, W.
INTRODUCER of 18-CARAT GOLD JEWELLERY and ENGLISH LEVER WATCHES, (MACHINE-MADE.)
BRANCH ESTABLISHMENT, COLOMBO, CEYLON.

London: Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LEIGHTON, 198, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY, JUNE 18, 1881.



THE GEORGE STEPHENSON CENTENARY AT NEWCASTLE-ON-TYNE: PROCESSION OF DRAUGHT HORSES, WAGGONS, ETC.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

SCENE FROM "MICHAEL STROGOFF," AT THE ADELPHI THEATRE.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

THE GEORGE STEPHENSON CENTENARY AT NEWCASTLE.

The celebration, on Wednesday week, of the hundredth anniversary of George Stephenson's birthday, in anticipation of which an Illustrated Memoir of the author of railways was published with this Journal on the 4th inst., took place at Newcastle-on-Tyne, according to previous arrangement.

The town was abundantly decorated for this occasion, by Messrs. J. Defrics and Son, of London, and partly by Messrs. Womersley and Co., of Leeds. Above 400 tall Venetian masts, covered with red cloth, and surmounted by gilt spear-heads, each supporting a trophy of flags, were ranged along the principal streets; and there was a grand show of banners and a variety of garlands, ornamental mottoes, wreaths of foliage, and floral decorations, on the fronts of the houses and shops. The Grey column, which was erected in honour of Earl Grey, the Reform Bill Minister of 1832, had affixed to its base an inscription bearing the name of George Stephenson, accompanied by those of Hedley, Blenkinsop, Trevithick, and others who preceded him in attempts to contrive the locomotive engine. The monument or statue of George Stephenson, by the sculptor Lough, in Neville-street, was adorned with a tasteful arrangement of plants and flowers. The High Level Bridge, of which we gave an Illustration last week, the Central Railway Station, and the Townhall of Newcastle, were handsomely decorated with appropriate festive designs.

The town was early filled with thousands of holiday people, and with visitors from other places of Northumberland, Durham, and North Yorkshire. The first notable exhibition of the day was the procession of modern railway engines, which started from the Central Station to Street House, Wylam, George Stephenson's birthplace, shortly after eight o'clock. The engines which took part in this procession were:—

1. No. 363, furnished by the North-Eastern Railway Company, built by the company at Gateshead, express passenger engine on six wheels—four wheels coupled, 7 ft. diameter; diameter of cylinders, 1 ft. 5½ in.; length of stroke, 2 ft.; E. Fletcher, engineer.

2. No. 493 (Netherby), furnished by the North British Railway Company, built by the company at Cowlairs Works; bogie passenger engine on eight wheels—four wheels coupled, 6 ft. 6 in. diameter; diameter of cylinders, 1 ft. 6 in.; length of stroke, 2 ft. 2 in.; D. Drummond, engineer.

3. No. 619 (Mabel), furnished by the London and North-Western Railway Company, built by the company; standard main-line passenger engine on six wheels—four wheels coupled, 6 ft. 6 in. diameter; diameter of cylinders, 1 ft. 5 in.; length of stroke, 2 ft.; F. W. Webb, engineer.

4. No. 1521, furnished by the Midland Railway Company; built by Messrs. Neilson and Co., Glasgow; express passenger engine on six wheels—four wheels coupled, 6 ft. 9 in. diameter; diameter of cylinders, 1 ft. 6 in.; length of stroke, 2 ft. 2 in.; S. W. Johnson, engineer.

5. No. 664, furnished by the Great Northern Railway Company; built by the company; bogie passenger engine on eight wheels—driving-wheels, 8 ft. diameter; diameter of cylinders, 1 ft. 6 in.; length of stroke, 2 ft. 4 in.; P. Stirling, engineer.

6. No. 653, furnished by the Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway Company; built by Messrs. Sharp, Stewart, and Co., Manchester; bogie passenger engine on eight wheels—four wheels coupled, 6 ft. diameter; diameter of cylinders, 1 ft. 5½ in.; length of stroke, 2 ft. 2 in.; W. B. Wright, engineer.

7. No. 1268, furnished by the North-Eastern Railway Company, built by the company at North-road, Darlington; express passenger engine on six wheels—four wheels coupled, 7 ft. diameter; diameter of cylinders, 1 ft. 5 in.; length of stroke, 2 ft. 2 in.; E. Fletcher, engineer.

8. No. 329 (Stephenson), furnished by the London, Brighton, and South Coast Company, built by them at Brighton Works; express passenger engine on six wheels—driving-wheels (single), 6 ft. 6 in. diameter; diameter of cylinders, 1 ft. 5 in.; length of stroke, 2 ft.; length of boiler, 10 ft. 2 in.; diameter ditto, 4 ft. 3 in.; length of fire-box, 5 ft. 8½ in. outside; breadth of ditto, 1 ft. 1 in. ditto; W. Stroudley, engineer.

9. No. 1066, furnished by North-Eastern Railway Company, built by the company at Gateshead; bogie tank passenger engine on eight wheels—four wheels coupled, 5 ft. 6 in. diameter; diameter of cylinders, 1 ft. 5 in.; length of stroke, 1 ft. 10 in.; E. Fletcher, engineer.

10. No. 313, furnished by Lancashire and Yorkshire Company, built by same company; goods engine on six wheels, all coupled, 4 ft. 6 in. diameter; diameter of cylinders, 1 ft. 5½ in.; length of stroke, 2 ft. 2 in.; W. B. Wright, engineer.

11. No. 1451, furnished by Midland Railway Company, built by Messrs. R. Stephenson and Co., Newcastle; main line goods engine on six wheels, all coupled, 5 ft. 2½ in. diameter; diameter of cylinders, 1 ft. 5½ in.; length of stroke, 2 ft. 2 in.; S. W. Johnson, engineer.

12. No. 626, furnished by North-Eastern Railway Company, built by North-Eastern Railway Company, North-road, Darlington; goods engine on six wheels, all coupled, 5 ft. 6 in. diameter; diameter of cylinders, 1 ft. 5 in.; length of stroke, 2 ft. 2 in.; E. Fletcher, engineer.

13. No. 484, furnished by the North-Eastern Railway Company, built by the company at Gateshead; express goods engine on six wheels, all coupled, 3 ft. diameter; diameter of cylinders, 1 ft. 5 in.; length of stroke, 2 ft.; E. Fletcher, engineer.

14. No. 247, furnished by Lancashire and Yorkshire Railway Company, built by Messrs. Kitson and Co., Leeds; goods tank engine on eight wheels, six wheels coupled, 5 ft. 1 in. diameter; diameter of cylinders, 1 ft. 5½ in.; length of stroke, 2 ft. 2 in.; W. B. Wright, engineer.

15. No. 1455, furnished by North-Eastern Railway Company, built by R. and W. Hawthorn, Newcastle; bogie passenger engine on eight wheels, four wheels coupled, 5 ft. diameter; diameter of cylinders, 1 ft. 4 in.; length of stroke, 1 ft. 8 in.; E. Fletcher, engineer.

16. Locomotive furnished by London and North-Western Railway Company, built by Grand Junction Railway Company, 1812; passenger engine; outside cylinders, 1 ft. 3½ in. diameter; stroke, 1 ft. 10 in.; single driving wheels, 6 ft. diameter; leading and trailing wheels, 3 ft. 6 in. diameter; this engine has a six-wheel tender; specially constructed with tank under couple floor; F. W. Webb, engineer.

The procession was witnessed by large crowds of people, who cheered it along the entire route. The engines were linked together and ran thus on to Wylam, eight miles from the town. They were there placed for exhibition together with the five old original locomotives, which were the Killingworth engine (the first that Stephenson ever made), the Hetton Colliery engine, the old Darlington engine, No. 1 Locomotive from Darlington, and the "Victor" from the North-Eastern Railway. A special train followed, carrying the Mayors of Newcastle and neighbouring towns, with other members of the municipal corporations, and persons of local distinction. On reaching Wylam the train slowed until it came opposite the house where Stephenson was born, when it stopped to allow the occupants of the train to inspect the old place. Here the Mayor of Newcastle and his friends alighted, and in commemoration of the event an oak-tree was planted by his Worship the Mayor. The return journey was then made, and upon reaching Newcastle the typical engines were shunted into a siding for public inspection during the remainder of the day. The next event was a monster procession of draught horses, gaily caparisoned, with carts and lorries, and prizes were awarded for those best groomed and most tastefully decorated. Prizes were also given by the Mayor for the best decorated locomotive engine in the procession from the central railway station.

A representative procession, consisting of the members of the Corporations of Newcastle, Gateshead, Jarrow, and South Shields, the foreign Consuls, various public bodies, friendly and benefit societies, trade councils, and workmen connected with the different workshops and factories of the district, together with the miners of Northumberland and Durham, paraded the streets at noon, the numbers in this procession being estimated at upwards of 40,000. The procession was divided into halves, each taking a separate route from the Central Railway Station to the Town-moor, where three platforms were provided for speaking purposes. Each portion occupied upwards of three hours in passing a given point. The streets were crowded, and, viewed from the balconies and windows, presented a spectacle which has never been equalled in the district. The platforms on the Town-moor were occupied by the various trade representatives, who delivered addresses appropriate to the occasion. Resolutions extolling the genius of Stephenson and the beneficial results of his work, and pledging the meeting to support the erection of a Stephenson College, were carried amidst great acclamations.

At an earlier hour of the morning a public breakfast was held in the Bath-lane School-room, under the presidency of Mr. Joseph Cowen, M.P., when a Stephenson Scholarship Fund was established. The scholarships will be of a threefold character—the Stephenson University Exhibition, open to any candidates in the counties of Northumberland and Durham, under twenty-one years of age; the Stephenson Engineering Exhibition, open to any candidate of sufficient merit, not more than nineteen years of age, attending any science school or class in Northumberland or Durham; and the Stephenson Science and Art Scholarship, open to any scholars from the public elementary schools of Northumberland and Durham who have passed the sixth standard. It is proposed to establish three of these latter scholarships for the children of agriculturists; three for the children of miners; and four for the children of mechanics and engineers. The scheme was launched this morning under most promising auspices, and it is likely to be carried through with great energy. In addition to this memorial of the day, a scheme is on foot to raise £20,000 to erect a new building for the School of Physical Science in the town.

The proceedings concluded in the evening with a banquet in the Westgate Assembly Rooms, at which the Mayor of Newcastle presided. There was also a popular fête in the Leazes Park, and an exhibition of models of engines, relics of Stephenson, foreign orders, letters, and pictures in the Literary and Philosophical Society's Library and Lecture Room. At ten o'clock at night there was a display of fireworks.

At Chesterfield, where George Stephenson resided in the latter part of his life, the centenary of his birth was commemorated, as well as at Newcastle. There was a procession, a special choral service in the church, a banquet, a concert, and a display of fireworks in the evening. At the Crystal Palace an exhibition of models of important railway appliances was opened in aid of the funds of the Railway Orphanage at Derby. At Rome the centenary was celebrated by the unveiling of a memorial slab at the railway station, the English Ambassador, Sir Augustus Paget, taking part in the proceedings; and several of the Berlin papers published long articles referring to this event.

THE LATE SIR W. M. JAMES.

We had to announce last week the death of this esteemed Judge of the Court of Appeal, whose portrait appears in the present number of our Journal. Sir William Milbourne James was the son of Christopher James, Esq., of Swansea, by Anne, daughter of Mr. Williams, of Merthyr Tydvil. He was born in 1807, was educated at the University of Glasgow, was called to the Bar at Lincoln's Inn in June, 1831; appointed a Queen's Counsel, 1853; married, in 1846, Maria, daughter of the late Right Rev. Dr. Otter, Bishop of Chichester; was Vice-Chancellor of County Palatine of Lancaster from January, 1853, to January, 1869, when he became one of the Vice-Chancellors of England, and was on that occasion knighted; was appointed a judge of the Court of Appeal in Chancery (now of the High Court of Judicature) in June, 1870, and was then added to the Privy Council. Sir William James is described in a letter recently published by Sir Laurence Peel, formerly Chief Justice of Calcutta, and a judicial member of the Privy Council, as one of the best of many great Judges who have sat on the Bench in his time. At the sitting of the Court of Appeal, on Tuesday, the Lord Chief Justice and Mr. Baron Bramwell spoke of the deceased Judge in the highest terms of esteem, and so did the Master of the Rolls, in the Chancery Division.

"MICHAEL STROGOFF."

THE SPECIAL CORRESPONDENTS IN TROUBLE.

The career of the play of "Michael Strogoff" on the English stage promises to be as fitful and contradictory as that of its gifted and imaginative author. It possesses the corklike capacity of bobbing up when everyone considered it was about to sink; and the announcement that it would be withdrawn from the Adelphi was followed by a rush to see the play greater than on its first production. According to his own story, Jules Verne was not born a writer of boys' books and exciting adventure, but a dramatist pure and simple. The world thought otherwise. They would not have his plays; but they greedily devoured his romances, steeped and saturated as they were with the fascination of the unreal and the poetry of progress. Wherever Jules Verne led the way, the lads followed him—under the sea, up in a balloon, round the wide world in eighty days, from one end of Russia to the other with the Courier of the Czar. An acute manager of a Parisian playhouse coincided with the idea of the original production of the author, considered him a neglected dramatist, and introduced him to old D'Ennery, the constructor of innumerable successful melodramas. The partnership was successful; and so it came about that "Round the World in Eighty Days" and "Michael Strogoff," originally written for the stage, came back to it after running through countless editions as works of fiction. To start at a fixed point, with a view to get at another fixed point, and to meet with countless adventures in the way, is the very essence of dramatic excitement. The audience knows perfectly well that the feat will be accomplished, but desires to know how it will be done. This is what made a success of the adventure of the enterprising gentleman who wagered that he would put a girdle round the world in eighty days, Greenwich time; and this is why Michael Strogoff, the faithful Russian soldier, became a hero of romance.

The thing to be done is to carry a message of vital importance to the commander of an army in a beleaguered city. The matter is one of life and death; there are no means of getting at the imprisoned commander, except by personal bravery and enterprise; the telegraph wires are cut by the Tartars, and in this predicament what is to be done? Up starts a young Russian courier, one Michael Strogoff, and undertakes the mission, not for reward or military glory, only "For God, my country, and the Czar." This is surely an excellent starting-point for novel or drama. It is the very inspiration of the excitement that must never end, but is always to be "continued in our next." So Michael Strogoff becomes a kind of practical example of the hero of Longfellow's "Excelsior." He is always mounting higher and higher. Old men as he passes call upon him to "beware the awful avalanche;" young maidens beg him "to stay and rest" his manly head upon "their breast;" but on goes Michael Strogoff with undaunted persistency, though lashed on the face by a cowardly villain, taunted with ingratitude and cowardice by his own mother, through battle-fields and burning cities, suffering the torture of his eyes being put out, and recovering the shock the next day, in danger of perils and sieges, until he at last defeats his old enemy in a hand-to-hand combat, and keeps his word to the very letter before the curtain falls. But no drama of the kind can possibly hope for success without a strong comic interest. An Adelphi drama of the most harrowing kind would be nothing without a low or comic comedian. This ingredient has been very cleverly supplied by Mr. Henry J. Byron, who himself enacts an English special correspondent, as cool as the traditional cucumber, and accompanied by a foil in a perky and jerky little Frenchman, cleverly acted by Mr. F. W. Irish. These two comedians supply the necessary intervals of fun; they react upon the play and upon one another just as Wright and Paul Bedford, and later on as Toole and Paul Bedford used to do. No one can utter Mr. Byron's jests so well as Mr. Byron himself; he is so delightfully cool and self-possessed; and one of the funniest, because the most outrageous, scenes of the play is where the special correspondents are saved from death by the intrepidity of the Englishman, who cracks cockney jests with the Emir of Bokhara. This is the scene delineated in our Illustration. The production of "Michael Strogoff" at the Adelphi will be remembered by the accident that occurred to Mr. Charles Warner during a dagger fight in the last act, whereby that impulsive young actor has unfortunately lost the use of one of his fingers.

PERSECUTION OF THE JEWS IN RUSSIA.

We give another Illustration of the distressing scenes lately witnessed at Kiev, in Southern Russia, following similar occurrences at Elisabethgrad, in the province of Kherson, where the Jews have been cruelly attacked by a furious and rapacious mob; and some outrages of the same kind have also taken place at Odessa.

Kiev is an administrative city, containing 95,000 inhabitants, and has a powerful garrison and a strong police force. The outbreak took the authorities by surprise. Commencing on May 4 (St. George's Day in Russia, and a holiday) with an attack on the bazaar, it lasted four days without intermission, and continued fitfully afterwards. The work of destruction was done by no single mob, but by bands of thirty to a hundred men, mostly under the age of thirty, and armed with choppers, hammers, and bludgeons. Their proceedings were watched by large crowds of spectators, and it was difficult to distinguish the rioters from the well-disposed public. According to the Kiev correspondence of the Moscow Gazette, these bands seemed to have been under the control of some organisation. A crowd of people would be promenading a thoroughfare. Suddenly a whistle would be heard, and in a moment men would issue from the crowd and form themselves into a band, and an attack would be made upon a house. When the work of destruction was over, another whistle would be heard, and the band would then disperse and mingle with the crowd again. Nearly all the largest and finest shops in Kiev and the principal storehouses in the bazaar belonged to the Jews. None were left unmolested. Warehouses were opened and sacks of flour poured out into the streets; teashops were entered, and the chests of tea emptied into the gutter; jewellers' shops were broken open, and gold watches and all manner of jewellery thrown by handfuls among the crowd. At one place a Cossack officer interposed to save a shop. Some of the rioters began to leave the premises, when a whistle was heard, and a stone struck the officer. Directly afterwards, such a shower of missiles fell about him that he had to run for his life. Everywhere cries and groans and shrieks were heard. The city looked as though it were given over to pillage; the streets were littered with broken furniture, goods of every description, and articles of clothing, among which carriages passed slowly, carrying away fugitive Jews and their property. In the best part of the town—the Krestchatikar—troops were drawn up, and crowds of officers were visible. A band of one hundred rioters advanced close to these and commenced pulling a house to pieces. At the end of ten minutes the infantry marched against them and dispersed the mob. Half an hour later another band approached the troops again, and under their very eyes destroyed the magnificent mansion belonging to the millionaire Brodsky, in the Vladimir-street. The fine collections of old china and bronze were pitched into the street and destroyed, and the rioters had time even to play a razetchka on the grand piano before the military marched to interfere. The Governor, General Drenteln, betrayed great want of firmness throughout. The authorities seemed paralysed. After allowing the riots to continue three days, they made a display of vigour on the fourth, when they surrounded a house and captured fifteen Nihilist printers' proclamations. On the fifth day cannon were placed in the principal streets, and the military began to fire on the crowds. The police also began to exert themselves, and 1400 people were arrested. On the seventh day the riots were reported at an end. Fifteen thousand troops had then arrived at Kiev from various points to protect the city.

The total number of people arrested at Kiev was 1783, including seventy-three women, and afterwards gangs of prisoners continued daily to arrive from the outlying districts, being driven in by Cossacks. From one village alone, Aboukova, on the estate of Prince Gortschakoff, 109 peasants were driven in and cast into prison. The prisoners were so numerous that the authorities were at their wits' end to know what to do with them. Many were incarcerated in the fortifications. The number of persons killed was six, three Jews and three Russians; 187 persons were injured, including three Cossacks, three soldiers, two gendarmes, and nine women. One man had his head split open by a sewing-machine, which his fellow-rioters recklessly threw out of a top-story window. Bloody headed as he was, he refused to go to the hospital, and continued wrecking the Jews' property till loss of blood compelled him from sheer exhaustion to desist. More than 500 shops and 500 houses were looted. Upwards of 20,000 Jews fled from Kiev to Berditcheff. The Jews there armed themselves and marched to the station to defend the fugitives from attack. When the latter arrived the Jews so largely outnumbered the Russians that the latter thought it wiser to keep quiet. Three thousand families remaining behind at Kiev were placed for shelter in the Arsenal, but it is not to the credit of the Russian authorities that for forty-eight hours they were without medical succour or food. In the end some compassionate Russians exerted themselves, and subscriptions were freely given by the educated classes to furnish them with the necessaries of life.

The Dublin Gazette notifies that the Earl of Bandon has been chosen to sit in the House of Lords as representative peer for Ireland, in the room of Lord Dunboyne, deceased.

With reference to our notice last week of the tunnel under the river Mersey between Liverpool and Birkenhead, Mr. A. A. De Metz wishes to state that the original Act was passed in the Session of 1866—not in 1868; and that Messrs. Robertson Gladstone (elder brother of the Premier); Harold Littledale, a member of the Mersey Docks and Harbour Board; Edward Laurence, Mayor of Liverpool in 1865; Edward Stewart Jones, shipowner; and Mr. De Metz himself, were the directors named in that Act. In the Session of 1871 the same directors, with the assistance of Mr. Gill, solicitor; Mr. Bell, Parliamentary agent; and the late Mr. Tolmé, engineer, obtained an Act for extensions and deviations of their authorised line.

Extra Supplement.

AN ALBANIAN NIGHT ENTERTAINMENT DURING RAMAZAN.

The Mohammedan Lent, or Ramazan, is observed with strictness by the Skipetars of Albania, fasting religiously from sunrise to sunset of each day. But when the evening signal-gun has been fired, at Scutari, and the Muezzin has chanted from the minaret his solemn summons to vesper prayers, these devout and valiant Moslem warriors bethink themselves of breakfast, and of something more. They meet in festive company, to kill the hours of night with music and singing, as well as eating and coffee drinking.

Our Artist, Mr. R. C. Woodville, who was in Northern Albania last year, has chosen for his subject the occasion of an entertainment given by a noted Mohammedan Agha. The interior of the room here depicted is typical of the style of chamber in the houses of that class at Scutari. It is the reception-room of the head of the house, on the side of the building opposite to the chambers of the women. The room is square and lofty; the walls and ceiling are panelled with wood, carved in many a grotesque device. On the floor are carpets of bright contrasting colours, and of strange Oriental patterns; all round the room run divans, covered with crimson cloth. Here and there, in the carved panelling of the walls, are hidden the doors of the cupboards that contain some of the gold-embroidered garments and draperies of the household; and every corner of the room is taken up with quaint carved recesses, in which are placed glasses, coffee-cups, and cigarettes ready for the guests. Above the cupboards, and all round the room, runs a shelf, which holds the glass and cups that are only used on great occasions. One side of this shelf is occupied by a collection of common English blue willow-pattern plates; but the shelf on the opposite wall holds thirty or forty decanters of coloured Venetian glass, which are seldom removed from their retreat, being seemingly more for ornament than use. The shelf over the door supports a dozen pewter dishes of all sizes, from the family plate, large enough for the shield of Achilles, to the small platter, for individual use. Under the willow-pattern plates hang the Agha's arms. A Martini-Peabody breechloader, an Austrian rifle, a double-barrelled shot gun, a long silver-mounted "puska," a Gasser revolver, two chased silver flint-lock pistols, a splendid "handjar," a Turkish scimetar, and two long leather belts full of Martini cartridges, make a very warlike show. These arms are all kept and cleaned with that pride in his weapons which is a great characteristic of the Skipetar. To the right hand of the picture is the hearth, a curious piece of workmanship, ornamented with quaint patterns, and giving an ecclesiastical air to that side of the room.

On the left-hand side are the musicians, playing the wire-stringed mandolin of Albania, a violin, and a tambourine. The singer sits cross-legged on the floor, chanting one of their monotonous wailing songs, either of love or war, and shading his face with his hands, as all Skipetars, whether professional or amateur, do when they sing. To-night the talent is all professional, and the brave chiefs sit in a solemn circle upon the divans, each holding in his hands the long white staff that symbolises the need they have of support during the long month of fasting. Cigarettes in plenty are placed before each guest, while coffee, sugared in honour of the visitors, is handed round by a young relation of the Agha. All through the evening coffee is brought in at short intervals, and the amount one has to drink at these parties is something overwhelming. A kind of pink syrup is also in favour; and a horrible and bitter decoction, made of juniper berries soaked in water, is given to the guest as a drink of the choicest brand.

Foreigners in Albania, who visit the Skipetars, are usually made much of, and are treated as honoured guests. At the end of Ramazan, no party was complete or thoroughly fashionable that did not include our artist and correspondent. These entertainments in Ramazan last about five hours: being kept up till an hour after midnight, when the family prepare for the great meal of the night. The room is crowded with boys and chiefs, sitting cross-legged on the divans; the retainers and servants sitting on the floor at the lower end of the room. In Scutari the spirit of fanaticism is dying out, and Christians are readily admitted to these Mohammedan entertainments. Indeed, one of the musicians and the favourite singer are both Christians, and they visit at the houses of the boys, to assist at all the festivals of religion. The Skipetars, like the English, "take their pleasures sadly," and no one would imagine, to see the grave faces of the chiefs, that they were celebrating a night of feasting after a day of fasting.

JACOB'S WELL, IN PALESTINE.

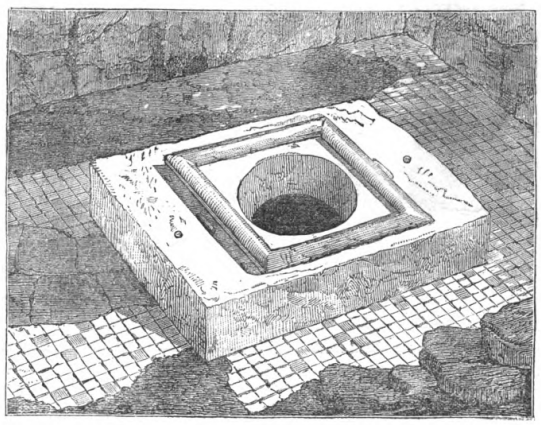
We are favoured by Mr. James Fergusson, F.R.S., with an interesting communication that he has received from Mr. Charles Wright Barclay, dated May 16, at Damascus, relating to what seems to be an important discovery concerning a point of Biblical archæology and topography, which has often been discussed. The accompanying Illustration is from a drawing by Mr. Barclay, who writes describing the subject as follows:—

"Many tourists in Palestine of late years have visited that deeply interesting spot, near Nablous, known as "Jacob's Well." Some of them have perhaps been much disappointed at finding but little semblance of a well; but little to recall to mind the scene, so graphically described by the Evangelist, of Our Lord's interview with the woman of Samaria. You approach the spot through a waste place incumbered with ruined walls and scattered masses of masonry, the remains of a church destroyed so long ago as the twelfth century, and said to have been erected in the fourth century of the Christian era. A series of vaults, upon which the church once stood, are still in tolerable preservation. Through a wide gap in the roof of one of these vaulted chambers you look down, and, amidst confused heaps of earth and stones, you see a dark, irregular opening, barely two feet wide. This it is which has long been looked upon as the true mouth of Jacob's well. It has been reverenced by travellers without number, who little dreamt that, hidden beneath the débris, scarcely four feet distant, was the true opening of the well. This is marked, to the present day, with grooves made by the ropes by which the water-pots were actually drawn up.

"A fortnight ago (Mr. Barclay proceeds to say) my wife and I were examining the spot, feeling somewhat keenly the disappointment that naturally arises, as one reads the fourth chapter of St. John, at being able so little to picture before us the spot as it must have been at that time. A few feet from the opening we noticed a dark crack, perhaps an inch wide, and, fancying it might be another aperture, we removed several stones and cleared away some earth, when we were able to distinguish part of a curved hole. Interested at finding this, we removed a number more stones, scraped the earth aside, and soon found a round opening in a large stone; but this was stopped up by an immense block, which had apparently been thrust into it. Calling to aid two men, our united efforts at length succeeded in dislodging it, and the mouth of the well was clear. It is impossible to describe the feelings with which we gazed down the opening that had been so long closed, and felt that we were sitting indeed on that same ledge on which the Saviour rested.

"We determined to devote the next day to the completion of the work we had begun, and, with the aid of three men, excavated completely round the well, and laid bare the sides formed of regular masonry.

"It is to be hoped that so intensely interesting a relic may remain uninjured, now that it has been exposed to light; and that no act of Vandalism, such as has ruined many a monument of antiquity, will disgrace any future traveller through the Holy Land."



JACOB'S WELL, NEAR NABLOUS, PALESTINE.

THE IRISH LAND LEAGUE AGITATION.

"A Sheriff's Sale of Cattle for the Payment of Rent" is the subject of our Special Artist's drawing, which supplies the large Engraving that fills two pages of this week's Supplement. These proceedings have, during the past few months, been frequently attended with scenes of turbulence and riot. In many instances, as here, no auctioneer can be found who will dare to officiate, and the sheriff or sub-sheriff then has to mount the cart, which is placed in the market-square, in the pound, or in the court-yard of an hotel, according to convenience, or for safety against violent interruption. Several gentlemen, members of the "Emergency Committee" or friends of the landlord, attend to protect his interests, and stand ready to buy in the cattle if no bidders are forthcoming. The only response from the crowd, as each lot is offered for sale, seems to be the repeated outburst of furious yells, threats, and curses, unless it should have been arranged to buy in for the tenant, under the direction of local managers of the Land League. They assemble and march in procession to the place, with a band of music and banners; and, if they get possession of the cattle, will parade them, decorated with the Irish national colours, through the streets of the town. It more commonly happens, however, that the "Emergency men" gain the victory, though not without much cost. Three of this committee, in our artist's drawing, are shown in the foreground standing beside the shafts of the cart; to the left are the cattle, defended by a line of policemen keeping back the mob; while to the right, with the officer of police behind the cart, is a detachment of dragoons, in readiness to aid the guardians of the peace if they should be attacked. A Land League meeting will afterwards be held, at which speeches will be made denouncing the whole class of landlords, and all those engaged in the administration of the law.

The return of the agrarian outrages committed in Ireland which were reported to the Inspector-General of the Royal Irish Constabulary during the month of May shows the total number of outrages to have been 337. They are classified as follows:—Murder, 3; firing at the person, 5; assault on police, 7; aggravated assault, 14; assault endangering life, 2; assaults on bailiffs and process-servers, 6; cutting or maiming the person, 3; incendiary fire and arson, 24; burglary and robbery, 6; taking and holding forcible possession, 8; killing, cutting, or maiming cattle, 15; demand or robbery of arms, 1; riots and affrays, 10; administering unlawful oaths, 7; intimidation—by threatening letters or notices, 140; otherwise, 36; attacking houses, 11; resistance to legal process, 3; injury to property, 31; firing into dwellings, 5. The total number of outrages reported in the return for March was 146, and in that for April 295.

From King's County, and from other parts of Ireland, further reports have been received of house-burnings, shootings, fence-breakings, and other outrages, the victims in most of the cases being farmers who had paid their rents.

Mr. Joyce, secretary to the Kilmallock Land League, was arrested this week and lodged in the County Limerick Gaol as a suspect, under the Coercion Act. The charge against Mr. Joyce is having written an alleged threatening notice in reference to the surrendering of a certain farm. The total number of persons now detained in prison without trial, under the Coercion Act, is 110, of whom 49 are in Kilmainham Gaol, Dublin.

The Dublin Gazette of Monday evening contained proclamations by the Lord Lieutenant declaring illegal and criminal such assemblages as might be held at Carlow, Kilcronin, county Louth, Conrath, county Meath, and Keadue, county Roscommon, on occasions of the carrying out of the process of the law. A meeting at Mills-street, county Cork, intended to be held next day, was also prohibited, and other meetings at Nenagh and Kildare.

Skibbereen, Skull, and Ballydehob, and the surrounding districts in county Cork, have been proclaimed, and all assemblages have been forbidden. No further disturbance has taken place in those districts. At a meeting of the executive of the Land League at Skibbereen resolutions were passed condemning the riots; but it was urged that the authorities by their action were greatly responsible for the disturbances that had taken place in the neighbourhood. The Bishop of Ross, in addressing his congregation at mass at Skibbereen, said by strong and vigorous constitutional action most, if not all, of what their fellow-countrymen were looking for would be sure to come; but by violence and the commission of outrages on persons and property most of what they had been striving for was in great danger of being withheld and lost.

The Archbishop of Cashel likewise attended a land demonstration at Tipperary, and said that only two things could now prevent the Irish people obtaining a material victory—namely, mismanagement or disunion on the part of the leaders; and indiscretion, or something worse, on the part of the people, whom he recommended to avoid coming into collision with the police or military.

THE VOLUNTEERS.

Nearly 6000 of the Metropolitan Volunteers paraded for the annual Government inspection and brigade drills on Saturday.

On the same day the annual camp of instruction for Engineer Volunteers was opened at Chatham.

Several companies of the Berkshire Volunteers competed last Saturday for the regimental challenge cup, held by the Newbury company; the cup was won by the B company (Reading), Cooper's Hill College company being second, and Newbury third.

At Cowglen, Glasgow, the shooting in the competition for the Scottish Eight in the International Match at Wimbledon for the Elcho Challenge Shield concluded on Tuesday. The scoring during the contest was unprecedentedly high. Mr. Martin Boyd both on Monday and Tuesday made 215 out of a possible 225. This score has been only once equalled in the competition for the Elcho Shield. The following marksmen have gained places in the Scottish Eight:—Martin Boyd, D. Fraser, Captain Thorburn, T. R. Bruce, C. Fletcher, and Lieutenant M'Kerrell.

Earl Percy, M.P., presided on Tuesday at the annual meeting of the National Artillery Association, at which it was announced that the camp would be open at Shoeburyness on July 30, and that a detachment of the Dominion of Canada Artillery would compete in the shooting.

The council of the National Rifle Association announce the conditions for shooting at the Wimbledon Meeting for the new prize at unknown distances, to establish which, it will be remembered, Mr. Mullens, of Lombard-street, recently gave the handsome sum of £2500. The prize is to be called the Mullens Prize, and will be shot for on Monday, July 18. The teams are to consist of six efficients (not officers) from any battalion. The men will shoot at moving targets representing the head and breast of a soldier at distances varying from 300 yards down to 50. Part of the firing will be independent and part volley, and celerity of movement will form part of the conditions. The contest will finish with independent firing for 30 seconds at 50 yards standing.

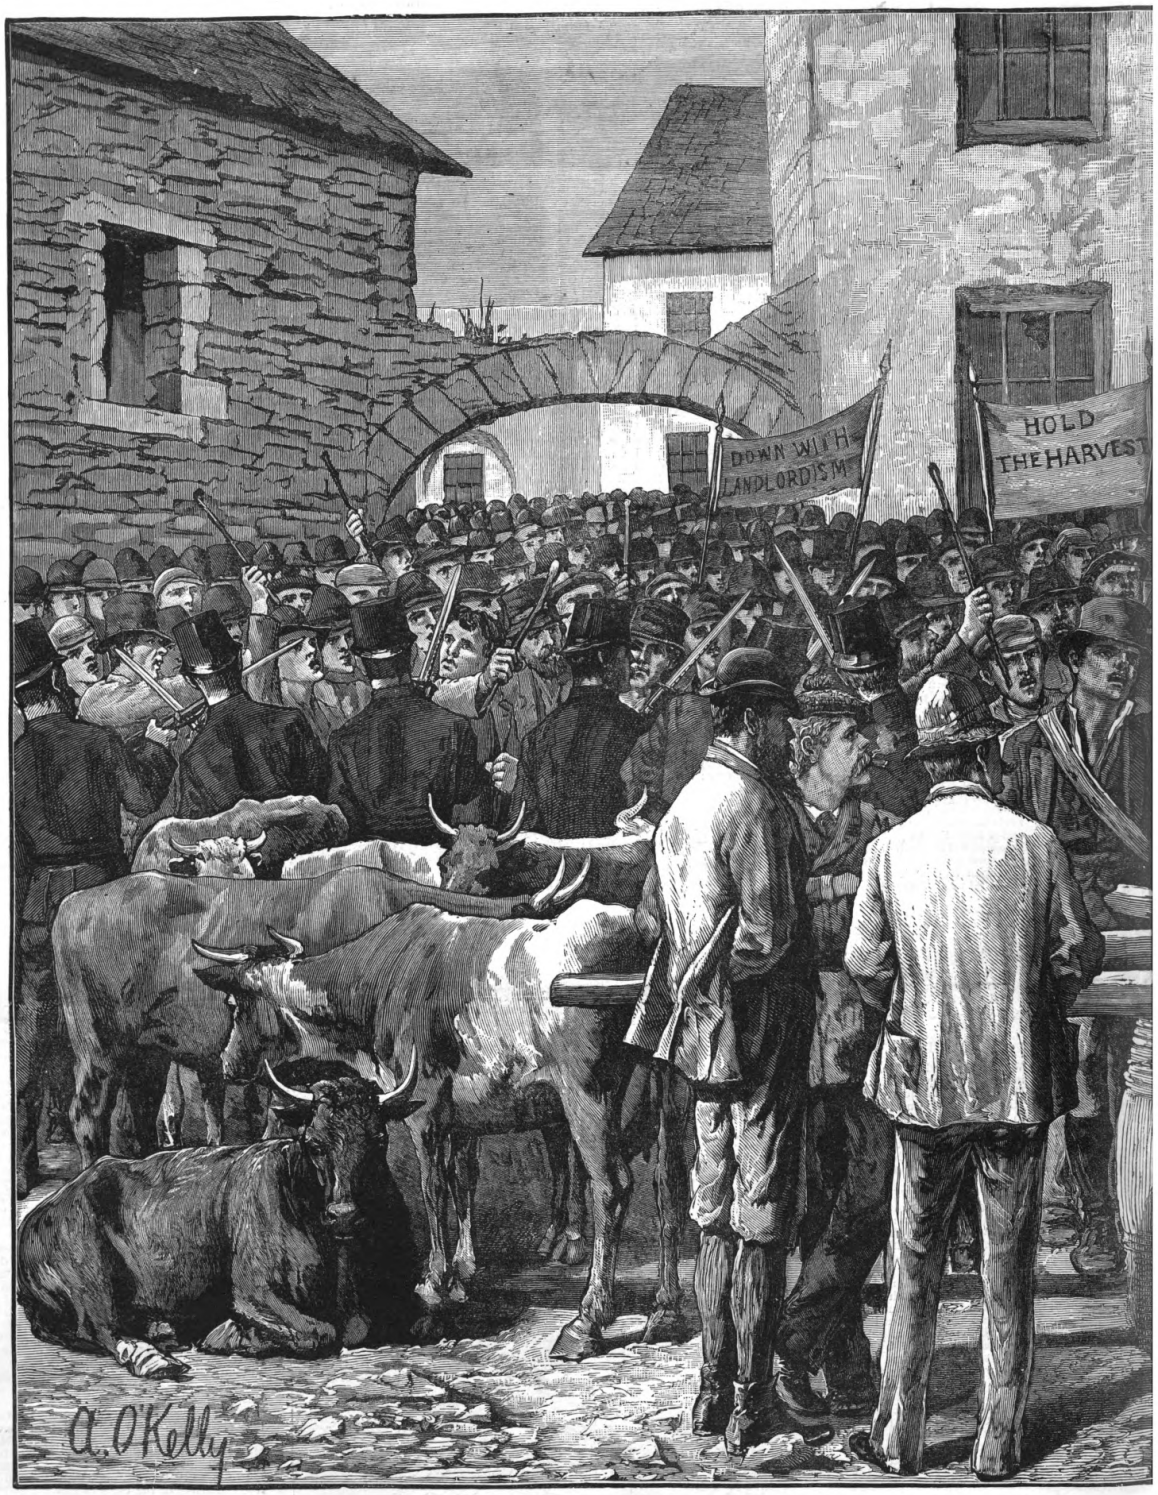
Persons who have had experience in hacking open the covers of tinned meats and fruits will be glad to hear that Mr. Featherstone Griffin, C.E., has patented an invention for opening tins of preserved foods by the application of a few blows upon the edge of the cover, which acts as a wedge-shaped knife. It is so simple and effective in its operation that it bids fair to come speedily into general use.

The Charity Organisation Society, following up its efforts last year for the establishment of convalescent homes, has arranged with several ladies to take into their own houses in the country girls and women of respectable character who require change of air and good food. Another similar plan, which the Rev. S. A. Barnett has tried with good results, is the boarding out of children, and also of adults, in the homes of villagers under the supervision of responsible people in each place. The help which is asked for would certainly be well bestowed.

Mr. Eugene Valck has been sent to prison for three months as a reward for his attempted solution of the problem how to obtain postage-stamps without paying for them. He asked for a number of stamps, which he proceeded to inclose in an addressed envelope, and then for a single stamp to frank the letter. On receiving the last he suddenly found he had no money, but proposed to leave the stamps purchased on the counter while he went to fetch some. As he did not return, the addressed envelope was opened, and it was then found that the stamps had disappeared, and been replaced by a blank sheet of paper and some loose leaves from an Italian bible.

A Royal Warrant states that "Whereas doubts have arisen as to the qualification required for the decoration of the Victoria Cross, and whereas the description of such qualification in our warrant of Jan. 29, 1856, is not uniform, our will and pleasure is that the qualification shall be 'conspicuous bravery or devotion to the country in the presence of the enemy,' and that our warrant of Jan. 29, 1856, shall be read and interpreted accordingly. It is our further will and pleasure that officers and men of our auxiliary and reserve forces (naval and military) shall be eligible for the decoration of the Victoria Cross under the conditions of our said warrant, as amended by this our warrant."

At the Mansion House on Thursday the Lord Mayor entertained the Judges; on the 22nd inst. he will entertain the Bishops, and on the 25th inst. literary notabilities. The Lord Mayor will entertain the chairman and members of the Metropolitan Board of Works at dinner on Friday, July 8. His Lordship will give a banquet on July 16 to the principal representatives of the colonies and colonial interests now in this country, the Prince of Wales having honoured his Lordship by accepting an invitation to be present. A dinner to the commanding officers of volunteer regiments throughout the country is fixed for the following Saturday, July 23. Dinners will be given at the Mansion House on Wednesday, July 27, and Friday, July 29, in honour of the Mayors of the municipal cities and boroughs in the kingdom and their wives.



THE LAND LEAGUE AGITATION IN IRELAND: A

SEE PAGE

SHERIFF'S SALE OF CATTLE, TO PAY RENT.

311.

OBITUARY.

GENERAL SIR DUNCAN MACGREGOR.

General Sir Duncan Macgregor, K.C.B., formerly Inspector-General of the Royal Irish Constabulary, died on the 8th inst., at Vanbrugh Park, Blackheath, in his ninety-fifth year. He entered the Army so far back as 1800, and served successively in Sicily, Italy, Egypt, Holland, the Peninsula, the West Indies, and North America, and was one of the last survivors of the Walcheren expedition. He commanded for a long period the 93rd Highlanders, and held the office of Inspector-General Royal Irish Constabulary twenty years, from 1838 to 1858. Sir Duncan attained the rank of General in 1864. He married, March 19, 1824, Elizabeth Douglas, who died in 1858, youngest daughter of Sir William Dick, Bart., of Prestonfield, and had five sons and one daughter. The eldest son, John Rob Roy, is married to Anne Bethia, daughter of Admiral Sir James Crawford Caffin, K.C.B.: the fourth son, Douglas Alexander, was killed at the Redan, Sebastopol, Sept. 8, 1853; and the fifth son, Henry Grey, 29th Regiment, married, in 1863, Rosetta, daughter of the Right Hon. Sir Joseph Napier, Bart. The only daughter, Elizabeth Joanna Anne, is wife of Colonel Robert Wilmot Brooke.

ADMIRAL SIR JAMES HOPE.

Admiral of the Fleet Sir James Hope, G.C.B., Knight of the Legion of Honour, of Carriden, county Linlithgow, J.P. and D.L., whose death is just announced, was born March 3, 1808, the only son of Admiral Sir George Johnstone Hope, K.C.B., of Carriden, by Lady Jemima, his wife, fifth daughter of James, third Earl of Hopetoun. Entering the Royal Navy, he passed the earlier part of his career in the African squadron in the suppression of the slave trade. His commission as Lieutenant bears date in 1827, that of Captain 1838, of Rear-Admiral 1857, Admiral 1870, and Admiral of the Fleet 1879. From 1854 to 1855 he served in the Baltic; from 1859 to 1862 was Commander-in-Chief in the East Indies and China; in 1864 Commander-in-Chief in the West Indies and North America, and at Portsmouth from 1869 to 1872. From 1873 to 1878 he was principal Naval A.D.C. to the Queen. He married, first, Aug. 16, 1838, Frederica Eliza, daughter of Charles, eighth Lord Kinnaird (which lady died May 27, 1850); and secondly, Dec. 6, 1877, Elizabeth, daughter of General Sir Arthur Thomas Cotton, K.C.S.I. Sir James was one of the leading patrons of the Soldiers and Sailors' Home in Edinburgh.

ALDERMAN SIR WILLIAM ROSE.

Alderman Sir William Rose, Knt., F.R.G.S., Hon. Colonel Royal London Militia and one of the senior magistrates of the City of London, died suddenly on the 9th inst., while driving from his residence at Upper Tooting. He was born in 1820, the son of Mr. Arthur Miller Rose, and was educated at University College, London. In 1854 he was elected Alderman of Queenhithe Ward, and became Lord Mayor of London in 1862. From 1862 to 1865 he sat in Parliament for Southampton in the Conservative interest. He was a D.L. for the city of London, and a magistrate for Middlesex and Londonderry. For a long period he was Governor of the Irish Society, the controlling body of the Corporation's extensive Irish estates. He was knighted in 1867. Sir William married, first, in 1851, Charlotte, widow of Thomas M. Flockton, Esq.; and secondly, in 1857, Charlotte Grace, elder daughter of Captain Winterton Snow, Madras Army.

THE RIGHT REV. DR. DANELL.

The Right Rev. James Danell, D.D., the second Roman Catholic Bishop of Southwark, who had been ailing for a considerable time, died suddenly on the 14th inst., at his residence, St. George's Cathedral, Southwark. Dr. Danell was born in 1821, and, educated at St. Edmund's College, Hertfordshire. He received priest's orders in 1846, and was appointed in the same year to the mission of St. George's, Southwark. He acted for a long time as Vicar-General to Bishop Grant, on whose death he succeeded to the see of Southwark. He was consecrated by the Cardinal-Archbishop at St. George's Cathedral in 1871.

MR. C. S. GREAVES.

Mr. Charles Sprengel Greaves, M.A., Q.C., of Mayfield, in the county of Stafford, died on the 3rd inst., at 11, Blandford-square, in his eightieth year. He was eldest son of the late Dr. William Greaves, of Mayfield, by Anne Lydia, his wife, daughter of Mr. Robert Charles Greaves, of Ingleby Hill, Derbyshire, and was the descendant of an old family seated at Beeley, in that county, until the reign of Charles I., when, in consequence of losses in the cause of Royalty, the head of the family removed to Mayfield. Mr. C. S. Greaves graduated at Queen's College, Oxford, and was called to the Bar in 1827. He went the Oxford Circuit for many years, attained his silk gown in 1850, and was elected a Bencher of Lincoln's Inn. He was also J.P. and D.L. for Staffordshire and J.P. for Derbyshire. He married, Feb. 11, 1841, Emma Frances, daughter of Mr. William Tyson, of Ashbourne.

We have also to record the deaths of—

Miss Frances Moore, authoress (under the nom de plume of "Madame Panache") of "Life of Joanna, Queen of Naples," and other works, on the 6th inst., at Exeter, aged ninety-two.

Mr. Richard Dennistoun, late of Kelvin Grove, on the 2nd inst., at Rowmore Cottage, Dumbartonshire, in his eighty-fifth year. He represented a younger branch of the old Scottish family of Dennistoun, of Colgrain.

Mr. Edward Tyrrell, formerly City Remembrancer, on the 5th inst., at Berkin Manor, Horton, near Slough, in his ninetieth year. His father, the late Mr. Timothy Tyrrell, was also at one time City Remembrancer.

Major W. H. Pierson, Royal (Bengal) Engineers, aged forty-five. He entered the Army in 1858, saw some active service in India, and was military secretary to Lord Ripon when Viceroy there.

Mr. Reginald Wynniatt, of Staunton and Dymock, county Gloucester, J.P., at Brighton, on the 9th inst., in his sixty-eighth year. He married, 1869, Caroline Bethia, daughter of Mr. William Vansittart, M.P. for Windsor. The Wynniatts are an old Gloucestershire family.

John William Prout, Esq., M.A., Oxford, F.R.G.S., of Neasdon House, Neasdon, Middlesex, recently. He was the eldest son of William Prout, Esq., M.D., F.R.S. (author of one of the Bridgewater Treatises, &c.), by Agnes, daughter of Alexander Adam, LL.D. (author of the "Roman Antiquities," &c.). He was born in 1816, and married Catherine Maria, daughter of Colonel Nicoll, of the 70th Regiment, and of Copt Hall, Hendon, Middlesex.

Mr. Solomon Alexander Hart, R.A., at his residence in Fitzroy-square, on the 11th inst. Mr. Hart had long been in failing health, though he was able to attend the Royal Academy banquet last month. He had produced some notable pictures in his time, chiefly of an historical and scriptural character. Mr. Hart was born at Plymouth in 1806; was elected A.R.A. in 1835, and R.A. in 1840. In 1857 he was appointed Professor of Painting to the Academy, and in 1865 librarian of the same institution.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

T M M (Secunderabad).—The correction of your problem No. 8 is noted; but please to understand that all of them await the receipt of your proposed solutions before being submitted to any examination whatever.

Va (U.S.).—Your analytical power is improving without doubt. Facility comes with knowledge.

A E S (Bayswater).—Please send us the amended diagram for comparison with the one in our possession, as arranged.

J H (Burnley).—The move is, obviously, Kt to K 4th.

C E T (Clifton).—There is a problem of yours in hand marked "withdrawn by the author as incorrect." Have you amended the position?

D W K (Brighton).—The late Major Jaenisch, who was a distinguished Russian chess-player and mathematician, published an exhaustive treatise on the Knight's Tour of the Chessboard. It contained references to earlier authorities, notably Euler, but is probably out of print. The latest work on the subject, of which we have any knowledge, is a quarto volume, published in 1874, by Professor Volpicelli, of Rome, in which the author claims to have completely solved the problem.

G A (Bonchurch).—Your problems are not, at present, up to publication standard; but they show promise, and you should, therefore, persevere.

W F K (Clevedon).—We do not understand your question, "Is it a disadvantage that Black has no option as to moves, if he avoids mate in two." Anyhow, your proposed solution of No. 1943 by way of 1. Q to B 6th will not answer.

Correct Solutions of Problem Nos. 1937 and 1938 received from W. Pocock, of Carshalton; of Nos. 1931 and 1939 from T M Mankichand, of Secunderabad; and of Nos. 1942 and 1943 from Va (U.S.).

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1944 received from Espanol, James Dobson, F E Purchas, Norman Rumbelow, H H (Oxford), Sidmouth, W J Eggleston, J W W, Emile Frau, G A (Bonchurch), John Perkins, Pierce Jones, Shadforth, J Tcherniac and T H Norton (Paris), and "Iroquois."

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1945 received from D W (Guernsey), Espanol, F E Purchas, R B Duff, Jorgen, Bosworth, Theodor Willink, H Stebbing, Lavinia Grove, John Perkins, Pierce Jones, F Johnston, Albert Mass, Shadforth, James Atkinson, J Tcherniac and T H Norton (Paris), and D A (Dublin).

Correct Solutions of the First Prize Problem received from E Casella (Paris), G L Mayne, An Old Hand, W J Rudman, R J Vines, L Sharswood, E Sharswood, J J Heaton, R H Brooks, and F Johnston (Coventry).

Correct Solutions of the Second Prize Problem received from E Casella (Paris), R Grey, O Fulder, An Old Hand, L Sharswood, E Sharswood, J J Heaton, and R H Brooks.

Correct Solutions of Problem No. 1946 received from James Dobson, F E Purchas, O Fulder, Sudbury (Suffolk), G L Mayne, R Ingersoll, F Ferris, L L Greenaway, R T Kemp, R Gray, N S Harris, Otto Fulder, M O'Halloran, D W Kell, L Falcon (Antwerp), An Old Hand, C Oswald, L Sharswood, E Sharswood, Norina, Jupiter Junior, Kitten, H Blacklock, E Elsbury, A Kentish Man, Ben Nevis, F H Holdron, W Hillier, G W Law, L L Greenaway, C Darrach, H H Noyes, S Lowndes, Norman Rumbelow, R H Brooks, G A (Bonchurch), E Louden, Dr F St, Pilgrim, Pierce Jones, J Tcherniac and T H Norton (Paris), F Johnston, Hereward, Fire Fing, J W W, and D W (Guernsey).

Note.—Correspondents will please observe that this problem cannot be solved by way of 1. K to Q 7th, or 1. K to K 7th, or 1. K to Q B 7th, or 1. Q takes Kt P, or 1. P to Q 4th; ch, or 1. Q takes Kt. The answer to any move of the White King is 1. Kt takes Kt. To 1. Q takes Kt P, Black has a good reply in 1. Kt takes K P; and, should White continue with 2. P takes Kt, 2. Kt to Q B 4th prevents the mate; and if 2. Kt to Q 7th (ch), 2. K to B 5th is equally effective. The attack. 1. Q takes Kt, although favoured by many of our readers, seems scarcely to call for notice, the obvious reply being 1. R takes Q; and if then 2. K to B 7th or K 7th, 2. Kt takes Kt.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1945.

| WHITE. | BLACK. |
|---|---|
| 1. Q to K sq | Any move. |
| 2. Mates accordingly. | |

PROBLEM No. 1948.

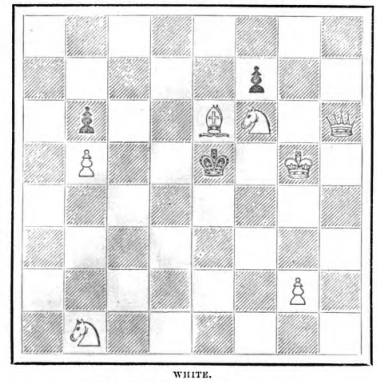
By Dr. F. St.

BLACK.



WHITE.

White to play, and mate in three moves.

Game in the Tournament at the Clifton Chess Club.

(Evans's Gambit.)

| WHITE (Mr. Fedden). | BLACK (Mr. Harsant). | WHITE (Mr. Fedden). | BLACK (Mr. Harsant). |
|---|---|---|---|
| 1. P to K 4th | P to K 4th | 14 P takes P en pas. | Kt P takes P |
| 2. Kt to K B 3rd | Kt to Q B 3rd | 15. Q R to Q sq | P to Q 4th |
| 3. B to B 4th | B to Q B 4th | 16 P takes Q P | P takes P |
| 4. P to Q Kt 4th | B takes Kt P | 17. K R to K sq | Q to B 2nd |
| 5. P to Q B 3rd | B to B 4th | Black's game is extremely loose and ill-developed, and his last move gets the K Kt into trouble. His best course here is to play that piece to K Kt 3rd at once. | |
| 6. P to Q 4th | P takes P | | |
| 7. Castles | B to Kt 3rd | | |
| 8. P takes P | P to Q 3rd | | |
| 9. P to Q 5th | Kt to R 4th | 18. B to R 3rd | Q Kt to B 3rd |
| 10. B to Kt 3rd | Kt to K 2nd | If 18. B to B 4th, White wins by 19. Kt to Q Kt 5th. | |
| 11. Kt to B 3rd | Castles | | |
| 12. B to Q 3rd | P to K B 4th | 19. B to Kt 5th | R to Q sq |
| Not so good a line of defence as either 12. P to Q B 3rd, with the view of breaking up the adverse centre, or 12. Kt to K Kt 3rd. | | 20. K B takes Kt | Kt takes B |
| | | 21. Kt takes P | Q to Kt 2nd |
| 13. Q to B 2nd | | He has nothing much better to do, for if 21. R takes Kt, White checks with K B, driving the K to Kt 3rd, afterwards taking the R with a winning game. | |
| 13. Kt to Kt 5th is generally preferred at this point. | | | |
| 13. | P to Q B 4th | 22. Q takes Kt, and Black resigned. | |

In the solution of Problem No. 1944, published last week, the first move of the defence in the leading variation should be 1. P Queens, instead of 1. K to Q 4th. Against that move White's continuation is, 2 Q to K B 6th, &c.

Of the twenty-four games which Captain Mackenzie engaged to play against twelve Amateurs of St. Louis, yielding to each the odds of a Knight, he has won 17, lost 1, and drawn 1. Of the other five games, "the event has yet to name the winner."

We like readers of old books, and, if we mistake not, the author of a brief essay upon Burmese Chess, which appeared in the St. James's Gazette last week, is one of them. But readers of old books should refer to new ones occasionally. If "Shway Yoe?"—that is the name or pseudonym of the writer—had done so, he would not have fallen into the same error as his original. Captain Cox, who, about the end of the last century, resided at the Court of Amarapoorah. Captain Cox contributed an account of Burmese chess to the Asiatic Society of Bengal, published in the "Transactions" of that association for 1799, including a diagram, which he pronounced to be the array of the pieces at the beginning of a game in Burmah. But Captain Cox was not aware that Burmese chess differed only in the augmented power of the Bishop (Chien or Tsin), from the Hindoo game Shatranj, wherein the players, almost always, agreed to take up strategic positions without moving alternately, just as in our own time games by correspondence are frequently commenced at known positions in favourite openings. In the Shatranj the battle array was precisely the same as it is now in Europe, and "Shway Yoe's" diagram represents the game after more than twenty legitimate moves have been made on each side. The position is not, as he supposes, a fanciful arrangement of the pieces behind the pawns "in any way" at the caprice of the players.

In response to numerous requests for more of the Hermit of Tyrnan's problems, we give this week one published over twenty-three years ago, when the idea it embodies was not so hackneyed as it has become since. For the information of some correspondents who have importuned us on this subject, we may say that the Hermit's problems have not been published in collected form, and that it is only by diligent search through the old magazines and newspaper chess columns that his works are to be found.

White: K at Q B 6th; Q at K B 2nd; Kt's at Q Kt 3rd and Q 3rd; Pawn at Q Kt 5th. (Five pieces.)

Black: K at K 5th; Pawns at Q Kt 3rd and Q 5th. (Three pieces.)

White to play, and mate in three moves.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will (dated July 13, 1871) of Mr. Brampton Gurdon, J.P., D.L., late of Letton Hall, Norfolk, and of Grundisburgh Hall, Suffolk, who died on April 28 last, at 38, Hill-street, Berkeley-square, was proved on the 28th ult. by Robert Thornhagh Gurdon, the surviving executor, the personal estate being sworn under £200,000. The testator devises to his eldest son, the said Robert Thornhagh Gurdon, the manor of Grundisburgh Hall, the advowson of the church of Culpho, and certain other manors, messuages, farm lands, and hereditaments in the county of Suffolk, and he bequeaths to him all his furniture, plate, linen, china, pictures, wines, carriages, horses, and live and dead farming stock, £20,000 Consols, and the cash at his bankers in Norfolk and Suffolk; to his son William Brampton Gurdon, £35,000 Consols; to his son-in-law, Horace Broke, £2000 Consols, and £10,000 Consols upon trust for him for life, and them for his children by testator's late daughter Charlotte; to his brothers, Philip, William, and Edward, and his sister, Mrs. Anne Wodehouse, £500 Consols each; to Lady Nugent, Mr. H. M. Farquhar, and Mr. J. M. Heathcote, £100 Consols each; to the domestic servants who have been three years in his service at his decease, one year's wages, and to those who have been ten years in his service, two years' wages. The residue of the personalty he leaves to his wife, the Hon. Mrs. Henrietta Susannah Gurdon, but as this lady predeceased her husband, such residue becomes divisible between all his children, and the issue of such as may be dead. The testator was M.P. for West Norfolk, in the Liberal interest, from 1857 to 1865.

The will (dated Feb. 28, 1881) of Mr. Alexander Croll, late of Mavis Bank, Grange-road, Upper Norwood, who died on April 13 last, was proved on the 24th ult. by David Lionel Thomson, Frederic Clift, Frederick Durand Deare, and Henry John Von Rönn, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £140,000. The testator bequeaths to his wife £500, and all his pictures, plate, household effects, wines, consumable stores, horses and carriages; to his coachman and female servants who have been three years in his service at his decease £30 each, and £10 for every year over that period; to his butler, Thomas Laker, £100, and £10 for each year over three that he has been in his service; and there are several legacies of £1000 and £500 each to nephews, nieces, and others. The residue of his property, real and personal, is to be held upon trust, to pay three fourths of the income to his wife for life, but she is not to receive in any year less than £3000, in addition to all provision made for her by settlement or otherwise; one eighth of such income, during the life of his wife, to his niece Margaret Niven; and one eighth, during the same period, to his nephew John Laird Halson. At his wife's death £10,000 is to go as she shall appoint; and the ultimate residue is to be divided into ten parts, four of which he gives to his said niece, one to his said nephew, and one to his great-nephew, Harry Alexander Halson. As to the remaining four tenths, he leaves ten thirtieths thereof to the University of the Cape of Good Hope for the purpose of creating and endowing two scholarships, tenable for three or four years, for students of South Africa under British rule, or which may hereafter come under British rule, and the Orange Free State, without distinction of class, creed, or colour; five thirtieths to the South African College, Cape Town, to endow one scholarship under the like conditions; five thirtieths to Gill College, Somerset East, for one scholarship under the like conditions; five thirtieths to the Grey Educational Institute, South Africa, for the purpose of creating and endowing exhibitions tenable for one or more years, under the same conditions as the scholarships; three thirtieths to the Provincial Hospital, Port Elizabeth, for the purpose of erecting or maintaining a children's ward to be called the "Croll Ward;" one thirtieth to St. George's Orphanage and Mission School for Girls, Harrington-street, Cape Town; and one thirtieth to the Christian Home for Aged and Indigent Ladies, Cape Town.

The will (dated Feb. 15, 1879) of Mr. William Burges, late of No. 9, Melbury-road, Kensington, architect, who died on April 20 last, was proved on the 23rd ult. by Richard Popplewell Pullan, Joseph Henry Christian, and John Starling Chapple, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £40,000. The testator leaves to the British Museum such manuscripts and antiquities as the authorities may select; to the Marquis and Marchioness of Bute such object of art designed by him as they may respectively select; upon trust for his clerk, Mr. J. S. Chapple, for life, and then for his wife for her life, £4000; and legacies to pupils, clerks, and others. Two thirds of the residue of his real and personal estate are to be held upon trust for his sister Mrs. Mary Leschallas Pullan for life, and then for her husband for life; and, subject to such life interests, he gives the said residue to his nieces, Elizabeth Burges and Eleanor Burges.

The will (dated Sept. 5, 1879) of Mr. William Kinsey, late of No. 34, Sussex-gardens, and of No. 9, Bloomsbury-place, solicitor, who died on April 22 last, was proved on the 21st ult. by Mrs. Elizabeth Kinsey, the widow and sole executrix, the personal estate being sworn under £35,000. The testator gives £100 to his clerk, Thomas Gilbert Hicking; a leasehold house in Bond-street and £5600 upon trust for his wife for life, and then for his daughter Elizabeth Anne; a leasehold house in Regent-street and £5000 upon trust for his wife for life, and then for his daughter Emily Mary; and the residue of his property to his wife absolutely.

The will (dated June 16, 1876) with a codicil (dated Aug. 23, 1877) of Miss Eliza Ann Bult, late of No. 1, Houghton-place, Ampthill-square, who died on April 16 last, was proved on the 13th ult. by John Brown Twist and George Francis Twist, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £30,000. There are numerous legacies, and the residue of the personalty the testatrix divides between her nephews and nieces, John James Twist, Frederick Twist, George Francis Twist, George Frederick Bult, Frances Elizabeth Purton, and Amelia Elizabeth Longbottom.

The will (dated Sept. 17, 1879) of the Rev. John Arthy, Rector of Caistor, near Norwich, who died on April 25 last, was proved on the 23rd ult. by Thomas William Hansell, the acting executor, the personal estate being sworn under £25,000. The testator, after leaving legacies to his executor, nieces, and nephew, gives the residue of his property to his wife.

The will (dated May 7, 1881) of Count Adolphe Danilecki, commonly known as C. Adolphus, late of No. 54, York-terrace, Regent's Park, medical electrician, who died on the 12th ult., was proved on the 27th ult. by William Hampden Lawless and Joseph Skerrett Blake, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £10,000. There are some bequests in favour of Elsi Cooper; and the residue of his estate, real and personal, is directed to be held upon trust for Blanchi Regina.

C. G. C.

Monsignor Gonzalo Camilla, Vicar Apostolic of Gibraltar, was on Sunday consecrated a Bishop, by Cardinal Manning, at the pro-Cathedral, Kensington, the function taking place, like all such ordinations, in the course of low mass, and beginning at the early hour of eight.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

THE

BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS,

A NEW JOURNAL FOR THE YOUNG.

The Proprietors of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS launch the first Illustrated Weekly Newspaper for Boys, price ONE PENNY, on Wednesday, April 6, 1881. THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS is a Journal full of Entertainment and Information for Youth; and, at the same time, a Paper which Parents can with confidence place in the hands of their Children.

CAPTAIN MAYNE REID'S "LOST MOUNTAIN." A New Romance in the best style of this famous Author, commenced in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS for April 6.

"SQUEE BIFFEN": Fine fun is poked at Jules Verne in this humorous serial story, continued in No. 10, for June 8.

PHIL HOLIDAY'S NOTES, published from week to week in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS, give a chatty chronicle of current Sports.

BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS.
Published every Wednesday.
One Penny; post-free, 1½d.

THE SECOND MONTHLY PART of THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS is now being published, containing the four Numbers for May, stitched in a coloured wrapper, the continuation of "THE LOST MOUNTAIN," and "SQUEE BIFFEN," with complete Stories of Afghanistan and Arctic-land, by John Latey, Jun., &c., &c., free from a Middy's Journal, and the Sports and News of the Month.
Price Sixpence; Post-free, Eightpence.

SUBSCRIPTION TO THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS.
FOR THE UNITED KINGDOM:
Three Months, 1s. 9d.; Six Months, 3s. 3d.;
Twelve Months, 6s. 6d.
ABROAD:
Post-free to any part of Europe, United States of America, Canada, and Egypt, for One Year, 8s. 8d.; to India, Ceylon, China, and Japan, for One Year, 10s. 10d. Elsewhere abroad, for One Year, 8s. 8d.
All subscriptions to be paid in advance direct by Post-office order, payable at the East strand Post-office, to THOMAS FOX, 10, Milford-lane, Strand, London.

MESSER'S BRITISH WILD FLOWERS. A New and Rapid Method of Studying Wild Flowers by Analytical Illustrations. "We cordially recommend it."—Journal of Horticulture. Cloth, 10s. 6d.
D. BOGUE, 86, Martin's-place, Trafalgar-square, W.C.

ANGLO-AMERICAN METHOD; or, A New and Infallible System to LEARN in Three Months, how to Read, Write, and Pronounce Correctly the FRENCH LANGUAGE. By J. DE FALLON, B.A., L.L.B. Cloth, 8vo, pp. 791, price 8s.—London: DULAU and Co., 37, Soho-square.

PRACTICAL LESSONS IN PAINTING ON CHINA, PORCELAIN, EARTHENWARE, &c. By Madame la Baronne DELAMARDELLE; from the French by GUSTAVE A. BOUVIER. 4th Edition. Price 1s.; post-free, 1s. 1d.—London: LECHERTIER, BARBE, and Co., 60, Regent-street.

JUST PUBLISHED, post-free, 2 stamps,
DYSPEPSIA and the SEVERER FORMS OF INDIGESTION. A small pamphlet on the distressing complaints and their complete cures. Published by the Author, RICHARD KING, Esq., Staff Surgeon R.N., 23, Warwick-st., Rugby.

Third Edition, price 1s., post-free,
THE New Electrolytic Treatment of Cancer and of simple Tumours. By G. PELOW, M.D. NELSON and Co., 23, Duke-street, Grosvenor-square, W.

Fourth Edition, crown 8vo, cloth, 2s. 6d.;
EPILEPSY, THE TONIC TREATMENT OF. By WALTER TYRRELL, M.R.C.S. London: DAVID BOGUE, 3, St. Martin's-place, W.C.

Third Edition, pp. 36, 1s., or 12 Stamps,
SUMMER CATARRH or HAY FEVER: its Causes, Symptoms, and Treatment. By GEORGE MOORE, M.D., L.R.C.P.L.
JAMES EPPS and Co., 170, Piccadilly; and 48, Threadneedle-street.

THE RACES and FÊTES.—Ladies, and all exposed to the Sun and Dust, will find ROWLANDS' KALYDOR most Cooling and Refreshing to the Face. It eradicates all Tan, Sunburn, Freckles, &c., and produces a Beautiful and Delicate Complexion.

ROWLANDS' ODONTO is the purest and most fragrant dentifrice ever made. All dentists will allow that neither washes nor pastes can possibly be a efficacious for polishing the teeth and keeping them sound and white as a pure and non-gritty tooth powder; such Rowlands Odonto has always proved itself to be. Ask any Dealer in Perfumery for Rowlands' Articles.

PIESSE and LUBIN.
Opoponax, Jockey Club, Patchouly, Frangipanni, Kiss-Me-Quick, White Rose, and 100 others, from every flower that breathes a fragrance. 2s. 6d. each, or three Bottles in a Case, 7s. The above Sweet Scents in Sachet Powder, 1s. 6d. each, can be forwarded by post. Sold by the fashionable Druggists and Perfumers in all parts of the world.
2, NEW BOND-STREET, LONDON.

TURKISH PASTILS.
"Through all my travels few things astonished me more than seeing the beauties of the harem smoking Narghiles at Stamboul. After smoking, a sweet aromatic lozenge or pastil is used by them, which is said to impart an odour of flowers to the breath. I have never seen these breath lozenges but once in Europe, and that was at PIESSE and LUBIN'S shop in Bond-street."—Lady W. Montagu.
In Boxes, 2s.; by post, 2s. 2d.
2, NEW BOND-STREET, LONDON.

BREIDENBACH'S

SACHETS.

Wood Violet, White Rose, Stephanotis, Maréchale, Eau Bouquet, Musk, Ylang Ylang, Opoponax, Millefleurs, Chypre. In paper envelopes, 1s. each; in silk bags, 1s. each; in satin cushions, 2s. 6d. each. Sold by all Perfumers and Fancy Dealers, or post-free from the Makers, 157b, New Bond-street, London.W

VALUABLE DISCOVERY for the HAIR. If your hair is turning grey, or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White Hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots where the glands are not decayed. "The Mexican Hair Renewer" is sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere, at 3s. 6d. per Bottle.

FLORILINE. For the Teeth and Breath. Is the best Liquid Dentifrice in the world; it thoroughly cleanses partially-decayed teeth from all parasites or living "animalcules," leaving them pearly white, imparting a delicate fragrance to the breath. The Fragrant Floriline removes instantly all odours arising from a hot supper, cigars, or smoke, being partly composed of honey, soda, and extracts of sweet herbs and plants. It is perfectly harmless, and delicious as sherry. Sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere, at 2s. 6d. per Bottle.

"AND TEETH LIKE ROWS OF PEARLS."
JEWSBURY and BROWN'S Exquisite Compound,
THE ORIENTAL TOOTH-PASTE.
The celebrated original and only genuine Oriental Tooth-Paste is signed "JEWSBURY and BROWN, Manchester, Established 30 years." PEARLY WHITE and SOUND TEETH, healthy gums, firm and bright of colour so essential to beauty and fragrant breath, are all insured by the use of this most perfect Dentifrice. Pots, 1s. 6d.; double, 2s. 6d. All Perfumers and Chemists. Only the ORIGINAL ORIENTAL TOOTH-PASTE is signed JEWSBURY and BROWN, Manchester, and each pot bears their Trade Mark, J. and B. in a double triangle.

THE COURT HAIR DESTROYER.—The newly-discovered, harmless, only effectual remedy for superfluous hair, 3s. 6d.; post, privately packed, 45 stamps, of Inventor, John Leon, 19, Porteous-road, London, W.; or Chemists.

PETER ROBINSON,
103 to 108, OXFORD-STREET.
NEW SPRING GOODS
in all Departments.
ILLUSTRATIONS AND PATTERNS FREE.

FASHION-BOOK and PRICE-LIST now ready.
Sent free by post.

LADIES IN THE COUNTRY
Are requested to write for Patterns of

NEW SILKS, including

PONGE WASHING SILK, 20 yards for 1 Guinea.

PONGEE GARNITURES, 4½ yards long, Embroidered in Silk, 10s. 6d. the piece.

300 PIECES of GRISAILLE SILKS, 23s. 6d. the Dress.

SPECIAL.
180 PIECES of COLOURED GROS GRAIN, in all the New Shades, 2s. 9½d. per yard.

100 PIECES of NEW BLACK BROCHÉ SATIN, from 2s. 11d. per yard.

BLACK SATINS, soft and bright, from 1s. 6d. per yard.

100 PIECES of extra Rich BLACK SILK MERVEILLEUX, 4s. 6d. per yard, 24 in. wide.

160 SHADES of New DUCHESSE SATINS, extra wide width, 4s. 9d. per yard.

RICH BLACK SATIN GROUND BROCADED VELVET, for Mantles, &c., 7s. 11d. per yard.

ITALIAN SATINS, in every shade of Colour, from 2s. 11d. per yard.

ALL the LATEST NOVELTIES in SHADED and BRODED SILKS, from 3s. 6d. to 7s. 6d. per yard.

PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON.

LADIES IN THE COUNTRY
are requested to write for Patterns of
NEW SUMMER DRESSES,
including
ANGOLA BEIGE, 25in. wide, 10d. to 1s. 6d. per yard.
ANGOLA BEIGE, 45 in. wide, 1s. 9d. to 2s. 6d. per yard.
VIGOGNE CASHMERE, very fine, 36in. wide, 1s. 6d. per yard.
CACHEMIRE DE L'INDE, 45 in. wide, 2s. 11d. to 3s. 9d. per yard.
CASHMERE MERINOS, New Spring Colours, very wide, 1s. 11d. to 2s. 9d.
CACHEMIRE DE PARIS, very fine, 46 in. wide, 1s. 11d. to 3s. 3d. per yard.
VIGOGNE CLOTH, 36 in. wide, all Wool, 1s. 6d. per yard.
BRADCASIMIR, 36in. wide, 1s. 6d. to 1s. 9d. per yard.
Rich Wool and Silk MIXED FABRICS, Vigogne and other elegant styles for draping, 1s. 9d. to 3s. 6d. per yard.
All the above in Black and every shade, including the NEW HIGH ART COLOURS.
RICH VELVET VELVETEENS in the New Black, as advertised, very wide, 2s. 6d. to 3s. 9d. per yard. In White and all the New Colours, 2s. 9d. to 4s. 6d. per yard.
SPECIAL SALE of 120 pieces RICH BLACK DAMASSE CASIMIR, at 1s. 9d. per yard; usual price 3s. 6d.
BLACK CHENADINES, Plain, Broche, and striped.
An enormous collection of PRINTED SATINES, Percales, Cambrics, Cretonnes, &c., in every variety of design.
Several hundred pieces last year's patterns best French Cambrics, at 4½d. per yard.
OSBORNE LAWNS, a very useful Fabric for MORNING DRESSES, in Plain, Checked, and Striped, all Colours. These goods are very wide, and one uniform price, 7½d. per yard.
PATTERNS POST-FREE.

MADE MATERIAL COSTUMES.
A well-selected assortment of all the leading styles and combinations, including:—

| | |
|---|---|
| Light Foule Cacmir, trimmed braid .. | £1 9 6 |
| Plain and Fancy Beige .. .. | 2 12 6 |
| French Cashmere, trimmed rich brocades .. | 3 18 6 |
| Cashmere de l'Inde, trimmed ombré .. | 4 4 0 |
| Plain and Printed Cambrics and Percales .. | 0 14 9 |
| New Printed Satines .. .. .. | 1 7 6 |
| Corded and Zephyr Lawns .. .. | 1 11 6 |

Patterns and Illustrations of the above Costumes, with Forms for Self-Measurement, post-free.

PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON, W.; and MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
256 to 262, REGENT-STREET.

NICHOLSON'S
NEW SUMMER SAMPLES.
Patterns post-free.
FRENCH CASHMERES, BEIGE
SERGES, HERMANIBURG, MILAN STRIPES,
and all the Newest Materials in the most beautiful colours.

NICHOLSON'S
NEW WASHING FABRICS.
Patterns post-free.
FRENCH SATTEENS, CAMBRICS,
OATMEAL CLOTH, BRILLIANTS, &c.,
in every new and tasteful design.

NICHOLSON'S
NEW SILKS.
Patterns post-free.
PLUSHES, VELVETEENS, SATINS,
BROCHES, SATIN DE LYONS, and
PLAIN LYONS GROS GRAIN,
in every fashionable shade.

D. NICHOLSON and CO.,
50 to 57, ST. PAUL'S-CHURCHYARD, LONDON
SOLE LESSEES OF THE COSTUME COURT, CRYSTAL PALACE.

JAY'S, Regent-street.

SUMMER SILKS.—Very durable, light, soft, elastic, and will neither crumple nor crush. Black and also silver and bronze Colours. Sold in 5s. per yard, or made up in the most fashionable costumes of the day, at from 5½ guineas each costume, including silk material for the bodice.
JAY'S, Regent-street.

NEW COSTUMES FOR SUMMER WEAR.
Light, but not transparent.
MESSRS. JAY have a variety of charming Costumes prepared for the Summer Season, adapted from French designs, and suitable either for ladies who are in mourning or for those who wear black dresses from choice.
JAY'S, Regent-street.

MOURNING.—Messrs. JAY'S Experienced Assistants travel to any part of the kingdom, free of expense to purchasers. They take dresses and millinery with them, besides patterns of materials, all marked in plain figures, and at the same price as if purchased at the Warehouse in Regent-street. Funerals at stated charges conducted in London or country.
JAY'S,
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
REGENT-STREET, W.

PETER ROBINSON'S
COURT and GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
REGENT-STREET.

FAMILY BEREAVEMENTS.
Upon Receipt of Letter or Telegram
PETER ROBINSON'S EXPERIENCED DRESSMAKERS and MILLINERS TRAVEL to ALL PARTS of the COUNTRY, no matter the distance, FREE OF EXPENSE TO PURCHASERS, with Dresses, Mantles, Millinery, and a full assortment of MADE-UP ARTICLES of the best and most suitable description. Also Materials by the Yard, and supplied at the same VERY REASONABLE PRICES as if Purchased at the Warehouse in "REGENT-STREET."
Mourning for Servants at unexceptionally low rates, at a great saving to large or small families.
Funerals Conducted in Town or Country at Stated Charges.
Address 256 to 262, Regent-street, London.
PETER ROBINSON'S.

THE BEST CRAPES,
THAT WILL NOT SPOT WITH RAIN.
Special qualities finished by the manufacturer in this desirable manner solely to the order of PETER ROBINSON.
Good qualities from 5s. 6d. to 12s. 9d. per yard. Others, not finished by this process, from 1s. 6d. to 4s. 6d.

A SPECIAL PURCHASE.
300 PIECES of
RICH BLACK BROCADED SILKS,
very fashionable now for Costumes and Mantles,
2s. 9d., 3s. 11d., 4s. 9d., 5s. 9d., 5s. 11d., 6s. 6d.

100 PIECES OF
BLACK SATIN IMPERIAL,
a New Make of Satin,
Rich in appearance,
and wears better than any other silk.
5s. 6d., and up to 10s. 9d.

BLACK SATIN MERVEILLEUX,
new this Season,
3s. 6d., 4s. 11d., 5s. 9d., 6s. 6d.

BLACK SATIN DE LYON,
a good useful Silk, for Hard Wear,
3s. 6d., 4s. 11d., 5s. 9d., 6s. 6d.

BLACK DUCHESS SATIN,
at 5s. 6d., 6s. 6d.,
Magnificent qualities at 7s. 6d. and 10s. 6d.

BLACK SATINS (Cotton Backs),
1s. 11d., 2s. 6d., 2s. 11d., 3s. 11d.

BLACK BROCADED VELVETS,
5s. 3d., 6s. 11d., 8s. 9d., 10s. 9d.

BLACK TWILLED SILKS, for Summer Wear, at 3s. 6d., and above.

BLACK SURAT SILKS, with White Floral Designs, 2s. 11d., 3s. 6d., 3s. 11d.

COSTUMES in SILK, SATIN, and BROCADE.
Facsimiles of Expensive Paris Models at 4½ guineas and up to 9 guineas.
Material for Bodices included.
For Patterns of the above,
Please write to—
PETER ROBINSON'S, REGENT-STREET,
Nos. 256 to 262.

NOVELTIES for LADIES' MORNING DRESSES.—French Satteens, 8½d.; Pompadours, 7½d.; Prints, 6½d.; Linen Lawns, 8d. Patterns free.
JOHN HOOPER, 32, Oxford-street, W.

NEW SUMMER DRESSES.—New Heather Tweed Beiges, 7½d.; New Granit Merveilleux, 6½d. Patterns free.—JOHN HOOPER, 32, Oxford-street, W.

TEENS that young ladies are in no hurry to get out of—
"LOUIS" VELVET-TEENS.

THE "LOUIS" VELVETEEN
IS SIMPLY UNIQUE.
Do not be induced by persuasion to take any other.

LOUIS
AN EXTRA PROFIT TO YOUR LOSS
may be speciously urged upon you, under whatever name offered, an inferior quality of Velveteen
"THE LOUIS"
has established its reputation so widely that even a slight inferiority would injure its repute, which
LOUIS
A TEST OF MERIT,
and guarantee of
UNSURPASSED QUALITY
Be sure you find the words
THE "LOUIS" VELVETEEN
on every yard,
or you have not the
GENUINE "LOUIS,"
notwithstanding all assertions to the contrary.

ELECTRICITY IS LIFE
PULVERMACHER'S "GALVANISM,
NATURE'S CHIEF RESTORER OF IMPAIRED VITAL ENERGY."
In this Pamphlet the most reliable proofs are given of the vast and wonderful curative powers of Pulvermacher's Patent Galvanic Chain-bands, Belts, &c., in Rheumatic, Nervous, and Functional Disorders. Sent post-free for three stamps, on application to
J. L. PULVERMACHER'S GALVANIC ESTABLISHMENT, 194, Regent-street, London, W.

BLAIR'S GOUT PILLS,
THE GREAT
REMEDY FOR GOUT AND RHEUMATISM.
Sold by all Chemists, at 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. per Box.

HAY FEVER or SUMMER CATARRH. The most effective remedy for this distressing affection is EPPS'S ANTHOXANTHUM, administered as spray. The relief to the irritated membrane is almost instantaneous. In Bottles, 2s. 9d. and 4s. 6d., (by post, 36 or 57 stamps), labelled JAMES EPPS and Co., 48, Threadneedle-st.; and 170, Piccadilly.

A NEVER-FAILING REMEDY for Bilious and Liver Complaints, Indigestion, Wind, Spasms, Giddiness, Dizziness of the Eyes, &c. DR. SCOTT'S BILIOUS and LIVER PILLS are the most certain remedy, without mercury, having proved effectual in cases of habitual costiveness, loss of appetite, with sensation of fulness at the pit of the stomach, pains between the shoulders, and the distressing feelings arising from indigestion. Prepared only by W. Lamberd, 173, Seymour-place, London, W., in Boxes, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. Sold by all Chemists. See you have "Dr. Scott's" wrapped in a square green package.

SULPHOLINE LOTION.—An external Cure for Skin Diseases. There is scarcely any eruption but will yield to SULPHOLINE and fade away in a few days. Ordinary pimples, redness, blotches, scurf, roughness, vanish as if by magic; while old skin disorders, that have plagued sufferers for years, however deeply rooted, Sulpholine will successfully attack them. It destroys the animalcule which cause these unsightly, irritable affections, and always produces a clear skin. Sulpholine Lotion is sold by Chemists. Bottles, 2s. 9d.

"KEATING'S POWDER" kills BUGS, Moths, Fleas, Beetles, and all Insects (perfectly unrivalled). Harmless to everything but Insects. 1lbs. 6d., and 1s.

GENUINE DUBLIN WHISKY.
THE MOST WHOLESOME OF ALL SPIRITS.
DUBLIN WHISKY, Distilled by Messrs. JOHN JAMESON and SON, GEORGE ROE and CO., WILLIAM JAMESON and CO., and JOHN POWER and SON, can be obtained in Wood by wholesale merchants and dealers, direct from their respective distilleries.

GENUINE DUBLIN WHISKY.
THE MOST WHOLESOME OF ALL SPIRITS.
DUBLIN WHISKY.—Messrs. GEORGE ROE and CO. can also supply through the wholesale trade their Whiskies in cases, the bottles protected by capsule, label, and brand on corks.

Gold Medal, Paris. — First Award, Sydney.
FRY'S — FRY'S CARACAS COCOA.
"A most delicious and valuable article."—Standard.

PURE COCOA ONLY.
COCOA. — FRY'S COCOA EXTRACT.
"Strictly pure."—W. W. STODDART, F.I.C., F.C.S., City Analyst, Bristol.
Thirteen Exhibition Medals.

CHOCOLAT MENIER.
Awarded the GRAND DIPLOMA OF HONOUR.

CHOCOLAT MENIER, in ½lb. and ¼lb. Packets.
For BREAKFAST and SUPPER.

CHOCOLAT MENIER.—Awarded Twenty Eight PRIZE MEDALS.
Consumption annually exceeds 18,000,000 lbs.

CHOCOLAT MENIER. — Paris, London, New York.
Sold Everywhere.

SCHWEITZER'S COCOATINA.
Anti-Dyspeptic Cocoa or Chocolate Powder.
Guaranteed Pure Soluble Cocoa, with excess of Fat extracted. Four times the strength of Cocoas Thickened yet Weakened with Arrowroot, Starch, &c.
The faculty pronounce it the most nutritious, perfectly digestive Beverage for "BREAKFAST, LUNCHEON, or SUPPER." Keeps in all Climates. Requires no Cooking. A teaspoonful to Breakfast Cup, costing less than a halfpenny. Samples gratis. In Air-Tight Tins, at 1s. 6d., 3s., &c., by Chemists and Grocers.
H. SCHWEITZER and CO., 10, Adam-street, London, W.C.

ROBERT ROBERTS and CO.'S CELEBRATED TEAS.
TWELVE POUNDS AND UPWARDS CARRIAGE PAID.
Samples and Price-lists free by post.
Queen Insurance-buildings, Liverpool. ESTABLISHED 1840.
No agents.
All communications and orders direct.

SEASONABLE DELICACY.
BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR
AS BLANCMANGE, WITH STEWED FRUIT.

SEASONABLE DELICACY.
BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR
AS A CUSTARD, WITH STEWED FRUIT.

SEASONABLE DELICACY.
BROWN & POLSON'S CORN FLOUR
AS BAKED PUDDING, WITH STEWED FRUIT.

NUBIAN N.B. BLACKING.
NUBIAN Produces an instantaneous polish without brushing. One application lasts a week. Makes BLACKING.
NUBIAN Boots Waterproof, Wear-proof, and Weatherproof. BLACKING.
NUBIAN — BLACKING.
NUBIAN N.B. BLACKING.
NUBIAN Saves twice the cost in time and brushes, renders BLACKING.
NUBIAN leather soft, supple, and BLACKING.
NUBIAN beautifully durable. One member, it contains no corrosive acid. BLACKING.
NUBIAN — BLACKING.
NUBIAN — BLACKING.
NUBIAN N.B. BLACKING.
NUBIAN For Seaside, Travellers, saves time, saves money, BLACKING.
NUBIAN saves your Tot, saves shoe BLACKING.
NUBIAN leather. One application lasts a week. BLACKING.
NUBIAN — BLACKING.
NUBIAN N.B. BLACKING.
NUBIAN The economiser of time, money. The delight of BLACKING.
NUBIAN ladies. The most delicate garments are never soiled BLACKING.
NUBIAN by it, and it can be used on every description of BLACKING.
NUBIAN boots and shoes. BLACKING.

TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON,
For CONSTIPATION, BILE, HEADACHE.

TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON,
A LAXATIVE AND REFRESHING FRUIT LOZENGE,
UNIVERSALLY PRESCRIBED BY THE FACULTY.

TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON.
2s. 6d. per Box, stamp included.
Sold by all Chemists and Druggists.
Wholesale—E. GRILLON, 95, Queen-street, London, E.C.

THROAT AFFECTIONS and HOARSENESS.—All suffering from Irritation of the Throat and Hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES. These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable Chemists in this country, at 1s. 1½d. per Box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if neglected or progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government stamp around each box. Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN and SONS, Boston, U.S. European Depôt, 365, Farringdon-road, London.

HAY FEVER CURED BY
DR. DUNBAR'S ALKARAM, or Anti-Catarrh Smelling-Bottle.
ALKARAM. — HAY FEVER.
ALKARAM. — HAY FEVER.
ALKARAM. — HAY FEVER.
If inhaled on the first symptoms, ALKARAM will at once arrest them, and cure severe cases in half an hour. Sold by all Chemists, 2s. 9d. a Bottle. Address, Dr. Dunbar, care of Messrs. J. Newbery and Sons, 1, King Edward-st., E.C.

THE LATE MR. SAMUEL PALMER, ARTIST.

THE LATE SIR W. M. JAMES,
JUDGE OF THE COURT OF APPEAL.—SEE PAGE 610.

THE LATE MR. SAMUEL PALMER.

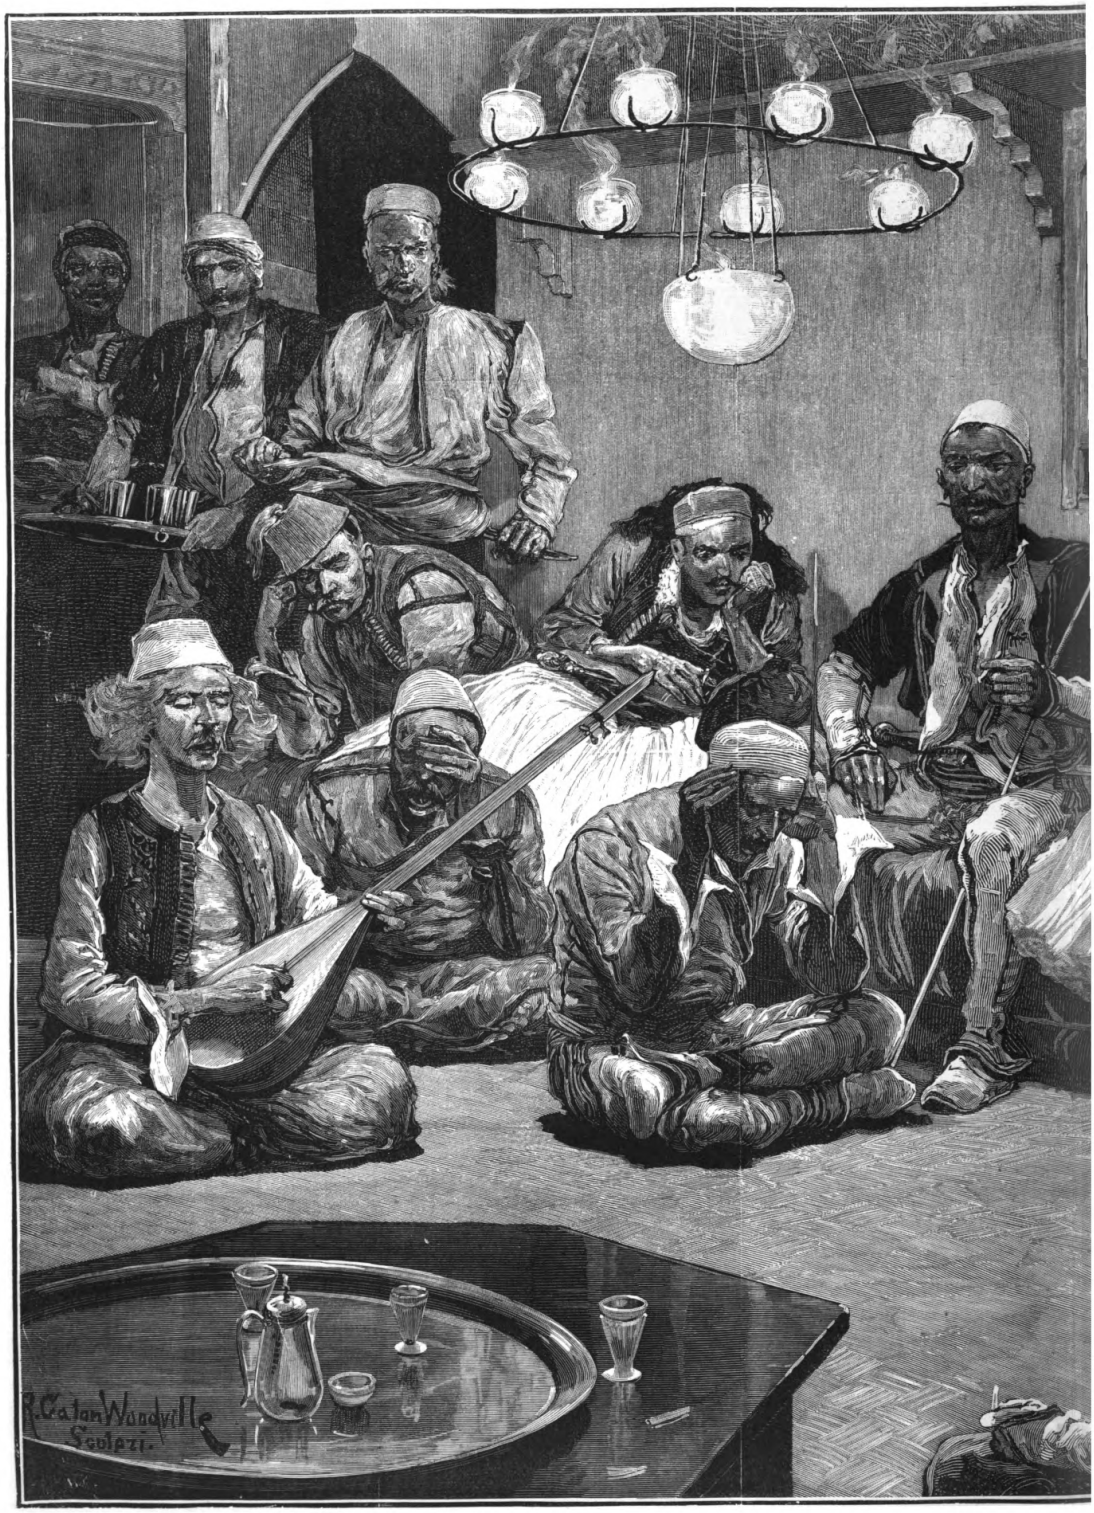
The death of this accomplished and genial artist took place on the 24th ult., at his residence at Redhill, Surrey. He was born in 1805, and began to practise painting at thirteen years of age. It was not long before he received news of the sale of his first exhibited picture at the British Gallery. By the advice of Mr. Linnell, his future father-in-law, he went through a course of figure and other serious artistic studies. He was introduced also to William Blake, who gave him decided encouragement. Mr. George Richmond, too, was one of his friends through life. He lived many years, with his father, at Shoreham, near Sevenoaks. He there painted landscapes fraught with the spirit of poetry, and sometimes with an indescribable archaic charm. "The Gleaning Field," "The Bright Cloud," "Twilight," and "The Harvest Moon," exercised his feeling for nature; and so did many smaller drawings executed about the same time. A picture of his was exhibited in the Royal Academy in 1820, and two at the British Institution; one at the Academy, in 1821; three in Pall-mall, in 1822; one in Somerset House, in 1823; two at the same place in 1824, and so on, from year to year. Mr. Palmer was married, in 1837, to a daughter of Mr. Linnell. They spent the two succeeding years in Italy, both working indefatigably with the brush, and laying by a store of elaborate studies. In 1843, Mr. Palmer was elected an Associate of the Society of Painters in Water Colours. Up to 1855, the year of his election as a member, he exhibited in their gallery sixty-five works, and from that date to the present year sixty-two more, besides many at the winter exhibitions. In 1853 he became a member of the Etching Club, and in that and following years he executed thirteen etchings. The last, "Opening the Fold," was published by the Fine-Art Society, not long before his death. It showed his unabated mental vigour, and the skill which had placed him, by common consent, in the first rank of English etchers. His love for this art was very great, and the pains he bestowed upon such plates as "Christmas," "The Rising Moon," "The Skylark," "The Herdsman," and "The Early Ploughman," was rewarded by their popularity. Mr. Palmer removed, in 1861, after the death of his elder son, from Kensington to Redhill, in Surrey. He there executed many of his larger and more important works in water-colours, such as "The Colosseum," 1871; "Pompeiian Memories," 1869; and "A Golden City," 1873. To his friend, Mr. L. R. Valpy, he owed the undertaking of perhaps the most congenial task that could have been given him—the execution of a series of large drawings, illustrating selected passages from the exquisite minor poems of his favourite Milton. These works were the outcome of a long life of careful study, and of a mind tuned to harmony with all that is grand and beautiful. He lived just long enough to put the completing touches to the last of this noble series. The two preceding it, "The Prospect" and "The Eastern Gate," both from "L'Allegro," are now hanging upon the walls of the gallery in Pall-mall. Mr. Palmer's faculties of mind were perfectly preserved to the day of his death.

PERSECUTION OF THE JEWS IN RUSSIA: SCENE INSIDE THE ARSENAL AT KIEV.—SEE PAGE 610.



A NIGHT ENTERTAINMENT DURING I

DRAWN BY R.

RAMAZAN, AT SCUTARI, IN ALBANIA.

C. WOODVILLE.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS

REGISTERED AT THE GENERAL POST-OFFICE FOR TRANSMISSION ABROAD.

No. 2197.—VOL. LXXVIII. SATURDAY, JUNE 25, 1881. WITH TWO SUPPLEMENTS SIXPENCE. By Post, 6½d.

THE DUKE OF ALBANY (PRINCE LEOPOLD).—SEE PAGE 622.

BIRTHS.

On the 20th inst., at 13, Harlington-gardens, Edinburgh, the wife of T. Scrine Gardiner, of a son.

On the 12th inst., at Bexley, the wife of Walter Comyn Jackson, of a son.

MARRIAGE.

On the 21st inst., at Greycrook, St. Boswells, N.B., Henry Maldougall John Fairfax, only child of the late James L. and Elizabeth Mary Somerville Gregory.

DEATH.

On the 7th inst., at Daly's Green, in the county of Galway, Peter Paul Daly, Esq., J.P., aged 68 years. R.I.P.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

BRIGHTON.—EVERY SUNDAY, a CHEAP FIRST-CLASS TRAIN from Victoria 10.45 a.m., calling at Clapham Junction, and from London Bridge 10.55 a.m., calling at Croydon. Day Return Tickets, 10s.

BRIGHTON. — PULLMAN DRAWING-ROOM CAR TRAINS leave Victoria for Brighton every WEEKDAY at 10.0 a.m. and 4.30 p.m., and Brighton for Victoria at 9.45 a.m. and 5.45 p.m.; also from Victoria on Sundays at 9.0 a.m. and from Brighton at 6.30 p.m.

THE GRAND AQUARIUM AT BRIGHTON.—EVERY SATURDAY, Cheap First-Class Trains from Victoria at 9.50 and 11.50 a.m., and London Bridge at 9.30 a.m. and 12.0 noon, calling at Clapham Junction and Croydon.

Day Return Fare—First Class, Half-a-Guinea (including admission to the Aquarium and the Royal Pavilion Picture Gallery, Palace, and Grounds), available for return by any Train the same day, except the 5.45 p.m. Pullman Car Train.

EVERY WEDNESDAY.—Cheap Day Return Tickets to Brighton, including admission to the Aquarium, are issued from Victoria, London Bridge, and nearly all Stations.

FAMILY and TOURISTS' TICKETS are now issued, available for One Month, from London Bridge, Victoria, &c., to Portsmouth (for Southsea), Ryde, Cowes, Newport, Sandown, Shanklin, Ventnor (for Bonchurch and Freshwater), and Hayling Island.

PARIS.—SHORTEST, CHEAPEST ROUTE
Vid NEWHAVEN, DIEPPE, and ROUEN.
Cheap Express Service every Week-night, First, Second, and Third Class.
From Vict., 7.50 p.m., and London Bridge 8.0 p.m.
Fares—Single, 35s., 24s., 17s.; Return, 55s., 39s., 30s.
Powerful Paddle-steamers, with excellent Cabins, &c.
Trains run alongside Steamers at Newhaven and Dieppe.
SOUTH OF FRANCE, ITALY, SWITZERLAND, &c.
Tourists' Tickets are issued enabling the holder
To visit all the principal places of interest.

TICKETS and every information at the Brighton Company's West End General Offices, 28, Regent-circus, Piccadilly, and 8, Grand Hotel-buildings, Trafalgar-square; also at the Victoria and London Bridge Stations.
(By order) J. P. KNIGHT, General Manager.

GREAT EASTERN RAILWAY.—Seaside. TWO MONTHS RETURN TICKETS are now issued by all trains to YARMOUTH, Lowestoft, Cromer, Hunstanton, Southwold, Aldeburgh, Felixstowe, Harwich, Deben-mouth, Walton-on-the-Naze, and Weeley (for Clacton-on-Sea).
Every Thursday, and Friday or Saturday to Monday, First, Second, and Third Class Return Tickets are also issued at REDUCED FARES to all trains to Hunstanton, Cromer, Yarmouth, Lowestoft, Walton-on-the-Naze, Weeley (for Clacton-on-Sea), Dovercourt, Harwich, Felixstowe, Aldeburgh, or Southwold.
London, June, 1881. WILLIAM BIRT, General Manager.

ST. JAMES'S HALL, PICCADILLY.
NEW AND UNUSUALLY STRONG PROGRAMME FOR THE PRESENT WEEK.
IMPORTANT ADDITIONS TO THE ALREADY MAGNIFICENT COMPANY OF THE
MOORE and BURGESS MINSTRELS, the acknowledged supreme head of every similar entertainment in the world; the source whence all imitators obtain the best features of their entertainments.
EVERY NIGHT at EIGHT—MONDAYS, WEDNESDAYS, and SATURDAYS, THREE and EIGHT.
ALWAYS OPEN FROM YEAR'S END TO YEAR'S END.
Fauteuils, 5s.; Stalls, 3s.; Area, 2s.; Gallery, 1s. No fees. Ladies can retain their bonnets in all parts. No charge for booking.

ST. JAMES'S HALL, PICCADILLY.
Second Week of the very successful American Skit upon
LA DAME AUX CAMELIAS and MDLLE. SARAH BERNHARDT, which will be performed EVERY NIGHT at Ten, and on SATURDAY MORNING next, at TWELVE o'Clock, the exertion being too great for Mr. W. H. RICE to appear at the other two Matinees.

SPIRITUALISM and its PROFESSORS on TRIAL. Mr. W. IRVING BISHOP at ST. JAMES'S HALL, on SATURDAY EVENING, JUNE 25, at Eight o'Clock, will repeat his Marvellous Manifestations claimed by the Spiritualists to be done by aid of the Spirits of the Dead. And on Wednesday Evening, June 29, repeating the Manifestations, he will expose them under the Electric Light in full view of the audience.
The following attestation, selected from the large number received by Mr. Bishop since his arrival in this country, is a pledge that the experiments will be carried out upon purely sincere and scientific principles.

"Glasgow, Oct. 4, 1880.
"We, the undersigned, having had an opportunity, in February last, of witnessing Mr. W. Irving Bishop's reproduction and explanation of many so-called spiritualistic Phenomena, hereby certify that both the reproduction and the explanation were satisfactory, and well calculated to show that such phenomena as were exhibited by Mr. Bishop can be produced by physical forces, and explained by physiological laws. (signed by) Sir WILLIAM THOMSON, M.A., D.C.L., LL.D., F.R.S., Professor of Natural Philosophy; JOHN G. MCKENDRICK, M.A., Professor of the Institutes of Medicine; W. T. GAIRDNER, M.D., Professor of the Practice of Medicine."
Seats Unbk. 10s. 6d.; Stalls, 5s.; Balcony and Orchestra Stalls, 3s.; Admission, One Shilling. Tickets may be obtained at the Hall, and at all the Libraries.

WESTMINSTER PANORAMA, YORK-STREET, QUEEN ANNE'S-GATE, S.W. (opposite St. James's Park Station and adjoining Royal Aquarium). THE BATTLE OF WATERLOO, by C. Castellani. Covering over 20,000 square feet of canvas. The largest Panorama in England. WILL OPEN WHIT MONDAY, JUNE 6. Admission One Shilling.

ROYAL PANORAMA GALLERIES, Leicester-square. LE SALON A LONDRES.—EXHIBITION OF PICTURES by MM. Bonnat, Benoit, Perrin, J. Boulanger, J. Breton, Carolus-Duran, De Knyff, Germane, Hebert, Heuer, Jalabert, Jules Lefebvre, Emile Levy, Lhermitte, Matthey, Meissonier, Robert-Fleury, Rousseau, Tissot, Vollon, &c. Sculpture by D'Epinay, Carrier-Belleuse, Gresin, &c. NOW OPEN, from Eleven a.m. to Seven p.m. Admission, One Shilling; Season Ticket, Five Shillings.

MR. and MRS. GERMAN REED'S ENTERTAINMENT. CHERRY TREE FARM, a New Piece by Arthur Law; Music by Hamilton Clarke. FANCIE FAIRE-ical, a New Musical Sketch by Corney Grain; and A BRIGHT IDEA, by Arthur Law; Music by Arthur Cecil. Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, and Friday, at Eight. Thursday and Saturday at Three.—ST. GEORGE'S HALL, Langham-place. Admission, 1s., 2s.; Stalls, 3s., 5s. No fees. Booking-Office open from Ten to Six.

LYCEUM THEATRE.—Sole Lessee and Manager, Mr. Henry Irving. EVERY EVENING, at a Quarter to Eight, Shakspeare's Tragedy of HAMLET.—Hamlet, Mr. Irving; Ophelia, Miss Ellen Terry; Messrs. Terriss, Howe, Tyars, Beaumont, Archer, Stuart, Hudson, Carter, Johnson Child, Mead, and Miss Pauncefort. Box office (Mr. Hurst), open Ten to Five. Seats also booked by letter or telegram.

SOUTH KENSINGTON MUSEUM.—The SPECIAL LOAN EXHIBITION of SPANISH and PORTUGUESE ART is NOW OPEN. Mondays, Tuesdays, and Saturdays, from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. free; and on Wednesdays, Thursdays, and Fridays, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. on payment of Sixpence. By order.

INSTITUTE OF PAINTERS IN WATER COLOURS. The FORTY-SEVENTH ANNUAL EXHIBITION is now OPEN from Nine till Seven. Admission, 1s.; Catalogue, 6d.
Gallery, 53, Pall-mall. H. F. PHILLIPS, Secretary.

DORÉ'S GREAT WORKS.—"ECCE HOMO" ("Full of divine dignity."—The Times) and "THE ASCENSION," "CHRIST LEAVING THE PRAETORIUM," "CHRIST ENTERING JERUSALEM," with all his other Great Pictures.—DORÉ GALLERY, 35, New Bond-street. Daily, 10 to 6. 1s.

THE DECORATIVE ART EXHIBITION now OPEN at the New galleries, 167, New Bond-street, comprises Pictures by Royal Academicians and other eminent Artists, English and Foreign (of which the Examples, Portraits, Pictures, Carvings, Gold and Silver Smiths' work (including reproductions from antique originals in the principal Museums of Europe), Jewellery and other Handicraft specialties, Works of Art in Wrought and Chased Iron, Pottery and Porcelain, Royal Worcester, Minton's, Doulton, Wedgwood, Majolica, Faïence, Painted China, Cloisonné and other Tiles, Mosaics, Flowers and their Fragrance engraved and Venetian Glass, Art Furniture of all Styles, Home Decoration, Wall Coverings, Embroideries, Tapestries, Lace, Japanese and other Oriental Art Work, Exhibition of Original Decorative Arts, &c. Admission, 1s. T. J. GULLICK, Director.
"The Exhibition has been formed in order to illustrate the progress which has been made of late in most departments of decorative art, although, by way of affording grounds for comparison, some fine examples of ancient work have been introduced. It is international in its scope, and specimens of French, Italian, Persian, and Japanese art are among the many interesting exhibits. . . . In the next room (No. 3) one may linger a long time over the many beautiful specimens of metal-work, wood carving, embroidery, and tapestry."—Times.
"The collection is certainly large, varied and novel, and presents more to interest and charm than any other exhibition now open. Any money obtain here, or at least learn where to procure, all that is requisite or desirable, in order to render a house, modest or even palace-like in size, tasteful to cultivated taste."—Morning Post.
"We trust that the exhibition will become one of the annual fixtures of the London season. There is plenty of room for an exhibition which shall bear the same relation to the South Kensington Museum as the Royal Academy does to the National Gallery."—The Academy.
"It may safely be predicted that this new gallery will have considerable influence on public taste."—Illustrated London News.
"Il faut féliciter un amateur aussi éclairé que celui qui répondra à un besoin réel en ouvrant aux arts décoratifs une galerie spéciale."—Revue des Arts Décoratifs.

Now Publishing,

OUR HOLIDAY NUMBER.

That Beautiful Wretch!
a Brighton Story
by William Black

PROFUSELY ILLUSTRATED.

THREE WHOLE SHEETS, IN AN ELEGANT WRAPPER, WITH LARGE COLOURED SUPPLEMENT,
A GREEK PLAY.

THE ILLUSTRATIONS TO MR. BLACK'S STORY
Were Drawn by F. Dadd, H. Furniss, Davidson Knowles, A. S. Lumley, C. Montbard, W. H. Overend, F. S. Walker, R. Wells, and R. C. Woodville;
And Engraved by Dalziel Bros., M. Froment, R. Green, J. Greenaway, C. M. Jenkins, J. Johnstone, R. Loudan, W. I. Mosses, W. J. Palmer, J. Swain, and R. and E. Taylor.

Price One Shilling; Postage, Threepence-halfpenny.

This Holiday Number is published apart from the ordinary weekly issue.
Office, 198, Strand, W.C.

WITH THE NUMBER OF
THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS
Next Saturday, July 2, will be Given
A LARGE ENGRAVING, ENTITLED
IN SANDRINGHAM GARDEN:
THE PRINCESS OF WALES AND HER DAUGHTERS.
FROM A DRAWING BY M. W. BIDLEY.

The TITLEPAGE and INDEX to ENGRAVINGS for Vol. 78 of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS, from Jan. 1 to June 25, will also be given with next week's Number.

YORKSHIRE FINE-ART and INDUSTRIAL INSTITUTION, YORK.
NOW OPEN,
THE SUMMER EXHIBITION OF PAINTINGS,
and the
PRINCE OF WALES'
MAGNIFICENT COLLECTION OF INDIAN PRESENTS.
Admission One Shilling. Excursionists Sixpence.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, JUNE 25, 1881.

The disturbances that broke out on Saturday and Sunday between the French and Italians at Marseilles are deeply to be deplored. The disembarkation of the first detachment of troops from Tunis, and their subsequent march through the streets, was witnessed by exulting crowds, who rejoiced in the success of the national flag, not the less, we fear, because it involved an indirect humiliation of Italy. Many thousands of Italians from the neighbouring kingdom find employment in the factories of Marseilles, and the usual jealousy which obtains between rival populations in close proximity must have been greatly stimulated by recent events in Tunis. The hissing, which is said to have been heard amid the prevalent plaudits as the returning troops passed the Italian National Club, sufficed to fan this ill-feeling into a flame. The exasperated crowd demanded the removal of the Italian escutcheon, and the promise of the Prefect to close the club did not appease them; but some municipal councillors, in order to ward off an attack, took down the insignia, and the place was closed. But the incident had stirred up bad blood on both sides. For twelve hours, from Saturday night till Sunday morning, desperate street fights, fought with revolvers and knives, took place in various parts of the city, but chiefly in the Mairie Quarter, where the Savoyards mostly live; and the police and military were unable to suppress the riots till several persons had been killed, more than thirty wounded, and some two hundred arrested. According to one authority, these scenes of savage violence and reckless bloodshed were worthy of the worst periods of the Revolutionary era. This outbreak will, we fear, widen the estrangement between two neighbouring nations who were lately on terms of cordial amity. Though Italy stands alone among the European Powers in protesting against the recent policy of the French Government in Tunis, and is unable openly to resent it, she can hardly fail to treasure up bitter enmity against her more powerful neighbour. Apart from their considerable commercial relations, the two nations, as representing Western freedom and civilisation, are natural allies; and it may be questioned whether the material advantages which M. Roustan has gained for French enterprise in Tunis are worth the alienation of a proud and sensitive people like the Italians, who will hardly fail to nurse the revengeful spirit that cannot now find adequate expression.

Sir Edward Watkin has provided the public with a new sensation. At the meeting of the South-Eastern Railway Company, the other day, the Chairman held out the prospect of completing a tunnel under the bed of the English Channel within the short space of five years. He was able to report that the preliminary experiments had thus far been highly favourable. Shafts have been sunk near both the shores, from which galleries have been driven some hundreds of yards through a solid and uniform substratum of chalk, impervious to water, which, if it should be found to extend, as is believed, from coast to coast, will reduce this gigantic enterprise to a question of time and expense. Now appliances and improved machinery are expected to facilitate the boring of this stupendous tunnel; and one of these days we may hear of the starting of a great Channel Submarine Tunnel Company, with a capital of, say, some twenty-five or thirty millions, to realise Sir Edward's daring vision, and abolish "the silver streak of sea." At all events, the whole question is being seriously discussed, and military critics are entering the field to frighten us with the prospect of losing our secure isolation, and to conjure up the phantom of Continental invasion. Whether the Tunnel would pay—whether the game would be worth the candle—may possibly become a problem worthy of practical discussion two or three years hence. But political and international misgivings ought to be removed by the assurance that at any time a pound of dynamite, or the opening of a well-devised sluice, would render the Channel Tunnel impassable; still more so by the statement of Sir Edward Watkin that a convention, yet subsisting and covering the whole question, was made some years ago between France and England. If this great submarine road is required in the interests of international intercourse and commerce, it is not likely to be frustrated or delayed by chimerical fears of an invasion of Great Britain.

Now that the Irish Land Bill is making real progress, and the business-like debates that are taking place are bringing its clauses into a form generally acceptable, with the prospect of the committee stage being completed by the middle of July, attention is being directed to the important negotiations relative to a renewal of the French Treaty of Commerce. The memorable Convention of 1860, whatever its theoretical shortcomings, has been the means of enormously developing the commercial relations between the two countries; and, unfortunately for both, Mr. Cobden's treaty expires next November. The astute manufacturing Protectionists of France lately succeeded in inducing the Legislature to adopt a new general tariff, which raises the duties on imported goods all round—in some cases to a prohibitory standard; and four months only remain to consider whether the treaty with England shall be renewed, with some modifications, or be altogether abandoned. Commissioners on both sides have been busy this week with negotiations on the subject, and in a few days it will probably be decided by Sir Charles Dilke and his colleagues whether it would not be better for the interests of this country that the treaty should lapse, unless adequate time can be secured for deliberate discussion. It is said that, at the eleventh hour, the French Commissioners are about to ask for fresh instructions—these gentlemen having become aware that the general interests of their country are in danger of being sacrificed to subserve those of the cotton and woollen textile manufacturers of France; and further, that the termination of the treaty would have a most disastrous effect upon the already declining export trade of France. The present dilemma, which involves the prosperity of a vast trade on both sides the Channel, has been brought about by the scheming of a coterie of selfish manufacturers, who have been able to hoodwink the Legislature and bring about a crisis which may end in the entire abrogation of special commercial arrangements between the two countries, to the injury of both.

The death of Sir Josiah Mason, of Birmingham, at the ripe age of eighty-six, removes from the scene of his earthly labours one of the greatest industrial benefactors of the age. His life was a romance in our commercial records. Beginning as a journeyman shoemaker, and afterwards as a costermonger at Kidderminster, he tramped to Birmingham, where he obtained employment as a maker of gilt toys and subsequently of split steel rings; and eventually the plodding young man became identified with the firm of Perry and Co., the celebrated steel-pen manufacturers, and with other enterprises in the Midland capital. In these several pursuits Mr. Mason, who was subsequently knighted for his philanthropic munificence, amassed a large fortune. The wealth thus carefully acquired was lavishly expended for public objects—such as the Erdington Orphanage, an unsectarian institution, for the foundation and maintenance of which £260,000 was expended, and the Mason Science College, erected at a cost of £60,000 and endowed with £100,000, in order that his young fellow-townsmen might have those educational and scientific advantages which he himself had never enjoyed. Both these noble institutions, with a view to their being preserved from narrow and ecclesiastical influences, are placed under the control of the Town Council of Birmingham; and Sir Josiah Mason has thus honourably used his great means for, and associated his memory with, an unsectarian educational work which is likely to prove a blessing to the present and succeeding generations.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

Last Monday, at the commendably early hour of eleven thirty a.m., the annual meeting of the subscribers to and supporters of the National School for Cookery at South Kensington was held, by courteous permission of the Duke of Devonshire, in the grand saloon of Devonshire House, Piccadilly. Princess Mary, Duchess of Teck, honoured the proceedings with her presence; and Burke's and Debrett's Peerages, Boyle's Court Guide, and Webster's Royal Red Book were largely represented among the distinguished audience. It was a very fashionable gathering indeed; and his Grace the Duke of Beaufort was in the chair. His Excellency the American Minister made a speech which could scarcely fail to be witty and humorous. He talked about Alfonso the Wise, and "Lord" Bacon (no, estimable Mr. J. R. Lowell, there never was a "Lord" Bacon); but he contributed little to the practical business of the morning, beyond making the candid admission that there was as much bad cookery in the United States as in any country with which he was acquainted.

The accomplished Transatlantic diplomatist might, however, have told his English hearers that in the Great Republic there are cooks and cooks. The hotel cuisine is, as a rule, execrably bad throughout the States; and its badness is due to the excessive ambition of the bill of fare and the excessive number of guests to be provided for. Among hotels and restaurants where one could really obtain a well-cooked and appetising dinner, I noted, during our last trip to America, the Brevoort House, Delmonico's, the Hotel Brunswick, and Pinaud's, at New York; Wormley's at Washington (Mr. Wormley is a coloured man, and the Ethiop is a born cook); the Grand Pacific Hotel at Chicago, and the Palace Hotel, San Francisco. The last named is in all respects the finest hotel, and has one of the best cooks (M. Harder) in the world. On the cookery at the St. Charles Hotel, New Orleans, I must not be too hard, as I was there at a period of exceptional pressure—Carnival time; but we could find little to our taste, gastronomically speaking, at the St. Charles, and were fain to dine, on most evenings, when we had no invitations, at Moreau's French restaurant in Canal-street, a modest little place, but, from a culinary point of view, equal to the Moulin Rouge, Paris, in its palmiest days.

Mem.: You dine superbly in private houses in the hospitable city of Baltimore, in the beautiful State of Maryland. Richmond overwhelms you with hospitable propositions, and does her best; but the Old Dominion has scarcely recovered yet from the desolation of war, and Virginian Udes and Francatellis have yet to be resuscitated. On the whole (always granting the dire atrocity of the vast majority of the hotel tables-d'hôte and the railway refreshment-rooms), Mr. J. R. Lowell should not induce English people to think over disparagingly of the cuisine of a country which can boast of terrapin, canvas-back ducks, green corn, succotash, gumbo soup, soft shell crabs, clam-chowder, striped bass, shad, and the finest oysters in creation.

They talked much at the meeting of the National School for Cookery; and, on the whole, I am inclined to think that his Grace of Beaufort was the best among the speakers of the morning, because he said the least. There was a wearisome wilderness of talk about physiology and other "ologies," and the chemistry of food, and the educational advantages of cookery, and so forth; and one lady digressed into a dissertation on dressmaking classes as organised in Scotland. I wish that she had talked more about Scotch collops, and haggis and cock-a-leekie, and the other toothsome plats for which the recipes are given in "Meg Dod's Cookery Book."

Of course our ancient friend "the boiled potato" turned up in the course of the morning. Beshrew the boiled potato! That delusive tuber has done as much to keep the English and Irish kitchens in a condition of stupid savagery as plain needlework (I perceive from the programme of the Domestic Economy Congress that there is a Lady Demonstrator of a London Institute for the Advancement of Plain Needlework) has done to keep Englishwomen in a state of semi-pauperism and semi-"starvation." Wither plain needlework! I hope to see it utterly driven out by the sewing-machine; so that women may be taught such mechanical trades as are suited to their sex, and be able to demand the wages of men. And, brava, bravissima! Mrs. Fawcett (speaking at the seventh annual meeting of the Women's Protective and Provident League) for counselling working women to band themselves together, and combine and organise associations to demand higher wages from selfish and tyrannical employers. I see from the report of a recent trial that five-and-twenty pounds was deemed an excessive price for a lady's dinner dress. Remembering that American ladies think little of paying the great Worth forty or fifty pounds for a silk or satin dress, full trimmed, I should not stumble at the English costumière's much more moderate charge if I knew that the young ladies employed in making the dress could each earn thirty shillings a week. "Strike, girls, strike" for higher wages. I like the refrain as well as "Cheer, boys, cheer."

The National School for Cookery is in need of "public support." In plainer terms, it wants money; and if the public wish to see the number of good cooks in this country increased it should support the School at South Kensington. In the talk about physiology and the other "ologies," the chemistry of food and the like, I have the very smallest amount of faith; and I have not much more in brief courses of cookery lessons given to girls at the Board Schools. The National School at South Kensington would do the most tangible amount of good by becoming a College of Cookery, where cooks could be trained by first-rate French chefs, and whence the trained pupils could be sent into families. By degrees the cookery so practiced would reach the poor; and every female servant accustomed to the ways of a thoroughly well-appointed upper-class or middle-class kitchen would be, when she married, a missionary, a teacher, and a "cooking centre" among her sisters. The poor are very kind to the poor, and are generally eager to teach and help one another. But I fear that we shall have no perceptible augmentation in the number of good cooks till English ladies devote themselves with greater frequency to the active duties of housekeeping. It is one thing to put on fine clothes and, in the hours between early service at the "too utterly High" Church of St. Simon Slyboots and a Charity Bazaar at Kensington, to listen to a lecture about the "ologies" of cookery; but it is quite another thing to tuck up one's sleeves and "have up" the cook and "have out" the tradesmen's books or explore the store closet, or descend into the lower regions and ascertain how things are getting on in the kitchen and the pantry. Aye! and in the scullery. Our great-grandmothers used to do this. At present ladies are far too much occupied with lectures, public meetings, lawn-tennis, polo, morning performances, and "pianoforte recitals."

Mem.: To the plagues of Modern Egypt, too much Talk, too many gossiping "Echoes" and on dits (you see that I can look at home, but I am going to hold my tongue shortly, for good), too many Public Dinners, the Boiled Potato, Plain Sewing, and the Eastern Question, add too much "Pianoforte Recital."

Perhaps you will say that there are too many Charity Bazaars. That may be a moot point; but you will grant, I hope, that there cannot be too much Charity; and so long as mankind require to be tickled with a straw to make them loose their purse-strings, I do not see why we should discourage fancy fairs, even if the distinguished lady stall-keepers sell straws, gilt or ungilt, at the rate of half a guinea apiece. So I have no hesitation in telling my charitably-minded readers that on Wednesday, June 29, and the two following days there will be held, by kind permission of the Duke of Wellington, at his Grace's riding-school at Knightsbridge, a Bazaar and Fancy Fair for the benefit of the Military Benevolent Fund. I note in the list of lady stall-keepers announced the names, among others, of the Marchioness of Conyngham, the Countess of Shannon, Lady Abinger, Lady Edward Pelham-Clinton, Lady (Francis) Seymour, Lady (Frederick) Roberts, and Mrs. Mountsteven.

This Charity, of which Princess Christian is Patroness and the Duke of Cambridge is Patron, is as modest and unobtrusive as it is deserving. The fund grants annuities not exceeding forty pounds to ladies in necessitous circumstances, being exclusively the widows and unmarried daughters of deceased officers in her Majesty's Army, inclusive of the Royal Marines. My dear readers, there is as much misery and wretchedness among these poor gentlewomen as there is, in degree, among sempstresses. The poor ladies suffer in secret. They are the real pauvres honteuses. They cannot dig; to beg they are ashamed; and very often they lack (through early deficiency in training) the capacity to become governesses. Not every daughter of a poor half-pay officer can hope to become the spectacled instructress so admirably depicted by M. Du Maurier in this week's Punch, who is so whimsically astounded when her pupils, the Duke's daughters, tell her that they intend to become, respectively, great painters, pianistes, and actresses. So, when you have done laughing over your Punch, remember Wednesday, the 29th instant, and betake yourself to the Duke of Wellington's Riding-School at Knightsbridge, and help the poor ladies who are languishing in elegant indigence and genteel hunger and shabbiness.

I never was, and I hope that I never shall be, ashamed of making a confession of sheer crass ignorance. I declare that until the other day I did not know that there was no such word in the English language as Starvation. The circumstance that, as a boy, I did not learn English out of grammars and dictionaries may have had something to do with my shocking ignorance. But, happening recently to be delving (I think for a purpose heraldic) in the "Encyclopædia Perthensis," published in the early years of the present century, I came on the following entry:—

> STARVATION, n. s. (from starve), a word first used by Lord Viscount Melville, then Mr. Secretary Dundas, in the House of Commons. It is not yet generally adopted; but the English language stands in need of it, for it has no synonym, that we recollect, to express the same idea. Famine expresses the dreadful state of a nation, or country, or quarter of the globe in total want of provisions; starvation expresses the melancholy condition of a family or individual without meat, money, or work to procure it. It also implies, as the verb does, a deficiency of heat or clothing.

Now, I confess that, in the first instance, I was slightly incredulous as to Starvation not being a legitimate English word, because I was, and am still, haunted by the impression of having somewhere read that the illustrious but somewhat parsimonious John Churchill, Duke of Marlborough, used to be called "Starvation Jack" by his soldiers. But I searched in vain for the word in all the dictionaries which I (now) possess. I turned up Cruden's Concordance to the Scriptures and Mrs. Cowden Clarke's Concordance to Shakspeare, in vain. Then I turned to my Swift and to the "Drapier's Letters," knowing that I should find much there about misery and want and hunger. But, alack! one of the first phrases I came across satisfied me that there was no Starvation in Swift. "It is very well known," writes the "Drapier," "that they (the Irish labourers) are every day dying and rotting by cold and famine and filth and vermin as fast as can be reasonably expected." Swift would never have used the word Famine if he had had Starvation to the fore. In my despair I wrote to Professor W. W. Skeat. That learned philosopher was so kind as to send me in reply a slip from his Etymological Dictionary of the English Language, not wholly compiled yet, I imagine, in which "Starvation" is irremediably banned as "a ridiculous hybrid word now in common use." Professor Skeat notes that it is a Scottish word, but doubts its antiquity; and he mentions that it was first used in an English Parliamentary debate by Mr. Dundas, who proposed to subdue the rebellious Americans by "Starvation," and was nicknamed "Starvation Dundas" in consequence. It is clear, then, that we are no more entitled to talk of starvation than of "kill-ation," "wound-ation," or "beat-ation."

Mem.: Why do we laugh at, as vulgarians, the people who speak of "Ruination"? It is in the Dictionaries.

I learn that on Sunday, the nineteenth, the Hanover Gallery in New Bond-street was thrown open, between the hours of 6 and 8.30 p.m., to the members of the Sunday Society and their friends; and that, although the notice given was very short, between seven and eight hundred of the working classes went to the gallery to gaze on the great pictures of the "Daniel" and the "Moses with the Tables of the Law," in the collection of works painted by Mr. John Rogers Herbert, R.A. I hear that the interest shown by the working people in the exhibition was very great, and that they expressed a wish to deputations from various clubs to thank Mr. Herbert for the treat afforded them. On Sunday, the third of July, the Hanover Gallery will be again thrown open, and there will probably be an even greater attendance. Perhaps not much harm was done to the working classes last Sunday by the contemplation of pictures, mainly of a directly devotional and as directly elevating and ennobling character.

At Steinway Hall on Wednesday, the 22nd, Mr. Clifford Harrison, the accomplished son of a late favourite English tenor, gave before a fashionable audience a public Recital. Mr. Clifford Harrison is well known in intellectual society as an elocutionist of the very highest gifts and the most highly trained capacity. His voice is as clear, melodious, and sympathetic as his elocution is graceful and his delivery dramatic. He is to be congratulated on the success which he has deservedly achieved. I am one of those who believe in elocutionary training, and would like to see all young ladies and gentleman thoroughly taught the art not only of public speaking but of oratorical gesticulation. But, because we are the vilest public speakers in Christendom, and do not know what to do with our hands (I generally put mine in my pockets) when we get upon our legs, we are accustomed to sneer at studied elocution as "high falutin," "buncombe," "tall talk," "spoutomania," and the like.

Mem.: I have many definitions or suggestions for the definition of the name "Gesana." Will the spouse of the lady bearing that graceful but mysterious prænomen "bide a wee?" Next week I will open the budget of "Gesaniana."

In connection with "Beaconsfield" versus "Becon," or rather "Beckonsfield," a correspondent writes that at Lincoln College, Oxford, a representation of a beacon in a tun frequently occurs on the walls as a rebus in memory of Thomas Beckyngton, Bishop of Bath and Wells, who, about the year 1465, gave a sum of money towards building the Rector's lodgings. How about the old tavern sign of the Bolt-in-Tun? Was the Bolt a Beacon?

A correspondent, writing from Moulsey, Surrey, continues to be deeply exercised over the riddle ascribed to Archbishop Whately. He is evidently a gentleman with a strictly literal understanding; yet the riddle causes him to break forth in verse, thus:—

> Archbishop Whately's Riddle
> Seems really quite absurd:
> Boots were not then invented;
> So the "sound" could not be "heard."

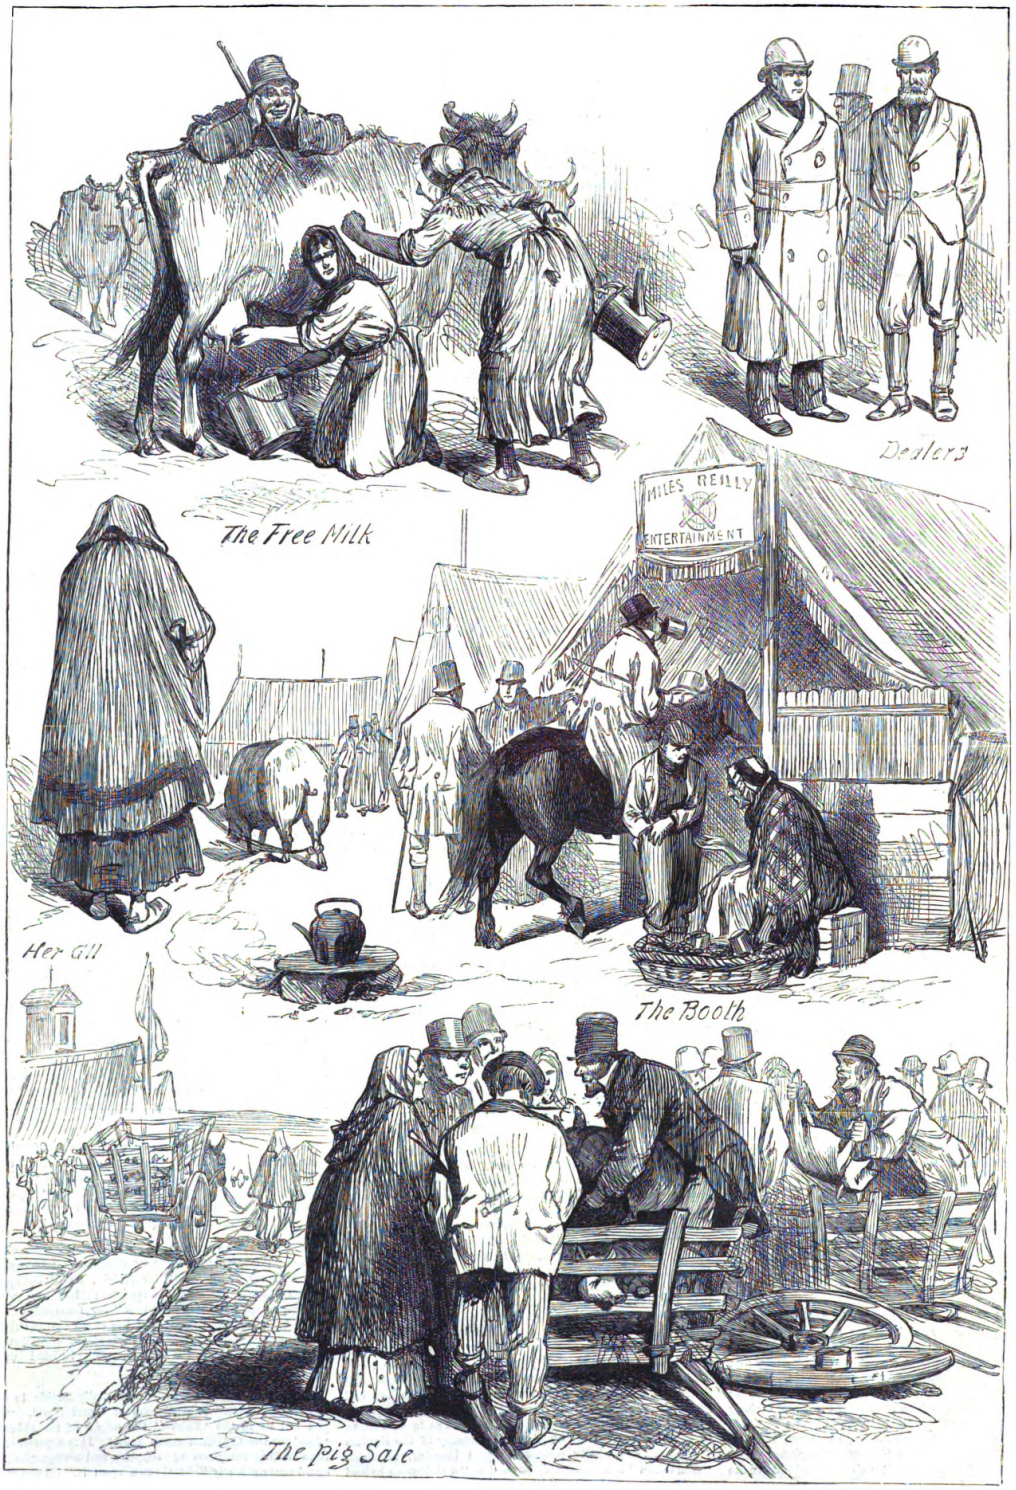
But did not Canning offer a witty explanation, which has found general acceptance, of the tardiness of the elephant in quitting the ark? He was detained, opined Canning, "packing up his trunk." Were trunks and portmanteaus, "warranted solid leather," known in the days of Admiral Noah? Several correspondents also indignantly point out, in the interests of natural history, that Noah's ark was not an aquarium, and that the "soles and eels" were outside and not inside the ark. I think that it is about time this controversy about "the sound of boots upon the stairs" should cease. The really trumpery little question has brought me so many letters that I am beginning to shudder at the sound of the postman's "highlows" on the doorstep.

Mem.: From the esteemed clergyman who originally asked for the solution of the riddle I have just received a note stating that he has learned from the very highest authority (from the daughter of Dr. Whately, indeed) that the Archbishop was not the author of the riddle. So the whole question tumbles over.

A respected American correspondent, writing from Hadley, near Barnet, after making one more contribution to the "Ralph" discussion, adds that "while 'Amurrican,' 'advertisement,' 'deepot,' 'bokay,' and also 'inquiry' and 'address' for inquiry and address, are far too common in America; they are not by any means universal."

Mem.: Is it customary, or only a facetious Americanism, to say "deputised" instead of deputed? "Orleecus" for New Orleans, "Mobilly" for Mobile, and "Bosting" for Boston, are manifestly vulgarisms; but do well-bred Americans ever say "Connetticut" for Connecticut; and is the full "Saint" in the name of the city of St. Louis, which we pronounce "S'nt," with even the slight suspicion of an i between the s and the n, invariably insisted upon by Americans?

A cognate question, which I am wholly unable to answer, comes to me from "J. M.," Inns of Court Hotel. "Would you tell us in the 'Echoes' the origin of the abbreviation 'Jno' for the Christian name John? It is a question I have been asking for years of scholars and antiquaries; but I could never get any light thrown upon it." Thus "J. M." The most irritating thing is, that there is a very simple explanation of "Jno" for John. I have seen this explanation in print, somewhere; but am utterly unable to recall it to mind. But I will dig and delve in my common-place book between this and next week. G. A. S.



SKETCHES AT AN IRISH CATTLE FAIR.

A JAPANESE ARCHERY HOUSE.

It has often come in our way to notice the amusing Illustrations of Japanese social and domestic life and manners, furnished by Mr. Wirgman, of Yokohama, and by other resident or travelling Artists, who have used their observant eyes and skilful pencils among that entertaining nation of the Asiatic Far East. Mr. Joseph Bell, our Special Artist now roving about in that region of the globe, has been looking about him in the great metropolitan city formerly named Jeddo, which now bears the name Tokio by an Imperial decree of the Mikado; and he has visited one of the accustomed places of recreation for natives of the leisurely and elegant class. It is a tea-house, built of thin wood and paper in the midst of a grove or garden, and simply furnished with a few mats and stools, and with a small charcoal-fire box to keep the tea-kettle always boiling: just the nicest place that can be devised for lounging through a warm summer afternoon. The special kind of diversion that is offered to ladies and gentlemen in this apartment, in the intervals of music and singing or play-acting, which are provided in the theatre at the appointed hours, is a little mild archery practice, reminding us of the miniature rifle-shooting gallery and target, often seen at an English popular holiday meeting. Here are two Japanese visitors—nay, we perceive that he is a real Englishman, and not a Japanese wearing the polite European dress—here is our Special Artist himself, accompanied by an amiable Japanese young lady, to whom he is paying courteous attentions, both now innocently proving their comparative dexterity in the use of the harmless bow and arrow, at an indoor range of six or seven yards. It seems a very pretty sort of occupation for such idle minutes as most people sometimes contrive to while away, in something or other which is called "pastime," because it helps them to pass the time.

THE LATE MR. S. A. HART, R.A.

THE LATE MR. S. A. HART, R.A.

The death of this veteran artist, who held the office of Librarian to the Royal Academy, was recorded last week. Mr. Solomon Alexander Hart was of the Jewish race and religion. He was born at Plymouth, in 1806, but his father, who was an artist and pupil of Northcote, came to dwell in London, and here Solomon Hart entered the Royal Academy as a student in 1823, and exhibited his first work, a miniature of his father, in 1826. He continued for a time to paint miniatures for a livelihood, but showed his first exhibition oil-picture, "Instructions," at the British Institution in 1828, and the "Elevation of the Law," which was purchased by Mr. Vernon, at the Suffolk-street Gallery in 1830. In the same year he produced "Isaac of York in the Donjon of Front-de-Bœuf." "Wolsey and Buckingham," 1834; and "Cœur de Lion and the Soldan Saladin," 1835, led to his election as an Associate of the Royal Academy. In 1840 he was elected a Royal Academician. During a visit to Italy in 1841-2 he made an elaborate series of drawings, originally intended for publication, of architectural interiors and sites famous in history. Mr. Hart employed the materials then collected in several pictures. Of his works "Menasseh Ben Israel Pleading with Oliver Cromwell for the Admission of the Jews" was the most successful. Great pains were taken with this work, which was designed by the artist as an offering to the memory of the Protector, by whose statesmanship the ancestors of the painter had been permitted to settle in England. Mr. Hart also painted landscapes and portraits, and contributed to the Athenæum, the Jewish Chronicle, and other periodicals. He served repeatedly on the hanging committee of the Royal Academy and on the committee of the Athenæum Club. In 1857 he succeeded Mr. Leslie as Professor of Painting in the Royal Academy, and in 1865 was appointed by the Queen librarian of that institution. Mr. Hart contributed to the present exhibition of the Royal Academy a picture of "A Hoarder," who locks up a casket, saying to himself, in the words from "The Merchant of Venice,"

Safe bind safe find,
A proverb never stale in thrifty mind.

AN IRISH CATTLE FAIR.

The harshness and bitterness of the Land League agitation, and the hateful acts of murderous malice instigated by false notions concerning agrarian property, have not yet entirely deprived Irish rustic life of its humorous and diverting aspects. It is still possible for the benevolent spectator at a country fair or market, such as our Special Artist has delineated in his Sketches that fill the opposite page, to relish the picturesque oddity of various figures and groups of those vivacious Western peasantry, whose real welfare, by just and prudent measures, we earnestly wish to promote. The cow and the pig—more power to both of them! are here manifestly brought forward as the natural allies of husbandry and home thrift, in the practice of this class of petty agriculturists, unfortunately too numerous for the extent and fertility of their land. There is something both comic and pathetic in their familiar association with these domesticated animals, which yield, living or dead, an essential part of the subsistence of the humble families. "Her All!" is the motto which our sympathising Artist subscribes to his Sketch of a poor widow driving a pig to market; while, in the ideal foreground, by an imaginative license almost poetical, he has introduced the good woman's tea-kettle, the simple solace of her bare household existence, to be kept up only by the price of her pig. "The Free Milk," in the Sketch just overhead, betrays the perpetration of a heartless act of petty larceny, and the consequent rightful indignation of another dame, proving that milk is not always quite so innocent as may be supposed. The arrival of farmers and dealers at the fair, some on horseback, from a distance of many miles, and gladly partaking of liquid refreshments at Miles Reilly's booth in the field, introduces men of different classes, keen bargainers all of them, and neither more nor less truthful in their assertions than such people are apt to be in other countries. Cart-loads of swine, literally crammed into the vehicles, which have had the wheels taken off to be lowered to the ground for more convenient inspection, are scrutinised by the critical customers, handled, poked, lifted and "hefted," as they say in the West; the vendor's gesture reminding us of that English poulterer, in a once popular representation of the "Humours of a Country Fair":—

Feel the weight of that duck, ma'am, do just feel—
It was fed three times a day, on barley meal!

But the Irish pig is seldom fattened on that material. It used to be said that it was he who paid the "rint." In too many cases, it is to be feared, he has lent an ear to the Land League, and has been dissuaded from performing his obligations on quarter-day.

A JAPANESE ARCHERY HOUSE IN JEDDO.

THE DUKE OF ALBANY.

In the House of Lords, on Monday evening, the Queen's youngest and fourth son, his Royal Highness Prince Leopold George Duncan Albert, recently created Duke of Albany, Earl Clarence, and Baron Arklow, took his seat among the Peers of the United Kingdom. Prince Leopold, as we shall be permitted still to call him, retaining in popular usage the name under which his personal character has justly won public esteem, is twenty-eight years of age, having been born on April 7, 1853. He is the youngest but one—namely, Princess Beatrice—of the nine children born to her Majesty and to the late Prince Consort. He was educated mainly by private tutors, but in 1872 matriculated at the University of Oxford, and is well known to have inherited a large share of his father's taste for literature and art, and of the intellectual habits of studious reflection, by which Prince Albert was so highly distinguished. A certain lack of physical robustness has debarred Prince Leopold from those pursuits of the English sportsman for which his elder brothers have shown much predilection, and he has, perhaps from the same cause, not yet undertaken any distant travels. There is good hope, nevertheless, that his health in future years will be such as to enable him to bear an active part in the offices of social usefulness for which he seems peculiarly fit, and of which the late Prince Consort has left a perfect example. The title of Duke of Albany, which originally belonged to junior members of the ancient Scottish Royal family, has been revived, by the Queen's good pleasure, in favour of this esteemed young Prince. We trust that he will bear it through a long and happy life.

Our Portrait of his Royal Highness is from a photograph taken by the Electric Light Process of Mr. Van der Weyde, in Regent-street.

PARISIAN SAYINGS AND DOINGS.

(From our own Correspondent.)

Paris, Tuesday, June 21.

Troubles in Algeria, riots at Marseilles, speeches and triumphal progress of M. Jules Ferry in the Vosges, discussion of the Budget in the Chamber, the visit of the Minister of the Bey of Tunis, close of the Salon, the departure of tout Paris for the seaside and the thermal springs—such are some of the leading topics of the day. The troubles in Algeria are being stirred up by some of the frontier Arab tribes, under the leadership of Bou Amena. The riots of Marseilles broke out on Friday last. It appears that as the first detachment of troops, returning from Tunis, was passing the Italian Club at Marseilles some Italians hissed. This incident caused great excitement among the people, and during Saturday and Sunday there was a general mêlée in the streets, and fighting and stabbing between the French and Italian workmen, who are very numerous (49,000) at Marseilles. Several persons were killed, some thirty or forty seriously wounded, and the streets had to be occupied by the military in order to restore external order. Even yesterday the streets were by no means safe. To-day order once more reigns in the town.

During his visit to the Vosges, M. Jules Ferry delivered, at Epinal, an important speech, which has thrown all other political events of the week into the shade. M. Ferry's speech is an echo of M. Gambetta's recent speech at Cahors; it may be summed up in two words—neither revision nor division. M. Ferry traced the line of conduct to be followed at the coming elections; dwelt upon the considerable results obtained by the moderate Republicans during the past four years under the protection of the Constitution, all attempts at the revision of which he strongly condemned. Furthermore, as long as the Legitimists and other enemies of the Republic had not disarmed, M. Ferry deprecated the division of the Republicans into Tories, Moderates, and Radicals. This speech has been received everywhere with a chorus of applause, except by the Radicals; it may safely be said to correspond with the average sentiments of the nation, which, when left to itself, is not readily led astray by the wild divagations of party journalism.

At a banquet of the Combmakers at Saint-Mandé on Sunday last M. Gambetta made a few reassuring remarks as to the state of the French nation, the powerlessness of the rival parties, enemies of the Republic and the happiness and democratic solidarity of the people. M. Gambetta declared it to be his opinion that a French Republic would never resemble any other Republic, and that the French would always have, thanks to a sort of gift of the national character, a gaiety, a sweetness of manners, an openness of heart, a good taste, which other nations might envy. There is certainly an immense sum of happiness in France, and nowhere does one see its expression more strikingly and more agreeably than in popular meetings and fêtes. The national fête on July 14 last year was a spectacle never to be forgotten, and preparations are already being made for a repetition of it next month. The general features will be the same as last year, and everything leads one to anticipate an equal if not a greater outburst of popular enthusiasm.

The visit of Mustapha Bey to Paris has not been marked by any particular incident. His Excellency, like most of our Oriental visitors, has visited the Opera, some of the theatres, and other sights of Paris; he has been struck with the beauty and agility of the ladies of the corps de ballet; he has been received in state by the Minister of Foreign Affairs and by the President of the Republic, while zealous reporters have watched and faithfully recorded the smallest details of Mustapha's existence for the greater delectation of the newspaper readers.

The heading Déplacements et Villégiature has made its reappearance in the Parisian boulevard journals, and under it they record the departure of the Marquis X for Vichy, of Madame de Z for Dieppe, &c. The moment of the grand exodus has come, and from now until September it will not be chic to be seen on the Boulevards or riding in the Bois de Boulogne. Society has taken up its summer quarters on the coast of Normandy and Brittany and around the mineral springs of Auvergne. Apropos of the Brittany coast, it may interest some of your readers to know that the French have just discovered Dinard and the bay of Saint-Malo, which has hitherto been almost a British possession. A monster joint-stock company is being started to exploit the natural beauties and health-giving qualities of the bay, and an invasion of the Parisians may therefore be expected.

It seems to be fated that politics shall take up the greater part of my letter this week. The new novel, the book of the week, bears the significant title of "Monsieur le Ministre" (Paris, 1 vol., Dentu). M. Jules Claretie, however, has not treated the political world from a political point of view; his book is, as the sub-title truly indicates, a Parisian novel, roman parisien. It is a study of Parisian life of which the hero is a Minister of the Interior, the heroine an adventuress, and the secondary characters prominent Parisians, the prototypes of whom will occur to any one at all familiar with the political salons of Paris. It is a study of modern life, of Paris in 1881, by a Parisian who knows how to be an elegant sceptic and at the same time an idealist, and a philosopher while remaining homme du monde. "Monsieur le Ministre" is very brilliantly written, and, as I have already intimated, it is studied from life.

The Salon closed yesterday. From a financial point of view the exhibition has proved to be a great success, the receipts, 362,300f., being 100,000f. more than they were last year. The Palais de l'Industrie is now in the hands of an army of workmen, who are making it ready for the exhibition of electrical appliances, which is to open in August.

A clumsy attempt was made at St. Germain on Wednesday night, last week, to blow up the statue of Thiers, the erection of which last year was the occasion of a scandalous scene. The attempt was abortive. No trace of the culprits has been found.

M. Dufaure is very ill, and his life is almost despaired of by his friends.

T. C.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

GERMANY.

Leave of absence to recruit his health has been granted by the Emperor to Prince Bismarck. Herr von Botticher is named as the Chancellor's representative while he is away. Count Stolberg Wernigerode's request to be relieved of his offices in the Imperial and State services has been granted by the Emperor. The transfer of Herr Puttkammer from the Department of Public Worship at Berlin to the Home Office, and the appointment of Herr von Gossler, late President of the Reichstag, to the post so vacated, are formally announced.

GREECE.

The Cabinet has been completed by the appointment of M. Athanasiades, hitherto President of the Audit Board, as Minister of Finance. M. Athanasiades and MM. Kekakis and Romas, the new Ministers of Justice and Public Instruction, have taken the oaths of office. All three Ministers hold office for the first time.

RUSSIA.

The Imperial family left Gatschina on the 16th inst. for Peterhof. The road from the palace to the station was lined with mounted troops. A special train, preceded by a pilot engine, conveyed the Imperial party to Peterhof, where the Court will remain for the present.

An Imperial ukase was published on the 18th inst. appointing Senator Gotawzeff Assistant-Minister of the Interior, in place of M. Kukhanoff, who has been relieved of that post in order to be intrusted with a special mission.

Another discovery of concealed dynamite has been made by the St. Petersburg police. The police have for some time been dragging the Ekaterinhof Canal, and last Saturday they found two gutta-percha bags filled with dynamite, and connected by wires. Experts have pronounced the substance to be black dynamite mixed with nitro-glycerine, and it is believed to have been placed in the water very recently. The quantity in both bags was 1 cwt. 20 lb. A St. Petersburg telegram says that "the whole country is undoubtedly in a most disturbed state."

Of ten persons, including four women, convicted at the last political trial before the court-martial at Kieff, two were sentenced to death, and the remainder either to penal servitude or exile to Siberia. The Emperor has commuted the death sentences to penal servitude for life.

TURKEY.

Lord Dufferin had an audience of the Sultan on Tuesday to present his credentials. His Majesty received the Ambassador cordially, and at a private interview after the formal audience invited his Lordship to dine at the palace on the day following.

CANADA.

Both Houses of the British Columbia Legislature have adopted a bill for the reform of the Constitution of British Columbia. This year's Census fixes the population of Victoria, British Columbia, at 6364.

A telegram from London, published by the Toronto World, announces, on the authority of "a prominent and well-informed official," that Sir John Macdonald will be shortly raised to the Peerage, and will succeed the Marquis of Lorne as Governor-General of Canada.

According to the official report upon the recent great fire at Quebec, 6028 persons were burnt out. Of this number two thirds were uninsured, and have lost everything they possessed.

The magisterial inquiry into the causes of the disaster to the excursion steamer Victoria at London, Ontario, began on Monday.

AUSTRALIA.

A ball has been given by the Mayor of Adelaide in honour of the Princes Albert Victor and George of Wales.

A telegram from Melbourne, dated June 17, states that the bill for the reform of the Victoria Constitution has been passed by both Houses of Parliament. The measure reduces the qualifications for councillors to £100, and fixes the qualification for freehold electors at £10 and for occupiers at £25. Great satisfaction is felt at the settlement of the question.

The Agent-General for Queensland is advised of the safe arrival at Townsville, Queensland, of the ship Scottish Knight on the 15th inst.

On the 11th inst. the Corpus Christi procession took place in Lisbon, the King joining it. During the procession a panic occurred, and many of the priests fled.

The brewers' strike in New York has ended in a triumph for the masters. Many of the Union beer saloons which were professing to Boycott the masters' beer are said to have "simply continued on, and the leading brewers have been successful in obtaining new hands."

It is officially announced in New York that during May 117,482 immigrants arrived in the United States. Of these 10,700 were from England and Wales, 18,879 from Ireland, 11,418 from Canada, 34,310 from Germany, 16,523 from Sweden, and 6812 from Norway.

A wealthy manufacturer of Philadelphia has bought of the State of Florida four million acres of land—the largest purchase of land ever effected—with the intention of organising a great emigration scheme, with offices in England, France, and Germany.

Further details have been received of the loss of an Australian steamer, the Tararua, reported by telegraph some weeks ago. The steamer was wrecked on the Waipapa Reef, on a voyage from Dunedin to Melbourne, in a heavy fog, on the morning of April 29, with the loss of 104 lives.

The Calcutta correspondent of the Times states that the Indian Government has, with the approval of the Secretary of State, decided that the young Gaikwar of Baroda shall assume the administration of that State at the end of the year. He will then be nearly nineteen.

The Ashantee difficulty is at an end. The steam-ship Volta arrived at Madeira on Sunday, with Captains Barrow, Preston, Swinburne, Paine, and Underwood, of the special staff of Sir Samuel Rowe, bringing the golden war axe from the Ashantee King for the acceptance of Queen Victoria, as a token of his sincere desire for peace, together with 1400 oz. of gold—a portion of the indemnity. At the final interview of the Ashantee Ambassadors with the Governor, Sir Samuel Rowe instructed them to inform the King of Ashantee that the British Government would not consent to the conclusion of any treaty with the King so long as he permitted the practice of human sacrifices to continue. The Ambassadors gave bonds for the payment of the balance of the indemnity (600 oz.), and one of them will remain at Cape Coast Castle as security for its payment.

A mission, composed of seventy-two persons, has arrived at Cairo bearing friendly letters and presents from King John of Abyssinia to the Khedive, together with a sum of 45,000 dols. for presentation to the Coptic Patriarch. The latter will be requested by the members of the mission to appoint a Bishop for Abyssinia.

An official inspection of the St. Gothard Railway has been completed. According to the report of the inspector, the lines of access will be ready for traffic some time in the autumn, and the mails may regularly traverse the great tunnel before the beginning of the winter. No opinion is expressed as to when the entire line will be opened for through traffic.

The New York papers state that two claimants to the Tichborne estates have recently appeared, one at Winnipeg (Manitoba) and the other at San Francisco, both pretending to be Sir Roger Tichborne. The account adds that the San Francisco claimant was subjected to a rigid examination by an eminent lawyer, who declares him to be either the real Roger Tichborne or a most adroit swindler. The Duke of Sutherland and Dr. Russell also had an interview with him during their stay in San Francisco.

Telegrams from Tunis report that a serious accident happened on the 17th inst. on board a steam-pinnace belonging to H.M.S. Monarch at Goletta, the port of Tunis. The boat was manned for experiments, when an explosion occurred, whereby one officer was killed and eight men were wounded, one of whom has since died. Captain Tryon, in his message to the Admiralty, states that two pounds and a quarter of gun-cotton exploded. Reuter, however, alleges that a number of torpedoes exploded.

During a parade of Barnum's menagerie and circus in Salem, Mass., a week or two ago, the six horses drawing the big glass cage that held forty serpents of various sizes became unmanageable and ran away. The cage was smashed and the streets strewn with a medley of anacondas, boa-constrictors, and other reptiles. There was, an American paper says, "a general stampede of the immense throng of spectators, even the unterrified small boy seeking refuge up lamp-posts and trees. The keepers succeeded, however, in recapturing the scaly monsters without injury or loss."

ART-UNION OF LONDON.

This society is now exhibiting at their new galleries, 112, Strand, the painted drama in five scenes, by Mr. Frith, R.A., entitled "The Road to Ruin," which attracted so much attention when exhibited at the Royal Academy a few years back. It will be remembered that the series represent the career of a young man who, commencing with gambling in his rooms at Oxford, ends by committing suicide in an attic. These fine pictures were purchased by the London Art-Union, and very satisfactory engravings of the set have been made by Mr. L. Flameng, and will be issued to subscribers for the current year; a chance in the annual prize distribution also attaching to each subscription. No doubt the Art-Union act wisely, from every point of view, as well as liberally, in offering this, the handsomest guinea's-worth they have ever produced. "Esthetes" may pretend that art has no business to have a didactic purpose; but these pictures tell a story and enforce a moral well, and the reproductions of them are likely to do good wherever they go.

The Duke of Beaufort presided on Monday at the annual meeting of the National Training School for Cookery, which was held at Devonshire House, Piccadilly. Amongst the speakers was the United States Minister, who expressed his sense of the importance of the question and his earnest hope that an entire reform might be effected by the training which the association sought to bring about. The report stated that the depressed condition of business in the country had adversely affected the funds, though, in spite of financial difficulties, good work had been done during the year.

The annual official inspection of the 5th Lancashire Rifle Volunteers (Liverpool Rifle Brigade) took place last Saturday in Sefton Park, the inspecting officer being Colonel H. de Renzy Pigott. The corps, under the command of Lieutenant-Colonel Tilney, C.B., mustered 855 of all ranks, the total strength of the battalion being 961. After having witnessed the evolutions and carefully inspected officers and men, Colonel Pigott expressed himself well pleased with the way in which the movements had been executed, and intimated that he should report favourably of the regiment to the War Office. It was stated that the regiment will attend the Windsor review.

James M'Grath and James M'Kevitt, who are in custody on a charge of having attempted to blow up the Liverpool Townhall, were brought up on remand last Saturday. Amongst the evidence given was that of Dr. Campbell Brown, the public analyst for the city, who stated that the bomb had been filled with a compound resembling nitro-glycerine. A detonating cap found on one of the prisoners was charged with fulminating mercury, a highly explosive substance. Both men were sent for trial. M'Grath was also committed on similar charges in respect to the explosion at the police-office, the wooden plugs found in the bomb which exploded there having been identified by a joiner, who made them for M'Grath.

An entire week has been devoted to the proceedings of the Domestic Economy Congress, which was inaugurated on Monday by a conversazione and musical promenade in the Royal Albert Hall and in the adjacent conservatory of the Horticultural Society, where there was a display of flowers. The business consisted mainly of the reading of papers and discussions thereon, which took place from day to day in the great room of the Society of Arts, John-street, Adelphi. The Needlework Section Committee have collected together a small but representative exhibition of plain needlework, which will be on view at the Royal Albert Hall during the meeting of the congress.

On Wednesday the forty-fourth annual meeting of the Yorkshire Union of Mechanics' Institutes was held at Pontefract. The proposal extended over two days, and included both business and pleasure. Sir Edward Baines, President of the Union, took the chair at the conference in the Townhall; and the evening meeting in the Congregational School-Room, at which the special prizes, including those of the Clothworkers' Company, were distributed, was presided over by Lord Houghton. On Thursday morning visitors inspected the objects of interest in that historical town; the afternoon being devoted to an excursion to Broc-o-Dall, Wentbridge, closing with a luncheon at Carlton Grange.

THE PLAYHOUSES.

While Madame Sarah Bernhardt is delighting refined audiences every night at the Gaiety Theatre as Marguérite Gauthier in "La Dame aux Camélias" and Gilberte in "Frou-Frou;" while the stock Gaiety company have taken decorous Sadler's Wells by storm with "The Forty Thieves," and Mr. and Mrs. Bancroft find no diminution in the admiration of their numerous and distinguished patrons for "Society" and "Good for Nothing;" while the brilliant success of the revival of "Hamlet" at the Lyceum—a revival not necessitated by any falling off in the popularity of "Othello," or of the "Corsican Brothers," or of "The Cup," but made simply because Mr. Irving, in his managerial thoughtfulness and artistic modesty, did not wish to give his audiences a surfeit of "toujours perdrix," and so favoured them with a change of dramatic diet; while Madame Helena Modjeska, at the Princess's, is taking a farewell, much to be regretted, in a series of her most characteristic performances; while the management of the Adelphi have discovered, to their pleasant surprise, that "Michael Strogoff," after a three months' run, has not yet lost its attractiveness, and have prudently kept Mr. Byron's clever version of the stirring French spectacle in the bills; and while the wondrously well-disciplined Meiningeners at Drury Lane have added the grotesquely melodramatic "Ahnfrau," the classic but tedious "Iphigenia auf Tauris," and the romantic "Fiesco" to their repertory;—while, in fine, twenty first-class London theatres are nightly drawing good houses, and half a score more in the outlying districts of the metropolis are doing a capital business, and new theatres are being built in every direction, it would be idle to contend that the drama is declining.

Its present popularity fills me, indeed, with amazement, remembering as I do the days when theatrical management almost invariably ended in bankruptcy, and yet when good plays were numerous and first-rate actors and actresses abundant. The talents of Vestris and Charles Mathews, even with the assistance of Liston and Wrench as comedians, and of Planché and Charles Dance as dramatists, were insufficient to make the Olympic pay; nor were they more financially successful in their splendid management at Drury Lane, and long years afterwards at the Lyceum. Mr. Maddox made a tolerably large fortune at the Princess's; but Mr. Augustus Harris, per, lost a small fortune there. Covent Garden ruined Professor Anderson, the "Wizard of the North." Drury Lane certainly did not make Mr. Macready a millionaire; and it utterly ruined Jullien, Falconer, and crippled Mr. Chatterton. I will say nothing about Mr. Joseph Stammers, because he rather seemed to like ruin than otherwise. It refreshed him. The English Opera-House broke Michael William Balfe, who, were he living now, would probably be making ten thousand a year as a composer of opéra bouffe. Alfred Bunn, Poet and Gentleman-at-Arms, was, between Covent Garden and Drury Lane, in a state of chronic collapse. Mr. Phelps did not acquire riches at Sadler's Wells; Mr. John Mitchell was not a great gainer by the French plays at the St. James's, which, in conjunction with the Colosseum, had helped to ruin John Braham; Mrs. Davidge lost at the Surrey Theatre the large fortune made there by her husband in the "Black-Eyed Susan" days; and the mantle of Mr. Osbaldistone, in a money-making sense, assuredly failed to fall on the shoulders of his successors in the management of the Victoria. Even the sumptuous Shakspearean revivals produced by Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kean at the Princess's brought them, in the long run, more renown than hard cash; that veteran caterer for the amusement of the public, Mr. E. T. Smith, subsided into an unsuccessful promoter of a wine-vaults in the City; poor John Baldwin Buckstone died in indigence; and Fortune has frowned most unkindly on Benjamin Webster. What was the cause of these most melancholy vicissitudes? Here were a number of shrewd and experienced managers, many of them (I had forgotten Fechter) first-rate actors themselves. They gathered splendid companies around them; they produced multitudes of brilliant acting plays, many of which were original; and yet, as a rule, the culmination of long years of labour and endeavour was disastrous financial failure.

I repeat that to contrast the present with the bygone state of the Playhouses fills me with amazement. Very nearly all that modern managers touch seems to turn to gold. Amended versions of long-since-translated French pieces have tremendous runs. Dramas that were declared to be worn threadbare half a score years ago are revived with immense success. Casting my eyes down the list of performances at the twenty first-class theatres on Wednesday, June 22, I find that at ten of them the leading attraction is either a play, or an opéra bouffe translated from the French, or a foreign piece performed in a foreign tongue. And I feel equal cause for astonishment when I am told of the earnings of actors and actresses of the present day and contrast them with the modest salaries paid to leading dramatic artistes forty or even twenty years ago. I believe that until that admired actress Miss Herbert assumed the management of the St. James's Theatre her salary never exceeded ten pounds a week. An actress of her calibre would now command from fifty to eighty pounds a week; and young walking gentlemen of the "Charles his Friend" type, who were formerly content to receive from thirty shillings to two pounds, now complacently draw their five and even eight pounds weekly. There is one other thing that fills me with bewilderment. At the first-class theatres the price of admission to the stalls is, as a rule, ten shillings. Where on earth do the "gilded youth" who nightly throng the stalls of our fashionable theatres (and who smoke their cigarettes in the corridors) procure the half sovereigns to pay for their stalls withal? They are not all, surely, eldest sons of peers or heirs to large landed estates, or junior partners of Sir Gorgius Midas. Say that, on a very moderate computation, they go to the play twice a week, how do they contrive to afford the fifty pounds a year? They must pay for their stalls; for the practice of indiscriminately "papering" the house, or sowing orders broadcast seems to be all but abandoned among managers.

There is nothing really interesting in the way of dramatic novelty to record this week; and although I deeply admire the Meiningeners, I think that my readers in this column, at least, have had enough of dissertation on the acted German drama, and panegyrics on the astonishing skilful grouping of the supernumeraries at Drury Lane—groupings which in their almost perfect but somewhat monotonous mechanism remind me equally of the automaton figures in the Strasburg clock and military skirmishing drill in fancy dresses. So I have indulged in a brief general conspectus of things dramatic. In conclusion, I may note a special Amateur Performance which took place at the Imperial Theatre on Tuesday, the 21st, for the benefit of Mr. Coe. The performance comprised a laughable medley piece called "White and Brown," and the comedy of "The Serious Family," which a gentleman in the stalls was heard loudly to complain of as being a gross plagiarism from Mr. Burnand's "Colonel." Among the performers were several pupils of Mr. Coe; and "The Serious Family" was very vivaciously played, and displayed no objectionable admixture of the amateur element. In "White and Brown" much merriment was excited by Mr. W. Webster as Mr. Peter White, Miss Pressenger as Mrs. White, and Miss Feildman as the Widow White. The début of the last-named young lady was a decidedly successful one. She had but a small part of the "Lady Gay Spanker" order, but she made the most of her opportunities, and by her pleasing presence, her lively elocution, and her graceful carriage, at once attracted favourable attention.

G. A. S.

MUSIC.

ROYAL ITALIAN OPERA.

The specialty of this week has been the production of "Il Demonio," the latest stage work of Herr Anton Rubinstein, whose previous opera, "Néro," has, like its successor, been received with much favour abroad. The remarkable pianoforte-playing of Rubinstein in this country, and the performances of several of his orchestral symphonies, pianoforte concertos, and other elaborate works have rendered his name familiar to the London public for several years past; and great interest attached to the first hearing in this country of an opera from his pen.

The work now referred to was given first—in Russian—at St. Petersburg in 1876; and afterwards (in 1879) at Moscow; a German version having been produced at Hamburg last year. The original book was based on a poem by Lermontoff. The incidents are of a romantic and supernatural kind, and may be thus briefly summarised: the Demon falls in love with Tamara (daughter of Prince Gudal), who is about to be wedded to Prince Sinodal, then on his way to the Castle of Gudal, where the marriage is to be celebrated. The Demon—repulsed by Tamara and by the interposition of the Angel of Light—causes her betrothed to be attacked and slain by Tartars; the arrival of the corpse being followed by the despair of Tamara, and her resolve to end her life in the cloister. The remembrance of the Demon's persecution still haunts her in her seclusion, and his appearance and mysterious influence are followed by the renewed interposition of the Angel of Light; the Demon being vanquished and consigned to the abyss, the nunnery destroyed by a thunderbolt, and Tamara—who has fallen dead—being seen amidst the ruins, borne aloft by angels.

The work is in three acts, in each of which there is some masterly dramatic writing, with strong contrasts between the expression of the demoniac, the human, and the angelic sentiment. The orchestral details are, throughout, highly skilful and effective, and full of colour and variety. The music of the introduction—illustrative of the storm, with the contrasted choruses of Evil Spirits, Winds, Waters, and Fountains, &c., and the Demon's declamatory phrases—is very characteristic. Among the most effective pieces in the first act may be specified the brilliant and florid solo music for Tamara, with chorus of attendant Maidens, rejoicing in the anticipation of the marriage festivities; the scene in which Tamara first experiences the evil influence of the Demon; that which follows, including the rejoicings of Prince Sinodal and his followers, the expressions of the Demon's vengeance, and the catastrophe of the Tartar attack.

The second act opens with some spirited concerted writing for the assembled guests at the castle (comprising some bright ballet-music), this being powerfully contrasted by the following expressions of dismay and horror at the arrival of the body of Prince Sinodal. The solo passages for Tamara are very dramatic; and here, as elsewhere, Madame Albani sang and acted in the highest style of vocal and histrionic excellence. Very good, also, are the phrases in which the Demon seeks to console Tamara, those of Tamara's farewell to her home; and the following climax expressing the general desire for vengeance, this bringing the second act to an effective close.

The third act is shorter than the others, and is chiefly noticeable for a prolonged scene, in the Nunnery between Tamara and the Demon; a fine piece of declamatory writing, in which the varied emotions of each character are well expressed. This important movement was sung and acted to perfection by Madame Albani and M. Lassalle. This gentleman had, indeed, in previous scenes given fresh proofs of that vocal and dramatic skill which he has manifested in other characters. The concluding music—the tranquil and soothing phrases for the Angel of Light and the celestial chorus—comes with reposeful effect after the declamatory scene referred to, and the impassioned orchestral writing that accompanies the destruction of the nunnery. The co-operation of Madame Trebelli was of special value in the character of the Angel of Light, whose music derived its full impressiveness from the singer's rich voice and polished style. Signor Marini sang well as Prince Sinodal, as did Signor de Reszké as Prince Gudal; the part of the faithful old servant who follows the doomed lover having been efficiently filled by Signor Silvestri; and the less important characters of Tamara's Governess and Sinodal's messenger, respectively, by Mdlle. Ghiotti and Signor Sabater. The Italian text of the book used here is by Signor G. Vacotti, the English version being from the skilled and practised hand of Mr. J. Pittman.

The opera has been splendidly placed on the stage, Messrs. Dayes and Caney's scenery (especially the Hall of Prince Gudal's Castle) being very beautiful, and the costumes rich and appropriate.

Herr Rubinstein conducted, and was enthusiastically received; he and the principal singers having been several times called before the curtain. We shall take an early opportunity of speaking further of the music of "Il Demonio."

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

The first performance this season of "Carmen," on Thursday week, brought back Mdlle. Minnie Hauk, who repeated her well-known fine impersonation of the title-character; the part of Michaela having been transferred to Mdlle. Dotti. The cast was otherwise as before, including Signor Runcio as Don José and Signor Del Puente as the Toreador.

On Saturday Signor Campanini made his first appearance this season, and was well received in his performance as Faust, one that is too familiar to need fresh comment. Madame Nilsson again sang and acted with great effect as Margherita, the cast having been otherwise also as often before.

Boïto's "Mefistofele" was announced for reproduction on Thursday last, again with Madame Nilsson and Signori Campanini and Nanetti in the principal characters.

Mr. Kuhe's annual concert was again of special interest in its recurrence on Saturday afternoon at the Royal Albert Hall, having included brilliant vocal performances by Mesdames Albani, Sembrich, and Trebelli, and other eminent artists of the Royal Italian Opera, besides the skilful playing of Mr. Kuhe and M. Musin in pianoforte and violin solos.

Mr. John Boosey's last Morning Ballad Concert of the season took place at St. James's Hall on Saturday afternoon, when a varied and popular selection of vocal pieces was effectively rendered by well-known artists.

The series of Richter concerts closed this week, with the eighth and ninth performances. At the eighth, on Monday evening, the orchestral pieces were Beethoven's Overture to "Coriolan," and his "Eroica" Symphony—and the Overture and "Venusberg" music of Wagner's "Tannhauser—the remainder of the programme having consisted of Wagner's Anrede, and Hans Sachs's monologue from Wagner's "Die Meistersinger," the vocal portions of which were effectively declaimed by Herr Henschel. The series culminated, appropriately, on Thursday evening, with a performance of Beethoven's colossal Mass in D ("Missa Solennis"), of which we must speak next week.

The eighth and last of Mr. Charles Hallé's pianoforte recitals took place yesterday (Friday) afternoon.

Herr Rubinstein's third pianoforte recital took place, at St. James's Hall, on Monday afternoon, when he played, with his well-known characteristics, Beethoven's sonata in C minor (op. 111), Schumann's "Carneval," and a series of pieces by Chopin and Rubinstein. The fourth recital was announced for Thursday. Next Tuesday he will appear at the Musical Union's matinée; and he will give next Saturday afternoon an orchestral concert at the Royal Italian Opera, Covent-Garden.

Owing to Mr. Sims Reeves's continued indisposition, the remainder of his farewell oratorio performances have been postponed indefinitely; "Elijah," in which he was to have sung at the Albert Hall on Wednesday last, having, however, been given as promised, with the exception referred to.

The Royal Normal College for the Blind announced performances by the pupils at St. James's Hall on Wednesday afternoon—the proceeds of which are to be devoted to the establishment of a musician's scholarship.

A grand opera concert is announced for this (Saturday) afternoon, at the Royal Albert Hall, supported by the principal artists of Her Majesty's Theatre.

Mr. Bird, organist of St. Mary Abbots, gave his annual concert last Saturday morning at the New Townhall, Kensington. Mr. Frank Elmore and Madame Strindberg-Elmore's annual complimentary benefit concert took place at Aberdeen House last Tuesday evening. Mr. Isidore de Lara gave a matinée musicale at the Marlborough Rooms on Wednesday; and, in the evening, Herr A. Kummer (violinist) gave a concert at the Royal Academy of Music; the last subscription concert of the South London Choral Association taking place at the same time in St. James's Hall. Herr Heino Hugo gave a vocal and instrumental concert on Thursday evening at the Royal Academy of Music.

The Madrigal Society has awarded the first prize for an original madrigal to Mr. Frank Moir.

The arrangements for the Norwich Musical Festival—beginning on Oct. 11—are complete. On the mornings there will be performances of "St. Paul," Dr. Sullivan's "Martyr of Antioch," Mendelssohn's music to "Athalie," the "Messiah," and a new sacred cantata, "Saint Ursula," composed expressly for the festival by Mr. F. Cowen—the libretto by Mr. R. E. Francillon. At the evening concerts, five new works will be performed:—An overture to Shakspeare's "King Henry V." by Mr. W. Macfarren; a musical ode, "The Sun Worshippers," by Mr. A. G. Thomas; a dramatic cantata, "Graziella," by Sir Julius Benedict—words by Mr. H. Hersee—a symphonic poem, "The Harvest Festival," by Mr. J. F. Barnett; and a new orchestral suite by Mr. E. D'Albert. Berlioz's "Faust" music will also be given at one of the evening concerts. The solo vocalists engaged are Madame Albani, Miss Mary Davies, Mrs. Osgood, Madame Patey, Madame Mudie-Bolingbroke, Mr. Edward Lloyd, Mr. Barton McGuckin, Mr. Santley, Mr. Brockbank, and Mr. F. King. Mr. Alberto Randegger, will be the conductor—Sir Julius Benedict, Dr. G. A. Macfarren, Dr. Sullivan, Mr. Cowen, Mr. Walter Macfarren, Mr. Barnett, and Mr. Thomas conducting their own compositions.

THE ROYAL ACADEMY EXHIBITION.

One page of this Number of our Journal is occupied by Sketches of the designs and composition of a few of the Pictures in the present Exhibition of the Royal Academy. These pictures have been noticed, with many others, by our Fine-Art Critic, in his account of the Exhibition. Not many words are therefore needful, upon the present occasion, with reference to works that have already become the subject of public comment.

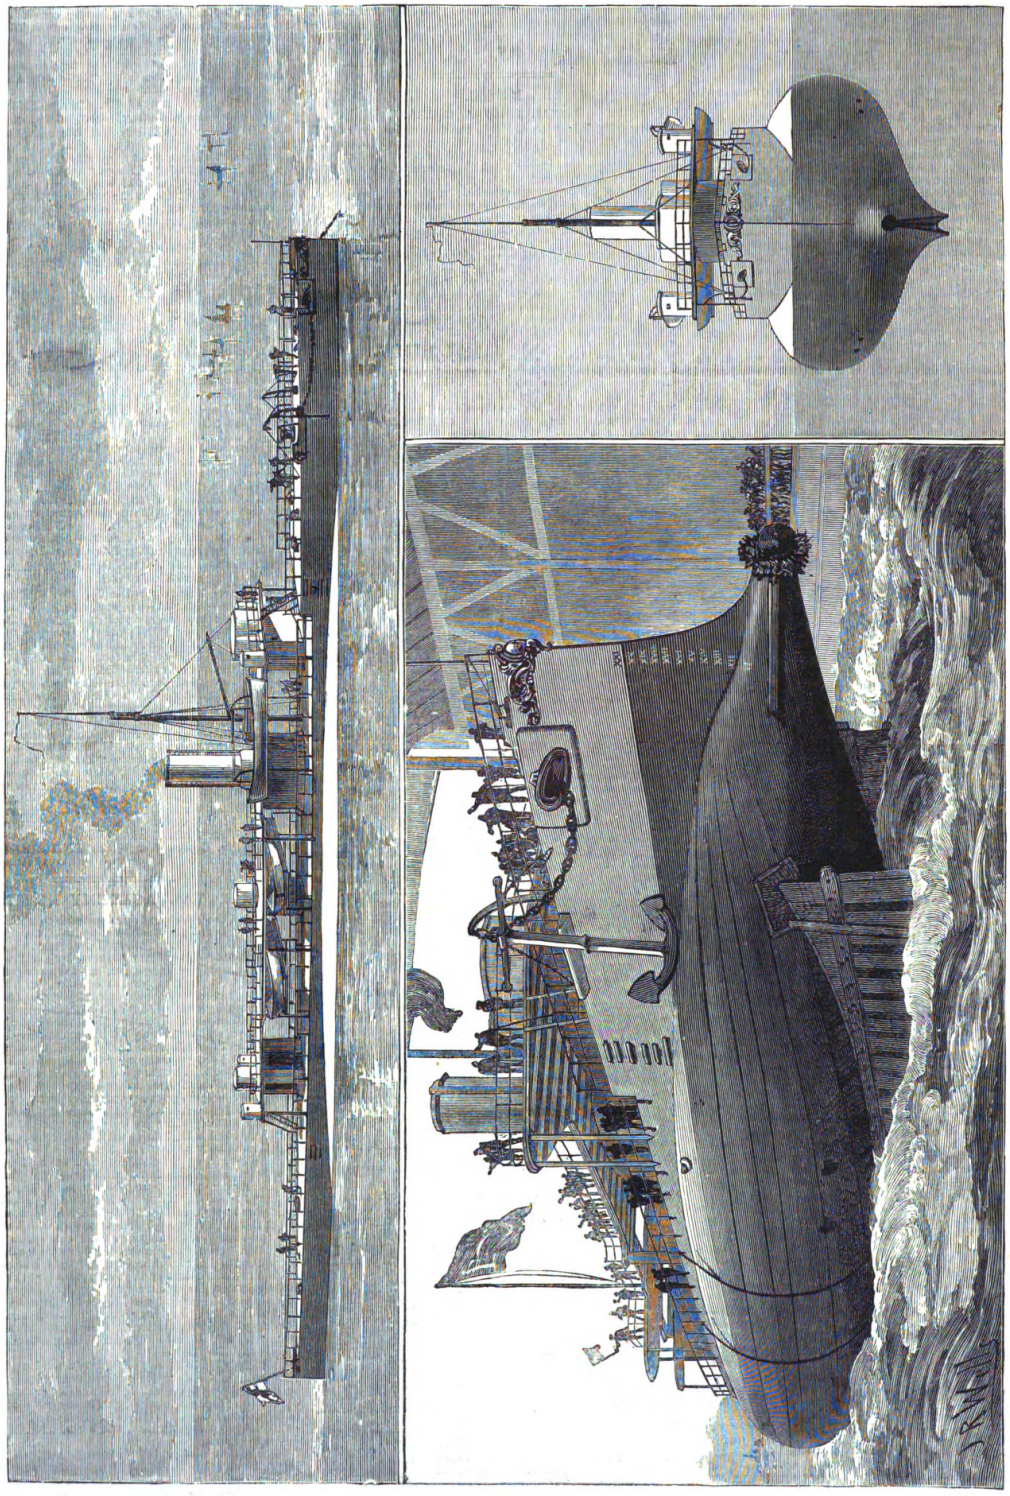
The first is "Cinderella," that charmingly true and natural representation of the simple heroine of the wonderful fairy tale, which the foremost of living English artists has painted for the Proprietor of the Illustrated London News. Its merits as a work of art have been generally appreciated, and such is the reputation of Mr. Millais that no one has had any notion of his being overpaid with three thousand guineas, the price which was agreed to by the owner of this picture on giving the commission for its execution. Our readers will look forward to the Christmas of 1882, when they may expect the pleasure of getting "Cinderella," finely printed in colours, as a Special Supplement to the Christmas Number. We feel quite sure that the estimation in which the picture is held by all who see it will not have diminished at the end of next year.

The readers of Nathaniel Hawthorne's deeply interesting story "The Scarlet Letter" will be disposed also to recognise in Hester Prynne, as depicted by Mr. Boughton, another successful attempt of the painter to invest with a visible shape and countenance the author's ideal conception of personal character. Hester appears at the door of a cottage, built in the old rustic fashion, of wooden planks or shingles, common in America at the date of the story. She wears the mysterious letter A, the token of a sin long repented and atoned for, but she comes with gifts of womanly and Christian kindness to visit and relieve the sick poor. "None so self-devoted as Hester, when pestilence stalked through the town. She came not as a guest, but as a rightful inmate, into the house that was darkened by trouble."

A Bishop at the Zoological Society's Gardens, in calm contemplation of the Egyptian pelicans, is introduced by the title of "An Episcopal Visitation;" and is a fair example of that quaint and pregnant humour, rich in suggestiveness of partial or apparent congruity, but of qualities and characteristics of an essential opposiiteness, which Mr. H. S. Marks has the power to express.

The wildly and weirdly romantic tale, an old Italian story, related by Tennyson in his poem of "The Golden Supper," has obtained an illustration in Mr. Herbert Gandy's picture. It shows Julian in the act of carrying home the seemingly inanimate form of Camilla—happily not really dead—to "the mother's house where she was born."

The other three pictures, the designs of which are here reproduced, require no explanation, being those masterly renderings of landscape scenes, by Mr. Colin Hunter, Mr. M'Whirter, and Mr. Leader, respectively entitled "The Mussel-gatherers," "Mountain Tops," and "February Fill-dyke." They have been very much admired, and these mere Sketches of their subjects may serve to recall the pictures to the mind's eye.



LAUNCH AT CHATHAM DOCKYARD.

H.M.S. POLYPHEMUS, NEW TORPEDO RAM.

BOW VIEW, SHOWING HULL BELOW WATER LINE.—SEE PAGE 620.

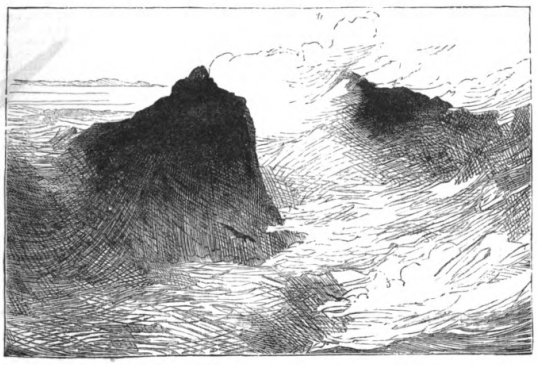
SKETCHES OF PICTURES IN THE ROYAL ACADEMY EXHIBITION.

SEE PAGE 623.

CINDERELLA. J. E. MILLAIS, R.A.

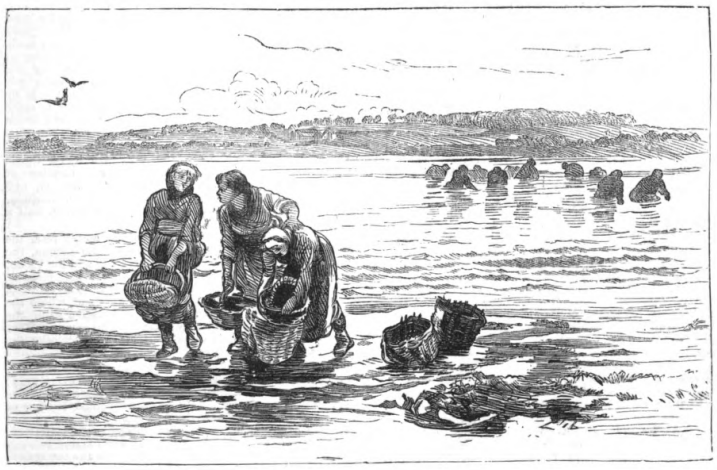
HESTER PRYNNE. G. H. BOUGHTON, A.R.A.

AN EPISCOPAL VISITATION. H. S. MARKS, R.A.



MOUNTAIN TOPS. J. M'WHIRTER, A.R.A.

FEBRUARY FILL DYKE. B. W. LEADER.



MUSSEL GATHERERS. COLIN HUNTER.

JULIAN AND CAMILLA. H. GANDY

MUSICAL PUBLICATIONS.

"Tarry, tarry, ere ye marry," is the title of a new song, composed by Mr. A. Scott Gatty, and published by Messrs. R. Cocks and Co. Of a lively and taking character, this will be acceptable to voices of limited range; as likewise will be Mr. A. J. Caldicott's pretty song "When all the world is young." From the same publishers we have two pleasing pianoforte pieces, a transcription, by Mr. Brinley Richards, of Donizetti's "O Santa Melodia," very effectively arranged; and a brilliant "marche militaire," entitled "Les Chevaliers," composed by J. Duval.

From Messrs. Novello, Ewer, and Co. we have received the Organist's Quarterly Journal, by Dr. Spark, which maintains its high character as a valuable addition to organ music.

Novello's collection of trios, quartets, &c., for female voices (issued by the same publishers) has reached its fourth volume, which contains a varied and interesting collection of pieces of vocal harmony by modern composers, English and foreign.

Among recent publications by Mr. Joseph Williams are several arrangements for the pianoforte of well-known themes from standard compositions. Mr. Kuhe has transcribed, in a very effective way, and free from difficulty, some of the prominent subjects from Sir Michael Costa's oratorios, "Eli" and "Naaman;" and Mr. J. B. Waldeck has arranged the charming "Ballet of Sylphs," from Berlioz's "Faust" music. The use of three staves, à la Thalberg, gives a specially full effect to the piece, which, however, is not particularly difficult. "Parfait Bonheur," by H. Roubier, and "La Cloche de Chamounix," by S. J. Schad, are spirited waltzes. "Sévénade Hongroise," by V. Joncières, is a pleasing piece, both melodious and brilliant. Mr. Joseph Williams has also issued some attractive vocal music. A series of favourite songs, for voice and piano, with obbligato accompaniment, begins with Gounod's charming serenade, "Quand tu chantes," with additional parts for violin, violoncello, organ, and flute. The series also includes Spohr's beautiful song "The Bird and the Maiden," with flute or clarinet; and other compositions bearing eminent names. "The two faces," by J. B. Waldeck; and "Land of Enchantment," by J. Leybach; are songs in a pleasing, melodious style, and within moderate compass. "The Progressive Music School," edited by J. Leybach, contains a series of easy pieces by various composers, calculated to interest and improve very juvenile players. Resch's popular gavotte, "Heimliche Liebe," has been issued by Mr. J. Williams in various forms—as piano solo, piano duet, and for violin and piano arranged by Mr. H. Farmer. In "Our Favourites," by C. Tourville, we have a collection of popular subjects, very easily arranged, for the benefit of little pianists.

"English Hands and English Hearts," by W. Spark, is a song (with chorus) with a good deal of national character in the melody, which is bold and spirited. "That dream of ours," song, by M. Watson, is a good specimen of the sentimental style. Both these are published by Messrs. Duff and Stewart; as also is "Some Night," a melodious song by Isidore de Lara.

Madame Patey's Vocal Tutor, published by Messrs. Patey and Willis, will be found a most useful compendium of rules for singers. It is suitable for soprano, mezzo-soprano, and contralto voices, and contains various exercises and scales. From the same firm we have some graceful songs, notably "The Dream of a Violet," and "The First, the Last," both composed by Joseph L. Roeckel, and easy as regards compass and execution.

Eleven part-songs by Franz Abt (also from Messrs. Patey and Willis) are written for two treble voices, and are all pleasingly melodious, and well suited for drawing-room use.

From the firm of J. B. Cramer and Co. we have a song, by that facile composer Ciro Pinsuti, "Minster Windows," full of expression and feeling. It is published in three different keys, to meet the requirements of various ranges of voices. Also a pretty valse, "L'Abandon," composed by W. H. J. Cambridge.

We notice a most useful instruction-book for the pianoforte, by F. W. Seume, from the house of C. Jefferys. It contains a variety of original exercises, and will be found a valuable aid to students.

Messrs. Metzler and Co. have recently published an acceptable addition to the répertoire of juvenile vocalists, entitled "Little Songs for Little Voices," composed by Alfred Scott Gatty. The name of this indefatigable caterer for youthful tastes is a guarantee for the wholesome fare offered. From the same firm we have a charming song by Joseph Barnby, "Light," which is a relief after the haze of commonplace through which we have too often to wade. We may also specify a graceful song by A. Goring Thomas, "A Summer Night," and "New and Original Compositions for Organ or American Organ," by Doctor William Spark; "Over London River," a song by Frederic Henley; and a pretty valse, "La Ruse d'Amour," by Georges Lamothe.

We have received from Messrs. Czerny and Co. several interesting songs; one by Mr. Berthold Tours, "Bright days to come," with violin, flute, or violoncello and pianoforte accompaniment, deserves especial notice, being graceful and flowing in melody, and effectively adapted for the instruments. "Thy time of roses," arranged for the voice by Mr. Czerny, from a violin romance by Mr. B. Tours, is melodious and pleasing, as are also "A tiny flowret," by George Gear; "Three trusty friends," by Frank L. Moir; "The Snowflakes Falling," by Edward Purcell Cockram; and "The Reaper," by F. L. Moir, which is somewhat more sentimental in character.

From Mr. Czerny's house we also have an effective transcription for the pianoforte, by E. Marlois, of the well-known Hungarian March, which is introduced in Berlioz's "Faust" music; and several numbers of Mr. Czerny's cheap series of choruses for ladies' voices, which have now reached upwards of fifty numbers, the contents being of a varied and interesting character.

Messrs. Forsyth Brothers have issued twelve easy drawing-room sketches for the pianoforte, by Immanuel Liebich, which will be found useful for teaching purposes. They are varied and pleasing in style, most of the numbers being based on national airs. "Children's Duets," for the pianoforte, by L. Leigh, will interest juvenile students. From Messrs. Forsyth we also have a very skilful and effective transcription for the pianoforte, by Mr. Charles Hallé, from Berlioz's "L'Enfance du Christ," the work which, it will be remembered, was recently produced by Mr. Hallé at Manchester, and in London.

"The Maiden's Dream" (third Rêverie), by Lillie Albrecht, published by Duncan Davison and Co., is a showy, yet graceful, pianoforte piece, in which a pleasing melody is very effectively embellished with ornamental passages.

C. Kuhne's Grammar of Music (Stanley Lucas, Weber, and Co.) contains a great deal of useful information in small compass. The mode adopted, of impressing the mind through the eye, is ingenious. Among the diagrams for this purpose are: the bar, illustrated by a basket of fruit: the circle of fifths in shape of a clock dial; expression represented by a light thrown upon a landscape, &c.

THE SILENT MEMBER.

Rarely in these unceremonious days has Black Rod (General Sir William Knollys) the honour to take part in a piece of State pageantry equalling the brilliant formality which surrounded with a certain old-world pomp the installation on Monday of H.R.H. Prince Leopold, Duke of Albany, Earl Clarence, and Baron Arklow, as a peer of the realm. The bright eyes of many a noble dame—the Princess of Wales with her daughters and Princess Mary being particularly noticeable in their favourite balcony—looked down on this Royal ceremonial, to which the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Cambridge contributed all the brightness they could by wearing their heavy peers' robes as they escorted the berobed Prince Leopold to the uncovered Throne. Other great dignitaries assisted, including the Duke of Norfolk (Earl Marshal) and Lord Aveland (Lord Great Chamberlain). The new peer, having taken the oath and signed the roll, was conducted by Black Rod and the other distinguished functionaries round the House to the Throne, on the left of which two chairs were placed for the Prince of Wales and the Duke of Albany. The Princes had then only to shake hands with the Lord Chancellor; and the ceremony was at an end.

The Earl of Galloway's motion on Monday for a Royal Commission to inquire into the causes of desertion from the Army was not successful; but it led to a general expression from all parts of the House save the Ministerial Bench of uneasiness at the present condition of the Army.

The weather-eye which the Upper House ever keeps vigilantly fixed on foreign affairs was especially wide awake on Tuesday. The Earl of Camperdown, by a seasonable question, gave Earl Granville the opportunity to offer some sage advice to the Prince of Bulgaria and the Bulgarian representatives, whom he strongly urged to moderate their ardour, and to settle their differences amicably. Why Earl Delawarr should exhibit such zeal as champion of the Bey of Tunis against the French is not very obvious. The noble Earl, nevertheless, again couched his lance and rode full tilt at the Foreign Secretary, with "Tunis" as his knightly cry. Yet Earl Granville, easy and dextrous of wrist as ever, had no difficulty in adroitly disarming his mild antagonist, and in clearly showing that British interests had not suffered in Tunis, with the Bey of which England had no treaty right of access. This latter admission afforded the Marquis of Salisbury an opening, of which he was quick to avail himself by expressing some concern at the seeming indifference of the Government on this point. Though offering no opposition to the French protectorate of Tunis, the late Foreign Secretary firmly drew the line at Tripoli, which, he affirmed, undoubtedly belonged to the Ottoman Empire.

Of Her Majesty's Ministers who have had the honour to sit in the Lower House, perhaps the most consistently cheerful is the right hon. gentleman, who, having made a particular study of India, was, in accordance with the Ministerial plan of placing square men in round holes, appointed to the Post Office. Lest it should be imagined by his constituents in Hackney that Mr. Fawcett has suffered undue perturbation of mind in consequence of the independent tone adopted by the telegraph clerks in asserting what they are pleased to consider their rights, a characteristic sketch of the former Professor is here given. Mr. Fawcett evidently finds a seat on the Treasury bench congenial to his tastes. Indeed, so naturally has he fallen into the Ministerial manner that he adopted quite an injured air when he complained yesterday week of the threatening attitude of the telegraph clerks. Mr. Fawcett qualified this by stating that the revised scheme would this week increase the public charge by £68,000, whilst the ultimate increase would be £150,000 a year; and on Monday the Postmaster-General, who has signalised his first year of office by the issue of Postal Notes, by the encouragement of Penny-Postage-Stamps Savings, by bringing Stock investments within the reach of the thrifty poor, and by making postage stamps available for receipt stamps, furthermore proved his substantial sympathy with the useful class of public servants employed at the Post Office by his considerate reply to Lord Randolph Churchill's question in the interests of a telegraph clerk mentally deranged through overwork. Viewing, in fine, the administrative ability and political eminence of the present Postmaster-General, it is difficult to see why Mr. Fawcett should be excluded from the Cabinet, when Lord John Manners was admitted.

Mr. Gladstone (all the better for the Saturday and Sunday holiday in the suburbs he has sensibly accustomed himself to) had the sympathy of the House with him on Monday when he informed Mr. Stanhope that the Government had deemed it a duty to call the attention of the Foreign Minister of the United States to the Fenian incitements to outrage which had appeared in the American Press.

Ascot has come and gone; and, happily, the Ministerial "horse of battle," surnamed Irish Land Bill, has progressed some few steps nearer the distant goal. The mode of progression is somewhat statélier than the lightning style with which Fred. Archer, the great jockey of the day, witched the visitors to Ascot. But, if slow, it is sure. Clause 1 was carried by 204 to 47 votes at the close of an important sitting on Thursday week. Earlier that evening, an important amendment was "within a measurable distance" of being adopted. It came from the Liberal ranks. Mr. E. Heneage, the member for Great Grimsby, moved it; and its aim was to "mitigate the severity" of the bill in the case of estates managed on English principles. To effect this object, Mr. Heneage moved that "the provisions of this section shall not apply to the tenancy of any holding which has heretofore been maintained and improved by the landlord or his predecessors in title." During the debate, there was a lively passage between Mr. Long and Mr. Parnell, the latter emphatically denying the accuracy of the statement that he had increased his rent seventy per cent above Griffith's valuation. In the end, Mr. Heneage's amendment was only negatived by the small majority of 225 to 220; whereat the Opposition cheered lustily. On the Friday, Clause 2 was agreed to; and Mr. Gladstone gave notice of an alteration with the view of allowing the landlord the same access to the Court as the tenant. By Monday, Clause 3 had been disposed of; and on Tuesday considerable progress was made with Clause 4. So the Bill moves at last.

Wednesday was only noteworthy for two things: the vain endeavour of Mr. O'Donnell to make the grievance of the telegraph clerks a stalking-horse behind which to fire at the Lords of the Treasury for their ungracious minute; and the negativing, by 175 to 79 votes, of Mr. Pease's motion for the second reading of his bill for the abolition of capital punishment.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

Ascot would scarcely be itself without a little rain, and, this year, there was a heavy storm on the Cup Day, which fell while the great race was being decided; still, on the whole, the weather was wonderfully favourable. The programme opened with the Eighteenth New Biennial Stakes, in which Valentino came out all the better for his short rest, and proved a little too good for Toastmaster and Elizabeth, though the race between the three was a very close and pretty one. Iroquois had only Léon to beat for the St. James's Palace Stakes, which proved a mere exercise canter for him; and then a good field of ten ran for the Rous Memorial Stakes. Ishmael and Poulet were the only ones backed in earnest, and they had the finish to themselves, Mr. Jardine's colt having to put up with second place once more, as Poulet displayed very different form to that which he showed in the City and Suburban. The scratching of Bend Or had deprived the Gold Cup of its chief feature, and when Chippendale broke a small blood-vessel on the previous day, and was also struck out, Robert the Devil was left without an opponent at all "worthy of his steel." The field of five was made up by Foxhall, Petronel, Zealot, and Exeter, the last-named being merely started to make running for the crack. This he did at a fair pace until reaching the straight, where "Robert" deprived him of the lead, and, going on, won in a common canter from Petronel, who stayed far better than was generally anticipated. Possibly Exeter might have been second, but neither of the remaining two ever showed in the race. The defeat of Golden Eye in the Nineteenth New Biennial by Skipetar and Roysterer was a terrible blow to the plungers, but Kermesse did them good service in the New Stakes, when she was backed against the field, and made a sad example of Kingdom and eight others. This filly is undoubtedly the smartest two-year-old that has appeared in public this season, and is a great credit to Cremorne. The unbeaten Océanie was brought out, for the first time since last autumn, in the All-Aged Stakes, but had no chance against Charibert, though he was giving her 15 lb. for the year.

On the Friday, Limestone gave weight to all his five opponents in a triennial stake, and won in such easy fashion that he has been generally marked down as a likely outsider for the Leger. The victory of Bruce in the Windsor Castle Stakes was a genuine surprise, as he was not half fit, and ran completely unbacked, even by his stable. Mr. Rymill gave 1100 gs. for him last season at the sale of the Marden Deer Park yearlings, and has refused a very long price for him since his successful début. Though Bend Or had been specially reserved for the rich Hardwicke Stakes, it was found impossible to run him, as he was suddenly attacked with dry influenza, an epidemic that has been very rife in the Russley stable of late. Had he been able to start, his meeting with Peter would have been most exciting, as Sir John Astley's eccentric wonder proved to be on his very best behaviour, and made a sorry show of Geologist and Co. The form shown by Robert the Devil on the previous day frightened away nearly all opposition in the Alexandra Plate, and he and Exeter had merely a strong exercise gallop, with Reveller in respectful attendance. Of course, long odds were laid on Charibert for the Queen's Stand Plate, but incessant work on the hard ground seemed to have told on him at last, and Ishmael, to whom he was giving 30 lb., beat him by a head. A grand programme was wound up by the Ascot High-Weight Plate, in which the unlucky Sword Dance (8 st. 11 lb.) at length made some amends for innumerable seconds.

According to annual custom, the sale of the Cobham yearlings took place on Saturday, when the twenty lots made the capital average of 304 gs. Only one of them ran into four figures, and this was a splendid chestnut colt by Wild Oats from Jocosa, the dam of Sabella, for whom Mr. Rymill gave 1500 gs. A filly by the same sire from Sweet Cicely made 600 gs., and Mat. Dawson gave 550 gs. for a daughter of Kaiser and Molly Carew. Eighteen yearlings bred by Mr. Henry Waring were then brought into the ring, a black colt by Cymbal—La Rosarie (470 gs.), and a chestnut colt by Cymbal—Symmetrical (450 gs.) materially assisting to make up an average of just over 200 gs. Mr. Combe's half-dozen did not do quite so well, though he could not complain of a total of 1150 gs.

On Friday last a prize of £100, presented by Sir Curtis Lampson, was sailed for by yachts belonging to members of the Royal London Y.C. There were five starters, and eventually the Miranda won a pretty race from the Florinda, which beat the Samoena for second place by less than half a minute.

The Royal Thames Yacht Club Channel match from the Nore to Dover was sailed on Wednesday by the Latona, the Florinda, and the Gudrun, yawls, the Miranda and the Fiona, schooners, and the Samoena, cutter. The start took place at half-past nine, with a fine south-west wind. The Miranda took the lead and held it to the North Foreland, where the Latona went ahead, and in beating to windward along the Goodwin headed the schooner very fast. The Samoena went second off Deal. The Latona won at three o'clock; the Samoena was second; and the Miranda third.

Cricketers are taking full advantage of the fine weather, and several county matches are wiped off the list every week. Sussex has scored her first win this season by beating Hampshire by 197 runs, a result mainly due to the splendid batting of Mr. M. P. Lucas (131), and the bowling of Lillywhite and Bettesworth. Lancashire has beaten Surrey in a single innings, with 125 runs to spare. All the winning team except two ran into double figures, Watson (not out, 60) being the top scorer. Cambridge University has succumbed to the M.C.C. and Ground by 70 runs, in spite of the fine batting of Messrs. G. B. Studd (70) and C. T. Studd (58 and 23); Barnes (42 and 35) and Midwinter (44 and 35) did most for the club. Nearly the same team of the M.C.C. was pitted against the Oxford University eleven this week, and beat them by 56 runs.

To-day (Saturday) L. E. Myers and E. Merrill, the American cracks, will make their first appearance in England at a London Athletic Club Meeting at Stamford-bridge.

C. Rowell and E. P. Weston began a six days' go-as-you-please race at the Marble Rink, Clapham-road, on Monday last. The former gained such an overwhelming lead in the first twenty-four hours that his success seems assured, in which case the belt will become his own property.

On the same day Captain Webb and W. Beckwith started for a six days' (ten hours per day) swimming-race at the Royal Aquarium, Westminster. At the time of writing there is every prospect of a most exciting finish.

BENEVOLENT OBJECTS.

Her Majesty has forwarded portraits of herself and the late Prince Consort to adorn the walls of the Royal British Female Orphan Asylum, at Devonport.

Collections were made on Sunday in over 1300 churches, chapels, and places of worship in London in aid of the Hospital Sunday Fund. The Lord Mayor and Sheriffs attended Divine service at Westminster Abbey in the morning, when Canon Barry preached, and in the afternoon at St. Paul's Cathedral, when Bishop Claughton preached. Lord Coleridge and several of the Judges were present at the afternoon service in St. Paul's. The collections at St. Paul's amounted to £273, being an increase of £102 over the sum obtained last year; and at the Abbey the collections amounted to £208, against £269 in 1880. Some of the principal collections were—at St. Michael's, Chester-square, £604; at St. John's, Wilton-road, £104; at St. Anne's, Soho, £106; at the Metropolitan Tabernacle, £205; at the City Temple, £120; at Union Chapel, Islington, £131; at Clapham Wesleyan Chapel, £110; at St. Nicholas', Chiselhurst, £161; and at St. Stephen's, South Kensington, £180. Sermons on behalf of the fund were preached at several of the Jewish synagogues last Saturday, and it is anticipated that the aggregate sum contributed by the synagogues will be about £900.

Sir Stafford Northcote presided last Saturday evening at the Newspaper Press Fund dinner. He dwelt upon the advantages which the newspaper enterprise of the present day confers upon the community, and upon the debt of gratitude which politicians and other speakers owe to those engaged in the various branches of newspaper work. Among the other speakers were the American Minister, Cardinal Manning, Lord Houghton, Colonel Marter, and the Governor of the Bank of England. The subscriptions amounted to £1100, including £100 by the proprietors of the Daily Telegraph.

The council of the Artist's General Benevolent Institution have received £50 from Admiral Carr Glyn under the will of the late Miss Adelaide Neilson.

Sir Nathaniel de Rothschild, M.P., president of the institution, took the chair yesterday week at the distribution of prizes to the pupils of the Jews' Free School in Bell-lane, Spitalfields. There are 2700 children in the school; 98 per cent passed the last Government examination, and the school stands at the head of institutions of the kind.

In support of the Scottish charities of the metropolis, the annual Scotch gathering took place last Saturday at Stamford-bridge; the Duchess of Athole presenting the prizes.

Last Saturday the anniversary meeting in connection with the Soldiers' Daughters' Home was held at Hampstead, and an address was given by General Sir F. Roberts.

The annual inspection of the training-ship Exmouth, which is under the direction of the Metropolitan Asylums Board, was made by the managers on Saturday. The prizes or medals were distributed by Dr. Brewer. Subsequently there were rowing-matches, in which the boys took part.

The thirty-ninth annual meeting of Field-lane Refuge and Ragged School, Vine-street, Clerkenwell, was held on the 16th inst., under the presidency of Lord Shaftesbury. From the report, read by Mr. Platt, the secretary, and adopted, it appeared that 512 persons, driven into reluctant idleness by slackness of employment, had been received into the refuge. Applicants of the vagrant class were rigorously excluded. The Working Boys' Home provided a respectable abode for poor boys. Nothing was charged for their lodging, and only a few shillings weekly for their board. The Servants' Training Home received thirty-six friendless girls; and in the Industrial Home 104 boys and ninety-seven girls were under training. The income of the institution was £7938, the expenditure £7141.

On the 15th inst. the sixty-sixth anniversary dinner of the Royal Caledonian Asylum took place at the Freemasons' Tavern, Lord Aberdeen presiding. The subscriptions amounted to £1750.

We are glad to hear that, at the bazaar lately held at Cannon-street Hotel in aid of the building fund of the Home for the Daughters of Missionaries, over £2200 was realised.

Earl Spencer presided at the anniversary festival of the Printers' Pension Corporation, held at Freemasons' Tavern on Monday evening, when the subscriptions amounted to £1200.

The Duke of Cambridge presided at the festival dinner in aid of the annuity fund of the Cabdrivers' Benevolent Association, held at Willis's Rooms on Monday night, when subscriptions amounting to nearly £900 were announced.

At the Dundee School Board meeting on Monday it was announced that Mr. William Harris, formerly a Dundee merchant, had offered to give £10,000 to build an intermediate school, to be managed by the School Board, and £20,000 towards rendering the existing High School in the town a more efficient institution than it is—in all £30,000. It was agreed that a Private Act of Parliament should be applied for to give effect to Mr. Harris's benefactions, and the new school to be erected is to be known as the Harris Institution.

On Tuesday and Wednesday, at 37, Grosvenor-square, by permission of the Earl and Countess of Aberdeen, a fancy sale, under the patronage of the Duchess of Teck, was held in aid of the English Orphanage connected with the mission homes at Paris, founded by Miss Leigh.

Mrs. Fawcett took the chair on Tuesday at the meeting of the Women's Protective and Provident League.

Sir H. James, M.P., presided at the anniversary festival on Wednesday evening of the Solicitors' Benevolent Association.

The Earl of Northbrook, First Lord of the Admiralty, presided at the annual inspection of the Warspite training-ship at Woolwich, on Wednesday, and Lady Emma Baring presented the prizes to the boys.

Princess Christian opened on Wednesday the new wing of the National Hospital for the Paralysed and Epileptic, Queen-square, Bloomsbury.

The Prince of Wales presided over the triennial festival of the Royal Cambridge Asylum for Soldiers' Widows, Kingston-on-Thames, held at Willis's Rooms on Thursday; and next Wednesday the Prince and Princess will open the new infirmary of the parish of St. Marylebone.

On Thursday Countess Stanhope presented prizes to the boys of the House-boy Brigade, a useful institution situated in the Marylebone-road; Earl Stanhope presiding.

An International Bazaar opened on Thursday at the Riding School of the Duke of Wellington, Albert-gate, on behalf of the funds of the Society of Friends of Foreigners in Distress; being continued on Friday and Saturday. The stalls (presided over by ladies of rank and fashion) represented a cosmopolitan street of the houses of all nations, and were furnished with attractive displays of articles from many countries, offered for sale at moderate prices—the last bit of information being almost too good to be true, and to be taken, perhaps, with just a grain of suspicion.

The anniversary festival of the Infant Orphan Asylum, is held to-day (Saturday), at the Asylum, Wanstead, the Duke of Connaught, K.G., in the chair.

Sir W. V. Harcourt presents the prizes awarded at the Midsummer examination of the Metropolitan and City Police Orphange, at Strawberry Hill, Twickenham, to-day (Saturday).

An entertainment, recitals and music, takes place at Alford House, Princes-gate, for the benefit of the Ladies' Home, Abbey-road, N.W., this (Saturday) afternoon.

Princess Mary Adelaide (Duchess of Teck) will open the new house of the Girls' Friendly Society at Brixton next Monday afternoon, the 27th inst.

The Anniversary Festival of the Licensed Victuallers' School has been appointed to take place at the Crystal Palace next Tuesday, the 28th inst., under the presidency of Mr. Albert O. Worthington, of Burton-on-Trent.

Lord Lytton will preside at the annual distribution of prizes to take place at the London Orphan Asylum, Watford, next Saturday, July 2.

Princess Edward of Saxe-Weimar has received, for her private fund for the relief of the wives and children of soldiers, £105 from Mr. Clement G. Hoey, being the proceeds of a concert held in London.

This year twenty-one scholarships are to be awarded by the London School Board—nine to boys and twelve to girls. They vary in annual value from £26 to £35; and fifteen of them are tenable for four years. The remainder for three.

The Artists' Benevolent Fund will hold its seventy-second anniversary dinner on the 2nd prox.

A military tournament has been held this week in the Agricultural Hall in aid of the funds of the Royal Cambridge Asylum for Soldiers' Widows.

The committee of the Fox-court Ragged Schools, Gray's-inn-road, Holborn, appeal to the public for funds to enable them to give a day in the country to 300 children dwelling in the close and crowded courts of Gray's-inn-road and Leather-lane. Contributions will be thankfully received by the treasurer of the schools, Mr. H. W. Elcum, 13, Bedford-row, W.C., or by Thomas Fagg, hon. sec., 136, Pentonville-road, N.——A like appeal is made by the Rev. J. R. Starey, of St. Thomas's Vicarage, Lambeth, who has 400 very poor children in the New-cut and back streets, and, having only poor in his parish, he is very anxious to enlist public sympathy towards giving those children a day in the country.——The Rev. W. R. Sharpe, Vicar of St. Chad's, Haggerstone, solicits funds to assist in taking 500 children and others for a day at the seaside; donations for which purpose will be gladly received by Mr. F. J. Warren (churchwarden), 99, Albion-road, Dalston, E.

HOME NEWS.

A charter of incorporation has been granted to Lewes.

The State apartments of Windsor Castle are closed until further orders.

Mr. J. Grosvenor Mackinlay has been chosen ophthalmic surgeon to the Royal Free Hospital.

The High Commissioner for Canada has received a telegram from Ottawa announcing an urgent demand for mechanics and farm and general labourers in the Dominion.

The Royal Spanish Academy has awarded a medal to the Rev. Alexander D'Orsey, of King's College, London, for his poem on Calderon's bicentenary.

Dr. Barclay last Saturday gave the Harveian oration at the Royal College of Physicians, Pall-mall East. Sir W. Jenner, the president of the college, occupied the chair.

A fine new graving-dock, which is being constructed by the Dock Company at the west end of the William Wright Dock, Hull, at a cost of £80,000, was opened on the 16th.

Lord Dunraven on Tuesday made the distribution of prizes to the successful students in the medical and surgical college of St. Thomas's Hospital.

It is officially notified that the name of the "Implacable," training-ship for boys at Devonport, is to be altered to the "Lion," and the officers transferred and reappointed.

Further outrages, including an attempt to murder, the shooting of horses, and the burning of a farm, and a large number of arrests are reported from Ireland.

A popular life assurance society is offering premiums of £100 and £25 each for the best essays on the advantages of life assurance in promoting economy, thrift, and temperance.

On Wednesday the charter of incorporation of the new borough of Chorley was received by the representatives of the ratepayers.

Mr. John Walker, "citizen and spectacle-maker," was unanimously elected an Alderman on Wednesday, in the room of the late Sir W. A. Rose.

Lord Crawford and Balcarres has been appointed by the Foreign Office Chief Commissioner for England in connection with the forthcoming exhibition in electrical science at Paris.

At a meeting of representatives of various educational institutions held in Birmingham on the 15th (the Mayor, Alderman Chamberlain, in the chair) it was resolved to invite the British Association to hold their meeting for 1883 in that town.

At Hammersmith Police Court a young man was charged with kissing a girl against her will. The case was settled by defendent making an apology and giving compensation, the nature of which did not transpire.

Mr. Bushby, the Worship-street magistrate, on Saturday refused to grant an order on the application of a school board officer in the case of a girl who was kept from school to attend a child two years old.

Sir Frederick Roberts on Sunday morning inspected the London Corps of Commissionaires within Westminster Hall, and in a subsequent address to the men touched on the subject of long service in the Army.

Mr. S. B. Bristowe, County Court Judge for the Ipswich Circuit, has accepted the County Court Judgeship of the Nottingham Circuit; and Mr. Roxburgh, Q.C., takes his place at Ipswich.

The annual display of rhododendrons by Messrs. John Waterer and Son, of Bagshot, in the gardens of Cadogan Place, is now in the height of perfection, and will well repay a visit by lovers of the beautiful plant.

The annual meeting of the Victoria Institute; or, Philosophical Society of Great Britain, will take place next Thursday evening, at the house of the Society of Arts. Lord O'Neill will give the address.

Mr. Marsham, the magistrate sitting at Greenwich, informed a defendant, who persistently refused to have his child vaccinated, that he himself had undergone the operation twelve times.

The statue of Sir Rowland Hill, which has been erected at Kidderminster, was unveiled on Wednesday afternoon by Mrs. Willis, the Mayoress. The ceremony was made the occasion of a general holiday in the town.

The Encœnia, or commemoration of founders and benefactors of Oxford University, took place on Wednesday morning in the Sheldonian Theatre, which was well filled, raised area seats having been provided additionally for the ladies, who assembled in unprecedentedly large numbers.

The Duke of Teck, the president, visited the Royal Botanic Society's gardens in Regent's Park on Monday, and spent much time making arrangements for the evening fête on Wednesday. Mr. Anthony Waterer's exhibition of rhododendrons at these gardens is now at its best, and may be seen daily.

Mr. Bradlaugh is once more unsuccessful. Justices Denman and Watkin Williams have overruled his demurrer in the action brought against him by Mr. Clarke for the recovery of penalties for having sat and voted as member for Northampton, without having first taken the statutable Oath.

The arrivals of live stock and fresh meat at Liverpool from the United States and Canada last week show an increase in both live stock and fresh meat in comparison with the preceding week; making a total of 2477 cattle, 1438 sheep, 7244 quarters of beef, 627 carcases of mutton, and 75 dead hogs.

The Times believes that it is proposed to take the administration of the Royal Patriotic Fund out of the hands of the Royal Commission appointed for that purpose, and to place it under the direct control of the Government. The boys' school, with the grounds pertaining to it, have been offered for purchase by Westminster School.

A new uniform stamp, applicable for letters as well as for receipts, will shortly be issued by the Post Office. It will be of a colour and texture which, it is to be hoped, cannot be tampered with for fraudulent purposes. The stamps now in use will continue to be available both for letters and receipts until the present supplies in the Post Office and in the hands of the public are exhausted.

At a special inquiry at the Oldham Workhouse on Monday into the accounts an item was disallowed. The guardians had bought some flower-vases for the house, costing about £10, but the auditor held that the expenditure was unnecessary, and was not connected with the maintenance of the poor. He added that the funds must only be spent for the relief of the poor, and pointed out that many ratepayers were almost as poor as those who were inmates of the house.

The liquidators of the City of Glasgow Bank have issued a statement to the committee of contributories that, unless otherwise arranged, a further dividend must be paid to the creditors, and that it devolves on the liquidators to adopt some method to relieve liquidation from the extravagant stock it has in this one asset—New Zealand and Australian Lands Company's Stock. This stock has been nursed in hope that it would largely increase in value.

Permission to attend the review at Windsor on July 9 has been refused to as many as 12,000 troops, all of whom belong to the provinces, the limit of capacity for carrying troops to Windsor of the London and South-Western and the Great Western Railway Companies being reached with 50,000 men. The applications sent in up to June 1 having reached that number, all applications arriving after that date have been declined.

The Duke of Buckingham, at his rent audit held at Buckingham last week, remitted from 10 to 20 per cent of the rent of his tenants, the remission to extend over the next two years; at Sir Stafford Northcote's rent audit, held at Pynes, his steward presented to each of the tenants the right hon. Baronet's cheque for 10 per cent on the year's rental; and Sir T. C. C. Western, Bart., of Felix Hall, Essex, has again returned 10 per cent to his tenants.

In London last week 2480 births and 1403 deaths were registered. Allowing for increase of population, the births exceeded by 29, and the deaths by 19, the average numbers in the corresponding week of the last ten years. The Registrar-General's report states that the fatal cases of smallpox in London, which had declined from 103 to 59 in the four preceding weeks, rose again last week to 82, and exceeded the corrected average number in the corresponding weeks of the last ten years by 40.

In the Court for the Consideration of Crown Cases Reserved last Saturday judgment was given on a point of law raised at the trial of Johann Most, at the Old Bailey, where Most had been convicted of having encouraged assassination in the columns of the Freiheit. It was argued on behalf of the defendant that there had been no encouragement to induce or persuade any person to commit a murder within the meaning of the statute. The Court unanimously affirmed the conviction, and sentence will be passed on the 29th inst.

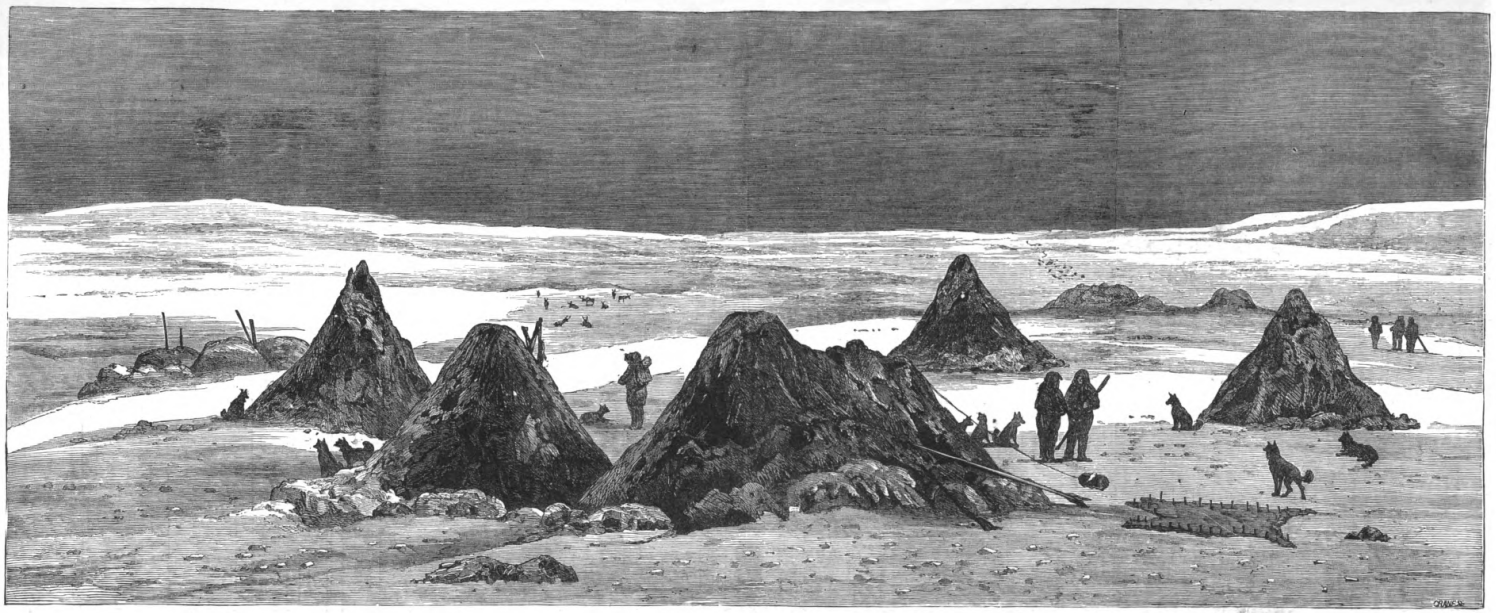
The Board of Trade have awarded their silver medal to Captain Edward Clements, of the steam-ship Khalitat, for gallantry and courage displayed by him when his vessel was attacked by a band of Arabs, whilst proceeding up the River Tigris with a number of passengers on board. Captain Clements was wounded by a bullet in the arm and body at the commencement of the attack, and, the helmsman and the rest of the crew having deserted their posts, he succeeded with one arm in steering the vessel, and was exposed during the attack, which lasted thirty-five minutes, to the fire of the Arabs.

At the recent representation of "Hamlet" at the New-cross Public Hall, Mr. Charles Ward departed from recognised rules in his personation of Hamlet, the Danish Prince being presented as a light-hearted and thoroughly genial gentleman. Mr. Ward was familiar with the text, his delivery was distinct, and his bearing graceful; and when he has toned down his exuberance, has subdued his continuous over-emphasis, and has added dignity to his deportment, his Hamlet may be admitted to the playgoers' Shakspearean gallery. Miss Earle was an impassioned Queen, Miss Alwyn a sympathetic Ophelia, and Miss Parnell an intelligent actress. Mr. J. G. Ward, as the Gravedigger, gave prominence to a small part; and Mr. Wigley as Horatio, Mr. Otway as the Ghost, and Mr. Warnton as Laertes, assisted in securing the success of the entertainment.

The portrait of the late Lord Justice Sir W. M. James, one of the Judges of the Court of Appeal in Equity, which was published last week, was copied from a photograph by the London Stereoscopic Company.

In our remarks, last week, upon the satirical "Opera Comique," which is called "Patience," by Mr. W. S. Gilbert and Mr. Arthur Sullivan, it was intimated that the design of making fun, upon the stage, of the fashionable extravagance of æsthetic affectation, was first entertained by these authors. We are informed upon Mr. Sullivan's authority, that they did not start the idea till August or September last, by which time the first two acts of Mr. E. C. Burnand's "Colonel," begun at Easter, were not only completed by him, but had been read by him to Mr. and Mrs. Bancroft.

THE AMERICAN FRANKLIN SEARCH EXPEDITION: GRAVES OF THE COMRADES OF SIR JOHN FRANKLIN.
FROM A SKETCH BY MR. H. W. KLUTSCHAK.



THE AMERICAN FRANKLIN SEARCH EXPEDITION: AUTUMN CAMP ON KING WILLIAM'S LAND.

FROM A SKETCH BY MR. H. W. KLUTSCHAK.

H.M.S. POLYPHEMUS.

This novel specimen of naval architecture, which is the subject of three of our Illustrations, was launched on Wednesday week at Chatham Dockyard. It is not exactly a ship, but a "torpedo-ram"—that is to say, a vessel designed, with a projecting point at the bows, to pierce or run down the enemy's ships, and also to discharge explosive torpedoes for the purpose of blowing them up. The Admiralty Director of Naval Construction, Mr. Barnaby, C.B., was the designer of the Polyphemus, and the construction of it (or of her, to use the customary female personal pronoun) was begun in September, 1878, by Mr. R. P. Saunders, Chief Constructor at Chatham Dockyard, and Mr. Penny, senior foreman in charge. The shape of the hull is a cylinder with tapering ends, the upper side or hull deck being arched, though not so much as to present a circular midships section. Upon this hull is mounted a superstructure of iron and timber, consisting of a main deck running fore and aft, and above it a hurricane deck. At intervals along the sides of the hurricane deck will be placed six turrets—three on either side—which will carry the heaviest class of Nordenfelt guns. Protruding upwards through this deck are two protected conning towers, one at each end, which form means of ingress and egress to and from the interior. There are also two ventilators and a smoke funnel. The superstructure may all be shot away without injuring the vessel herself or impairing her powers, save only as regards the Nordenfelt guns.

The steam steering apparatus is placed below, over the after boiler-room; the steering-room is in telegraphic communication with the forward conning tower. The steering apparatus can, however, be actuated from the conning tower by manual gear which is fitted therein. As the Polyphemus carries no canvas, masts are dispensed with, and beyond a flag-staff or two nothing will appear above her decks but the towers, the ventilators, and the funnel. She will be propelled by twin screws, which are carried in framings, one on each side near her stern. These screws are three-bladed, 14 ft. in diameter, from 15 ft. to 17 ft. pitch, and with a blade surface in each screw of 45 ft. She is also fitted with two rudders, which are placed under her hull near her bows, and can be lowered for use and raised again into recesses in which they are ordinarily carried. They are intended to be used for special manœuvring purposes. There is an ordinary rudder at the stern. The ram projects some 14 ft. beyond the body of the vessel, and is made hollow for the discharge of Whitehead torpedoes. The port or opening is covered by a solid steel cap, which forms the ram-point, but which, by means of a twisted sliding bar, can be easily pushed forward and turned up to allow of the discharge of the torpedo some 8 ft. below water-level, and is as easily closed afterwards. Besides this, there are four other torpedo ports for the discharge of the same class of weapon, two being placed on either side of the vessel near the bows. She will also carry spar or deck torpedoes.

The framing of the Polyphemus is of Landore-Siemens steel, over which is a double layer of half-inch plates of the same material. Upon this, again, is superimposed a plating of Whitworth fluid compressed steel, the plates measuring 10 ft. long by 2 ft. 6 in. deep and 1 in. thick. Her outer armour consists of small plates or scales, also of Whitworth compressed steel, measuring 10 in. square by 1 in. thick, running off to ¾ in. at the ends. The plates are fastened on by five screws, one at each corner, which holds three other plates, and one in the centre. This plating covers her curved deck, and extends a short distance down below water level. The vessel measures 240 ft. long between perpendiculars, and has an extreme breadth of 40 ft., with a depth of hold of 18 ft. 9 in. Her immersed midship section is 625 square feet, and she draws 19 ft. 6 in. of water forward and 20 ft. 6 in. aft, her displacement load being 2640 tons. The hull is divided into a number of water-tight compartments.

The engines, which are by Messrs. Humphrys, Tennant, and Co., are of the compound, horizontal, single piston-rod type, having four cylinders, the two high-pressure being 38 inches in diameter, and the two low-pressure 64 inches in diameter, with a 39-inch stroke. Her indicated horse power is 5500, and her estimated maximum speed seventeen knots. Steam will be supplied from ten boilers of the locomotive type, at a working pressure of 120 lb. per square inch, they having been tested to double that pressure—viz., 240 lb. per square inch. The air-compressing machinery for the torpedoes and the steam steering apparatus are by Mr. Peter Brotherhood. The weight of the machinery, inclusive of the water in the boilers and ten tons of spare gear, is 490 tons.

The ceremony of the launch was attended by Admiral Sir George Sartorius, Admiral Sir Houston Stewart, the Secretary to the Admiralty, Mr. G. O. Trevelyan, the Admiral Superintendent of Chatham Dockyard, and other official persons, with several Members of Parliament. After the usual prayers and benediction pronounced by the Chaplain, with the quaint formality of "Christening," by dashing a bottle of wine against the bows, Mrs. G. O. Trevelyan handled a lever which released the "dogshores," and allowed the Polyphemus to glide down into the river Medway. The vessel had all her engines on board. She has been taken into dock, to be made ready for her steaming trials.

SKETCHES IN THE ARCTIC REGIONS.

Several notices of the American Franklin Search Expedition, with accompanying Sketches by Mr. H. W. Klutschak, a Bohemian artist, who was one of the party, have appeared in different Numbers of this Journal. It will be remembered that the expedition, which was fitted out by the New York Geographical Society, was engaged from the July of 1878 to the August of 1880, in the undertaking to look for relics or traces of the fate of the British Arctic explorers, the officers and crews of H.M.S. Erebus and H.M.S. Terror, on the shores of King William's Land and of the Adelaide Peninsula, beyond the mouth of the Great Fish River, and on the coasts, north and south, of Simpson's Strait. The party consisted of Lieutenant Frederick Schwatka, of the United States Army; Mr. W. H. Gilder, special correspondent of the New York Herald; Mr. H. W. Klutschak, special artist, and Mr. Frank Melms, of Milwaukie, with Mr. J. Eberling, who had served in preceding Arctic expeditions. They landed on the north shore of Hudson's Bay, and there passed the winter of 1878. In April of the next year, they started overland with sledges, dogs, and Esquimaux Indians, to journey northward four hundred miles to Simpson's Strait, which they crossed to King William's Land. They employed the summer and autumn of 1879 in carefully examining the western shores of that large island, finding the graves of Lieutenant Irving, R.N., and of other comrades of Sir John Franklin, collecting many small articles which had belonged to that ill-fated party of Britons in 1847 or 1848, and gaining some further information about their movements after the abandonment of the two ships. In the winter of the same year, 1879, Lieutenant Schwatka and his four companions, still aided by the Esquimaux, returned southward across the mainland of Adelaide Peninsula, and arrived at Camp Daly, their former resting-place on the coast of Hudson's Bay, near the mouth of Chesterfield Inlet. They were conveyed home to New York, in August following, by an American whaling-ship. These particulars have already been stated, with some of the incidents of their Arctic life and travel related in Mr. Klutschak's private Journal; and to those accounts we must now refer once more. The Illustrations presented this week are views of Cape Felix, the most northerly point of King William's Land, where the Erebus and Terror were beset with ice in September, 1846; of the Autumn Camp of Lieutenant Schwatka's party in 1878: and of the graves and cairns, or rude stone monuments, erected by Captain F. M. Crozier, R.N., senior officer surviving in April, 1848, on the coast of Adelaide Peninsula, to commemorate the dead, before they attempted to retreat to the Great Fish or Back River. The tall crosses and obelisks now surmounting those cairns were raised at a later period, this place having been several times re-visited. We have also prepared, for our Extra Supplement, a large Engraving from the Sketch of a strange and exciting scene, that of the shooting of musk oxen, on the homeward winter journey. Those animals, as is the wont of their kind when famished, lost their usual timidity and came up quite close to the men and dogs, so that they were very easily killed. But one or two of the dogs, rashly venturing to attack the oxen, were tossed by their formidable horns, and got more or less hurt. The Musk Ox (Ovibos Moschatus) has a large quantity of fine down or wool, brownish ash-coloured, intermixed with or rather growing beneath its hair. This material can be used in manufacture, like the wool of sheep, and stockings have been woven of it. The animal chiefly inhabits the barren region of North America, where grass is replaced by lichens, between the 60th and 67th degrees of latitude; it was found by Captain Parry on Melville Island, in the month of May. It is called oomingmak by the Esquimaux, and has frequently been described in the narratives of Arctic travellers.

NEW BOOKS.

A remarkable personal character, and the record of some arduous labours in a philanthropic service, will command public notice for the volume entitled Colonel Gordon in Central Africa (Thomas De la Rue and Co.). It is scarcely needful to say who Colonel Gordon is—Charles George Gordon, of the Royal Engineers—or what he has done. In China, during the formidable rebellion of 1863 and 1864, when he organised and commanded the Chinese Imperial forces, and quickly defeated the Tai-ping host, which had captured several great cities, and which threatened Shanghai, his performances were marvellous; and their result was of immense value both to the people of China and to the safety of British commerce. Our own Government has never seen its way to employ the acknowledged genius of this born soldier and civil administrator in South Africa or any other part of the British dominions. He was employed for some time in engineering work on the Commission of the Lower Danube, and at Gravesend, for several years, in superintending the construction of the Thames forts. In 1873, upon Sir Samuel Baker's relinquishment of the task he had begun, under a commission from the late Ismail Pasha, Khedive of Egypt, to put down the slave trade of the Upper Nile, and to enforce an orderly settlement of those territories up to the Equatorial lakes, Colonel Gordon was invited to carry on that work. He accordingly went to Egypt, in February, 1874, and received the appointment of Governor-General of that barbarous region. It was overrun by lawless hordes of savages, and was further despoiled by the cruel and extortionate oppression of petty tyrants, in league with corrupt Arab officials of the Egyptian ruler. Colonel Gordon had no trustworthy agents or military force at his disposal. He did all that a man could do; but it was utterly impossible for one Englishman, so indifferently supported, entirely to overcome the enormous difficulties of his task. Only by his personal influence, which was due to the exhibition of a most determined will, of unflinching courage and fortitude, and of heroic self-devotion to the high duty he had undertaken, was it possible to repress disorders so long as he remained in the country, a period of five years. This volume contains a selection, by Dr. G. Birkbeck Hill, of extracts from Colonel Gordon's familiar letters to his elder brother, Sir Henry Gordon, K.C.B., written during his residence and travels on the Upper Nile, relating the various incidents of his daily life and his private reflections upon them. They abound with the artless outpourings of his personal sentiments, with reference to the most intimate moral and religious experiences of life, as well as the emotions that were excited in a profoundly earnest mind by witnessing a horrible amount of human misery and wickedness, and social degradation. Many other travellers, coming from England or any Christian country, might have been expected to feel as Colonel Gordon did upon this occasion. But few men of any nation, and of Englishmen very few indeed, could have indulged so freely in the expression of these feelings amidst the incessant toils of a military and political command. A tone of austerity, not to call it harsh severity, in his judgments of mankind, with a disposition to scorn and to renounce the ordinary standards of social comfort and conventional esteem, is continually perceived throughout this correspondence. It was never intended for publication, and the writer has nothing to do with the editorship of his letters. The reader who does not know Colonel Gordon personally might be led to think him a less amiable man than he really is; but we are perfectly convinced of his thorough sincerity in professing to despise all worldly honours and rewards. This Puritan Stoicism, when it is associated with genuine benevolence, and with a vein of playful humour, as well as with extraordinary practical genius, energy, and force of will, presents a rare type of manliness, and is well deserving of study. Colonel Gordon's more recent public acts have not yet, we hope, been forgotten. He came home from Egypt at the end of 1879; and, when the present Government came into office, was asked, with a curious want of discrimination, to go to India as private secretary to Lord Ripon. It would have been far better to have made him High Commissioner for the Native Affairs of South Africa and the Transvaal. A few days after landing at Bombay, he resigned the appointment for which he felt himself wholly unfit. He was then instantly called to Pekin by the Chinese Government to help it out of the danger of an imminent war with Russia. In a very short time, comprehending at a glance all the perils and resources of China in that situation, Colonel Gordon was enabled to devise a plan of naval and military defence. But he did still better in persuading the Chinese statesmen, who knew him of old and trusted him entirely, to adopt a policy of peace. This took place some months ago. Our trade with China has not been stopped. But we have not yet observed that any public authority in England, officially or unofficially, either in our Government or in our Parliament, or in the City of London, or in the Chambers of Commerce, has awarded thanks or praise to this simple self-denying man, whose exertions alone prevented the huge national calamity of a Russo-Chinese War, thereby saving us a loss of probably one hundred millions sterling. But Colonel Gordon is one of those rare men who care not for human applause. And to such men the world is not apt to be grateful.

Forasmuch as there is an end to everything, except Wimpole-street, the English translation of the late M. Guizot's History of France (Sampson Low and Co.) has been now brought to a conclusion, as advertisements inform us and as the index would lead us to infer, in the eighth substantial volume. The work is a remarkable one in many ways: it is based upon the notes and lectures of the late illustrious statesman, M. Guizot, a historian of unusual ability, competence, and personal experience; it has been partly written and partly edited, with expansions and additions, by Madame Guizot de Witt, the illustrious statesman's daughter, a lady who appears to have inherited no small portion of her father's intellectual powers and literary faculty; it has been translated into English by various hands, or at any rate by more than one pair of hands, with more or less accuracy and felicity of expression; it has already, as regards about half of it, been abridged, annotated, and otherwise adapted for the use of schools by so excellent an operator as M. Gustave Masson; it has been, from the very first, illustrated with singular profusion, with occasional splendour, and with general effectiveness, by various gifted artists, some of them highly celebrated. It is, therefore, likely to be the handsomest, and it ought to be the most complete, work of the kind that was ever offered to the public; at any rate, it is very handsome, it has an appearance of completeness, and it is, for the most part, thoroughly readable, which is more than can be said for many translations. Even now, however, the history is only brought down to 1848, to the flight of that "citizen-king," who is said to have governed France for eighteen years "with a wisdom, prudence, and moderation acknowledged even by his enemies when they are attacking him." A few general remarks are made touching the vicissitudes to which France has been exposed since "Mr. Smith" left his French home and throne so precipitately and landed unshaven upon the hospitable shores of England; but no further history, properly so called, is attempted. The contents of the volume may be summarised briefly as follows:—The decline and fall of the First Empire; the First Restoration; the Hundred Days; the Second Restoration; Charles X. and the Revolution of 1830; the reign of Louis Philippe; the story of "reform banquets" and of the Revolution that followed. These are historical subjects which no amount of familiarity can deprive of interest or even of fascination.

A new volume of hunting adventures, related by Captain Parker Gillmore, who is well known as a veteran sportsman and traveller in South Africa and in North America, will afford congenial entertainment to all lovers of the sterner features and aspects of animated nature. Encounters with Wild Beasts is the title of this volume, which is published by W. H. Allen and Co. It is adorned with some very clever and spirited illustrations, drawn by Mr. Alfred Elwes, which are, we may observe, reproduced, by permission of the author and publisher, in the June numbers of the Boys' Illustrated News. Captain Parker Gillmore devotes his ten interesting chapters, severally, to the hunter's experiences with as many different kinds of wild beasts—namely, elephants, the rhinoceros, lions, tigers, leopards and panthers, wild dogs, bears, buffaloes and bisons, the elk or moose, and the American or Virginian deer. With regard to the tiger, which is found only in Asia, he contents himself with borrowing the Indian tiger-stories of Colonel Pollock and Mr. G. P. Sanderson; but his own extensive and familiar acquaintance with the African haunts of the elephant and rhinoceros, on the Limpopo, and in Bechuana Land, north and west of the Transvaal, and with lions in the Kalahari Desert, called by him "the Great Thirst Land," of which he told us in a former book, furnishes plenty of original matter. The readers, also, of his earlier narratives of North American travel, from the Atlantic provinces of Canada to the prairies and the Rocky Mountains, will know what to expect in the way of anecdotes concerning the pursuit of the large deer, described more recently by Lord Dunraven, and of the bisons on those vast open plains, and the grizzly and other bears in the backwoods, which afford a considerable variety in the successive contents of these chapters. There is a decided air of reality about Captain Parker Gillmore's personal reminiscences of this kind, and his remarks upon many odd human characters he met with are sensible and good-humoured.

Under the title Afghanistan (Griffith and Farran), Mr. P. F. Walker supplies a short account of that country, its history, and our dealings with it. This is a small work, giving a very short summary of the history of Afghanistan, from the invasion of Darius, B.C. 518, down to the celebrated march of General Roberts from Cabul to Candahar last year. As the literature scarcely reaches beyond 160 pages, it does not pretend to give extended details. The author offers it as a condensation of the history into something like a convenient handbook, which will be useful for reference to anyone wishing to get a general outline of events, and particularly of our own campaigns, in Afghanistan. Mr. Walker was in the first part of the late Afghan War, acting as Special Correspondent of the Times. He entered Jellalabad with our own Special Artist, Mr. W. Simpson, when that place was occupied by the force under General Sir S. Browne, in December, 1878.

Amongst the numerous handy books of light reading suitable for railway travelling or the seaside we would recommend "Dick Boulin's Four-in-Hand." A collection of agreeably-written tales and sketches, interspersed with songs, all supposed to be said or sung by the coachman and passengers of the Peterborough and King's Lynn coach in the days before railways had absorbed all the traffic between those places. Dick Boulin, the coachman, is avowedly drawn from life, and the sketch has all the freshness of a study from nature. The author evidently recalls with delight those halcyon days when hearts were young and hopes were buoyant—when the coach which carried him "through many charming scenes of woodland and heathy moor" would land him at last where loving eyes were watching for his coming. If the more prosaic passenger by train desires to have a pleasant glimpse of the old coaching days, let him go to the bookstall and invest a shilling in "Dick Boulin's Four-in-Hand."

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE KEW OBSERVATORY OF THE ROYAL SOCIETY.

Lat. 51° 28′ 6″ N.; Long. 0° 18′ 47″ W. Height above Sea, 34 feet.

| DAY. | DAILY MEANS OF | | | | THERMOM. | | WIND. | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| | Barometer Corrected. | Temperature of the Air. | Dew Point. | Relative Humidity. | Amount of Cloud. | Maximum, read at 9 p.m. | Minimum, read at 9 a.m. | General Direction. | Movement in 24 hours, read at 10 p.m. last night. | Rain in 24 hours, read at 10 p.m. last morning. |
| | Inches. | ° | ° | ° 0–10 | | ° | ° | | Miles. | In. |
| 12 | 30·021 | 59·0 | 48·2 | 65 | 8 | 67·4 | 52·5 | WSW. W. | 174 | 0·000 |
| 13 | 30·080 | 58·3 | 47·0 | 68 | 6 | 67·6 | 53·4 | WNW. NNW. NE. | 170 | 0·000 |
| 14 | 29·991 | 57·7 | 44·2 | 70 | 7 | 67·2 | 52·3 | ENE. E. SE. | 159 | 0·000 |
| 15 | 29·930 | 58·8 | 48·3 | 76 | 6 | 72·9 | 48·9 | SSW. SW. | 180 | 0·000 |
| 16 | 29·984 | 62·0 | 49·8 | 67 | 10 | 72·9 | 53·0 | SW. SSE. S. | 168 | 0·025 |
| 17 | 29·879 | 62·7 | 55·3 | 78 | 10 | 71·5 | 57·4 | S. SSE. | 278 | 0·100 |
| 18 | 29·823 | 60·6 | 55·4 | 81 | 10 | 69·4 | 56·9 | ESE. S. SSW. | 212 | 0·000 |

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at ten o'clock a.m.:—

| | | | | | | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| Barometer (in inches) corrected | .. | 30·063 | 30·092 | 30·021 | 29·953 | 29·886 | 29·840 |
| Temperature of Air .. .. | .. | 61·4° | 56·8° | 57·6° | 61·6 | 67·0° | 61·2° |
| Temperature of Evaporation .. | .. | 53·3° | 51·7° | 52·6° | 55·6 | 56·8° | 51·2° |
| Direction of Wind .. .. | .. | W. | NW. | E. | SSW. | SSE. | S. |

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE FOR THE WEEK ENDING JULY 2.

| Sunday. | | Monday. | | Tuesday. | | Wednesday. | | Thursday. | | Friday. | | Saturday. | |
|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|---|
| M | A | M | A | M | A | M | A | M | A | M | A | M | A |
| h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m | h m |
| 1 40 | 2 0 | 2 20 | 2 42 | 3 2 | 3 25 | 3 50 | 4 15 | 4 50 | 5 16 | 5 50 | 6 17 | 6 50 | 7 30 |

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING JULY 2.

SUNDAY, JUNE 26.

Second Sunday after Trinity.
New Moon, 2.4 p.m.
Morning Lessons: Judges iv.; Acts vi. 8—vii. 5. Evening Lessons: Judges v. or vi. 11; 1 John ii. 1—15.
St. Paul's Cathedral, 10.30 a.m., Rev. Prebendary Row; 3.15 p.m., Bishop Claughton; 7 p.m., Rev. H. Barter (offertory for Society for Propagation of the Gospel). Westminster Abbey, 10 a.m., 3 p.m., and 7 p.m. St. James's, noon, Rev. Francis Garden, the Sub-Dean. Whitehall, 11 a.m., Rev. V. H. Stanton; 3 p.m., Rev. Dr. Thornton (Boyle Lecture). Savoy, 11.30 a.m., Rev. Alfred Whitehead; 4 p.m., Rev. W. J. Knox-Little; 7 p.m., Rev. Allan G. Munro-Meugens.

MONDAY, JUNE 27.

Geographical Society, 8.30 p.m. (Lieut.-Col. C. E. Stewart—The Country of the Tekke Turkomans and the Tejend and Murghab Rivers). Watford Orphan Asylum, elections. Caledonian Ball, Willis's Rooms. Alexandra Palace Horse Show (three days).

TUESDAY, JUNE 28.

Queen Victoria crowned, 1838.
Statistical Society, anniversary, 4.
Anthropological Institute, 8 p.m.
Musical Union, 3.15 p.m.
Society of Chemical Industry, first General Meeting, at Civil Engineers' Institution (two days), 2 p.m. Horticultural Society, 11 a.m.; Rose and Pelargonium Society's Show (two days), 6 p.m. Boston Agricultural and Horticultural Shows (two days). Races: Newcastle and Four Oaks, Birmingham.

WEDNESDAY, JUNE 29.

St. Peter, Apostle and Martyr.
Military Benevolent Fund, Fancy Fair at Wellington Riding School, 2.30 p.m. (three days).
Botanic Society, Promenade, 3.30 p.m.
Society of Arts, anniversary, 4 p.m. Horticultural Society Exhibition, 6 p.m. Doncaster Agricultural Society (three days). Her Majesty's State Concert, Buckingham Palace.

THURSDAY, JUNE 30.

New University Buildings, Nottingham, to be opened by Prince Leopold.
Zoological Society's Gardens, Davis Lecture, 5 p.m. (Mr. J. E. Harting on Extinct British Quadrupeds). Victoria Institute, anniversary, 8 p.m. (address by Lord O'Neill). Stockbridge Races. Henley Regatta (two days). Woodbridge Dog and Poultry Show (two days).

FRIDAY, JULY 1.

United Service Institution, 3 p.m. (Major J. C. Ardagh on the Austrian Army).
Geologists' Association, 8 p.m. Library Association, 8 p.m. (Mr. G. R. Humphrey on Workmen's Libraries). Alexandra Park Races.

SATURDAY, JULY 2.

First Annual Meeting of the National Volunteers' Association at Wimbledon, 10 a.m. Artists' Benevolent Fund, 72nd anniversary dinner, Freemasons' Tavern, 6.30 p.m. Yachting: London Sailing, Junior Thames, Nore, Royal Cornwall (Falmouth), Royal Portsmouth, and Royal Alfred Clubs.

NEW BOOKS RECEIVED.

ALLEN AND CO.
The Lyrical Drama. Essays on Subjects, Composers, and Executants of Modern Opera. By H. Sutherland Edwards. 2 vols.

BENTLEY AND SON.
Two Pretty Girls. By Mary A. Lewis. 3 vols.

A. AND C. BLACK, EDINBURGH.
Guide to South of France and Part of Italy and Spain. Maps. Third Edition.

CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESS.
The New Testament in the Original Greek, according to the Text followed in the Authorised Version, together with the Variations adopted in the Revised Version. Edited for the syndics of the University Press. By the Rev. Dr. F. H. A. Scrivener.

CASSELL, PETTER, AND GALPIN.
Boswell and Johnson: Their Companions and Contemporaries. By Dr. J. F. Waller. With Portrait and Fable. By Richard Jefferies. 2 vols.

CHAPMAN AND HALL.
Amat. A Novel. 3 vols.
Notes on Whitney Law. Compiled by Captain Douglas Jones.
Sociology Based upon Ethnography. By Dr. Charles Letourneau. Translated by Henry M. Trollope.
Ayala's Angel. By A. Trollope. 3 vols.
Nine Collosses. By Fritz Geroldt.

CHATTO AND WINDUS.
The Cupboard Papers. By Fin-Bec.
Pastimes and Players. By Robert Macgregor.

CLARKE AND CO.
The Heirs of Errington. By Emma Jane Worboise.

DE LA RUE AND CO.
The Political, Social, and Literary History of Germany. By Dr. Cobham Brewer.
Colonel Gordon in Central Africa, 1874–8. With Portrait and Map. Edited by George Birkbeck Hill.

GRIFFITH AND FARRAN.
Elsie Grey. A Tale of Truth. By Cecil Clarke.
His Native Land. By the Rev. A. J. Binnie.
The Song of Solomon, Rendered into English Verse. By Dr. James Pratt.
On the Wings of a Dove; or, the Life of a Soul. By Sister E., C.S.J.B. With Nine Illustrations.

HERBERT AND CO., VICTORIA.
Evening to Morning, and Other Poems. By E. A. Jenns.

HODDER AND STOUGHTON.
How India was Won by England under Clive and Hastings. With a Chapter on Afghanistan. By the Rev. Bourchier Wrey Savile.
Men Worth Remembering: Dr. Thomas Chalmers. By Dr. Donald Fraser.
Lord Brackenbury. By Anselm H. Edwards.
Life in Western India. By Mrs. Guthrie.

JONES (LATE RIVINGTONS).
Gleanings. By Wilfred B. Wollam.

LOCKWOOD AND CO.
The White Cat. By Ernest Warren. Illustrated.
The Elements of Geography. By the Rev. R. P. Scott, M.A. New Edition, Greatly Enlarged and Corrected.
The Ladies' Multum-in-Parvo Flower Garden and Amateur's Complete Guide. With Illustrations. By Samuel Wood.
German Colloquial Phraseology. By Samuel Gallnbo.
German Prepositions. By S. Galindo.
Studies in English Literature. With short Biographical Sketches and Notes. By Joseph Payne.
Organ Building. By W. E. Dickson.

LONGMANS, GREEN, AND CO.
Note-Book of an Amateur Geologist. By John Edward Lee.
Transactions of the National Association for the Promotion of Social Science. Edinburgh Meeting, 1880.

LOW AND CO.
To the Central African Lakes and Back: The Narrative of the Royal Geographical Society's East Central African Expedition, 1878–80. By Joseph Thomson. With a Biographical Notice of the late Mr. Keith Johnston. 2 vols.
My Start in Life. By a Young "Middy." History of Ireland: Critical and Philosophical. Vol. I. By Standish O'Grady.
David Roberts, Artist. By Mrs. Robert O'Reilly. 3 vols.
Public Life of the Earl of Beaconsfield. By Frank Hitchman. Revised Edition.
The History of France. From 1830 to 1848. By M. Guizot. Edited by Madame de Witt, née Guizot. Vol. VIII. Illustrated with seventy-four Engravings on Wood.

MACMILLAN AND CO.
Non-Miraculous Christianity, and Other Sermons. Preached in the Chapel of Trinity College, Dublin. By Dr. George Salmon.
Memorials of Lord Beaconsfield. Reprinted from "The Standard." With a Portrait.
The Library. By Andrew Lang. With a Chapter on Modern English Illustrated Books by Austin Dobson.

MAY AND CO.
May's British and Irish Press Guide for 1881. Eighth Year.

MURRAY.
The Life of George Stephenson. By Dr. Samuel Smiles. Centenary Edition.

OXFORD AND CAMBRIDGE UNIVERSITY PRESSES.
The New Testament of Our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ. Translated out of the Greek: Being the Version set forth A.D. 1611, compared with the most Ancient Authorities and Revised, 1881.
The Greek Testament, with the Readings Adopted by the Revisers of the Authorised Version.

PARKER AND CO.
A History of Design in Painted Glass. By N. H. J. Westlake. Vol. I.

PAUL AND CO.
The International Scientific Series: Sight, An Exposition of the Principles of Monocular and Binocular Vision. By Dr. Joseph Le Conte. With Illustrations.
Anne Boleyn. A Tragedy in Five Acts. By the Author of "Faber and Primo."
The Cyclical Hippolytus. Translated from Euripides. With New Poems. By A. Mary F. Robinson.
Gleanings from the Desert of Arabia. By the late Major R. B. Upton.
Illusions. A Psychological Study. By James Sully.

PHILIP AND SON.
New Library Chart of the World on Mercator's Projection. With Supplementary Maps of the Northern and Southern Hemispheres, Orographical and other Charts.

REMINGTON AND CO.
Alfred Stevens. A Biographical Study. By Walter Armstrong.

RIVINGTONS.
A First History of England. By Louise Creighton. Numerous Illustrations.

ROUTLEDGE AND SONS.
Longfellow Birthday Book. Arranged by Charlotte Fiske Bates. Cambridge Ed.

SIMPKIN, MARSHALL, AND CO.
Reminiscences of a Dental Surgeon. By Joseph Snape.
Wild Africa: The Benighted Continent of To-day. Containing Strange Pictures of Native Savage Life. By Dr. T. Austin Bullock.

SMITH, ELDER, AND CO.
Mrs. Geoffry. By the Author of "Phyllis," &c. 3 vols.

SOTHERAN AND CO.
The First of May. A Fairy Masque. In a series of 22 Designs by Walter Crane.

SPON.
Society of Engineers Transactions, 1880.

STANFORD.
Cries in a Crisis and a Free Trade in Manufactures. Compiled by R. A. Macfie of Dreghorn. Second Edition, Enlarged.
Balance-Sheet of the World for Ten Years, 1870–1880. By Michael G. Mulhall. With Twelve Coloured Diagrams.
Shorthand made Easy, or the Locomotive System of Stenography.

STOCK.
The Boke of Saint Alban's. By Dame Juliana Berners. Containing Treatises on Hawking, Hunting, and Coat Armour. Printed at Saint Alban's in 1486. Reproduced in Facsimile. With an Introduction by William Blades.
The Deluge. A Poem. Books I. to IV.

STRAHAN AND CO.
Modern Wonders of the World, or, the New Sinbad. By William Gilbert.
The Other Half of the World. By Mrs. Edward Liddell.

TINSLEY BROTHERS.
Our Set. By Annie Thomas. 3 vols.
Among the Heather. A Highland Story. By A. G. Hertford. 2 vols.
Visited on the Children. A Novel. By Theo Gift. 3 vols.
Doctor Victoria. A Picture from the Period. By Major-General G. G. Alexander. 3 vols.

WARD AND CO.
The Whist-Player's Guide. By Captain H. F. Morgan.
Shakspere and Holy Writ. Parallel Passages, Tabularly Arranged by W. H. Malcolm. With Forewords by F. J. Furnivall.

WARNE AND CO.
The Life and Political Career of the Earl of Beaconsfield. By H. Walford.
Washing and Cleaning. A Manual for Domestic Use. By Beade Tremaine.
The Law of Master and Servant. By Charles E. Baker.
Art in Ornament and Dress. From the French of Charles Blanc. With Illustrations.

WEBSTER AND LARKIN.
Webster's Royal Red Book; or Court and Fashionable Register for May, 1881.

WHITTAKER AND CO.
A New System of German Conversational Questions. By E. Schimpel. First Series.
A Method of Learning German. By the same Author. Third Edition.
A German Preparatory Course. By the same Author. Third Edition.

HAYMAKING.

None of the pleasant perfumes of the country delight us more than the smell of new-mown grass. The scent of violets in the naked cheerless woods of February and March was exquisitely refreshing. Very sweet, too, later in the spring, was the fragrance with which the air was laden in those charming shady nooks, by rippling rills, where bluebells love to bloom. And beneath the leafy curtain of the woodlands in May and early June, when the foliage was at its freshest, the perfume that stole through sylvan solitudes from the modest lilies of the valley was positively ravishing. Still none of these, nor the hawthorn blossom on the hedges in flowery May, nor the trailing festoons of woodbine, nor even the June roses, exercise a more potent charm upon our animal spirits than the smell of the hayfields. The sweet wildings of the spring and early summer had to be sought for; nor could they always be found. But the scent from the hay is everywhere—on rolling upland and in sheltered valley, by river banks and by the shores of the restless sea, aye, and close up to the bricks and mortar and dust and smoke of the mighty city itself.

Nor is it only on the olfactory nerves that the haymaking acts with a quiet seductive charm all its own. Ear and eye are equally pleased. The whetting of scythes is not unmusical; and the haymakers, as a rule, form groups highly picturesque by the introduction of the feminine element. Wife and mother are there as well as the bread-winner, the village maid as well as the hardy swain. In that fragrant field down yonder by the river's marge, where willows trail their drooping branches on its cool and placid bosom, how pleasantly the sexes blend—the stronger bending to their scythes, the weaker tossing in air the grass that was mown yesterday. And in that field beyond—where the hay is for the most part "made," and where waggons are slowly creeping in and out amongst the haycocks, their loads gradually increasing in bulk as forkful after forkful is pitched up—the sexes again mingle in picturesque harmony, the men lifting those heavy forkfuls and building the loads, the women raking. Highly interesting, too, is that choice little picture in yon patch of meadow, where "the rustic youth, brown with meridian toil," is loosening some haycocks that show signs of heating, and a girl beside him, like the Lass of Patie's Mill,

A tedding of the hay
Bareheaded on the green,
Love mid her locks doth play,
And wantons in her e'en.

The infusion of the gentler sex into these pastoral scenes brings with it an air of gaiety sadly lacking where the men toil alone. The humming of country ditties, and the banter inseparable from such gatherings, are often as agreeable to the ear—smile not scornfully ye fair ones bred in the lap of luxury—as the click of mowing-machines, the whetting of scythes, and the swish of the sweeping blades through tangled grass; which latter, on the authority of the Laureate, is a "sound to rout the brood of cares—the sweep of scythe in morning dew."

When the morning dew is upon the grass, we shall find only the men at work, that is, if there be any grass to cut. The gentle sex will not appear in the hay-fields until the sun has sucked up the moisture of the night, for it would not do to rake up the hay while damp. But no matter how dripping-wet the grass, whether from dew or a fall of rain, the mowers will be in their swaths, as the grass receives its death-wound from the keen-edged scythes more readily when damp than when dry.

Too often, however, the rain comes at most inopportune moments. We will suppose it is raging noon, a moment when, thirsting for her needful rain, "distressful Nature pants." Wherever there is a shade-tree, the cattle are huddled together under its umbrageous foliage, and—whisking their tails uneasily, every now and again lashing their sides in the vain hope of driving away the tormenting gadflies—gaze wistfully into the boding silence. Not a leaf stirs in the branches up above them, nor even on the aspens down there by the river-side. Not a bird so much as twitters. The grasshoppers have ceased chirping. Silence reigns supreme—when, suddenly, there comes the low dull sound

That from the mountain, previous to the storm,
Rolls o'er the muttering earth, disturbs the flood,
And shakes the forest-leaf without a breath.

Some rumbling intimations of what is coming, a flash of livid flame, a burst of thunder, and then down comes the pattering rain in a sonorous deluge upon raked-up windrows, haycocks, waggon-loads, and half-built stacks. How many tons of hay, alas, have been completely spoilt by rain!—sometimes by thunder-storms, sometimes by rain less noisy but more provokingly persistent, sometimes by the meanest of drizzling mists.

English farmers are, of course, always subject to the possibility, nay the probability, of having their haymaking interrupted by rain. Yet how much better off they would be, did they but follow the American and Canadian custom of building wooden barns in which to store their hay and cereals. The English farmer dares not carry his hay until it is quite dry, lest it should heat in his closely-packed stacks. On the other side of the Atlantic, however, they take the hay from the fields much greener; for their barns are constructed so that they need not press down their hay until quite safe to do so. The waggon is driven right into the barn, and the loads are pitched alternately into the "mows" right and left of the gangway. If the hay be barely cured, or damp from rain, it is not trodden down tight and square as in the haystacks of Old England, but is pitched into the mows in a loose condition. If not very wet, there need be little fear of the hay heating; for, besides a sprinkling of salt, a free draught of air is admitted by throwing wide open the barn-doors at either end of the building. Moreover, a last waggon-load can be left standing in the gangway, and need not be thrown into the mows until the other hay is packed.

It seems highly probable that, of our English pastoral scenes, haymaking will, as time goes on, become more and more characteristically English. Whether it be attributable to foreign competition, to successive failures of the harvest, to the allurements of town life, or to the tempting invitations from the other side of the Atlantic—certain it is, that our rural population is rapidly decreasing: according to the recent Census, no less than ten per cent in the last decade. As a consequence, a great number of farms are now untilled; and the only resource for landowners will be laying down the land to grass for permanent pastures.

The beauty of the country will be enhanced rather than otherwise; for, lovely as are the acres of waving corn in July and August, we cannot forget that the arable land during the greater part of the year is an unsightly brown. And let us hope that the farmers—those of them whom no temptations can lure from their place of birth—may find the change from corn land to pasture a delivery out of their distresses!

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

THE
BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS,
A NEW JOURNAL FOR THE YOUNG.
ISSUED BY THE PROPRIETORS OF
THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

CAPTAIN MAYNE REID'S NEW ROMANCE OF THE SEA.
Readers of THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS will be glad to learn that in next week's Number a New and Original Serial Story of Adventure on the Sea, entitled
"THE CHASE OF LEVIATHAN,"
will be commenced in that Journal by CAPTAIN MAYNE REID.
Price One Penny.

E. L. MYERS, CHAMPION SPRINTER OF THE UNITED STATES, is sketched from life, and his record appears in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS for June 22. One Penny.

RUGBY SCHOOL.—No. 1 of England's Great Schools is depicted and described in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS for June 22.

PHIL HOLIDAY'S NOTES, published from week to week in THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS, give a chatty illustrated chronicle of Cricket and Sport.

THE AUTHOR of "SQUEE BIFFEN" will in next week's "B. I. N." begin a NEW STORY OF SCHOOL LIFE, entitled "BLACK PETHERTON AND I:" a Tale of Westborough School.

"JACK HEPWORTH'S VOYAGE ROUND THE WORLD," by "THE MID," will be started in next week's BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS.

BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS.
PUBLISHED EVERY WEDNESDAY.
One Penny; post-free, 1½d.

THE THIRD MONTHLY PART of THE BOYS' ILLUSTRATED NEWS will be published next Wednesday. It will contain the conclusion of CAPTAIN MAYNE REID'S romantic story, "THE LOST MOUNTAIN;" the opening chapters of MAYNE REID'S original tale of the sea, "THE CHASE OF LEVIATHAN;" the last of "SQUEE BIFFEN;" Curious Adventures of the commencement of a new serial by the same author, "BLACK PETHERTON AND I;" Price Sixpence; post-free, Eightpence.
THOMAS FOX, 10, Milford-lane, Strand, London.

Just published, Illustrated, 1s. 6d.; post-free, 1s. 8d.,
DECORATIVE PAINTING: a Practical Guide to Decorating the Walls of any Apartment, Panels, Screens, and Terra-cottas. By W. E. HARRISON.
London: WM. BARNARD, 119, Edgware-road, London.

"MYRA'S JOURNAL."
EVERY LADY SHOULD READ THE BEST AND CHEAPEST JOURNAL OF FASHION IN THE WORLD.
MYRA'S JOURNAL of Dress and Fashion.
Price 8d.; by post, 8d.
Novelties for JULY:—
1. Coloured Fashion Plate, showing new Models of Costumes for Ladies and Child.
2. Diagram Sheet containing Patterns of the Duvercier Mantle, Drawn Sleeve, Morning Coiffure, and Bathing Costume complete.
3. Cut-out Paper Pattern of a new Lawn-Tennis Apron.
4. Dress and Fashion in Paris.
5. Spinnings in Town.
6. Myra's Answers. Dress, Fashion in Furniture, Health and Personal Attention, Furniture and Furnishing, the Cuisine, Books and Authors, Music, Etiquette, Miscellaneous, Subscriptions: Yearly, 8s.; Half-yearly, 4s.
7. Latest from Paris.
8. Illustrations of the newest Modes in Costumes, and Tea, Indoor, Walking, and Evening Dresses, Mantles, Paletots, Chapeaux, Coiffures, Lingerie, &c.
9. Models of Spring Costumes, Mantles, and Chapeaux from Les Grands Magasins du Louvre, Paris.
10. Needlework: Designs for Embroidered Lamp Mat and Hand Screen, Corner of worked Satchel, Designs in Berlin Wool-work, Crochet, and Knitting. Embroidered Initials, &c.
GUCHAUD and SON,
39 and 40, Bedford-street, Covent-garden.

WELDON'S MAGAZINES for JULY.
1. WELDON'S LADIES' JOURNAL contains Sixty Illustrations of Latest Novelties and Thirty-two pages of Letterpress. Price 3d. Monthly; post-free, 4d.
2. WELDON'S PENNY DRESSMAKER contains a Coloured Supplement, Forty Illustrations and Sixteen pages of Letterpress. Price 1d. Monthly; post-free, 1½d.
3. WELDON'S BAZAAR OF CHILDREN'S FASHIONS.
Fifty Illustrations and Sixteen pages of Letterpress. Price 1d. Monthly; post-free, 1½d.
The Three Magazines sent post-free, 7d.
WELDON and Co., 9, Southampton-street, Strand.

Third Edition, price 1s., post-free,
THE New Electrolytic Treatment of Cancer and of Simple Tumours. By G. EDGELOW, M.D.
NELSON and Co., 23, Duke-street, Grosvenor-square, W.

JUST PUBLISHED, post-free, 2 stamps,
DYSPEPSIA and the SEVERER FORMS OF INDIGESTION. A small pamphlet on these distressing complaints and their complete cure. Published by the Author, RICHARD KING, Esq., Staff Surgeon R.N., 28, Warwick-st., Rugby.

Fourth Edition, crown 8vo, cloth, 2s. 6d.,
EPILEPSY, THE TONIC TREATMENT OF. By WALTER TYRRELL, M.R.C.S.
London: DAVID BOGUE, 3, St. Martin's-place, W.C.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

Now ready, in 2 vols., with Illustrations, 21s.,
LIFE IN WESTERN INDIA. By Mrs. GUTHRIE, Author of "Through Russia," &c.
"A charming book, remarkable for the variety and brilliance of the pictures which it sets before us."—Pall Mall.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

On June 29 (One Shilling), No. 270,
THE CORNHILL MAGAZINE for JULY. With Illustrations by George Du Maurier and W. Small.
CONTENTS.
A Grape from a Thorn. By James Payn. (With an Illustration.) Chap. XXVII.—A Female Champion. XXVIII.—Dying Words. XXIX.—A Friend in Need. XXX.—A Charitable Committee. XXXI.—Declined with Thanks. Samuel Pepys. The Diary—A Liberal Genius—Respectability. Pauline. (A Dramatic Tale. By Julian Hawthorne.) I.—The Artist and his Friends. II.—Letters from America. III.—Artist and Pupil. IV.—The Prima Donna. V.—Diplomatic Service.
Hector Berlioz: a Biography.
A New Study of Tennyson.—III.
Love the Debt. (With an Illustration.) Chap. XX.—Won by a Nose. XXI.—Struggles of the Infant Church. XXII.—Mabel's Reprieve.
London: SMITH, ELDER, and Co., 15, Waterloo-place.

A LIBRARY for ALL at ONE SHILLING a MONTH.
CASSELL'S
MONTHLY SHILLING LIBRARY.
CASSELL'S
MONTHLY SHILLING LIBRARY,
published with the Magazines every Month, in Volumes, each complete in itself.
The continued demand for the Volumes of CASSELL'S MONTHLY SHILLING LIBRARY has rendered it necessary to reprint them several times already. All the Volumes can, however, now be had by order from all Booksellers and the Railway Bookstalls.
CASSELL'S
MONTHLY SHILLING LIBRARY.
Volume V., published with the July Magazines, is DOMESTIC FOLK-LORE. By the Rev T. F. THISELTON DYER, M.A., Author of "British Popular Customs" and "English Folk-Lore." Price 1s.; or in cloth gilt, 2s.
"The study of Folk-Lore is year by year receiving greater attention; its object being, whilst collecting, classifying, and preserving existing folk-lore, to trace them as far as possible to their original source. In the present volume will be seen how every department of domestic life has its own Folk-Lore."—Extract from Preface.
CASSELL'S
MONTHLY SHILLING LIBRARY.
Volume IV.
The Rev. ROWLAND HILL, Preacher and Wit. By E. BROOME. With Introduction by Rev. J. STOUGHTON, D.D. Price 1s.; or cloth gilt, 2s.
Volume III.
BOSWELL and JOHNSON: their Companions and Contemporaries. By J. F. WALLER, LL.D. Price 1s.; or cloth gilt, 2s.
Volume II.
THE SCOTTISH COVENANTERS. By the Rev. J. TAYLOR, D.D., F.S.A.Scot. Price 1s.; or cloth gilt, 2s.
Volume I.
HISTORY OF THE FREE TRADE MOVEMENT IN ENGLAND. By A. MONGREDIEN. Price 1s.; or cloth gilt, 2s.
The "Graphic" says:—"Popular, portable, and readable, Cassell's Monthly Shilling Library offers, moreover, a rare variety of subjects."
CASSELL, PETTER, GALPIN, and Co., Ludgate-hill, London.

Now ready, Imperial quarto, cloth. Price Three Guineas,
CHARITABLE AND PAROCHIAL ESTABLISHMENTS. By H. SAXON SNELL, Fellow of the Royal Institute of British Architects, Member of Council of the Sanitary Institute of Great Britain, &c.
Illustrated with Lithographic Plates, besides Woodcuts of Plans, Elevations, and details of Hospitals, Workhouses, Infirmaries, Casual Wards, Schools, and such like Establishments, erected and designed by the Author; also containing copious extracts from Official Documents of Government Regulations for the erection of these classes of Buildings, and suggestions to Public Boards contemplating the erection or alteration and enlargement of Buildings.
B. T. BATSFORD, 52, High Holborn, London.

Just published, price 1s.; by post, 1s. 2d.,
JAIL-BIRDS; or, The Secrets of the Cells.
By A PRISON CHAPLAIN.
WILLIAM HIDGWAY, 169, Piccadilly, London, W.

MESSER'S BRITISH WILD FLOWERS.
A New and Rapid Method of Studying Wild Flowers by Analytical Illustrations. "We cordially recommend it."—Journal of Horticulture. Cloth, 6s. 6d.
D. BOGUE, St. Martin's-place, Trafalgar-square, W.C.

PRACTICAL LESSONS IN PAINTING ON CHINA, PORCELAIN, EARTHENWARE, &c. By Madame la Baronne DELAMARDELLE; from the French by GUSTAVE A. BOUVIER. 4th Edition. Price 1s.; post-free, 1s. 1d.—London: LECHERTIER, BARBE, and Co., 60, Regent-street.

ANGLO-AMERICAN METHOD; or, A New and Infallible System to LEARN in Three Months how to Read, Write, and Pronounce Correctly the FRENCH LANGUAGE. By J. DE FALLON, B.A., L.L.B. Cloth, 8vo, pp. 791, price 8s.—London: DULAU and Co., 37, Soho-square.

Third Edition, pp. 56, 1s., or 12 stamps,
SUMMER CATARRH or HAY FEVER: Its Causes, Symptoms, and Treatment. By GEORGE MOORE, M.D., L.R.C.P.L.
JAMES EPPS and Co., 170, Piccadilly; and 48, Threadneedle-street.

NEW BOOKS AND PUBLICATIONS.

Price One Shilling,
THE GENTLEMAN'S MAGAZINE for JULY.
CONTENTS.
The Comet of a Season. By Justin McCarthy, M.P.
The Revised New Testament: Its Merits and Its Demerits. By the Rev. T. H. L. Leary, D.C.L.
The Earl of Essex' Rebellion. By Alex. Charles Ewald.
Colonial Animals and their Origin. By Andrew Wilson, F.R.S.E. Illustrated.
Spring Trusting. By Retsjpinner.
Rising Artists. By Frederick Wedmore.
The Transvaal Question. By Frances Eleanor Colenso.
A Mote in the Parliamentary Eye. By the Member for the Chiltern Hundreds.
Science Notes. By W. Mattieu Williams.
Table Talk. By Sylvanus Urban.

Price One Shilling, Illustrated,
BELGRAVIA for JULY.
CONTENTS.
Joseph's Coat. By D. Christie Murray. Illustrated by Fred. Barnard.
The Unrepresented Majority: Their Education.
Bewitched in Mid-Ocean. By J. Maclaren Cobban.
Strange Players. By Dutton Cook.
The Countess Felicita's Discovery. Part II. By Julian Hawthorne.
Whitehall. By Rev. P. F. Thiselton Dyer, M.A.
Rambles about Harlow: I. By Alfred Rimmer. With Five Illustrations.
A Heart's Problem. By Charles Gibbon.

MRS. LYNN LINTON'S NEW NOVEL.
MY LOVE! By E. LYNN LINTON.
Author of "Patricia Kemball," "Lean Dundas," &c.
3 vols., crown 8vo. At every Library.

A LIFE'S ATONEMENT. By DAVID CHRISTIE MURRAY, Author of "Joseph's Coat." Crown 8vo, cloth extra, 3s. 6d. "A powerful novel. Of the author's capability to tell a story well and vigorously there is no doubt whatever."—World. "A vigorously written book, both in thought and style."—Spectator.

NEW NOVEL BY THE AUTHOR OF THE NEW REPUBLIC.
A ROMANCE OF THE NINETEENTH CENTURY. By W. H. MALLOCK. 2 vols., crown 8vo, at every Library. [Just ready.
CHATTO and WINDUS, Piccadilly, W.

WHAT IS YOUR CREST and WHAT IS YOUR MOTTO? Send name and county to CULLETON'S Heraldic office. Plain sketch, 3s. 6d.; colours, 7s. The arms of man and wife blended. Crest engraved on seals, rings, books, and steel dies, 8s. 6d. Gold seal with crest, 30s. Solid gold ring, engraved with crest, 42s. Manual of Heraldry, 350 engravings, 3s. 9d.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

CULLETON'S GUINEA BOX of STATIONERY contains a Ream of the very best Paper and 200 Envelopes, all stamped in the most elegant style with Crest and Motto, Monogram, or Address, and the engraving of Steel Die included. Sent to any part for P.O. order.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

VISITING CARDS, by CULLETON. Fifty best quality, 2s. 6d.; post-free, including the Engraving of Copper-plate. Wedding Cards, 50 each, 50 Embossed Envelopes, with Maiden Name, 12s. 6d.—T. CULLETON, Seal Engraver, 25, Cranbourn-street, St. Martin's-lane, W.C.

CHROMOPHOTOGRAPHY.
(KRAUS' PROCESS.)
The New Art (rendering any person without previous knowledge of either Painting or Drawing) to Colour Photographs on canvas glazes in imitation of China and Enamel Painting. Book containing every requisite, 21s. and 42s. Particulars post-free, specimens shown on application at the Sole Agents, J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, London, W.

VITREMANIE, superseding Diaphanie. An easy and inexpensive method of decorating windows in churches, public buildings, and private houses, by which may be produced the rich colouring and beautiful geometric design in appearance to real stained glass. Handbook of Designs and full Instructions, 1s. 1d. Boxes, comprising designs, &c., at 2s., 3s. 6d., 5s., 10s. 6d., and 21s. Inventors, J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street, London, W.

JOSEPH GILLOTT'S STEEL PENS.
GOLD MEDAL,
PARIS,
1878.

DENT'S WATCHES, CLOCKS, and CHRONOMETERS.—Illustrated Catalogue sent free.—Apply to 61, Strand, or 34, Royal Exchange, London.

THE FINEST WATCHES MADE. SEWILL'S KEYLESS WATCHES. Prize Medals, London, Paris, and Philadelphia. Damp and Dust-proof, 18-carat cases, adjusted and compensated for all climates, £16 16s., £14 14s., and £25; Ladies', £7 7s., £10 10s., and £18 10s.; in silver cases, for Ladies or Gentlemen, £5 5s., £6 6s., and £8 8s. Forwarded on receipt of remittance.—J. Sewill, 20, Cornhill, London, and 61, South Castle-street, Liverpool. Illustrated Catalogue free.

WALKER'S CRYSTAL CASE WATCHES are superseding all others. Prize Medals—London, 1862; Paris, 1867. Silver Watches, from £4 4s.; Gold, from £6 6s. Price Lists sent free.—77, Cornhill; 220, Regent-street; and 76, Strand.

PROVIDE AGAINST ACCIDENTS! ACCIDENTS WILL HAPPEN—A fixed sum in case of Death by Accident, and a Weekly Allowance in the event of Injury, may be secured by a policy of the RAILWAY PASSENGERS' ASSURANCE COMPANY, the Right Hon. Lord Kinnaird, Chairman. £1,630,000 has been paid as Compensation. West-End Office, 8, Grand Hotel Buildings, Charing-cross; and 64, Cornhill, London.—WILLIAM J. VIAN, Secretary.

THEO. MARZIALS' NEW SONGS.
Kitty's Sun Bonnet .. .. .. .. 2s. 0d. net.
Folie .. .. .. .. .. 1s. 6d. net.
Wind Flowers .. .. .. .. 1s. 0d. net.
When the Spring Comes Laughing .. .. 2s. 0d. net.
By the Composer of "Twickenham Ferry," "A Summer Shower," &c.

EDWARD LLOYD'S New Song, by MAUDE V. WHITE, TO MUSIC. TO BECALM HIS FEVER. 2s. net. By the Composer of "Absent, yet Present," "Loving and True," &c.

CHARLES SANTLEY'S New Songs, AVE MARIA (with organ accompaniment, or with piano). 2s. net; "To Blossoms." By MAUDE V. WHITE. 2s. net.

ARTHUR SULLIVAN'S NEW COMPETITIONS.
Edward Gray. Song. Words by Tennyson .. 2s. 0d. net.
The Sisters. Duet for Female Voices. Words by Tennyson .. .. .. .. 2s. 0d. net.
Marche Danoise, for Piano Solo. Dedicated to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales .. .. 1s. 6d. net.
Ouverture di Ballo, for Piano Duet .. .. 2s. 6d. net.

A. RUBINSTEIN'S A SONG IN A GONDOLA. Poem by M. X. Hayes. 1s. 6d. net.
London: STANLEY LUCAS, WEBER, and Co., 84, New Bond-street, W.; and of all the Musicsellers.

ALFRED B. PEARCE, 39, Ludgate-hill,
INVITES INSPECTION of all that is new and beautiful in useful and ornamental CHINA and GLASS, including
Dinner Services ("Cottage") .. 50 pieces .. .. 13 6
Dinner Services for 12 persons (blue pieces) .. .. 25 0
China Dessert Services for 12 persons, Gilt, 17s., Ungilt 14 0
Gilt China Tea Services, 40 pieces, 12s. .. .. 29 pieces 8 6
China Breakfast Sets for 6 persons, 11s. .. .. for 4 persons 7 0
Toilet Services (for washstands), 6s. 6d., 7s. 6d., .. and 3 9
White Stone Jugs, "The Grecian," .. .. set of three 1 3
All really excellent patterns.
Quart Decanters, good cut glass, 5s. per pair .. .. plain 4 0
Claret Decanters (with handles), 4s. each .. .. and 3 0
Plain light Claret Glasses, well made, 6s. per doz. .. and 4 6
Wine Glasses, plain or fancy, Ports and Sherries, per doz. 1 9
Engraved Wine Glasses .. do. .. do. .. 3 6
Hock Glasses, ruby bowl, 6s. per doz. .. .. green bowl 3 0
Tumblers, cut, 3s. 3d.; plain, 2s. 9d. moulded, per doz. 1 6
Plain light Finger-Glasses, taper shape .. .. per doz. 6 6
Other articles proportionately cheap.
Descriptive Catalogue post-free.
ALFRED B. PEARCE, 39, LUDGATE-HILL. Established 1760.

JAY'S, Regent-street.

SUMMER SILKS.—Very durable, light, soft, elastic, and will neither crumple nor crush. Black and also silver and archive colours. Sold at per yard, or made up in the most fashionable costumes of the day, at from 84 guineas each costume, including silk material for the bodice.
JAY'S, Regent-street.

COSTUMES FOR SUMMER WEAR.
Light, but not transparent.
MESSRS. JAY have a variety of Costumes prepared for the Summer Season, combining French designs, and suitable either for ladies who are in mourning or for those who wear black dresses from choice.
JAY'S, Regent-street.

MOURNING.—Messrs. JAY'S Experienced Assistants travel to any part of the kingdom, free of expense to purchasers. They take dresses and millinery with them, besides patterns of materials, all marked in plain figures, and at the same price as if purchased at the Warehouse in Regent-street. Funerals at stated charges conducted in London or country. J. F. PRATT.
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE, REGENT-STREET, W.

PRATT'S LADIES' BELTS AND ABDOMINAL SUPPORTS
ARE CONFIDENTLY RECOMMENDED AS THE MOST COMFORTABLE AND EFFICIENT EVER MADE
Apply to the Ladies' Attendant,
J. F. PRATT,
420, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON, W.

NUDA VERITAS.—GREY HAIR restored by this valuable specific to its original shade, after which it grows the natural colour, not grey. Used as a dressing, it causes growth and arrests falling. The most harmless and effectual restorer extant. One trial will convince it has no equal. Price 10s. 6d., of all Chemists and Hairdressers. Testimonials post-free.—R. HOVENDEN and SONS, London.

ROBARE'S AUREOLINE, or GOLDEN HAIR WASH.—For producing the beautiful golden colour so much admired. Warranted perfectly harmless. Price 3s. 6d. and 10s. 6d., of all principal Perfumers and Chemists throughout the world.—Agents, R. HOVENDEN and SONS, London.

THE COURT HAIR DESTROYER.—The newly-discovered, harmless, only effectual remedy for superfluous hair. 3s. 6d.; post, privately packed, 42 stamps. Of Inventor, John Leon, 19, Porteous-road, London, W.; or Chemists.

A LADY having a Simple Recipe to safely Remove Superfluous Hairs, preventing their appearance, will have pleasure in sending it upon application to Mrs. GRACE NEWTON, Verwood Villa, Thornton-heath, Surrey.

HAY FEVER or SUMMER CATARRH. The most effective remedy for this distressing affection is EPPS'S ANTHOXANTHUM, administered as spray. The relief to the irritated membrane is almost instantaneous. In Bottles, 2s. 6d. and 4s. 6d. (by post, 36 or 57 stamps), labelled JAMES EPPS and CO., 48, Threadneedle-st., and 170, Piccadilly.

"I CONSIDER that for Asthma and all Throat and Chest Diseases the best remedy is Dr. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS."—J. Johnson, M.P.S., 191, Meanwood-road, Leeds.

NEW MUSIC.

PATIENCE. An Æsthetic Opera. By W. S. GILBERT and ARTHUR SULLIVAN. Now being performed at the Opera Comique with enormous success.
Vocal Score .. .. .. .. 6s.
Pianoforte Solo .. .. .. .. 3s.
All the following sent post-free for half price.
DANCE MUSIC BY CHARLES D'ALBERT.

| | Solo or Duet |
|---|---|
| Patience Waltz .. .. .. .. .. .. | 4 0 |
| Patience Lancers .. .. .. .. .. .. | 4 0 |
| Patience Quadrille .. .. .. .. .. .. | 4 0 |
| Patience Polka .. .. .. .. .. .. | 4 0 |

VOCAL MUSIC.

| | Song or Duet, each |
|---|---|
| Hey Willow Waly O! .. .. .. | 4 0 |
| A most Intense Young Man .. .. .. .. .. | 4 0 |
| When I first put this Uniform on .. .. .. .. | 4 0 |
| The Silver Churn .. .. .. .. .. .. | 4 0 |
| Love is a Plaintive Song .. .. .. .. .. | 4 0 |

PIANOFORTE ARRANGEMENTS.

| | |
|---|---|
| Boyton Smith's Fantasia .. .. .. .. .. .. | 4 0 |
| Kuhe's Fantasia .. .. .. .. .. .. | 4 0 |
| Smallwood's Easy Fantasias, 1, 2, 3 .. .. .. .. each | 3 0 |
| Fred. Godfrey's Grand Selection. (As played by all the Military Bands) .. .. .. .. | 4 0 |

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street, W., and 15, Poultry, E.C.

OLIVETTE. New Comic Opera. Enormous success at the Strand Theatre. Adapted by H. B. Farnie; Music by AUDRAN.
Vocal Score .. .. .. .. .. 8s. net.
Abridged Edition of the Vocal Score, containing the Overture, Songs, &c. .. .. .. .. 4s. ,,
Pianoforte Solo .. .. .. .. .. 2s. 6d. ,,
All the Favourite Airs, arranged for the Violin, Flute, or Cornet .. .. .. each 1s. 6d. ,,

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Lancers. D'Albert .. | 2s. net. | Galop. D'Albert .. | 2s. net. |
| Waltz. D'Albert .. | 2s. ,, | Nearest and Dearest | |
| Quadrille. D'Albert.. | 2s. ,, | Waltz. D'Albert .. | 2s. ,, |
| Polka. D'Albert .. | 2s. ,, | | |

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

IL DEMONIO. New Opera. By ANTON RUBINSTEIN. Performed for the first time on June 21 at the Royal Italian Opera, Covent Garden. Price 10s. 6d. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

A CREOLE LOVE SONG. Words by Thos. Martials; Music by Mrs. LYNEDOCH MONCRIEFF. Price 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

NEW AND POPULAR SONGS.

IN SHADOW. Mrs. RONALDS. 2s. net.
WELCOME. Lady ARTHUR HILL. 2s. net.
CŒUR DE LION. H. J. STARK. Sung by Mr. Oswald. 2s. net.
AT THE PORTAL. N. FERRI. Sung by Madame Mary Cummings. 2s. net.
WHAT THE FIRELIGHT TOLD. J. L. ROECKEL. 2s. net.
DINNA LEAVE ME. A. M. WAKEFIELD, Composer of "No, Sir,..." 2s. net.
THOUGHTS AT SUNRISE. Mrs. L. MONCRIEFF. 2s. net.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHARLES D'ALBERT'S NOVELTIES.
PIRATES OF PENZANCE LANCERS, WALTZ, QUADRILLE, POLKA, and GALOP .. each 2s. 0d. net
ADELINA WALTZ. Illustrated with beautiful Portrait of Madame Patti .. .. .. .. 2s. 0d. net
PERFECTA WALTZ .. .. .. .. .. 2s. 0d. net
DRINK, PUPPY, DRINK! POLKA .. .. .. 2s. 0d. net
QUIRINUS LANCERS .. .. .. .. .. 2s. 0d. net
DISTANT SHORE WALTZ .. .. .. .. 2s. 0d. net
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S THREE-YEARS' SYSTEM of HIRE of PIANOFORTES, HARMONIUMS, and AMERICAN ORGANS, by which the Instrument becomes the property of the Hirer at the end of the third year, provided each quarter's hire shall have been regularly paid in advance. Pianofortes from 2 gs. Harmoniums, from £1 5s.; and American Organs, from £2 10s. a Quarter.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street; and 15, Poultry, E.C.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S PIANINOS, from 20 guineas.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S COTTAGES, from 27 guineas.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S GRANDS, from 75 guineas.

CHICKERING PIANOFORTES, from 120 guineas, with American discount.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ALEXANDRE HARMONIUMS, for Church, Schools, or Drawing-Rooms, from 6 to 150 guineas; or, on the Three-Years' System, from £1 5s. per quarter.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S IMPROVED AMERICAN ORGANS, combining Pipes with Reeds, Manufactured by Clough and Warren, Detroit, U.S.A. The immense advantages these instruments possess over the Organs hitherto imported have induced Messrs. Chappell and Co. to undertake the sole Agency of this eminent Manufactory. A large variety on view, from 18 to 250 guineas. Price-Lists on application to CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

CLOUGH and WARREN'S Favourite ORGAN. Compass, five octaves, ten stops, four sets of reeds, two of two and two thirds octaves and two of two and one-third octaves, knee swell, elegant carved Canadian walnut case, price 27 guineas. With twelve stops, sub-bass octave coupler, and two knee pedals, 35 guineas. Illustrated Price-List free by post.
Sole Agents, CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

INSTRUMENTS by ALL MAKERS may be HIRED or PURCHASED on the Three-Years' System.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

A LARGE DISCOUNT TO PURCHASERS FOR CASH.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.
City Branch, 15, Poultry, E.C.

"Steinway is to the Pianist what Stradaurius is to the Violinist."—Herr Joachim.

THE STEINWAY PIANOFORTES,
GRAND AND UPRIGHT,
THE GREATEST PIANOFORTES IN THE WORLD.
The Steinway Pianofortes are the chosen instruments of the educated and wealthy classes in every nation throughout civilisation, and have by far the largest annual sale of any pianofortes in the world.
STEINWAY and SONS,
STEINWAY HALL,
LOWER SEYMOUR-STREET, PORTMAN-SQUARE, W.
(And at Steinway Hall, New York.)

BROADWOOD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System, from £2 12s. 6d. per Quarter.

COLLARD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System; in Black and Gold Cases, at £4 14s. 6d. to £5 5s., £6 6s., £7 7s., and in Special Early English Ebonised Case, £8 8s. per Quarter.

ERARD'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on CRAMER'S Three-Years' System, from £5 5s. per Quarter.

CRAMER'S PIANOFORTES for Sale, Hire, and on their Three-Years' System, from £1 11s. 6d. per Quarter. Detailed Lists post-free on application to Regent-street, W.; Bond-street, W.; Moorgate-street, E.C.; and 145, High-street, Notting-hill.

PLEYEL WOLFF and CO.'S PIANOS. Every description of these celebrated Instruments for SALE or HIRE. Sole Agency, 170, New Bond-street, W.

PIANOFORTES for HIRE or for SALE, from 25 guineas upwards.—JOHN BROADWOOD and SONS, 33, Great Pulteney-street, Golden-square, W. Manufactory, 62, Horseferry-road, Westminster, S.W.

NEW MUSIC.

LA MASCOTTE. Opéra Comique by AUDRAN, Composer of "Olivette." Performed in Paris with the greatest possible success.
THE COMPLETE OPERA, with French Words, price 12s.
THE COMPLETE OPERA, with English Words (in the press).
THE COMPLETE OPERA for Piano Solo, 2s. net.
Quadrilles, Waltzes, and other Arrangements in hand.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

THE ROYAL EDITION OF OPERAS, for Voice and Pianoforte, in the most perfect form ever published. Edited by ARTHUR SULLIVAN and J. PITTMAN.
ITALIAN AND ENGLISH WORDS.

| | s. d. | | s. d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Sallo in Maschera (Un) .. | 3 6 | Huguenots (Les) .. | 5 0 |
| Barbiere di Siviglia (Il) | 3 6 | Lucia di Lammermoor | 3 6 |
| Crown Diamonds (The) .. | 3 6 | Lucrezia Borgia .. | 3 6 |
| Dinorah .. .. .. | 3 6 | Martha .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Domino Noir (Le) .. .. | 3 6 | Masaniello .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Don Giovanni .. .. .. | 3 6 | Mirella .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Don Pasquale .. .. .. | 3 6 | Norma .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Elisir d'Amore (L') .. | 3 6 | Perfect of Havre (The) .. | 3 6 |
| Faust .. .. .. .. | 3 6 | Puritani (I) .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Favorita (La) .. .. .. | 3 6 | Rigoletto .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Fidelio.. .. .. .. | 3 6 | Robert le Diable .. .. | 3 6 |
| Figaro .. .. .. .. | 3 6 | Semiramide .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Figlia del Reggimento (La) | 3 6 | Sonnambula (La) .. .. | 3 6 |
| Flauto Magico (Il) .. .. | 3 6 | Traviata (La) .. .. | 3 6 |
| Fra Diavolo .. .. .. | 3 6 | Trovatore (Il) .. .. | 3 6 |
| Guillaume Tell .. .. .. | 5 0 | Vascello Fantasma (Il) .. | 3 6 |

A List of the Complete Series, containing English Operas, and Operas with German and French Words, gratis on application.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

NEW SONGS by MOLLOY.
THE BOATSWAIN'S STORY. Sung by Mr. Santley.
THE FIRST TIME I SAW MARY DAVIES. Sung by Mrs. Mary Davies.
TWENTY-ONE. Sung by Antonette Sterling.
2s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

NEW SONGS by MARZIALS.
A BASKET OF LOVES. Sung by Mrs. Osgood.
A SUMMER SHOWER. Sung by Mrs. Mary Davies.
ROCHESTER BELLS. Sung by the Composer.
THAT SWEET STORY OF OLD. Sacred Song.
2s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

BUDS AND FLOWERS. By KUHE.
Sung by Miss Mary Davies.
"Well-written and pleasant; recommended by agreeable music not less than by a pretty subject."—Daily Telegraph.
Price 2s. net.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

GREAT-GRANDMOTHER. By MOLLOY.
In consequence of the very favourable reception of this new ballad, it will be sung by Madame Sherrington at all the concerts at which she appears during the present year. 2s. net.
BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

TIME WAS. By Lady ARTHUR HILL.
THE LITTLE ROUNDHEAD MAID. By Miss WAKEFIELD.
THE BEND OF THE RIVER. By BLUMENTHAL.
FAIRLY CAUGHT. By LOUIS DIEHL.
MIGNONETTE. By EUCHRE CHAMPION.
2s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., 295, Regent-street.

HAYDN'S KATZEN-BOURRÉE. For the Pianoforte. "The prettiest novelty of the season, and a perfect gem of musical composition." Post-free, 18 stamps.
CZERNY, 349, Oxford-street.

NOVELLO'S ORIGINAL OCTAVO EDITION of OPERAS. Edited and Corrected according to the Original Scores, by NATALIA MACFARREN and BERTHOLD TOURS. The English Translations by Natalia Macfarren and the Rev. J. Troutbeck, M.A., &c.

| | s. d. | | s. d. |
|---|---|---|---|
| Fra Diavolo .. .. .. | 3 6 | Die Zauberflöte .. .. | 3 6 |
| Masaniello .. .. .. | 3 6 | Il Seraglio .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Fidelio .. .. .. .. | 3 6 | Il Barbiere .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Norma .. .. .. .. | 3 6 | Guillaume Tell .. .. | 5 0 |
| La Sonnambula .. .. | 3 6 | Il Trovatore .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Lucia di Lammermoor .. | 3 6 | Rigoletto .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Lucrezia Borgia .. .. | 3 6 | La Traviata .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| La Figlia del Reggimente | 3 6 | Ernani .. .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Martha .. .. .. .. | 3 6 | Johannisnacht .. .. | 3 6 |
| Iphigenia in Aulis .. .. | 3 6 | Lohengrin .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Iphigenia in Tauris .. .. | 3 6 | Flying Dutchman .. .. | 3 6 |
| L'Etoile du Nord .. .. | 3 6 | Oberon .. .. .. .. | 3 6 |
| Don Giovanni .. .. .. | 3 6 | Der Freischütz .. .. | 3 6 |
| Le Nozze di Figaro .. .. | 3 6 | Preciosa .. .. .. .. | 1 6 |

(To be continued.)
London: NOVELLO, EWER and Co., 1, Berners-street, W., and 80 and 81, Queen-street, E.C.

THE BUGLER. In D, F, and G. By CIRO PINSUTI. Words by F. E. Weatherly.
"This very successful song has now reached the Tenth Edition.
B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster-row.

THE CHALLENGE. For Bass and Baritone. By HUMPHREY J. STARK. Words by E. Oxenford. A bold and vigorous composition, and received always by great applause and repeated encores.—WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster-row.

A ROYAL EXCHANGE. ODOARDO BARRI. "A brilliant and effective song for vocalists in which charming music is united to a quaint little story."—Review.—B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster-row.

WEIT VON DIR (Far from Thee). Waltz. By OSCAR REYDING. "When she went back to the ball-room, Captain Winstanley followed her, and claimed his waltz. The band was just striking up the latest German melody, 'Weit von Dir,' a strain of burning tenderness."—Vide Miss Braddon's "Vixen." Each of the above 2s. net.
B. WILLIAMS, 60, Paternoster-row.

Just published,
L'INSTANT SUPRÊME VALSE. By the Hon. FITZROY HAY. Post-free, 24 stamps.
REID BROTHERS, 139, Oxford-street, London, W.

Just published,
GOOD-BYE. Song. By F. P. TOSTI (Composer of the popular song "For Ever and for Ever"). 4-keys. Net, 2s.—RICORDI, 265, Regent-street, W.

GEORGE FREDERICK WEST'S clever PIANOFORTE ARRANGEMENTS, &c., as much in demand as ever.
Schubert's Waltzes. Books 1 to 3, each 4s.
Mozart's Favourite Waltzes. Nos. 1 to 4, and 5, each 3s.
Beethoven's Waltzes. Books 1 to 6, each 3s.; as Duet, each 4s.
Angels Ever Bright and Fair (Handel). 3s.
Her Long Hair Floated Behind (Schumann). 4s.; Duet, 4s.
Nazareth (Gounod). 4s.
Silver Bells (Harmony) (Dale). 3s.
The Lark now Leaves his Watery Nest (Hatton). 4s.
As Pants the Hart (Spohr). 3s.
Benedictus, 12th Service (Mozart). 3s.
But the Lord is Mindful (Mendelssohn). 3s.
Gipsy Rondo. Stabat Mater. 3s.
Gloria in Excelsis. 12th Service (Mozart). 3s.
Thanks be to God (Handel). 3s.
Gavotte in B flat (Handel). 4s.
Jerusalem the Golden. 3s.
Lieber Augustin. 3s.
Nelson's Victory (Bircham). 4s.
The Harmonious Blacksmith (Handel). 3s.
With Verdure Clad (Haydn). 3s.
Calle Herrin'. 4s.
Freischütz. 4s.
Kyrie Eleison. 12th Service (Mozart). 3s.
Ye Shall Feed His Flock (Handel). 3s.
In Native Worth (Haydn). 3s.
Hallelujah Chorus (Handel). 3s.
Carnival de Venise. 4s.
The Heavens are Telling (Haydn). 3s.
The Bridal March from "Lohengrin." 4s.
Each of the above post-free for half price in stamps. Also a complete List of West's Compositions and Arrangements, post-free.
London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street.

CHARLES HALLÉ'S PRACTICAL PIANOFORTE SCHOOL
Section I.—No. 1. PIANOFORTE TUTOR.
Catalogues and all Particulars may be had from
FORSYTH BROTHERS, London, 272a, Regent-circus, Oxford-street; Manchester, Cross-street and South King-street; and all Musicsellers.

£20 SCHOOL-ROOM PIANO (Co-operative price for cash). Seven octaves—strong, sound, and substantial. Adapted for hard practice. Carefully packed free, and sent to any part. Drawing gratis.
THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street.

£35.—There is nothing in London—nor, in fact, in all England—to be compared to the elegantly carved
DRAWING-ROOM TRICHORD COTTAGE PIANOFORTE, with Cabriole Tynes Legs, which is sold for £35 by
THOMAS OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, Portman-sq.

NEW MUSIC.

JOSEPH WILLIAMS'S LIST.
THE LATEST SUCCESS.
BILLEE TAYLOR. Comic Opera. By H. P. STEPHENS and E. SOLOMON.
VOCAL SCORE .. .. .. 6s. net.
SONGS.
ALL ON ACCOUNT OF ELIZA (Third Edition). 2s. net.
SELF-MADE KNIGHT (Second Edition). 2s. net.
THE VIRTUOUS GARDENER. 2s. net.
FANTASIA FOR PIANO. CH. TOURVILLE. 1s. 6d. net.

PIANO SCORE (Complete). 2s. 6d. net. Now ready.
*QUADRILLES. By CHARLES COOTE. 2s. net.
*LANCERS. By ARTHUR GRENVILLE. 2s. net.
*WALTZES. By CHARLES GODFREY. 2s. net.
DANCE MUSIC, BILLEE TAYLOR, ready. Orchestra, 2s.; Septet, 1s. 6d.
* Beautifully Illustrated.

HENRY FARMER'S PIANOFORTE TUTOR, considerably Enlarged and Fingered by the Author, fourth Edition. 4s.
"Decidedly the best and most useful instruction book we have seen."—Musical Review.

THE LOVE OF OLD. ROECKEL'S charming New Song will be sung by Miss Damian at her forthcoming engagements. Post-free, 24 stamps.

PIANO DUETS.
C. REINECKE. Three Sonatas, Op. 129. Price 2s. each, net.

PIANO SOLOS.
W. KUHE. NEW SACRED TRANSCRIPTIONS.
251 (Costa). Kaatan (Costa). Price 2s. each net.
TH. LACK. NEW PIECES.
Menuet. La Meusette. Bolero. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
H. ENGELBRECHT. NEW PIECES.
Joyeuse Rentrée, Fête à Trianon, Parfait Bonheur. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
FRANZ HITZ. NEW PIECES.
Cavatetage (Caprice); Lutin Rose, Le Regiment qui passe.
Price 1s. 6d. each net.
JOYFUL MOMENTS. Ten Easy Pieces on Popular Subjects. Arranged by CH. TOURVILLE. Price 1s. each net.
OUR FAVOURITES. Ten Moderately Easy Pieces on Popular Subjects. Arranged by CH. TOURVILLE. Price 1s. 3d. each net.
THE PROGRESSIVE MUSIC SCHOOL.
Carefully Edited, Fingered, and Corrected from the Original Manuscripts by J. LEYBACH. First Series (very easy), 16 Numbers. Numbers 1 to 16, price 1s. 6d. each net. Number 15, price 1s. 6d. net.

VIOLIN AND PIANO DUETS.
S. JACOBY. Six Popular Airs (Easy). Price 1s. each net.
CH. TOURVILLE. Twelve Favourite Subjects (Moderate). Price 1s. 6d. each net.
H. FARMER. Popular Violin Solos (Brilliant), with Piano Accompaniment. Nine Numbers. Price 1s. 6d. each net.
London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, Berners-street, W.; and 123, Cheapside, E.C.

SUNG BY ARTHUR ROBERTS.
THE GOOD YOUNG MAN WHO DIED. An Æsthetic Lay. Words by H. P. Stephens; Music by E. SOLOMON. "He has left this world for a brighter sphere, There's a great little brightness o'er him. Telling how much we held him dear, And how deeply we deplore him; But that cannot tell how we miss his ways, Our friend, philosopher, and guide; For years to come we shall sing in praise Of the good young man who died." Post-free for 24 stamps.—London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 24, Berners-street; and 123, Cheapside.

PERFORMED AT
HER MAJESTY'S STATE BALL at Buckingham Palace.
LA BELLE LURETTE QUADRILLE. (Offenbach.)
DONNA JUANITA QUADRILLE. (Lumbye.)
BILLEE TAYLOR QUADRILLE. (Solomon.)
All Arranged by CHARLES COOTE, Jun.
Price 2s. each net.
Septets, 1s. 6d. net; Orchestra, 2s. net.
London: JOSEPH WILLIAMS

PROVERBS IN SONGS. By WEATHERLY and ROECKEL.
No. 1. Two's Company .. .. .. 2s. net.
No. 2. A bird in the hand .. .. .. 2s. net.
No. 3. When poverty knocks at the door .. 2s. net.
No. 4. The longest way round .. .. .. 2s. net.
ENOCH and SONS, 19, Holles-street, W.

BANK OF NEW ZEALAND
(Incorporated by Act of General Assembly, July 29, 1861).
Bankers to the New Zealand Government.
Capital subscribed and paid up, £1,000,000.
Reserve Fund, £555,386.
Head Office—Auckland.
BRANCHES AND AGENCIES.
In Australia—Melbourne, Sydney, and Newcastle.
In Fiji—Levuka.
In New Zealand—Auckland, Blenheim, Christchurch, Dunedin, Invercargill, Napier, Nelson, New Plymouth, Picton, Wellington, and eighty-four other towns and places throughout the Colony.
The Bank grants Drafts on all their Branches and Agencies, and transacts every description of banking business connected with New Zealand, Australia, and Fiji on the most favourable terms.
The London Office RECEIVES FIXED DEPOSITS of £50 and upwards, rates and particulars of which can be ascertained on application. F. LARKWORTHY, Managing Director.
No. 1, Queen Victoria-street, Mansion House, E.C.

SUN FIRE-OFFICE, Threadneedle-street, E.C.: Charing-cross, S.W.; Oxford-street (corner of Vere-street, W.
Established 171 years.
Home and Foreign Insurance effected.
Sum insured in 1880, £362,745,653.
FRANCIS B. RELTON, Secretary.

SMART'S WRITING INSTITUTION, 97B, Quadrant, Regent-street (entrance in Swallow-street). Open from Ten till Nine daily. Persons of all ages received privately, and taught at any time suiting their own convenience. Lessons one hour each. No classes. No extras. Improvement guaranteed in a few lessons. Separate rooms for ladies. Apply to Mr. Smart, as above.

WEDDING and BIRTHDAY PRESENTS at RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly, London.
SETS FOR THE WRITING-TABLE AND BOUDOIR, in Ormolu, Bronze, Enamel, Ivory, Enamel, SEVRES CHINA.
BRONZE, and OXIDIZED SILVER, from .. 21s. to £10
TRAVELLING DRESSING BAGS .. .. .. 63s. to £60
DRESSING CASES .. .. .. .. .. 21s. to £50
DESPATCH BOXES .. .. .. .. .. 21s. to £10
TOURISTS' WRITING CASES .. .. .. 4s. 6d. to £5
ENVELOPE CASES and BLOTTING BOOKS.. 10s. 6d. to £5
INKSTANDS .. .. .. .. .. .. 5s. to £5
CANDLESTICKS (per pair) .. .. .. .. 7s. 6d. to £5
WORK BOXES .. .. .. .. .. .. 10s. to £5
THE NEW "TANTALUS" LIQUÉR STAND .. 105s. to £10
THE "TANTALUS" SODA and BRANDY STAND, £5 19s. 6d.
And a large and choice assortment of ENGLISH, VIENNESE, and PARISIAN NOVELTIES, from 5s. to £5.

PORTRAIT ALBUMS at RODRIGUES', with Patent Leather Guards, 4s. 6d. to £5. Floral Albums, Scrap Albums, Presentation and Regimental Albums and Albums of every description made to order.—42, Piccadilly.

RODRIGUES' MONOGRAMS,
ARMS, CORONET, CREST, and ADDRESS DIES
Engraved as Gems from Original and Artistic Designs.
NOTE-PAPER AND ENVELOPES, brilliantly Illuminated by hand in Gold, Silver, Bronze, and Colours.
BEST RELIEF STAMPING, any colour, 1s. per 100.
All the New and Fashionable Note-Papers.
A VISITING CARD PLATE elegantly Engraved, and 100 Superfine Cards printed, for 4s. 6d.
BALL PROGRAMMES, BILLS OF FARE, GUEST CARDS, WEDDING CARDS, and INVITATIONS in every variety.
HENRY RODRIGUES, 42, Piccadilly, London.

COLLECTIONS of PHOTOGRAPHS, PRINTS, DRAWINGS, SKETCHES, &c., Mounted, Remounted, Cleaned, Titled, and put into order, and bound into convenient Volumes, Portfolioed, and Framed.
Agents for Bourne and Shepherd, of India; Stillfried and Anderson, of Japan; Laurent, of Spain; and others.
Portraits of Celebrities, large and small, plain and coloured.
Photographs Enlarged, Coloured, and Framed.
Amateurs' Negatives Printed.
MARION and CO., 22 and 23, Soho-square, London.

FOR FAMILY ARMS (Lincoln's-inn Heraldic Office) send Name and County. Sketch, 3s. 6d.; in colours, 7s. 6d. Arms Painted and Engraved on Seals, Dies, &c. FOUR BROTHERS, Great Turnstile, Lincoln's-inn, W.C.; and 76, Queen Victoria-street, E.C. Prize Medal, Paris, 1878.

SPECIAL NOTICE.—CARPETS.—NOW SELLING, TWO MANUFACTURERS' STOCKS, purchased for cash under very advantageous circumstance. The Stocks comprise Brussels of the best quality and newest designs; Tapestry, Brussels, Kidderminster, and every description of Carpeting. All New Goods and this Year's Spring Patterns. Quotations would convey no adequate idea of their real cheapness. O. and Co. therefore respectfully solicit an early visit of inspection.—OETZMANN and CO.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.
SUBSTANTIAL ARTISTIC FURNITURE (Regd.)
OETZMANN & CO.,
HAMPSTEAD-ROAD,
NEAR TOTTENHAM-COURT-ROAD.

FURNISH THROUGHOUT.—OETZMANN and CO., 67, 69, 71, 73, 77 and 79, HAMPSTEAD-ROAD, near Tottenham-court-road, London. CARPETS, Furniture, Bedding, Drapery, Furnishing Ironmongery, China, Glass, Paper Hangings, Pictures, Bronzes, Clocks, Pianos, &c., and every other requisite for completely furnishing a house throughout. Lowest prices consistent with guaranteed quality.
OETZMANN and CO.

CABINET and UPHOLSTERY DEPARTMENT.—Best Plate Chimney-Glasses, in double-gilt frames, elegant patterns, large size, 2 guineas; magnificent ditto, from 4 to 20 guineas; Black and Gold Early English ditto, from 2 to 20 guineas. Handsome Black and Gold Early English Cabinets, from £3 3s. to 30 guineas. Mahogany Sideboards, from 4 guineas upwards; noble ditto, in Early English and other handsome designs, from 20 to 100 guineas. Easy-Chairs, from 1 guinea upwards. Dining Room Chairs, from 10s. 6d. upwards.
OETZMANN and CO.

THE EASIEST OF EASY - CHAIRS. OETZMANN and CO.'S Couch, Divan, or Dining-Room Easy-Chair, as used in the principal West-End Clubs. The most comfortable Easy-Chair extant, spring seat and back, upholstered very soft and comfortable, all hair, in best morocco leather, and finished in the best manner, 8 guineas. A large stock of Easy-Chairs in the Show-Rooms from 1 guinea upwards.—OETZMANN and CO.

MUSLIN and LACE CURTAINS. CLEARING OUT.—Elegant Design, 3 yards long by 40 and 52 inches wide, 4s. 11d. per pair; worth 7s. 6d. Very handsome ditto, 4 yards long by 56 and 58 inches wide, 10s. 6d.; worth 16s. 9d. Magnificent Tuileries Lace Curtains, 4 yards long by 72 inches wide, 18s. 11d. per pair. A Special Reduced List of Curtains, with size and description, post-free.
OETZMANN and CO.

THE "NORFOLK" COAL VASE, in Oak, Mahogany, Walnut, or Ebonized, handsome brass mountings and hand scoop, with strong loose lining, complete, 21s. A large assortment of handsome Wood Coal Boxes on view in the Show-Rooms, from 15s. 6d. to 5 guineas. Illustrations sent post-free on application.—OETZMANN and CO.

"CROWN DERBY CHINA"—"STELLA." An elegant Early English design in Tea, Coffee, and Breakfast Services. OETZMANN and CO.'S New Registered Design, manufactured exclusively for them at these celebrated works, is most artistic in shape, design, and colourings. Price 26s. 6d. per tea set of 26 pieces. Illustrated detailed Price-Lists post-free. Also, Sole Venders of the "Neo Cleopatra" Toilet Services (Registered), Ewer, Basin, &c., complete), from 8s. 6d. per set.—OETZMANN and CO.

POSTAL ORDER DEPARTMENT. OETZMANN and CO.—Orders sent per post, whether large or small, receive prompt and careful attention. Those residing at a distance, or any to whom a personal visit would be inconvenient, desirous of leaving the selection to the firm, may rely upon a faithful attention to their wishes and interests in the selection. This department is personally attended by a member of the firm, and O. and Co. continually receive numerous letters expressing the greatest satisfaction with the execution of orders so entrusted. Persons residing in Foreign Countries and the Colonies will find great advantages by entrusting their orders to O. and CO. For further particulars please see page 379 in Catalogue, sent free on application.—OETZMANN and CO.

DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE, post-free.
OETZMANN & CO.,
HAMPSTEAD-ROAD.

ELKINGTON and CO.,
MANUFACTURING SILVERSMITHS.
PATENTEES OF THE ELECTRO-PLATE.

ELKINGTON and CO.
SUPPLY THE PUBLIC DIRECT.
PRICES TO SUIT ALL PURCHASERS.
Illustrated Catalogues post-free.
ELKINGTON and CO., 22, Regent-st.; or 42, Moorgate-st., City

GARDNER'S DINNER and TABLE GLASS SERVICES. Free, graceful, and original designs of unequalled value. Dinner Services, from 21s. Table Glass Services, of the best Crystal, for twelve persons, complete, 63s. Cash discount, 25 per cent. Coloured Photographic Sheets and Illustrated Glass Catalogues post-free.
433 and 454, West Strand, Charing-cross.

D. HULETT.—GASELIERS in CRYSTAL GLASS and ORMOLU or BRONZE. Medieval Fittings. A large Stock always in View. Every article marked with plain figures.—Manufactory, 55 and 56, High Holborn.

EPPS'S COCOA.
GRATEFUL and COMFORTING.
"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operation of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected Cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.
JAMES EPPS and CO., HOMŒOPATHIC CHEMISTS,
Also, EPPS'S CHOCOLATE ESSENCE, for Afternoon Use.

TRELOAR and SONS' LUDGATE-HILL.
MATS. FLOORCLOTH.
LINOLEUM. CARPETS.

TRELOAR and SONS, 69, Ludgate-hill, who deal exclusively in Floor Coverings. They have been awarded seven Prize Medals, including one at Paris, 1878. The Fine Arts galleries at the International Exhibitions of 1851, 1855, 1862, 1865, 1869, and 1878, were covered with matting specially manufactured by them.

CHUBB'S SAFES FOR JEWELS, DEEDS, PLATE, BULLION, &c.

CHUBB'S LOCKS AND LATCHES, CHESTS, BOXES, &c.

CHUBB'S ILLUSTRATED PRICE-LISTS POST-FREE.

CHUBB and SON, 128, Queen Victoria-street, E.C.; and 68, St. James's-street, London.

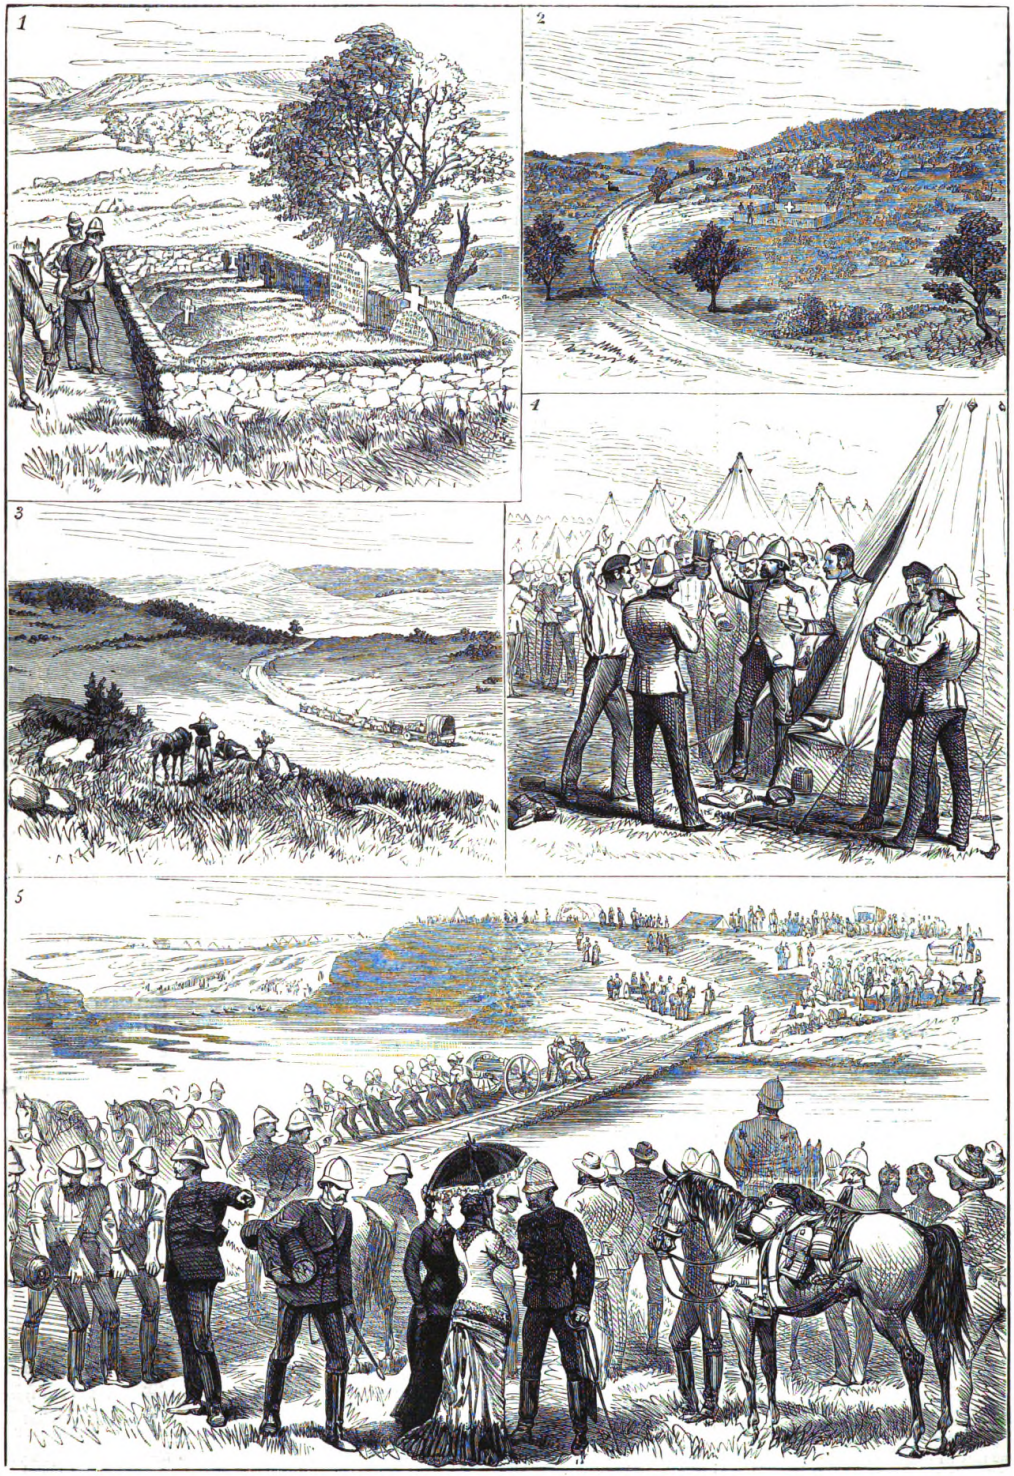
JEWEL ROBBERIES PREVENTED. J. TANN'S RELIANCE SAFES have never failed to resist the attempts of the most determined burglars. Fire-Resisting Safes, £5 5s. Lists free.—11, Newgate-street, E.C.

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LESSEYTON, 198, Strand, aforesaid.—SATURDAY, JUNE 25, 1881.

SKETCHES IN SOUTH AFRICA, BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

SEE PAGE 640.



1. Officers' Graves at Bronkers' Spruit. 2. Soldiers' Graves at Bronkers' Spruit; View towards Middelburg. 3. Bronkers' Spruit; Position of Rear-guard of 94th Regiment, looking towards Pretoria.
4. Selling a Deceased Soldier's Kit in the Camp at Mount Prospect, Natal. 5. Royal Artillery crossing River by Pontoon Bridge, near Newcastle, Natal.

FINE ARTS.

BLACK-AND-WHITE EXHIBITION.

Peculiar interest attaches to two drawings in this exhibition at the Dudley Gallery as being by the Princess of Wales—the first, we believe, exhibited by her Royal Highness. Assisting her husband as she does so frequently in the discharge of public and social duties, and always to the advantage of the community, one wonders that she can find time for the practice of art. The drawings are in black-and-white water-colour, and represent a snow scene at Sandringham, with deer, tamed by the cold; and another winter view, probably in, or suggested by, the Highlands, with an effectively disposed snow-cloud—appropriately called "Mountain Gloom." Both drawings are evidently executed freely, and even swiftly, but with artistic feeling for general effect. With regard to the English contributions generally, we regret to find that the present display hardly bears out even the modest promise of previous years. It was hoped that by the establishment of this exhibition our artists would be induced to pay greater attention to draughtsmanship, tone, and design. But, if we are to judge by the present collection, they pay less heed than ever to those first essentials of good art. The very few works which rise very decidedly above a commonplace aim, and passable technical skill, are nearly all by foreigners.

Among the English contributions there is a painfully significant dearth of the preparatory and often alternative schemes for pictures, and the careful study of separate figures or groups, often in the nude, and details of drapery, &c., by means of which the careful conscientious foreign painter arrives at his more finished and perfect results. The only study of the nude that we observed here is a female figure (95) of some merit, but smooth and timid, by R. S. James. Mr. F. Powell sends a large charcoal study of "Wind-tossed Waves" (380); but the artist evidently thought only of feeling his way to render gradation of light in a finished drawing: we miss the analysis of wave-action that might have been expected from him, and a much smaller study would have answered his purpose as well. Mr. W. Cave Thomas has a "sketch," or more properly a study "for a picture," "The Beauty of Good Deeds" (572); but the elevated monumental intention of the design is imperfectly carried out at present. The rising painter and sculptor H. Holiday might have formed an exception to our remark as to the paucity of studies for pictures, for no artist is more painstaking in preparatory work; but he is only represented by several small illustrative drawings for reproduction. All these, however, deserve careful attention for their intelligent, appropriate design and beautiful draughtsmanship of "the figure." Two clever sepia studies by J. W. Waterhouse, are presumably, but only presumably, "first thoughts" for pictures. Both have classic accessories; the one represents a "Girl Waiting" (32), the other a young witch drawing "The Magic Circle" (363) in a hollow resembling the crater of the Solfatara, the extinct volcano near Naples. A small drawing, by Carl Haag, of a bedawee preparing "The Evening Meal" (312) in the desert, with his camel tethered beside him, is rich in tone, as might be anticipated. And a similar remark applies to S. Read's lonely "Woodleigh Grange" (71), darkling under sombre after-sundown effect. But the most important, or at all events the largest, pictorial work in monochrome is by a foreign artist—"The Death of Jacob" (181), in oil, by A. Pichler—a huge composition, with many lifesize figures, filling the end of the room. Though by no means quite first rate (and not to be estimated according to the price put upon it), yet it is a valuable example where it hangs of the ability to fill a large canvas efficiently and with dignity which Continental training imparts.

Distinguished as our school is mostly, perhaps, in portraiture, we should naturally look for many studies of facial character here; but we may look almost in vain. The only examples (not etchings) which forcibly arrested our attention were a study of a female head in chalk (101) by J. E. Breun; another of a monk looking up (382), powerful in its almost violent contrasts, by A. Wassie; and a delightful group of a Bavarian burgomaster and his wife in their Sunday finery at church (511), by J. W. Leatherbrow. Capitally discriminated are the simple, pious, candid nature of the old man; and the more humorous disposition of his helpmate, evinced in the habitual puckering of one corner of the mouth, though now primly restrained by a sense of the proprieties.

A larger proportion of the gathering than on previous occasions consists of drawings for the wood engraver, made for our own and other illustrated newspapers and periodicals—not forgetting Mr. Punch. The majority, however, were executed for the Magazine of Art and other publications of Messrs. Cassell and Co., the contingent from this firm numbering as many as 120. This section of the exhibition certainly comprehends much of the ability to be found in the whole; it is, moreover, almost exclusively British, and strikingly exemplifies how much of the national pictorial talent is absorbed in illustrative work, how many of our distinguished artists are occupied in its production. It is questionable, nevertheless, whether art that has already been reproduced, and is, after all, rarely of very noteworthy mark, should be so largely represented in this small gallery. In any case, our limits absolutely preclude our attempting to review this section in detail. We can only make an exception in favour of the exquisite art and delicacy and care which Mr. F. Dicksee has brought to his small illustrations—particularly the "Romeo and Juliet" (236) and "Romeo and the Apothecary" (238).

The etchings form another considerable factor in the show, although, probably, many works of this class were sent to the recent exhibition of the Painter-Etchers that would otherwise have figured here. As it is, several of the works are not new to the public. However, it is not to the fascinating and fashionable art of etching—the pride of the amateur, the play of the artist—so fortuitous in its results, so "suggestive" by force of its sheer limitations—that we must look as a means for bringing about a severer, purer mode of draughtsmanship: quite the contrary. The etchings comprise examples of S. Palmer, "Early Morning—Opening of the Fold" (596), which we have already noticed, and which might as justly be regarded as an engraving; J. C. Hook, T. G. Cotman, R. W. Macbeth, C. Hunter, J. H. Bradley—"Views in Venice," L. J. Steele, A. H. Haig—"The Aisles of Chartres" (389), the naturalised French artist J. Tissot, the American artist S. Parrish, and others. But here the foreign artists at least divide the honours—witness the "Raffiné" (14) of L. Leloir; "Le Fils Unique" (70) of P. Jazet, where the father fills the glass of the returned young officer, and the housekeeper, or mater herself, delightedly brings in the next dainty; the etching by Madame Bracquemond, after Delacroix, of the tumultuous sitting of the Convention on May 29, 1795 (166); and the portrait in the first and last "states" by the same of E. de Goncourt, the Paris street scenes by A. Bertrand, and the etchings of M. Lalanne, Veyrassat, and Rudeaux.

But the works which we have had all along in view as hors ligne, and tests for comparison, are the designs in lamp-black by J. Jimenez-y-Aranda; and the drawings in charcoal of L. Lhermitte. The Spanish master enjoys a European reputation as a painter rivalling Meissonier in precision and truth, but with a character and style all his own. He here appears as a great imaginative designer also. His three drawings form a series, but are ignorantly or carelessly divided; and, although by far the finest works in the exhibition, two of them are placed much below "the line." The series illustrate a Spanish poem, by D. G. Nunar de Avec, "La Vision de Fray Martin," with which we are unacquainted; but the subjects are as follow:—The first in order of time (the second on the walls) seems to be the drawing (377) representing the Friar Martin seated in a stall of his church choir with clasped hands and bowed head. We yet see enough of him to discern that his type is superior to those of the stolidly contented, or bigoted or sensual brethren, who chant their chorale more or less stentorially about him. So far the drawing may recall the "Neophyte" of Gustave Doré. But, beside these figures, there is the "vision" of the monk—a vision analogous to the temptations of St. Anthony. From before the very altar rises a mass of mocking skeletons; a full-bosomed female temptress hovers over him, placing one hand on his head, another in his bosom—firing heart and brain; while over him disport evil spirits, in male and female guise, like the devils and witches in a mediæval Sabat. In the second drawing (313) the poor friar stands on an eminence, his temptress still at his side. Above the clouds is a glimpse of the dome of St. Peter's—the goal of a Spanish ecclesiastic's ambition (that passion now taking the place of love as the more potent); but, in mid-air, a cardinal is being dragged down by demons clinging to his skirt; and below a more apostolic figure, with the papal tiara, preaches, but preaches in vain, to a mocking, ribald crowd; while at the side a worldly general passes triumphantly at the head of his army. In the last of the series (377) the monk has fallen—is falling—bodily headlong amid broken columns and fragments of a statue down a vast chasm as the temptress flies aloft like a Nemesis shouting his doom. For intensely weird, and, so to speak, realistic imagination, these drawings far surpass the commonplace melodrama of Gustave Doré, while they are infinitely superior in all technical qualities. For characterisation, drawing, modelling, foreshortening, and knowledge of effects of light and shade, they are simply marvellous. M. Lhermitte's numerous charcoal drawings are also extremely admirable for the mastery displayed in the rendering of the illumination, supported as it is by perfectly accurate draughtsmanship. This last is most apparent—perhaps, more so than even in "Le Menuisier" (61) and "L'Imprimeur" (99)—in "Cours de Philosophie à la Sorbonne" (123), where the rows of heads are wonderfully individualised, though, properly only emphasised where the downward light impinges on them.

A few other works should be commended to the visitor, notably "St. Simon Stylites" (79), by the late Mr. Burges, which is conceived and executed in curious fidelity to the grotesque manner of the early German engravers; N. H. J. Westlake's able "Design for a Mortuary Card" (470); W. Coulter's "Beauregard Farm, Sark" (405); A. Quinton's "Beside the Still Waters" (8); and J. C. Dollman's droll oil sketch (137) of geese challenging a donkey on a common.

SPANISH AND PORTUGUESE ART.

An exhibition of Spanish and Portuguese art is being held in the North Court of the South Kensington Museum. The Governments and many municipalities, and clerical bodies of the two countries, as well as numerous private persons, have contributed to the collection; and the whole course of Iberian art, from the earliest times down to near our own day, is illustrated. The gathering is far too extensive for detailed review in our columns, but we may glance at its principal divisions. The collection is, of course, rich in metal-work, in which branch of ornamental art the Spaniards have attained, perhaps, greater proficiency than in any other. The Church and other plate, the Toledo sapiers with their ornamented hilts, the guns, richly inlaid, and the daggers are especially worthy of notice; but one might have expected a finer show of ornamental armour. There is, however, a splendid demi-suite of blackened steel, damascened with gold and silver, which belonged to Philip III.; as also richly embossed shields of cuir bouilli. We may mention also part of the Visigothic treasure, dating from the seventh century, found near Toledo, the remainder belonging to the Musée de Cluny, Paris; together with gold personal ornaments, from the National Archæological Museum at Madrid; caskets, candelabra, lamps, plateaux, &c. The priestly vestments, Royal robes, and other garments are embroidered, often with religious subjects, with lavish sumptuousness. Among the earliest of these are the cap of state and tunic of the Infante Philip, brother of Alfonzo X., a work of the thirteenth century. The Hispano-Moorish pottery, with its resplendent iridescent lustres, is another striking feature of the show. There are also ivory carvings, dating from the eleventh century; illuminations from the same and subsequent periods, ancient tapestries, glass vessels, and a multitude of other objects. There is, likewise, a lofty reredos, inclosing twenty-nine pictures, which formerly stood behind the high altar of Ciudad Rodrigo, interesting only as an archæological illustration of the comparatively debased condition of Spanish art towards the end of the fifteenth century. As a whole, the collection demonstrates that the art of the Peninsula, however picturesque, ornate, or grandiose, is uninventive, and therefore uninstructive. The best it can show is derived from Moorish, Netherlandish, Italian, French, and other foreign sources; and the process of imitation has ever been apt to result in clumsiness, exaggeration, and vulgar ostentation.

---

Mr. Millais has just finished a portrait of Sir Henry Thompson.

The travelling studentship offered by the Architectural Association has this year been awarded to Mr. H. Kemp.

Mr. Boehm, A.R.A., has received from Mr. Shaw-Lefevre, Chief Commissioner of Works, an order to execute the statue of the late Earl of Beaconsfield, which is to be placed as a national memorial in Westminster Abbey. The City Lands Committee, who are about to erect a memorial in Guildhall to the late Earl of Beaconsfield, have decided to intrust the work to Mr. R. C. Belt.

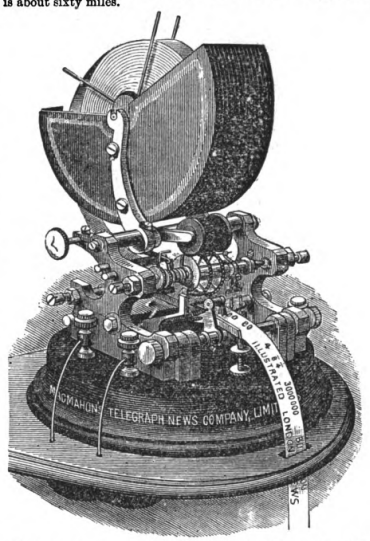
Messrs. Marion and Co. have just published a set of photographs of the Princess of Wales in state costume, taken in the conservatory of Marlborough House, just before the Drawingroom of May 5. The Princess, decked in tiara and diamonds, looks every inch a queen. The large portrait—called the Panel Portrait—is at once graceful, beautiful, and artistic. Before the introduction of dry gelatine plates, Mr. Bassano, the tasteful producer of these portraits, could not have hoped for such successful results away from his studio. Of the eleven negatives taken on the above occasion not one was a failure.

---

A silver cradle of the value of £100 was presented to the Mayoress of Hanley on Monday Afternoon, to celebrate the birth of a son and heir during her husband's mayoralty. The Town Council of the borough of Harwich are about to present Mrs. Vaux, wife of the Mayor, with a silver cradle, in honour of her having give birth to a son on the 4th inst.

MACMAHON'S TELEGRAPHIC NEWS TYPE-PRINTING APPARATUS.

Step by step, type-printing telegraphs, though amongst the earliest inventions of the pioneers of the electric telegraph in this country, were first applied to the simultaneous distribution of intelligence in the United States. In the year 1867 an ingenious apparatus, invented by the assistant-engineer to the American Telegraph Company, Mr. E. A. Calahan, was worked by the Gold and Stock Telegraph Company, at New York. A modification of this apparatus, by Messrs. T. L. Pope and T. A. Edison, of New York, was introduced to this country in the year 1872; but was found, after trial, not to meet the requirements of the London Stock Exchange, where it was first employed, the speed being then insufficient. Improvements in this respect were made by Mr. F. Higgins, of London, electrical engineer, in the following year, which had the effect of increasing the rapidity of working to the desired extent. The improvements were promptly adopted in the United States, where some thousands of instruments of this class are at work for various purposes. The system is fast coming to be adopted here, and its successful operation in this country is due to the enterprise of Mr. F. Macmahon, whose name is now inseparably connected with it. The lines employed for such a system, throughout the country, should be exclusively devoted to public news intelligence, and should not be liable to be disturbed by the fluctuating pressure of ordinary postal telegraphic business. The progress of its introduction had not therefore been very rapid in the past few years; but the British public appear now to be awakening to the necessity for a more prompt dissemination of important news than is possible by hand distribution. The average length of printed tape already distributed weekly in London by this apparatus is about sixty miles.



The apparatus consists of a type wheel, or, where the characters are very numerous, of two wheels, side by side, either of which may be brought into action and printed from, by being first slid laterally into position over the paper and then rotated, until the required letter is over the paper, which is moved upwards, and receives the impression in the usual way. Synchronism between the various instruments is ensured by means of an arrangement which arrests the type wheels at zero, whenever they have been rotated through two revolutions without having been printed from. One operator is capable of working 1500 instruments at a time, the motive power being entirely supplied from the central office; no weights or springs are employed in the receiving apparatus, nor is any winding up of the instrument required. We give an Illustration of the compact little machine, which has been furnished to all the leading West-End clubs, to some newspaper offices, and to many hotels and other establishments all over London. The central office is at 8, Piccadilly, which is in constant communication with its own reporters at the Houses of Parliament, at the Government Offices and the Law Courts, at the ports of arrival and departure for mail steam-ships to all parts of the world, at Paris, and in other capitals of foreign States, besides special arrangements at the racecourses for instantaneously reporting all events of sporting interest.

In the last-mentioned department of news, Macmahon's Telegraphic Company has lately surpassed every achievement of this kind. The result of the race for the Derby, with the names of the first three horses as they were placed, was made known in America to the New York Herald, and to Mr. Lorillard, the owner of Iroquois, within a very few seconds—positively before Archer, who rode the winning horse, dismounted for weighing. His Royal Highness the Prince of Wales, who was on Epsom Downs that day, inspected the telegraphic apparatus, and obtained personally from Mr. Macmahon an explanation of its working, very much to his admiration. The assassination of the late Emperor of Russia was made known to customers of Macmahon's Telegraph Company in London, on the Sunday afternoon when that shocking event took place, before it was communicated to the Court and to her Majesty's Government. It is obvious that a type-printing telegraphic apparatus, emitting its strip of printed paper, by automatic action, before the reader's eyes, will usually deliver its intelligence half an hour or an hour sooner than it can be made known by the ordinary electric telegraph, whose messages have to be written out and sent in manuscript. The first type-printing telegraph was invented by that eminent electrician Mr. E. Hughes, but was modified by Messrs. Phelps and Edison, of New York, and has been further improved by Mr. F. Higgins, engineer to this company. It is now proposed to extend the system from London to Birmingham, Manchester, Liverpool, Glasgow, and other great towns of the United Kingdom, which will be connected by a Morse line with the Central Office here, and will thus receive all the news simultaneously with the Company's customers in London.

THE CHURCH.

PREFERMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.

Anderton, Henry, to be Vicar of Hopton Congeford, Salop.
Barker, Frederick, to be Rector of Cottenham, Cambs.
Bisson, F. N.; Curate of Wrecclesham, Farnham, Surrey.
Bono, William Middleton; Rector of Winthorpe, Notts.
Brealey, Frederick; Vicar of Little Linford, Bucks.
Brown, Richard Garlick; Curate of Holy Trinity, Great Malvern.
Burney, Alexander D'Arblay; Vicar of Berrow.
Burrell, S. B.; Vicar of Merton-cum-Hilton.
Caswell, Emil G. H.; Vicar of Ilunwick.
Chamberlain, James Slade floster; Vicar of St. Stephen's, Kearsley.
Cole, W. B., Curate; Vicar of Shanklin.
Cox, Sir George William, Bart.; Rector of Scrangham, alias Scrayingham.
Cremer, F. D.; Vicar of Upholland.
Curtis, Edward; Curate of St. Mary-le-Wigford, Lincoln.
Dawson-Damer, Lionel Digby William, Vicar of Canford Magna, Dorset; Canon of Yetminster Secunda in Salisbury Cathedral.
Dickins, C. A.; Honorary Canon in Worcester Cathedral.
Dover, John William; Rector of Abinghall.
Durst, Canon, Vicar of Alton, Hants; Rector of Alverstoke.
Farley, Henry; Vicar of Lytchett Minster, Dorset.
Fearon, Arthur; Vicar of Great Marlow.
Fletcher, J. P. A.; Vicar of St. Stephen's, North Bow.
Fowler, A. C.; Missions to Seamen Chaplain, the Liffey.
Gedge, Edmund; Vicar of Aldeworth.
Hale, G.; Vicar of St. Luke's, Chesterton.
Helder, F. W.; Vicar of St. Mildred's, Burnt Ash-hill, Lee.
Hepple, Richard Joseph; Curate of Long Marston.
Hoste, James R. P.; Rector of Alverstoke.
Jacob, James John; Canon of Teinton Regis in Salisbury Cathedral.
Jones, F. W., Curate of Brackley; Rector of Dumbleton.
Leach, John, Vicar of Kirkby, near Liverpool.
Lo ke, Cecil John Hay; Rector of Lufton.
Luttey, Edward Chorley; Curate of West Camel.
Maclure, Edward Craig; Rural Dean of Rochdale.
Matthew, R. G.; Vicar of St. Michael's, Wigan.
Meigh, J.; Missions to Seamen Chaplain, Portland Roads.
Morris, George Edward Clifton; Curate of Baldersby.
Mules, Francis Howard; Rector of Dowlishwake-cum-West Dowlish.
Newman, Rowland; Rector of Hawkridge-cum-Withypool.
Pelly, Raymond; Vicar of St. John's, Stratford.
Ramsay-L Amy, J. A. B.; Minor Canon of York Minster.
Ramsden, H. P.; Diocesan Inspector for the Diocese of Chester.
Rawson, W. I. S.; Vicar of Metheringham, Lincolnshire.
Rees, G. E.; Rector of Bagendon, Gloucestershire.
Rees, G. L. M.; Curate of St. Michael, Neepsend, Sheffield.
Richmond, Wilfrid; Warden of Glenalmond College, Perthshire.
Salisbury, E. E. B.; Rector of Wimeby, and Curate of Asgarby, Lincolnshire.
Sherwood, William Edward; Chaplain of Bath College.
Smith, Henry Francis; Rector of Folke, Dorset.
Slater, F.; Rector of Cottenham, Cambridgeshire.
Walters, W., Vicar of Pershore; Honorary Canon in Worcester Cathedral.
Whittaker, E. J.; Vicar of St. Mark's, Lyncombe, Bath.
Williams, Thomas J.; to the Consolidated Rectory of Waddesdon, Bucks.
Williams, Henry John; Curate of Preston.
Wilson, J. B.; Rector of St. Helen, Worcester, and Rector of St. Alban, Worcester—Guardian.

The contest for the chaplaincy of St. Saviour's, Southwark, ended in the return of the Rev. W. Thompson.

The concert given recently at St. James's Hall for the renovation of the Embassy Church at Paris realised £459 5s. 6d.

The celebration of the twenty-second anniversary of the English Church Union was begun on Tuesday by special services in some of the metropolitan churches.

The Marchioness of Salisbury opened a bazaar on Thursday, in the Cannon-street Hotel, the object being to raise funds towards repairing the Church of St. Thomas, Bethnal-green.

Lady George Hamilton has consented to open a fancy bazaar in the parochial mission-hall of St. Mary's, Newington, on the 5th proximo. The hall is attached to the parish church of St. Mary, of which the Rev. G. T. Palmer is Rector.

The annual meeting of Diocesan Inspectors in England and Wales was held in the Library of Lambeth Palace on Tuesday afternoon, the chair being taken by the Archbishop of Canterbury, and subsequently by the Bishop of Hereford.

The Archbishop of Canterbury presided at the annual meeting of the National Society on Wednesday, and among those who were present were the Marquis of Salisbury and as many as six Bishops. In the evening the Lord Mayor entertained the Archbishops and Bishops at dinner.

On Wednesday, July 6, and the three following days an exhibition of works of art and needlework will be held by the Countess of Caledon at her residence, 5, Carlton-house-terrace, the proceeds to be devoted to the restoration of Ridge church, Hertfordshire.

On the occasion of the 180th anniversary of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, a sermon was preached in St. Paul's Cathedral on Wednesday morning by the Bishop of Chichester. In the evening of the following day a service was held in the nave of Westminster Abbey, when a sermon was preached by the Bishop of Durham.

The fine old Church of St. Thomas, of Haverfordwest, was reopened by the Bishop of St. David's on the 2nd inst., after considerable enlargement and refitting by Mr. W. Reynolds of the same town. An organ by Messrs. Vowles of Bristol, the gift of the Rector and Mrs. Hilbers, and a stained-glass window by Messrs. Mayer and Co., of Munich, the gift of the Rev. G. Horn, are amongst the most striking additions. The architect engaged was Mr. E. H. Lingen Barker, of Hereford.

The large east window of St. Andrew's Church, Newington, has been filled with stained glass, the gift of Mr. Jerman Nobes. The window, which is rich and harmonious in colour, was designed by Mr. C. Evans, of Fleet-street.——A richly painted east window, from the studio of Mr. W. G. Taylor, of Berners-street, has been placed in the parish church of Pitminster, near Taunton. It is the gift of Mrs. Hobson and her family.——A three-light window, representing "Christ Blessing Children," has been placed on the north side of Heptonstall church, Yorkshire, by J. E. Greenwood, Esq., of Cragg, to the memory of his wife. The artists are Messrs. Mayer and Co., of Munich and London.

The Archbishop of Canterbury presided at the monthly meeting of the court of assistants of the Sons of the Clergy Society last Saturday, at the Corporation House, Bloomsbury-place. The registrar (Mr. Paget Bowman) presented a large number of petitions sent in by clergymen from all parts of England and Wales, for the most part burdened with large families, and hard pressed by the difficulty of maintaining and educating them upon a very insufficient income. In every well-substantiated case a grant was made; the aggregate sum distributed in these benefactions was £1820, while £290 was awarded in grants towards the education and start in life of thirty clergy children.——On Wednesday, July 6, the Archbishop will entertain Prince Leopold, Duke of Albany, and the other stewards of the recent festival of the Sons of the Clergy, at dinner in Lambeth Palace.

The Incorporated Society for Promoting the Enlargement, Building, and Repairing of Churches and Chapels held its usual monthly meeting at the society's house, Whitehall, on the 16th inst.—Archdeacon Harrison in the chair. Grants of money were made in aid of the following objects:—Building new churches, at Aylesbury (St. John), £300, and Seaton (St. Paul), near Workington, £100. Rebuilding the parish church of St. Mary's, Truro (the future cathedral of the diocese of Truro), £500. Enlarging or otherwise improving the accommodation in the churches of Billingford; near Scole, £40; Llandinabo, near Ross, £35; Marlingford St. Mary, near Norwich, £25; Salehouse (All Saints'), near Norwich, £50; and Staverton (St. Paul), near Totnes, £40. Under urgent circumstances the following grants formerly made were increased:—Towards building Christ Church, Hendon, Middlesex, from £180 to £230; and towards rescating and restoring St. Andrew's Church, Tywardreath, Cornwall, from £60 to £70. Grants were also made from the Special Mission Buildings Fund towards building mission churches at Dean-lane, Bedminster (St. Paul), £25; Harrietsham, near Maidstone £10; and Herongate, Brentwood, £10.

A numerous meeting was held yesterday week in the lower Exeter Hall to give a welcome to the Rev. Donald Macleod, M.A., who has succeeded the Rev. Dr. Cumming in the London ministry of the Scottish National Church. The Earl of Aberdeen, Lord High Commissioner to the General Assembly, took the chair, and the Countess was present on the platform, where were also Mr. James Campbell, M.P., the Dean of Westminster, the Rev. Dr. Oswald Dykes, the Rev. Canon Fleming, the Rev. Mr. Forsyth, the Rev. Dr. Thain Davidson, the Rev. Marshall Lang, D.D. (Glasgow), and the Rev. Professor Charteris (Edinburgh). The noble Earl expressed his interest in the happy settlement of the new minister of Crown-court Church, and the Rev. Donald Macleod having spoken at some length, speakers belonging to various religious bodies gave addresses of cordial greeting, Dean Stanley and Canon Fleming being among the number.

At a meeting of the leaders of the Congregational Body, held at Charing-cross Hotel on the 14th inst.—Mr. S. Morley, M.P., presiding—it was resolved to celebrate the jubilee of the Congregational Union by the creation of a fund with which to pay off the debts on the Congregational chapels and to improve the incomes of the ministers. Upon a proposal that the fund should be £5000, Mr. R. S. Hudson, a well-known member of the body, exclaimed, "That's all nonsense; I intend to give £20,000 myself." He afterwards put his name down for that amount. Mr. S. Morley followed by a gift of £5000, and in thirty minutes £30,000 was subscribed.

The 112th session of the General Baptist Association has been held in Norwich this week. On Tuesday morning the president, the Rev. Dawson Burns, gave the opening address, and in the evening a public meeting of the Home Missionary Society was held in the Unthanks-road Baptist Church—Mr. J. H. Tillett, M.P., in the chair.

The seventy-first annual meeting of the Swedenborg Society was held at 36, Bloomsbury-street, on Tuesday; the Rev. Dr. Bayley in the chair.

OBITUARY.

SIR GEORGE KINLOCH, BART.

Sir George Kinloch, Bart., of Kinloch, in the county of Perth, J.P. and D.L., died on the 16th inst. He was born Oct. 13, 1800, the eldest son of Mr. George Kinloch, M.P. for Dundee, by Helen, his wife, third daughter of Mr. John Smith, of Balhary, and was descended from a younger branch of the well-known Scotch family, Kinloch of Kinloch. He received his education at the University of Edinburgh, was called to the Scottish Bar in 1823, succeeded to the Kinloch estates at the death of his father in 1833, and was created a Baronet April 16, 1873. He married, Oct. 21, 1845, Margaret, only child of Mr. George Canning, of Arbroath, J.P., and leaves three sons and five daughters. Of the former, the eldest, now Sir John George Smyth Kinloch, second Baronet, was born Jan. 8, 1849, and married, Jan. 8, 1878, Jessie Montgomery, elder daughter of Mr. George Lumsden, of Balhary House, Perthshire, and has issue. Of the daughters, the third, Margaret Aimée, was married, in 1873, to Mr. W. J. S. Barber-Starkey, barrister-at-law. The late Baronet's father, George Kinloch, fled to France in 1819 to escape the consequences of an indictment for sedition, but was restored to his country in 1823, and within less than ten years was returned as the first member in the reformed Parliament for the town of Dundee, where a statue has been erected to his memory.

SIR JOSIAH MASON.

Sir Josiah Mason, the munificent philanthropist of Birmingham, died at Erdington, near that town, on the 16th inst., aged eighty-six. He was born, of humble parentage, at Kidderminster, Feb. 23, 1795, and began life as a street hawker of cakes, fruits, and vegetables. He became afterwards a shoemaker, a house painter, and carpet weaver. In 1814 he went to Birmingham to an uncle, and was employed in the gilt-toy trade, at which he worked until he entered on the manufacture of steel pens, and made his fortune—a fortune which he devoted to the most philanthropic works. He was also engaged, under the firm Mason and Elkington, in copper-smelting. Acquiring a large property, he erected a handsome orphanage at Erdington at a cost of £60,000, endowing it with land and buildings to the extent of £200,000. He also founded in Birmingham a scientific college, the outlay being about £70,000. In recognition of these princely gifts, he received the honour of knighthood in 1872. Sir Josiah married, in 1817, Ann (who died 1870), daughter of Richard Griffiths, of Birmingham. Mr. Mason's portrait was given in our Number for Sept. 11, 1869.

COLONEL CROMPTON.

Colonel Joshua Samuel Crompton, of Azerley Hall and Sion Hill, Yorkshire, J.P. and D.L., died at the former seat, near Ripon, which borough he formerly represented in Parliament, on the 17th inst., aged eighty-one. He was second son of Mr. Josiah Crompton, of York, by Anna Maria, his wife, daughter and heir of Mr. William Rookes, of Roydes Hall, and was brother of Mr. William Rookes Crompton-Stansfield, of Esholt Hall, Yorkshire, M.P., who assumed the additional surname of Stansfield on succeeding to his mother's estates, his maternal grandmother having been Anne, sister and heir of Mr. Robert Stansfield, who purchased Esholt Hall in 1755. Colonel Joshua Crompton was educated at Harrow, and Jesus College, Cambridge, where he graduated B.A. in 1821, and M.A. in 1826. He sat in Parliament for Ripon from 1832 to 1834, and was formerly Lieutenant-Colonel 2nd West York Militia. He married, first, Sept. 2, 1834, Mary, youngest daughter of Mr. Claude Alexander, of Ballochmyle, N.B. (by Helenora, his wife, daughter of Sir William Maxwell, Bart., of Springkell), and had three sons, the eldest being the present Colonel William Henry Crompton-Stansfield, of Esholt, and one daughter, Mrs. Percy Stanhope. Colonel Crompton married, secondly, in 1870, Frances Caroline, daughter of Mr. John Horsley Palmer, and cousin of Lord Selborne.

We have also to record the deaths of—

The Earl of Wicklow, a memoir of whom is deferred.

Henry Craigie Halkett, late Judge in the Bengal Civil Service, on the 13th inst., at Vernon-terrace, Brighton.

The Hon. Harold Gathorne-Hardy, M.A., J.P., Fellow of All Souls', Oxford, on the 11th inst., aged thirty-one.

Brevet-Major Maitland Warren Bouverie Sabine-Pasley, on the 6th inst., at Woodbourne, third son of Admiral Sir Thomas Sabine-Pasley, of Craig, in the county of Dumfries, Bart., K.C.B., by Jane Matilda Lilly, his wife, daughter of the Rev. Montagu John Wynyard, Rector of West Runcton.

Mr. William George Campbell, Commissioner in Lunacy, on the 13th inst., at 50, Ennismore-gardens, in his seventy-first year. He was called to the Bar at the Middle Temple in 1836, and was appointed Commissioner in Lunacy in 1845.

Lady M'Dougall (Elizabeth Sophia), on the 8th inst., at her residence, Dunolly, Argyleshire, aged seventy-four. She was only child of Mr. Charles Sheldon Timins, R.N., of Oriel Lodge, Cheltenham; and was married, in 1826, to Vice-Admiral Sir John M'Dougall, K.C.B., who died in 1865.

Mr. Andrew Wilson, author of "The Abode of Snow," on the 8th inst., at Howton, Ullswater, aged fifty-one. He was author of several interesting works on travel, contributed largely to Blackwood's Magazine and to Indian newspaper literature, and was formerly editor of the China Mail.

Lady Alice Emily Mary Stuart, on the 7th inst., in the island of Jersey, aged forty-five. She was the youngest daughter of William George, seventeenth Earl of Errol, K.I., by Lady Elizabeth Fitzclarence, his wife, natural daughter of King William IV., and was married, May 16, 1874, to Colonel the Count Charles Edward d'Albanie, only son of the late Charles Edward Stuart, Count d'Albanie.

Professor George Rolleston, F.R.S., Linacre Professor of Physiology in the University of Oxford, at Park Grange, Oxford, on the 9th inst., in his fifty-second year. He obtained a First Class in Classics in 1859 and became a Fellow of Pembroke College in 1851. He contributed largely to medical and scientific literature. Professor Rolleston married Grace, niece of Sir Humphrey Davy.

Coanstoun George Ridout, late Captain 11th Light Dragoons and 2nd Life Guards, on the 3rd inst., at his daughter's house, The Drive, Brighton, aged ninety-five. He entered the Army in 1801, and served throughout the Peninsular War, included Badajoz and Ciudad Rodrigo. Captain Ridout married, in 1815, Louisa, daughter of Dr. George Heath, Head Master of Eton and Canon of Windsor.

Mr. John Lucky Phelps, J.P., of Waterpark and The Lodge, Broodford, in the county of Clare, and of Albemarle, Launceston, and Quamley, Australia, on the 28th ult., at Florence. He married, in 1864, Rosetta Anne, daughter of Colonel John Vandeleur, 10th Hussars, of Ballinacourty, in the county of Limerick, and granddaughter of the Right Hon. John Ormsby Vandeleur, of Kilrush, in the county of Clare.

Mr. James King King, of Staunton Park, Herefordshire, in his seventy-fifth year. He was a magistrate and deputy-lieutenant for Herefordshire, of which county he served as High Sheriff in 1845. Mr. King sat in Parliament for the county in the Conservative interest from 1852 to 1868. Mr. King married, March 17, 1835, Mary Cochrane, fourth daughter of Mr. Kenneth Francis Mackenzie, and had three sons and seven daughters.

Mr. Robert Tighe, Q.C., of Fitzwilliam-square, Dublin, late Chairman of the county of Limerick, on the 15th inst. He was descended from a branch of the well-known Irish family of Tighe, of the county of Westmeath. Mr. Robert Tighe, a very accomplished scholar and archæologist, resided for a long period in Rome, and had made the study of its history, antiquities, and classic remains his chief occupation for many years.

The Hon. (Dowager) Lady Legard, at Scarborough, in her eightieth year. Her Ladyship was Frances, second daughter of Charles, first Lord Feversham, by Charlotte, his wife, only daughter of William, second Earl of Dartmouth, and was married, July 13, 1832, to Sir Thomas Digby Legard, eighth Baronet, of Ganton, in the county of York, and had, besides one daughter, three sons, Sir Francis Digby Legard, ninth Baronet, Sir D'Arcy Widrington Legard, tenth Baronet, and Sir Charles Legard, the present Baronet.

Mr. James A. Clarke, J.P. and D.L., of Summerhill, Ulverstone, and The Sound, Lancaster, on the 8th inst., the day before completing his seventy-second year. He was second son of Mr. James Clarke, of The Sound, for forty-eight years Recorder of Liverpool, and for twenty-three years Attorney-General of the Isle of Man, by Jane, his wife, daughter of Mr. Robert Addison, of The Sound, J.P. and D.L. He married Margaret, daughter of Mr. John Bond, J.P. and D.L. of Lancaster, and leaves issue.

The Rev. Joseph Stopford, of Fernev, Blackrock, in the county of Cork, on the 9th inst. He was born April 27, 1799, the eldest son of the Rev. William Stopford, Rector of Garrycloyne, in the county of Cork, by Abigail, his wife, daughter of Mr. Eyre Evans, of Milltown Castle, in that county, and grandson of the Rev. Joseph Stopford, also Rector of Garrycloyne. He married, Aug. 15, 1850, Elizabeth, daughter of Mr. Simon Dring, of Rockgrove, and leaves issue. His family, of ancient Cheshire lineage, was a younger branch of the noble house of Courtown.

In the notice given last week of General Sir Duncan Macgregor mention was accidentally omitted to be made of his second son, Duncan, married to Mary Selina, daughter of Mr. Thomas Walker, formerly of the Scots Greys. Mr. Duncan Macgregor and his brother-in-law Colonel Wilmot Brooke, with other relations, followed Sir Duncan's remains to the grave at Harold's Cross, near Dublin, on the 16th inst.

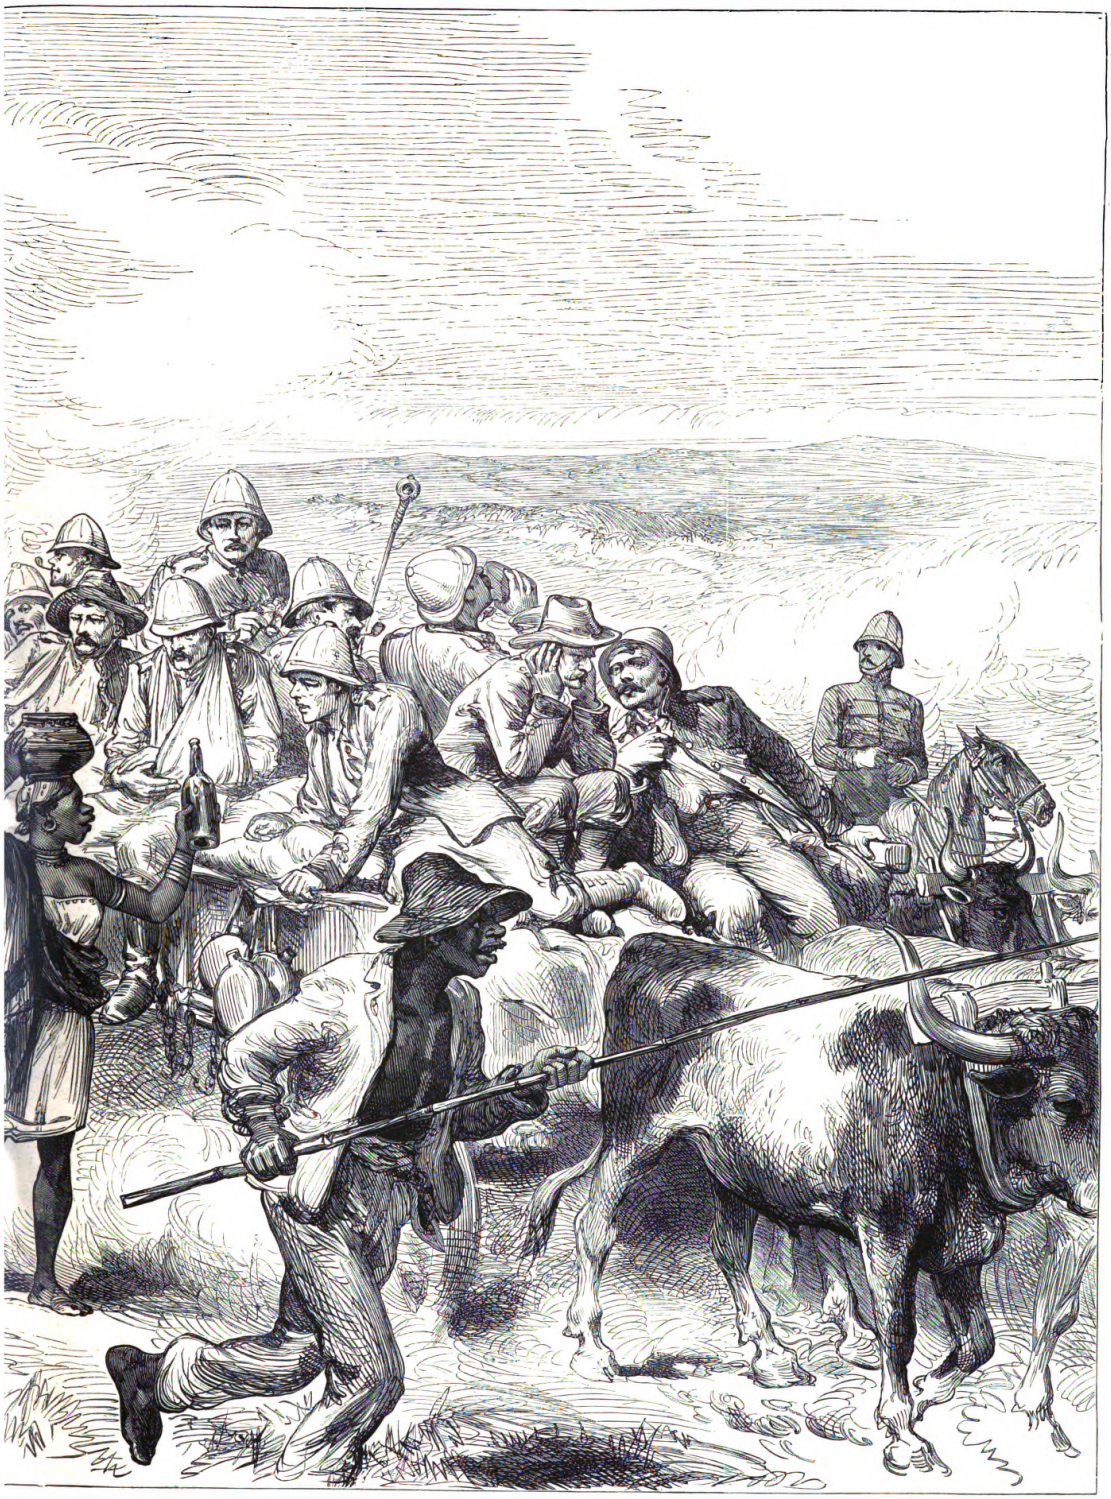
The reply of the Treasury to the Postmaster-General's recommendations for improving the position of the telegraphists and sorting clerks is printed. Mr. Fawcett's letter is dated Monday week, and the reply of the Treasury was sent on Thursday, most of the recommendations being adopted, although the agitation of the telegraphists is condemned, and their claim as to status in the Civil Service is repudiated. It is said that the telegraphists are dissatisfied with the new scheme.

Sir Edward Watkin made a statement on the 16th inst., at a meeting of the shareholders in the South-Eastern Railway, of the progress that has been made in the experimental works relating to the Channel Tunnel. They have ascertained that there is a stratum under the Channel impervious to water; and that with the imperfect machinery now at their disposal they can excavate two miles per annum. At this rate, working simultaneously from both sides, the tunnel would be completed in five years. He suggested that it might be advisable to get up a small limited liability company to take the matter in hand.

Edwin John Parsons, assistant letter-carrier at Birmingham, was charged last Saturday with delaying 2031 letters. The prosecuting solicitor stated that it was most extraordinary that although a large number contained bank-notes, securities, and postage-stamps, only forty-two complaints were made during the six months over which the prisoner's irregularities extended. The prisoner made no attempt to open the missing letters, the contents being untouched. He appeared to have detained them from sheer laziness, and upon some occasions had evidently suppressed the whole of the letters for delivery on his round. The prisoner was remanded.

THE LATE WAR IN SOUTH AFRICA: SICK AND

FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SP



OUNDED PRISONERS RETURNING DOWN COUNTRY.

IAL ARTIST.—SEE PAGE 640.

THE COURT.

The Queen and the Royal family, before leaving the Highlands, drove to Glen Gelder Shiel, Castleton, the Linn of Corrie Mullie, and other notable localities. Her Majesty and Princess Beatrice also paid leave-taking visits to numerous families attached to the Royal demesne.

A ball was given at the Castle to the servants, tenants, and gillies of the Balmoral and Abergeldie estates; the Queen, Princess Beatrice, Princesses Victoria and Elizabeth of Hesse being present a portion of the evening with the ladies and gentlemen of the household.

Captain De Lancey, Lieutenant Horne, and Lieutenant Rycroft, 71st Regiment (Highland Light Infantry), stationed at Ballater, were invited to luncheon at Balmoral, and were afterwards presented to her Majesty; and the Rev. Archibald Campbell dined with the Queen.

Divine service was performed on Sunday at the castle, her Majesty and the Princesses being present.

The Court left Balmoral for the south on Tuesday, arriving at Windsor Castle on Wednesday morning.

The forty-fourth anniversary of the accession of her Majesty was celebrated on Monday, with the customary honours.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince and Princess of Wales closed their stay at St. Leonard's Hill by identifying their interests with those of the Household Cavalry, of which corps his Royal Highness is Colonel-in-Chief. The Prince and Princess rode to Windsor Great Park, and witnessed the manœuvres of a field-day, the Duke of Cambridge being present. Their Royal Highnesses returned to St. Leonard's, and on Sunday they attended the church parade of the Royal Horse Guards at Windsor, and were afterwards present with the regiment at Divine service in Holy Trinity Church, the Rev. Arthur Robins and the Rev. G. C. Bateman officiating. Silver medals for long service and good conduct were subsequently presented to several members of the corps at the Spital Barracks.

On Monday the Prince and Princess, with Princesses Louise, Victoria, and Maud of Wales, returned to Marlborough House. The Prince went to the House of Lords in the afternoon and acted as a "supporter" of the Duke of Albany on the occasion of the introduction of his Royal Highness into the house; the Duke of Cambridge being the other "supporter." The Princess and her daughters, Princess Louise of Lorne, and the Duchess of Teck were present. The Prince presided at the annual dinner of the Rifle Brigade (the Prince Consort's Own) at Willis's Rooms, in the absence of the Duke of Connaught, the Colonel-in-Chief of the regiment. His Royal Highness afterwards accompanied the Princess to a dance given by Lord and Lady Alfred Paget, at their residence in Queen Anne-street. The Grand Duke of Hesse arrived at Marlborough House on Tuesday on a visit to their Royal Highnesses, he having been met at Dover by Major-General Du Plat and Colonel A. Ellis. The Royal party went to the Royal Italian Opera in the evening; the Prince and Princess going after to a ball given by Major-General and Mrs. C. Baring, at Grosvenor-place. On Wednesday the Prince held a Levée at St. James's Palace, and in the evening accompanied the Princess to Lady Julia Wombwell's first dance.

The Duke and Duchess of Connaught embarked at Portsmouth on Monday in the Royal yacht Osborne, commander Lord Charles Beresford, and cruised off for Portland. On Tuesday their Royal Highnesses steamed in a pinnace to Weymouth, where the Duchess landed and made a tour of the town. On Wednesday the Osborne, with the Royal party, left Portland Roads for Penzance and the Scilly Isles.

The Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz has returned to Germany.

The Duchess of Teck assisted at the Fancy Fair held on Tuesday at 37, Grosvenor-square, in aid of Miss Leigh's Home for English and American girls in Paris. The Duke and Duchess dined with the Earl and Countess of Wilton at their residence in Grosvenor-square. The Duke, president of the Royal Botanic Society, held the annual evening fête in the gardens, Regent's Park, on Wednesday, the various Royal personages in town being present.

The Maharajah Dhuleep Singh, accompanied by his sons, Princes Frederick and George, have arrived at Claridge's Hotel, from Elvedon Hall, Thetford.

FASHIONABLE MARRIAGES.

The marriage of Mr. William Nicholas Leader, of Dromaga Castle and Rosnaler, in the county of Cork (late of the Scots Greys), with the Hon. Eleanor Charlotte Burke Roche, eldest daughter of the late Lord Fermoy, took place at St. Peter's Church, Cranley-gardens, by special license, at three o'clock on Tuesday afternoon. The ceremony was performed by the Hon. and Rev. Francis E. C. Byng, Vicar of St. Peter's, the bride being given away by Lord Fermoy, her brother. The bride wore a dress of rich cream satin, trimmed with fine point de gaze, and a wreath of orange-blossoms covered by a large tulle veil; and carried a bouquet of orange-flowers and white lilies. She was attended by four bridesmaids—namely, the Hon. Caroline and Hon. Ethel Roche, her sisters; Miss Leader, sister of the bridegroom; and Miss C. Millais, daughter of the Royal Academician. They wore Louis XIV. costumes—corsage of ivory moiré antique and jupes of ivory silk trimmed with Indian muslin and Mechlin lace; and Louis XIV. hats of ivory velvet trimmed with ostrich plumes. Captain the Hon. W. P. Alexander, Royal Scots Greys, was best man. After the ceremony the wedding party adjourned to Dowager Lady Fermoy's house in Onslow-gardens for refreshments. The newly-married couple took their departure for Dover en route to Switzerland for their wedding tour.

The marriage of Mr. Henry De V. Vane and Lady Catherine Cecil is arranged to take place next Tuesday, at St. Thomas's, Orchard-street.

A marriage is arranged and will shortly take place between Captain Lee Guinness, second son of the late Sir Benjamin Lee Guinness, Bart., and brother to Lord Ardilaun, and Lady Henrietta St. Lawrence, sister to the Earl of Howth.

---

On the application of Sir Llewelyn Turner, Mr. Gladstone has directed £75 to be paid out of the Royal Bounty and Special Service Fund to Mr. Edwards, of the Navigation School, Carnarvon, from which hundreds of young men have passed into the shipping service as masters and mates.

The committee appointed for the purpose of considering the expediency of undertaking a revision of the Welsh version of the New Testament according to the text adopted in the revision of the English version have met at Shrewsbury and agreed to recommend that the work should be carried out.

Seven regiments of Metropolitan Volunteers, representing about 3500 officers and men, underwent their annual official inspection last Saturday, namely:—The 5th (West) Middlesex, 10th Middlesex, 19th Middlesex (Bloomsbury), 2nd Tower Hamlets, 1st and 6th Surrey Rifles, and 1st London Engineers. The muster in the case of each regiment was good, and the drill satisfactory.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

All communications relating to this department of the Paper should be addressed to the Editor, and have the word "Chess" written on the envelope.

T B R (Munich).—Thanks. One of the last batch shall have early insertion.

S G C (Hunderstone).—We have not yet received a reply to the inquiry. You shall be notified of the answer when it comes to hand.

H H (Bath).—Mr. Morphy is still living, and resides at New Orleans, but he has retired from the practice of chess.

T M M (Secunderabad).—Your proposed solutions of Nos. 4, 5, and 7 arrived last week after the notice addressed to you in our last Number had been sent to press. These problé- s shall be examined. What about Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 6?

F J (Coventry).—The amended diagram shall have early attention.

J D S (New Orleans).—We have attended to your request, and thank you for the trouble you have taken. Can you not favour us with some of Mr. Maurian's games?

E F (Lyons).—Yours was a curious optical delusion; but we are all subject to error at times. The resource of the defence in No. 1946 is not the least of the merits of that composition.

ALPHA.—There is a general and very gratifying expression of regret by our solvers on the retirement of "Last Harden."

NUOVA RIVISTA (Leghorn).—We much regret that the exchange cannot be arranged.

J S (Boston).—According to the report of the Westminster Chess Club for the year 1859, the number of games played between Alexander Macdonnell and La Bourdonnais was eighty-eight. Of these, eighty-five have been published, and the only record of the remaining three, if they were ever recorded, has been lost. You will find the eighty-five games in the late Mr. Walker's "Chess Studies." The total score to each player in the six matches played by these great masters of chess is—La Bourdonnais, 44; Macdonnell, 36; drawn, 14.

L L G (Brixton).—Why ask us for the solution of a problem published recently in another paper? It may save future trouble to notify that in no case should we comply with such a request.

B S (Sheffield).—Your diagram is obviously wrong, for the Black King is already in the position of checkmate, and your four moves are unnecessary.

CORRECT SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM No. 1940 received from W Pocock of Cape Town, and of No. 1944 from Alfred Rowley.

CORRECT SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM No. 1945 received from Alfred Rowley, Sudbury (Suffolk); C Johnnidon, J Youssoufian (Constantinople), and S G C.

CORRECT SOLUTIONS OF THE FIRST PRIZE PROBLEM received from S Farrant, R T Kemp, W Hillier, C Oswald, H Blacklock, Otto Fulder (Ghent), L L Greenaway, N S Harris, and Aaron Harper.

CORRECT SOLUTIONS OF THE SECOND PRIZE PROBLEM received from S Farrant, W Hillier, Jupiter Junior, Ben Nevis, C W Milsom, W J Rudman, W Warren, and M O'Halloran.

CORRECT SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM No. 1946 received from Shadforth, John Tucker, G, W J Eggington, E L G, Cant, S G C, and Emlie Frau.

CORRECT SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM No. 1947 received from G A (Bonchurch), Pilgrim, Alfred Rowley, Sudbury (Suffolk), Pierus, S Farrant, E Louden, R H Brooks, W Hillier, Hereward, D W (Guernsey), Shadforth, R Tweddell, R T Kemp, Jupiter Junior, S Home (Elanelly), C Oswald, H Blacklock, J Alois Schmucker, James Dobson, O Fulder (Ghent), W Biddle, Ben Nevis, L L Greenaway, Albert Mace, N S Harris, J W W, A Chapman, Lulu, W J Rudman, Aaron Harper, W Warren, Semaj, Woggiepoll, T R Rapp (Malden), M O'Halloran, F W Humphries, H J Grant, Joseph Ainsworth, E Elsbury, L Sharswood, Ernest Sharswood, L Falcon (Antwerp), H Langford, R J Hyde, H H Noyes, J G Anstice, F Parslee, T H Hodgson, Fire Fly, N Wardle, G W Law, An Old Maid, Nerina, G Fosbrooke, John Tucker, Pops, W J Eggington, Sidmouth, Eastbach, R B Duff, Smutch, J H (Twickenham), Cant, Lily, John O Mille, E Ridgway, Alpha, E L G, De F St, St George, Birkbeck Chess Class, S G C, J J Heaton, and Emlie Frau.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1946.

| WHITE. | BLACK. |
|---|---|
| 1. Q to K B sq | B takes Q* |
| 2. P to Q 4th (ch) | P takes P (en passant) |
| 3. Kt (from Kt 6th) to B 4th mates. | |

* If 1. K takes Kt or 1. Kt to B 7th, White continues 2. Q to Q B 4th: if 1. Kt takes K P, then 2. Q takes P (ch); if 1. Kt takes R P, then 2. Kt to B 4th (ch), mating in each case on the third move. In the leading variation, if Black on his second move play K takes Kt, 3. Kt to B 8th mates.

SOLUTIONS OF THE PRIZE PROBLEMS IN THE FIRST PROBLEM TOURNEY.

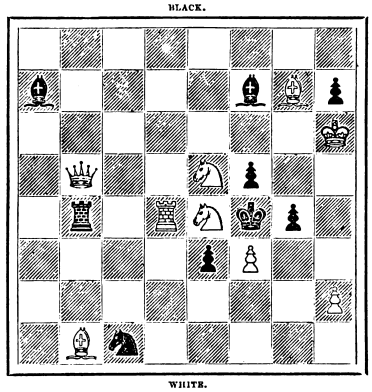
| FIRST. | | SECOND. | |
|---|---|---|---|
| WHITE. | BLACK. | WHITE. | BLACK. |
| 1. Kt to Q B sq (dis. ch), | Q takes Q | 1. R to Q 7th | P takes P (ch), (best) |
| 2. B to K Kt 8th (ch) | K to R sq | 2. K takes B | Kt to B 8th (ch) |
| 3. Kt to B 6th | Any move* | 3. K to R sq | B to Q 3rd |
| 4. Mates accordingly. | | 4. P to K 4th | P to B 7th |
| | | 5. R to Q 8th | Any move |
| | | 6. Kt or B mates. | |

* If 3. P takes Kt, then 4. B takes P mate: if 3. Q to K 5th (ch), then 4. B to Q B 4th, discovering check and mating.

PROBLEM No. 1949.

By H. E. KIDSON.

BLACK.



WHITE.

White to play, and mate in two moves.

---

The issue of the second number of Brentano's Chess Monthly, to which we have all been looking forward, has been delayed by an accident at the mill where the special paper on which it is printed is manufactured. It arrived in England on Tuesday last, and in quality and variety of contents is fully up to the high standard of the first number. Herr Falkbeer's "Sketches from the Chess World" are continued, the paper this month dealing with the first appearance of Morphy in Europe, and with the early days of Andersen, with whom the author, himself one of the most distinguished players of a famous school, was very intimately associated. Ares, a Greek relative of "Mars," we presume, treats of the tracasseries of modern tournaments, and the "Tale of Ancient Chivalry" is a highly humorous satire, whose application, we suspect, lies nearer to London than to New York. A collection of games learnedly annotated by Mr. Barnes, and about thirty problems edited by Mr. Carpenter, make up the most surprising shilling's-worth ever seen in the literature of chess.

The commencement of the match between Messrs. Blackburne and Zukertort, which was originally fixed for June 20, has been postponed until the 25th.

The game between Captain Mackenzie and Mr. Charles A. Maurian, of New Orleans, published in our Issue of April 2 last, was inadvertently described as one of a number played simultaneously by the American champion during his visit to the Crescent City. Mr. J. D. Seguin, of the New Orleans Chess Club, requests us to state that this game is one occurring in a series of single-handed encounters in which each player scored four and two were drawn.

We should be glad of an opportunity of presenting the other nine games to our readers, for Mr. Maurian is one of the most brilliant chessplayers in the Southern States of America. Of the band of Amateurs intimately associated with the early career of Paul Morphy, Mr. Maurian, Mr. James McConnell, and Mr. Benjamin are, we believe, the only survivors. The two first-named are still true to the old love (they played a drawn match of eight games recently); but Mr. Benjamin has deserted chess, has settled among us, and is now one of the most distinguished members of the English Bar.

The mechanical, or so-called automaton chessplayer, "Mephisto," has changed his quarters to 48A, Regent-street, where he may be interviewed every day by any of our country cousins disposed for a game of chess against a masterly opponent.

The Chessplayers' Chronicle announces that a prize has been offered by Mr. H. T. Davenport, M.P. for North Staffordshire, for competition by the established clubs of that district. Each club is to play a match with every other club, and the one that wins the largest number of matches will be entitled to the prize. The highest individual score will be rewarded by a prize to be provided out of an entrance-fee of one shilling, required from every competitor.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will (dated May 7, 1879) of Mr. Edward Hermon, M.P., late of No. 13, Berkeley-square, of Preston, Lancashire, and of Wyfold Court, Henley-on-Thames, who died on the 6th ult., was proved on the 10th inst. by Richard Hermon, the brother, Alexander Staveley Hill, Q.C., M.P., and John James, the executors, the personal estate amounting to upwards of £588,000. The testator leaves to his wife £3000, and his trustees are directed to keep up a domestic establishment for her, and to pay or apply a sum not exceeding £3500 per annum for her support and maintenance; to his son George Edward, and his daughter, Mrs. Frances Caroline Hodge, £3000 each; to his executors, £2000 each; to his said brother Richard, in addition, £2000; to his brother John, and to his sisters, Mrs. Mary Palmer and Mrs. Agnes Matilda Hughes, £1000 each; upon trust for his stepson, Edward Henry Ryan, his wife and children, £20,000; upon trust for his sister Mrs. Palmer and her daughters, £10,000; upon trust for his sister Mrs. Hughes and her children, £10,000; and legacies to nephews, nieces, bailiff, clerks, Scotch gamekeeper, and domestic servants. One half of the residue of his property, real and personal, is to be held upon trust for his son George Edward, and the other half for his daughter Mrs. Hodge.

Letters of administration of the personal estate of Mr. Edward William Leyborne Popham, late of Littlecote, near Hungerford, Berks, who died on Jan. 24 last intestate, without having been married, were granted on the 31st ult. to Dame Isabella Leyborne Mundy, the sister and only next of kin, the personal estate being sworn under £300,000.

The will (dated March 5, 1879) of Mr. Robert Phillips, late of No. 23, Cockspur-street, and of No. 62, Regent's Park-road, jeweller and goldsmith, who died on April 21 last, at Torquay, was proved on the 30th ult. by Alfred Phillips, the son, and William B. Phillips, the brother, the acting executors, the personal estate being sworn under £120,000. The testator gives to his wife £500 and all his furniture, plate, pictures, household effects, horses and carriages; to his son Alfred and his daughter Eugénie a freehold house each at Emperor's Gate; upon trust for his daughter Ada and his son Harvey such sums as will produce £200 per annum each; to his said brother William an annuity of £200; and legacies to employés and others. The residue of his real and personal estate is to held upon trust to pay the annual income, including the profits of his share in the partnership business, to his wife for life, and at her death to divide the capital between his children, Palmyre Myer, Alfred, Claude, Eugenie, and Lilian.

The will and codicil of Mr. John Moore, late of Rosemount, Loose, Kent, who died on April 21 last, were proved on the 31st ult. by Mrs. Matilda Jane Moore, the widow and sole executrix, the personal estate being sworn under £100,000. The testator leaves the Calcraft estate to his wife; £10,000 Consols, if he does not leave any issue, to his brothers and sisters, and, if dead, their children; and legacies to servants. The residue of his property, both real and personal, he gives to his wife for life; at her death, £30,000 and the house at Rosemount, with all it contains, are to go to Maria Louisa M'Alpine; and some other bequests are to be then paid. The remainder of his money, the testator says, his wife can do as she likes with.

The will (dated April 3, 1877) with a codicil (dated Aug. 1, 1879) of Mrs. Susanna Harvey, late of Greenway, on the river Dart, Devon, who died on March 22 last, was proved on the 30th ult. by George William Frederick Marsh and William Henry Marsh, the nephews, Sir Philip Prothero Smith and Robert Macleane Paul, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £80,000. There are numerous and considerable pecuniary legacies to nephews, nieces, friends, servants, tenants, and others, and many specific gifts of pictures, including some by Sir Edwin Landseer, G. Dow, Rembrandt, Rubens, and Paul Potter. The residue of the real and personal estate is to be divided between her nephews and nieces; but this bequest is not to include great nephews and nieces.

The will (dated May 31, 1880) of Dame Henrietta Buller, late of No. 23, Bruton-street, Berkeley-square, who died on April 18 last, was proved on the 26th ult. by General Sir George Buller, G.C.B., the husband, and sole executor, the personal estate she had power to appoint or dispose of being sworn under £50,000. The testatrix gives to her husband her house in Bruton-street and £10,000; and there are legacies to nephews, nieces, and others, including an annuity of £40 to Mary Seward, a faithful servant of the family. The residue of her real and personal estate is to be held upon trust for her husband for life, then, as to two thirds, for her niece Ethel Stanley, and as to one third, for her niece Venetia, Viscountess Pollington.

The will (dated April 21, 1881) of Mr. James Child, late of No. 228, Mare-street, Hackney, veterinary surgeon, who died on the 7th ult., was proved on the 31st ult. by Nathaniel Starkey, the nephew, William Benjamin Fisher, and Alfred Robert Pite, the executors, the personal estate being sworn under £9000. The testator, among other legacies, bequeaths £700 to be invested and the dividends to accumulate until the lease of Trinity Chapel, Devonshire-road, Hackney, expires, when the capital fund and accumulations are to become part of the chapel funds; there is also a present legacy to the chapel of £200; £200 to the religious and benevolent institutions in connection with Mildmay Conference Hall; £150 to the Bristol Orphanage; £100 each to the Crystal Palace Bible Stand, Sydenham, the Mildmay Mission to the Jews, the Aged Pilgrims' Friend Society, and the Hackney Benevolent Pension Society; and £50 to the Protestant Blind Institution; all free of duty.

The will (dated July 26, 1880) of the Hon. Arthur Annesley, formerly a Captain in the Grenadier Guards, late of No. 11, Curzon-street, Mayfair, who died on April 26 last at Cannes, was proved on the 28th ult. by the Hon. Mrs. Clara Annesley, the widow and sole executrix, the personal estate being sworn under £2000. The testator simply says, "All that I possess in the world I leave to my wife." The deceased was the fourth son of William Richard, third Earl Annesley, and brother of the present peer.

The will (dated Jan. 18, 1880) of Sir Robert Bowcher Clarke, LL.D., C.B., formerly Chief Justice of Barbadoes, late of Eldridge, Chiselhurst, Kent, who died on the 9th ult., was proved on the 28th ult., under a nominal amount, by Robert Bowcher Clarke, the son, the acting executor. There are bequests to his wife and daughter, and the residue of his property the testator leaves to his said son. C. G. C.

---

The members of the Oratory, Edgbaston, on Sunday presented Cardinal Newman with his portrait, painted by Mr. W. W. Ouless, A.R.A. The address which accompanied the painting expressed the gratitude and joy of the congregation at his elevation to the cardinalate.

A free public library was opened last Saturday at Richmond by Countess Russell. The library consists of 7100 volumes; and amongst the donors of books are the members of the Russell family, Mr. Gladstone, the Duke of Buccleuch, Sir Trevor Lawrence, M.P., and Sir Erskine May.

THE LONDON AND LEICESTER HOSIERY COMPANY, Limited.

CAPITAL, £150,000, IN 15,000 SHARES OF £10 EACH.

First Issue of £10,000 Shares, payable £1 on Application, £2 on Allotment, and the remainder by Calls not exceeding £2, at intervals of not less than Three Months.

Any Subscriber wishing to fully pay up his Shares will be allowed 5 per cent interest on the surplus beyond the calls which may have been made at the time.

DIRECTORS.

JAMES ADAMS, Esq., Warehouseman, Greenbank, Lewes.

WILSON BURGESS, Esq., Hosiery Manufacturer, Leicester.

F. HANNAM, Esq. (Messrs Hinc, Parker, and Co., Wholesale Hosiers), Milk-street, London.

WM. JAMES INGRAM, J.P., 63, Cromwell-road, Kensington.

W. MORGAN-BROWN, Esq., 28, Southampton-buildings, London.

GEORGE A. ROBINSON, Esq., Stoneygate, Leicester.

W. N. TOLLER, Esq. (Messrs. Richard Harris and Sons, Hosiery Manufacturers), Leicester.

BANKERS.

LONDON—London and Westminster Bank, Limited.
LEICESTER—Leicestershire Banking Company, Limited.

SOLICITORS.

Messrs. ASHURST, MORRIS, CRISP, and CO., 6, Old Jewry, London, E.C.

BROKERS.

LONDON—Messrs. CLARENCE and GERVASE SMITH and CO., Mansion House-buildings, E.C., and the Stock Exchange.
LEICESTER—Messrs. J. H. WILLIAMS and SON.

AUDITORS.

Messrs. WYKES BROS., and MANTLE, Leicester.

SECRETARY (pro tem.)—WM. HAINWORTH, jun.

OFFICES OF THE COMPANY.

41, Charterhouse-square, London, E.C.

ABRIDGED PROSPECTUS.

This Company has been formed for the purpose of purchasing and working the English Patents and business of Griswold and Hainworth, Limited, and the Patent for Great Britain of Mr. Benjamin Franklin Shaw, of Lowell, Massachusetts, U.S.A., for his Jacquard Stocking Knitting-Machine, known as the "Shaw Stocking Loom."

There is no article of dress the consumption of which is so great as that of Socks and Stockings. Any new machine, therefore, by which the cost of production is materially lessened, whilst at the same time the make is decidedly improved, must ensure an extensive and remunerative trade.

In 1877 a few gentlemen established the Limited Company of Griswold and Hainworth, to enable Mr. Griswold to perfect his inventions relating to Hosiery and Domestic Knitting Machinery, and to work the same to such an extent as might be necessary to test their value.

That Company, although it has been working for only three years, has proved the superiority of its hosiery, known under the registered trade mark "NIANTIC," over every other make, in being absolutely seamless, in having rounded and thickened heels and toes, and in the absence of all lumps.

The new Domestic Knitting Machine which that Company has lately introduced meets a requirement long felt—viz., a machine which shall take in regard to the Hosiery of the family the same relative position as the Sewing Machine does to the other articles of the wardrobe.

Under the supervision of Mr. Griswold this Knitting-Machine has been so simplified and perfected that it not only fulfils every requirement for domestic use, but may be advantageously employed in Schools, Reformatories, and other Institutions. Where these Machines are in use one or two inmates make all the stockings required at a saving of about half the price formerly paid. Upon it can be made not only a large variety of useful and fancy articles for domestic use, but also every class of ribbed, plain, or fancy socks and stockings which when finished are entirely seamless, and fit as perfectly and wear as well as those knitted by hand.

As soon as the facilities for manufacture are completed and the Machines are properly advertised, it is anticipated that this department of the Company's business will become exceedingly lucrative.

Further particulars of this Knitter, together with copies of some of the Testimonials which have been received from a large number of ladies and from Managers of Institutions who have used it successfully, are sent out with this Company's Prospectus.

MEANWHILE MR. SHAW, IN AMERICA, invented a Power-Loom for producing automatically, and at a speed never before attained, SEAMLESS FLAIR half-hose and children's socks, with ribbed tops, as perfect in shape and in fit as the Niantic.

This extraordinary machine is now being worked in America by the Shaw Stocking Company, of Lowell, Mass., which is at present producing from sixty-four Looms an average of 238 doz. of ribbed-top half-hose daily, or nearly 3¾ doz. per loom per day.

These Looms are so simple in construction, and so positive and automatic in their operation, that they are worked exclusively by female labour; and, as one girl can tend from four to six Looms, THE ENTIRE COST IN LABOUR OF PRODUCTION DOES NOT EXCEED 3½d. PER DOZEN PAIRS, INCLUSIVE OF RIBBED TOPS.

Mr Shaw has at one stride done more to cheapen the cost of production of fashioned hosiery than has been accomplished during the last half century, and, besides this, the small wage cost of about ONE FARTHING PER PAIR leaves nothing more for inventors to do in this line.

The profits of the existing business, with the first one hundred Shaw Looms added, will, according to most careful calculations, amount to £21,000. After deducting the expenses of working and management, which will not exceed £5000, and writing off 10 per cent from the plant and patent rights, the balance of net profit will be sufficient to pay a dividend of 15 per cent on the called-up capital.

As £70,000 is sufficient to build and equip a mill and work 100 Shaw Looms and to fully develop the existing business, it is proposed to make a first issue of 10,000 Shares, but at present to call up only £7 per Share—viz., £1 on application, £2 on allotment, and £2 within three months, and £2 within six months of allotment.

The purchase-money agreed to be paid for the various patents, including future improvements, &c., is £15,000 in cash and £15,000 in fully paid-up Shares. The Stock (value about £200) and plant, &c. (value about £2000), of Griswold and Hainworth, Limited, will be taken over at a valuation.

If no allotment is made, the deposit paid will be forthwith returned without deduction.

One of the Shaw Stocking-Looms is on exhibition at 12, Southampton-buildings, Chancery-lane, W.C., in order to afford intending investors an opportunity of seeing it at work and obtaining samples manufactured under their personal inspection. Any additional information which may be desired about the Mill at Lowell can be obtained from Mr. Shaw at the same address.

Copies of the Memorandum and Articles of Association, of the Contracts, together with samples of the Hosiery, may be seen at the Offices of the Company. Prospectuses, Forms of Application, and Testimonials may be obtained of the Secretary, the Solicitors, Bankers, or Brokers.

Payments may be made to the account of the Company at the London and Westminster Bank, Limited, or to the Leicestershire Banking Company, Limited, Leicester; or to the Secretary, at the offices of the Company.

The Subscription-Lists will be closed for London on or before Wednesday, June 29; and for the Country on or before Thursday, the 30th inst.

PETER ROBINSON,
103 to 108, OXFORD-STREET.
NEW GOODS
in all Departments.
ILLUSTRATIONS AND PATTERNS FREE.

FASHION-BOOK and PRICE-LIST now ready. Sent free by post.

LADIES IN THE COUNTRY
Are requested to write for Patterns of

NEW SILKS, including

PONGE WASHING SILK, 20 yards for 1 Guinea.

PONGEE GARNITURES, 4½ yards long, Embroidered in Silk, 10s. 6d. the piece.

300 PIECES of GRISAILLE SILKS, 23s. 6d. the Dress.

SPECIAL.
180 PIECES of COLOURED GROS GRAIN, in all the New Shades, 2s. 9½d. per yard.

100 PIECES of NEW BLACK BROCHÉ SATIN, from 2s. 11d. per yard.

BLACK SATINS, soft and bright, from 1s. 6d. per yard.

100 PIECES of extra Rich BLACK SILK MERVEILLEUX, 4s. 6d. per yard, 24 in. wide.

160 SHADES of New DUCHESSE SATINS, extra wide width, 4s. 9d. per yard.

RICH BLACK SATIN GROUND BROCADED VELVET, for Mantles, &c., 7s. 11d. per yard.

ITALIAN SATINS, in every shade of Colour, from 2s. 11d. per yard.

ALL the LATEST NOVELTIES in SHADED and BROCADED SILKS, from 3s. 6d. to 7s. 6d. per yard.

PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON.

LADIES IN THE COUNTRY
are requested to write for Patterns of

NEW SUMMER DRESSES, including
ANGOLA BEIGE, 25 in. wide, 10d. to 1s. 6d. per yard.
ANGOLA BEIGE, 45 in. wide, 1s. 10d. to 2s. 6d. per yard.
VIRGINE CASHMERE, very fine, 26 in. wide, 1s. 6d. per yard.
CACHEMIRE DE LINDE, 45 in. wide, 2s. 11d. to 3s. 9d. per yard.
CASHMERE MERINOS, New Spring Colours, very wide, 1s. 11d. to 2s. 9d.
CACHEMIRE DE PARIS, very fine, 46 in. wide, 1s. 11d. to 3s. 3d. per yard.
VIRGO SERGE CLOTH, 26 in. wide, all Wool, 1s. 6d. per yard.
DIAB CASIMIR, 26 in. wide, 1s. to 1s. 9d. per yard.
Rich Wool and Silk MIXED FABRICS, Tompadour and other elegant Styles for draping, 1s. 9d. to 3s. 6d. per yard.
All the above in Black and every shade, including the NEW HIGHLAND COLOURS.
RICH VELVET VELVETEENS in the New Black, as advertised, very wide, 2s. 3d., 2s. 6d., 2s. 9d. per yard. In White and all the New Colours, 2s. 9d. to 4s. 6d. per yard.
SPECIAL SALE of 120 pieces RICH BLACK DAMASSE CASIMIR, at 1s. 9d. per yard, usual price 3s. 6d.
BLACK GRENADINES, Plain, Broché, and striped.
An enormous collection of PRINTED SATINES, Percales, Cambrics, Crebonnes, &c., in every variety of design.
Several hundred pieces last year's patterns in real French Cambrics, at 4½d. per yard.
OSBORNE LAWNS, a very useful Fabric for MORNING DRESSES, in Plain, Checked, and Striped, all Colours. These goods are very wide, and one uniform price, 7½d. per yard.
PATTERNS POST-FREE.

MADE MATERIAL COSTUMES.
A well-selected assortment of all the leading styles and combinations, including:—

| | |
|---|---|
| Light Fawn Cashmir, trimmed braid .. | .. £1 9 6 |
| Plain and Fancy Beige .. .. | .. 2 12 6 |
| French Cashmere, trimmed rich brocades | 3 16 6 |
| Cashmere de Linde, trimmed ombré .. | .. 4 4 0 |
| Plain and Printed Cambrics and Percales | .. 0 14 9 |
| New Printed Satines, .. .. .. | .. 1 7 6 |
| Corded and Zephyr Lawns .. .. | .. 1 11 6 |

Patterns and Illustrations of the above Costumes, with Forms for Self-Measurement, post-free.

PETER ROBINSON, OXFORD-STREET, LONDON, W.; and MOURNING WAREHOUSE, 256 to 262, REGENT-STREET.

TEENS that young ladies are in no hurry to get out of—

"LOUIS" VELVET-TEENS.

THE "LOUIS" VELVETEEN
IS SIMPLY UNIQUE.
Do not be induced by persuasion to take any other.

LOUIS AN EXTRA PROFIT TO YOUR LOSS may be speciously made if you accept, under whatever name offered, an inferior quality of Velveteen.

"THE LOUIS"
has established its reputation so widely that even a slight inferiority would injure its repute, which constitutes
A TEST OF MERIT,
and guarantee of
UNSURPASSED QUALITY.
Be sure you find the words
THE "LOUIS" VELVETEEN
on every yard,
or you have not the
GENUINE "LOUIS,"
notwithstanding all assertions to the contrary.

LOUIS

NICHOLSON'S
NEW SUMMER SAMPLES.
Patterns post-free.
FRENCH CASHMERES, BEIGE SERGES, HERRING-BONE and MILAN STRIPES, and all the Newest Materials in the most beautiful colours.

NICHOLSON'S
NEW WASHING FABRICS.
Patterns post-free.
FRENCH SATTEENS, CAMBRICS, OATMEAL CLOTH, BRILLIANTS, &c., In every new and tasteful design.

NICHOLSON'S
NEW SILKS.
Patterns post-free.
PLUSHES, VELVETS, SATINS, BROCHES, SATIN DE LYONS, and PLAIN LYONS GROS GRAIN, in every fashionable shade.

D. NICHOLSON and CO.,
50 to 53, ST. PAUL'S-CHURCHYARD, LONDON,
SOLE LESSEES OF THE COSTUME COURT, CRYSTAL PALACE.

PETER ROBINSON'S
COURT AND GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
REGENT-STREET.

FAMILY BEREAVEMENTS.
Upon Receipt of Letter or Telegram
PETER ROBINSON'S EXPERIENCED DRESSMAKERS and MILLINERS TRAVEL to ALL PARTS of the COUNTRY (no matter the distance) FREE OF EXPENSE TO PURCHASERS, with Dresses, Mantles, Millinery, and a full assortment of MADE-UP ARTICLES of the best and most suitable description. Also Materials by the Yard, and supplied at the same VERY REASONABLE PRICES as if Purchased at the Warehouse in "REGENT-STREET."
Mourning for Servants at unexceptionally low rates, at a great saving to large or small families.
Funerals Conducted in Town or Country at Stated Charges.
Address 256 to 262, Regent-street, London.
PETER ROBINSON'S.

THE BEST CRAPES,
THAT WILL NOT SPOT WITH RAIN.
Special qualities finished by the manufacturer in this desirable manner solely to the order of PETER ROBINSON.
Good qualities from 5s. 6d. to 12s. 9d. per yard. Others, not finished by this process, from 1s. 6d. to 4s. 6d.

A SPECIAL PURCHASE.
300 PIECES OF
RICH BLACK BROCADED SILKS, very fashionable now for Costumes and Mantles.
3s. 9d., 3s. 11d., 4s. 3d., 4s. 9d., 5s. 11d., 6s. 6d.

100 PIECES OF
BLACK SATIN IMPERIAL, a New Make of Satin, Rich in appearance, and wears better than any other silk.
5s. 6d., and up to 10s. 3d.

BLACK SATIN MERVEILLEUX, new this Season.
3s. 6d., 4s. 11d., 5s. 9d., 6s. 6d.

BLACK SATIN DE LYON, a good useful Silk, for Hard Wear,
3s. 6d., 4s. 11d., 5s. 11d., 6s. 6d.

BLACK DUCHESS SATIN, at 5s. 6d., 6s. 6d.;
Magnificent qualities at 7s. 6d. and 10s. 6d.

BLACK SATINS (Cotton Backs), 1s. 11d., 2s. 6d., 2s. 11d., 3s. 11d.

BLACK BROCADED VELVETS, 5s. 3d., 6s. 11d., 8s. 9d., 10s. 3d.

BLACK TWILLED SILKS, for Summer Wear, at 3s. 6d., and above.

BLACK SURAT SILKS, with White Floral Designs, 2s. 11d., 3s. 6d., 3s. 11d.

COSTUMES in SILK, SATIN, and BROCADE.
Face suits of Kate-note Paris Models at 4 guineas and up to 20 guineas.
Materials for Bodices included.
For Patterns of the above,
Please write to—
PETER ROBINSON'S, REGENT-STREET,
Nos. 256 to 262.

SHIRTS.—FORD'S EUREKA SHIRT. Patterns of the new French Regatta and Oxford Mat shirts, with collars attached. Or Illustrated Book sent by post to select from on receipt of two stamps. Prices from 27s. to 40s. the half-dozen.—R. FORD and CO., 41, Poultry, London.

FOR SOUTH AFRICA.—How to get rid of your left-off clothes, jewels, furniture, antique lace, old gold teeth plates, &c. Why, send them to the most respectable purchasers, who pay you ready money before taking them away.—Mr. and Mrs. PHILLIPS, Old Curiosity Shop, 31, Thayer-street, Manchester-square, London, W.

ELECTRICITY IS LIFE
PULVERMACHER'S "GALVANISM, NERVE'S" CHIEF RESTORER OF IMPAIRED VITAL ENERGY.
In this Pamphlet the most reliable proofs are given of the vast and wonderful curative powers of Pulvermacher's Patent Galvanic Chain-Bands, Belts, &c., in Rheumatic, Nervous, and Functional Disorders. Sent post-free for three stamps on application to
J. L. PULVERMACHER'S GALVANIC ESTABLISHMENT, 194, Regent-street, London, W.

"FOR THE BLOOD IS THE LIFE."
CLARKE'S WORLD-RENOWNED BLOOD MIXTURE is warranted to cleanse the Blood from all impurities, from whatever cause arising. For Scrofula, Scurvy, Skin and Blood Diseases, its effects are marvellous. In Bottles, 2s. 6d. each, and in cases, containing six times the quantity, 11s. each, of all Chemists. Sent to any address for 30 or 132 stamps, of the Proprietor, F. J. CLARKE, Chemist, Lincoln.

HAY FEVER CURED BY
DR. DUNBAR'S ALKARAM, or Anti-Catarrh Smelling-Bottle.
ALKARAM. HAY FEVER.
ALKARAM. HAY FEVER.
ALKARAM. HAY FEVER.
If inhaled on the first symptoms, ALKARAM will at once arrest them, and cure severe cases in half an hour. Sold by all Chemists, 2s. 9d. a Bottle. Address, Dr. Dunbar, care of Messrs. F. Newbery and Sons, 1, King Edward-st., E.C.

TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON, For CONSTIPATION, BILE, HEADACHE.

TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON, A LAXATIVE AND REFRESHING FRUIT LOZENGE, UNIVERSALLY PRESCRIBED BY THE FACULTY.
TAMAR INDIEN GRILLON.
2s. 6d. per Box, stamp included.
Sold by all Chemists and Druggists.
Wholesale—E. GRILLON, 69, Queen-street, London, E.C.

BLAIR'S GOUT PILLS, THE GREAT REMEDY FOR GOUT AND RHEUMATISM.
Sold by all Chemists, at 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. per Box.

THROAT AFFECTIONS and HOARSENESS.—All suffering from Irritation of the Throat and Hoarseness will be agreeably surprised at the almost immediate relief afforded by the use of BROWN'S BRONCHIAL TROCHES. These famous "lozenges" are now sold by most respectable Chemists in this country, at 1s. 1½d. per Box. People troubled with a "hacking cough," a "slight cold," or bronchial affections cannot try them too soon, as similar troubles, if allowed to progress, result in serious Pulmonary and Asthmatic affections. See that the words "Brown's Bronchial Troches" are on the Government stamp around each box.—Prepared by JOHN I. BROWN and SONS, Boston, U.S. European Depôt, 35, Farringdon-road, London.

"KEATING'S POWDER" kills BUGS, Moths, Fleas, Beetles, and all Insects (perfectly unrivalled). Harmless to everything but Insects. Tins, 6d. and 1s.

GENUINE DUBLIN WHISKEY.
THE MOST WHOLESOME OF ALL SPIRITS.
DUBLIN WHISKY, Distilled by Messrs. JOHN JAMESON and SON, GEORGE ROE and CO., WILLIAM JAMESON and CO., and JOHN POWER and SON; can be obtained in Wood by wholesale merchants and dealers, direct from their respective distilleries.

GENUINE DUBLIN WHISKY.
THE MOST WHOLESOME OF ALL SPIRITS.
DUBLIN WHISKY.—Messrs. GEORGE ROE and CO. can also supply through the wholesale trade their Whiskies in cases, the bottles protected by capsule, label, and brand on corks.

FRY'S | Gold Medal, Paris. — First Award, Sydney. | FRY'S CARACAS COCOA. "A most delicious and valuable article."—Standard.

COCOA. | PURE COCOA ONLY. | FRY'S COCOA EXTRACT. "strictly pure."—W. W. STODDART, F.I.C., F.C.S., City Analyst, Bristol. Thirteen Exhibition Medals.

CHOCOLAT MENIER. Awarded the GRAND DIPLOMA OF HONOUR.

CHOCOLAT MENIER, in ½lb. and ¼lb. Packets. For BREAKFAST and SUPPER.

CHOCOLAT MENIER.—Awarded Twenty Eight PRIZE MEDALS. Consumption annually exceeds 18,000,000 lbs.

CHOCOLAT MENIER. Paris, London, New York.
Sold Everywhere.

SCHWEITZER'S COCOATINA.
Anti-Dyspeptic Cocoa or Chocolate Powder.
Guaranteed Pure Soluble Cocoa, with excess of Fat extracted. Four times the strength of Cocoa Thickened yet Weakened with Arrowroot, Starch, &c.
The faculty pronounce it the most nutritious, perfectly digestive Beverage for "BREAKFAST, LUNCHEON, or SUPPER." Keeps in all Climates. Requires no Cooking. A teaspoonful to Breakfast Cup, costing less than a halfpenny. Samples gratis. In Air-Tight Tins, at 1s. 6d., 3s., &c., by Chemists and Grocers. H. SCHWEITZER and CO., 10, Adam-street, London, W.C.

ROBERT ROBERTS AND CO.'S CELEBRATED TEAS.
TWELVE POUNDS AND UPWARDS CARRIAGE PAID.
Samples and Price-lists free by post.
Queen Insurance-buildings, Liverpool. ESTABLISHED 1840.
No agents.
All communications and orders direct.

EVER SWEET, RARE and PRECIOUS PERFUMES. PIESSE and LUBIN have a nice Collection of delicious PERFUMES, with appropriate names and poetry, suitable for presents, with indicative titles, such as the following:—

MANY HAPPY RETURNS of the DAY. SWEETS TO THE SWEET.

DAWN OF LOVE.
"Silence o'er the maiden fell,
Her beauty lovelier making;
And by her blush, I knew full well,
The dawn of love was breaking."

NEVER FORGOTTEN.
"Not long I've known thee, gentle one,
Nor often have we met;
But in my heart the joy arouse
I never can forget."

A MESSENGER OF LOVE.
"Neither too little nor too much
This message shall convey;
Get mute attendance of the Sun,
And speed thee on thy way!"

TO THEE!
"Could I haste the c ming Spring,
Ev'ry tree and pretty thing,
Ev'ry flow'r that's sweet—I'd bring
To thee."

LOVE'S ERRAND.
"Go, lovely rose!
Tell her that wastes her time,
and me
That now she knows,
When I resemble her to thee
How sweet, and fair, she seems to be."—Edmund Waller.

THINK OF ME.
"Though the world may bid us sever,
And we dwell in distant climes;
Yet the heart will murmur ever,
Think of me, of me sometimes."

Together with about 100 others for choice, all as good as the above, equally suitable for lady or gentleman. Obtainable of any Chemist or Perfumer throughout the world.
PIESSE and LUBIN,
2, NEW BOND-STREET, LONDON.

THE RACES and FÊTES.—Ladies, and all exposed to the Sun and Dust, will find ROWLANDS' KALYDOR most Cooling and Refreshing to the Face. It eradicates all Tan, Sunburn, Freckles, &c., and produces a Beautiful and Delicate Complexion.

ROWLANDS' ODONTO is the purest and most fragrant dentifrice ever made. All dentists will allow that neither washes nor pastes can possibly be as efficacious for polishing the teeth and keeping them sound and white as a pure and non-gritty tooth powder; such Rowlands' Odonto has always proved itself to be. Ask any Dealer in Perfumery for Rowlands' Articles.

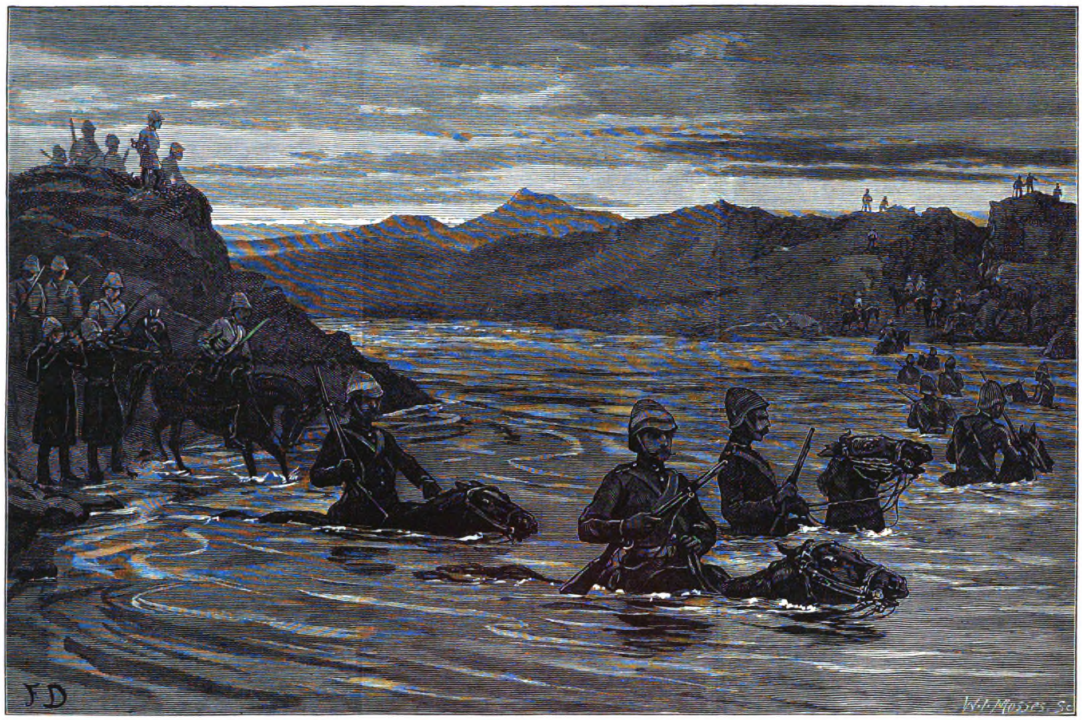
BREIDENBACH'S SACHETS.
Wood Violet, White Rose, Stephanotis, Marechale, Eau Bouquet, Musk, Ylang Ylang, Opoponax, Millefleurs, Chypre. In paper envelopes, 1s. each; in silk bags, 1s. each; in satin cushions, 2s. 6d. each. Sold by all Perfumers and Fancy Dealers, or post-free from the Makers, 157a, New Bond-street, London, W.

JAMES LEWIS'S WHITE ROSE EAU DE COLOGNE (Registered), for the Boudoir, Ball-room, and Handkerchief. Price 3s. per Bottle. James Lewis, Manufacturer, 6, Bartlett's-buildings, Holborn.

JAMES LEWIS'S WHITE ROSE EAU DE COLOGNE (Registered).—This new and elegant Preparation retains the delicate perfume of the White Rose, with all other choice flowers, and is all that can be desired for toilet purposes.

VALUABLE DISCOVERY for the HAIR.
If your hair is turning grey, or white, or falling off, use "The Mexican Hair Renewer," for it will positively restore in every case Grey or White Hair to its original colour, without leaving the disagreeable smell of most "Restorers." It makes the hair charmingly beautiful, as well as promoting the growth of the hair on bald spots where the glands are not decayed. "The Mexican Hair Renewer" is sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere, at 3s. 6d. per Bottle.

FLORILINE. For the Teeth and Breath.
Is the best Liquid Dentifrice in the world: it thoroughly cleanses partially-decayed teeth from all parasites or living "animalculæ," leaving them pearly white, imparting a delightful fragrance to the breath. The Fragrant Floriline removes instantly all odours arising from a foul stomach or tobacco smoke, being partly composed of honey, soda, and extracts of sweet herbs and plants. It is perfectly harmless, and delicious as sherry. Sold by Chemists and Perfumers everywhere, at 2s. 6d. per Bottle.



GENERAL SIR EVELYN WOOD RECONNOITRING WITH THE 15TH HUSSARS ACROSS THE BUFFALO RIVER.
FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST IN SOUTH AFRICA.

AN OLD LADY OF A HUNDRED AND TEN.

The favourite couplet in Tom Moore's "Fudge Family," referring to the famous Countess of Desmond, has been often quoted —

> She lived to the age of a hundred and ten,
> And died of a fall from a cherry-tree then!

We sincerely hope and trust that a more comfortable end will yet await, for some years to come, the excellent old lady—an Irishwoman too—whose portrait, from a photograph by Mr. Boyd, we are permitted to publish this week. It comes to us from the Rev. Thomas Hunter, librarian of Dr. Williams's Library, in Grafton-street, Euston-square, who has received it from a friend of his at Larne; and there is no doubt of the reality of this extraordinary instance of female longevity. Still living and in good health is this wonderful old lady—Miss Margaret Bailey—who completed her 110th year on Jan. 8 last. She resides in the townland of Ballygilbert, parish of Cairncastle, situate on the coast of the county of Antrim, between the towns of Larne and Glenarm. It is a picturesque neighbourhood, well known to tourists by the coast road from Larne to the Giant's Causeway. In addition to her own uniform statement and the concurrent belief of her relatives and neighbours, the age of this remarkable woman is attested by the Rev. Classon Porter, of Ballygally Castle, in the same parish, who has in his possession the original family record, giving not only the date of Miss Bailey's birth, but also that of her brother and sisters. "Mr. Porter is a highly respected Presbyterian minister, who has been forty years resident in Larne or in the adjoining parish of Cairncastle. In his learned retirement," says Mr. Hunter, "he takes an interest in antiquarian matters and local records, and has long been acquainted with Miss Bailey and her nephews and nieces in the parish." In a recent letter to the Larne Weekly Reporter he vouches for the genuineness of the document, the history and other evidences of the paper placing the truth of the record beyond dispute. Mr. Porter states for the gratification of a natural curiosity of readers at a distance, what is well known and corroborated by other residents in the locality, that Miss Bailey occupies, as her forefathers did for generations before her, the position of a tenant-farmer, and that she was born and has spent all her days in the house she now occupies. Her brother dying young and her sisters marrying early in life, she was for many years called upon to superintend personally the business of her farm. This she continued to do effectually until an accident a few years ago to some extent disabled her. But her mental faculties are not in the least impaired, and her bodily health in other respects being excellent, she is able with help to move a little about her house, in the management of which she still acts as mistress.

MISS MARGARET BAILEY, OF CAIRNCASTLE, COUNTY ANTRIM, NOW IN HER 111TH YEAR.

The Census of Ireland shows a population of 5,159,849, being a decrease of 252,538 since 1871. The population is composed of 2,522,804 males and 2,637,035 females. The decline of the last ten years was spread over every one of the thirty-two counties, with three exceptions. It was greater in Ulster than elsewhere, and was greatest in Monaghan. The three counties which did not decline were Antrim, Dublin, and Kerry.

THE LATE WAR IN SOUTH AFRICA.

Our Special Artist, Mr. Melton Prior, whose sketches of Laing's Neck, the position successfully defended by the Boers against Sir George Colley, have appeared in this Journal, sends us the Illustrations now engraved of several incidents of the late campaign on the Transvaal border of Natal. The scene on the river, near Newcastle, where a detachment of the Royal Artillery is represented in the act of crossing by a pontoon bridge supported on empty beer-barrels, shows one of the expedients for conducting the movement of troops in a rough country like the interior of South Africa. In another sketch, General Sir Evelyn Wood, escorted by a few troopers of the 15th Hussars, is seen out upon a reconnoitring expedition, swimming across the Buffalo, the frontier river between Natal and the Wakkerstrom district of the Transvaal. The large Engraving that fills two pages of this Supplement is a delineation of the appearance of a party of sick or wounded British prisoners, released by the Boers in the Transvaal, and sent down the country to Natal, where they could obtain more efficient medical attention. They have, indeed, according to the uniform testimony of British military commanders, been very kindly treated during their detention by the Boers, who nevertheless could not have their ailments properly treated by skilled surgeons and physicians, there being scarcely any Dutch professional men of that faculty in the Transvaal. The first action of the late war, on Dec. 20, when the British Administrator of the Transvaal had called up the detachment of the 94th Regiment, from Lydenburg, to reinforce the garrison at Pretoria, left a number of our soldiers captive in the hands of the Boers, while Colonel Anstruther and many of the others were killed in that conflict at Bronkers' Spruit. Our Artist has visited the spot, which is not far from Middelburg, in the eastern part of the Transvaal; and he presents three views of it, one looking towards the road to Pretoria, the direction in which the regiment was marching when suddenly stopped by the Boers. The other two views represent the graves of the officers, and those of the soldiers, of the 94th Regiment, on the ground where they fell. Returning to the British head-quarters' camp at Mount Prospect, four miles south of Laing's Neck, the selling of deceased soldiers' kits by auction, which is a customary practice of military life, is the subject of our remaining Illustration for this week. In this instance the pair of boots and other articles of personal equipment, put up for sale to the best bidder, had belonged to a man who was killed on Majuba Hill. Other Sketches have been received, some of which may probably appear in our next.

THE BRITISH MUSEUM.

The report laid before Parliament states that the number of persons admitted to view the general collections (exclusive of readers) in 1880 was 655,688.

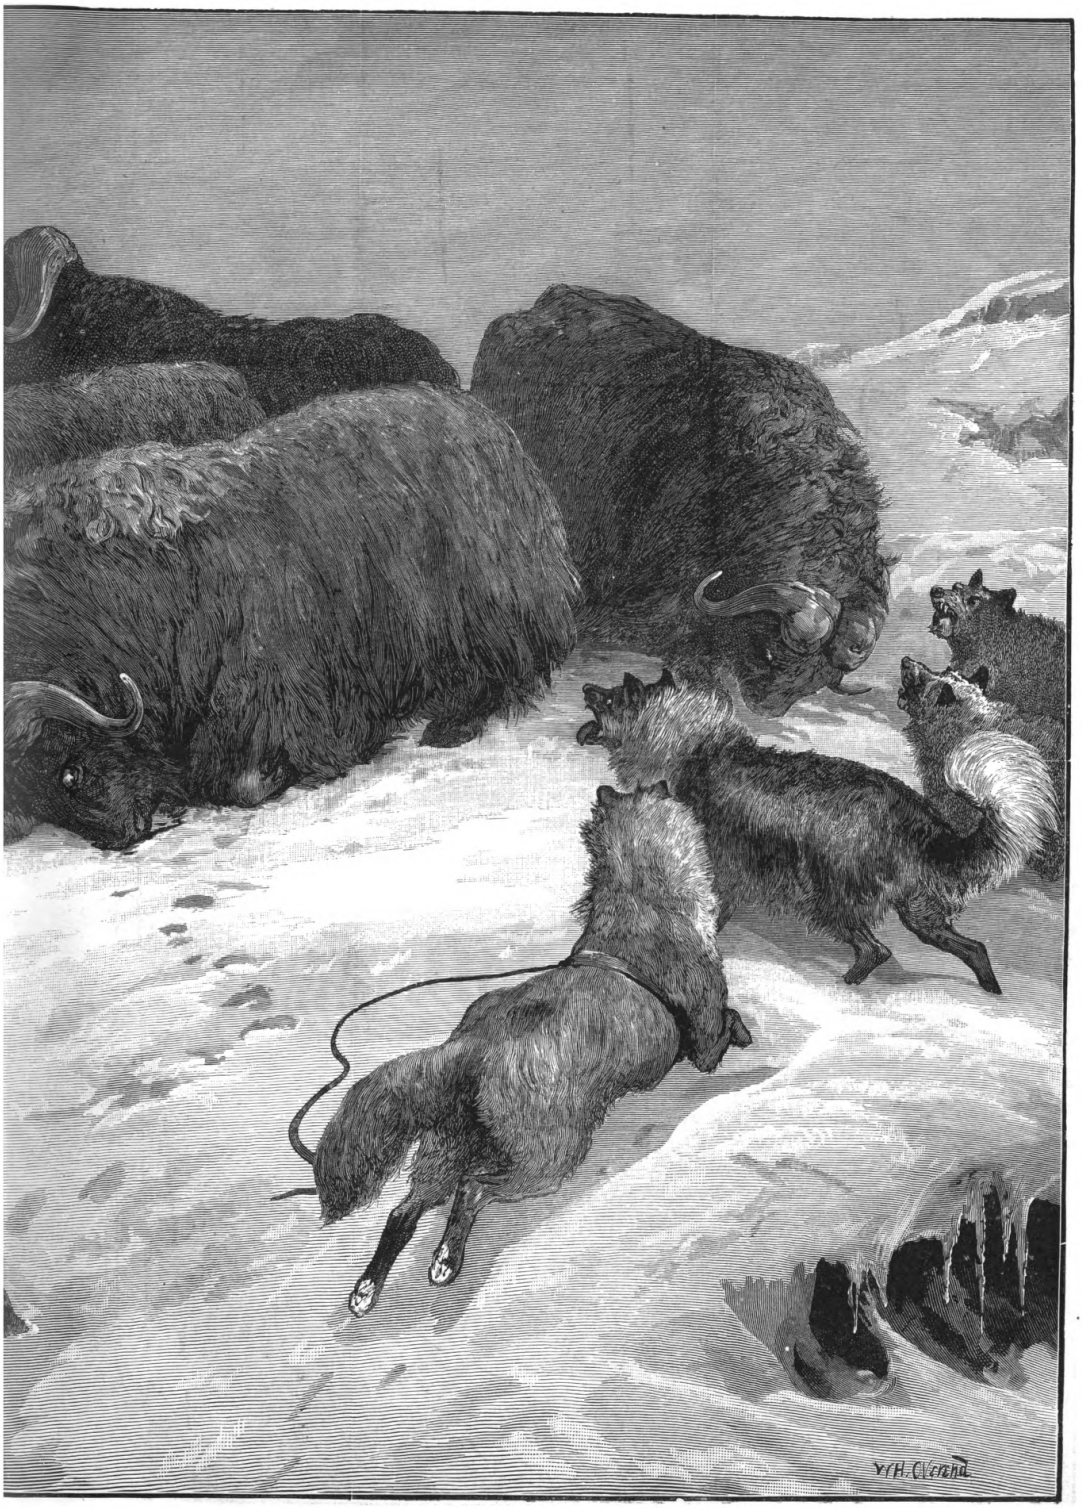
The electric light has been successfully used in the Reading-room until seven o'clock in the evening through the darker months, from the earlier part of October. With a view to expediting the service of the Reading-room, by bringing in close connection to it books often required by readers, the galleries in the room itself will receive a new selection of books, to consist of additional works of reference, and generally such books as are most often asked for by students.

Amongst the acquisitions are a considerable number of rare Mexican books, several rare liturgical works, a large number of books from a collection of rare German literature of the sixteenth, seventeenth, and eighteenth centuries; a curious collection of German broadsides of the same centuries; and above 300 works in every branch of music. The number of MSS. and documents acquired during the year comprise the following: General collection of MS. 439, Egerton MS. 2, Rolls and Charters 226, and detached seals 24. Of Oriental MSS., 111 have been acquired during the year, amongst which are a volume containing portraits of 86 Emperors of China, with historical notices, and a collection of 99 coloured drawings by Chinese artists.

In the department of Oriental Antiquities, the acquisitions number 3046. Other valuable acquisitions had been made in the departments of Greek and Roman antiquities, British and Mediæval antiquities, coins and medals, natural history, geology, botany, and prints and drawings.

SHOOTING MUSK OXEN

FROM A SKETCH BY MR. H. W. KLUTSCHAK, OF



THE ARCTIC REGIONS.

HE AMERICAN FRANKLIN SEARCH EXPEDITION.